SALEM HIGH SCHOOL, SALEM, OHIO, FEBRUARY 6, 1928

PRICE 10 CENTS

TEAM PREPARES FOR TOURNAMENT

INTERNATIONAL ORATORICAL CONTEST SOON TO BEGIN

HANDSOME AWARDS TO DISTRICT WINNERS

Several Ohio newspapers in cooperation with secondary schools have been requested to enter the International Oratorical Contest. They are The Salem News, The Canton Repository, The Steubenville Herald-Star, The Marion Star and The East Liverpool Review.

Any bona fide secondary school pupil under 19 years of age on Feb. 1, 1928, is eligible to enter. The contestants must use one of the following subjects: "The Development of the Constitution" or "The Present Significance of the Constitution." The prizes to be awarded in the Salem district contest are: First, $75; second, $50; third, $25.

The winner of the district contest will compete in the state finals at Canton, April 27. All expenses will be defrayed for the winner and a companion to Canton and return home.

The winner of the state finals will be awarded the state championship cup. He will compete on May 11 at Troy, N. Y., in a zone contest, the national semi-finals. There will be eight contestants at Troy, The Brush-Moore newspapers, conductors of contests in Ohio, will defray expenses of winner and companion as before.

The winner of the zone contest will compete in the national finals at Washington, D. C., May 20. Eight contestants will compete at Washington. Expenses paid as before.

The eight winners of the national semi-finals (regardless of the outcome at Washington) will be awarded the trip to Europe. If the Ohio champion wins at Troy, he will go to Europe. Brush-Moore newspapers will defray his expenses to New York. The national headquarters of the contest will pay the way to Europe, for ten weeks in Europe, and the return to New York. The Brush-Moore newspapers will then pay the winners' way to his home city.

Mr. Willam: Robert, do you believe in capital punishment?

Talbot: Certainly if it is not too severe.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR A FREE ANNUAL

JOKE EDITOR CONDUCTS CONTEST; YEAR BOOK GOES TO WINNER

DEBATERS SOON TO START ON FORENSIC CAMPAIGN

Twelve Candidates to Begin Intensive Work

Now that the preliminaries have been brushed aside, Mr. Fley's debaters are about to start on their year's work. Up until now, all activities have been merely preparatory; the real thing is now on the program. The first scholastic engagement is about a month away and that means good hard work.

Of the squad that first assembled, twelve now remain. Virginia Callahan, Elvira Roessler, Marie and Susie Lutsch, Harold Hurst, Evan Jenkins, Ted Van Campen, Earl Correll, Howard Heston, Florence Davis, Walter Deming, Walter Coy and Charles Wilhelm are Salem's aspirants for forensic honors. The last three have had previous experiences and will likely get first call; but Mr. Fley refuses to make any promises and every one has an equal chance.

Mr. Fley had already secured quite a bit of material, with much more expected daily. It is going to take some mighty fine arguing to down Akron, Niles and Ravenna. The latter two are back for revenge and Akron is out for just blood. The debaters are out to keep Salem's record clean; let's help in any way we can.

Hurrah, another contest is on! The joke editor, Melvin Ormes, has decided to run a little contest in his own department. And this game should sure be a humdinger. Another free Quaker Annual is to be the reward to the winner. Ormes has graciously consented to stand all the expenses of the contest. That is surely a commendable spirit and in return for his generosity, we should cooperate in every way that we can. The Quaker has considered the proposition and is willing to back Ormes to the limit.

There is nothing difficult about this contest. Just read over the short paragraph that follows, then write a second page to the scrap book. Following the usual procedure, write your page with title but not your name, take a clean sheet of paper and write your title and name on that. Then hand both parts to Ormes, Miss Woods or any other member of the Quaker staff.

That's all you have to do. Ten minutes work and a free annual as the reward. Isn't it worth it? Certainly it is. There must be at least ten entrants. Get yours in early. Some of you clever students can easily win a prize. Let's make this a real contest. This is the first year the Quaker has been offering substantial rewards to contest winners. Cooperate and make the plan a success. The prizes are guaranteed. Florence Davis need not

MISS HILDA ROSE STAHL HEROINE OF "BUDDIES"

Faculty Member Makes Big Hit In Legion Play

Miss Hilda Rose Stahl, a member of Salem High's faculty corps and newly appointed dramatic coach, has scored a marked hit in her first amateur production in this vicinity. Miss Stahl will be remembered as the dramatic coach of "The Whole Town's Talking," the successful senior class production. Miss Stahl does some fine work in "Buddies" as does the rest of the cast. The play scored a big hit in Alliance recently; in fact it was so well received that the local American Legion de-cidied to bring it to Salem. Miss Stahl is perhaps the best known member of the play to local followers; but doubtlessly many know the others of the cast. Here they are; do you recognize your friend?

HALF WAY MARK ALMOST PASSED TOURNAMENT NOT DISTANT

CAGERS RAPIDLY ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

The Big Red Team is rounding into shape now and team work seems to be the main point. Litty is back in togs again after a week with a bad ankle. Now we have to mention something which we would rather not. Paul Fogg will have played his last game for Salem against Garfield, January 28. His loss will mean the passing of one of the greatest little floor workers in a long time. Semesters put him from the game. Heretofore only the very hardest teams have been played in an effort to strengthen our team for the tournament. The shooting is becoming finer and Captain "Rib" Allen seems to be reaching to the top of his game. Floor work as was mentioned, is the main point being driven at now. Almost half the season is over now and by the time you read this, the tournament at Akron, will be only a month off. Our snappy four-piece combination suits should help make almost as much of a stir as our last year's cheer leader, Mary Schmidt. Let us watch for Salem!

PITTSBURGH PRESS CONDUCTS LINCOLN ESSAY CONTEST

Valuable Prizes Go To Winners

Every year about this time the Pittsburgh Press, Pittsburgh, Pa., conducts a Lincoln Essay Contest open to all school children in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. Ohio has been very poorly represented heretofore and here is a chance to remedy the situation. There is very little real effort required and the prizes are certainly worth while.

The rules are simple. Any student under sixteen may enter the contest. The idea is to write a brief essay on Lincoln, the essay not to exceed 100 words. Just 100 words; that means concentration and condensation. Write on one side of paper only and send in a coupon, clipped from that paper, with your essay before Feb. 12. These coupons may be received from the Pittsburgh

DOWN THE HOME STRETCH

Half the school year has passed. Hasn't the time gone swiftly. Here we are, fresh and clear, ready to dash down the home stretch. Who is going to be the winner? Are you?

In a long foot race, the runner, if he be wise, generally conserves stamina, wind and speed until he enters the home stretch. Then he gives all that he has in him in order to be the first to break the tape of victory. On the other hand we have the runner who gives his all at the first of the race. He is far out in front at the half way mark. Yes, but how quickly that lead disappears. Soon others press him; he is literally "shot" and soon he is left far behind.

How about your case? Have you given all that is in you? Why not be a conservative; save a little of your energy for the last lap, you will need it. The first semester has passed. If you have been successful, you should try that much harder to keep up your good work. If you have fallen somewhere, that is all the more reason why you should dig in and make up for that failure. Let's try just a little harder this term. Of course it will mean a little more work, but don't worry, you will never kill yourself working. Remember idle hands breed mischief; busy hands breed advancement.

LEND A HELPING HAND

To date, our basketball team has enjoyed what one might call mediocre success. In that respect it resembles somewhat the football squad. But unlike the football season, there has been no noticeable disgust or unloyalty displayed. That is commendable, but we dare not stop.

It is unfortunate that 1927-28 must be a building year. But don't forget friends that every school must go through a few years of construction before a consistent, winning combination has been formed. We have had our years of harvest. If we do not sow, we cannot reap. The boys have fought every inch of the way and they are steadily rounding out a fine cage squad. Allen, Litty, Whinnery, Fogg, Jones, Harwood and Guilford have all

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS CLOSSES FIRST SEMESTER WITH SUPPER

Domestic Science Room Is Scene of Big Social

Le Cercle Francais commemorated the first semester of its existence with a club social in the domestic science room on Jan. 31. A fine representation was present and all had a rip roaring time.

The Club has no regular dues so a collection was, taken from the members. With this money they purchased weinies, beans, coffee, ice cream and—oh-h—lots of goodies including potato chips. You may rest assured that nothing went to waste. The members spoke French, were served in French, but that did not detract from their appetites in any way.

This is only one of the things that Le Cercle Francais has done for its members. It has promoted a spirit of fellowship and good will that alone justifies its existence. During the course of the five months the club has learned some things about French life and customs, staged two scenes of "La Bete" and has been treated to some enjoyable entertainment. The Jan. 31st meeting sung the swan song for the officers of the club, Charles Wilhelm, president; Louise Smith, vice president, and Richard Shaw, secretary. They have given the club its start and it is now up to the new leaders to keep it going.

MR. S. K. TODD KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Quaker Loses Real Friend

On Tuesday, January 24th, Salem and Salem High lost a staunch friend in Mr. S. K. Todd, Manager of the Salem Label Company. Mr. Todd was killed and his wife seriously injured when their car skidded near Caledonia, and struck a telephone pole, crushing Mr. Todd.

Mr. Todd was ever a kind, jovial friend and will be missed by all. He had been actively connected with Quaker for several years and The Quaker wishes to take this opportunity to express its sincere and heartfelt sorrow for the loss of a good friend.

Small Girl: What's your last name?

Second Ditto: Don't know yet, I ain't married.

shown their mettle. Fogg is lost for the rest of the season. He has played a bang up game and will be missed. Another, however, will soon fill his shoes.

The tournament is soon on the board. How far will Salem go? Just as far as the school backs it and no further. Even though you may consider Salem out of it, you can at least show loyalty by being present. Remember, only one team can win; we won last year and others were disappointed. This year let's be good sports and lend a helping hand.

MR. &amp; MRS. BARTHOLOMEW ENTERTAIN WITH UNUSUAL PROGRAM JANUARY 24

The assembly Tuesday morning was opened with a selection from the Bible, read by Principal Simpson. He then introduced Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew who entertained the student body with a novel program, which consisted of saxophone selections by Mr. Bartholomew, accompanied by Mrs. Bartholomew.

Seniors Inaugurates Senior Speeches

The first cannon of the gun of senior speeches was shot off January 17th. Lowell Allen's subject was, "Prohibition." He dealt with this mostly in connection with youth. Blanche Anglemeyer discussed "The Causes of Crime." In connection with "Is Poverty a Curse?" Margaret Atkinson declared that poverty is not a curse and may be made a blessing. Winifred Bailey gave a splendid talk about the hero of the air, "Charles A. Lindbergh." Charles Bennett had for his topic, "Washington."

More Speeches

The assembly this morning was in charge of Walter Deming, who introduced the second group of senior speakers. Hazel Baker had as her subject, "The Needs of Education." Hazel Beck discussed "Oliver Cromwell," the great English politician. Jean Binsley's topic was "Are Editorials Worth Reading?" William Bowers discussed the ever current topic, "Capital Punishment." Lowell Brown had as his topic, "Battle Creek Sanitarium."

A POEM YOU SHOULD KNOW

OPPORTUNITY

By John J. Ingalls

Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love, and fortune on my footsteps wait.

Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by Hovel and mart and palace—soon or late

I knock unbidden once at every gate!

If sleeping, wake—if feasting, rise before,

I turn away. It is the hour of fate,

And they who follow me reach every state.

Mortals desire, and conquer every foe

Save death, but those who doubt or hesitate,

Condemned to failure, penury, and woe,

Seek me in vain and uselessly implore,

I answer not, and return no more!

The Brook

The brook that through the meadow flows,

Runs merrily along.

And every day I stop and hear
Its joyous little song.

I love to sit upon its banks

And watch it as it flows.

It twists and turns and winds about,
I know not where it goes.

In places it is narrow,

I can jump from side to side;

And when it's frozen over,
On its surface I can slide.

I watch the little fishes,

As they dart to and fro;

And sometimes I would catch them
Just for fun; then let them go.

When noonday sun is shining

It sparkles very bright.

It reflects the sun in daytime,
The shining stars at night.

I dearly love this little brook

That hurries all the day,

It seems as if it's calling me
To stop awhile and play.

CALVIN CONWAY.

HANKEY'S TEMPER

The Story of a Professor Who Took A Dare

"Dare you to!"

"I'm not afraid!"

"Well then do it!"

"All right, hold my books and stand down there at the door and tell me if anyone comes."

Theodora Jones, more usually Ted's, left lower extremity was swung over the banister and she started swiftly down the polished rail on the east stairs at Lynn High school Betty Gilbert stationed herself in the doorway nearest the main corridor and watched.

"Here comes Hanky!"

"Oh, my gosh!" came the muffled exclamation from half way down the stairs.

"Ted," after a great many contortions managed to jump off the rail and go bumping headlong down the stairs to stop at the feet of "Hanky."

"Well, what does this mean?" demanded the Professor of Sciences, as his tall frame towered above the impulsive Ted.

John L. Carr was the only faculty member with whom Ted held any enmity. It had started the first day of school when he had flourished a bright green handkerchief. Ted's irrepressible burst of laughter had sent the class into gales of merriment and Mr. Carr into a fit of tightheous wrath. Ever after that Ted was, in his eyes, the black sheep of the class with never a hope for an A. This condition was not lessened by the fact that Mr. Carr knew he was "Hanky" to every pupil in the High school. The pupils soon found that Mr. Carr's only faulty characteristic as a teacher was his terrible temper.

Now here at his feet sat Ted racking her brain for a proper excuse for such unreasonable conduct.

That is how it happened that Ted spent the next six weeks in Detention Hall.

It was Friday, the last day of Ted's sentence. As she stood at her locker jamming in her books she heard Hank's voice.

"No, I've never taken a dare," he was declaring.

"You haven't! Well, it's about time you became human for once." This was Mr. Leonards, Literature and English, stating his opinion of the matter.

Ted coughed loudly. She knew that they were just around the corner, and she hated eaves-dropping. But the voices went on without seeming to hear.

"Say! Do you think I'm afraid to take that dare?" hotly demanded Hanky.

"Yes, I do," quietly returned Mr. Leonards.

"Well, I'm not."

By that time Ted had banged her locker shut and was striding down the hall. She strove to forget this conversation but she could not resist imagining what dare Hanky had taken

The room was dark, deep, brooding dark, faint outlines of desks were just distinguishable by the dim light from the windows. All was silence.

A key turned in the lock of the door, the door opened, and a deeper splotch of blackness, in the form of a man, stole in. Stumbling back among the desks to the windows, he groped around until his hand touched the cord of a shade. After pulling the shades he found his way back to the door and pressed the light switch. The room was flooded with light, revealing—Hanky, with a huge roll of army blankets clutched tighly by a rope in one hand, gazing fearfully around the room. After this careful survey he spread the blankets on the floor and with a sigh, switched off the light.

For about fifteen minutes not a sound could be heard save for the imagined foot-steps in the hall and the pictured ghost-like images peering in the windows; when Hanky was not shaking with horror, he was muttering condemnation of himself for his fool promise to sleep here all night.

Had we been standing near the door we should have seen it softly open, and a hand slide cautiously through the narrow opening and switch on the light. The hand jerked back, an eye was seen in the crack of the door and then all was as before, save for the labored beating of the professor's heart.

After a few moments' hesitation he quietly arose and tiptoed to the door. He listened there for a few moments then slipped out into the tomb-like hall. To his startled ears came the hollow echo of a mischievous giggle. Then started the chase. Madly he dashed up stairs, down one corridor, up the next, down some more stairs and everywhere after this person. Then he saw it right before him—tall, dark, shadowy. He rushed forward, colliding sharply with a group of lockers. He was aware of a terrible crash and then he knew no more.

He awoke to the fact that a veritable shower was being splashed over him and a white scared face was bending over him. With a start he tried to arise, but Ted—for it was none other than she and Betty—pushed him back.

"Oh, Hanky—I mean Mr. Carr—I'm sorry. It's all my fault. If I hadn't seen you and persuaded Betty to follow you up here, this wouldn't have happened.—And I won't call you Hanky any more."

"Never mind. I think I rather liked it. It was just my terrible temper."

And the whole school thought is so queer that Monday morning a group of lockers was banged against the water fountain, the light in Room 33 was on, and Hanky wore a bandage over his left thumb. But most of all it wondered why, during the next few weeks, Ted managed to get A's in Biology and why she always frowned when anyone said "Hanky."

Riddle Kid

Dear Riddle Kid—What is the difference between a new sponge and a fashionable man?

OVER COTE

Ans.—Well, if you wet one it makes it swell, but if you wet the other it takes all the swell out of him.

—Q—

Dear Kid—Why is the latest thing in women's wear like the South African Bushman's Club?

OLOVER MUD.

Ans.—I am not particularly versed in feminine apparel, but from general observation I would say because it is "perfectly stunning" Fireman save my child!

—Q—

Dear Riddle Kid—Why are some married men like candles?

Bach LORE.

Ans.—Innocent boy! Because they occasionally go out at night when they oughtn't to. Stay single lad, stay single.

—Q—

Dear Riddle—What relation is a loaf of bread to a locomotive?

WOOFY GOOFY.

Ans.—What a comparison. But perhaps by deductive reasoning I may arrive at a conclusion. Ah yes, the answer is "the mother." Why? Well bread is a necessity, a locomotive is an invention and "Necessity is the mother of invention."

—Q—

Dear Riddle Kid—How can you make one pound of green tea go as far as five pounds of black?

I. C. T.

Ans.—Buy the above quantities in any reliable grocery store in Salem, wrap both securely and then send them to Damascus.

Dear Riddle—Captain Cook made three voyages around the world and was killed in one of these voyages. In which voyage was he killed?

POTA O. PEAL.

Ans.—Last one.

—Q—

Dear Kid—Can you tell me of what parentage Napoleon I was?

JAZZ BABY.

Ans.—The idea! Of course I can! (Of Corsican).

—Q—

Dear Kid—What is a boaster like an India-rubber ball?

ELAST DICK.

Ans.—Because he is empty and full of bounce.

—Q—

Dear Riddle—Why is a young man visiting his sweetheart, like the growth of a successful newspaper?

COURT SHIP.

Ans.—This is a delicate question and must be handled carefully. His visits commenced on a weekly, grew to be tri-weekly, and then became daily, with a Sunday supplement.

—Q—

Dear Kid—Why is a bashful lover like pop corn?

POP POP.

Ans.—He turns white when he pops. Did he?

RIB TICKLERS

Mother: (To noisy Tom) Tom why can't you be a good boy?

Tommy: I will for a penny

Mother: You'll be a good for nothing like your Dad.

—Q—

Doc: Gosh, I am almost penniless. Scullion: That's nothin, the ex-Czar of Russia was Nicholas.

—Q—

Miss Stahl: Ted have you done any outside reading?

Ted: No, it's too cold.

—Q—

Librarian: Isn't this book rather technical?

Yarwood: No ma'm, it was that way when I got it.

—Q—

Sap: Do the English have a Fourth of July?

Sy: Of course not.

Sap: Then how do they get from the third to the fifth?

—Q—

Teacher (explaining algebra problem to the class): Now watch the board and I'll go through it again.

—Q—

Seen on registration card:

Question: Give parents' name.

Frosh: Mama and papa.

—Q—

Teacher (during exams.): Jim are you trying to copy Billy's exams?

Jim: No ma'm, I'm just verifying facts that are on my paper.

—Q—

Hazel: Are you from Alaska?

Mutt: What makes you ask that?

Hazel: You dance as if you have snow-shoes on.

PAGES FROM MABEL'S SCRAP BOOK

No. 1

Mabel's mama says that her papa is so dumb that he thinks that the Marchant of Venice operates a peanut stand on Broadway, but something could be done for his dumbness. He doesn't want to go to town to see if it is the merchant of Venice running that stand for fear he might have to buy a bag of peanuts. He doesn't know what peanuts are and he might not like them at all.

He would rather lay in bed with headphones on his head and resume his attempt to get China with his Atwater Kant or tune in to Youngstown to determine whether he is listening to a explanation of the prevalence of hydrophobia in the upper flats—for the benefit of those who might think they are infected with the disease—or a seven piece orchestra playing "Girl of My Dreams" to prove the helpful help of twin beds or tooth paste.

Note: To the one who writes the best second page to this Scrap Book will be given a free copy of the Quaker Annual.

SALEM BREAKS EVEN IN FOUR CONTESTS

BOYS LOSE TWO, WIN TWO

Once more a short summary will have to be given of the four intervening games. They were to be a hard four and so it happened. A score of 500 per cent will be given us, two won and two lost.

Usually the Quaker has printed things which have occurred two weeks ago, but, this issue we have been able to put in an account of the games of the 27th and 28th. On these two dates we saw the team at its highest and lowest pitch. At Warren due revenge for the football loss was taken in the 28-14 defeat. The team was perfect and everything showed a well oiled mechanism. Fifteen points were made in the second quarter so the subs were given a chance and hold their own they did. The Reserves lost the pre-lim by two points in the last five seconds mainly by the efforts of a small De Santis lad. It was a good evening anyway.

Referee—Schull.

The second night was not so fine. After the Warren game, the team was taken to Cleveland. There a good time was had by all; Sidinger has a spoon as proof. They went to a show and then made their way to the Regent Hotel. Early the next afternoon a drive was made to Akron Garfield. This school is the model school of the district. At 8 o'clock the game began and it certainly was slow. Not a field goal was made in the first half. The boys appeared tired and played almost listlessly. The final quarter Jenkins was sent in and things awakened. He made eight points himself and once more a victory was in sight. The handicap of a point lead at the half was too much, however.

Grim—Referee.

Last year's state champs were beaten by two points. Only one member was left to this year's squad for them. That was the best guard seen this year on the floor, scoring 16 points alone. He was alone and almost invincible by himself. The officials were the best ever seen.

This was the team at its lowest, and we are only glad that we have a return game. The shooting and passing was terrible, but the size of the floor handicapped us who were more used to being spread out. The house was packed.

In order to get an idea of what it is all about, here is a brief resume:

A squad of American doughboys is billed with the Widow Benoit in Brittany. The time is immediately following the signing of the Armistice. One of the boys, called "Babe," brave in war but bashful in love, is deeply enamored of the Widow Benoit's daughter, Julie. Then the villain, Alphonso Pettibois, comes on the scene with a blackmail charge against Widow Benoit. Sonny, a buddy of "Babe," in order to save Julie from Pettibois, takes her himself and pretends to make love to her. He is already engaged to a girl in Brooklyn. Imagine the complications when Sonny's fiancée, Louise Maitland and also "Babe" come upon Sonny making love to Julie! Then the fun begins. Want to see the rest of it?

Press or the editor of the Quaker will gladly supply you. Writing desks, medals, huge dictionaries, globe maps and other prizes are given. The desks are worth $75.00. Several first and second and third prizes are given in each group. These groups run in ages. Fourteen to sixteen is one; twelve to fourteen is another and so on.

The editor of the Quaker was fortunate enough to receive third place out of approximately 1,500 entrants two years ago. The prizes are really worth while. That year he was the only winner from Ohio. What's the matter we can have more than that. Just a hundred words. Come on, get down to a little work!

Three Salem youths, Herbert Arnold, Glenn Arnold and Robert White, have become members of Sigma Delta Rho national fraternity, at Ohio State university where they are enrolled as students.

All of the youths are active members of the organization. Herbert Arnold was pledged to the society while he was a freshman and was initiated nearly a year ago. He is now enrolled in the college of commerce and administration as a junior. His brother, Glenn, a sophomore in the college of pharmacy was pledged last year and initiated during the fall term of this school year.

White was pledged to Sigma Delta Rho at Miami university where he was enrolled in the Ohio State chapter. He is listed in the college of commerce and administration.

Miss Sarah Hanna of the class of '27, winner of the Columbiana county Prince of Peace contest, was one of the five contestants in the district contest held Sunday evening in Steubenville.

Miss Dorothy Catton, '24, has just returned from Cleveland after spending a vacation with her brother, Paul, and sister, Catherine.

Cloyd Reynard, East School street, who is ill, is now reported to be improving slowly.

Russel Stallsmith '24 left last Friday for Chicago where he will attend the Cowne Electrical school.

Miss Rebecca Davis returned last Tuesday to Chicago where she is attending the School of Domestic Art and Science.

Thurlo Thomas, president of the class of '24, will play the part of Jerry Goodkind.

Joseph Schmid, Donald Smith, Robert White and Donald Mathews, students at Ohio State college, were home over the week end.

Mr. Robert Campbell, a student at Madison, Wisconsin, is enjoying a vacation between semesters at his home on Lincoln ave.

Mr. Gus Tolerton, who is attending Miami college, was home over the weekend.

Wellsville
Now we see Wellsville, a team crippled by the loss of Calhoun, which with him almost beat Liverpool. But that was a Salem night both the boys and girls winning. The game came in jerks. Salem just leading by one point at the half. Then came Salem's spurt, never to be stopped.

WHAT I DO IN MY SPARE TIME

I like to go into the woods beside our place and sit down. The woods that was silent, soon bursts out into a racket of chattering and singing. I like to sit there and study the habits of the birds and squirrels. There is an old dead oak tree beside our house which is at the edge of the woods. In it is a nest of gray squirrel. I like to sit in the house and look out the window and watch the squirrels play. I also like to walk through the woods and see how many different kinds of birds I can see.

ALFRED PAXSON, 8-C.

MY HOBBY

I haven't much time aside from my work during the school year, except on Saturdays. I have a wagon which I made into a car. My brother says the most of it is junk but I don't believe it. On this I have an emergency brake which applies on a drum which is made of the back of an alarm clock. I have a brake band made of tin. This is applied by a lever on the side of the car. I spend much of my time running this.

WADE SCHAEFER, 8-D

MY LEISURE HOUR HOBBY

During my spare time I like to get a good book and curl up in the cozy nook of a large chair. I like to be in a quiet room, for then one may imagine himself wherever the characters are. I like to have my kitten curl up beside me, for when I am going on a great adventure it is more fun to have some one share it. I like best to read books of travel for they tell you about things you have never before seen.

I once read a book called "The Royal Road to Romance." The author of this book had traveled about the world. He then wrote this book of his travels. He went when he pleased, and where he pleased. He never reported his light-hearted adventures, he "sang" them. He never traveled he "danced" into prison at Gibraltar, up the Matterhorn, into the Taj Mahal to spend one romantic night, on a cobra's nest in the Malay peninsula, and as a grand last thing he danced up the ice-covered slopes of Fujiyama in January to celebrate his twenty-third birthday. I think it would be fun to do all this.

SARA SPIKER, 8-3.

A schedule of the High girls' games is hereby given as was previously mentioned. Only one game a week is scheduled and the girls are even now contemplating a clean up of the county series. Five county games are left and all look fairly hard. Palestine has not yet been tested, but the real problem comes in Lisbon. That team has been having its ups and downs, but might pull a surprise. The Salem guards this year rate above any other year and are bound to hold down any opposing forwards. Captain Hassey scored almost enough joints alone to defeat the Wellsville sextet and is one of the leading scorers in the county.

So, here appears to be a combination ready enough to conquer any other county sextet.

* * *

The second third of Salem night was played against Wellsville. The girls seemed to have recuperated from their defeat at Warren and stepped out to a classy game. Too much praise could not be given our guards and Hassey alone made 16 points. It was a very fast girls' game, Irvin and Dormick showing well for the Orange and Black. The whole squad got a showing.

The Girls' Varsity defeated Damascus 19-9 at Damascus last Saturday. This team is not so dusty. They defeated Struthers who in turn defeated us. The game was fast, Captain Hassey still showing up as the fastest forward ween. This game was preceded by the Reserve Girls' game which was also won and it in turn preceded the Damascus-Salem thirds' game.

The summaries are unknown and so shall not be printed.

Jenks: I want a dimes' worth of HSI.

Clerk: What for?

Jenks: For five cents.
