Patronize Patrons

It is evident that the student body takes a lively interest in the Quaker. Whenever a new column or any other feature appears in the paper, there is usually a very decided indication of opinion regarding that feature. Moreover, most of the criticism aimed at the efforts of the staff is at least meant to be constructive.

However, even though the student body seems to take a gratifying interest in the paper, there is one phase of it's publication which should receive more attention. In each issue there appears an average of 70 inches of advertising, submitted by various business concerns of the town. This advertising is essential to the financial success of the Quaker, and represents an interest in school activities as well as sound business sense on the part of the local merchants.

The question is, are we making it worth while for these businessmen to advertise in our paper. In other words, patronize Quaker ads.

Think Twice Before You Speak

There are many people in this world whose only interest seems to be in tearing down some other person whom they dislike, or in circulating stories which are a defamation to a person's reputation or character and which are quite often untrue.

Very often a story, which has started as the mere product of someone's imagination, and which, in the beginning, was not meant to harm anyone, gets out of control and as it passes from mouth to mouth it grows and grows until innocent people are drawn into it and becomes public scandal.

It is possible to prevent such stories from going around if people would not gossip about other people. Sometimes the smallest innocent comment grows into a story which could ruin a person's life.

So, the next time you have the urge to tell some gossip about a person remember this little poem, the moral of which is to not spread gossip about another.

There is so much bad in the best of us,
And so much good in the worst of us,
That it never behooves any of us,
To speak ill of the rest of us.

To Those Who Play Their Last Game

There have been numerous editorials written about senior boys who play their last game of high-school football on Thanksgiving. Practically everything has been said that can be said. Every year it's said and written. Every year the boys are given a hand for the fine performance they gave during their past four years of football. "Preachy" editorials are taboo. Editorials that have no originality are taboo. So what can be done about thanking the boys and at the same time not preaching or repeating? However, would it be repetition? Do the same boys graduate every year? Do those boys play their last game of football every year? Are editorials written to thank the same boys every year? No! Would it be held against someone to thank those boys who are playing their last game this year? Perhaps it would be, but still it seems imperative that it be done even though it seems to be offense. At any rate the boys have given a grand part of themselves to this school. A part that will remain behind them clinging to the halls of pleasant memories.

With this thought in mind and with the hope that everyone will enter into the spirit of the holiday and give rousing cheers freely and liberally to Joe, Dick, Charles, Bob and Butch this editorial ends.

A nation, like an individual, has this choice and this choice only, hard work or hard times.

There is no higher rank than that of worker. No title can ever make a loafer a nobleman.

When the fat turkey has reached perfection and the pumpkins dot the golden corn fields, it seems natural to have a celebration in thanks for the wonderful harvest. That is how the pilgrims felt so long ago and so they gave their thanks for all the good things that had happened to them. For now they were free from the tyranny of a king, they could worship freely the God in which they placed so much faith. Although they had many hardships these were soon forgotten as preparations for the great feast began. Men went out into the forests and brought back fowl and animal meat. The women cooked it joyfully. This was the beginning of the great Thanksgiving Day. A day in which everyone gives thanks for the past year's goodness.

For the hay and the corn and wheat that is reaped,
For the labor well done, and the barns that are heaped,
For the sun and the dew and the sweet honeycomb,
For the rose and the song, and the harvest brought home—
THANKSGIVING! THANKSGIVING!
For the homes that with purest affection are blest,
For the reasons of plenty and well-deserved rest,
For our country extending from sea unto sea,
The land that is known as the "Land of the Free"—
THANKSGIVING! THANKSGIVING!

Thanksgiving Dilemma

While the people in Ohio eat Thanksgiving dinner on November 23, they can think sympathetically of the predicaments which many people suffered due to the change of Thanksgiving Day in some states to a week earlier than has been usual. This change has taken place in only twenty-two states. Twenty-three states will still celebrate it on the regular day and three will celebrate both days.

When you sit down to a Thanksgiving feast, think about the trouble this change in dates must have caused the college boys with two vacations and two dates for the same day, or the people in Beloit, Wisconsin-Illinois, where the main street is the state boundary, for those on the Wisconsin side will celebrate on the thirtieth and those on the Illinois side will celebrate on the twenty-third. Or envy the people in La Crosse, Wisconsin, who will celebrate for the whole week between the two dates.

This changing has also put some grey hairs in the men who make up the football schedules who have had to change their schedules according to the celebration in their state.

However, one way or another, this year let's hope the whole country eats Thanksgiving turkey together in 1940!

November 24, 1937

Holding the first party of the school year, the Senior class of 1938 enjoyed dancing and various games in the High School Gym, after hearing a program of class talent in the auditorium last Friday evening. R. John Taylor, Jr. provided the high-light in the program singing his own composition "My Star of Gladness".

Work of the Quaker Annual, Salem High's year book, has commenced, it was announced this week. The senior pictures and football pictures have been taken and the make-up of the book is being worked on.

Three of the new band instruments, which were ordered by the Board of Education for the band, have arrived and are in use. These instruments are the tenor sax, played by Marguerite Vincent, the baritone sax, by Jack Warner, and the aboe, by Aden Riffle.

Four members of the Salem High debate team accompanied Mr. J. C. Guiler, to the intercollegiate debate between Ohio State and Michigan University at Columbus Saturday.

Under the supervision of Mr. Herbert Jones, the Hi-Y Club held its second meeting of the year in room 302.

To enter in the National Aeronautics Contest which will take place in Detroit, Mich., next June, Lionel and Winthrop Difford are constructing a model plane with a 6 foot wing span.

Speaking on the subject, "The Betrayal of Peace", Louis Raymond, Jr., 14, freshman, won first place at the Prince of Peace declamation contest held at the Baptist church two weeks ago.

Costumes for the Senior play, "The Yellow Jacket" are being completed this week by a group of junior and senior girls under the leadership of Miss Lehman.

Approximately 35 football boys of Mr. Schroeder's squad attended a dinner in their honor at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the Memorial Building at noon Thursday.

Last week a new Webster's International dictionary was added to our high school library.

The members of the American Government classes are required to write term papers by the end of the first semester.

ural death.

Please don't get the mistaken idea that my family is not of the best stock. On the contrary, my forefathers were here even before the Mayflower landed.

It has become a family tradition for at least one of us to get massacred each year. Who knows, me, being a young plump turkey, maybe it's my turn to uphold the family honor this Thanksgiving.

If you can successfully guard against it the other 364 days of the year, you can afford to be made a fool of on April 1st.

LITTLE BITS OF NOTHING

Jim Yuhasz, journalism student, has written "Little Bits of Nothing" this week. Sara Wanner, regular columnist, was unable to write because of the death of her father. The Quaker staff, as well as the student body extend deepest sympathies to Sara.

Well, another eventful week wrote its pages into history and so it's time for me to unravel to you a few items of general interest, so hold your toupees, here they come.

Woe of the Week:

Your reporter has been doing quite a bit of wagering with the eminent Professor H. W. Jones and as usual I lost. I now owe him the tremendous sum of twenty-one milkshakes.

Nice work if you can get them Jones.

Lights, Camera, Action

I never knew there were so many Tyrone Powers and Hedy Lamarr's in this school until I took a gander at some of the photographic proofs. The boys really took the cake as to the matter of sprucing up. Even Leonard "Butch" Piersol had a suit on. Quite a rare treat to you Salem High Gals. Don't you guys think so? Talking of treats for sore eyes, Beatrice Hershmen and Helen Bender and a few others didn't do any harm to the optic organs of the boys.

Personality of the Week

A senior lad who hails from 210, is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, curly black hair and made the honor roll. His beaming smile makes you forget your worries. These all apply to John Tary.

Success Story of the Week

Congratulations to those who made it possible for the Herbert Petrie Ensemble to appear before the people of Salem, Ohio. They were really great.

IS IT PUPPY LOVE?

The bashful and romantic Joseph Sweeteye, sophomore, is forgetting the world for Lois Field. He is bragging of the seventy cents he spent on the two of them one Sunday eve. Are you sure this didn't put a large deficit in your budget Jose?

Speaking of Casanova's, wonder why Chet Coughenour has been going to Magadore just about every Friday night? Couldn't be just for the ride could it Chet?

A Good Idea

Mr. H. C. Lehmen has reorganized his club which left off last year, this is the "Loafer's Club." In order to be eligible all you have to do is nothing!

More power to Naomi Walker on her poetry. Boy! They're good, at least a few of the fourth period Applied Science pupils think so.

Do Miracles Happen?

Don Rich seems to think so because he tried to get some inspiration for an Applied Science test from a photograph of a pretty little Struthers girl. Result? 36, a rather low grade.

Judge Wanted

It looks like two upper classmen are both wanting the affections of a certain Jane Davidson! Don't believe me? Ask Gale and Don, they'll tell you.

Puzzled?

I wonder why a certain lad has traded his Model T Ford for a bicycle. Seems to me Joe that you couldn't get the darn thing running.

Have you noticed Eva Yurchak and Kathrine Wanner spending most of their evenings down at a local bowling alley, couldn't be a bowler so it must be a pin boy!

Boy! What inside dope I have on some of you gals.

Chemistry Student Barely Escapes 'Falling of Teeth'

How would you likesimeone to tell you that your teeth were going to turn black, then loosen and fall out, or that you might even die as the result of drinkink a "harmless" liquid?

Well, George Steffel was a victim of an underhanded prank recently which would have made most men become pale and weak.

It seems that Ray Lowry, Steffel's laboratory partner in chemistry, decided to give his friend a taste of a certain colorless beverage and watch the reaction.

Steffel tasted the liquid cautiously, then gulped down a good sized portion of it.

Lowry, with a horrified look upon his face stepped back in a voice trembling with emotion exclaimed, "My gosh, you just drank a beaker of dilute sulphuric acid!"

Needless to say, Steffel was slightly perturbed by this information. Quickly apprehending Mr. Herbert Jones, Steffel inquired as to the results which would be obtained by indulgence in the aforementioned acid.

Mr. Jones sensing that Steffel was quite anxious about action of the acid, declared that if a person took a small bit of it, his teeth would turn black and then fall out, but if a large enough portion was taken, quick and painful death would result.

Steffel thanked Mr. Jones for his glad tidings and then rushed away, his hand unconsciously straying to his mouth.

When next seen, a much worried Junior lad was posed in front of the mirror, his mouth open and his fingers deftly prying among a set of white momlars, at any moment expecting them to darken and drop out.

After a few hectic moments of examination, Steffel came to the conclusion that he probably had a few more hours to live and nervously went to his next class which was under the instruction of Mr. A. V. Henning, who was previously "let in" on the "murder."

A few moments after class was under way, Mr. Henning, trying to keep a straight face innocently asked Steffel if he felt well.

The now completely demoralized lad declared that he didn't feel at all well and asked to be excused for a few minutes.

Mr. Henning consented and Steffel departed from the room rather hurriedly.

At any rate, Mr. Jones, Mr. Henning, and Mr. Lowry enjoyed an immense chuckle at Mr. Steffel's expense, who had drunk nothing more devastating than distilled water.

Louis Raymond Wins Oratorical Contest

Louis Raymond, Quaker business manager, was declared winner of the "Prince of Peace Declamation Contest" held at the Baptist church. The subject of Louis' winning speech was, "The Dignity of Man".

Others who spoke in the contest are: Mary Bennett, Mary Cain, Margaret Fronius and Dorothy Hinkley. They represented three other churches.

For winning the contest, Louis was awarded a bronze medal, and is eligible to enter the Columbiana county contest which will take place either December third or tenth.

Last year, Mary Helen Bruderly won the noctest. Two years ago, Louis Raymond was the winner.

ON THE BENCH

Well, boas and gurls, the big day is almost here. The big day for eleven pigskin pushers on the Salem High outfit and for a couple of gents named Schroeder and Jones. The day when Alliance sends some fellows down here to the stadium to try and add another victory to their string of Turkey Day decisions.

You all know (if anyone doesn't he is eligible for the big house) that the aviator outfit is headed by Pilot Hillis Hume. And you possibly know too, that once in a while this same Hillis Hume scores a touchdown and in fact he does it pretty often. He does it so very, very often that he is making a nuisance of himself among Alliance's opponents.

Anyhow the gist of all this, is this! He is just likely to cut loose tomorrow and that would be just too bad. So, little ladies and gentlemen, when you go to bed tonight get down on your collective rosy knees and pray that the blades of grass on the Reilly greensward rise up and slap down this brazen fellow with twinkling toes and aid the Salem lads in stifling these representatives from Stark county. (Whew! Did that sentence come out of us?)

At any rate we'll be out there rooting it up for the Quakers. A victory over Alliance is enough for any loyal football fan and we're hoping to see one tomorrow.

If we do succeed in beating these Aviators it will be the first time in an awfully long time. Since we thought you might like to know just how long it has been we have endeavored to find out. Our department of football research reports that the last time Salem tripped up their traditional rivals was 12 long years ago. At that time some of our more brilliant seniors were in first grade. The juniors and sophomores were just tots while the freshmen were toddling around in dia—er—a rompers. Think of it! Since that day back in 1927 no Salem team has ever hung up a Thanksgiving Day victory.

But we can talk and talk about it all day. The only persons who can do anything about it are eleven boys who will be out at the field tomorrow. You'll recognize them. They'll be wearing red jerseys and black pants. Give 'em a hand. They will appreciate it!

When this game is over tomorrow it will mark the end of another season. And with the end of the season comes a day which we have long awaited. Settlement day. The day when one R. B. Clarke will trip lightly across the corridor, poke his head into the Q. O. and proceed to pay off. Boy what fun! We can hardly wait.

Tomorrow, as usual there will be several boys out there playing their last game for S. H. S. Not as many as in other years but still they rate as much praise as would a hundred. There are only six seniors on the varsity squad. They are Butch Piersol, Richard Beck, Robert Shoe, Charlie Tolp, Joe Vender and Vito Faini. All these boys have played for at least two or three years. Beck and Vender have been out for four years with the "Bull" being the grand-daddy of the team. He has played four years at a varsity tackle post.

Hats off to these guys who have what it takes!

(Pd. Avt.) Be sure to go to the Hi-Y "Sweater Swagger." Only one week away.

Well we've got plans for tonite. We're going home and start to starve ourselves in preparatory to tackling a turkey tomorrow noon. Goo-bye.

Many Potential Actors Turn Out

Buskin tryouts were held last Monday evening for all Freshmen and Sophomores interested in joining the club. Room 203 was filled to capacity with eager students who fervently read their assigned lines with poise and confidence.

Now that the tryouts have been completed a number of candidates will be chosen to participate in activities of the club for the remainder of the year.

The members of the club who witnessed the tryouts were greatly pleased with the large turnout of students and equally pleased with their many promising prospects.

Alliance and Hume Invade Salem for Annual Contest

Quakers To Attempt To Stop High Scoring Aviator Flash; Visitors Have Best Record

Tomorrow is the day the Alliance Aviators, led by Captain Hillis Hume, invade Reilly stadium for the annual Turkey Day tilt with Salem High's Quakers.

The Alliance lads will enter the game as favorites. The reason, if one is needed, is their recent feat in holding a tough Canton McKinley team to a scoreless tie.

The spearhead of the Aviator attack will be Hume, the triple-threat quarterback, who is one of the state's leading scorers. He will stage a duel with Salem's Marv Wukotich for individual honors in the title. Hume, a shifty, lightning-fast open field runner, can be counted on to break up a game at any point with one of his long runs.

The Salem team will attempt to stop him from the line of scrimmage, a feat which only two teams, Massillon and Canton, have been able to do this year. However, he is a threat from the air as well. His passing so far this year has been exceptional.

The Alliance combine has rolled up a total of six wins against one defeat and one tie. The lone defeat came at the hands of the state champions, Massillon. Victories were scored over Minerva, Cleveland John Hay, Barberton, Bellevue, Grove City, Pa., and Jamestown, N. Y. The tie was in the Canton game.

The Quakers record compares favorably with that of the invaders, but they have not played teams of the calibre of Massillon and Canton. Salem has won five, lost two and tied two.

Last year's game went to Alliance when Hume scored two touchdowns on a field that was deep in snow. Local fans are hoping for a "break" with the weather tomorrow. A wet soggy field will slow Hume considerably and will enhance the Red and Black chances for a victory.

Both the Salem and Alliance bands will appear at the game. A large crowd is expected for the tilt since Alliance and Salem always turn out for the Turkey Day festivities.

South Sets Salem Back for Second Defeat of Season

Jack Cramb Leads Team To Thrilling Victory Over Quakers

Paced by the fine play of Jack Cramb, Youngstown South swept to a 13-6 victory over Salem's Quakers last Saturday at Reilly stadium.

The triple-threat ace of South's backfield led his team to victory as he scored one touchdown and passed to the other. Although he was rushed hard and hit down on several occasions he got back up each time and kept playing. All in all he was easily the outstanding player on the field.

South struck first in the game when, after working the ball down to the line on some long passes Cramb plunged over. The half ended without any further excitement.

Stage Comeback

The Quakers came back strong in the third period and paced by Marv Wukotich drove to a score in the early part of the quarter. Wukotich drove over from the one foot line. The try for the extra point failed.

The game then developed into a punting duel between Cramb and West. On one occasion West got off a quick kick which rolled down to the South eight yard line and put the visitors in a hole. But Salem lost the advantage when Voblo let the return kick bounce over his head back to mid-field.

Late in the fourth quarter with only a couple of minutes to play the Youngstown team began to pass again.

They connected down to the Salem 20 yard line on a pass to Cramb who was hit hard. Injured, it was not known whether or not he would be able to play any longer or not. However, he finally got up and on the next play tossed a pass to Weaver who went over for the winning touchdown. The extra point was converted by a similar pass, Cramb to Weaver.

The game ended a moment later 13-6 in favor of South.

Salem Squad Holds Strong Barberton Magic to 0-0 Count

Coach Carl Schroeder's Salem Quakers battled a strong Barberton High Magic eleven to a scoreless tie a week ago Saturday at Reilly Stadium. This "Armistice Day tussle" was not as thrilling as the score might indicate. The game was featured by a third-period drive by the Salem team which was stopped on the eight-yard stripe. The Quakers' drive came after Vender recovered Ratay's fumble for Salem. From the Salem 40-yard line the Quakers went to the Barberton eight-yard line due to runs by West and Wukotich.

The highlight of the game was Paul Ratay, substitute halfback of Barberton. His runs were made frequently, but came around mid-field only. When Barberton penetrated deep into Salem territory, the Quaker defense tightened up and stopped him with but little gains. Al Hanic, left halfback, shared ball-carrying duties with Ratay.

West and Wukotich led the Salem offense during the greater part of the contest. The entire Quaker forward wall held up very well as a whole. None of the seven Salem gladiators stood out over the other.

Boys Interested In Intramurals To Meet Monday

On Monday, Nov. 27 at 7:30, all freshmen and sophomore boys interested in trying out for the Salem High Reserve basketball squad should report to the high school gym. The boys who wish to play intramural basketball should also be on hand that night. Coach Herbert Brown, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Early will supervise this workout and other ones which will continue the rest of the week.

Mr. Brown will pick out a certain number of boys for the reserve basketball squad. These boys must be Freshmen or Sophomores.

After these workouts are over intramural leagues will be formed with the remaining number of boys. The larger and more experienced players will be in Leagues A and B. Boys who are interested in basketball but who are not as experienced as those in League A and B will play in League C.

All boys who report for these practice sessions should be ready for action the first night.

Williams Explains Activity Tickets to Ohio Principals

Discussing the plan of activity ticket as used in Salem High School, Principle Harold M. Williams gave a thorough account of the system before Group 9 of the Ohio Principals' Association at a meeting held in the Administration building of Mount Union College last Wednesday night. This group is composed of principals from schools in Stark, Columbiana and Carroll counties.

Mr. Williams stated that great interest was shown because more and more schools are coming to use this type activity ticket to give students a greater advantage of activities at school.

BY AL J. FREED

Well, Well, Well,—here it is November 22, and the day before Thanksgiving—(Copyrighted by F. D. R.) This is the part of the year that appeals most to me—You know,—the old thrill—I guess it's the Christmas spirit starting to kindle—And speaking of December, it won't be long till the Senior Class Play—A matter of about two weeks. And just for the formality—We want to propose a toast to Miss Viola Bodo—She certainly knows her P's and Q's when it comes to dramatics—she should certainly go a long way in the World of Theatricals and Dramatists—And if the Senior Play is not a success it will be no fault of hers—because she has put her all into making this play something to be remembered—Confidentially, it ought to be O. K.

BAND OF THE WEEK...

He's on the comeback trail! . . . No. . . I don't mean Hoot Gibson or Tom Mix! . . . It's a fellow who can play that trumpet—like nobody's biz! . . . He's a real veteran and has been taken over the "coals" many a time. . . now he's back again. . . and I hope, to stay! . . . Surely you haven't forgotten that old famous jazz band, "RED NICHOLS" and his "PENNIES" . . . Well . . . I kind of thought that you hadn't! . . . He's back with a better and bigger band than ever! . . . He heads a 16-piece aggregation. . . and "Red's" arrangements are among the finest! . . . You'll be hearing more from this boy!

Record of the Week:—It seems that we just can't keep him out of this column! . . . But he, more than anyone else, deserves any plug we can give him! . . . It's ARTIE SHAW and his "HISTORY MADE AT THE DANCE", orchestra! . . . This week I heard a swell Artie recording on Bluebird—489631-A—It's "I Cover the Waterfront"—and "What is This Thing Called Love?" We think it's his best disk! . . . Confidentially, it is!

SONG OF THE WEEK:—

This swell little number was introduced by Maestro Bob Crosby—some weeks back—and has proved to be an outstanding hit! . . . "Last Night". . . Delightful melody by Rube Bloom and Johnny Mercer. . . It looks as though they score again!

'Tis rumored that Salem High School will sponsor its own Dance Orchestra. . . in the very near future! . . . If the plan goes through. . . a 10-piece orchestra will be playing. . . under the able direction of C. M. Brautigam. Don't say we didn't tell you!

INTEREST IN THE MAIL:—

C. A. F. of Ohio Wesleyan University, very generously provided me with his selection of America's ten best dance orchestras. He sort of thought that those whom I named as the best a couple of weeks ago were National Statistics, but they were only my own and Professor Ralph Hixenbaugh's opinions. Thank you for your letter, sir, and I shall be glad to print your selections next week.

To Mary Belle Lemonte of Mount Vernon, Ohio:—You can get in touch with Tommy Dorsey by writing to him in care of the Musicians' and Artists' Service Bureau, Rockefeller Building, New York City, and marking "Personal" on the envelope. Thank you so much for your fine letter.

Horace Heidt's stage show at the Palace last week drew a fine crowd, but was not worth the price of admission. . . Fine points of the program were Bob McCoy's bass play-

Well now that I have unraveled to you my items of general interest I'm just about through. Before I finish I would like to pass on to you a poem which I think is pretty good. Rosie Rosewell uses it as his theme on his philosophy program:

There's a rainbow shining somewhere
There's a light far across the sky.
There's a rainbow shining somewhere,
Like a gleam from paradise.
Though today clouds are gathering far off in the sky,
There's a rainbow shining somewhere,
That will someday shine for you.

If you really want to hear this poem so that it puts a certain feeling into you, tune in on Rosey Rosewell every Tuesday and Thursday at 12:15 noon over KDKA. Bernie Armstrong does a neat job on the organ as he accompanies Rosewell with this poem.

So until you hear from me again try to remember, "Laugh and the world laughs with you. Cry and you cry alone."

ing, Ernie Sullivan's electric guitar, Frankie Carle's (Sunrise Serenade) fine piano playing, and Fred Lowry's expert whistling.

Horace set a new attendance record last week, but Jack Teagarden and his orchestra, Jack Haley, and Mary Carlisle will draw a bigger record attendance tonight and tomorrow.

And so, don't eat too much tomorrow. I'll see you at the game and I do hope Hillis Hume eats too much turkey! . . . (Of course, I realize that there will be no such luck!) . . . Anyway, have a good time!

See ya' next week!

Nonsense In Names

They tell me that Miss Davidson married a very Faini Farmer, who goes Bolen every night.

They traveled West Ward and sat near a Stone and watched the Culler of the sky change while they drank their Coffee.

"Conja Tullis who it is that Freed the Lyons?" said he, "Loudon your voice," she said, "Oh, you want my Emery board. You're welcome."
