

Smith Advises Students To Find Their Direction

Salem High's "Swell Fellow"

This teacher was studying in the library at Ohio State last summer when the bell rang for a ten thirty class. He picked up his books, then set out for the classroom which was located in another building. After walking for some time he awakened to find himself a block away from the university headed for lunch. After some running he arrived at the classroom five minutes late.

Many high school students are just like that—they are headed somewhere, but they know not the direction. This is not a hopeless condition if something is done about it. To achieve direction one needs to know two things. (1) He must understand his own abilities and capabilities. (2) He must know the requirements of the work ahead. Both are essential and equally important.

In the library the student will find a varied selection of books, pamphlets and magazines which will aid him in understanding his abilities and the occupations wherein these abilities may be used to best advantage. The Salem Rotary Club has recognized the prime importance of this material and has purchased a number of books to add to the many others in the library. Will you continue to wander aimlessly or will you, by using this up-to-date material, direct your life toward a worthwhile goal.

Ruth West Tells of Life At Kent State University

"I had the most interesting experience of my life, this summer," is the comment Ruth West makes on her summer at Kent State university as a student of dramatics and public speaking. Ruth attended two regular college classes, as well as two "cherub" classes, which were made up of high school students who, like her, had been awarded scholarships. These scholarships were awarded to those who had achieved a high rank in dramatics and public speaking in their high schools.

One of the college courses Ruth took was interpretation, and the other was technique in dramatic production. The "cherub" classes studied drama and speech, under the instruction of Miss Yetta Mitchell, of Dallas, Texas. There were twenty-two students in these classes.

During an assembly, Ruth entertained the group with the musical talent for which she is well-known in Salem.

Ruth's visit on the campus lasted five weeks, during which she roomed at a private home in Kent.

"Cherub" West states that she hopes to continue her study of dramatics after she graduates from high school

SHS Enrollment Figures Grow; Still Going Up

High school enrollment figures continue to grow as new students enter and others report from vacations. There are, at the time of writing, 956 students enrolled. These are approximately the same enrollment figures as last year at this time. Of the 956 students, 206 are Seniors, 227 Juniors, 246 Sophomores and 268 Freshmen. Nine students have enrolled for post graduate work.

New students are:

Freshmen, Wilma Anderson, North Jackson; Mary E. Clark, Canton; Joseph Albert, New Brighton, Pennsylvania; Mary Cosma, Leontonia; and Wila Ayers, Lisbon.

Sophomores: William Lemon, East Akron; Pauline Byland, East Liverpool; and James Hoberg, Mogadore, Ohio.

Senior: Mary R. Cain, Belle Valley, Ohio.

Postgraduates are: Mildred Kastanek who is taking chemistry and algebra; William Malloy, chemistry, algebra and German I; Dorothy Nye, chemistry and Latin I; Donald Sankey, solid geometry and Spanish I; Katherine Sturgeon and Alice Zatzko, bookkeeping; Mary Catherine Terry, English IV; Robert Harshman, algebra I and Maurice Sechler, plane geometry and English IV.

Rotary Club Gives Salem High School $75 For New Books

In a previous issue of the Quaker, printed shortly before school closed last spring, an article appeared which concerned the giving of money, by the Salem Rotary Club, to the high school, for the purpose of purchasing books and magazines dealing with vocational training and careers.

The Club gave to Salem High School its profits, which amounted to approximately seventy-five dollars, from the series of speakers, who appeared in Salem, on the topic of "International Understanding." High school upper-classmen heard three of the four speakers.

The books, purchased from this fund, are now on display in the new glass show case just outside the library.

"New Business Opportunities For Today," a book giving a survey of money-making possibilities. "How To Find and Follow Your Career," a book written for everyone who wants to find and follow the kind of work which will use his special abilities to the limit and "Engineering Opportunities," an extremely helpful guide book for those who wish to enter or learn more about engineering. These are but a few of the many interesting and helpful books which will be available with the opening of the new library.

Freshman Pencil Sale Is Launched

Once again the Freshman class is beginning its pencil sale in order to acquire some money for the class treasury.

The pencils, which have the football schedule printed on them are being sold by each member of the class at four cents each. The students are competing in a selling contest which will end October 2. The contest awards will be a pencil sharpener, first prize and the second prize is as yet, undetermined.

The class has 1,000 pencils to offer. They are in six different colors with new shades of gold and silver featured.

The home rooms are captained by the following students who have charge of sales in their rooms:

Paul Evans, Virginia Snyder, Jean McArthur, Walter Van Sickle, Stephen Hart, Mabel Hostetler and Mary Byers.

New Floodlights To Brighten Grid

New floodlights have been purchased by Salem High School to replace the present lighting system at the field.

The present system, installed in 1929, and the first installed for an Ohio high school, was only 55 K.W. and over a period of ten years had become obsolete. A replacement was necessary if the Salem field was to be kept up to date.

Sixty new floodlights, each using a 1500 watt bulb, will be installed on the old poles which are in good condition. The lights are of the new type light especially designed for the height and location of the poles. They are made of a patented alzak processed aluminum which is weather proof and guaranteed to last many years.

Mr. E. S. Dawson, chairman of the school board's engineering committee, estimates that the new flood lights will double the amount of illumination on the field, thus making the Salem stadium one of the best lighted in this area.

The lights, purchased from General Electric, are being installed by the Ohio Edison Company and will be available for the first game a week from tonight

Cope and His "Cab" Strike Fear to Hearts of Gridders

If the football boys look a bit shaky and pale ask Mr. Cope, the new bus driver, about it. Because football is now practiced at Tolerton field the boys have to have a means of transportation and this is where "fixer upper" Mr. Cope comes in. On last Friday after school the football boys were as usual gathered out at Reilly field awaiting to be taken out to Tolertons. A thunderous noise was heard approaching in the distance. A guessing game took place among the boys. Could it be an old house be-

14 Chosen For '39-'40 'Quaker' Business Staffs

It was announced recently by Louis Raymond, "Quaker" business manager, that the business staff has been chosen for the coming school year. After tryouts held in the "Quaker" office last Monday, the following were chosen to serve on the staff:

Emma Bauman, Anne Belan, Patsy Bolen, John Dan, Charles Gibbs, Florence Hiltbrand, Lois Hoover, Clara Kirkbride, Eleanor Kuhns, Alice Kuniewicz, Jean Lantz, Ruth Martin, William Shoop and Louis Zeck

Irene White will act as secretary to the business manager.

The students had to pass a test and take a pledge to the business manager before being placed on the staff. It will be their duty to sell ads for the "Quaker" weekly and annual.

2 Public Speaking Classes Now Open To S.H.S. Students

In order that more students may have a chance to take public speaking, two classes a day are being taught by Mr. Guiler instead of only one, which was all that was offered last year.

Mr. Guiler has planned an excellent system for his public speaking classes. On Mondays the students will give three minute speeches, Tuesday the class will study their text, Wednesdays and Thursdays, five minute speeches on specific topics will be given by the learning orators. On Fridays they will study the Scholastic magazine for current events.

Mr. Guiler hopes that he has arranged the class schedule so that each pupil will appear before the class as many times as possible, for in this way the students should acquire ease on the platform, qualities of exactness, ability to converse fluently and interestingly.

Three books will be used this year. "Public Speaking" by Stratton, "Better Speech" by Weaver, and "Modern Speech" by Brees and Kelly.

VOL. XX. SEPTEMBER 15, 1939 No. 2

Lucky We CAN Go To School

As the war situation in Europe grows more tense by the minute we cannot help but be thankful for our present security. Undoubtedly it is a wobbly security but it is better than what is going on over there. While children are being evacuated from towns and cities of England we are back to our books once again and feeling lucky that we can be back while the children in the war areas may never have a chance at future education.

Because of the world situation our future cannot be certain. For this reason we must make the best of what opportunity offers us and really try to widen the spread of knowledge, for it is ignorance that puts the world in disastrous situations like the present one.

A Word of Thanks

As most of us have noticed, the school has been presented with a handsome, new bulletin board by last year's Hi-Y club. It is of a very clever design, with a special place for announcements of each club, so that, when a new bulletin is posted, the student can tell at a glance whether or not it is of interest to him.

The War — And American Youth

Across a wide expanse of broad, turbulent waters, lives an ancient civilization. That civilization is called Europe. It isn't the Europe that one can find so easily in the spring with its flowery meadows and fields of new mown hay; it isn't the Europe that glistens with its numerous shining rivers and canals; it isn't the Europe with its spots of historical background and wonderous sights; no—it's a much changed Europe—a Europe that is overshadowed by that dreaded—blackcloud—WAR! A Europe not with fields of new mown hay, but fields of battle and blood.

A licking once in a while helps to keep us in condition.

There are some failures in Fifth avenue palaces and some successes in unskilled labor gangs.

The best time to have courage is when others lose theirs.

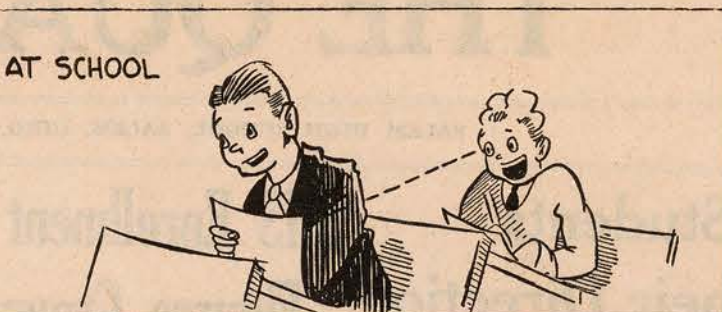

Just waiting is sometimes a virtue. Sweating more often is.

There is no triumph unless there are difficulties to triumph over.

To become an all-round person, be on the square.

What counts is not "How much have you" but "What have you done?"

The fellow who fancies himself the "whole cheese" is at least a piece of it.

LITTLE BITS OF NOTHING

By SARA WONNER.

My Friends... Is there a fireside handy? I feel a chat coming on. First, I want to report on a few of my profects.

N. R. A. (New Romance Angles) Virgil Stamp seems to have been bitten and bitten hard by the good old love-bug.

S. O. S. (Sentimental) Old Stuff) Joyce Stratton and Jake (Bob) Ritchie could hardly be called a couple of the week.

C. C. C. (Cupid Captivates Coed) "Vicki" Cosgarea has been going with an ex-grad for quite a while. Rumors are that he is "Butch" Bodendorfer.

Enough of these profects, the fire has gone out in the fire place and all my originality has gone with it. So let's consider a few romances that have lasted all through the long hard summer.

Elizabeth Hart and Dick Berry are still seen together quite often. Anne Skorupski is being true to Don Vincent. Eleanor Eberwein and Don Sankey are still in the race for a long-time record.

Cute Nickname: Eleanor Kuhn's takes the cake. It's "fireball." It isn't hard to guess how she got that one.

The home town girls had better watch their step. The boys are beginning to wander too far from home. Francis West and Glen Whinnery, two senior lads, were in Sebring last Sunday.

The startling fact has been unearthed that Bob Shaefer has a double. Jeanette Potts discovered him at Chippewa during the summer. The two boys even act the same.

It's been lots of fun writing this column and I hope my life will be spared until next week so I can be with you again. My life has been threatened once already and every week I add more to my already long list of head-hunters.

New Personality

"Yes, I am a freshman and I am glad to be in high school and I haven't been lost yet and I did graduate from Salem Junior High." answered our Charlie Gibbs breathlessly, for being interviewed was a new experience for him.

Charlie has dark brown hair and eyes with a humorous gleam in them. His home room is 303 and when asked if he has had any trouble locating his different class rooms he said, "None at all, but I have been a little troubled by up-perclassmen rushing wildly about searching for their class rooms." That should put us in our place. Master Gibbs was an honor student and was a member of the Quakerette Staff and is in hopes of becoming a member of the Quaker business staff.

"A man isn't poor if he can still laugh," declared Raymond Hitchcock when hailed into bankruptcy court. Said Andrew Carnegie: "Millionaires seldom laugh". Do your own moralizing.

JR. HIGH NEWS

Miss Elizabeth Ward became the bride of Mr. Paul C. Lau, of Columbiana, on June 30. Mr. Lau is associated with the United Engineering Company of Youngstown.

An assembly was held for the seventh grades Wednesday, at which time Mr. Ludwig addressed the new students, giving them advice and information concerning Junior High customs.

The annual association drive was started Wednesday. A badge with a rabbit's foot attached to it is being given to each student who purchases an association ticket.

Clubs have not been organized as yet, but they will probably begin their meetings some time next week.

Quaker News of Yesteryear

September 25, 1936

Owing to the resignations of several of last year's teachers during the past summer vacation, Salem High has added a number of new instructors to its teaching staff. Assuming their responsibilities at the first of this school year, they have come in contact with and met the majority of the student body.

Continuing his journalistic education, Charles Freed, last year's editor of the Quaker, is now enrolled in the School of Journalism at Ohio State University.

The Quaker gridders were decisively trounced by a heavier, more experienced Struthers squad under the footlights of Reilly stadium last Friday night by the overwhelming score of 20 to 0.

Under the floodlights at the Reilly stadium tonight the flashy red uniformed High school band will present publicly for the first time, the new school song, "Drive, Salem, Drive."

Carve the right kind of place in people's hearts and you can safely leave to them the carving of the right kind of epitaph on your tombstone.

Reporter "Pumps" Notables For Outlook on Grid Season

As is our usual custom at the beginning of the major sports seasons, we hunt out certain luminaries in the school and pump them. The first one your roving reporter confronted was one Frederick Cope.

Perched on a desk amid a mob of screaming Frosh, "Copey" parried our questions. Finally, after a little persuasion, he did say that, in his opinion, Salem has one of its toughest schedules in years. "Especially on the last week," he asserted, "will we be up against it. We play Alliance with only five days' rest, while they have almost two idle weeks. That's bad!"

For our next opinion or prediction, we moved, you might say, from the sublime to the ridiculous and called on "The Casanova Kid," Bobby Lyons. "Low Begg," after a good deal of thought, came through with the following astounding statement:

"I looked at a schedule once and I saw where we play 10 games. That's bad! It'll be a tough time. The boys'll get tired bucking that line. By the way, that reminds me of the time I bucked a horse with an automobile. It was up in Canada." At this point in our interview, a man wearing a white coat and carrying a black axe came and took "Tiger" back to his cell. . . . Oh, that man!

Next we went after a football player. The first one we laid eyes on was "Big Boy" Beck. As he has had more playing quarters than any other "lad" on the team, we felt he was qualified to voice his opinion as to the outcome of the season. His words are "to wit": "I'm not sure how it'll turn out, and anyway, who cares? Just so we win ten games, I'll be satisfied."

Oh! Is that all you want? Last, but not least, we went after a feminine opinion, without which this article could never be complete (?).

Our victim turned out to be a young lady by the name of Margaret Stewart. We halted her wild chatter long enough to get a fairly intelligent statement from her. Here it is: "I am of the opinion that if we don't win all our games we are going to lose some! I have also heard that the game of football is again going to retain the custom of having 11 players on a team. I think that's nice!"

That's all our interviews, fans, but maybe next week we'll be able to corner some more orators. At least, I hope not!

Some persons "fall into a fortune", but nobody has ever yet fallen into success. Success entails climbing.

Don't talk about your abilities. Demonstrate them.

Don't think of yourself as the "architect of your career" but as the sculptor. Expect to have to do a lot of hard hammering and chiseling and scraping and polishing.

The place for the "knocker" is outside the door.

It's better to be in love with your work than with yourself.

Don't simply see how you can "put in the day". See how much you can put into the day.

If you are on the right track, the winds and tides are with you and will get you there in the end—if you don't give up.

Pray, yes. But when you get off your knees, don't sit down. Hustle.

By "B. Dix"

I see by the papers where Alliance defeated their Alumni by the overwhelming score of 8 to 0. This doesn't begin to tell you much about the squad—not until you decide that maybe the Aviators have a darn tough Alumni and they do too! Just look at some recent Thanksgiving Day scores for proof. Just so they're not too tough; It's gonna be a real scrap this year and in our own back yard. Their big threat man, Hillis Hume (loud cheers), is back. He'll be our big worry. Personally, I wouldn't trust him in the open with a football any farther than I could throw a Ladoga by the tail. (In case you don't know what a Ladoga might be—you and me is even).

A right nice job was done this summer on the gym. It looks like new. A paint and varnish job was what she needed.

"COPEY" tells me the football team is to have new uniforms again this year. From what he says they must be really flashy!

Next week I'll get a detailed description of the suits and pass it along to you. That's so there won't be anyone temporarily blinded by any sudden and unexpected flash of color.

Anyone wanting to make any friendly wagers on the forthcoming football season please call at the Quaker office and get in touch with me. You see, I haven't anyone to bet with since Clarke and I severed diplomatic relations. However, I was approached by H. Jones the other day. He wanted me to take Pitt over Washington. Imagine the nerve! And Pitt with all their stars gone! I think he and "that other man" are conspiring for my downfall. Fooey!

By the way, if you expect to get one of those license plate football schedules you better whip down to Cope's office sometime soon. There are JUST A FEW left at 20c.

We ought to be due for a pep assembly next week. I hope so! One might put a little pep in the old school and really put the student body behind the team. And why not? After last year's record they deserve our support!

Did you get a glimpse at that old pirate, "Butch" Piersol, with a patch over one eye. He sure was a sight for sore eyes. (Wow!)

I reckon I'm as tired of this as you are so I'd better sign off, saying S'long.

You look at your own troubles through the magnifying end of the telescope, at the other fellows through the other end. His are probably bigger than yours.

High School Day At Ohio State Set

Ohio State university has announced the date Saturday, October 7, as its annual High School Day this year. The university has extended invitations to boys and girls of the Junior and Senior classes to visit its campus on that date. There will be special demonstrations, inspection tours, exhibitions and other educational projects for all students interested.

In the afternoon the Ohio State-Missouri football game will be the main attraction. Admission for Juniors and Seniors will be a special rate of 40 cents. A souvenir program is included in the price of each ticket. The order for student tickets must be left with Mr. Williams in the office, not later than September 28th. The ticket order must be sent to Columbus at that time.
