

Head of Oil Firm Comments on Qualities Necessary to Secure Position; Stresses Initiative

P. W. Boynton, Head Of Socony Oil Company, Expresses Requirements For Employees; Believes High School Important

A letter written by Mr. P. W. Boynton, supervisor of employment at the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, to Mr. Robert D. Falk, high school supervisor of South Dakota, concerning the qualities necessary in a person whom he hires in his firm, has reached Mr. B. G. Ludwig through a pamphlet published by the South Dakota Press.

Mr. Boynton points out that a person who has some financial responsibility is a good risk because he has acquired certain habits of economy, independence, and thrift.

Good scholastic grades are a desirable factor but more essential is the ability to apply properly to everyday work, the knowledge acquired during the applicant's school career.

In Mr. Boynton's opinion, character is the most important quality of all. He includes thorough dependability, and optimistic, helpful attitude as a part of a person's character.

He looks for a personality which commanded attention either by poise, charm of manner, or force of character.

Mr. Boynton further states that approximately 90 per cent of the applicants passed up at the time of the interview lose out because they show such traits as carelessness, indifference, lack of responsibility, lack of initiative, and slovenliness.

The individual can, with careful forethought and planning, correct these personal traits. Recognition in industry comes through accomplishing something which can be achieved only by long hours of hard work. High school training in this respect should have given him a great advantage.

Evidences of how much importance industries place on an applicant's school record as to attitude, scholarship, and ability, are the letters being constantly received by Mr. Ludwig from such companies as the Ordnance plant at Ravenna, Ohio. A large number of letters have been from this company. The most

W. W. Van Kirk To Speak In Salem

Walter W. Van Kirk, Louis A. Deesz, and Mrs. Guy E. Byers are to be the speakers in a lecture series sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church.

Mr. Van Kirk will discuss "A Political and Economic Outline for the World of Tomorrow." Mr. Deesz is scheduled to speak on the topic of "Russia, Yesterday and Today." Mr. Byers will review a current book, the subject of which will be announced later.

Tickets for these talks may be purchased for one dollar from Mrs. Early, Lois Hoover, Betty Gibbs, Jean Reeves, Ina Mae Getz, June Chappel, Betty Merry, Grace Pales, and Marjorie Reeves.

Director Of Arena In Cleveland To Speak At Banquet

At the annual football banquet held last Wednesday evening, Dick Kroesen, president of the Cleveland Sporting Goods Co., commander of the American Legion in Cleveland, and director of the Arena, spoke to the banqueters. He also showed a moving picture of a professional game of the Cleveland Rams.

Short talks were also given by Superintendent of Salem public schools, E. S. Kerr, and members of the school board.

The fete, a turkey dinner, was attended by approximately 100 guests, including varsity, reserve, and junior reserve men, football managers, head and assistant coaches, faculty managers, high school men teachers, members of the board of education, and representatives of the Salem News and the Youngstown Vindicator.

Mr. B. G. Ludwig, principal of Salem High school, was toastmaster of the affair, which was held at the World War Memorial building.

The banquet was sponsored by the Salem Athletic department.

T. B. Association Sponsors Contest

For the third consecutive year, the Ohio public Health Association, in cooperation with the National Tuberculosis Association and The Columbia Press Association is promoting a school health education project for the school newspapers.

All which is necessary, is to write a news story, feature story, or editorial on the general theme of "The Christmas Seal At Work." This general theme has to be published in the school newspaper.

The awards are: Senior high division—All expense trip to New York; 2nd prize, $10 cash award.

Write your theme and let The Quaker print it.

Sewing Classes Busy

Miss Ala Zimmerman, sewing teacher, has announced that the sewing classes have begun their Christmas projects.

The girls are planning Christmas gift lists and the gifts they wish to make before Christmas. This work will continue another week.

Regular Speakers For Debate Teams Announced Here

Chessman, Ciricosta, Hansell, Sinsley Make Up Squad

After tryouts held last Tuesday evening, Mr. John C. Guller, debate coach, chose Dick Chessman and Mary Ciricosta for the affirmative team and Herbert Hansell and Ruth Sinsley as the negative speakers.

This year's squad will have three veteran debaters, Chessman being the only new member. Practice debates with Ravenna, Niles, and Youngstown Chaney have been scheduled for the near future.

Salem's opponents in varsity competition are unknown at present but Ohio schools will again use the tournament system of elimination. This tournament will take place during the latter part of January.

"Resolved that all male citizens should receive military training before reaching the present draft age," is the questions to be debated this year.

Cheerleaders Work Out New Cheers For Basketball Games

Mr. Moore, for the cheerleaders, is training these girls for future cheerleaders: Janet Taylor, Helen Louise Morris, Helen Haggerty, Martha Hicks, Nancy O'Connell, Claire Hicks, Gerry Paxon and Delores Poorbaugh. From this group Mr. Moore will endeavor to find some possible prospects for next year.

Here are a few new cheers the Cheerleaders would like the student body to learn so they can be given at basketball games:

Shoot 'em high
Dribble low
Come on Salem

Cheerleaders: Are you ready?
Response: Yeah Man!
Cheerleaders: Can you holler?
All: Rip-dippy-dippy —Rep-dep-dep

Come on Salem!
Get Hep!

Cooking Classes Make Christmas Candies

The making of candies, cookies, and Christmas projects are the work of the cooking classes this Yuletide. Under the direction of Miss Lea Morgan, the girls have been making all kinds of tempting goodies in the sweets line of edibles.

The cooking class, having prepared the football banquet are now planning two dinners and a tea. One dinner is for forty members of the Delta Kappa Gamma sorority of which Miss Martha McCready, Mrs. Janice Satterthwaite, Miss Lillian Schroeder, Miss Helen Thorp, Miss Natalie Sharpnack, Miss Dorothy Smith, and Miss Margaret Klose of the Salem Public school faculty are members.

Seniors Present Final Showing Of Wilder's "Our Town" Tonight

Homer Asmus Narrates Semi-Tragedy Tale of New England Town; Dick Burcaw, Marie Kastenhuber Play Leads; Cast Supports

In its first evening performance, the semi-tragedy, senior play, "Our Town", was received last night with a large ovation from its audience. It was presented Wednesday afternoon as a matinee to Junior High school students.

Written by Thornton Wilder, the drama was presented successfully both on the stage and on the screen. The play is concerned with the events involved in the love, marriage and death of two of the leading characters — Emily Webb and George Gibbs.

Having as its setting a small town, Grovers Corners, New Hampshire, the play was given with no scenery and very few properties.

Very creditable performances were turned in by Homer Asmus in the role of the Stage Manager, Marie Kastenhuber as Emily Webb, Richard Burcaw as George Gibbs, and other members of the cast which includes: Lois Hoover as Mrs. Soames; Editor Webb, Wayne Stef-fel; Mrs. Webb, Donna Rose Haes-sly; Professor Willard, Ben Ware; Dr. Gibbs; Charles Lind; Rebecca Gibbs. Isabelle Lockhard; Wally Webb, Don Milligan; Simon Stimson, Sidney Simon; Sam Craig, Dick Chessman; Joe Stodderd, Bill Dunlap; Constable Warren, Bob Enrigen; Si Crowell, Betty Lynch; Joe Crowell, Maybelle Huston; First lady in balcony, Mary Alice Miller; and Second lady in balcony, Betty Alexander.

Glee Clubs Prepare For Christmas Assembly

The Girls' and Boys' Glee clubs, under the direction of Mrs. Janice Satterthwaite and Mr. J. P. Olloman will combine for a Christmas assembly given by the Hi Tri in the near future.

Carols sung by the combined clubs and solos will also be given.

The students will also be led in the singing "Silent Night" and "Adestes Fidelis."

Sophomores Select '44 Class Colors

The colors chosen by this committee are scarlet and gray, maroon and gray, and blue and yellow. The class will vote to decide which of these three will be the class colors.

200 Upperclassmen Attend Annual Fall Frolic Last Week

Midst decorations following a Christmas theme, the annual Junior-Senior party was held last Friday night in the school gym. Approximately 200 upperclassmen attended.

Art White and his orchestra supplied the music while the students danced around a brightly lighted Christmas tree in the center of the floor. The dancing lasted from 9 to 12.

During the intermission a truth and consequences contest was held with Herbert Hansell as master of ceremonies.

Salem High Studies Edit Own "Vogue"

What with all the wintry weather blowing around these parts, we just can't help noticing all the new anti-winter fads the gals and guys of S. H. S. are sporting this year.

Yes guys! The girls aren't the only fashion plates about anymore. Not with fellows like young Iggy Moore running 'round in dark green trousers with light camel's hair coats to top things off. This combination seems to be the favorite mix-up match. Crew cuts are growing out (slowly but surely). They are about the only evidence left that there was a summer vacation. Hangovers, they're called.

Sweaters and slacks are still the main garb, tho! They don't have to match—just so they don't wake any one up by being too loud! Light water-repellent jackets rate high also, and they wear 'em rain or shine.

Knee socks, fuzzy mittens, bright red or green coats, are all popular among the gals. On the still list and we do mean STILL, since these were all very popular last season, we find dirty white moccasins, (or brown), short skirts, screwy hats, and pale complexions which consist of no makeup whatsoever with the exception of a large gash or red just above the chin—achieved by splashing on of lipstick.

There you have a complete picture of the color scheme of S. H. S.

We Salute

Last night the seniors gave the first performance of "Our Town," the class play for this year.

It has taken weeks of preparation on the part of the cast, Miss Jean McCarthy, and the various committees. These students, along with their director, have spent many tiresome evenings rehearsing and drilling for the cues. In order to make any play a success, a large unseen cast, responsible for the lighting, costumes, properties, etc. is also necessary, and "Our Town" is no exception. The members of these groups have also devoted much of their time to making the play a success.

The cast, Miss McCarthy, and those who worked backstage deserve a great deal of credit for their efforts in making last night an enjoyable evening for the audience.

"I Pledge Allegiance"

Sam Dambrosia, an American born in Italy, has his own way of showing appreciation of the American flag and what it stands for. Everyday for one year he has raised the American flag over his average filling station, saluted it, and dropped a nickel in an old tin can. When the year was over he sent the nickels which totaled $18.25 to the United States Government—"For the Flag".

Dambrosia probably has an original idea but all types of foreign born people have their ways of showing appreciation of being Americans. But the Americans who never have seen suffering abroad cannot see what they have and be thankful for it.

Experience Is Best Teacher

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning—James Russell Lowell.

We all know this saying to be an established fact from experience. No matter how consistently we are warned or how well we know a thing shouldn't be done, we still have the urge to find out for ourselves.

Sometimes the truth hurts but one experience always prevents another of the same nature from happening again.

We all make mistakes at some time or other but some pupils pay little attention to some of them and do not try to correct them. Little mistakes that occur in our school work daily can be corrected if we only remember not to do them again. Let's try to remember them so that correcting them can be done voluntarily.

December Scene

On The Beam

Mirroring with fidelity and great beauty the rich period from 1850 to the present, this novel of American life will delight the thoughtful reader. The deep emotion that gives the book its power lies hidden beneath a gaiety and a ripple of humor that mark it as a thing of tears and laughter.

Anne Parrish creates before our eyes a scene and a generation full of rich tints and quiet loveliness—but a generation which not infrequently sacrificed overmuch of happiness that the great tradition of good breeding and family pride might be preserved.

"The Perennial Bachelor" is laid in Delaware, and much of the setting of the story is characteristic of the author's home.

The title of the story is due to the hero of the family of girls who idealize their brother. Many sacrifices are made so that he might be happy, but their lives are very lonely and uneventful.

Even though the ending of the story is unusual, it may still be classified as a very fine book.

Coming to us from the 20th Century-Fox film "Sun Valley Serenade" from the pens of Mack Gordon and Harry Warren, Chattanooga Choo Choo is given a

"through track" by Glenn Miller's Tex Beneke and the Four Modernaires. This groovy arrangement is rocketing along the track of popularity at full speed, gaining added power from the reverse side of this Bluebird disc, which features Paula Kelly and the Modernaires in "I Know Why." It also is from "Sun Valley Serenade" and was written by Gordon and Warren. "Solid," "smooth"—what else can be said! This combination goes together to produce a swell hunk of record!

Dear "Delores,"

"While walking through the park one day" I met "Jenie with the light brown hair." I said "Tonight we love" but she said, "No, No, a thousand times no." I announced, I am just "Yours." Then she said, "My, My." I told her, "This love of mine" was breaking my heart and I told her to come and have "Blue Champagne" with me and she said "Well all right." I said "I cried for you" and she screamed "Daddy." "Goodbye now." "Only Forever" "Yours" "Bill"

Capture Owl

Kermit Johns, sophomore, found a small-eared owl with its wing broken in a woods last week and brought the owl to school in a cage. The wing was put in a splint and with the help of Mrs. Marion Cox, biology instructor, it is being fed hamburger and water.

The owl, it is reported by Mrs. Cox, will be set free as soon as the broken wing is healed.

Dear Editor:

For some time students have been crossing the street right in front of the school. Many of these students try to act smart and walk straight up the middle of the street—while the cars coming from both directions have to stop to let these students pass. Quakers Battle Clippers Saturday In Season's First Home Game

Coach Brown Probably To Start Game With All Senior Squad; McGaffick, Guappone To Lead Scoring Saturday

Playing their third game of the season, Salem High's scrappy basketball quintet will play host to Columbiana's Clippers tomorrow night at the high school gym. The game will mark the first time Salem and Columbiana basketball teams have played against each other.

Columbiana was victorious in its initial start of the season, having defeated Salineville 29-27 last week. If Coach Al Beach uses the same boys in tomorrow night's skirmish, local fans will see Hollinger, Firestone, Patchen, and Dickinson, take the floor at the start of the game. The Clippers will present an attack of unknown strength. Although they have already played, it was the first game of the season and may have partially erased the "greenness" of Columbiana five. Bill Hollinger is the star of the team at his center post. A veteran from last year's first team, he can be expected to cause Quaker rebounders and defensive men plenty of trouble.

Salem will probably start the game with its all-senior line-up of Pridon, McGaffick, Guappone, Volio and Scullion. Although it is highly possible that several other boys on the team may have displayed enough improvement in the Lisbon contest to earn a starting birth tomorrow night. Captain Ray McGaffick proved to local fans in the Ravenna game that he had not lost any of last year's effectiveness. He paced the team during the entire contest, and along with "Tut" Guappone proved to be the main scoring puncher of the Quakers.

With the Salemites playing on their own floor, they will enter the game slight favorites over the Clippers.

Contest Stresses Results Of Appendicitis

A poster contest, showing four ways to help prevent serious results from appendicitis was a feature of Mrs. Cox's seventh period general science class recently. The posters were designed to present the following important facts:

- (1) Any pain in the abdomen may mean that you have appendicitis if you have an appendix. One-third of all cases occur in persons of high school or college age.
- (2) In case of any pain anywhere in the abdomen, do not take a laxative and do not eat anything.
- (3) Keep quiet and apply an ice-pack if needed.
- (4) Call a doctor if the pain lasts over four hours.

First prize in the contest went to Helen Haessley, second to William Stoudt, and third to Janet Crawford.

Did Hardluck bear his misfortunes like a man? Exactly like one. He blamed it all on his wife.

Ravens Win Game Over Quakers by Narrow Margin

Coach Brown Starts All-Senior Squad In Close Game

Coach Herbert Brown's Quakers fell before a rough Ravenna Raven squad 34-30 last Friday night at the Ravenna High gym. The victory was the second one chalked up by the Ravens last week, having defeated Akron Central on Tuesday night.

Salem started out with a bang as they led 19-12 at the halftime. When the Ravenna team reappeared on the floor they looked like a new ball lub. Not changing their defense or offense but just starting to click on their shots brought the Ravens point total up to that of Salem in the third quarter. However, the locals were not beaten yet and recaptured their early lead. The score at the end of the third quarter was 25-20 and the enthusiastic Ravenna fans seemed disappointed but not lacking of pep, for they later fired their team on to a real scoring splurge. With several minutes still remaining to play the Quakers held a slim 30-28 margin. McBee dribbled in and threw a one-handed lay up shot through the meshes to knot the score. Ravenna sewed the game up by two fields made by DeAngelis and McBee.

The Salem five played a good game and although they were defeated they outplayed the Ravenna team in every period but the final quarter when the Ravens got "red hot".

Quaker Team Romps Over Blue Devils

Making their first home appearance of the year, Salem High's spirited Quaker quintet rolled over Lisbon's Blue Devils 36-16 last Tuesday night at the S. H. S. gym. Opening up fast and keeping up a steady scoring pace the local first stringers saw limited action in the contest with the county-seaters.

McGaffick and Guappone sparked the Quaker attack with 11 and 9 points.

Both these boys showed the way for the Quakers as they split the Lisbon zone defense wide open. "Tut" was assigned the task of taking out Blue Devil Star Dave Eason and handled the task very well as he stole the ball from him several times and held him scoreless during the entire game. "Mickey" McDevitt led the Lisbon thrust with 9 points.

In the reserve prelim game. the Quakers also were victorious as they walloped a weak "junior Blue Devil" outfit 45-9. Fisher and Culberson scored 10 markers apiece to lead the Salemites. Lantz and Drakulich were close behind with 8 and 9 points respectively. For the Lisbon team, Linz was the big gun as he hooped 6 of their 9 point total.

Industrial Arts Class Repairs Red Cross Toys

Repairing and painting of discarded toys to be distributed by the Red Cross at Christmas has been taken up as a project by the industrial arts classes. In addition to repairing the toys, each student is making a plaything to be donated to the Red Cross. This project has been carried out in preceding years.

TIME OUT

By TYKER

The Quakers should have a record of one win and one setback for tomorrow's tussle with Columbiana (outcome of Lisbon game unknown at this writing). The locals lost a tough one to Ravenna last Friday night. Speaking of that game, you can chalk that one up to a highly spirited team and a cheering section with more pep than a box of "Tuffy's special". With about 4 minutes left to play, the fans rocked the gym and the Raven team into action.

Ray McGaffick picked up a new handle at the game Friday night. It seems as if the referee, Lobach, couldn't get Goose's name straight when he was introducing the opposing captains. Result "Troccchio" meet "Casey". Well, if it isn't "Casey" McGaffick.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES!!

It will be a question whom Dick Burcaw will root for tomorrow night against Columbiana. Bill Hollinger, Columbiana pivot star, is "Burc's" cousin. Remember that "old school spirit", Burc.

In case you're wondering who's captain of the football squad next year, it was decided at the "cooking class banquet" that "Bird" Culberson and "Tubby" Shasteen will lead the gridgers. Don Rich was elected alumni captain, but not at the banquet, as the Quaker said last week. He was elected only by the vote of his staunchest fans, for there was only one ballot cast.

NO BACKING OUT, NOW!!!

Predicting "roundball" games is like shooting yourself, but here goes. Salem will beat Lisbon by 15 points and Columbiana by 10. I don't know what the score of the Blue Devil game was, but we know now, don't we?

Playing his first game on the High school team at Ravenna, Sam Pridon played a barg-up game. He and "Scub" Scullion out-rebounded the entire Raven team.

Columbiana is really having a celebration for Dick "Sunny" Fisher after basketball season. If plans go through, Coaches Brown and Olsen of football and basketball of Ohio State will attend the fete. "The Clipper" had an excellent football season this year, but for some reason has been passed up on All-American teams. In an article in the Cleveland Plain Dealer of last Sunday, a Cleveland scribe stated that Ohio State had five players (one of which was Fisher) who could match or outplay several All-American choices.

"GAPPO SAYS:"

"I'm still hungry from the meal I missed after the Ravenna game. Dance? Why my stomach was yelling so loud I couldn't hear the music."

Footlight Flashes

BY ART

Darkness reigns. From above the light filters through, coming from a single source. It is moonlight shining through the trees in some deserted place in which we all know what could happen and what probably does? You may answer your own question. Then someone begins to speak, "The name of our play is 'Our Town'—." Aren't you pleasantly surprised? Well you should be— who wants to read Esquire in the moonlight anyway.

As a stage manager in "Our Town," Homer Asmus sports a pipe. But he must be saving it to blow bubbles, because he never puts any tobacco in it—or maybe no one has ever told him what most people do with pipes.

I'll bet Rita Pottorff and Donna Haessley could both swing some mean batter around. Of course they don't have much to work with on the stage but then they get a lot of practice going through the motions anyway.

We expect to see "Stag" Vansickle, our distinguished sound effects man, displaying an egg any day now—he's been cackling five days a week that we know of.

Of course I didn't want to say anything else before, but just between you and me (No one else will read it) Lois Hoover has begun to gossip about Sid Simon, under the assumed name of Simon Stimson. Stimson's sense of balance has been slightly affected by an overdose of joy juice—only in the play!

Prof. "Thomas" Willard must never have recovered from his illness, for Benjamin's carrying on in his place; and he does rather well, considering that he must see through those "thick" lenses of his studious specs.

Advices Students

Common questions asked are of the applicant's grades, his conduct, and his ability to work with others.

The questionnaires sometimes concern persons who withdrew or were graduated from Salem High School as far back as 1918.

The record made by a student while in school will determine to a great extent how quickly he will be hired after his school period. So great is the number of young men seeking employment that employers can well afford to set rigid standards for their prospective workers.

Junior High Sees First Performance Of "Our Town"

Wednesday the Association members and those who paid ten cents saw the senior play, "Our Town" in the high school auditorium.

There has been a movement started to get the gym pupils back to school earlier than has been done before.

All of the articles that have been found this year have been put in the display case in the hall so that pupils can see what has been found.

Mrs. Englehart substituted for Mr. Regal Monday and Tuesday last week.

The seventh grade history classes saw the talking movie "James-town", December 3.

On Wednesday, December 5, the eighth grade hygiene classes saw a movie on the "How Diseases Spread."

Friday, December 7, the seventh grade history classes saw a film entitled "Puritans of Massachusetts".

There was no Junior High gym last Friday because of the decorations for the Junior-Senior Party.

It has been asked of the High school students not to come up to the Junior High unless they have special permission from some teacher or come for some special purpose. Cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

The Junior High has been quite successful in cutting down the noise in the halls while changing classes.

Eugenia Williams moved to Youngstown, and Mary Libert withdrew to Los Angeles, California.

This afternoon the Junior High students received pins which are to encourage the buying of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals outside of school. As it is not the policy to put these on sale in the school, all that is possible is being done to encourage students and their parents to purchase these seals.

For second semester, an art class is being started for the sixth period study hall students.

On November 28, John Szymezky entered 8D.

Latin Club Studies Old Mosaic Floors

Mosaic floors are now the interest of the Latin club and classes. Various colors or art paper are the backgrounds and their different designs are made with paper punches. The floors are then varnished to be preserved.

The floors and walls when completed will be used in making a model of a large Roman house of about fifteen rooms.

"The Story of Echo" and "The Story of Palatine and Capitoline Hills" were read by members in the last club meeting.

All members are urged to attend the next meetings when Christmas carols will be prepared in Latin.

Reflections Of A Lighter Note

Mystery Miss of the week is one of those pretty little underclassmen that have been beatin' the upperclassmen's time around here.

This brown-eyed, light brown haired freshman lass has about 5 ft. 3 in. of personality, along with a smile that's really on the beam. Her brown hair which she wears down 'round her shoulders with those cut bangs that really have made a bang-up around these parts.

She can be found any seventh period in the band room breakin' drumsticks as she beats it on the skins. She seems to have plenty of admirers, but no serious heart-throb—so may the best man win.

Keep up the good record for the next three years, Mystery Miss—Grace Pales!

Things that are what they appear to be are so rare that one cannot tell them when one sees them.

Big Game Hunter Loose Until . . .

The great detective and marksman sat in his luxurious study, his two great Danes lying in front of the roaring fire (the dogs were given to him by an admirer).

He picked up the first letter and ending another of his famous cases, finding his man (he always found his man) and seeing that each got his just reward.

The mail was on his desk yet unopened as he saved this task for night before retiring.

e picked up the first letter and read it. His face red with anger and his fists clenched, he pounded on the desk and exclaimed determinedly, "I'll put an end to these letters threatening my life, once and for all!"

He got up and walked over to his collection of guns. As he was a wonderful shot, he got down the thirty-eight and loaded it. Again he clenched his fists, exclaiming, "I'll put an end to these letters forever!"

He went to the window, aimed the revolver, and BANG! a man fell dead! He had shot himself through the heart!

The students of Hamilton High School, Hamilton, Ohio, celebrated "Football for Defense Week," by presenting a program to promote the sale of defense savings bonds between the halves of their football game.

In Syracuse, N. Y., the students of Central School have the chance of using their "book exchange." A pupil brings in an old book which belongs to him and sets a price on it to be sold. He may also buy many books very cheap in this way.

The Red and Blue, the Alliance High School paper, broke its subscription list record this month.

Chester Kwiecinski, talented student of South High School Youngstown, had six paintings displayed for a week at the Butler Art Gallery.
