Author Tells of Many Hardships About His Life In Syria and America

Salom Rizk, Syrian Yankee, spoke before the student body last Friday, February 16. Mr. Rizk's topic was "The Americanization of an American". This proved to be one of the most interesting assemblies of the year.

His speech began with his early life in Syria, where he was reared by his imaginative, colorful, storytelling grandmother. When his grandmother died, Salom was left to wander, hungry and alone through Syria, dying of hunger and from the tyranny of the Huns.

His meager existence was made possible by stealing milk from stray goats, eating wild roots and birds eggs.

After the World War, Salom was befriended by a teacher who shared food and knowledge with him. Then after five years he was at last granted a rightful passport to, what had been described as Heaven, America.

At this point in his speech, Rizk gave amusing accounts of his many adventures in the unfamiliar America, making it more colorful with suitable gestures. He also complimented the audience upon their splendid response saying, "Do you feed them vitamins?"

At the close of his speech Mr. Rizk presented to the students a copy of his widely read book "Syrian Yankee," to be put in the library for the students' use.

Paul Roher, '45 is spending a furlough at home after completing infantry training. He will report to California and then go from there to jungle training school. We were all glad to see a member of our class once again.

Privates Dominick Alessi and George Spack, '44, are both spending furloughs at home. I understand that Mickey could hardly wait to get back in the groove of his music.

Ensign Raymond Reich spent a leave at home recently, after a trip to the war areas. He is the son of our well liked truant officer, Smiley.

We are glad to hear that Doris Ellis is feeling better now. We hope you soon reach full recovery Doris, and that we will be seeing you 1 around in your Cadet Uniform.

Frank (Jock) Hagan spent a few days at home from the Merchant Marines. Jock serves as a cook on the ships. He should make someone a good cook in the post-war days.

Herb Gross spent several days at home before reporting at a base in California. He has just completed a course in Malaria cases with the Marine Corp.

Seaman 2/c Jack Smith has left Great Lakes and has reported to a base at San Diego.

"Murders of Miriam", New Thespian Production To Be Presented Feb. 27

Betty Cibula, Jackie Jensen Direct One-Act Comedy; Second In Thespian Series

"Murders of Miriam," the second in a series of four one-act plays, is to be presented in assembly Tuesday, February 20. This play, under the direction of Senior Thespians Betty Cibula and Jackie Jensen, is a comedy by Walter Kerr.

Salem Debaters Speak At Ravenna

The Salem High School Debate squad, coached by Mr. J. C. Guiler formally inaugurated the 1945 season by participating in the Ravenna district debate tournament at Ravenna on Saturday, February 10. The teams which took part were: Salem, Ravenna, Wadsworth, and Kent. Ravenna, the winner of the tournament, will go directly to the state semi finals held in Kent, Ohio.

The team debated the question, "Resolved, that the voting age be lowered to 18." The affirmative team was decisioned twice, once by Kent and once by Ravenna. The negative team, due to illness of one of the members, was not able to debate.

The team members are: Affirmative, Virginia Burrier and Ray Pierce. Negative, Duane Yeagley and Marjorie Zeller. Irene Kupka is an alternate speaker.

The team next plans to debate Youngstown Chaney at Salem, but a definite date has not yet been set.

Michael Stone (Carl McGaffie) is the perfect detective, but alas, as his wife Miriam (Gertrude Zerbs) has found, he is not exactly the perfect husband. For one thing, he carries his detecting too far, to the point of marking the silverware and snooping in the soup. He drove the last maid into a nervous breakdown and the present one, Elsa (Florence Mawhinney) announces that she is leaving. Well! You know how hard it is to get servants these days. As Mrs. Stanley (Evelyn Nicholson), Miriam's mother, remarks, "It's practically a problem for the FBI. Not content with these accomplishments, Michael proves Miriam's friend, Alice Beecher (Pat Loutzenhiser), to be a petty thief, unknown to her husband Mac (Scott McCorkhill). Then Mike's assistant, Charlie Davis (Bill Byers) arrives and Miriam learns that the "boys" at the office aren't quite as proud of their genius Michael as one might think. Miriam, at her wit's end, decides to do something once and for all about her husband's detecting and she does it!

Foods Classes Prepare Luncheons

The Foods Classes have been studying their text books on luncheons. They also prepared a Valentine luncheon for the school which consisted of tomato juice, meat loaf, potato salad, molded jello and cake. The price of this luncheon was 35 cents.

Superintendent: Those are the park commissioner's leaflets asking people not to throw papers about.

Committee Chosen For Senior Gift Presentation

Miss Beardmore, senior class advisor, announced that a committee for the gift presentation has been appointed. There are five in all, three of whom are class officers, Charles Schaeffer, Bob Ellyson, and Vivian Stowe. Grace Pales and Pat Keener represent 210 and 209, respectively.

The seniors are asked to give whatever suggestions they may have for a gift to any of the five students mentioned.

SHOW APPRECIATION

Whether one has ever stopped to realize it or not, the Cheerleaders have done a very good job this year. They've been on the job every minute and, to our disgrace, they have not always had cooperation. It seems too bad that Salem High students couldn't even bother to learn a few of their own school songs. If other people can write them, we can at least learn them.

Some students have thought it funny to be indifferent to our cheering. Some have even thought it cute to cheer for the other side. Not much loyalty! But, on the whole, the majority of Salemites have been solidly behind the team. When Salem gets excited, we can be heard for twenty miles.

The Cheerleaders deserve a lot of credit for the way they hop around at those cold football games, and do the same at those hot basketball games. It takes real devotion to work up all that steam when the third quarter stretches on and it gets hotter, and the weaklings start to dribble out. Yes, let's give a big cheer for the Cheerleaders!

CO-OPERATE!

What makes The Quaker possible? Did you ever stop and think about it?

The advertisers are the people who make it possible for the students of Salem High to have a school paper. If it weren't for them we wouldn't have a paper.

Now, if we expect them to advertise in The Quaker, they can rightfully expect the students to patronize their places of business.

It is your duty, as readers of The Quaker, to patronize business establishments that make The Quaker possible.

HI, VAMP—GOT WRITERS CRAMP?

If you spend your study halls writing letters to your friends and sweeties I have a few suggestions that may brighten your letters up a little. Of course I'm not advocating writing letters in study hall, but we all do it now and then. Well, time will pass, but you won't.

You can always buy monogrammed stationery, but you can also make some of your own. Just cut the letters out of paper that contrasts with your note paper, and paste them in the upper lefthand corner. For a really clever letter, cut out all sorts of pictures and paste them in various places through the letter to take the place of omitted words. It is terribly tricky, and will keep him busy for awhile.

To cheer up the envelope of your sugar report, cut out the lips of a colored photograph in a magazine and paste them on it as a seal. If you just kiss the back of it he will have your own lip prints. It is also clever to put letters on the back of your envelope such as — P.M.P.M.D.Y.D.T.T.L.T.M.C. (Post Man, Post Man, Do Your Duty, Take This Letter To My Cutie), or S.W.A.S.K. (Sealed With A Sweet Kiss). It is kinda cute, and will drive the mail man simply wild.

For really personal stationery you can have one of those dime store photographs taken and paste it in the left-hand corner of the paper. Decals or flower designs from wall-paper samples also make nice decorations for your letters.

You can buy darling puzzle letters to write on now. Just write your letter and tear it apart. They go mad trying to get them together, but it's worth it.

To make your plain stationery a little fancier, cut around the edges with mother's pinking shears, or singe the edges over a candle for an antique parchment effect. Now all you have to do is think of something happy to say, and you will be right in style.

BACK IN THE SADDLES: It certainly looks good to see those clean saddle shoes blossoming out once again! Rose Ciricosta, Flicker, Betty Gibbs, and Vivian Stowe have all been sporting them lately. They are almost like the pre-war numbers we used to get. Come on, gals! Dig up those ration stamps you have been hoarding, and get rid of the dirty saddle shoes you hae been wearing all winter.

LUSCIOUS LIPS: In case you haven't noticed, the lips and nails are going to be dolled up in luscious shades of pink now. All of the lip-stock manufacturers are putting out dreamy new shades now. Chen Yu's newest shades of pink polish are Sea Shell, and Frozen Fire, and the Frozen Fire has the lipstick to match. The Revlon people are right on their toes also with lipstick and polish in two new shades of pink named Pink Lightning, and Pink Garter. All of these new shades will look dreamy with the lovely pastel clothes you will be wearing this spring and summer.

Speaking of lipstick — there is something new on the market now. You can now buy liquid lipstick. What won't they think of next? It is called Liquid Liptone, and is guaranteed not to smear or rub off. Sounds good.

GIRL OF THE WEEK: The fashionable fem this week is none other than Enes Equize. Enes is a darling little miss from the sophomore class. She had very dark brown hair and eyes to match, and bubbles over with pep. She wears her hair in a neat page-boy, and is usually seen wearing one of her pretty wool dresses around school.

Third Graders' Eyes Tested

Last year the Lions Club sponsored an eye test for every Salem school student from the first grade up to and including the eighth grade. This year, Mrs. Brian, the school nurse, has been testing the eyes of the 3rd grade pupils only.

The results of the test:

	Tested	Rec.	for Dr.
Columbia	37		7
Fourth Street	57		11
McKinley	26		9
Prospect	37		6
Reilly	33		0
St. Paul's	42		20
Total	232		53

There will soon be a dental clinic for the Salem school pupils.

SABOTAGE

BY MOLLIE

Hello, Dear Fans:

Oh, you're not? Well, then, just hello, readers. How's that? I'm bubbling with enthusiasm, but I can't promise any enthusiastic news. Maybe you can catch some of my bubbling and not care whether you read anything or not.

Misprint

I beg everyone's pardon concerned for the unforgivable mistake of last week's publication. Bubbles had a minor fit and Sally's feelings were hurt, and Jackie must've felt silly, even if she wasn't in Salem to read it. SOO. The corsage that Jackie Earl had on some weeks ago was from Sally, not Bubbles. There, now, everybody happy again? I must've written that part while I was sleeping. Usually, that's when I do my best. (Shhhhhh! Don't tell Jim.)

Open House, and How!

Well, it wasn't really, but there surely were a raft of people there. Fran Vaughan was so glad to be back in Salem (she must be a square) that she threw a big "fem" party that turned out to be anything but. Someone told me there was a manpower shortage. There were so many from the halls of this place there that I wouldn't dare start to tell you who they were. There's always a life of a party, as you know. Well, the odds were with us, or rather Fran. Everyone there was the life of it. Mo (Got a match, Buck?) Hollinger played "Old Maids" all evening, and every time Mutt Roessler was the Old Maid herself. Dick (I call all people's relatives "Bag Face") Jones had a gay old time and kept one and all howling. Poor Mutt arrived worn from good (at the game) to clear done out at the party. (I hope the coach reads this, don't you?) He crawled under the table, away from all feet, but not his own hot-foot, which he slumbered on through, and had himself a real nice snooze. Anyhow, I hear all had fun, and that's really the important item, I guess. Flicker had fun playing follow the leader, huh, John?

Hello to Jane and Come Back Soon

You who saw Liz's friend from Indiana know she was cute, but you unfortunates that have been hibernating and didn't, I'm telling you . . . she was cute! Liz had a big, splashing, rollicking party and millions of people. I don't know whether to try and get all the names in this week or wait and finish them up next week. Couldn't you have been more considerate, Liz, and not have invited so many? No? O. K., then, I'll try: Ruth Zeck, Reggie Luffy, Barb, Peg Pritchard, Esther, Jerry, Elaine, Burpy, Dick Fields, Oyster, Moe, Dick Karlis, Lee Sproat, Si, Jerry Kaughman, Phil Cahill, Nick, Red, Louie, Dick Gottschling, Jim, Duck, Johnny Pridon, Walt, Fred and Johnny Mulford. Wheeeeeeeeeee! They had just as much fun as there were people, too. Oh! My hat! I forgot the second guest of honor . . . Pvt. Mickie Alessi. There, now, I think that's it.

Card Sharks

My poor broken-hearted and deserted friend, Louie (they call me Sonny . . . short for; well, never mind) Juliano feels that no one loves him because I haven't written anything about him. Cheer up, Lou; I found you a cutie. Lou and pal, John (Lover) Plegge are two of the slyest creatures I know of at Casino and Sweep. Of course, Johnny gets his largest share of laughs from the clever way he—shall we say, mooches, all the right cards. If you need a quick lesson, ask the kids. They'll be glad to oblige.

Brain Storm

I mustn't take the credit for this, though, as it came from a critical fan who is a lot of help to me. Thanks, Nickie. In my corner of this paper, I'm about to start a contest. Next week's title will be Miss Best Looking and Mr. Handsome of Salem High. In the Quaker office you will find a box labeled "Sabotage". I want you to either insert pictures or names of your favorite best looking fem and made from the Sophomore class. Your votes must be in by Friday after school. Write your candidate's name and your name on the paper. Next week it'll be someone else under a new title. Come on, now, kids. We can't do this without your help, and remember, if you don't approve of the winning people, it's because you didn't vote. Everyone NOW!! Let's pick the pick of you.

Counting on your support, I remain and close,
Just me,
MOLLIE.

Quakers Wallop Struthers 64-33

Brian, Schaeffer Pace Attack That Captures 14th Straight Home Game

27-Point Rally In Third Period Gives Salem Easy Win After Close First Half

Blasting their way to victory in the third quarter, the Salem High round-ballers swamped Struthers, 64 to 33, last Friday in the last game of the season to be played at the local gym. A total of 27 points went through the nets for Salem in the third period, while the Big Red managed only four two-pointers.

Walt Brian and Mutt Schaeffer accounted for half of the victor's total with 20 and 12 points respectively. Francis Lanney and Jim Appedison showed more scoring ability than usual and displayed their usual good defensive work.

Dick Shafer stood out for the Big Red in smooth ball handling while he and his teammate, Bob McPhee, led the Struthers scoring by governing 11 markers apiece.

During the first half it looked as if Struthers might cause plenty of trouble throughout the game. The visitors trailed 14 to 11 after 8 minutes of play and dropped behind 25 to 10 by halftime, but had the Salemites really fighting to keep this lead.

After 15 minutes intermission the Quakers exploded. By the time three minutes passed they had swished 10 points through the basket. Two minutes later they had another 10 markers which gave them the winning margin.

The final portion of the contest slowed down considerably as Coach Bob Miller used his substitutes.

Sir Galahad was lost in a blinding snowstorm one dark night. After hours of aimless wandering, he ran across a big husky St. Bernard. Warily the knight climbed upon the dog's back and was taken to a tavern. Pounding on the door, he shouted, "Can you give me shelter?"

The tavern keeper peered out into the storm and answered, "Who am I to turn a knight out on a dog like this?"

SPORT PICKUPS

BY HARV

Greetings sport fans, or for a more formal entrance, Hello Mr. and Mrs. Salem High, and all the little Quakers at Sea (Bring). Let's go to press—

Tonight marks the final Red and Black cage appearance of the regular season. The Quakers, as you know, journey to Sebring to do battle with the not too powerful Trojans. For once it doesn't look as though the Earthquakers will need a Trojan horse to submerge the Trojans (although Louie Juliano has already applied for the job).

It looks like Salem could pick their own score tonight so, therefore, this column will leave the predictions alone. (After that last one, people are starting to hate the adage that everyone is entitled to his own opinion).

Last Friday night Miller's Killers once again hit their stride (and Struthers too) when they devastated the Big Red 64-33 to chalk up their 14th win in 17 starts.

The Big Red died (at least this is a colorful pun) a horrible death when the Red and Black jivesome fivesomes played the funeral march for the visitors in three-quarter time. (Boy I'll say, 27 points in the third quarter.) This splurge made the fans forget the talk of Salem's previous second half let-downs and really gave everyone the satisfaction of seeing what a fast break can do when it is working.

The brunt of the Salem attack was carried once again by Walt (I could have tossed a basketball across the Potomac if I were Washington) Brian with 20 markers, and Mutt Schaeffer who garnered 12 points.

Francis Lanney finally gave signs of awakening from his recent offensive slump by caging three fielders and a brace of charity heaves. This was his best scoring effort for several weeks, in which time the Junior Captain had unwillingly been observing meshless Tuesdays and pointless Fridays. Francis' sudden return to form really gives the Earthquakers a lift in tournament hopes.

With Brian, Schaeffer, Kelly, and Jim Appedisan going great guns, Lanney's scoring absence had been a source of great alarm to local partisans. This fivesome, with help from subs, Bill Stoudt, Don Firth, and Norm Smith now looks to the Sectional Tourney with new hope. They have the experience, accurate and reserve power that go with a first-class team. If the breaks go Salem's way, all Class A opponents better watch their step because Ye Olde Quakers are set to roll.

Yes, sir, those Class A teams at Youngstown better be on the lookout for a Class E (classey to you) outfit from Salem.

I had a neat chat with Struthers' ace, Bob McPhee after the game. The Big Red top scorer, who bottled up considerably by Mutt Schaeffer,

Salem Wins No. 13, Tops Bengals 53-27

Brian, Schaeffer Pace Attack With 34 Markers

Victory by the score of 53 to 27 over the Wellsville Bengals February thirteenth was the thirteenth win of the season for the Salem High basketball team.

The Red and Black outscored the weak, but scrappy Bengals in every period. The outcome seemed almost certain after about five minutes of play on the spacious Beacom gym.

The Millermen were out in front 19 to 6 going into the second portion. They added 16 more points by the halftime which ended 35 to 13.

Salem slowed down in the third eight minute fray but scored eight markers compared to the Bengals' six. A full second team saw action in the last half in which only 32 points were tallied while 48 markers were dumped through the net in the first half.

Mutt Schaeffer and Walt Brian hit their usual high scoring strides with 17 points each. Carter chalked up eight points for high point honors on the Wellsville team.

Salem Five Meets Sebring In Final

Millerites Hope to End Regular Campaign With Win No. 15

Facing the Sebring Trojans tonight, the Salem High Quakers aim to make their record for the season 15 wins and three defeats.

The Trojans, who have had a fair season, will be out to defeat the Quakers for revenge of last year's Red and Black victory of 41 to 28. The main threat of the Sebring team is Sharpnack, who led in Trojan scoring.

Columbiana downed the Trojan 38 to 26 two weeks ago compared to the Salem-Columbiana score of 40 to 39.

Undoubtedly the Quakers have the edge but the Sebringites will furnish plenty of opposition on their home floor.

For the locals, the same starting lineup of Brian, Kelly, Schaeffer, Lanney and Appedisian will prevail while E. Brunie, Gillis, Sharpnack, Briggs and Dawson will hold down the starting slots for the home team.

The Trojans feature a slow break built around Center Sharpnack and Forward E. Brunie.

Personalities In S. H. S.

The personality choice this week belongs to a Sophomore with long black hair and dark brown eyes. She has been referred to as having the nicest mouth (In a past issue of the Quaker for a perfect girl). She loves to dance (is a good one at that). Besides all of that she is a good dresser. One of her favorite songs is Opus No. 1. Her favorite subject is Biology and a certain Junior.

The other half of this column a certain tall, dark, handsome Junior with brown hair, grey eyes, a wonderful disposition, likes all sports, has many friends, (including girls, but one in particular) is always ready for fun, and has a good sense of humor.

Have you guessed who the two choices of the week are? Well, look at the bottom of this paragraph.

This girl towers (?) 5 ft, 3 in. above the ground. She's a Senior and proud of it. She just enrolled again after a half a year in New York. She went three years here at S. H. S. before she left. She has a twin brother Jim. She can usually be found at The Corner with Pat, Mollie, Peg, Flicker, Frances and the other kids around school. This week's personality goes to Betty Gibbs.

Al Volio has been in Bermuda for the past 18 months. This article recently appeared in the camp paper, "The Out Post."

Our modest coach, Volio—is handling the team, and is doing a fine job. Volio blushes when he is called "coach"—but keep up the good work as we are all with you.

was in very high praise of Miller's quintette and expressed the opinion that Salem was the best Struthers had played all year. He also commented on the fact that the Quakers should have little trouble at Youngstown. Much obliged Bob.

Not to be outdone, the Tarr-babies have been decided by only two teams—Salem Reserves and Alliance State St. Junior High, while winning six encounters. The team is paced by Pete Cain, the leading scorer, Virg Kelly, Ted Boone, Ray Mercer, and Carl Ciozzi who round out the first team.

If Walt Brian keeps up his present scoring pace, 261 points in 17 games he'll (don't worry there's an apostrophe in there) be leading scorer in the district.

The Struther's coach wouldn't give out with much of a statement about Salem except that we're "Plenty tough." Silence is golden but still words are cheap.
