1949 Yearbook Receives First Class Honor Rating

A First Class Honor (Excellent) rating was awarded the 1949 Quaker yearbook by the National Scholastic Press Association in its 29th annual critical service judging, it was made known this week in a communication received from N. S. P. A. by Miss Betty Ulicny, publications editorial adviser.

An honor rating certificate to An honor rating certificate to J. R. C. Strives hung in the Quaker office.

An earlier letter from the association has announced the 1949. Quaker weekly to be First Class

The Quaker yearbook is one of 36 senior high school annuals from all over the United States to receive this rating, competing with other such books which are printed commercially and whose school enrollment is from 700 to 999 pupils.

The books were rated by individual judges on the basis of makeup, typography, content, and other factors. The Quaker received a total of 2870 points out of a possible 3000.

Marjorie Reash was editor-inchief of the 1949 annual, and Kenneth Zeigler was the business manager.

Art Club Paintings To Be Used in Play

Drawing imitation oil sketches and paintings for use as props in the Senior class play was the job of the Art club when they met last Wednesday evening with Joanne Conser, vice-president, in charge of an especially called meeting.

New England scenes of all types and descriptions, most of which had been begun in charcoal previous to the meeting, were carried on in full color. color.

The making of the full-length painting of Donna Schoss, play lead, which had been scheduled for that meeting, was postponed because Donna had to be at play practice and, according to Mrs. Ethel Headrick, adviser, the contest is now open to all the members of her art classes.

For Members

The Junior Red Cross membership drive began yesterday and will continue until Nov. 15 under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Mercer, sponsor, and the JRC council. A 100 per cent enrollment of each homeroom will be sought.

Posters were made advertising the drive by a committee composed of Louise Bauman, Marjorie Umstead, and Janet Lehman. These are on display throughout the building.

At their first meeting, the council elected officers. They are Bill Vogelhuber, president; Louise Bauman, vice-president; and Wilma Firestone, secretary-treasurer.

Volunteers assisted the Columgue in taking X-rays of Salem adults in the Ohio Edison auditorium last Friday. Those who assisted under the direction of Bill Vogelhuber were James Stoudt, Carol Steffel, Mabel Doience, Mary Hollinger, JoAnn Copacia, Wilma Firestone, Kathryn Winkler, Elizabeth Fultz, Mary Anne Comanisi, and Rose Fiani. ### Fewer Cheerleaders --?

Several complaints, in the form of letters, have entered the Quaker office during the last few weeks.

All of these stress the fact that our cheerleaders seem to be too numerous and are regularly being compared to a "football team" in themselves.

They supposedly branch out over the field and surrounding area, making the studes lose interest in the cheers being given.

It is thought that perhaps fewer cheerleaders would make for better cheering. Then, too, everyone knows that the old adage, "too much candy makes one sick," has proven itself true many times. It is hoped that this constructive critiunderstood that this is the opinion of not the entire student body, perhaps, but of a large majority of the letters receiv-

Rah, Team, Rah!!

The Quaker football team goes out once a week for Nine successive weeks 'to showing their loyalty to Salem High and its students and striving to win the games which they play.

The students in turn should show their loyalty to the team by cooperating in all respects with the cheering and other boosting done at the rallies.

In good sportsmanship, if a game is lost, the students do not boo the other team or complain and shout about having received unfair treatment, but take the loss with a quick grin and a better-lucknext-time-attitude.

Salem High has followed along with the team thus far this season but, to make it a perfect one, the enthusiasm should continue until the final shot of the final

Dear Editor,

I would like to make a suggestion concerning our cheerleading.

If the cheerleaders were to use only four or five cheers, instead of a large number of different ones, the students would know those few very well and the cheering results would be more effective. I feel that the students would respond better to the yells if they knew one perfectly.

Fall Fashions Flash Bright, Stylish Togs

The different colors and color schemes being worn this fall season by the various studes could be compared to the out-ofdoors on a sunny fall day.

The sharp black leather jackets adorned with silver studs that George Tarr, Jerry Jeffries, and Tony Modarelli have been sporting lately are deep contrasts to the brilliant colors.

The cherry red sweater set belonging to Anna Herron attracts attention and looks bright and soft.

Ralph Firestone's yellow sweater with the brown deer parading across the chest proves to be something different, as also is Frankie Leone's white and black longsleeved one.

The combo of a beige jersey and brown skirt which is worn by Myra Ewing makes for comfort and is strikingly "fall."

Treva Bush's bright green corduroy dress is an eye-catcher in any crowd.

every game should be Dad's Night for every fellow did his best with Pop watching from the sidelines. It was also the band's last home preformance, but they didn't go much by tradition. It took the cheerleaders to bring out any show of the Halloween season and they did a splendid job. Dana Rice was very comically attired. Her costume and antics were enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of seeing her.

For a matter of information ask Carrie Rowlands and Jeanne Cocca why they were heard to state they would give anything to become sophomores again.

To ease our conscience we apologize to Tony Ferreri and all his friends for not giving Tony the credit for the beginning of the word "muh."

Two studes, Tom Stamp and George Tarr always appear neatly dressed. The boys have a variety of wear and they use it. Tom looks sharpest in a plain suit with a foreign hand tie, while George is at his best in a sport outfit with a bow tie.

To boast of a little ingenuity of a fellow student, ask Don Lippiatt how he ever put a '30 Model A sedan body on a '31 coupe chassis. It runs in the family. Don's relatives have cars in their blood. They must have taught Don for he does all his car work with very little help and he very seldom does it wrong. He believes that an engine which runs perfectly is better to have than one that has a wide variety of pepper-uppers attached.

Quaker Quips

Contest a 'You Pick 'em' Affair As Quakers Fight to Keep Title

The Quaker lettermen haven't lost an out-of-town game this year and they are not planning to start tonight when they journey to East Liverpool to engage in what will probably be the most important game of the season. The Quakers must take the next two honors once. Alexander had a games to hold their title of County Champs won last year.

East Liverpool lost their opener to Lima 14 to 13 and another to New Philadelphia 7 to 0, but then they came back to nose out Akron East 13 to 12 and barely beat the Steubenville Big Red 7 to 6. Liverpool chalked up two more wins when they defeated Youngstown South 20 to 13 and Canton Lehman, 32 to 14, but bowed to Martins Ferry just last week 14 to 0.

East Liverpool uses the single wing and is a great team for passes, most of them being received by Rose, left-end captain. In the guard position will be Bell, a fast charging lineman who was named All-County guard and was a candidate for that position on the All State team.

Filling the bill in the fullback position will be Red Stanley, a boy whose hobby is running for touchdowns on the kickoff and driving his would-be tacklers crazy with excellent broken field

Last year the Salem Junior Legion team captured the Columbiana county title. This squad was composed almost entirely of boys who would be eligible for high year in a row. school ball this year and next. Many boys of this year's senior class who were too old for this team could play for Salem high next season. Quakertown on paper would have a big edge over other county rivals. An extra trophy or two in the high school show case certainly wouldn't make the place crowded.

Last year's Legion team defeated such top notch schools as Canton, Massillon, and Louisville. Victories over teams like these never hurt the reputation of any your opinion on baseball in Salem High?

Quakers are expecting their it could be just the thing the toughest game, since the Timken doctor ordered for Salem High. defeat some four contests ago, when they attempt to splatter the platter of the Potters tonight in the city along the Ohio.

Struthers was tough but those 24 points that Youngstown district experts (?) said Salem would need to break even with the Wild-

It has been very noticeable that cats was strictly unexplainable interest in track here has been here in Salem. The Quakertown decreasing during the past few fans really expected a win and years. Baseball, under sponsor- would have been disappointed

Tonight things are different. East Liverpool isn't as highly Nearly every school around rated as Struthers and possibly isn't as strong, but there is somesmall, has organized a high school thing that will make the Potters tough for Salem. Not only will they have the advantage of a home crowd and a home field, but they would hate to see the name Salem preceded by the title "County Champs" for the second

> The Quakers still hold the title from last year and will continue to hold it until some other team proves itself better. The Potters think they have that proof and so will take the stand tonight. If they don't succeed, there's always Lisbon the following week.

> It might be out of season but it has been out of this high school for a long time too. It's a known fact that an attempt is being made to add baseball to the list of sports activities at Salem High. The plan is past the talking school the size of Salem. What's stage and is now under consideration by the Board of Education. Whether anything will come from It's no secret that the Salem the idea remains to be seen, but it could be just the thing the

Elijah Alexander, or just plain "Lige" to most people, is a real Akron Central Wildcats 31 to 14 all-around sport. He has played football all four years of high school, and last year he tied for first place in the high jump in the Columbiana County track meet. He still finds time for basketball. Besides playing football or watching a Gregory Peck or Jennifer Jones movie, Lige likes to settle down to a big thick juicy steak with lots of mashed potatoes and gravy on the side. His most remembered incident occurred during Varsity S initiations last year when he had to rub mustard in his hair.

Larry Doby measures up to Lige's baseball standards, and Otto Graham fills his bill for a baseball player. The Sports Album and Bill Stern's favorite sports stories get a tops rating with him

Lige is known around school as more than a sports figure. He was president of his class during his sophomore and junior years and he is vice-president this year.

Salem Runner to Attend State Meet at Mansfield

Quaker cross country star, Paul Provins, earned his way to the state meet at Mansfield tomorrow when he captured third place in the district contest held in Akron Saturday.

Provins tied the old meet record of 9 minutes and 58 seconds but was still four seconds behind the winner's time.

Other Salem places went 'to Louie Quinn, 22nd; John Votaw, 29th and Freshman Tommy Johnston, 54th.

Seventy-seven runners, the cream of Ohio's high school cross country boys, were entered in
