'Charlie', the Reptile, Resides With Fearless SHS Student

By Vonda Lee Sponseller

Charlie is only a couple of feet long. A visiting football captain was six feet with some inches to boot! Yet to this large athlete and other persons of similar size, who indulge in our basement recreation of pool, a proper introduction to little Charles fails to erase that initial terrified expression.

An expression that is stimulated by the sight of a beast issuing forth dog-like barks and cat-like hisses. "A crocodile!!" shrieks the visitors.

"Crocodile, indeed!" we indignantly shriek back. "We'll have you know Charles is an alligator!"

Harboring this creature on our lowest floor wasn't the original plan for wintering Charles. A building to the rear of our residence was thought sufficient for a reptile house until the morning Charles was rushed into the house as stiff as a board and encased in ice.

The treatment under the hot water heater was prescribed. Charlie responded to the remedy and by noon he was as limp as a wet rag. At 12:45 he barked. We joyfully relaxed and began the preparations for boarding a reptile in our cellar.

In the summertime, though, Charlie pursues the same routine as our canine. Following the sunrise, the dog is untied and the scaly one is released in the fish pond. Both recline for the majority of their daylight hours — Ted because he's old; Charlie because he's lazy. Around sunset, the collie is retied and the alligator is bedded down in his basement habitation.

Constantly exhibiting acute idleness, Charles sometimes neglects the exertion to consume his meals of raw meat, fish, and itty-bitty amphibians; whereupon two persons, a stick with a bloody chunk of hamburger on the end, and a minor amount of force are applied.

Showcase Displays Stadtlander's Work

The library showcase has a display of the work done by Joseph Stadtlander of the art department. Mr. Stadtlander's wife also contributed to the exhibit.

Among the displays are paper mache figures, which are made of paper, water and paste, molded together. When the mixture dries, it resembles clay.

Paintings, sketches, and other items made by the new art teacher and his wife complete the exhibit.

Latins Elect Officers At Organization Meetings

The Latin club of Salem High held their first meeting of the year recently with Miss Helen Redinger, adviser, and elected the officers for the year.

The officers elected were Barbara Smith, president; Barbara Patterson, vice president; and Shirley Burrier, secretary-treasurer.

The meeting consisted mainly of selecting three committees, a social committee, program committee and a committee for rules. The club plans to get their yearly Latin pins soon.

Music Department Announces Auditions

The annual Marie Burns music auditions will be held March 3 and 4, it was recently announced by instructors in the music department.

The prizes of $10 each will be awarded to two musicians in each class with the Freshman and Juniors performing in the instrumental field and the Sophomores and Seniors in the vocal selections. A committee from the Music Study club of Salem will judge the auditions and answer any questions the contestants may have. The winners will be announced in the recognition assembly at the end of the year. The contest was originated by the late John Burns in memory of his wife, Marie, who was a musician herself and interested in promoting musical activities among young people.

At the Junior class meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 22, it was announced that if the Juniors voted to have a banquet before the Junior-Senior Prom, the Masonic Temple would be obtained in which to hold the annual spring affair. The prom, which is to be held on May 29, is a yearly dance which is given by the Junior class. Class adviser, Delores Ferko, also announced that if the banquet were to be held, those who attended would not have to have dates.

Introducing Stadtlander, SHS Art Instructor

By Dolores Buta

Once again the curiosity of SHS students has been aroused by a new face in the halls. The casual brown-haired and very blue-eyed fellow is Joseph Peter Stadtlander, the new art teacher.

A million and one questions about Mr. Stadtlander have been asked, but very few answered, so this article is being written to answer your questions and help you get acquainted with him.

Mr. Stadtlander's home town is Mantua, Ohio, where he attended school until graduation. After finishing high school he enrolled in Kent State University as an art major. While there he proved the saying "if there's a will there's a way" to be true. As he attended college he kept up a 70-acre farm and graduated from Kent cum laude.

Mr. Stadtlander's wife Barbara is also an artist, and they are the proud parents of a four-month-old son named Peter.

So far he likes the size of Salem and, in his opinion, if the kids are any indications of the town he feels there will be no trouble. For Mr. Stadtlander to keep this fine impression, students will have to keep away from his pet peeve, which is when students take advantage of him.

A memorable moment comes to everyone. To Mr. Stadtlander it was while watching the Northern

Joseph Stadtlander

Lights in Labrador. After his most memorable comes his most embarrassing moment. It's not just one moment but quite a few, however. He says his most embarrassing moments come when he blushes. The incident that will probably be remembered most by Mr. Stadtlander is the night he graduated from high school. The speaker for commencement was a German refugee who told the students what to expect in the world. When the speaker was finished Mr. Stadtlander felt choked up. Although they weren't exactly sure what the speaker meant at the time, they woke up to the meaning quite suddenly when they found themselves in different branches of the service. Some things came true and others didn't.

To get back to the pleasant side of life, talk about food and Mr. Stadtlander says he loves everything and anything, especially apple fritters. While eating he enjoys listening to some semi-classical and popular music.

On Mr. Stadtlander's day off you would probably find him working with his hobbies, which are wood-working and guns.

When you ask Mr. Stadtlander what he thought when he was offered the job in Salem High, he says he was very much surprised because he never expected to get a job in a high school.

Thespians Plan Bake Sale, Initiation

A bake sale, a trip to a Drama Clinic, and an initiation are the activities in store for the Thespians.

Under the direction of Miss Irene Weeks, the troupe is planning a bake sale which will be held on Feb. 23.

Saturday, Jan. 26, is the date set for a Drama Clinic at Kent State University. Several Thespians are planning to attend the day's activities which will be highlighted by the production of "Medea" by the Kent State Players.

The programs for the formal and informal initiation are also under way. The Salemasquers who were eligible to become Thespians have been notified.

Quakers to Battle Potters Here Tonight

By Sandy Hansell

This is it! This is the game of the year! Tonight at 7:30 the Salem Quakers take on the East Liverpool Potters in the renewal of their long series dating back to 1927. The Potters have won 20 games of this series, the Quakers 15.

Last year East Liverpool dumped the locals twice for the only setbacks the Quakers swallowed the whole year in regular season play.

The down-river boys are paced by diminutive Paul James and lanky Jim Manning. The 5'7" James, leading scorer with 142 points, seems to be their most consistent point-maker and their biggest offensive threat. 6'2" Manning, reportedly a fine rebounder, was one of the Potter stars in last year's Reserve battles and is right on James's tail with 141 points.

Another star of last year's close ones and one to be remembered from football, is Bob McCoy whose 109 points enables him to capture third place in scoring honors, while 6'6½" Bob Moore with 105 markers is, according to advance information, the team's defensive ace.

Rounding out the starting five is another football star, Len O'Hanlon, with 65 points so far this season.

The East Liverpool Reserve team, under Coach John Staley, will also journey here tonight, mixing with our understudies.

The Potter yearlings are led by two more ace football players, Clair Williams and Ed Oliver. Williams was banished from last year's Reserve affair for intentional roughness when they were taking their first loss in over two years. Oliver, a 5'10" junior, has been seeing considerable Varsity action along with his Reserve play.

Advance reports from Pottery Town indicate the locals have a good chance to take tonight's preliminary game.

This year, the East Liverpool Varsity, under coach Merrill Hall, has a record of eight wins against only three setbacks. On the basis of the few comparative scores available, the locals are in for a rough evening. The Hallmen downed Massillon 35 to 24 while at the Dover preview, the Quakers only squeaked by 16 to 15. They trounced Warren on Warren's court 65 to 40 when the Cabasmen were able to take them the previous night only 48 to 43 on our floor. They also walloped Youngstown Rayen 61 to 44 which in comparison with last Tuesday's Rayen-Salem game, gives another slant on tonight's tilt.

However, comparative scores don't mean much, favored teams and underdogs are equal, everything else is forgotten when these two get together. It's dog eat dog tonight; the fat's in the fire as these two great teams clash.

Come on Quakers, beat Ceramists!!

Youth of 1952

In spite of what some members of the older generation are saying and thinking the young people of today are still setting their standards and ideals as high, if not higher, than before.

Of course there are scandals and vandals among teen-agers; there always were and always will be. But those who condemn the minds of young people are not giving themselves the "credit" they deserve and are berating teachers, parents, and leaders as well.

Those who have established confidence in youth as a group are aware that as long as teen-agers participate in school, church and Sunday School activities, seek advice on important matters, and show an avid interest in promoting peace and bettering their own communities, the world is still in capable hands.

Hi There!

The following conversation actually took place in the third floor hall recently: One Freshman girl excitedly exclaimed to her friend, "Guess who said 'hi' to me today?" When the inquisitive friend asked who that person was, the answer was the name of a popular upperclass girl.

Who has not felt the warm glow of appreciation that comes with favorable recognition from someone who is respected and admired? To those who consider themselves above recognizing others: let them remember that really prominent people did not earn their renown by thinking in terms of their own popularity, but they also sincerely enjoyed the warm feeling of friendliness they received when meeting new people and making acquaintances.

The people who are really popular and famous are always the most humble and the last to admit that they have reached the top, for in their own minds they have set a higher goal.

Soph Gals vs Leap Year

With leap year well on its way, it seems that a number of Sophomore gals have got a pretty good start at hooking some of the most eligible of the male species. Among these smart girls who started their leaping before the rush began are Janet Sarchet, Margie Hannay, Donna Cocca, Barbara Smith, and Margie Nestor.

Well, it just goes to show you that the youngest are sometimes the smartest!

Social Gatherings

Donna Arnold and Jeri Hagan had a combined birthday party Friday night in their honor.

Food and dancing were the main events of the evening. Mostly the food!

Poem

"Ben" we called our family cat,
We thought it was a him;
But when the little kittens came
We changed it to "Ben Hur."

Turtable Talk

By Johanna Keiffer

It's not hard to tell just what kind of music agrees with most SHS students. Having a coke at the "Corner" or just plain loafing after school starts you wondering if the record companies made only two new records in the last few weeks. "Cry" by Johnnie Ray and "Tell Me Why" by the Four Aces are played over and over again each day. If another nickel is dropped in the juke box, it's only for the sake of hearing the reverse sides, "The Little White Cloud That Cried" and "A Garden In The Rain."

Many of the fellows and gals are whistling and humming "Slow Poke" and three other favorites: "Charamaine," "A Kiss to Build a Dream On," and "Tiger Rag."

A new record by the Bell sisters called "Bermuda" has recently been put out. The song has a haunting melody and will probably soon be among the favorites.

Some students expressed the wish to dedicate the following:

To Ronnie Callatone from Bob Roth, "Whiskey and Gin."

To Ju-Ju Alek from Ann Mawhinney, "Cry."
To Ann Sandrock from Bonnie Campbell, "My Buddy."

To Janice Hertel from Billy Buckman, "Slow Poke."

To Pudgy Allison from Don Sinsley, "Cigarettes and Whiskey," and "Wild, Wild Women."

To Bob from Nancy, "Tell Me Why."

To Donna from Birkie, "I Get A Kick Out of You."

To Terry Moore from Barbara Patterson, "Blues In Burlesque."

To Jack Ference from Mary Campbell, "Because of You."

To Helen from Jerry, "Whiskey and Gin."

To Dick Ward from "anonymous," "Too Young."

Jim: "If you don't marry me, I" take a rope and hang myself in your front yard."

Jo: "Ah now, Jim, you know Pa doesn't want you hanging around here."

Mr. Olloman: "Where do jellyfish get their jelly?"

Joan Hart: "From the ocean currents, I suppose."

"Let me through, let me through!
Said the toe to the sock.
Said the sock to the toe,
"I'll be darned if I do."

Freshman Invade

It seems that the Freshmen girls of SHS have taken over. This was proven last Saturday when Betsy Moore had a party for the Freshmen girls. It turned out that they all asked Senior boys to go. This will never do!!

Don't Forget!

Tonight's the night we've all been waiting for since basketball started. Yes, tonight we play Liverpool, so all of you, students and faculty members, be sure to go. And after the game the "Elks" are sponsoring a dance for everybody; so see you all there.

Quaker Quips

Captain of the team: "Well, Coach, we're going to give you a victory for your birthday."

Coach: "Good, I was expecting the usual tie."

Absent-minded professor to druggist: "Give me some prepared acetylsalicylic acid."

"You mean aspirin?"

"Yes, that's right . . . I can never can think of that name."

Republican's new gag:

We've had a New Deal, a Fair Deal and a Square Deal . . . how about a new deck?"

Skip Sinsley gets the week's credit for starting a fad. He claims to have started the pork-pie hat idea burning anew in Salem High. Dick Reed and Ken Layden, a couple of the fans, sport black jobs, while Guber Gottschling, Don Kridler, and Wayne Harris sport tan college block toppers.

Speaking of lids, Jere Hochadel is looking for the culprit who leached his black "Reverends" hat from either his locker or the "Corner." Any information leading to the recovery of the dome warmer would be greatly appreciated by Jere.

She: "What did you say to the dean when he expelled you?"

Expellee: "I congratulated him on turning out such fine young men."

A dumb student entered a grocery store and said to the clerk, "Take this order: 10 pounds of sugar at six cents, 11 pounds of coffee at 25 cents, eight pounds of tea at 30 cents. Add that up. How much is it?"

Clerk: "Five dollars."

Boy: "Are you sure?"

Clerk: "Of course, I'm sure."

Boy: "Thanks. That's my math lesson for tomorrow."

Half time!—half over, half to go—that's how the score of school time stands. Today marks the last day of the first semester which leaves only 90 more days to rest before the summer job.

Twirp Trouble

By Terry Moore

Should I ask him? I wonder what he'd say. What if he refuses! Two bits Betty's already asked him. Even if she hasn't, I bet he'd rather go with her anyhow. Oh well, I'll never get anywhere this way. Well, buck up old girl, and let's go ask this gorgeous hunk of top priority manhood.

"Aloysious," she quakes, "will you go to the Twirp dance with me?"

Prime Beef, disdainfully looking down upon her, guesses maybe he will if he hasn't got anything more important to do. He then swaggers off leaving the poor girl with a dazed but happy look, and a glorious feeling toward everything.

The night of the dance a timid knock on the door announces the arrival of this beautiful piece of masculinity's escort. After half an hour at the hands of his amused parents this lovely member of the virile species waltzes down the stairs. After complimenting him on his gaudy attire, she helps him on with his coat. Upon finding she does not have a car, he suggests that she call a taxi for him. Consulting her pocketbook, she decides that they'll walk.

Entering the dance after she has paid his admission, he announces that he is retiring to the powder room. Meanwhile the "femme-not-so-fatale" is scurrying around trying to pass him off on a few other girls. Returning, she finds the devastatingly handsome creature quite prepared to make his grand entrance into the ballroom.

After the dance she discovers that he is ravenously hungry. Paying for the Dagwood, milkshake, (malted, yet), and banana split this human hog has consumed, she is relieved to know that he is finally ready to go home.

While walking him home, she is flipping around in her mind the pros and cons of whether or not she should kiss him good-night. She is uncertain as to whether or not he will think it proper and permit it.

Crest fallen, after being refused in her attempt to kiss him goodnight (he wanted to be sure that she meant it), she proceeds to go down to the hangout to discuss with the other girls how they "made out."

Hock-putto—look out for flying kumquat seeds. Everyone seemed to be eating the little fruits last week with a result that since no one knew where to throw the seeds they ended up flying all over the place. Our thanks go to Carl Bloor and Bob Funk who supplied the refreshments.

Frosh: "Do you ever get homesick?"

Second Frosh: "Yes, that's why I left."

Visiting us last week was a former Salem stude of a few years back who now resides in Kent, Ohio. Remember Gay Hyatt?.. Gay says its nice to see all her old friends again.

A Tip For All The Girls

Girls, to this give heed:

In controlling men

If you don't succeed,

Cry, cry, again.

Judge: "Who was driving when you collided with the car?"

Bill Kelly: "None of us. We were all in the back seat."

A waiter came up to the man with his dog and pointed to the sign on the wall that read "No dogs." The dog owner looked up and in an indignant tone replied, "Who's smoking?"

Mr. Guiler: "Where was the Declaration of Independence signed?"

Anna Schaffer (after silence): "At the bottom."

In Brief... Silly Spectators Present Feature Cage Attraction

Varsity S

President Jerry Ball presided when the Varsity S met recently in room 209. A dance was planned for April 4. The club decided to purchase jackets with the club emblems. After the business meeting the club played basketball in the gym.

Art Club

The reorganization of the Art club has begun under the supervision of Joseph P. Stadlander, art instructor. At the first meeting, which was held on Jan. 18, nominations for club officers were made by a committee. It was decided that voting for the officers be done at the next meeting.

French Club

A program committee was chosen by the French club to plan the programs for the rest of the year. On this committee are Margaret Alexander, who is chairman, Johanna Kieffer and Marlene Schmidt.

French bingo was played by the members, and Marlene Schmidt won first prize, which was a pastel hand towel.

Biology Club

At a recent meeting of the Biology club, Joseph Stadlander, art teacher, showed the students a drawing of a cat skull.

Dissection of a cat will be the subject for their next meeting. Plans were made to take a trip to the Cleveland and Pittsburgh museums.

By Curtice Loop

I settled myself on a cloud-soft bench in the high school gym and prepared for an evening of basketball. On my right—two teen-age girls talking about clothes and boys. On my left—three teen-age boys talking about cars and girls. Behind me—a teen-age couple talking about love. In front of me—three or four boys and girls talking about almost anything but basketball. The game begins with a rousing cheer.

"Helloooooo-----
Salem says hello!"

Partially deafened, I prepare to watch the game when my attention is distracted by the girls beside me.

"Isn't number 15 a dreeeeam! Who does he go steady with?"

"Some drip who doesn't deserve him. Look at the dress on that girl over there. I wouldn't be seen dead in it."

"Isn't that awful! Some people have no taste, whatsoever."

A spectacular left handed shot goes unnoticed as the boys on my left begin.

"Did you see the flashy rod that cat came in?"

"Yeah! It was real George! I'm gonna see if I can get a 1918 Ford and sharp it up."

"Look at that dame!"

"I'm thinking the same thing you are, but twice as fast!"

Then the student cheering section differs slightly with a referee's decision, "Boooooo!"

"He needs glasses!"

"Can't see beyond the end of his nose!"

After voicing their opinions in this modified form, they return to their conversations.

Now the couple behind me attracts my attention as they whisper sweet nothings.

"Your hair looks nice tonight."

"I like that shirt."

"I'm in heaven when I'm with you."

A double foul shot meets with lukewarm applause as my attention is attracted to the bunch in front of me who are discussing teachers.

"She always gives the longest assignments. I waste a whole study hall on her assignments alone."

"I like her. She knows what she's talking about."

"I'll bet she has a crush on one of the men teachers. She's always out in the hall talking to one of them."

The final whistle blows and as the crowd fights, squirms, and shoves its way out of the gym, I hear one ardent basketball fan ask, "Who won?"

The assembly was a movie entitled "Northward to Nome." It pictured scenes of gold mining and the Alaskan Highway.

The 7th and 8th grade science classes witnessed a movie entitled, "Air Masses and Fronts."

The tax stamp contest for the week was won by 7D with $666, and 8C was second with $277.50. The six-week's period was won so far by 7D with $1,840.

City officials, the mayor, city service director, and fire chief presented a program relative to the explosive sweaters.

Infant Classmates Identified by Studes

Would you recognize some of your friends if you saw their photographs that were taken ten or twelve years ago?

Recently Miss Martha McCready's home room, 201 held a baby contest. Each student brought a picture of himself that was taken a number of years ago, and Miss McCready posted them on cardboard in the room. The students tried to see how many of their classmates they could identify. A prize was given to Rosemarie Celin for naming eight out of twenty-four.

Girard Cagers
Defeat Locals

By Charles Dan

Completely outplayed by Girard for the last three quarters the Quakers absorbed their fifth loss, 55 to 33. Girard, after once taking the lead, was never headed. Half-way through the first quarter, the Quakers took a 10 to 9 lead but a non-scoring spell and a hot streak by Girard, left the score 11 to 10 at the end of the first quarter in favor of the Indians.

Ben Roelen and Ed Votaw collected Salem's only points in the second quarter; a total of three, while Girard continued their scoring, racking up 11 markers.

At the beginning of the game Salem controlled the backboards, but as the game progressed Girard took over the rebounding chores. Time after time the Indians broke through the Quaker's defense to score from under the basket.

As the second half opened the deficit was increased to 15 points, but this margin was lessened as the Cabasmen began to hit the hoop. At the end of the third quarter the Indians led 36 to 22 and caged 19 insurance points in the fourth quarter.

The big gun for Salem was Junior Ed Votaw with 14 points on six goals and two fouls. Walt Pavlick and Ken Vaughn hit for 12 points each for Girard. Pavlick got 12 on five goals and 22 fouls and Vaughn meshed four goals and four fouls.

OUCH! DEPARTMENT

That hurt! The Salem-Girard game last week revealed a few things that are very painful and may cause some trouble the rest of the season.

The most obvious weakness was never more apparent than last week; lack of rebounding skill. Girard was the tallest team the locals have played all year; also the roughest. It's said that most of their basketball team were also football players.

The combination of height and out-roughing under the boards was too hard to overcome. It wasn't dirty, just hard, clean play and good basketball. They out-positioned, out-jumped, out-reached, and out-fought us all the way down the line.

Of course, there were a few other things that didn't help; sloppy defensive play, poor shooting, bad ball-handling. The outside men would let Indians drive right past them, preferring to turn and watch them move in for easy baskets, the meager 11 field goals out of 50 shots was one of the worst efforts of the year and the locals gave the ball up several times without getting a single crack at the hoop because of erratic throwing.

This was our worst all-around game of the year as the excellent following of Salem fans at the affair will attest. Obviously, it just wasn't our night. Girard certainly is not 22 points better than we are, (they even lost to Warren whom we beat) but the indication is, if we ever meet another team similar to Girard, we'll have trouble.

BIG ONES DEPARTMENT

This week is probably the most important single week of the entire season. The locals tangled with Youngstown Rayen last Tuesday and—what did you say was the name of the team we play tonight?

Between these two teams, they handed last years great outfit the only defeats they tasted all year. Rayen sank the Columbus-bound Quaker tournament ship while the Potters dished out the only two regular season setbacks. So, in addition to everything else, this will be "revenge week."

Tonight is the "must" game, the game Cabas has been pointing for all year. He has even gone so far as to have blue jerseys with "Potters" on them for the second team to wear so the boys will get used to East Liverpool uniforms.

Bill Breliah will have faced the two tallest men he's had all year this week. Rayen's 6'4" Cal Douglas and the Potters 6'6½" Bob Moore. It will be interesting to note how big Bill stands up against them. A lot of Salem's hopes will have depended upon how well he holds these two and vice-versa.

IT'LL BE TOUGH DEPARTMENT

Today being the end of the semester is very symbolic for the Quakers as far as this big week is concerned. Rayen's big Cal Douglas is graduating at mid-year and if we played them after today, he would be ineligible. He just made it by a little under a week.

These may be omens about tonight's contest and maybe not. But no matter how you look at it, it's going to be a good game. The Cabasmen will play much better ball than at Girard. They're due to bounce back, they're at home, they've been pointing for this one and they'll be sky-high for it, and they will have a slight height advantage with three of Liverpool's starters under 6 feet.

In order to win tonight, it will take everything the locals have, some luck, plus one other thing. In order for the Quakers to win tonight, it will take the whole-hearted support of every single member of the student body! Everyone, without exception, will have to back the team to the hilt. They're representing all of you. Let's get behind them all the way, let's raise the roof tonight with the cheering! If you don't yell at any other game, by all means, yell tonight! YOU can do it, YOU can boost the Salem Quakers on to victory!!!

Reserve Cagers Bow
To Girard Indians

The Salem Reserves lost their fourth game last Friday night as they were beaten by the Girard Reserves, 43 to 26.

The Reserves got off to a bad start in the opening quarter when they fell behind 11 to 5 as the Indians kept on increasing their lead throughout the game. The half ended with the Indians in the lead 23 to 11.

The Reserves were outscored in every quarter as the Indian Reserves went in to pad their lead and at the end of three periods led 33 to 19 and the fourth period ended with the home team winning 43 to 26.

Jerry Mountz and Jack Gottschling managed six points apiece for the Quakers while Stan Hocking was high for Girard with 11 markers. The Reserves now hold a record of five wins against six losses.
