Salem Students Enter The "Real World"

Salem High School Vocational Business Education — Administrative Secretary II class is joining the business community during Intensive Office Education Work Week this week (May 7-11, 1990). There are nine students enrolled in the program and they are working at various job sites during this week. Students will observe and perform any office tasks that employers feel put meaning to classroom lessons learned.

Students and their assigned job sites for the week are as follows:

Kathi Borrelli — Lyle Printing and Publishing, Inc.

Danielle Copestick — Hunt Valve
Laura Davidson — Salem Racquet and Health Club

Joyce Fitzpatrick — Solartec, Inc.
Angel Jennings — Eljer Plumbingware

Sylvia McFarland — Salem Community Hospital

Nici Simmons — American Standard

Tracy Stoddard — Salem Senior High School

Lisa Taylor — The Salem News

Mrs. Linda Schneider, teacher, feels this week is a very worthwhile learning activity for the students. Students get an actual taste of working a full day in an office environment, and learn that one must follow the procedures for the type of organization in which they are working. Area employers also look forward to the week as they are given an opportunity to preview the skills, attitudes, and work habits of potential employees.

The Administrative Secretary Vocational Program is a two-year program designed to prepare students for employment in office occupation. Students learn the basic skills of typewriting, calculating, accounting, word processing, filing, and office procedures. In addition, students are introduced to computer applications such as word processing, database, and spreadsheets. Employers, parents, or community residents interested in learning more about the program or work week activities are invited to contact Mrs. Schneider at the high school (332-8905).

Student Teaching Proves Beneficial for Howell

by Julie Hippely

For the last ten weeks there has been a new face in room 222. Her name is Mrs. Howell, and she has been the student teacher for Mr. Zimmerman in his U.S. and World History classes. Recently, I spoke with Mrs. Howell, about the time she spent

Q. Have you enjoyed your stay here at SHS?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you intend to do after graduation?

A. I have applied for various teaching positions in the area.

Q. What grade level do you prefer to teach?

A. I prefer high school.

Q. What are you qualified to teach?

A. I majored in Social Studies, so I am qualified to teach History, Psychology, Sociology, and government classes.

I would like to thank Mrs. Howell for her cooperation and time, and wish her the best of luck in her teaching career.

Ten Minutes?

by Shane Morrison

For the remainder of the year students will be permitted to socialize outside in the last ten minutes of their lunch period. Students have to use the north gymnasium doors to exit and enter for this privilege.

Behavior and expectations of the students that use this privilege are:

1. Once you leave the cafeteria area, you must go directly outside the north gymnasium doors. This area will be the only exit and entrance used.

2. Outside we will not tolerate inappropriate behavior (e.g., yelling to person(s) in the building, running, tossing or throwing any type of objects, going to a vehicle on school property, foods and drinks are also prohibited).

Note: Failure to follow behavioral expectations will result in normal disciplinary procedures.

Dan Catlos was teacher for a day for Mrs. Schwartz, as they make their way towards her class.

Short and Lunch Policy

by Hugh Brunet

Students will be permitted to wear shorts in August, September, and May with the following restrictions:

- No gym shorts.
- No cut-offs.
- No short-shorts.
- No bike shorts or pants.

The final decision for any questionable shorts will reside with the Principal or Assistant. Students who wear improper shorts will be sent home to change.

The lunch policy will be the following this year:

The students are allowed to go outside the building in the circle in front of the gym during the last ten minutes of the lunch period.

Choir Takes 2nd at Busch Gardens

by Rene Nollier

The concert choir visited many different attractions in Virginia over the weekend of March 19 — 22. While they were there, they competed with three other mixed choirs at Bruton High School. The choir found out the results at a ceremony at Busch Gardens the same day. Salem received an excellent rating in the mixed choir category. Salem finished in second, 1.25 points away from first. Everyone was very disappointed that they were so close to first place, but they were very pleased with their performance. The two judges that judged the competition had good comments about Salem's performance.

There were 120 students and 14 chaperones that went on the trip. The choir took three chartered bus that took about 12 hours to get to Williamsburg, Virginia. The trip was short but every minute was used. The choir left Thursday night at 12:00 and traveled the night. On Friday morning they visited Jamestown Memorial Park and Yorktown Memorial Park. Friday night they went out to eat and went to the mall. Saturday they sang at the competition and spent the rest of the day at Busch Gardens until 9:30 and then they went back to the motel. Sunday, the last day there, they went to Colonial Williamsburg in the morning and spent the rest of the day on the bus traveling home. The choir arrived back at home about 3:00 A.M. The trip will be remembered by all of the choir students.

Voices

Up In Smoke

by Dan Brothers

I was wading around the kiddie pool with my shower cap and inflatable "wingies" when I noticed an advertisement in a magazine. It had a muscular, square-jawed macho man kayaking over a waterfall with a hang-glider strapped to his back. Below it read "TASTE THE ADVENTURE." Jeepers, I thought, maybe if I started smoking, I can "TASTE THE ADVENTURE."

I dragged my little bro, Andy, into the local Dairy Mart to choose a brand to start with.

"I can't believe I'm a party to this outrage."

C'mon, it's like picking out candy! "Why do you want to start, anyway?"

Two billion people smoke, they can't all be dinks, can they?

"I can't believe it, I'm outta here."

Ooo, sez here this can 'cause fetal damage in pregnant women,' not for me!

So I chose my brand, and now came the dreaded First Puff. After several unsuccessful first attempts, I succeeded in drawing in the first taste. Did it feel like being a cowboy riding a wild stallion? Did it feel like sky-diving naked out of an airplane? Actually, the term "bazooka barfing" comes to mind, but I shalln't elaborate.

"So you started. Are you cool yet?" Yeagh, it's pretty funky putting flaming objects in my mouth.

"Cripes, you stink." Actually, I think I kinda smell like Humphrey Bogart.

"Bogart? He's been dead for twenty years!"

Exactly.

I was in the computer lab one night trying to crank out another editorial when this gorgeous, sexy woman walked up to me. She asked me if I worked for the personals department in the newspaper. She could have crammed a bowling ball in my nose and I wouldn't notice, she was that hot. All I could do was gawk, drop my cigarette from my mouth and meekly apply 'yes.'

"Excellent," she said, "here's my ad: Beudacious amazon seeks love slave. Must be a male, dark hair, dark eyes, under six foot, glasses a real turn on. Preferred job is a slightly demented editorialist..."

Non smoker?

"Non smoker." Okay, maybe smoking ain't so cool. Girls don't find it sexy, it bothers and irritates those around me to no end, animals make fun of me, George Bush called me a wimp, what could be next?

CRASH

Someone threw a brick through my window! What a surprise, there is a note attached to it. Andy, what does it say!?

"It's Mrs. Coy, she revoked your library card."

That does it, I'ma quitting!

You know what comes next, WITHDRAWAL. Let's just say the only thing that calmed me down was Andy with a football helmet and a baseball bat, and 37 hours of "Leave it to Beaver" in a row.

After 37 hours of "Ward, the Beaver burned down the Dairy Queen again," and "Well dear, I'll have a talk with him," you'll do anything to make it stop.

Expectations

by Matt Schramm

Often times in a relationship man and a woman, or a boy and a girl expect different things from each other. In many cases these expectations differ greatly. For example, a female usually takes the mushy route of love and romance. The male on the other hand is more masculine and usually believes in the fact that the girl only has to be good looking and have a nice body. But hey, looks aren't everything! YA RIGHT. The female is usually the one looking for a lasting relationship, while the male sticks with the macho attitude. The female tends to get into the event a little more seriously. What they have to understand is that they are not going to get married, but simply be with the person for awhile. Although some serious relationships do arise from a high school love affair. When interviewing the males and females of the high school, I found that their expectations differ tremendously. Here are a few of the replies.

The question was what do you expect from a girl in a relationship?

Mike Cranmer: Take me out to eat a lot.

John Maniscalco: Cook and clean good.

Brian Faulkner: Do whatever I say.

Todd Stout: Obey my every command.

Justin Smith: Give me money and clean my room.

Dave Rhoads: Kiss my feet.

Matt Kilgore: Lick the spaces between my toes and be there for me to hit her.

Mr. Mucci: A mutual understanding, compromise, and a real good time.

Scott Hasson: Pay for everything I want, and do whatever I say.

Females:

Sis Rosta: To love me and no one else.

Karena Apicella: To be nice and polite and treat me right.

Heather Cranmer: Honesty, love and lots of fun.

Darby Jeffries: Honesty and trust.

Allyson Kilmer: Honesty and trustworthiness.

Linda Thomas: Love and devotion.

Mrs. Esposito: Sincerity and sense of humor.

Sara Eckstein: Loyalty, friendship, and reliability.

Mary Rottenborn: Good haircut.

Mrs. Hayes: Lots of money, non drinker, and absolute honesty.

In conclusion, I feel that it has been expressed in fine fashion that males and females expectations do differ slightly. You can choose your point of view, but I feel the ladies need to lighten up a little.

selected as the top exhibits in the state of Ohio. The students' works will be on display for some time at the State Office Tower in Columbus. Regional competition for Mahoning, Trumbull, and Columbiana Counties was held at Salem High School in the cafeteria. Salem High School's art department made an impressive showing due to the large amount of entries that made it to regional competition. Congratulations to the winners and good luck in their art careers!

How Was That Done?

by June Hippely

Did you every wonder how cosmetics originated? Both men and women have used cosmetics for thousands of years. The ancient Egyptians, Romans, and Greeks used them for protection against the hot, dry climate, religious reasons and for decoration. They used perfumes, and anointing oils as early as 4000 B.C. Powdered minerals were used to make hair dyes and eye makeup.

By 1100 A.D., the use of makeup had spread to Western Europe, and Africa. The early Africans used them for war, or magical ceremonies. The Indians in North America also used cosmetics made with animal fat, to keep protection from the cold and insects.

However, by the early 1900s, people only used basic types of makeup such as rouge, and face powder. In the 1930s the demand for makeup grew, mostly because of the widespread advertising, and promotion.

Hey Dudes! It's The Turtles

by Larry Zagotti

Michaelangelo, Donatello, Raphael, and Leonardo. Four cartoon and movie heroes with the desire for pizza and, if they were real, enough money to buy whatever they wanted. And now these green "dudes" get to strut their stuff in their own movie called, you guessed it, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles."

The movie has already hit the top 5 movies in the country and has grossed over $18 million in the few weeks it's been released. I haven't seen the movie yet, but I plan to when it comes to the cinema. As far as the movie goes, if you like the cartoon version of the green wonders, the movie should be even better. The actors that wear the latex costumes had better be well conditioned or they will find a new way to diet that doesn't cost them any money. The humidity in those costumes has to be unbelievable. Jim Henson, probably the modern "master of puppets," adds his expertise to what should be one of the best movies I've seen in quite a while. The turtles follow the classic good vs. evil story. The bad guys: Shredder, the leader, Beebop and Rocksteady, Leatherhead, Crang, the Rat King and others introduced in the cartoon. The good guys: the four turtles master Splinter, April O'Neil, Irma, and anyone else to help them. I won't be collecting the action figures or anything, but this is the most clever idea to hit the country in some time. It's about time that Hollywood made a movie where someone wasn't getting their head chopped off. My personal favorite turtle, though, is Michaelangelo, the one and only "dude". We have one thing in common. We both think that pizza is the greatest food ever thought of.

Most adults think that the turtles are one big waste of time: Me, being the great pizza lover that I am, think that Michaelangelo and company will rule the Hollywood scene more than Roseanne Barr and all her chubbiness. These turtles make Spiderman look like a daddy-longlegs. If it wasn't for the turtles, Hollywood would keep making claw-your-eye-out, fall asleep movies like Driving Miss Daisy, or if they come out with it, Rocky Part 26: HE FINALLY RETIRES! As you can tell, I like the turtles and I hope that pizza wins out as the world's favorite food.

Greetings from Purgatory

by Dan Brothers

Imagine black rolling clouds coming toward you, and the light it pushed before it had that deep syrup quality its gets before a really serious thunderstorm.

You gaze up through tear-reddened eyes at a tall hooded figure in a black robe.

DANIEL BROTHERS? it said. The voice sounded as hollow as a cave, like something dripping out of a coffin.

Uh...yes?

I HAVE COME FOR YOU. I AM THE BRINGER OF DEATH. I HAVE COME TO RELIEVE YOU OF THE TERRIBLE BURDEN OF LIVING. KNOW ME. FEAR ME. GREAT MEN TREMBLE AT MY COMING. I BRING DISEASE, WANT, DECAY.

Oh, shut up.

SORRY, UNION RULES, said the Grim Reaper, politely, his empty sockets staring down at me. Despite rumor, the Reaper isn't cruel — merely terribly, terribly good at his job.

Dying wasn't even my fault, you know. Some drunk smashed into me. Happens quite often, I hear.

I KNOW. AND I MUST SAY YOU PEOPLE ARE GIVING ME QUITE A BUSY DAY.

How do you manage to be in so many places at one time?

GOOD ORGANIZATION.

It's just not fair!

WHAT ARE YOU TRYING TO SAY, MAN?

I mean I was fast, free, and young! Thought I was close to invincible, handle any situation I got into. I was in the prime of my life! The some jerk had one too many and ripped all that away from me. Nobody's safe. It can happen to anybody.

THERE IS NO HOPE FOR THE FUTURE, said Grim.

Then what does it contain, then?

ME.

Beside you, I mean!

The Reaper gave a puzzled look, I'M SORRY?

Why do people try to better themselves when some idiot can take it all away? What makes life worthwhile?

The Grim Reaper thought about it.

CATS, it said eventually, CATS ARE NICE.

The sad thing is people will still drink and drive until Hades freezes over.

NO. I AM NOT ALLOWED TO ENLIGHTEN YOU, EVEN BY DEFAULT, ABOUT CURRENT TEMPERATURES IN THE NEXT WORLD.

How much longer until I cross into the final frontier?

Grim pulled a large hourglass from the secret recesses of his robe. The two bulbs were enclosed in bars of black and gold, the sand was nearly all in the bottom one.

OH, ABOUT NINE SECONDS.

To think I'm about to pass on when I had so much going for me. That thousands of other teens like me had our dreams shatter around us just from chance, by a stupid--

I SHOULD HURRY UP IF I WERE YOU...

--forget it, it's useless. People will still drive drunk, shed needless blood, and drink again.

READY?

Guess so. Good-bye everybody.

DEAR ARCHIBALD

by Michele Kaminski

Dear Archibald,

I have a new boyfriend and he says he likes me a lot. I feel he still likes his old girlfriend and I don't feel I compare to her. She is so pretty and she seems perfect. Why did they break up and why does he now like me?

Sincerely,

Nothing Compares to Me

Dear Nothing Compares to Me,

Obviously they had their problems just like every other couple. I'm sure you're just as pretty as she is and you may even have a better personality. Don't spend your time wondering why they broke up, spend your time enjoying his company.

Dear Archibald,

Lately I've been dating this guy that my parents don't approve of. I really like him but because he doesn't meet their standards I'm no longer allowed to date him. Their opinion of "Mr. Right" is a clean cut, well educated guy. Is someone's appearance really that important? If I love him and he treats me well shouldn't they approve of him. They should be concerned about my happiness, not what he looks like — right?

Sincerely,

Parents Don't Approve

Dear Parents Don't Approve,

I understand your parents wanting the best for you but they should get to know him before they judge him on his appearance. He may not look the best but he may be the nicest guy around. How he treats you is the most important thing!

Dear Archibald,

A few months ago I dated a guy who I'm interested in again. We had our tough times but through it all I managed to continue to like him. We have discussed getting back together but because of his last girlfriend he has chosen to remain on his own for awhile. What should I do?

Sincerely,

Lost in Love

Dear Lost in Love,

You should give him his space, because it sounds like your old love is nursing some pretty serious wounds. Once someone has been hurt it takes quite awhile for them to get over it and be able to trust again. As I said before, give him some time. If you really care about him, care enough not to rush him into anything. You both once cared about each other before, so more than likely, it can happen again. As much as you may like him though, don't wait around forever. You may be overlooking someone that is better for you.

Dear Archibald

I feel really guilty about something I recently did, I attended the Prom with the first guy who asked me. The only reason I accepted was simply because I didn't think I could find another date. Once we got to the Prom I totally ignored him and instead of doing something with him afterwards I went to a party with another guy. I realize what I did was rude but what should I do? He now knows everything.

Sincerely,

Tease

Dear Tease,

What you did was rude and uncalled for. You should apologize to him and hopefully he will forgive you. I hope you learned a lesson from all of this!

The Buzzard

by Jason Scott

This is a student profile done on the student by the name of Burton Beam Sutter IV. Most of you know him as Buzzy or Buzz. All year long you have heard about people who have excelled in academics and in athletics but you never heard about Buzzy. Buzzy was never great at school or in sports. He had a short career in baseball back in little league, but he never pursued it. The feature staff of the Quaker decided to do a student profile of Buzz so all of us could get to know him a little better. Here are a few facts about Buzzy.

Buzzy was more than happy to conduct this interview and all the information is straight from Buzz's mouth himself. Buzzy's favorite food is veal parmesan and spaghetti. He's a real Italian kind of guy. He likes to listen to Luke Skywalker, 2 Live Crew, and Van Halen. His favorite pastimes are talking on the phone, listening to music, and going to the beach. His favorite jeans are Levis Buttonfly 501 Blues. He likes the Boston Celtics, who recently set an NBA playoff record by scoring 157 points, the Cleveland Browns, and the Cleveland Indians. His favorite shoes are Reebok, even though he walks around school in his Adidas. This summer Buzzy plans on partying, working, and meeting nice women. Buzzy plans on going into the service for about 2 years after he graduates, and then eventually he plans on becoming a highway patrolman.

I asked Miss Yereb about Buzzy's progress so far this year. She said that her class was a difficult class for a senior to take since Buzzy didn't have any previous experience in art. Buzzy has come a long way in the class. He is a nice kid and is a good, average student. Buzzy is also a very slow and methodical worker. Mrs. Cozza stated that Buzzy is a very ornery kid but he is doing very well with his marriages. He is married to Angel Jennings in the class and they get along great.

The journalism class wishes Buzzy all the best in future years to come and they hope he has a very fulfilling life.

Terri Makes Successful Adjustment

by Krista Blankenship

For most of us, moving to a new school is a very frightening and difficult experience. Leaving friends and familiar places can be very disappointing. We may have trouble fitting in at our new school. However, we can make new friends and "fit in" at our new school. Senior Terri Downard is living proof that you can be successful at a new school. It is Terri's adjustment ability that impressed the feature department to choose her for the student profile. I found Terri interesting and I'm sure you will too. Let's get to know Terri a little better. Shall we begin?...

Terri, like all of us, has a birthday; hers is July 13. And like a majority of us, she has siblings — a sister, Amber and a brother, Michael; both are younger than Terri. She loves animals and has two pets, a Rottweiler and a cat. Well enough of the background material. Let's get to the good stuff!

Terri began her education in the East Liverpool Schools. As a student at East Liverpool, she was a good student and was involved in extracurricular activities such as cheerleading and softball. While at East Liverpool, she was chosen as a participant for the University of Illinois Longitudinal Study, which she still participates in at Salem. Despite Terri's success and involvement at East Liverpool, she had to move to Salem during her junior year.

When Terri moved to Salem, she noticed some distinct differences in the schools. Although classes offered here were different, "the major difference is the people." Despite Terri's ability to make friends, she finds it "difficult to make good friends since I haven't lived here long." One significant factor was the cliques. "I found there were a lot of cliques and that was a big change for me. There weren't many of these in East Liverpool, so it was hard to be accepted here." At a new school, it is often difficult keeping up with other students. This is usually because of the immense differences in school systems. "I found keeping up with other students when I first started here to be difficult; East Liverpool seemed to be behind in some things, but ahead in others." Aside from her academic schedule, Terri still has time to become involved in extracurricular activities at Salem. She is a member of T.A.C.T. and National Art Honor Society. She helps as an office aide and is a former member of the journalism staff of our dear "Quaker".

Terri reported that she enjoys most of her classes. Her two favorites were journalism, especially working on the newspaper, and a new class she currently has — business law. The business law class recently visited the County Jail; Terri found the trip very interesting. On a very different level, Terri expresses a great interest and ability in visual art. She is a graphics student of Miss Yereb. Miss Yereb informed me that graphics is an advanced art course, and Terri entered graphics with little background. Despite the difficulty of the course, Terri is doing well. Miss Yereb

The Great Summer Break Dilemma

by Jay Calderhead

The temperature right now, is a little warmer than being comfortable. The splashing of a people swimming at pools and beaches can almost be heard. Tanned bodies can be seen practically everywhere a person goes. Already, I can begin to feel the agony of having to visit 'interesting' places with the family. Summer jobs are tapping at almost everybody's wallet.

Sigh... Occasionally, a pleasant breeze drift in through the window and carries the sweet smell of summer with it. It is easy to become extremely relaxed. It is almost too easy. Zzzzzz.

"WAKE UP! So tell me Mr. X." says a teacher, "What is the answer that you arrived at?"

"Sorry sir. I didn't hear the question." You vainly try your best to get out of this scrape. "Could you please repeat the question?"

"What is the cube root of the trigonometric value of a fifty-three degree angle multiplied by the year the Chinese invented fireworks? Tell me. Dooya know? Dooya know? Dooya know?"

"Hmmm. Aaah. Ooooh. Just let me regard my notes for a minute. I'll have the answer in a jiffy." Frantically you rummage through a pile of junk papers trying to look busy. Meanwhile, you're wondering why he had to pick you.

"Everybody's waiting on you, Mr. X. Heh heh heh."

Stealthily, you turn to the person sitting next to you and quickly ask him what the answer is. He just looks back at you, shrugs, and tells you that he has no idea what the answer is.

"Surely, you must have an answer by now, Mr. X."

"Yes, I do. The answer is FIVE." With a glare the teacher says, "Wrong."

The scene which has just been witnessed happens all too often. Just thinking about the coming of summer can drive some people into a dreamy, free from responsibility, unproductive state of mind. This syndrome should be avoided at all costs until a person's work is finished or they are fed up with a situation and need a tension breaker.

commented, "She has perseverance!"

Not only does Terri have perseverance in art, but in other areas as well. In addition to her school activities, Terri has a part-time job as an employee of Kentucky Fried Chicken. When asked if she enjoyed her job, she commented, "I enjoy any job working with people and helping them."

Now that we know what Terri does during the week, how does she spend her free time? When she's not working, she spends her free time with friends, and, when he gets back from the Air Force, she'll be spending time again with her boyfriend, Mark Capps. So what does she do when she goes out? "We go to movies or out to eat usually."

Like most of us, Terri has a few favorites. She loves lasagna, "eyes" the color peach, and displays athletics through softball. Academically, her interest is in business law.

Just what is Terri planning to do with "life after graduation"? It's really quite interesting. She has been accepted and plans to attend Kent State University for 2 years and then transfer to the "fun in the sun" by attending Florida State, majoring in fashion merchandising.

So, do you now feel you know Terri just a little bit better? Great! There's one more face that when you recognize it, you can say "Hi!" I'd like to extend a warm "thank-you" to Terri for her willing participation in this interview. "The Quaker" staff, along with myself, wishes Terri the best of luck now and in the future.

The girls track team can't seem to lose. On Saturday, April 28th they won the 15th annual F. E. Cope Relays. Four first place events were taken by the girls track team. Including a record setting performance in the 3200 relay. Amie Erath, Theresa Kaine, Tricia Wilms, and Justine Moraine pulled together and ran the 3200 relay in 10:61.1. They got 72 points. It was good enough for first and a six point victory over Cleveland Collinwood. Head coach Nancy Miller was very pleased with the team's efforts. At the 87th annual Columbiana County Track and Field Meet at Reid Stadium the girls got first place. This is a two day event. On Tuesday, the 24th, the girls won 11 of the 12 events. Eight athletes scored 10 points apiece. The girls scored 163 points total compared to second place, East Palestine with 60. This is the girls' third consecutive championship. On Tuesday, May 1st the girls did it again, destroying Boardman 95-33. When asked about her team's streak right now, Mrs. Miller stated, "We are doing everything right and as long as we keep it up we will be a team to reckon with." The girls have set several records in their season so far. They will continue to if they stay healthy and injury free.

Trying To Make An Impact

by Jeff Cecil

The boys baseball season has had its ups and its downs this season. So far they are at a winning percentage; with wins, and losses. The baseball team has run into some tough teams, suffering losses to Glenoak, Howland, Girard and other competitive teams. This past Monday the Quakers started tournament play against Beaver Local, defeating them to The team is adapting to their new field, and playing some good teams in the process. The baseball team players had some comments on this years season.

Andy Zamerelli — Pretty average, not to good. We make to many errors and are not hitting very good.

Brad Stephens — If we play up to our potential we could be a very good team, but most of the time we lack concentration that makes us make mental mistakes.

Robbie Roberts — A few breaks here and there, we could have a good season.

Beau Hendricks — Started out slow, but came on strong. Hopefully we will be ready come tournament time.

George Bigham — I think that some games we play to our full potential and other games we slack off.

The baseball team still has three more games after tournament action so hopefully their skills will be sharp enough to earn them a winning record.

Tennis Team Looking Strong

by Heather Dye

The tennis team has improved their record by recently beating Warren Western Reserve and Niles. This now makes them 8-7.

Playing first singles is Hugh Brunet. He defeated his Warren opponent 6-0, 6-1. Against Niles he won with scores of 6-0, 6-4.

Kirk Mager has the role of second doubles player and is proving to be a fine tennis player. Mager won his match against Warren 6-1, 6-2, and beat Niles 6-0, 6-3.

Andy Brothers played third singles against Warren and won 6-1, 6-0. In his match against Niles he was teamed up with Brian Hadcock and together they beat them with scores of 6-3, 4-6, 7-6.

Mike Rosta is another player who switches from being third singles to first doubles. While playing singles against Niles he won 6-2, 6-4. During the Warren match he played with Hadcock and they won 7-5, 6-2.

The tennis team will be traveling to Millcreek Park in Boardman to play in sectionals, This starts on May 11th at 8:30. When Mager was asked how he felt the team was doing he said, "The team is doing very well, we've had some hard matches, but we're getting confidence going into sectionals." They had won 3 in a row as of May 10, beating Hubbard, Harding, and West Branch.

The Quaker staff would like to wish all the boys playing in sectionals good luck.

Vanessa Sicilia completes a double play for the Quaker softball team.

Fastpitch Catches On

by Jeff Cecil

The girls softball season is coming to an end, with only a few games left to play. The girls record is 5 wins and 11 losses. The ladies are trying to make do with the lack of experience that they have. They have been doing good in the field, but are still working on there batting. Hitting fastpitch is a totally different concept, and it takes much more concentration. Salem is trying to develop a pitcher so that in the years to come, they will have an offensive arsenal to go along with their "iron clad" defense. The girls feel that they are receiving great support from the coaches and that they are doing everything that they can to help them to have a future in the sport of fastpitch softball. The softball team is not on a trial basis, meaning that it is a concrete sport and that the Quakers will have a softball team just like football, wrestling or any other current sport. The fans seem to also enjoy the sport, seeing that there is excellent support at the games.
