Not leaving just moving

BY KARYNA LOPEZ

Miss Carmello doesn't like the term "retirement." She prefers "transition" or "change of scenery." "Retirement" seems like such a final word, and Miss Carmello points out that she's just moving down to the middle school.

The junior high will now be known as a middle school, due to changes and policies that will be in effect next year. Miss Carmello felt that it was a time of change for her too, and decided to take over the job of guidance counselor from Mr. Zeigler, who retired.

Miss Carmello has been having mixed feelings about her move to the junior high. On one hand, she is looking forward to working with a younger group and helping them prepare for new experiences that they will be having. On the other hand, she will miss the high school students. Miss Carmello is looking forward to her change, but it is always hard to leave what is familiar to you.

Miss Carmello has been at the high school for fourteen years as a guidance counselor. However, she is not unfamiliar with the middle school; she taught there for five years as a home economics teacher and has counseled at a middle school in Cincinnati.

For the future, she would like Salem High to continue moving forward, and says to all the great teachers that they should continue the atmosphere of "working together for the betterment of all kids."

Miss Carmello also decided to "will" some of her favorite things to a few faculty members: to Mr. Washinko, she wills her organizational skills; to Mrs. Jeckavitch and Mrs. Johnson, she wills the white plastic chairs in the boiler room; finally, she wills her most prized possession to Mr. Viencek- her prized flamingo collection.

Guidance counselors usually have some words of advice to make you feel better, and Miss Carmello has this to say to next year's seniors and underclassmen: "Don't sweat the small stuff. Enjoy each other while you can. Don't spend so much time on the negative, but focus on the positive, and bind together as a class."

To the graduating seniors, her parting words are expressed in a quote she deemed appropriate: "I have come to the conclusion that it is attitude that determines how you handle and survive life."

Parting words to Miss Carmello

Mrs. Kress- We'll miss you in the teacher's lunchroom!

Mrs. D. Johnson- I hope our high school doesn't fall apart without you. You've kept us all together with your lovely, calming, humorous, and "whole personality." Love ya!

Mrs. Schneider- Roses are red, Violets are blue, We at the high school, Will surely miss you! Good luck on your new endeavor at the junior high.

Mr. Trough- Bye

Ms. Lockney- Enjoy your self at the junior high!

Mrs. Hays- We will all miss your smile next year, your greetings in the morning and your great clothes! The guidance department and the whole staff will definitely have an empty spot next year. You are a tough act to follow.

Mrs. Dohar- Practice sessions for the SHS swim team. Fund raiser calendar idea. Famous Quote- "It really doesn't matter."

Mrs. Dye- We will certainly miss you. P.S. Can I have your swimming cap?

Mehno wins award

BY DENISE PRICE

On Wednesday, May 9 Mr. Mehno ran the halls to take over class for Miss Stewart. He had no idea what to teach, why she had to leave, or how long he would be teaching that day. Little did he know that this was only a guise. At the end of third period, a group of people stormed the classroom to answer Mr. Mehno's questions: he had been nominated by Amber Thorne, Mrs. Brooks, and

Mrs. Queen for the Channel 21 Class Act Teacher Award.

As the group from the television entered the classroom, Mr.

Mehno's first thought was, "Do all of these people have a visitor's pass?" When they awarded him with balloons and a crystal apple, Mr.

Mehno was speechless. "I think that's the first time in my life I was at a loss of words. I was completely surprised."
