Forty earn awards, Krogness honored

Forty Salem Senior High School seniors received scholarships totaling $108,500 June 6 at the annual Salem High School Alumni Association banquet at Timberlanes.

The Association gave its top $6,000 awards to a trio of 4.0 grade students, Whitney Browne, Theresa Moyer and Steven Rosar.

Charles Gibbs ('43), scholarship committee treasurer, said that since 1908 the association has given scholarships totaling $826,150 to 587 students. The organization's assets now total $1,525,000, he said, but it welcomes all contributions because of constantly rising tuition costs.

Chris Cosgrove responded for the Class of 1987, thanked the association and presented it with a check for $300.

"Remember where it all started," urged Daniel E. Smith ('46), chairman of the scholarship committee, in distributing the scholarships to the recipients, "right here in Salem."

He gave three newly established vocational scholarships for the first time, a result of a suggestion and contributions by Cora May Reich Stone ('35) and her classmates.

Five Max Fisher athletic scholarships were presented by Dr. Gail Herron to outstanding SHS athletes.

The honor 50-year class of 1937 which earlier had given the association the largest class gift in history, $2,010, was represented by Robert L. Schwartz of New York City. He got a standing ovation after sharing his experiences at his 50-year anniversary reunion.

"I saw a subtle difference this time, a new affection and compassion our class members showed toward each other. I think the most important thing we learn in high school, we learn from each other. Your classmates help you find out who you are.

"I think at this reunion we started telling each other we care for each other," Schwartz said.

Mary Mercer Krogness ('56), Cleveland teacher-writer-speaker, the 30th person to be honored by the association as Outstanding Alumnus of the Year, spoke glowingly of her formative years in Salem.

"I want to implore the honored seniors with us tonight to stay alive by living fully," she said.

Mrs. Krogness said she was an average child who had the great good fortune of being nurtured, crediting her parents for that. She recalled her early school days under such teachers as Geneveve Dunn, Natalie Sharpnack and Lulu McCarthy, all of whom drew children out.

"As an elementary teacher, I have endeavored to engage my students in curiosity-piquing activities, making our classroom a beehive of

President's Message

By Joe Ciotti ('65)

A deep sense of pride and satisfaction. Those were the feelings we experienced as we watched 40 seniors, Salem High Class of 1987, receive $108,500 in academic, athletic and vocational scholarship awards. The four years of work and dedication put forth by these students — new alumni — exemplify the true character of today's youth. We take our hats off to them for a job well done.

Your alumni association now has an asset value of more than $1,500,000, but by no means did it begin with such a large base. The first scholarship was awarded in 1908 to Walter French in the staggering amount of $60. Three years later, Charles Burchfield, who became a famous artist, received $120.

Through the generosity of the late Leon H. Colley, Doris Tetlow ('22) and many others did the assets of the alumni association grow to the size they are today. With the annual contribution by Max Fisher ('26), your Salem High School Alumni Association is comparable to that of many small colleges. We must not fail to acknowledge the class and individual donations we have received over the last few years. You have our utmost thanks and gratitude. For you to donate to the alumni fund when you live out of town is a testimony of your loyalty to your alma mater.

I would also like to take the opportunity to thank all the members of the Alumni Association for making my first term as president an enjoyable and rewarding experience. The behind-the-scenes people are the ones who make or break the success of any organization. We are very fortunate to have people devoted to the association's ideals and so willing to give of their time to make it a successful endeavor.

Bob Dixon ('40) deserves a special mention for his work on the newsletter, which has been the single most important factor in our receiving individual contributions. Charles Gibbs ('43) and Robert McCulloch III ('69) deserve credit for an outstanding job of guiding the investing of alumni funds. Also, the selection of scholarship recipients by the Scholarship Committee, headed by Daniel E. Smith ('46), is one of the most difficult of decisions. The members have performed their duties with the utmost sensitivity and deliberation. I also want to applaud the Executive Committee for making the annual banquet a success.

It is very difficult for the Executive Committee to choose an Honored Alumnus of the year. We are limited to the level of success achieved by Salem alumni around the world by lack of information. If you feel an alumnus deserves such recognition, please drop us a line and we will investigate and consider the nomination.

Thank you for everything and, God willing, we will return next year to carry on the tradition of the Salem High School Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association is soliciting help in completing a project started last year. A bulletin board has been reserved for photos of all past honored alumni who have been selected annually since 1958.

Obtaining photos of these individuals has proven to be very difficult since some are deceased. Below is a list of those whose pictures are needed. Anyone having one, please forward it to the Alumni office. It will be reprinted and returned.

F.E. Cope ('25), Natalie Sharpnack ('01), W. Eugene Young ('27), Holland Cameron ('14), F.J. (Jack) Mullins ('35), Jay Hanna ('45), Jerry Miller ('49), Donald Getz ('52), Paul Corso ('24), Herbert J. Hansell ('43), Dale Leipper ('33), Joel E. Sharp ('14), Chester Smith ('16), Laura Mae Whinnery ('30), Lowell Fleischer ('55), Joseph Morris ('39), Max Fisher ('26), Gail Herron ('36), Joseph Hajcak ('54), Dorothy Pozniko Beam ('52), Richard Chessman ('43).

Where are they?

The Class of 1938, gearing up for its 50-year reunion in 1988, is trying to locate the following classmates:

Beatrice Garforth, Don Gibbons, Richard D. Jones, Harold London, Max Lutsch, George Nagy (Julius Nestor), Vera Sharp, Ethel French Rentfrom and Anna Mae Slaby.

Please write the Alumni office with any of their addresses.

activity and excitement," she said, "trying to create an environment that can free most of us to flourish."

She emphasized: "Receiving this award buoys me for new and exciting challenges and reminds me, too, that I, an average kid growing up in Salem, a small Ohio town filled with good people, have had the opportunity to develop my potential and share it with others."

Mrs. Krogness was presented with an engraved silver tray by Joe Ciotti ('65), association president.

Robert J. Dixon ('40), executive coordinator, gave a report on the activities of the Alumni office in Salem, urging all graduates to keep the office informed of their address changes. He said the office regularly contacts more than 9,000 SHS graduates.

Class of '37 celebrates golden year

Seventy-one members and 47 guests of the Class of 1937 gathered June 5 at the Saxon Country Club for their 50-year class reunion.

The 73rd graduation class at SHS enjoyed an informal program headed by Kenneth Shears, class president. The invocation was given by Paul Bailey of Lakeside, OH. Each class member was given a Quaker Lady plaque.

Robert J. Dixon, executive coordinator of the SHS Alumni Association, described the association's activities. The class presented the association with a check for $2,010, the largest class gift in history.

Chairperson Ellen West Tetlow awarded cash prizes in various categories to Theda Van Hovel Cook of Salem and Don Slagle of Fort Lauderdale, FL, who donated his prize back to the class. Sara Phillips Schuster of Salem won the blue and white (class colors) flower table arrangement because it was her 50th wedding anniversary.

A $50 bond was given in memory of Robert Lora by his sister, Mary Jane Lora Miller, to Margaret Fink Walker of Salem. The presentation was made by Jeanne Layden Cantwell.

Alice Vanek Russell of Salem recalled a number of items from 1937 Quaker weeklies, such as: Scholarship winners in 1937 were Jean McCarthy ($350) and Art Bahmiller ($200); basketball team, starring Kenny Shears, John Lutsch, Del Schaffer, Clay Raynes and Don Slagle, went to state tournament; football team won three, lost four, tied two; total class enrollment was 158; sundaes at Hainan's cost 15 cents, hamburgers 10 cents, milkshakes 10 cents; commencement speakers were Jane Metzger, Bob Schwartz, Jean McCarthy and Ken Shears; Metzger and McCarthy tied for top graduate honors, followed by Jean Kingsley, Loretta Greenisen; class gift was public address system for auditorium.

Jean Kingsley Singer of Willoughby gave a reading on "What It Was Like in 1937" and Bill Rice of Falls Church, VA, led the group in singing. Sherman Brantingham of Alliance gave the benediction.

Tentative plans were set for another reunion in three years.

Friday and Saturday the class held an open house at the Alumni Association headquarters. Acting as hostesses were committee members Ellen Tetlow, Alice Russell, Miriam Dow Bricker, Georgiana Chithea Costa, Jeanne Cantwell, Tillie Weber Mossey, Tillie Fleischer Youtz and Camille Charlton Malloy. Others on the committee were: Evelyn Hoch, Agnese Grimes Detwiler, Olga Zatko Panuska, Betty Martin Harris, Carroll Beck, Kenney Shears and Lowell Ewing.

The person traveling the longest distance to attend was Dick Davis of Glendora, CA. Class members attended from Ohio and 12 other states.

Reunion activities concluded with an informal breakfast at Timberlanes Sunday, attended by 37 people.

Alumni need rides 'back home'

We both graduated from SHS in 1921. Mary was probably one of the younger members of the class since she had completed high school in three years. Both now well into the 80's of life, we sometimes get to wondering how many of our classmates are still among the living and what has been happening to them.

The Historical Society of Oakwood, our Dayton suburb of residence, at its May Day meeting May 16 gave us recognition for the city as the oldest married couple living together, the longest time married and the longest time at the same address.

We are also wondering if any Salem alumnus is attending the U. of Dayton or Wright State U., has an automobile, and would appreciate extensive expense help for trips home. The State of Ohio takes a dim view of auto driving by its senior citizens, at least some. We have both had eye surgery.

We are very proud of being able to claim graduation from a high school with such a distinguished alumni organization. We boast about you at every chance.

We might mention that former basketball coach Herb Brown lives at 1173 Bournemouth Ct., Dayton, OH 45459.

I love getting these newsletters. They bring back a lot of memories. I love seeing where old classmates are and what people I know have accomplished.

Especially touching this time was "The Gathering." I look forward to the next issue.

You are doing a good job on (the newsletter). I am in the real estate and construction business in the "golf capital of the world." Tell any golf nuts to come on down and see me.

I sure don't hit the little white ball as well as I did the big one, and it is sitting on a tee.

The latest edition of your newsletter is just super! Of course I like the article about my brother, Joe, the best, but every other item is interesting. That photo of Joe is the best I have ever seen — it is so like him and with just the right expression which Joe wore many times. Thank you very much for all the time and effort you put on this article — you've done a great job.

The letter by Clair King is so sweet. How sad to know that he is now gone. I'd like to have written to him to say how much I enjoyed his memories of the band, etc.

I plan to write to Lowell Shallenberg to thank him for his letter. I am happy that a few still remember me and Wilbur and Supt. Alan. I'm glad, too, that Edwin Dawson's name was mentioned for he was a great supporter of all good things in Salem.

The Alumni Association is certainly doing great work with the scholarship program. Like Homer Asmus, I too received a scholarship in 1942 but did not get to use much of it as I entered the service in 1943 and stayed until 1973.

I am most appreciative of your honoring me as the distinguished alumna for 1987. What a memorable evening it was — what with the many exciting announcements of scholarships in excess of $100,000! How very impressive that the endowment fund exceeds a million and a half dollars. Other communities might profit from hearing your strategies for raising such an amount of money for deserving seniors.

The entire program was impressive — smooth and well organized; alive and exciting.

Congratulations on running a highly successful Alumni Association. I'm pleased, too, to have benefited from your generosity. The silver plate, an elegant piece, is displayed in our dining room.

I concur in the concept of the Class of 1935 to assist those who cannot afford a full college education but could be assisted in attending some of the very good local business colleges or specialized training schools. Many of those persons attending such schools are later in life able to secure college degrees. I would suggest that the scholarship committee entertain consideration of assistance in this area.

You are to be commended for the SHS newsletter. It is a great contribution to our Alumni Association. I especially appreciated your tribute to Joe Kelley.

Thank you for your acknowledgement of the items I sent in about the Salem High School around the turn of the century. I doubt if anyone would remember me as Jean. I was known almost entirely as "Red" in those days.

Coppock elected to directorship

Lt. Col. (Ret.) Richard M. Coppock ('56) has been elected a director of the Air Academy National Bank at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado.

Coppock, the son of Mrs. Guy L. Coppock of Salem, is executive director and treasurer of the Association of Graduates of the Academy. He is the first academy graduate to serve on the bank board.

Upon his retirement from the Air Force on Aug. 1, 1983, he was selected as the first civilian executive director of the association. He administers more than 30 bank and brokerage accounts for operations, endowments, scholarships, memorials and class treasuries. His current efforts include planning for the eventual construction of an association house and further expansion of membership and services.

Before retirement, Coppock served for four years as professor of aerospace studies and was Air Force ROTC detachment commander at Bowling Green State University.

He completed his career as deputy commandant of the Ohio Valley Area Air Force ROTC in Columbus.

John Cabas inducted into Ohio coaches Hall of Fame

John Cabas, who coached basketball at Salem High from 1950-51 through 1971-72, was honored as one of nine coaches to be inducted into the Ohio High School Basketball Coaches Association Hall of Fame in Canton last June. It was the inaugural induction for the Hall.

Cabas coached then Class B Columbiana to a state runnerup finish in 1945 and a state championship in 1947 and Salem to state runnerup in Class A in 1959. His overall coaching record was 432 wins, 192 losses in 33 years. He retired as SHS assistant principal in 1986 and still resides in Salem.

The former Salem coach was presented by Coach Rick Brook of Sebring, who pointed out that Cabas had led the coaches association to many advances during his tenure as its president in 1964-66.

Cabas said: "I feel truly humble by this experience. Coaching was my profession and I stayed in it as long as I could. I am very happy to be selected in this first group because it is the greatest honor when you are singled out by your peers. I am particularly pleased to see some of my former players here in front of me."

He referred to Lou Slaby, Dave Hunter, George Spack, Ted Thorne, Rick Theiss, Jim Meissner, Rick Gregg, Dr. Henry Maxim, Rich Berryman (Columbiana) and former reporter Joe Kupka. Slaby flew in from New Jersey, Hunter from California for the event.

Former players were among those who attended John Cabas' induction in the coaches' hall of fame. From left are Dave Hunter ('60) of California, John's brother Brigadier General Victor N. Cabas of California, Cabas, present SHS Coach George Spack ('68) and Lou Slaby ('59) of New Jersey. Slaby and Hunter were two of the mainstays on the crack 1959 state runnerup team.

Class of '38 forms 'strike force'

This is the third consecutive issue of the Alumni newsletter that has been labeled by the Class of 1938 "strike force." This group happily volunteered to assist in the big mailing process in 1986 and keeps coming back.

More than 9,000 mailing labels have to be affixed to newsletter copies and '38 has a great time doing it. It is more of a social outing for class members than a work period.

Included in the group are: Ollie Mae Durham Schaeffer, Dorothy Middleton Bonsall, Betty Albright Hanzlick, George Adams, Bob Hinton, Harold Culler, Charles Trotter, Mary Bohr, Ray Coppock, Betty Walton, Shirley Mae Davidson and Mike Oana.

Also assisting in the mailing have been President Joe Ciotti ('65), Vice President Barbara J. Beery Lippiatt ('55) and past president Dorothy Day Corso ('34).

Leipper fits 'never a senior' slot

James Kenneth Leipper has to be in the "unusual" category among Salem High graduates.

"I went through Salem High, Ohio State University and the Naval Academy — and was never a senior," he says.

He is listed in both the Classes of 1936 and 1937 because he was graduated in three years. He went on to OSU for five quarters and was then appointed to Annapolis as a member of the Class of 1942.

When President Roosevelt gave England 50 destroyers, he accelerated the graduation of all midshipmen and the Class of '42 was graduated in December, 1941. They were needed to man the destroyers.

Known as Kenneth in high school, he is now "Jim" to his Vicksburg, Miss., neighbors.

Jim was one of the Class of '37 members who descended on Salem in June for their 50-year reunion.

Memorable 1929 team was powerhouse

(The following story originally appeared in the Salem News issue of October 19, 1949.)

BY BOB DIXON

One of the brightest chapters in the history of Salem High football was written in 1929 — just 20 years ago this season. In that memorable year the Salem Quakers romped through a tough 11-game schedule in great fashion.

The team went undefeated and untied.

On the twentieth anniversary of that undefeated season there has been much talk and reminiscing about the powerhouse team — one of two SHS squads that managed the undefeated trick. The other perfect year was 1926.

In going over the history of the '29 outfit, another fact leaps out of the records. That season marked the inaugural of night football in the state of Ohio — in its birthplace, Salem.

The long-remembered '29 team was coached by Floyd W. Stone in his second year as local mentor. He served as head coach here from 1928 through 1933, meeting with most of his success in his first four years. He was assisted by William McCord.

On Sept. 1, 1929, Stone took his squad of 48 gridders to the school's football camp at Dunn Eden lake in preparation for a gruelling 11-game slate. He had a big job ahead of him for local fans were still enthralled over the success of the 1928 team, which had won eight and dropped only two games.

The Dunn Eden camp was a hot one — literally. A Salem News story of that year reveals that the players sweltered in unseasonable fall heat. "Augie Corso, a huge tackle candidate, was forced to leave camp when prostrated by the heat," one story said.

Stone and his aides hurdled that inconvenience, however, and worked hard to get the team ready for the opener with Leetonia. There was much consternation among the coaching staff and fans regarding the "almost impossible task" of finding capable replacements for the graduates from the previous year's team.

Patsy Konnerth, Ed Sidinger, Jimmy Scullion and Bob Van Blaricom were a few that Stone believed would be sorely missed. But Stone's 1929 aggregation looked promising and was loaded with underclassmen.

The opening game with Leetonia was considered a breather (one year later Salem won the game, 95-0) and there was not too much concern over the outcome.

The Quakers won the game, 40-0, with veteran back Glenn Whinnery showing the way with two touchdowns. Salem rolled up 22 first downs to Leetonia's four, outgaining their opponents 482 to 83 yards.

The second tilt of the year — with Akron West — was a different proposition. It was played in Akron and Coach Stone took only 15 players on the trip. The balance of the varsity squad stayed in Salem and played the West reserve team in a game at Reilly Stadium.

Although trailing, 12-7, at halftime, the Quakers came back strong in the last half to score a 19-12 victory over the Cowboys. Whinnery again tallied two touchdowns. The News story recounted that "Salem should have won by a more impressive score."

In the third tilt of the year, Cleveland Collinwood with the leftovers of a 1928 powerhouse team, came to town. Despite being outplayed most of the time and fumbling numerous scoring opportunities, Salem managed to win, 7-6, before 3,000 fans.

Sophomore Ed Beck, who was fast developing into one of Salem's all-time greats, caught a pass from Whinnery and ran 25 yards for a third quarter touchdown behind beautiful blocking by Sammy Drakulich.

Salem was donated the extra point when two Collinwood linemen were detected being offside on the play," the News said.

It was a tight squeak.

About this time many Salem fans made a trek to New Castle, Pa., to watch a night football game. As far as is known, New Castle had the first high school lighting plant in the country — certainly in the East. The novelty went over so well that the local fans who watched the nocturnal tilt were deeply impressed. So, too, was the Salem board of education.

That group immediately contacted an electrical firm and arranged to have a lighting system installed at Reilly field. Inside of two weeks the unit was installed and plans were made for the fourth game of the year, against Warren, to be played under the lights.

Excitement over the prospect was tremendous. It was the first night football game to be played by an Ohio high school (two of the state's colleges had lights) and fans from miles around planned to watch the game.

The lighting system consisted of 14 floodlights, mounted on 10 poles. It was said that they were so bright that a newspaper could be read in the grandstand, if anyone wanted to do such a thing.

Temporary bleachers were erected in anticipation of the huge crowd expected. Policemen, firemen and school janitors were put on duty for the night of the game to "maintain order."

Ticket lines stretched 40 yards the night of the Warren game and when the gates were opened the fans rushed through and made for the unreserved seats in the concrete stands.

The officials, like the players, had never participated in a night football game, but found that they could see the ball "amazingly well" under the lights.

On the night of Oct. 11, 1929, the Salem Red and Black scored a 6-0 win over Warren. The touchdown came on a pass play from Whinnery to Bill Smith, covering 52 yards. Beck averaged 47 yards for each of eight punts. One of his long boots traveled 65 yards.

The following week, Wellsville was to play here on Saturday, but local school officials attempted to get them to play on Friday night. Wellsville refused, not trusting the new idea, and the game was played on Saturday afternoon.

The locals won the game, 32-6, with Beck and Whinnery each tallying twice.

In the Lisbon game, Salem put on its "worst show of the year." Although winning, 20-0, the Quakers were unimpressive and didn't look as though they were going to go undefeated. By this time Salem fans were openly rooting for that perfect season.

A battle of mud and water was staged at Reilly stadium on Nov. 1 against the Youngstown South gridders. The Quakers staged a great comeback and won a bruising battle, 14-12.

An 80-yard touchdown run by a South back was the outstanding play of the game.

Salem's first score was made on a five-yard plunge by Beck, who added the extra point in the same manner.

The clincher came in the fourth quarter while Salem was trailing, 12-7. Whinnery heaved a 40-yard pass, caught by Smith, who carried to the three-yard stripe. Whinnery plunged over for the TD and Drakulich bolted through the line for the 14th point.

Coach Stone said he believed the crucial pass play worked because Smith had been sent in for Fullback Johnny French and Smith was not yet muddled. He was able to grab the ball, a feat which would have been very difficult with slippery hands.

Later a 40-yard touchdown run by Beck was called back on an offside penalty.

A large crowd sat through a heavy rain to watch the game.

Salem's eighth consecutive win came over Youngstown East on a 15-0 count. Beck tallied both touchdowns on short plunges and Len Yates, end, was credited with a safety. Beck punted 11 times in the tilt and averaged 55 yards. One kick flew 78 yards.

Great play by Whinnery and End Skip Greenisen paced Salem to a 25-13 victory over New Philadelphia on the latter's gridiron. Whinnery completed eight of 14 passes for 163 yards, ran for 85 more and was a standout blocking and backing the line. A partially blocked New Philly pass by Greenisen knocked the ball into the arms of Tackle John Terry, who galloped 52 yards for a touchdown.

East Palestine came to Salem the following Saturday and gave the Quakers a rough afternoon. They did everything but score and so lost to the locals, 7-0. Statistically, the game was all in favor of the Bulldogs. They rolled up 232 yards to Salem's 144 and had 11 first downs to Salem's 10.

Drakulich plunged over in the first quarter to cap a 48-yard Quaker drive. Whinnery plunged for the extra point and the scoring ended for the day. The Quakers felt lucky to hold onto their lead. Palestine had a big line and was well coached.

THE BIG GOAL

The big goal — that undefeated season — was almost at hand. The only obstacle was Alliance, a team that was also gunning for an unbeaten year, with nine straight wins. They had waltzed through a heavier schedule than had Salem and were favored in the annual Thanksgiving Day clash.

Before 7,500 fans at Reilly stadium on a cold and snowy day,

Floyd Stone's team made history by trouncing the Aviators, 7-0, in an impressive victory.

A third quarter drive featuring Drakulich, Beck and Whinnery put the oval deep in Alliance territory. Whinnery plunged over for the score and Drakulich added the point on another smack into the line. Drakulich, the scrappy 129-pound Salem quarterback, played one of the greatest games of his career.

The Quakers rolled up 12 first downs against five and outgained Alliance 207 to 99 yards, and some said the score should have been 21-0.

The weather was so bad that 25 cars were ditched between Salem and Alliance, many fans arriving late for the game. After the Quaker victory "large masses of Salem fans marched through the downtown business district with the school band as it made its way through the crowds of automobiles, celebrating its team's great victory," according to the News.

Five members of the 1929 team were named to the first all-county team. Glenn Whinnery, captain, was the most valuable in the county. He scored 69 points.

Beck, who scored 50 points, was named to a halfback post and Yates drew one of the end positions. Augie Corso and Wilbur Webber were named to tackle and guard spots.

The Salem team won its fourth consecutive county title and with it the N.E.O. Big Ten title. It scored 192 points against 49 by opponents.

The 11 victories brought the 1928-29 record to 19 wins and two losses.

The team was toasted and banqueted by many organizations and presented with gold and silver footballs by the school.

The hysteria, excitement and general enthusiasm of the 1929 season is not likely to be duplicated again. It would, however, be interesting to see it all happen again with a new set of players — none of whom were even alive when Floyd Stone's crew made its mark in local grid history.

Alumni support their association

Since the publication of the Spring, 1987 issue of the Alumni newsletter, contributions from alumni totaling $8,300 have been received by the Scholarship Committee.

Below is a list of those who sent in contributions through August. Please advise if anyone has been overlooked.

Contributions totaling $5,593 were given to the Alumni Association by classes that held reunions in 1987.

Each class asked its members if they would care to contribute, pointing out that the Association had provided meeting rooms, address printouts and mailing labels for the reunion organizers.

The outpouring of checks was impressive. Here is a breakdown of the classes and their gifts:

New hand at helm

Dr. Burton D. Schoffman, 42, was hired in June as superintendent of schools by the Salem Board of Education, succeeding Robert Pond, who retired after serving since 1967.

Dr. Schoffman had been serving as superintendent of Clear Fork Valley Local School District (near Mansfield) since 1984. He was one of 36 to apply for the Salem post. The Salem board began its search in February.

One of the things that interested Dr. Schoffman in the Salem position, he said, was the prestigious alumni association. His starting salary is $48,000 per year. His wife, Cheryl, is an elementary principal in Richland County. They have two children, Kurt and Stacey, both in grade school.

Calendars available

Copies of the highly popular Salem Association for Gifted Education (SAGE) Salem calendars, featuring familiar present and historic local scenes in pen and ink drawings, are now available to the public. The artistic work was done by Atty. Sam Kirkland of Salem.

The calendars were first sold in 1984 and met with wide acceptance. The 1988 calendars may be ordered through Betsy Johnson, 2247 Southeast Blvd., Salem, OH 44460, phone (216) 337-8682. Cost is $5, plus $1 postage.

On wanted list: new addresses

The SHS Alumni Association urges its members to keep the office notified of all changes of address. Since the newsletter is mailed third class, it cannot be forwarded by the postal department.

When you send us your change of address (or your children's address changes), please indicate the class year since that helps speed up computer work.

Print if possible. Some handwriting is distinctive, but often hard to decipher.

Last July a number of zip code changes and additions were put into effect in the Miami and Tampa areas of Florida. We made the necessary changes in the addresses of our Florida-based graduates, but would like to hear from anyone whose zip code is not exactly correct on the address label on this newsletter.

Drop a card or note to us at 328 E. State St., Salem, OH 44460.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Zornick of W. 7th St. and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Moore of Kennedy Dr.

Path has detour

The path to success in the hotel business followed by Phil Campanelli ('77) was an unusual one that followed a detour to Japan, of all places.

Phil is the son of Connie Petrucci Campanelli ('47), who lives in San Luis Obispo, CA, where Phil was named general manager of the San Luis Bay Inn, a luxury resort, late last year.

A Salem native, Phil got a closeup view of the Route 14 restaurant operated by his grandparents, Tony and Sue Petrucci. He passed up his senior year at Salem High to accept a Rotary Club scholarship at age 16 and studied his final year in Japan. He was graduated from a private boys' high school in Nippon. He learned Japanese so well during his time overseas that upon his return he was hired to help teach English to Japanese students in California.

He took an internship program hotel work and was named assistant manager of the San Luis Bay Inn in 1981 and resident manager in 1981. He served as general manager of the inn from 1986 until this summer. Now he has a new job — and a better one. He has been named general manager of the 275-room Compri Hotel, now being constructed in El Segundo, CA.

"He has done very well," says proud mother Connie whose other son, Paul, lives in nearby Avila Beach, CA.

Help is at hand

Raymond L. Pierce ('48), a May visitor to the Alumni office, offered unique service to Salemites.

He is a retired Army lieutenant colonel and lives at 9615 Millbrook St., San Antonio, TX 78245 and works "right next to" Lackland Air Force Base where every Air Force enlistee is sent for basic training.

"If any Salem boys sent there encounter any problems, I stand ready to help if their parents contact me. It might help to know there is an ex-Salemite in the area. I will even look into it if the boy fails to write his parents."

His phone numbers are: (512) 674-6277 at home and (512) 925-5828 at work.
