Metal recycler to operate at Colfor site

By LARRY SHIELDS

Staff Writer

SALEM — R.D. Swindell Enterprises is converting the former Colfor Mfg. property into a full-service metal recycling operation with plans to lease manufacturing space across the street and placing the old Deming office building up for sale.

On Thursday, owner Rob Swindell, who purchased the property for $485,000, said he expected to have a full-service recycling plant running with 10 to 15 full-time employees in April.

There are five properties on East Perry Street and South Broadway Avenue intersection with a total of 181,761 square feet on the complex; 174,731 square feet of manufacturing and warehouse space and 7,030 square feet of office space.

"We're tearing down most of the buildings and taking out equipment," Swindell said of the of manufacturing space at 373 E. Perry St., known as Plant 1.

He said local commercial accounts were targeted for the recycling operation that will take non-ferrous metals (no iron) including copper, brass and aluminum for direct delivery to the mills.

He wanted to dispel a rumor that the company would re-enter the forging business, explaining his company signed a non-compete clause when it purchased the property from Colfor.

"We're not forging," he said.

Two other buildings, known as Plant 2 on S. Broadway Ave., will be leased for manufacturing and could have tenants signed up as early as next week, Swindell said, noting there are weekend meetings that could "hopefully lead to inking a deal next week."

The former Deming building and the all the acreage north to Aetna Street is for sale, Swindell said.

American Axle Manufacturing, the parent company of Colfor Mfg., closed the plant on Dec. 17, 2010 consolidating it with a plant in Malvern.

Snow, shovel, repeat: East Coast digs out over and over again

NEW YORK (AP) — Enough already. People across the Northeast wearily shoveled their sidewalks and dug out their cars — again — after getting clobbered by the latest in a seemingly never-ending string of snowstorms, this one an overachieving mess that packed more punch than anyone expected.

"I've lived in New York 70 years, and this year is the worst I remember," said Lenny Eitelberg, 77. "It's the continuity of it. It just keeps coming. Every week there's something new to be worried about. It's almost become comical."

In the Washington area, up to 7 inches of snow renewed memories of last year's "snowpocalypse" and created chaos when it hit the nation's capital at the height of the evening rush hour Wednesday, forcing commuters into treacherous, eight-hour drives home. Even the president got caught in traffic.

New Yorkers, keeping close watch on the cleanup after a post-Christmas blizzard paralyzed the city for days, had it a little easier this time. The heaviest snow arrived overnight, when there weren't many cars and buses around to get stuck.

The forecast had called for up to a foot of snow, but the storm brought far more than that. New York got 19 inches, Philadelphia 17. Boston got about a foot, as expected. Many schools closed for a second day Thursday. Airports ground to a halt, and nearly a half-million people lost power at some point.

Virginia Sforza, 61, was indignant as she shoveled her sidewalk in Pelham, outside New York City.

Ohio teachers' board votes to raise retirement age

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio public school teachers would pay a larger share of their retirement costs, work until they're older and see pension benefits cut under changes approved Thursday that aim to keep their primary pension fund solvent by saving $10.9 billion.

The State Teachers Retirement System board approved a host of changes to the benefit program that serves the bulk of the pension fund's 470,000 members. The changes must be approved by lawmakers and the governor.

Spokeswoman Laura Ecklar said the package marks the end of a two-year effort to find a way to keep the pension fund afloat for the long haul.

"The bottom line is, without changes, sometime in the future the fund wouldn't be able to pay benefits. And, difficult as it was to develop this plan and recommend reducing benefits, it is necessary to do," Ecklar said. "And it still provides a reasonable, reliable pension for our retirees."

The plan calls for increasing minimum age and service requirements necessary to qualify for retirement benefits and requiring teachers to pay 13 percent of their salaries

Bogart lawyer: Times up for charges

By MARY ANN GREIER

Staff Writer

LISBON — Charles Bogart Jr.'s defense attorney argued Thursday that the second indictment against his client should be dismissed because time has run out for bringing the case to trial.

"My client's right to due process was clearly violated," James Hartford said during a hearing in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court before Judge Scott Washam.

Hartford filed a motion for discharge last week in an attempt to eliminate the latest indictment which charges Bogart for allegedly possessing property belonging to William Young, a man found dead in August.

Bogart, 35, of 37509 Hazel Run Road, Hammondsville, had been named as a person of interest in the death investigation by Columbiana County Prosecutor Robert Heron, who also said during an arraignment hearing in September that Young was found shot to death in the woods behind his home on Spring Valley Road in Wayne Township.

He said Bogart had been caught driving Young's pickup and that Young's wallet was found on Bogart, and other items belonging to Young were found

City of champions

PITTSBURGH — The Steel City can make a strong case for a new nickname.

The Steelers have won more Super Bowls than any team in the NFL, and are one victory away from hoisting the Vince Lombardi Trophy a seventh time. The Penguins have reached the Stanley Cup finals twice in the last three seasons. Pitt has developed into a Top 5 college basketball program.

They have beautiful new stadiums, state-of-the-art practice facilities, and a supportive fan base, too.

Perhaps the City of Champions is a more fitting moniker for this blue-collar, gritty town.

"It's a great label," Steelers wide receiver Antwaan Randle El said. "I would have to say it's accurate to a certain degree because of Steelers football, Pitt basketball and you can't discount hockey. They've always had big-time players and all of those players always come back."

Bostonians have a legit argument. The Patriots, Red Sox and Celtics have combined to win six championships since 2002. That's wicked good.

But in this what-have-you-done-for-me-lately society, Pittsburgh is the hot city and the 'Stillers' are the hot team.

Ben Roethlisberger and the Steelers are on the verge of winning their third Super Bowl in six seasons. They'll face the Green Bay Packers in Dallas on Feb. 6.

Sidney Crosby and the Penguins could make it two Stanley Cup titles in three years later this spring.

If the woeful Pirates could only go back to the days of Clemente or Stargell or Bonds, then Pittsburgh would be the clear-cut choice.

Then again, baseball is irrelevant here these days. Football is No. 1 among the sports-crazed folks, and the Steelers — as Jay-Z would say — run this town.

"The fans here don't just love football, they understand football," nose tackle Chris Hoke said. "They know the

Big names post low scores at Torrey Pines

Daly, Mickelson three off lead, Tiger five back after first round of Farmers Insurance Open

SAN DIEGO — Tiger Woods began his new season with no bogeys, no birdies on the par 5s and no drama.

Looking for a new start after a disastrous year on and off the golf course, Woods felt little stress Thursday in the Farmers Insurance Open with a 3-under 69 on the North Course that left him five shots behind South Korean rookie Sung-hoon Kang.

If the setting was familiar for Woods, so was his middle-of-the-pack position. In four of his six wins at this tournament, he has been at least five shots behind after the opening round.

"I'm happy with the way I played, absolutely," Woods said. "I could have been a lot better if I took care of the par 5s a little bit more, but obviously, I didn't do that."

Kang, a 24-year-old rookie, finished with back-to-back birdies on the North Course for an 8-under 64, giving him a one-shot lead over fellow rookie Chris Kirk, Alex Prugh and Rickie Fowler.

Phil Mickelson shot 32 on the back nine for a 5-under 67 to match the best score on the tougher South Course, which hosted the 2008 U.S. Open that Woods won in a playoff. Also at 67 on the South was John Daly, whose last win came in 2004 at this tournament. He is the last player to win at Torrey Pines when Woods was in the field.

"This place means a lot to me," Daly said. "The top golfers play here every year. That says something."

Woods no longer is No. 1 — he has slipped to No. 3 in the world ranking and can't improve on that this week — but he has not played the public course he has practically owned since that U.S. Open in 2008. He missed the next year because of knee surgery, and last year while in a Mississippi addiction clinic after being caught in extramarital affairs.

"Welcome back to Torrey," was a popular phrase from the gallery throughout his round,

Pirates ready to turn the corner

Pirate caravan stops at Butler Art in Youngstown

By VINCE TADDEI
Special to the Salem News

YOUNGSTOWN — For the Pittsburgh Pirates, history can be tricky.

Certainly the organization wants to embrace the team's rich heritage, but everyone from the top down is eager to put the club's 18-consecutive losing seasons in the rear-view window.

On Thursday, the Pirates 2011 Winter Caravan stopped at The Butler Institute of American Art to connect with fans, and share their vision of what future summers can be like at PNC Park.

"What ever happened in history is history ... we're here to win — it's that simple," Pirates pitching coach Ray Searage said. "I just can't go out there and tell these guys to try and finish .500 — it doesn't make sense. We have the talent to be successful here, so it's just a matter of being aggressive, executing, and playing to win."

For the team's fifth-year general manager, Neal Huntington, those goals aren't unrealistic based on what he's seen on the field.

"In August and September, we really began to see a lot of improvement from the team as a whole, and many of the young players individually," Huntington said. "We're seeing a lot of the work pay off here, and now I think we're at a place now where we need to execute consistently to take it to the next level."

The Pirates went 13-17 in August, and while they showed signs of becoming a competitive club, they still needed a leader. In November, Huntington and the organization selected Clint Hurdle to manage the club as it makes the transition from rebuilding to winning.

"Clint was the best man for this job. He's a great communicator, he's passionate, and he'll provide the leadership we need," Huntington said. "He's taken over young teams in the past, and turned them into winners, so that was an important factor in our decision-making process."

HANOVERTON — Revenge belonged to South Range.

After suffering a 23-point loss to United just 11 days ago, the Raiders responded by defeating the Eagles, 52-43, Thursday.

"It was kind of like a revenge win for us. Everyone was really pumped up for it. We knew we could have got it the first game but we just had a bad game," said senior Raider Kenzie Pfeifer.

In that loss over a week ago the Raiders fell by 23 points, 61-38.

"We worked so hard at practice since we lost to them and we just told them that it's going to be an opportunity to go down there and show them how good we can be," South Range coach Wayne Johnson said. "We're a pretty good basketball team, and they're a great basketball team. I think we played up to their level today."

The win also evened the two teams at the top of the Inter-Tri County League upper tier, as both currently sit with 9-1 league records. Overall South Range is 14-2, while United is 12-4.

As the two teams wind down their seasons, the road gets no easier, as each game is now a must win.

"We win this we have a little cushion, there's no cushion now," United coach Roger Zeigler said.

All-Star starters named

By BRIAN MAHONEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK — LeBron James and Dwyane Wade of the Miami Heat are headed to the NBA All-Star game together, and Derrick Rose gave the Chicago Bulls their first starter since Michael Jordan.

They will be joined in the Eastern Conference starting lineup by Amare Stoudemire, who will become the first New York Knicks player to start in nearly two decades, and Orlando center Dwight Howard, the leading vote-getter in the conference with nearly 2.1 million.

The Lakers' Kobe Bryant earned his 13th straight All-

Star selection for the Feb. 20 game at his home arena. He is one shy of the record held by Jerry West, Shaquille O'Neal and Karl Malone.

Bryant, a three-time MVP of the All-Star game, was the overall leading vote-getter with more than 2.3 million.

The other starters announced Thursday were Hornets guard Chris Paul, forwards Kevin Durant of Oklahoma City and Carmelo Anthony of Denver, and Houston center Yao Ming, who is injured and will be replaced on the roster by a player of commissioner David Stern's choosing.

Grand jury indicts Wellsville man on burglary charge

By MARY ANN GREIER

Staff Writer

LISBON — The Columbiana County grand jury issued an open indictment for aggravated burglary against a Wellsville man who injured an elderly woman during a home invasion last month.

David Wright Jr., 25, of 1766 Clark Ave., was charged with the first-degree felony count for allegedly trespassing in the home on Broadway Avenue in Wellsville on Dec. 28. Court documents alleged he pushed the 75-year-old resident, resulting in her suffering a broken rib, sprained wrist and bruised side.

The charge carries a possible penalty of three to 10 years in prison if he's convicted.

The grand jury issued 14 open indictments and two secret indictments Wednesday after meeting for two days.

Other open indictments included:

- Ralph Lee, 33, of 513 Williams Ave., East Liverpool, failure to verify residence address, first-degree felony. Documents alleged Lee, a registered sex offender due to a prior rape conviction from 1996, failed to verify in November where he was living as required with the sheriff's office.

- Randy Arndt, 23, of 1527 Commerce St., Wellsville, two counts receiving stolen property, fifth-degree felony. Documents alleged he used two stolen checks on the account of Karen Madden on Oct. 12.

- Michael Motton, 20, of Ambridge, Pa., illegal possession of a firearm in a liquor permit premises, third-degree felony. Documents alleged he possessed a Glock .45-caliber handgun while in the Platinum Bar in Wellsville on Nov. 21.

- Corey Rabquer, 22, of 139 N. Middle St., Columbiana, burglary, second-degree felony. Documents alleged he trespassed in the home of an elderly resident on Middle Street in Columbiana and stole $550 on Nov. 29.

- Robert McLaughlin, 50, of 312 Market St., East Liverpool, failure to verify residence address and failure to notify sheriff of address change, both third-degree felonies. Documents alleged he wasn't living at the residence where he had registered in East Liverpool and failed to verify his address in November as required since he's a registered sex offender for a previous charge of gross sexual imposition.

- Lamar Coles, 19, of Charleston, W.Va., illegal possession of a firearm in a liquor permit premises, third-degree felony. Documents alleged Coles possessed a 9mm High-point handgun inside the Platinum Bar in Wellsville on Dec. 19.

- Matthew Graham, 33, of 35307 Salmar Drive, Salem, breaking and entering, fifth-degree felony. Documents alleged Graham broke into the Suburban Market in Salem on Dec. 26 and stole several packs of cigarettes.

- Lisa Wright, 29, of 324 E. Clark St., East Palestine, burglary, second-degree felony. Documents alleged she trespassed in the home of James Browne in East Palestine on Dec. 19 and removed a jug containing $200 worth of change and a bag containing change.

- James Conrad, 33, of 1601 Montrose St., East Liverpool, domestic violence, fifth-degree felony. Documents alleged he tried to harm a woman he knows at an East Liverpool residence on Dec. 16.

- Johnathan Russell, 18, of 633 Avondale St., East Liverpool, receiving stolen property, fourth-degree felony. Documents alleged Russell was in possession of a stolen Ford Tempo belonging to Amanda Kiger on Dec. 31.

- Charles Whippo, 27, of 2447 Neeld Road, East Palestine, and Jeremy Townsend, 28, of 46185 Hatcher Road, New Waterford, each one count of burglary, second-degree felony. Documents alleged Whippo and Townsend trespassed in the New Waterford home of Ronald Costanzo on Dec. 31 and stole a television.

Man to serve 6 years in cop beating

HAMILTON (AP) — A southwest Ohio man has been sentenced to six years in prison for beating a police officer so severely that prosecutors said he required facial reconstruction surgery. The Hamilton JournalNews reports that a judge on Thursday sentenced 46-year-old Eric German after convicting him of impersonating an officer and failure to stop after an accident. A Butler County jury had found the Middletown man guilty of felonious assault and obstructing official business. The judge acquitted him on one charge of failure to comply with a police order. Authorities say German beat Middletown officer James Deaton after a July traffic stop captured on a cruiser's dashboard camera.

1992 — Brett Hull becomes the second player in NHL history to score 50 goals in 50 games more than once in a career when the St. Louis Blues tie the Los Angeles Kings 3-3.
2001 — Baltimore's brazen defense backs up its bragging by beating the New York Giants 34-7 in the Super Bowl. The Ravens intercept Kerry Collins four times, the final pick returned 49 yards for a touchdown by Duane Starks.
2006 — Amelie Mauresmo wins her first Grand Slam singles title when Justine Henin-Hardenne retires in the second set of their Australian Open final because of stomach pain. Mauresmo led 6-1, 2-0.
2007 — Roger Federer captures his 10th Grand Slam singles title without dropping a set at the Australian Open, beating Fernando Gonzalez 7-6 (2), 6-4, 6-4. The last man to go through a major without dropping a set was Bjorn Borg at the 1980 French Open. Federer is the first man in the Open era to twice win three straight majors and ties Jack Crawford's 73-year-old record by reaching seven consecutive finals in majors.

RANGE FROM 1B

Raiders switched from playing a man defense to a zone defense, a move that threw United off its game.
“They played a zone and we didn’t handle it well the first quarter and then I think we got a little apprehensive. We weren’t attacking, we were throwing bad passes, we didn’t rebound on the backside, and we didn’t get back on defense,” Zeigler said. “That’s a credit to them. They were moving, they were aggressive.”
The Eagles struggled to find its normal offensive power, shooting only 27 percent from the field. South Range was also able to steal the ball 14 times.
“We played our basketball game. We played great defense, we boxed out, we played the best, most fundamental basketball I’ve ever seen this team do,” Johnson said.
The teams did swap the lead five times during the first quarter but a quick two point bucket by Lexi Naples to open the second quarter gave the Raiders the lead for good. United kept it close entering halftime down only seven, 26-19.

“I didn’t leave myself any putts,” Woods said. “I kept leaving myself above the hole. And I didn’t take advantage of the par 5s.”
The North Course is not the pushover it has been in past years because of some new length, and not just in distance. Along with being some 90 yards longer, the rough was allowed to grow and is thicker than the grass found on the Giving the Raiders that first half edge was Pfeifer, who scored 10 of her team high 18 points during the opening half. Pfeifer also had five steals.

“My team got me going I can’t do anything with out my team,” Pfeifer said.
Other leaders for South Range were Sam Smith with 11 points and Emily Seman with eight rebounds.
The third quarter is where South Range did the most damage, holding the Eagles to only seven points, while scoring 16. All seven of those points came from Ruth Prosko, who led United with 11 points, 10 rebounds, and six blocks. Crystal Richards scored 10 points for United.
With 1:34 left in the third quarter, South Range held a 20 point lead, 42-22. Eventually the Eagles were able to knock the lead down to eight, on a bucket by Mackenzie Gatchel, but it was too little too late.
“I’m proud of the ladies though because we were down 20 and we got it back down to eight with the ball but, we threw it away again. Then we gave them a bucket because we didn’t box out and rebound,” Zeigler said.
Both teams play Monday with United traveling to Columbiana and South Range

elected again in 1997 but couldn’t play because of a strained left groin.
In a rarity in All-Star balloting, the fans nailed it in the East. Stoudemire, James and Wade all rank among the league’s top five in scoring, and Rose and Howard are right there with them as MVP candidates.
Wade was the MVP of last year’s game in Dallas Cowboys Stadium and hit the winning shot in the East’s 2006 victory in Houston.
“It’s an honor,” Wade said of his election. “It’s not as big a deal as it was when I first came in. It was like my heart was racing the day of the final vote hoping I get in. It continues to be an honor to get the same respect from the fans.”

The West vote was flawed by the election of Yao, who despite missing nearly the entire season continues to earn a huge vote total from his native China. West coach Gregg Popovich of San Antonio Spurs will pick one of his reserves to start.
Paul is the first player in Hornets franchise history to twice be voted a starter.

bling and we appreciate it,” James said before the Heat faced the New York Knicks.
Rose beat out Celtics guard Rajon Rondo to earn his first All-Star start and the first by a Chicago player since Jordan started the 1998 game.
“I think it’s recognition for the job he’s done this year,” Bulls coach Tom Thibodeau said. “All-Star games, those are great. He certainly earned it, but ... I’m more concerned with what he’s done for our team. And he’s done a lot for the team.”
Fans voted for the starters, but the reserves will be chosen by the head coaches in their respective conferences. Their votes must be submitted to the league office by next Tuesday, and the announcement will come next Thursday night.

Stoudemire has revitalized the Knicks since arriving from Phoenix in the summer.
He beat out perennial starter Kevin Garnett for the second forward spot and is just the fifth Knicks player to be selected a starter since fans began voting in 1974-75. Patrick Ewing was the last one to start in 1992, though he was PGA Tour event, he has trailed by seven, six, five and two shots after the opening round and went on to win them all.

Even so, scoring on the North was lower, and Woods will need to pick up the pace on the South Course. He is playing the first two days with Anthony Kim and Rocco Mediate, whom Woods defeated in that epic U.S. Open playoff at Torrey Pines.
Mediate was chattering away, as usual, but there wasn’t much conversation about that 19-hole playoff from 2008.
“We didn’t play that golf course,” Woods said.
Kim was among those at 68, a tribute to his great scrambling. He chipped in from 40 feet for par, holed a 30-foot par putt from the fringe and made two other par saves outside 10 feet.

The top of the leaderboard was filled with youth, starting with Kang, who earned his card through Q-school. Fowler was voted the PGA Tour rookie of the year in 2010 on a ballot that included Prugh. Kirk finished second on the Nationwide Tour last year, when he hurt his wrist and couldn’t play the last two events.
On the South Course, rookies Fabian Gomez of Argentina and Keegan Bradley were among those at 67.
Kang had the recipe on the North Course that Woods couldn’t find.
“This course, all the par 5s are reachable, so I really tried to keep to the fairways and it worked really well,” Kang said. “And I really had a good chance on the par 5s. That’s why I played very well today.”

He played them in 4 under, including an eagle on No. 14 when he chipped in from 25 feet.
Daly has special memories of Torrey from his playoff win in 2004, but he wasn’t in such a great mood a year ago. He missed the cut after rounds of 79-71, and told a Golf Channel television crew that was taping a documentary that he was done. Some media outlets construed that to mean he was retiring, although Daly had made similar comments right after a bad performance.
“You get frustrated,” Daly said.
That wasn’t the case Thursday, a spectacular day of sunshine along the Pacific coast.

DEATHS

Joseph Hauser

LOWELLVILLE — Joseph Hauser, 87, of Lowellville, died Wednesday morning at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Boardman.

Mr. Hauser, affectionately known as Joe, was born Dec. 13, 1923, in Detroit, Mich., a son of Valentine and Alice (Fitzpatrick) Hauser. He was raised in Detroit and moved to Union Lake, with his first wife, Betty Jean, to raise their family. In 1972 he moved to Canfield and then to Lowellville in 1983.

Joe was a 1942 graduate of St. Mary's Redford High School where he was a kicker for the high school football team and was nicknamed "Joe the Toe." After the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Joe enlisted in the United States Navy and served for four years on a DEI 175 Penwell Destroyer Escort.

Upon returning from the war, Joe attended Lawrence Tech School for Mechanical and Electrical Engineering. He was an engineer for Ditzler Paint in Detroit, Mich., and later for Pittsburgh Plate Glass. In 1972 he transferred to Canfield to work for United Service Company in Youngstown.

Joe was a former member of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Canfield and a member of Holy Rosary Church in Lowellville. An avid golfer, Joe belonged to the Senior Citizens Golf League of Mill Creek Park. Joe's other interests were gardening, carpentry, and following his favorite football team, The University of Michigan Wolverines "Go Blue!"

Joe most enjoyed spending quality time with his family. He leaves his wife, the former Marilyn Scavelli Fanto, whom he married May 7, 1983; three daughters, Linda (Michael) Dequin of Wixom, Mich., Christine (Alan) McDonald of Berlin Center, and Gail (John) Tolson of Salem; one son, Joseph (Jayne) Hauser of Milford, Mich.; daughter-in-law, Lori Hauser of Brighton, Mich.; one stepdaughter, Patty (Charlie) Watkins of Pasadena, Texas; one sister, Pat Marshall of Lansing, Mich.; 11 grandchildren, Jesse, Nicole, Paul, Jonathan, Jeffrey, Jami, Johnny, Jessica, Alex, Jessica, and Nichole; and three great-grandchildren, Christopher, Adin and Bradley.

Besides his parents, Joe was was preceded in death by his first wife, the former Betty Jean Meier; one son, Lawrence Hauser; two daughters, Catherine Moore and Gwynn Grist; two brothers, David and Robert Hauser; and his granddaughter, Tami Tolson.

Joe's family would like to express their sincere gratitude for the wonderful care provided by Dr. Chris Knight and the nursing staff of the Hope Center.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Holy Rosary Church with Father Nicholas Shori officiating. Interment will follow at the Holy Rosary Cemetery in Lowellville.

Titans, Fisher parting ways after 16 seasons

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In a surprising move, the Tennessee Titans have parted ways with Jeff Fisher, who was the NFL's longest-tenured coach.

The team said in a release Thursday night that "Fisher will no longer be the head coach of the team."

The Titans announced the move within an hour of a report by SI.com that they were negotiating Fisher's departure and released a longer statement a couple hours later saying they will always appreciate his leadership through some of their "greatest heights" during 16 full seasons as coach.

"It became evident that consensus was increasingly hard to find and reality wasn't matching the vision we discussed. It is unfortunate that this decision is coming at this juncture, but we believe that we have reached the point where change is in the best interest of both parties," according to the statement.

Though the 52-year-old Fisher had been derided locally as "Coach .500" or "Coach Ocho," he seemingly had just survived a battle with quarterback Vince Young. Adams decided to either release Young or trade him on Jan. 5. The owner announced two days later that he would be keeping Fisher.

Fisher and Young never really jelled in five seasons together after the Titans drafted the former Texas standout with the third overall pick in 2006 under orders from Adams. The relationship frayed even as Fisher publicly defended Young until Nov. 21 when the situation boiled over.

Young tossed his shoulder pads and other equipment into the stands after an overtime loss in which the quarterback suffered a season-ending injury. Running back Chris Johnson said Wednesday while practicing in Hawaii for the Pro Bowl he didn't think Fisher or Young could work together after "it hit the fan."

In the end, neither Fisher nor Young survived with the Titans.

Even though Adams announced he was sticking with Fisher for the final year of his contract the move meant Fisher would be coaching for his future in 2011. Fisher has repeatedly said he wanted to finish his career with the franchise, but the coach known for never losing his cool in public while hiding behind his sunglasses may have decided Adams' decision wasn't good enough.

Fisher thanked Adams and the franchise for "a special 17 years" in a statement released by the team.

"It has been a tremendous experience. We all did our very best and I think I can look back with fond memories and be very proud of what we accomplished. I want to wish the organization, the current players and the fans nothing but the best in the future."

The team scheduled a news conference for Friday with Fisher expected to attend to discuss the first coaching change since the franchise relocated to Tennessee from Houston in 1997. One of the leading candidates to replace Fisher is Mike Munchak, the Titans offensive line coach. The Hall of Famer is a favorite of Adams.

Among the four major U.S. sports, only Jerry Sloan with the NBA's Utah Jazz has been with the same team longer than Fisher had been with the Titans. Andy Reid of Philadelphia now takes over as the NFL's longest-tenured coach having finished up his 12th season with the Eagles.

A flurry of coaching changes didn't help Fisher's situation. He fired his defensive coordinator Chuck Cecil a week ago after giving him a contract for the 2011 season. Defensive line coach Jim Washburn decided last week to take the same job with Philadelphia and his departure was followed by running backs coach Craig Johnson, who signed with Minnesota as the Vikings quarterbacks coach.

Fisher seemed to be taking his time filling those holes.

Fisher has coached more NFL games for one franchise than all but six Hall of Famers: George Halas, Tom Landry, Don Shula, Chuck Noll, Curly Lambeau and Bud Grant. He ranks third among active coaches in career wins with a record of 147-126, behind only Bill Belichick (176) and Mike Shanahan (160), and he is 20th all-time in coaching victories.

Adams promoted Fisher from defensive coordinator to interim coach with six games left in the 1994 season after firing Jack Pardee. Adams removed the interim tag after that season and has stayed with Fisher longer than any other coach in the history of the franchise the billionaire founded.

Fisher took the team to its only Super Bowl in 2000.

Fisher oversaw the team's relocation from Houston in which the Oilers played in four different stadiums between 1996 and 1999 before moving into their current home.

STEELERS FROM 1B

game, so it's great. You'll be out in the town and they'll come up and want to talk about the game. ... It's exciting to be here. They love the Penguins, but it's Steelers football 365 days a year."

Fans rooting for other teams don't even think about coming to Heinz Field wearing their colors. They may be a little more laid-back in western Pennsylvania, but the die-hards here are similar to those notorious Eagles fans in Philadelphia when it comes to defending their turf.

"You'd be in Washington and the Dallas Cowboys come to town, the stands are filled with Cowboys jerseys and Cowboys fans walking the streets, or New York Giants fans," safety Ryan Clark said.

"Here, it's Pittsburgh or you may get jumped. That's what I think is amazing about this place. People are born fans. Kids, I can meet kids, they have no choice. Like if they want to like somebody else, they may lose parents. I think that's amazing."

Rooting for the Steelers is a birthright for fans, and winning championships is an expectation for every player that puts on a black and gold uniform.

"Since I've been here, we feel like we're always going to be in the hunt for the Super Bowl," injured tackle Max Starks said.

Terry Bradshaw, Franco Harris, Lynn Swann and Co. set the standard when they won four Super Bowl titles in a six-year span in the late 1970s. There were some down times in the 80s and 90s, though Neil O'Donnell led the Steelers to the 1996 Super Bowl — a loss to Dallas.

After a 26-year drought, Roethlisberger helped the Steelers earn one for the thumb in February 2006. The Steelers added a record sixth title to their trophy case two years ago. Now, they're going for No. 7.

"Expectations are sky high in this city dating back to the 70s when those guys won four Super Bowls," cornerback Ike Taylor said. "We got Pitt basketball playing good ball and I jumped on the Penguins bandwagon a few years ago. Hopefully we can get the Pirates going sooner or later."

That's not likely. The Pirates are coming off a record-setting 18th consecutive losing, and their chances of contending wouldn't be any worse if Taylor and eight Steelers were penciled into the lineup every day.

Good thing fans here have the Steelers, Penguins and Panthers to cheer. About a dozen people lined up outside the Steelers practice facility Thursday, braving the cold, snowy weather in hopes that a player or two would sign an autograph.

"We love our Steelers," said Arlene Hopson, a student at Pitt. "The Packers don't stand a chance next week."

Hoke signed with the Steelers as an undrafted free agent out of Brigham Young in 2001. He grew up in California, but was familiar with the Steelers tradition before he joined the team. Then he got a dose of their fans.

"I knew the history, but once I got here and spent more time here, you start to realize how important this organization is to this area and how much you are loved and what kind of responsibility that brings," Hoke said.

PIRATES FROM 1B

Hurdle's only other stint as manager came in Colorado, where he guided the Rockies from 2002 until he was let go after starting the 2009 campaign 18-28. Unlike other recent Pirates managers, Hurdle has the experience of managing in the post season. In 2007, he led a phenomenal second half of the season, and pushed the team into the 2007 World Series, where he lost to the Boston Red Sox.

"I've spoken with Clint, and I feel he's bringing a lot of excitement to the club," second baseman Neil Walker said. "He had a great run with Colorado, and I'm sure as our manager he'll instill a lot of what it takes to win and get to the post season."

Another player who knows a little something about being a part of winner is former Yankee Jeff Karstens. In his fourth year with the Pirates, Karstens is well aware of his time in the Bronx, and what he can apply in Pittsburgh.

"I came up as a Yankee, and remember how the veterans conducted themselves, and how they approach the game," Karstens said. "We're a very young team, so I'm happy to give any knowledge I may have acquired in my career if it will help us. But even though we haven't won a lot here, there's still a lot of tradition, and people around that remember what it was like winning championships, and that connection is important."

The last time the Pirates won the World Series was 1979, and while the club is aware that baseball has changed since then, they know there's no room for excuses.

"Everybody wants to talk about salary caps, but the NFL, the NBA, and the NHL each have a salary cap, and there's a lot of bad teams in those leagues," Huntington said. "The bottom line is you have to have a good organization to win, and we think we're developing that here."

Pirates radio and tv commentator Tim Neverett hosted the event. He's seen nearly every pitch of every inning, and one thing he's noticed is the progress the team is making.

"We know winning doesn't happen over night, but the young players we have, and the way they played at the end of last year gives everyone a lot of hope," Neverett said. "This is one of baseball's heritage franchises, and when you play in the shadow of Roberto Clemente, you try to live up to that standard. We stopped at an elementary school in Poland before this, and we want to win, so those kids will want to be Pirates fans."

More than 500 people attended the event. Pitcher James McDonald was scheduled to be there, but came down with a flu.

LEETONIA — The Leetonia Knights of Columbus Council 1569 will hold its annual free throw competition at the Leetonia High School auxiliary gym Saturday, Jan. 29, at 10 a.m. All 10-14 year old boys and girls are eligible to compete.

Steelers' Pouncey, McFadden don't practice again

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers center Maurkice Pouncey did not practice again Thursday because of the left ankle injury he sustained during Sunday's AFC championship game victory over the New York Jets Sunday.

Pouncey said after the game Sunday that he intended on playing in the Super Bowl, and was seen in a cast and on crutches Wednesday. Teammate Chris Kemoeatu had told reporters Wednesday that Pouncey was not going to play in the Super Bowl, but he backed off those comments Thursday.

Also not practicing for the Steelers was starting cornerback Bryant McFadden, who has a strained abdomen. McFadden also did not practice early last week, but he returned to practice Friday and played Sunday — albeit with a somewhat reduced workload.

William Gay assumed McFadden's role as the team's No. 2 cornerback, and Doug Legursky replaced Pouncey.

There was no change in the Steelers' injury status from Wednesday to Thursday: All Pro safety Troy Polamalu (Achilles), wide receiver Emmanuel Sanders (foot), left tackle Jonathan Scott (ribs) and special teamer Will Allen (knee) all did not practice again, but Allen is the only one with an injury expected to be serious enough to put his status for the Feb. 6 Super Bowl in question.

Defensive end Aaron Smith continues to be limited in practice participation, as he has been for the past three weeks. He has not played since tearing a triceps Oct. 24 and is not expected to be ready face the Green Bay Packers in the Super Bowl.

Indians say Sizemore, Santana expected back

CLEVELAND (AP) — Grady Sizemore isn't going anywhere — except back to center field for the Cleveland Indians as soon as he is fully recovered from knee surgery. New general manager Chris Antonetti refuted trade rumors involving Sizemore, a three-time All-Star, during a meeting with fans Thursday night in a town hall setting in downtown Cleveland.

"I don't comment on individual players, but in this instance I will say we have had absolutely no discussions with any team regarding Grady," Antonetti said. "His rehab has gone as well as can be expected. He's already in our training camp in Goodyear, (Ariz.), doing baseball-related activities. It is hopeful he will be in spring training games by mid-March."

Antonetti said a healthy Sizemore and Carlos Santana, a switch-hitting catcher who was in the midst of a strong rookie season before getting hurt, can help boost the Indians into AL Central contention this year. Both players had their 2010 seasons cut short by knee surgery as Cleveland finished fourth with a 69-93 record.

"Certainly a lot of things must go right, but I don't think there should be a limit on our expectations," Antonetti said. "We were disappointed last year and will be disappointed this year if we're not in the playoffs."

Cleveland manager Manny Acta said he's eager to show that the Indians can contend. He pointed to a young pitching staff that had the fourth-lowest ERA in the AL in the second half of 2010 as being a good starting point, but acknowledged he'll be trying to find both a starting third baseman and second baseman during camp.

"The competition at third is up for grabs," Acta said. "I like competition." Entering his second year in Cleveland, Acta will be looking at several rookies at both open infield spots, including Lonnie Chisenhall, Jared Goedert, Jason Kipnis and Cord Phelps. Veterans Jayson Nix, Jason Donald, Luis Valbuena and Adam Everett are among others in the mix.

Antonetti's only major signing since replacing Mark Shapiro as GM in October was free-agent outfielder Austin Kearns, who started the 2010 season with Cleveland and was dealt to the New York Yankees in June.

"We don't want to bring in a guy just to say we can," Antonetti said. "We had the youngest team in the league last year and believe the nucleus is in place. We'll start with the guys we have internally. We hope some of them (rookies) can force our hand and earn playing time this year."

Ohio State hires Drayton as assistant

COLUMBUS (AP) — Stan Drayton, who has been an assistant at nine colleges, is Ohio State's new wide receivers coach.

Coach Jim Tressel announced the hiring on Thursday. Drayton replaces Darrell Hazell who recently took the head coaching job at Kent State.

Drayton served as Florida's running backs coach and recruiting coordinator last season. The Ohio native also served as Florida's running backs coach from 2005-07, and held the same position at SEC schools Tennessee (2008) and Mississippi State (2004).

He also has coached at Syracuse (2009), Bowling Green (2000), Villanova (1996-2000), Pennsylvania (1995), Eastern Michigan (1994) and his alma mater, Allegheny (1993). From 2001-03, he was an assistant special teams coach for the Green Bay Packers.

NHL shakes up All-Star game with unique draft

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — While the NFL and NBA are facing labor uncertainty, the NHL is taking a moment to puff out its chest as it heads into an All-Star weekend unlike any other.

Six years after a full season was lost, the NHL finds itself in a unique position of negotiated calm and unprecedented success. Hockey will never enjoy the revenue streams the NFL produces, but the little brother league can relate to the uncertainty that threatens upcoming football and basketball games.

The NHL certainly likes its current view, far away from the storm.

The league said it is on pace to break revenue records and expects total revenue to rise for the fifth straight year to nearly $2.9 billion. League generated revenue is believed to be going up by 14 percent — an 85 percent jump over the past four years.

Ohio provisional ballots in need of common-sense fix

Ohio's laws on provisional ballots are so confusing and convoluted that even the courts can't sort them out. State legislators need to step in and make corrections.

Provisional ballots are those cast when election poll workers are not certain potential voters are legitimate. That can happen for several reasons. Perhaps a voter forgot to take identification documents to the polls, moved and didn't update his registration, or simply went to the wrong polling place.

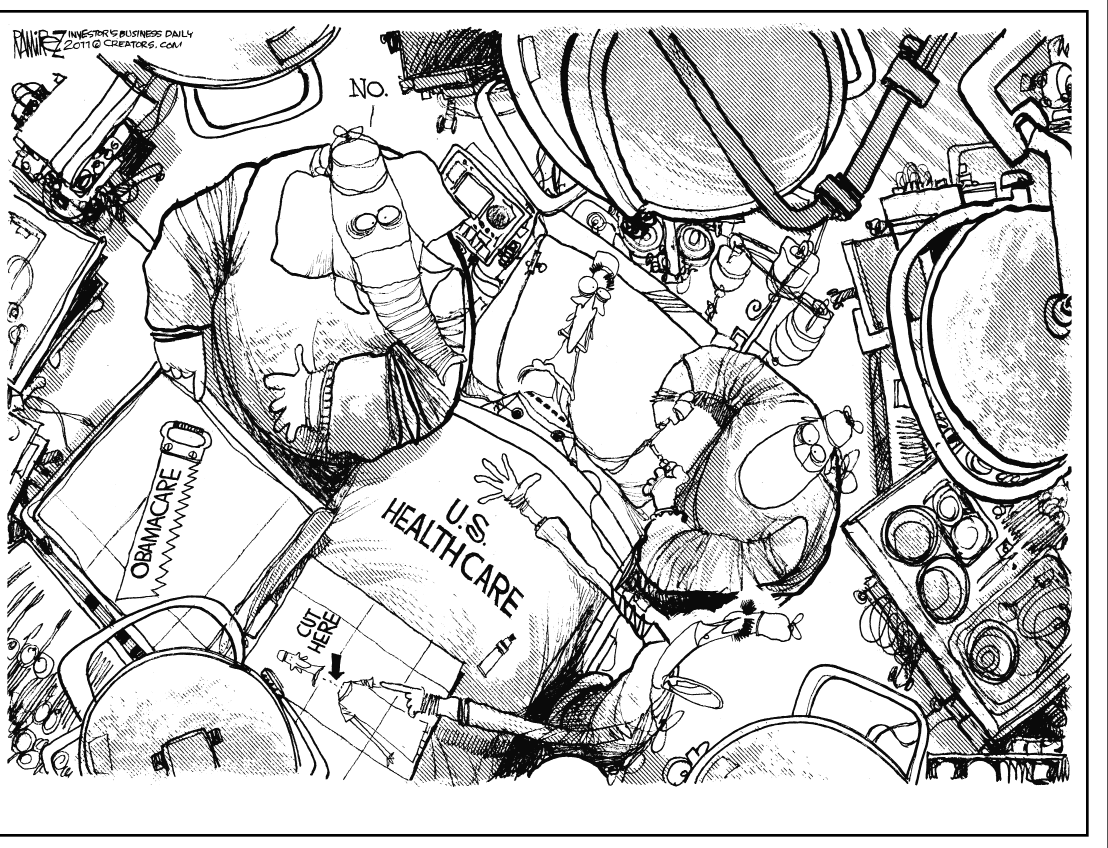

The idea behind state law is that election workers can accept ballots provisionally, then check later to determine whether votes should be counted.

State law on the matter is confusing enough that some election workers do not seem to understand it. Certainly, many voters do not.

And now, the courts are involved in conflict over provisional ballots. Lawsuits involving one disputed race in the election last fall were filed in the state Supreme Court and at U.S. District Court. You guessed it: The two courts issued conflicting rulings. Now, a higher federal court is being asked to determine whether state or federal courts have jurisdiction over Ohio election laws.

Regardless of what happens in the court case, state legislators should take another look at provisional balloting laws. They need to be clear enough that there is no confusion among either voters or election workers. They also need to be fair — not disenfranchising voters for relatively minor errors but at the same time preventing vote fraud.

However the issue is decided in the courts, Ohio legislators should take another look at provisional voting laws. Last fall, more than 105,000 of them were cast throughout the state, so the matter clearly is an important one. As soon as possible, Gov. John Kasich and lawmakers should devise common-sense repairs to the law.

Cash for education clunkers

MICHELLE MALKIN

“We're going to have to out-educate other countries,” President Obama urged this week. How? By out-spending them, of course! It's the same old quack cure for America's fat and failing government-run schools monopoly. The one-trick ponies at the White House call their academic improvement agenda “targeted investing” for “winning the future.” Truth in advertising: Get ready to fork over more Cash for Education Clunkers.

Our government already spends more per capita on education than any other of the 34 wealthiest countries in the world except for Switzerland, according to recent analysis of data from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. Overall inflation-adjusted K-12 spending has tripled over the past 40 years, the Michigan-based Mackinac Center for Public Policy points out. Yet American test scores and graduation rates are stagnant. One in 10 high schools is a dropout factory. And our students' performance in one of the most prestigious global math competitions has been so abysmal that the U.S. simply withdrew altogether.

Obama's fiscal year 2011 budget already represents “one of the largest increases” in federal education spending history, and hikes total discretionary spending to nearly $51 billion. Toss in another $35 billion for mandatory Pell grants. And add another $4 billion for the illusory “Race to the Top” charade to improve academic standards.

Then there's the $10 billion for the Education Jobs Fund signed into law last August -- a naked payoff to the public teachers union, which also includes $50 million for the Striving Readers comprehensive literacy development and education program; $82 million for Student Aid Administration; and $10.7 million for the Ready to Teach program.

Oh, and don't forget the $100 billion in federal stimulus funding for school programs and initiatives administered by the U.S. Department of Education.

As he extols the virtues of “innovation” and “accountability,” the last thing Obama wants you to think about is the actual results of these profligate federal ed binges:

As education analyst Neal McCluskey accurately described the real impact of the $4 billion Race to the Top paperwork theater: “States must say how they would improve lots of things, but they actually have to do very little. It is decades of public schooling -- from the Great Society to No Child Left Behind -- in a nutshell.” You need a chainsaw to cut through the bureaucratess of the winning state applications, but the bottom line is that the “race” is “won” only when school reformers get buy-in from the teachers unions -- the most stalwart enemies of introducing choice and competition to the atrophying system.

Despite massive multibillion-dollar “investments” in teacher training, America's educators are horrifyingly incompetent at even elementary math. Explaining why American grade-school students can't master simple fractions, one math professor confessed: “Part of the reason the kids don't know it is because the teachers aren't transmitting that.” Instead, they've ditched “drill and kill” -- otherwise known as the basics -- for costly educational fads ranging from “Mayan Math” to “Everyday Math” that substitute art, self-esteem and multiculturalism for the fundamentals of computation.

Among the supposedly cutting-edge programs funded by Obama's federal stimulus program is the $49 million technology initiative for the Detroit Public Schools. The urban school system is overrun by corruption, violence and incompetence. The teachers union sabotaged classroom instruction and denied schoolchildren an education through an apparent illegal work stoppage. Yet, Washington went ahead and forked over a whopping $530 million in federal porkulus funds to reward yet more Detroit government school failure and bail out the reckless-spending boobs who mismanaged the DPS budget and engineered a fiscal crisis. The $49 million technology program distributed some 40,000 new (foreign-made) ASUS netbook computers, plus thousands of printers, scanners and desktop computers to teachers and kids from early childhood through 12th grade.

One teacher was caught late last year trying to pawn his shiny new booty. No doubt, he has company. Nationwide, in both urban and rural school districts, large and small, these technology infusions have turned out to be gesture-driven boondoggles and political payoffs that squander precious educational resources -- with little, if any, measurable academic benefits. Mark Lawson, school board president of one of New York state's first districts to put technology directly in students' hands, told The New York Times in 2007: “After seven years, there was literally no evidence it had any impact on student achievement -- none. The teachers were telling us when there's a one-to-one relationship between the student and the laptop, the box gets in the way. It's a distraction to the educational process.”

That about sums up federal intervention in public schooling: It's a taxpayer-subsidized distraction to the local educational process that throttles true competition, rewards failure and mistakes blind government largesse for achievement.

The speech: Once again, Obama calls for new spending

CAL THOMAS

In his State of the Union address, President Obama at times sounded like he was channeling Ronald Reagan: cutting the deficit, hailing private enterprise and individual initiative, talking about the future.

But for all his eloquence, the president wrapped his liberal ideology in conservative sheep's clothing.

On the surface, the president said many things with which conservatives might agree, but words can mean something, or they can mask true intentions.

There was no indication the president plans to retreat on his far-left agenda of the last two years. Why should he? That would require denying who he is.

Absent the glamorous rhetoric, let's examine the major subjects on which the president touched.

EDUCATION: Anyone who has seen the film “Waiting for Superman” knows the public education system in this country is a mess and that if all the money now being spent on education isn't improving the product, especially for the poor, whom Democrats are supposed to be championing, more money will not help. Competition through school choice would improve education. The speech was another sop to teachers' unions that care more about their members than students' futures.

INNOVATION: Government doesn't innovate. It regulates. It taxes. According to The Cato Institute (www.cato.org/), the average combined federal and state corporate tax rate in the U.S. is 40 percent, first among Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries. Japan comes in second with a combined rate of 35.7 percent. In his speech, the president said he supports reducing the corporate tax rate for the first time in 25 years, but then came the caveat: “without adding to our deficit.” Cutting taxes without reducing spending will add to the deficit and so the president can eschew responsibility when Democrats refuse to vote for business tax reductions.

DEFICIT REDUCTION: Where to begin? A president and until recently an all-Democratic Congress has put our financial house in jeopardy by running up a $14 trillion debt. In March 2006, when he was a senator, Obama called the $8.27 trillion debt ceiling “a sign of leadership failure.” If the debt ceiling during the George W. Bush presidency was a sign of failed leadership, who's failing in his leadership when the debt has climbed to $14 trillion? Deficit reduction will come when the government cuts (not caps) spending.

REFORMING GOVERNMENT: The best way to “reform” government is to reduce unneeded and unnecessary programs and agencies. Congress should establish a commission similar to the successful Base Realignment and Closing Commission (BRAC), which shuttered outmoded military bases. Every government agency and program should be required to justify its existence consistent with its cost and benefit to the greatest number of Americans. If they can't, they should be eliminated.

INFRASTRUCTURE: From better roads to high-speed inter- and intra-city trains, the U.S. lags behind many European and Asian countries in providing low-cost, efficient and fast transportation for its citizens. It is one of the few areas where Americans would be willing to pay more in fares or even taxes to improve the way we move around.

Included in infrastructure ought to be the mining of America's considerable natural gas supply and a “to the moon” emphasis on nuclear power and drilling for more oil in America's backyard to ease our dependence on foreign oil. It will take years to break our foreign oil addiction and so new sources of petroleum on American territory must be explored, something this president won't do.

Curiously, Obama invoked a space analogy, mentioning the Russian “Sputnik” satellite launched in 1957 and the American Apollo program that sent astronauts to the moon in 1969. And yet this president has effectively mothballed our space program at a time when China is moving rapidly forward with theirs.

The president's speech was all about new spending (“investment” he called it), no matter what he said about reducing the deficit. Spending on big government is what liberals do. No one should be fooled by the rhetoric, or the theatrics of congressional Republicans and Democrats sitting together. The Republican challenge is to stop the president's liberal agenda while making the case for a better one.

on or near Bogart’s property.

The information came to light after he was asked why the $250,000 bond couldn’t be reduced for Bogart since he was only charged with one count of receiving stolen property, then he explained the extenuating circumstances. No charges have filed against Bogart or anyone else related to Young’s death.

Bogart has been in custody since Aug. 11, the same day Young’s body was later found. He was charged with receiving stolen property for possession of a stolen ATV found during a search of his property that day.

A second indictment was filed against him in December charging him with two counts of receiving stolen property, a single count of forgery, and identity fraud. The indictment alleged that Bogart had a check belonging to Young and forged it on Aug. 3, that he possessed a 2004 silver PT Cruiser belonging to Young and that he possessed Young’s personal identity information with the intent to hold himself out to be Young.

Hartford said the evidence for the second indictment was all seized at the time of his client’s initial arrest on the day of the search back in August. By law, he said the time to take him to trial has passed for the second charge since he’s been incarcerated longer than 90 days.

He argued that the time should toll for the second indictment because “the state has sat on the evidence since Aug. 11, 2010.” He also said the state has continued to sit on charges they’ll mete out over time, which he said rises to the level of “outrageous governmental conduct” and is grounds for dismissing the indictment.

“Given the foregoing scenario the State of Ohio could keep this defendant incarcerated ad infinitum by way of their ‘trickle down’ process of indictment, holding evidence until it suits the government’s fancy and continually indicting the defendant until they are able to secure a conviction on something,” Hartford wrote in his motion.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Gamble said the issue isn’t the speedy trial requirement, but the statute of limitations, which he said has not lapsed. He said the indictments clearly follow a different set of facts, with the charges in the second indictment stemming from Aug. 3. The charge from the first indictment occurred on Aug. 11.

In his written response to Hartford’s motion, he said challenges such as this are limited to entrapment defenses “and in cases where charges are brought against defendants for exercising their constitutional rights. Absolutely no authority exists for the claims made by the defendant in this case.”

Washam took all the arguments under advisement and gave each side seven days to file any additional documentation. A tentative trial date for the second indictment was set for Feb. 28, with a status hearing on Feb. 24, under objection from the defense per their argument to have the case dismissed.

The first case remains pending with a trial date of March 14 and a status hearing on March 3.

into the system while receiving reduced benefits and smaller cost-of-living increases. Those payments are made in lieu of paying into Social Security.

Ohio Education Association spokeswoman Michele Prater said the state’s largest teachers’ union does not support the plan.

“We understand the timeline and the constraints the STRS board was under to put their plan together, but this proposal includes cuts that are too deep and that don’t offer sufficient flexibility to teachers who are nearing the end of their careers,” she said.

Board recommendations call for reducing retirees’ cost-of-living increases from 3 percent a year to 2 percent a year beginning July 1, 2012. Member contributions would also begin to rise on that date, increasing 1 percent a year to a total of 3 percent above the current 10 percent level between 2012 and 2014.

Other changes are scheduled to kick in Aug. 1, 2015 — assuming they are approved by the Legislature.

Republican state Rep. Lynn Wachtmann, chairman of the House Health and Aging Committee, said Wednesday that he plans to introduce a pension reform bill next week. The legislation is slated to include proposed eligibility and benefit changes to all five of Ohio’s public pension funds.

Gov. John Kasich has signaled he could play hardball on the issue, including opposing pension reforms he does not see as going far enough.

Ecklar said a combination of factors made current pension formulas unsustainable — including the hit to investment losses during the recent economic downturn and longer lives for retirees and their survivors.

Recommendations approved Thursday would reduce the difference between assets held by the pension fund and what it owes in pension payments to $27.9 billion — an amount the fund could feasibly pay off in the legally required 30 years.

To get there, the board voted to set a minimum age of 60 with 35 years of service as the new threshold for full pension eligibility. Under current rules, teachers can retire at any age once they’ve served 30 years. Members could still be eligible for partial early retirement benefits at 55, but after 30 years of service rather than the current 25.

The new age and service requirements will be phased in over eight years. Members will still be able to retire at age 65 with 5 years of service.

Teachers retiring after 35 years at age 60 or older would receive 77 percent of their final average salary as pension, a reduction from the current rate. The average salary would be calculated over five years rather than the current three, which could reduce payouts further.

The plan does not include any changes to the amount teachers’ employers, including school districts, colleges and universities, pay into the retirement system.

BELOIT — The West Branch Local school board Thursday night approved supplemental contracts for spring athletic coaches.

The board rehired head coaches Elaine Bonar for boys’ tennis, Jennifer Woods for softball, Tracy Orwick for boys track and Robert Altenhof for girls track and Shelly Gibbons as winter cheerleading advisor.

The board also approved contracts for the following coaching positions: Walt DeShields and Shawn Alazaus, assistant varsity baseball, to split the head coach and assistant coach stipends; Scott Loudon, junior varsity baseball; Gary Martin, freshmen baseball; Larry Griffith, assistant varsity softball; Lindsay Gaudiose, junior varsity softball; Scott Bates, assistant varsity boys track; Mike Falasca, middle school boys track; Joe Ginocchi, assistant varsity girls track; Frank Edie, middle school girls track; Merrellyn Banks, assistant boys tennis; and Andy Todor, basketball clock operator.

In other personnel matters, the board hired Alison Thompson as a part-time intervention specialist at Knox Elementary, and Jennifer Rohaley and Annie Grischow as Title I tutors for the remainder of the school year.

Also at the meeting, the board obtained a waiver from the Ohio Department of Education to request the delay of the unfunded state mandated all-day, every day kindergarten for the 2011-2-12 school year.

According to schools Superintendent Dr. Scott Weingart, the waiver is required for all districts that do not have an all-day kindergarten class.

Again

“My biggest fear is if it continues like this all winter, we won’t have a place to put it and we’ll never get our cars out and we won’t even be able to go to the stores,” she said. “We had a year like this back in the ’90s, but I was a lot younger. The prospect of this continuing is disgusting.”

Washington-area residents, who had largely been spared heavy snow this winter after getting buried by a series of storms last year, lamented this year’s encore. Around 300,000 people lost power, and motorists abandoned cars by the hundreds when pressing on proved fruitless.

In Maryland, jackknifed tractor-trailers and other stuck vehicles blocked roads and impeded snowplows.

“That’s the nightmarish situation that we’ve been dealing with as quickly as we can,” Gov. Martin O’Malley said.

Logan Nielson, 31, who works in advertising in San Francisco, described a harrowing 60-mile drive from Dulles Airport in northern Virginia to his hotel in Baltimore. What should have been no more than a two-hour trip became a nine-hour ordeal.

“It was a nightmare. ... We would sit there for 30-minute periods, not moving,” he said. “You don’t know: ‘Am I stuck here for three hours? Am I stuck here till tomorrow?’”

After arriving Wednesday night in Washington from Manitowoc, Wis., President Barack Obama couldn’t fly on the helicopter that normally takes him to the White House from a nearby military base. Instead, a motorcade had to snake through the crippled rush-hour traffic.

The federal government let 300,000 Washington-area employees go home two hours early Wednesday, sending them straight into the teeth of the late-afternoon storm. It took many people more than eight hours to get home.

The men’s basketball team from Maryland’s Towson University got stuck in traffic just a few miles from its game at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. The team eventually checked into hotel rooms in nearby Manassas around 1 a.m. — six hours after the scheduled tip-off. The game was rescheduled for Thursday.

Two freshmen recruited from Florida marveled at the scene, never having seen a snowstorm cripple an entire region.

“I couldn’t believe it. People were getting out of their cars” in the middle of the Capital Beltway “and stopping to clear the snow off their windows,” said guard Dre Conner, a native of Lauderdale Lakes, Fla.

Even old hands marveled at the continuing power of this winter, whose endless snowstorms are being helped along by a cold-air phenomenon off the coast known as the North Atlantic Oscillation.

After digging out his driveway for the “umpteenth time” and knocking some large chunks of ice off his car, Joel Davis stood outside his home in Toms River, N.J., and wondered when he would ever see his lawn again.

“I like the snow and I expect to get some living here, but this is nuts,” he said. “I

West Branch has an all-day “experience,” consisting of a half day with a teacher and a half day with an aide, so by law must obtain the waiver to continue the program as is, he explained.

The board also accepted anonymous donations of $11,500 for technology, staff development and recognition for the district; and of $2,000 for the athletic program.

“It’s gratifying to be able to accept these donations,” Weingart said, noting total donations in January of over $16,000. “We’re thankful for all the donations we receive, whether identified or not, because they allow us to do things that our general fund wouldn’t normally permit.”

The next regular school board meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 17 in the high school Media Center.

can’t remember the last time everything wasn’t snow-covered. We didn’t get a white Christmas, but it seems that it’s been white ever since.”

New York City typically gets 21 inches of snow a winter. Mayor Michael Bloomberg said the latest storm makes this January the snowiest since the city started keeping records; at 36 inches, it easily breaks the mark of 27.4 inches set in 1925. The New York area has been hit with snow eight times since mid-December.

The city, slammed for its slow response to a big storm in late December, handled this one better. It closed schools and some government offices. Federal courts in Manhattan and the United Nations shut down as well. The Statue of Liberty closed for snow removal. The Queens borough president’s office got only three or four complaint calls — compared to dozens following the day-after-Christmas storm.

Bloomberg said the city benefited both from lessons learned and the storm’s timing. “This time people were already home by the time the snow really got bad,” he said.

Still, the city wasn’t hassle-free. Dozens of passengers spent the hours from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m. huddled in subway cars after their train got stuck at a Brooklyn station because of malfunctioning signals.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 01/28/11

The moon has many feminine qualities, but when she slips into Sagittarius, a masculine energy takes hold. Tap into her raw assertiveness, and let her infuse your pursuits with a jolt of dynamic power. In the spirit of the Sagittarius moon, make a difficult call, ask a burning question or stake your claim on a faraway prize.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You want what is reasonable for you to achieve. It is precisely because your expectations are so well grounded in reality that you are likely to see them met today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You apply your skill and dedication to a job. If you want credit for this, you'll also need to publicize it. Think carefully about the best way to do this. And choose just the right words to frame your achievements.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Avoid anyone who seems indecisive or out of control. It's not your day to save the world or change another person's destiny, but you just might accomplish this accidentally if you stay focused on your own mission.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're in just the mood to take a risk. You'll likely trade a degree of stability for the chance to win at a highly competitive level. Libra and Aquarius people are worthy contenders for your team.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You want people to notice you for your work, not for how you look, the way you dress or the car you drive. Still, these style choices contribute to an overall impression of you, and that affects how your work is received.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You've been working toward a particular outcome in your personal life, though you may have been doing so subconsciously. If that is the case, you will now be consciously aware of your agenda.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It's not pessimistic to be pragmatic. You'll feel more positive about your arrangements if — before you sign on the bottom line — you're sure about the ins and outs of what you're signing, especially the outs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Make sure everyone understands what you need in terms that are certain and clear. Friends who are just there to help you could have the opposite effect if improperly managed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll be grateful for a certain less-than-perfect aspect of your past. If it never happened, you would not have developed your best traits or the strongest aspects of your character.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll be aware of the influences and beliefs that people subscribe to, and this will affect your own choices. Warning: One who comes off as original might simply be copying a different crowd.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). There is someone who is highly influential in your life right now, and you tend to schedule yourself around this person's needs. It is good for both of you as long as you are mindful of your sacrifice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There's a precious reward hanging in the balance. The problem is, there is also a difficult maze you must maneuver in order to reach the goal. You will be feeling agile and gutsy enough to pull this off.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 28). You don't have to decide between two exciting options — you can have them both. There's a shift in your professional direction, and by the end of February, you'll feel you're doing what you were born to do. You'll be an ambassador and bring about positive change in March. May brings style upgrades. Leo and Scorpio people shower you with blessings. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 25, 39, 16 and 52.

Cruising through hints

Heloise

Dear Readers: A CRUISE can be a fun way for the family to visit many different places. Here are some hints for packing for a cruise:

- Bring a small carry-on bag (even if you check luggage) that has travel documents, change of clothes, swimsuit, medications, your camera, etc. The luggage sometimes take a while to get to your room, or may even be delayed a day or two.
- For on board and on shore: Bring a hat, sunscreen, reusable water bottle and some good walking shoes.
- Some nights may be cool. Pack a lightweight jacket, wrap or scarf.
- Don't forget a good book or magazine, but the ship library has a lot of books, and you usually can trade out books.
- Clothes can get wrinkled from traveling. Take a spray bottle of wrinkle remover so you don't have to iron everything.

— Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: I read your letters every day in The Orange County (Calif.) Register, and I love the ones from parents with small children who say the funniest things. I had to tell you what my 5-year-old grandson said to his mother. He and my daughter were having a conversation when my daughter told him, "Ryan, do not get smart with me." He responded with "Why, are you stupid?" — A Reader in Lake Forest, Calif.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTS

Dear Heloise: Many newspaper websites carry a comment section. I've found that some require logging in first, and some do not. Sometimes the login fails, and then my comment that I have already typed is lost. Now, I highlight my comments and copy them to my clipboard. That way, my opinion is saved if the login fails. — Diane Smith, Baytown, Texas

GARAGE SALE

Dear Heloise: I have a hint for people who are putting up garage-sale signs. If the location where you're going to put the sign is in a private citizen's yard, please be kind enough to knock on the door and ask for permission before just marching through the grass and pounding a stake into the yard. I live on a popular sign-placement corner, and I've never said no to anyone who asks. However, I will tear down a sign that's put up without my permission. The individual who put it there was trespassing. — A Reader, via e-mail

End of friendship causes devastating pain

DEAR ABBY: How do I cope with the ending of a very long friendship? I saw warning signs for a couple of years, and tried many times to talk to my best friend about what seemed to be happening. Her values and priorities are moving in other directions now. I no longer feel appreciated as her friend.

My heart is breaking. We have been friends for half our lives. This is more devastating than any divorce, death or hurricane I have ever experienced. She is how I have gotten through my life this far.

There are support groups out there for everything under the sun, except for losing a best friend due to indifference and lack of caring. Please advise me. — THROWN AWAY IN PASADENA, TEXAS

DEAR THROWN AWAY: I know you are hurting, and I am sorry. But friendships are not just made up of helping each other through the hard times; there is also a component of celebrating the good ones. While she may have been your leaning post, you need to examine what you were to her. If the load became too much to carry, it's understandable that she would need to back off. While there are no support groups for people in your situation, there are counselors who can help you sort through your feelings — and because this experience has been devastating, you should talk with one.

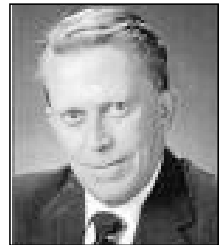

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl from a religious home. When I was 7, my father got very drunk and molested me. It had a terrible impact on me. He has apologized for what happened and knows I hate him for it and can't forgive him. It hasn't happened since. I feel the next step in my healing is to confide in my friends and ask them to pray for me. But if I do, I know they won't look at me the same. I'm afraid they'll get their parents to intervene and something will happen to Dad. That's the last thing I want. Should I tell? — NEEDS SUPPORT IN PHILLY

DEAR NEEDS SUPPORT: You appear to be an idealistic, intelligent young woman. But it's important you understand that apologizing for committing a crime against someone is not enough. The person must also be willing to accept the consequences of his actions. Drop by an elementary school and look at the 7-year-olds on the playground. That's how small and vulnerable you were when your father molested you. Ask yourself: Did he quit drinking and get help for his alcohol problem? Did he talk to his minister and confess what he did? Did he seek professional help? Are there little girls in your extended family?

You are exhibiting two classic signs of an abuse victim. One is thinking that people will regard you differently if you disclose that you were victimized. Another is the impulse to "protect" your abuser. I'm all for the power of prayer, but rather than tell your girlfriends, is your mother aware of what happened? If she is unavailable to you, then you should talk to your minister or a trusted counselor at school. If you're afraid this will "betray" your father, call the Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network (RAINN) toll-free at (800) 656-4673. You can speak to one of the counselors there in complete confidence. They are experienced and can guide you about what — or what not — to do next.

How to deal with jet lag

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My wife and I are traveling to Australia. What are your suggestions for minimizing jet lag? We leave Los Angeles at 10:30 p.m. and arrive in Sydney at 8:30 a.m. local time. A suggestion was to keep our original time zone schedule until arrival. It was also suggested that we consider taking a sleeping pill on the plane. We appreciate your thoughts. — S.T.

ANSWER: Our inner clock adjusts how we feel and how the body works according to a light-dark cycle that keeps us awake during the day and asleep during the night. Nighttime secretion of the hormone melatonin readies the body for sleep. Body temperature also prepares us for sleep or for daytime activity. Temperature is lowest in the early morning and highest in the late afternoon. These are only two of the mechanisms involved in keeping us alert and making us groggy.

8:30 a.m. in Sidney will be approximately 6:30 p.m. in your hometown. In preparing for this change, go to sleep an hour earlier on the day before leaving.

When you arrive at your destination, eat breakfast, lunch and dinner according to the appropriate Sydney time. On your first day in Sidney, take 2 or 3 mg of melatonin in the evening, and you can continue that for the next two days.

Since you're arriving in the morning, try to stay awake all day.

Ask your doctor about a sleeping pill to take during your nighttime plane trip. One that is often recommended is Ambien. Use it sparingly and briefly, if your doctor concurs.

Want some personal, unscientific thoughts? Many times I have crossed as many time zones as you are going to cross without taking any precautions or any medicines. I never suffered from jet lag.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister, age 61, has been told she has obsessive-compulsive disorder. What is it? How does it affect her husband? Is it hereditary? — H.B.

ANSWER: An obsession is a recurring thought that generates anxiety. A compulsion is an act, a ritual, performed to banish the obsessive thought. It relieves anxiety. Examples of compulsions are endless hand-washing, neatness that requires expenditures of huge amounts of time, checking and rechecking to see if the oven is turned off, constant straightening of a throw rug's fringes and similar, nonproductive tasks. They can take over a person's life. Obsessive-compulsive disorder, OCD, isn't the fault of the affected person. It most likely has to do with an imbalance of brain messenger chemicals. Genes are partly to blame, but are not the entire story. Your brother-in-law might be exasperated by his wife's compulsions, but if he understands that they are not under her control, he ought to be patient. A therapist can help overcome OCD, and medicines are also a help.

Does wrong book signal dementia?

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: Last August, one of my favorite authors published a new book. My husband told me not to buy it and hinted that his parents were planning to get it for me for Christmas. This was the type of thing they had done before, and I was happy to wait.

However, come Christmas Day, the book they gave me was something entirely different and not one I was eager to read. I was initially exasperated because I had given up several opportunities to buy my book at a discount, and the book they purchased was about hiking. I do not hike, camp or participate in any similar outdoor activities and had absolutely no interest in this book. Although my in-laws had given me inappropriate or head-scratching gifts before, this one took the cake.

Now, a month later, my husband and I are thinking there may be more to it. His mother had specifically told him she was buying me the book I wanted. His concern is that his mother, who is 77, may be suffering from dementia. Her own mother had it for years at that age.

We are not sure if the book thing was a simple mistake or an early sign of a more serious problem. We obviously cannot come out and ask her why she bought a hiking book instead of the one she knew I wanted. We would sound accusatory and ungrateful. Can you suggest a way we could approach her with our concerns without prying? — Concerned Daughter-in-Law

Dear Concerned: There is no need to point out the book's unsuitability. Mom's family history, however, indicates a need to pay attention. Make a point to see and speak to her often. Does she forget familiar names? Have trouble recalling what keys are for? Where the milk goes? Does she follow the conversation? (There also could be hearing loss that prevents her from participating appropriately or medications that interfere with cognition.) We hope she has a good doctor, preferably a geriatrician, who will evaluate her at her next checkup. You might call the doctor in advance and alert him or her.

ACROSS OUR COMMUNITIES

‘Cut-a-thon’ to benefit Skiba family

SALEM — McLaughlin’s Hair Salon will host a “cut-a-thon” from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. All proceeds from the event will be donated to Wayne “Rocky” Skiba and family to assist with medical costs. Knights of Columbus poster contest

LISBON — The Knights of Columbus “Substance Abuse Awareness” Poster Contest was offered to all Columbiana County schools through the Columbiana County Educational Service Center and was open to students ages 8 to 14. Winning entries progress from local (school) to district (county) and state levels of competition, national and finally to the international level. The winning entries at the international level will be used for a series of anti-substance abuse posters. Creative credit is given to the young artists. The posters are distributed throughout the countries in which the Knights of Columbus has a presence.

This year all local student winners were judged at the CCESC by health educators, police, DARE officers and art teachers who donated their time. The local winners, their parents and participating teachers have been invited to attend the awards ceremony at 7 p.m. today at the CCCTC cafeteria. The guest speaker will be Judge Mark Frost.

Awards, trophies and certificates will be presented to the four student winners, and all students will receive certificates of participation at the local and county level contests. For information contact sskiba@neo.rr.com.

EL man pleads guilty to trespass

LISBON — An East Liverpool man accused of assaulting a resident after entering his home pleaded guilty Thursday to aggravated trespass after a prosecutor said the victim was unwilling to proceed.

Anthony Baker, 25, of 1014 Huston Ave., entered the plea to the first-degree misdemeanor through prosecutor’s information in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court. An indictment for felony charges of felonious assault, burglary and domestic violence will be dismissed.

Judge C. Ashley Pike set sentencing for March 25. Assistant Prosecutor Tammie Riley Jones said she’ll be recommending a sentence of 180 days in the county jail, with 69 days credit for time already served and the remaining 111 days suspended. She’ll recommend two years probation and anger management counseling.

Jones told the judge the prosecutor’s information came about due to the unwillingness of the victim to proceed further with the case. Court documents said Baker entered the residence of Aaron McDole on July 1 and assaulted him.
