Still trimming after 50 years
Salem Mayor Jerry Wolford takes a little off the side for Salem resident David Stratton — 50 years after Stratton walked into Jerry's Barber Shop in downtown Salem as the first customer. Wolford put out his barber pole 50 years ago today in 1961 and still cuts hair on Saturday mornings in his shop at 122 S. Ellsworth Ave. The sign in the background lists his costs when he first opened: $1.25 for adults, an extra 25 cents for a flat top and 25 cents for tonic. (Salem News photo by Mary Ann Greier)

Salem firm installs 55 KW wind turbine in Canfield

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

SALEM — Wind Turbines of Ohio LLC just concluded installation of it's 147th wind turbine at Myers Equipment in Canfield on Thursday.

"It's the biggest one in Mahoning County," said Greg Courtney, owner of Wind Turbines on Thursday.

He explained that Ohio Edison had just plugged the 140-foot high, 55 KW Endurance Wind Power turbine into its grid. The turbine's blades are 35 feet long, giving it a 70-foot sweep.

It's also the first 50 KW turbine Courtney's company installed.

"They're hoping to get 70 percent of their electricity from it," Courtney said, explaining Myers will receive a tax incentive, but the company didn't apply for grant money that is available.

He said the whole turbine, fixed atop a self-supporting, lattice-type stand, cost about $350,000 with a $2,000 annual maintenance fee.

Endurance turbines are made in Quebec and Courtney's company is the official dealer for Southwest Windpower Turbines, Rise Energy VAWT, Bergey Turbine and Windswift and is approved by the Ohio Department of Development.

The Endurance turbine can be controlled on site, from the dealer or from the manufacturer's headquarters, Courtney said, adding it can be upgraded too.

The blades are coated with special ice-resistant paint.

An anemometer senses wind gusts and adjusts the turbine operations, motoring it up at lower wind speeds or letting collect, or capture, the wind at higher speeds.

Wind speeds average 12 to 13 miles per hour at 140 feet, numbers that label Ohio as a "moderate wind resource."

Courtney explained the extra energy produced is stored in the power grid.

"The meter will go back and forth, either they will owe Ohio Edison, or Ohio Edison will owe them," he said.

Bicycle race returns to Columbiana July 9

By ANTHONY DOMINIC
Staff Writer

COLUMBIANA — Ohio's largest bicycle race will return to Columbiana for the third straight year.

Tour of the Valley, an annual three-day eco-friendly bicycling event featuring 21 races across three counties, will hold its Columbiana Road Race July 9.

The race, starting and finishing on South Main Street here, will take cyclists on a 33-mile course through New Waterford, Negley, Clarkson and Rogers. The professional category cyclists will complete three laps on the course.

Race director Erin Quinlan said the event, expected to attract more than 300 participants and 4,000 spectators in the tri-county area, is made possible through careful coordination and supportive communities.

"The county sheriffs and city police have been wonderful to work with, as far as handling the courses, and we've really gathered a lot of support," Quinlan said. "We have double the volunteers from last year, as well as a lot of great sponsors."

An award ceremony will be held after the completion of the races, and cash prizes will be paid to the winners of each category. This year's categories include Pro 1, Pro 2, Men's Category 3, Men's Category 4 and 5, Women's Categories 1-4, Master's 40-plus and Juniors.

Quinlan said even more important than the races is the Tour of the Valley's eco-friendly mission.

Still no deals with city unions

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — Mayor Jerry Wolford said Thursday no agreements have been reached with the four separate unions representing police officers, firefighters, utilities workers and service workers.

The collective bargaining contracts expired Thursday, but Wolford said they'll continue with the status quo for now, pending decisions on what's going to happen next.

"We presented our final offers to them. We're very close on most issues," he said Thursday afternoon.

services for the northeast Ohio region. Simcox explained that their facility opened in February of 2007 and currently serves about 3,000 veterans. Veterans are able to see their primary care physician there, as well as mental health services, a lab, optometry and podiatry.

The facility has about 22 employees and provides a total team of health care individuals to help veterans best utilize the services available.

Walker said the goal throughout the state is to provide access to health care for all veterans within 30 minutes or 30 miles of home. For additional or longer care services, veterans go to Wade Park in Cleveland, but the clinic allows them to obtain most services without making the long trip.

Johnson talked about how important some of the services are. Although he said he never served in a war zone during his service, he believes veterans badly need the services, including mental health services.

"I think we are just understanding the psychological impacts of the things they have seen," Johnson said. "Even those who come back completely whole see their friends and comrades."

While Johnson complimented veterans he met along the way and thanked them for their service, veterans were complimentary about the facility. They compared it to bigger facilities and those at other places where they have lived before, talking about the good service and nice

West Branch board ratifies school contracts

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

BELOIT — The West Branch Local school board Thursday night ratified a new two-year contract with the district's classified employees.

The school board approved the contract with the West Branch Classified Education Association (WBCEA) after rescinding the current contract that runs through next June.

Under the new contract, the employees continue with the same terms stipulated in the prior contract — including a 1 percent raise — for the first year, but accept an absolute pay freeze, as well as pay more into health care premiums, in the second. According to schools Superintendent Dr. Scott Weingart, the contract extension provides some time for everybody to evaluate any changes in state funding within the next two years.

"We were very pleased that the WBCEA voted for a new two-year contract," Weingart said. "With the uncertainties of Senate Bill Five and the Ohio budget, the new two-year contract will allow both the district and the WBCEA members a chance to catch our breath and see how all of the changes will play out over the next two years. I believe that the WBCEA members were very realistic and understand that the state revenue is just not there."

The teachers union earlier this month rejected the proposed conditions to its contract and will continue under its current contract which expires June 30, 2012.

In other business, the board hired Tim Fairfield as assistant high school principal on a two-year contract that pays an annual salary of $76,068 for a 223 work-day schedule. He replaces Tom Thompson who had served in the position this past school year.

Fairfield has coordinated the Career Based Intervention (CBI) program in the district for the past four years. He has also served as student council and National Honor Society advisor and assisted with the Freshman Focus orientation program. Prior to his career in education, he worked in restaurant management.

"Mr. Fairfield brings a wide range of experience to this position," Weingart noted. "His experiences outside of education give him a unique perspective into working with young people. As we have gotten to know him over the past couple years, we have been impressed with his work ethic and his ability to work with a wide range of students."

Weingart said the school received nearly 20 qualified applicants for the position.

The board also approved a four-year contract extension for Treasurer Dan Telzrow at an annual salary of $75,200 for a 260-day work schedule.

Telzrow has served as treasurer since January 2009.

Also at the meeting, the board hired Andrew Lamancusa as an intervention specialist, Ashley Vogel as a middle school language arts teacher, Jennifer Ragusa as an intervention specialist, Shelley Wilson as second-grade teacher (currently works as part-time kindergarten teacher and aide in the district), Danielle Smith as a speech pathologist and Sarah Jones as a kindergarten teacher (currently works as a Title Tutor in the district).

The board also hired Kelly Ludwig as custodian, Michael Roberto as an aide and Frank Edie for technology installation. Additionally the board accepted the retirement of middle school teacher Scott Bates (rescinding his retire/rehire agreement in March); and the resignation of custodian Jeff Edwards, speech pathologist Maggie Case and intervention specialist Dayna Vilks.

The board also approved a one-year agreement with Syn-roveice, which provides the district's rapid call system, for $4,900; and revised the tuition reimbursement program for district administrators to establish a limit of $4,000 in total per year for the purpose of reimbursing the actual costs of graduate level tuition from an accredited college or university as outlined in the teachers union contract.

SHERIFF

— A Kevin Drive, Alliance, woman called for a deputy at 2 a.m. Thursday after her boyfriend, who had been drinking, became upset. He then grabbed a rock from the aquarium and struck himself in the head with it before jumping out a window. The boyfriend returned while the deputy was there and appeared to be fine, except for a small cut on his forehead and a bruise above his eye. He declined medical treatment.

— Mollie Wherry of the Quick Mart & More, state Route 45, Lisbon, called for a deputy at 9:43 p.m. Wednesday because a man was harassing employees and asking customers for money. The man was identified as Thomas Joy, who was found in the parking lot at the Veterans Services Commission. Joy was told he would arrested for criminal trespassing if he returned to Quick Mart.

— William Merriman reported at 7:52 p.m. Wednesday a small white pickup was at Quality Aggregate, Carmel Achor Road, Negley, without permission. Merriman later discovered the gate lock had been cut and gasoline was missing from the site.

— A Trinity Church Road, Gavers, woman called for a deputy at 11 a.m. Wednesday because she thought her house had been struck with gunfire from gunshots she heard the night before. The deputy inspected the house and found no evidence it had been struck.

— A state Route 45,

Wellsville, man reported Wednesday he had been getting calls from a man with a foreign accent and coming from a blocked number. That day, the same caller said he was coming to his house to blow it up and shoot his family.

— A Lowmiller Road, Minerva, man reported at 6 p.m. Wednesday Kyle Thrasher and two other people came to him looking for scrap. He told them he had none, and they told him they might go to the old dump on Lowmiller Road. He said he later saw them in his field and told them to leave.

— A Cincinnati woman asked a deputy to check on the welfare of a 6-year-old boy on Hawkins Road, New Waterford, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The boy was fine, and his stepmother said he was upset after being made to come home from his friend's house.

— A woman stolen Wednesday money was reported from the home of her brother while he was hospitalized. Her brother lives on Jimtown Road, East Palestine.

Columbus man gets 4 years for role in shooting

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON — The man accused of driving the get-away vehicle during a shooting crime in East Liverpool was sentenced by Judge Scott Washam to four years in prison Thursday.

According to police, Bryan Carmichael, 22, Columbus, drove the vehicle away from the A-1 Hideaway Bar in East Liverpool's East End on May 25, 2010.

He transported Carlos Garner, 26, Columbus, who was sentenced recently to eight years for felonious assault with a firearms specification after he shot Rick Austin Jr. during a fight in the bar. Also driven away was Tysin Gordon, 25, Columbus, who pleaded guilty to obstructing justice for lying to police about the incident. He was sentenced to one year in prison.

Carmichael was found guilty of complicity to felonious assault.

"Everybody with East Liverpool police did a fantastic job," said Assistant County Prosecutor Ryan Weikart. "Without their dedication, they wouldn't have caught these guys."

According to Weikart, the police located the rental vehicle behind East Liverpool Motor Lodge after the crime, a rental car from Michigan parked with the license plate partially hidden against a hillside. They learned Carmichael had rented two rooms and found the three men inside the room with digital scales, a large amount of cash hidden in their shoes and traces of cocaine.

Trial in death of Salem baby moved to November

Staff Reports

LISBON — The trial for the Salem woman accused in the death of her infant son has been moved back until November.

Miranda V. Todd was scheduled to face charges of murder, involuntary manslaughter and endangering children at a jury trial Aug. 15. But following a conference in the Judge Scott Washam's chambers between both prosecuting and defense attorneys, the trial was pushed back until Nov. 8.

Todd faces 30 years to life in prison if convicted of all three charges. The autopsy report following her child's death showed the 7-month-old had numerous skull and rib injuries.

In other matters in court, Bruce A. Pierce Jr. 32, Annesley Road, East Liverpool, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and receiving stolen property for breaking into an unoccupied home on Nov. 4. Both charges are fifth degree felonies. A sentencing hearing was set for Aug. 29, where he faces a minimum of six months in prison, a maximum of 12 months on each count.

Larry Elkins, 30, Holliday Street, East Liverpool, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and possession of criminal tools, both fifth degree felonies. He is accused of trespassing in a vacant home on 10th Street in Wellsville on Jan. 29. He faces a minimum of six months in prison, a maximum of 12 months on each count. A sentencing hearing was set for Aug. 29.

Defense attorney Richard J. Hura filed a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity on behalf of Andrew P. Taylor, 29, state Route 45, Lisbon, who is charged with assault and criminal damaging. He will be evaluated by a psychiatrist to determine his competency to stand trial.

Peebles store offers totes to support soldiers families

SALEM — The Peebles store is offering shoppers a fashionable way to show their patriotic spirit this Fourth of July.

When customers purchase one of Peebles' American flag-themed reusable shopping totes, all proceeds go directly to Operation Homefront, a national organization providing emergency assistance and other vital support to the families of U.S. soldiers.

The store is located in the Salem Plaza.

Peebles is also giving every shopper who purchases the tote a $5 Bounce Back Reward good on any $25 purchase.

With almost 60,000 bags sold and close to $260,000 raised since the launch in February 2011, Peebles will continue to sell the bags through the end of the year.

Operation Homefront is a national non-profit organization that provides military families with aid in the form of grocery store gift cards, short-term transitional living at Operation Homefront villages, donated vehicles for those who can't afford one, and physical and emotional support for wounded soldiers and their families.

Founded in 2002, Operation Homefront has 24 chapters throughout the US. More about the organization and its services is found at their website.

Make fireworks a safe tradition

If you're planning to use backyard fireworks for the July 4 period, be safe. Take some steps to be sure the weekend and holiday end with no injuries or missing appendages.

The National Council on Fireworks Safety offers a number of cautions.

A major one: Do not mix alcohol and fireworks. The council suggests having a "designated shooter."

Have a hose or bucket of water handy to extinguish any fires. Do not go after a dud firework immediately after it's obvious that it's not going to launch or pop. Wait 20 minutes, then soak it in a bucket of water.

Though parents often find it cute to give small children sparklers, the council recommends no one under the age of 12 be permitted to handle sparklers of any type. Stick them in the ground and light them and let small children enjoy, from a safe distance.

Use common sense. Keep spectators a safe distance away from the shooter, and be sure the shooter is wearing safety glasses.

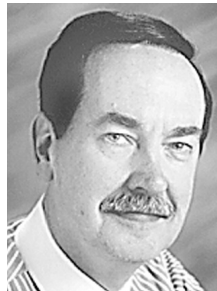

Of course, if the area truly followed the council's advice, the discussion would be a bit different: The council notes local laws should be obeyed. If fireworks are illegal where you live, don't use them.

According to the council's 50-state regulatory summary, that means Ohioans would not possess anything beyond sparklers, trick noisemakers and novelties. Larger consumer fireworks may be sold in Ohio but must be taken out of state within 48 hours (for in-state residents) or 72 hours (for non-Ohio residents), per a form the purchaser must sign.

Still, we know the sounds of most neighborhoods will be filled with a rat-a-tat-tat and kaboom reminiscent of the Revolutionary War, which should be recalled as the real reason for all that incendiary celebrating surrounding July 4.

'Kombat' and first ammendment

CAL THOMAS

Intellectually, I understand the Supreme Court's 7-2 decision that the First Amendment protects the most violent of video games. Experientially, I don't.

It's fine for the majority to say parents have ultimate control over what their children see, but how many members of the Supreme Court have experienced "real" life? Chief Justice John Roberts spoke at the Fourth Circuit Judicial Conference last Saturday and said, "I don't think any of us have a Facebook page or a tweet — whatever that is. But technology is making inroads." It certainly is.

According to the Huffington Post, at least one justice — Stephen Breyer — has a private Twitter account, which he said he used "to track the so-called Green Revolution in Iran following the country's 2009 presidential elections. But he told a House Appropriations general government subcommittee he was testifying in front of that he had been unsure how to erase the account."

Justices live in an unreal world. They have little experience with cyberspace and violent video games. They bring law school minds to a subject that requires practical experience.

Justices enjoy security that protects them from the kind of assaults depicted in games like "Mortal Kombat" and others in which children are allowed to emulate school shooting sprees or virtually carry out assassinations, decapitations, rape, torture and every other unimaginable horror one human being can inflict upon another.

In his dissent, Justice Breyer asked the right question: "What sense does it make to forbid selling to a 13-year-old boy a magazine with an image of a nude woman, while protecting the sale to that 13-year-old of an interactive video game in which he actively, but virtually, binds and gags the woman, then tortures and kills her?"

Justices should step out of their safety zones and experience life on urban streets where mortal combat is for real and shootings are as commonplace as corrupt politicians. Where do armed teenagers in roving gangs get the idea that life is cheap and can be so easily taken without regard to social mores? Children aren't born this way. They must be taught these things, and if parents aren't teaching them — or more accurately "parent," since fathers are usually absent and it doesn't take a sociologist to see a connection — a violent and life-denying culture is happy to fill the moral void.

Does anyone believe Thomas Jefferson could have foreseen a day when violent images of the worst sort ought to be protected by the First Amendment? When he wrote about freedom of the press, did "press" mean blood and gore? And if it did, should anything be banned? Should any child be told "no"?

There are a number of laws governing childhood behavior that have never been successfully challenged. Minors are told they can't smoke or drink until a certain age. Why does the state consider it injurious for minors to take alcohol into their stomachs and nicotine into their lungs, but not harmful for them to absorb the most violent images into their minds?

If alcohol produces a reaction in minors the state finds harmful and if cigarettes injure developing lungs and contribute to rising health care costs, — and so the state imposes age restrictions — what do violent images produce and why can't the law impose age restrictions on those?

Minors can't sign contracts. The state won't let kids drive cars until a certain age, believing, rightly, that they are not mature enough to handle the responsibility. Some argue that even at age 16, the legal driving age in most states, children are still not sufficiently mature enough to drive, as evidenced by the high accident rate among teens.

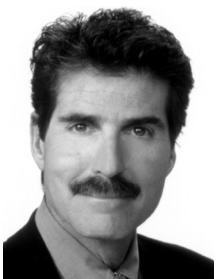

Anyone who has tried to stop an adolescent from ignoring a parent's wishes knows what I'm talking about. In a perfect world, children would listen to, respect and obey their parents. But this is far from a perfect world and parents could use occasional help from the state in preventing violent culture from undermining what's in the best interest of the child, and the country. This ruling by the Supreme Court does not achieve that end.

Independent voters may usher in new day in American politics coming the largest single voting bloc in the country," Reason magazine Editor Matt Welch says. " (T)hey can determine every national election and every ... election for state office. So independent voters — people who refuse to say, 'I'm a Republican or I'm a Democrat' — that's where all the action is."

Welch and Reason.tv Editor in Chief Nick Gillespie just published a book on what to expect from this change: "Declaration of Independents: How Libertarian Politics Can Fix What's Wrong With America." (

The big change they see stems from independents' refusal to be absorbed by any party. "Compare the tea party to the ... Howard Dean antiwar movement," Welch said. "Howard Dean became the chairman (of the) Democratic National Committee. But the tea party has kept an arm's length and said, 'No, we're not going to be Republicans. ... (W)e're going to focus on ... government spending, deficit, and debt, and that's it.' ... And by maintaining that independence they have retained power."

"Independence in politics means that you can actually dictate some of the terms to our overlords," Welch and Gillespie write, adding that we need independence not just in politics but from politics. Welch said, "When we look at the places where government either directly controls or heavily regulates things, like K-12 education, health care, retirement, things are going poorly."

It's very different outside of government where — from culture to retail stores to the Internet — there's been an explosion of choice. "(Y)ou were lucky ... 20 years ago (if) you would see one eggplant in an exotic store," Welch continued. "Now in the crappiest supermarket in America you'll see four or five or six varieties of eggplant, plus all types of different things. ... (W)hen you get independent from politics, things are going great because people can experiment, they can innovate. ... We should squeeze down the (number of) places where we need a consensus to the smallest area possible, because all the interesting stuff happens outside of that."

Government is a zero-sum game: Someone wins, and someone loses, unlike in the market, where it's win-win, where merchant and customer thank each other. "Anytime that you have the government expressing anything," Welch continued, "it's a battle of values. If a government is supporting an art show, people who find that art offensive have a legitimate claim. If a government buys ... a new baseball stadium, well, my wife hates baseball, so how is that fair to her?"

"Fifty-one percent of the people get to tell the other 49 percent what to do, how much to pay, where you have to show up," Gillespie added. In the private sector, everybody gets to pick what he or she wants.

"There are troubles and tradeoffs," Gillespie said. "But ... if somebody starts selling stuff you don't like, you don't hold a rally and you don't try and get a bunch of people to vote to change it. You go to the next grocery store ... or you build your own grocery store. It's hard to do that with schools ... with health care and ... retirement." Of course, as government makes more decisions for people and limits competition, it reduces our choices. It's also given us horrible, unsustainable debt.

But, surprisingly, the Reason folks are optimistic.

"There are cases (of big government rollbacks)," Gillespie said. "New Zealand did this. Canada did this. The U.S. did this after World War II — dramatically ramped down the amount of spending, both in absolute terms and in relative terms as a percentage of economic activity. Political change happens."

But for now, the politicians continue to move us in the wrong direction. Last year, the feds alone added another 80,000 pages of rules. Despite talk of cuts, spending keeps growing. So does the debt.

And yet maybe the optimists are right. Maybe the human spirit is so powerful it will overcome the stupidity of politics.

I sure hope so.

Salem business backs trek by paraplegic bicyclist

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

SALEM — A Salem business is backing a California biker's trek to Washington D.C.

NewTech Corp., which designs and manufactures wheelchair and shopping cart sanitizing equipment, and its marketing firm, Avenues of Marketing, have agreed to fund the remainder of a cross country bicycle ride being made by paraplegic Chet Dyerson.

Dyerson, who was paralyzed from the waist down during a motocross accident 11 years ago, will be traveling through Salem today, making an appearance at the NewTech building, 1052 W. State St., at around 9:30 a.m.

He is raising awareness about spinal cord injuries and collecting donations for research into recovery.

"We just wanted to help his cause," said Craig Gainor, president of NewTech. "So many people are out there paralyzed and there is still research that can be done to get them walking again."

Dyerson is raising funds for the non-profit organization Next Steps Foundation, which helps in the fight for the prevention, treatment and cure of paralysis through research.

For information about the organization visit nextsteps.org.

Wind Turbines of Ohio was founded in 2007 and has offices at 981 East State St. in Alliance.

It has four full-time employees and four part-time employees and will receive its state solar certification, to install solar panels, soon.

Courtney said Tony Colian does all the electrical work on the turbines and Courtney expects to grow the company in its primary market — small commercial and residential properties.

The turbines are basically for people looking for alternative energy solutions and varying sizes range from 1 KW to 100 KW. But the company sells turbines capable of making 1,000 KW to 400 Mega-Watts per year, depending on the wind resource .

The company has installed turbines in six states.

Leetonia board ratifies 3-year staff pact

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA — The Leetonia school board Thursday night ratified a three-year contract with the district's classified staff.

The board approved the contract with Ohio Association of Public Employees (OAPSE) Chapter 224, effective Sept. 1, 2011, through Aug. 31, 2014.

The contract calls for a zero percent increase in pay for all three years, making it seven years the employees will go without a pay raise, the same as the teachers, noted schools Superintendent Rob Mehno.

"Both the teachers and classified staff have really helped us get through so far," Mehno said. "We appreciate them stepping up and putting the district first...to help us continue to operate in a fiscally responsible manner."

In other business, the board hired Todd Duke of Leetonia as varsity soccer head coach for the 2011-2012 school year, pending certification. As previously agreed upon by the board, he will be paid $1,287 for the year.

According to Athletic Director Marcia Duko, the district received only two applications for the position and Duke's experience in the Leetonia Area Sports Association (LASA) coaching the current group of student-athletes made him the best choice.

Board member Michael Rulli expressed reservations about Duke's lack of knowledge of the sport, though, stating he felt he should only be hired if he brings in a group of experienced assistants.

"If this is going to be a serious project, he needs good assistants, he can't do it by himself," Rulli said.

The remainder of the board, as well as Duko, expressed confidence in Duke and lauded his determination to see the program succeed. The motion to hire Duke passed 3 to 0, with Tom Eastek abstaining and Kurt Jennings absent.

Also at the meeting, the board approved a 5-cent increase in lunch prices — to $1.65 for elementary and $1.90 for grades 5-12 - in accordance to a state mandate; hired Jennifer Graff as high school cheerleading advisor for the 2011-2012 school year; awarded a three-month supplemental contract for maintenance supervisor to Elementary Principal Fred Kunar for $1,000 per month; and accepted the resignation of Heather Ramsey, high school Spanish teacher.

The board also awarded an honorary diploma, under the Veterans House Bill 77, to Donald Cross, who attended Leetonia High School in the late 1960s before dropping out to serve in the military.

"We're very proud to give (the diploma) to him," Mehno said. "He had to leave school early to serve his country and we were privileged to hand him his diploma."

Additionally the board passed a resolution that allows the district, through Ohio School Facilities Commission (OSFC) funding left over from the construction of the K-12 campus, to renovate the campus' parking lot without conducting the competitive bid process. The project will cost $200,000, 90 percent paid for by the OSFC due to improper construction when the school was initially built, and thus well over the $25,000 limit that would normally require the bid process.

Board President John Rydarowicz passed along his condolences on behalf of the school board to the family of Ed Smith, who recently passed away unexpectedly. The husband of a teacher in the district, Smith had volunteered many hours at the school on several construction projects.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. July 28 in Room 20 of the K-12 campus.

"We're really trying to educate people on recycling and reducing their impact on the environment," Quinlan said.

After handling fixed costs, proceeds from Tour of the Valley will go toward purchasing carbon credits, which are each equal to one ton of carbon dioxide. Last year, the event was able to offset over 30 tons of carbon dioxide emissions through this process.

Quinlan also said she hopes the event will help to yield long-term results for bike riders in the area.

Those interested in the event can register at Heartland Christian School.

of Beachwood met with representatives of the Fraternal Order of Police and the International Association of Firefighters Local 283 last week. Wolford said they were waiting to hear back from them on what was offered.

They met with members of AFSCME Local 2701 for the service workers and the Utilities Workers of America Local 560 for the utilities workers on Thursday.

He said he's expecting to meet with city council members in executive session at their meeting Tuesday regarding the status of the contract negotiations.

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

— A woman in the 100 block of East Fourth Street, reported at 7:33 a.m. Thursday that someone flattened the driver side tires on a car and the back tires on a pickup on her property. It was unclear whether the air was let out or whether the tires were punctured.

— Police were called at 7:04 a.m. Thursday to a property in the 2500 block of Lexington Avenue where a woman reported her keys and car stolen. She said she was outside at 5 a.m. watering her flowers and placed the keys on the front porch. When she came back outside, before calling police, she discovered the keys were gone, then she checked the parking lot and discovered her car was taken.

— A woman in the 100 block of Woodland Avenue, reported at 1:10 a.m. Thursday that she, her daughter and her daughter's boyfriend were seated on the front porch at 1 a.m. when they saw a blue Chevy Cavalier driven by a male they know in front of the residence. A male in the car threw eggs and hot dogs at her pickup, which was legally parked in front of the house. Police later located the suspect and he was warned to stay away from the property and the people who live there. The report will be sent to the prosecutor's office for review.

— Police were called at 11:27 p.m. Wednesday to the 800 block of West Pershing Street for loud people at an upstairs apartment. Officers didn't hear any disturbance.

— A woman called at 11:09 p.m. Wednesday regarding a reckless operator in the 1900 block of East State Street. An officer found the vehicle in question and the motorist said he was drinking coffee and may have drifted, but he was fine.

— A man in the 300 block of Vine Avenue reported at 9:17 p.m. Wednesday that he was receiving harassing phone calls on his cell phone and recently learned the identity of the female caller. An officer contacted her and told her if the calls continue, there will be criminal charges.

— A man in the 100 block of West Third Street, reported at 9:07 p.m. Wednesday that the tenant in the adjoining apartment was pounding on the wall. The neighboring tenant denied the allegation, claiming the other tenant's child was making the noise. The other tenant notified the landlord about the problem.

— Anthony Cross, 64, of 13561 Western Reserve Road, was cited for failure to yield during a left turn at 6:09 p.m. Wednesday after his eastbound car turned left in the 700 block of West State Street and struck a westbound vehicle driven by Corie McCoy, 20, of 721 E. Fifth St. Cross and his passenger, 58-year-old Margaret Cross, of the same address, were both taken to Salem Community Hospital for treatment of possible injuries.

— A person who wished to remain anonymous came to the police station at 5:43 p.m. Wednesday to turn in drug paraphernalia to be destroyed, but didn't want to provide further details about it. Police destroyed the paraphernalia.

— A man in the 800 block of E. Sixth St., reported at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday that someone stole 50 pounds of copper wire from his property.

— A woman reported at 2:42 p.m. Wednesday that someone left a wallet in the women's bathroom of a South Lundy Avenue business. The wallet was placed in the police lost and found.

— A woman in the 100 block of South Union Avenue, called at 2:27 p.m. Wednesday to report a domestic dispute between her husband and son. The report said they argued over the son not listening, sleeping until late afternoon and refusing to help around the house. She's planning to talk with Juvenile Court.

— Tammy Sauers of Cheap Tobacco of East Second Street reported an incident with a customer at 2:10 p.m. Wednesday, with possible charges pending. The customer picked up five cartons of Chisum Vanilla-Flavored cigars, the sale was rung up and the cartons bagged, then the customer threw two personal checks valued at $63 at the cashier and walked toward the door, grabbing two cartons of Chisom Cherry-Flavored cigars on the way out. Two of the clerks yelled at him and chased him out. They were able to get all the merchandise back, with the manager explaining they're not permitted to take checks.

— Mike Mahouski reported at 1:29 p.m. Wednesday that he was in the 500 block of East Pershing Street when a younger couple handed him some cash money they said they found near a business. They left without providing a name. The money was given to police for safekeeping until an owner can provide proper information.

— Cedrick Washington, 26, of Alliance, was cited for assured clear distance after his vehicle struck the rear of another northbound vehicle driven by Nickolas Sego, 23, of 769 W. Pershing St., who was stopped on South Lincoln Avenue for the light at Franklin Avenue at 12:14 p.m. Wednesday.

— A woman called at 11:23 a.m. Wednesday to report a barking dog in the 1100 block of East Pershing Street. Officers saw a woman and two children in the yard with the dogs and the dogs were not barking.

— Officers were requested at 11:06 a.m. Wednesday by Visiting Physicians of Boardman to check the welfare of a man in the 1300 block of South Lincoln Avenue. He was very alert and oriented and appeared to be fine.

— A resident of the Lexington Avenue apartments, called at 2:06 p.m. Tuesday to report a problem with a family member. She was told her options.

PERRY TOWNSHIP

— Jennifer Dividio, 25, of 462 1/2 Franklin Avenue, was cited for fictitious plates after a traffic stop at 7:44 p.m. Tuesday on West State Street.

— Police were called at 12:36 p.m. Tuesday to check the welfare of a woman involved in a domestic dispute the previous day in the 600 block of Main Street. Both parties admitted to having an argument, but no violence occurred.

— An Allied Waste trash truck struck a mailbox in the 400 block of Pidgeon Road at 12:31 p.m. Tuesday, causing damage to the mailbox and post. The company will repair the damage.

— The manager of Manor Leasing reported at 10:05 a.m. Tuesday that a customer failed to pay his vehicle payments and may have left the state with the vehicle, a 2002 BMW. The matter will be sent to the prosecutor's office.

— A woman in the 1000 block of Cunningham Road reported at 12:38 p.m. Monday that two juvenile children were at their father's residence without an adult present, which is required by the court. She said she was going to pick them up and take them. Police learned the father has custody and the grandmother of the children had arrived. The mother was told the children had to stay at the father's residence and she had to leave.

— A woman in the 1100 block of Prospect Street reported at 2:17 p.m. Sunday that she was receiving harassing text messages. She was told to contact the phone company.

— A resident in the 400 block of Benton Road called at 2:18 a.m. Sunday to have his intoxicated father removed from his residence. The father left before police arrived.

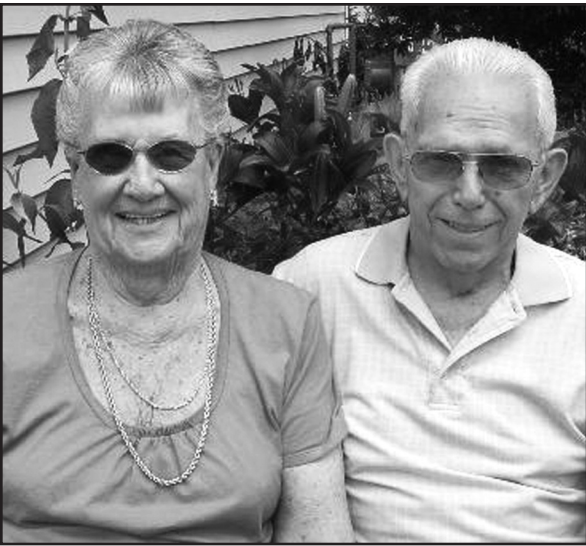

— Police responded to Stewart Road after receiving a call at 9:29 p.m. June 25 for loose cattle in the road. The owner of the cattle was contacted to collect them.

LISBON

— Shalynn M. Vecchio, 19, Depot Road, Lisbon, was cited for failure to an assured declared distance after she drove into the rear of a Blazer driven by Frederick V. Joy, 60, Fife Coal Road, Wellsville, sending Joy and his passenger, Rosemary Keller, 46, to the hospital. The accident occurred on North Market Street north of Beaver Street at 10:43 a.m. Thursday.

— A resident called at 9:34 p.m. Wednesday to report seeing people in an abandoned house at 889 N. Market St.

— A Sunset Drive woman reported Thursday someone drove through her lawn.

Clerk retiring
Linda Peruchetti shares a moment with Assistant County Prosecutor Tammy Jones during Peruchetti's retirement party Thursday at the Columbiana County Courthouse. Peruchetti once came for jury duty and found a home at the courthouse, taking a position she found through a friend and working as a deputy clerk in the treasurer's office for more than 27 years. Her husband, Gary, also retired Thursday from his position at Brilex Industries in Youngstown. (Salem News photo by Deanne Johnson)

Crime watch signs
From left, Salem Mayor Jerry Wolford, Salem Perry Township Crime Watch Director Roe Haskin and Salem Police Chief Bob Floor display one of the new crime watch warning signs that will be posted on the main roads leading into the city. Floor secured five of the large signs through the Columbiana County Emergency Management Agency, with the cost covered through 2008 Citizen Corps grants. The city already has some smaller signs posted throughout the city. (Salem News photo by Mary Ann Greier)

‘The Bull’ ready for ‘Real Deal’

Campbell native fights Mathis on Ghost Promotions card

By B.J. LISKO
Salem News Sports Editor

YOUNGSTOWN — Winston Mathis tends to try to tie up his opponents and slow down fights. It’s worked for the Stockbridge, Ga. native in seven of his 10 professional bouts. But if there’s one thing that his opponent on “The Real Deal” card tonight at the Covelli Center in Youngstown doesn’t do, is get tied up.

Jake “The Bull” Giuriceo (11-0-1, 3 KO) isn’t just gaining notoriety for adding to his win column, but for how he goes about doing it. Those wins aren’t coming sloppy, and as the old saying goes, “If you mess with the bull, you’re gonna get the horns.”

The Bull returns to Covelli

Winston Mathis (7-3, 2 KO) left, and Jake “The Bull” Giuriceo (11-0-1, 3 KO) will square off tonight as part of “The Real Deal” at the Covelli Center. The event is the first put on by Ghost Promotions — run by Southside Boxing’s Jack Loew and former middleweight champion Kelly “The Ghost” Pavlik. Headlining the card is another Loew-trained fighter, Dannie Williams (17-1, 14 KO). The show begins at 7 p.m. (Salem News/B.J. Lisko)

Danica still weighing options for next year

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Danica Patrick remains unaffected by the swirl of speculation that trails her everywhere, saying she has no timetable for making a decision about her racing future. Patrick reiterated Thursday at Daytona International Speedway that she’s in no hurry to chose between IndyCar and NASCAR.

“These things, as I’ve said from the beginning of the year, are complicated and they take time,” Patrick said before the Nationwide Series practice. “Whether I’m coming here or not has yet to be signed, sealed and delivered. I might not be. Only time will tell. That timeline on my side of things, I’m really not sure. All I know is that I’m told I have a job to do in the car and you do your job and we’ll do our job and they fill me in from time to time. But it’s only July.”

Patrick’s pending decision has been a major topic of conversation all season, much of it coming as she jumped from NASCAR to the IndyCar Series and back again.

Finding success in both series could make her choice even tougher. She was fourth in a Nationwide race at Las Vegas in March, the best finish for a female driver in

Stateline Classic goes beyond regulation for first time in 32 years

Stopping the run

Ohio’s Mike King (90) of Salem along with Ed Crump (53) of Western Reserve and John Eckroth of Steubenville stop a Pennsylvania run by Maurcus Little. (Salem News/Patti Schaeffer)

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. — East Palestine’s Mike Salyers couldn’t have done it any better in the overtime session of Thursday’s 32nd annual Penn-Ohio Stateline Classic at Geneva College.

After Pennsylvania scored a touchdown to go up 16-10, Salyers came off the end and blocked the extra point kicked by Beaver’s Nathan Mick.

He thought he had made the play of the game.

“I thought we just won the game if our offense could score a touchdown,” Salyers said. “I jumped up and everybody was patting me on the back. I thought I had made the play that won the game.”

Salyers had admitted he never blocked a kick before.

And he still hasn’t officially. After a conference with game officials and coaches — one of two throughout the last portion of the game — the block of the kick was invalidated as it violated the special rules set for the game.

“I didn’t know we couldn’t go after a blocked kick off the end,” Salyers said. “They never told us.”

Mick made the next kick and Pennsylvania’s defense stopped Ohio on the 3 on the Buckeyes’ offensive overtime possession to preserve the 17-10 victory.

Crestview’s Carter Hill was named the MVP for the Buckeyes. He completed seven of 10 passes for 130 yards and ran for another 35 more.

Scott leads after first round at Aronimink

Course is playing more like U.S. Open than U.S. Open did

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa. — Adam Scott must have felt as though he got another crack at the U.S. Open on Thursday in the AT&T National. Only this course felt more like a U.S. Open.

Aronimink built on its growing reputation when only 28 players managed to break par in the opening round despite warm sunshine and a mild breeze. Scott and Hunter Haas, who were tied atop the leaderboard at 4-under 66, followed a U.S. Open formula by trying to keep the ball in play off the tee and being cautious on the greens.

“It’s a great golf course, obviously, but in great shape,” Scott said. “But they’ve set the course up beautifully. The greens are perfect and they’ve got very generous fairways, but severe rough, which is a nice balance. There are good scores out there, but you have to play well.”

The U.S. Open became a talking point because of how hard players had to work for their scores on a course with firm fairways, fast greens and several diabolical hole locations. The average score was about 71.5, and all but four of the holes played over par.

Rain softened the course at Congressional two weeks ago, and while Rory McIlroy turned in a command performance with a record 16-under 268, the 20 scores under par at the end of the week were unusual for a U.S. Open.

“They obviously didn’t get the greens where they really would have liked them,” said Scott, who missed the cut by one shot at Congressional. “And here, I think they’ve got the greens probably where the U.S. Open would have liked them on a Thursday.”

Scott holed birdie putts of 20 feet and 25 feet early in his round, and finished with a 15-foot par save on the 17th and another 15-footer for birdie on the 18th. His lone bogey came on a three-putt from the fringe on the difficult 10th, and he sion with the rules, but you have to follow them,” Hill said.

A punt by United’s Ryan Powell with just over a minute remaining in regulation also had the Pennsylvania coaches seething. They argued that rugby-style punts were not a part of the rules and that had both head coaches and game organizers going at it at midfield for about five minutes.
In the end, though, it wasn’t special teams that did the Buckeyes in. It was two costly second half fumbles.
“Turnovers will kill you,” Hill said. “You can’t win when you turn the ball over.”
Ohio started off with a nearly picture-perfect opening drive. Hill hit all three of his passes on the drive including a 21-yard strike to Western Reserve’s Ryley Sheptock. Poland’s John Medina capped the 12-play, 80-yard drive with a 4-yard plunge to give Ohio a 7-0 advantage.
Sheptock had a stellar game running down balls from Hill and United’s Josh McLaughlin. He caught five passes for 115 yards including a 54-yard flea-flicker strike from Hill.
“We practiced that a few times, but I never thought we would actually use it,” Sheptock said. “It seemed like that ball was in the air for more than five seconds. It was crazy.”
That trick play help set up Ethan Witmer of South Range’s 30-yard field goal with 1:32 left in the first half. That would be Ohio’s last score.
Pennsylvania countered the first Ohio scoring drive with an 18-play, 80-yard drive which ended with a Lukas Turley 5-yard touchdown run up the middle to make it 7-7 at the end of the first quarter. The Keystoneers converted two fourth downs on the drive along with three third downs.
Pennsylvania fumbled two times as well, but it didn’t derail the Keystoneers’ poise. Mick was able to boot a 33-yard field goal with 8:48 left in regulation to tie the game.
Mick also had a chance to win the game at the end of regulation, but his 54-yard attempt was well short.
“I wish I could have gone out with a win, but I have no regrets,” Sheptock said. “This was a lot of fun.”

Game Notes
— Captains for Ohio were Willie Leavell, Carter Hill, Josh McLaughlin and Indian Creek’s Nick Otto.

FIGHT

“It’s gonna be the typical Jake Giuriceo fight,” Giuriceo said. “He likes to hold and tie up, and I’m not gonna let that happen.”
History is often the best indicator when it comes to a fighter early in his career, and when opponents have tried to slow down the light welterweight, he knocks them right off. Giuriceo’s last fight against Dedrick Bell in May was a flurry of punches — well, in Giuriceo’s case anyway. The Youngstown-area native landed numerous quality shots and won the fight by unanimous decision.
“We’ve just been trying to own the things we’ve been doing,” he said. “We didn’t make any changes coming into this fight.”
Giuriceo did make changes this past winter when his manager Joe Corvino sent him to California to work with former bantamweight Franke Duarte. With Duarte’s help and the ever-constant training and support from his main trainer Keith Burnside of Burnside Boxing, Giuriceo made huge strides. It showed when he came back to Youngstown and knocked out Angel Hernandez.
But Giuriceo admitted that with this fight it’s not so much about making another giant stride, but basically staying the course and coming away with a quality win.
With other bouts looming on the horizon, one of which

Former middleweight champion Kelly "The Ghost" Pavlik speaks to the media as his trainer Jack Loew looks on at a press conference Thursday for "The Real Deal" set for tonight at the Covelli Center in Youngstown. The fight is the first for Loew and Pavlik's Ghost Promotions company and features another Loew-trained boxer Dannie Williams (17-1, 14 KO) in the main event. Fighting second to last on the card is Campbell native Jake Giuriceo (11-0-1, 3 KO). Local fan favorite Billy Lyell is also fighting among others. The show starts at 7 p.m. (Salem News/B.J. Lisko) will likely be for some sort of title belt on Aug. 13, Giuriceo says he’s going to play it smart tonight.

“I’m not really looking for a knockout,” he said. “I’m just going to fight my fight and God willing get another win. It’s important for me to get in and get out safe.”

Giuriceo is fighting in the second to last fight tonight at “The Real Deal” — the first event put on by Ghost Promotions. The company is the brainchild of Southside Boxing’s Jack Loew and former middleweight champion Kelly

“The Ghost” Pavlik. Their idea is to put on the best possible, highest quality boxing event they can, and they’ve recognized that Giuriceo is one of the area’s top boxing prospects.
“We didn’t cut any corners,” Loew said. “We put everyone on the card we said we were going to put on.”

Headlining the night is “Dangerous” Dannie Williams, a St. Louis native who now trains with Loew and calls Youngstown home. Williams (17-1, 14 KO) will face Oscar Cuero (13-6, 10 KO) in a scheduled 10-rounder.
“I’m ready to put on a show for Youngstown so I can be a native like Kelly Pavlik,” Williams said.
Also on the card is Niles native Billy Lyell among others. Giuriceo says the added star-power to “The Real Deal” hasn’t been a distraction. He embraces the chance to return to the site of his first professional fight — even if it is outdoors this time.
And even though there’s a possible title fight set for later this summer, he enters his bout tonight relaxed and confident.
“I really just train and move forward day to day,” he said. “There’s really no added pressure. With experience everything gets easier.”
The show starts at 7 p.m. and an intermission will feature a fireworks display.
Giuriceo is looking for his usual fireworks in the ring, and according to “The Bull,” the only real pressure will be the kind he plans to put on Mathis.
“We’re gonna stay on this kid,” Giuriceo said.
VIP tickets for the fight are sold out, but general admission tickets can still be purchased tonight at the Covelli Center.

NASCAR history, and has posted four top-10s in her last five IndyCar events. She also led 10 laps in the Indianapolis 500, a brief stint out front that left her hungry for another shot at open-wheel’s showcase event.
So what will sway her?
“It comes down to my gut and my desire and where I feel like I’ll be the happiest and where I feel like I’ll be able to have the most success,” she said. “And then from those thoughts my team explores the options. But it always starts with where I want to be.”

Patrick expressed little concern about reports her primary sponsor, GoDaddy.com, is being sold and said it would have no effect on her future.
The domain-name registration company known for its racy Super Bowl ads is reportedly close to being bought by two private investment firms for up to $2.5 billion. Patrick said GoDaddy CEO Bob Parsons hasn’t said anything about a pending deal.

“It hasn’t affected my day,” Patrick said. “Still working with all the same people. I don’t know if it’s true. ... Unless I hear from Bob and he tells me it’s been sold, it’s all speculation till that point. For me, it’s all status quo.”
Parsons nixed rumors about a potential sale earlier in the year, Patrick said, but has been mum in recent weeks.
“I remember this came up in the early part of the year,” Patrick said. “He called and told me that it wasn’t true, and that was it. I haven’t heard from him about it. I don’t know if that means it’s being done or if it’s not going to be done. Perhaps they don’t know that answer either.”

“So I guess that why it’s still in speculation mode as opposed to reported true or reported false. Will that affect my relationship with them? I don’t know. It might not change anything. It might change everything. I’m not really sure. But like I said, right now for me it’s still status quo. We’re just trying to do a good job for them and represent them well.”
Patrick finished 10th in her last Nationwide race in Chicago in early June, and will return to IndyCar next week in Toronto. This weekend, though, she will try to hone her skills at Daytona. She was 14th at NASCAR’s most famous track in the Nationwide season opener despite struggling with some aspects of the new tandem racing. She turned two laps in practice Thursday before scrapping the wall and returning to the garage.

“I need some practice,” she said. “I want to be efficient at it, good at it, before the race starts.”

Sharapova reaches final

Marks her first Wimbledon finals appearance since 2004

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — So what if Maria Sharapova managed to win only two of the first 13 points of her Wimbledon semifinal Thursday, dropping the first three games? So what if she bungled her serve so badly that she double-faulted 13 times?

All that mattered to Sharapova was that she roared — well, shrieked — her way back into the match, taking 12 of the last 16 games to beat wild-card entry Sabine Lisicki of Germany 6-4, 6-3 and return to the final at the All England Club for the first time since 2004, when she won the title at 17.

“It’s been many years, but it’s a really great feeling,” Sharapova said. “Today wasn’t my best match of the championships, so I was real happy to get through in two sets. But, yeah, it’s pretty amazing to be back on that stage.”

In Saturday’s final, Sharapova will play No. 8 Petra Kvitová of the Czech Republic, who hit nine aces and dictated points throughout her 6-1, 3-6, 6-2 victory over No. 4 Victoria Azarenka of Belarus.

Sharapova’s seven-year gap between Wimbledon finals is the longest for a woman in the Open era, which began in 1968.

“I’m in a different stage in my career. I’m 24 years old. I have a lot of experience behind my back,” said Sharapova, who hasn’t lost a set during the tournament. “But I’m still playing tennis.”

That wasn’t always a given: Months after winning her third, and most recent, Grand Slam title at the 2008 Australian Open, Sharapova was sidelined with a serious injury to her right shoulder. When rehab wasn’t enough, she had surgery in October 2008. It was an arduous road back, and only now has she returned to the top of the game.

“You’re going to have certain doubts, I mean, when you go through something like that,” the fifth-seeded Sharapova said, “knowing that not too many players have recovered fully.”

Kvitová, who lost in last year’s Wimbledon semifinals, is the first left-handed woman to reach a Grand Slam title match since Monica Seles at the 1998 French Open. She would be the first lefty to win the Wimbledon trophy since 1990, when Martina Navratilova — who was born in Czechoslovakia and was a spectator at Centre Court on Thursday — earned her ninth title.

“There’s been so few women lefties that were good,” Navratilova said. “For Petra, I think the key’s always been to minimize those streaks of bad play. She’s very streaky.”

There’s little question who the favorite is Saturday: Sharapova will be playing in her fifth major final; the 21-year-old Kvitová in her first. Sharapova seeks her 24th career title; Kvitová her fifth.

“Experience is an incredible asset,” Sharapova said, “because you feel like you’ve been through many different situations.”

In their only previous meeting, Sharapova beat Kvitová in straight sets on an indoor hard court at Memphis last year.

Then again, here’s what Kvitová’s coach, David Kotyza, took away from that: “Petra knows how to play against her.”

As for whether Kvitová might be intimidated against Sharapova, Kotyza said: “I don’t think so. No. She doesn’t care who she plays.”

In Thursday’s opening semifinal, Kvitová wasn’t distracted one bit by Azarenka’s shot-accompanying screeching — which drew snickers from the crowd on the match’s very first point — or the fire alarm that droned on for a couple of minutes in the fifth game.

Punctuating nearly every point she won with a yelp, Kvitová showed why she was honored as the WTA newcomer of the year in 2010. Still, she acknowledged afterward that, as recently as two weeks ago, “I didn’t think, like, that I could win” the Wimbledon title.

Azarenka begged to differ. “She can beat anybody, any day, because right now she has really good game,” Azarenka said. “She’s really going for it.”

Indeed, Kvitová took the initiative, accumulating a 40-9 edge in winners. Her serve helped her get through some important moments: She hit three aces in the last game of the first set, and she dug out of a 15-40 hole while serving in the final set’s fifth game, ending it with another ace.

Sharapova was forced to tweak her service motion after her operation, and Thursday’s match is only the latest evidence that there’s still a problem. While losing in the French Open semifinals a month ago, she hit 10 double-faults, including on the final point. Against the 62nd-ranked Lisicki, Sharapova put in only 48 percent of her first serves.

There were two double-faults in Sharapova’s first service game. Two more in her next gave Lisicki a break point, meaning Sharapova was one point from trailing 4-0.

This, then, would be where things turned. Sharapova hit a serve ruled out; she challenged the call, and the replay review showed the ball landed in. The next serve was good, and Lisicki wound up trying a drop shot — a tool she used to near-perfection in her quarterfinal victory over 2007 Wimbledon finalist Marion Bartoli — that sailed wide.

Eventually, Sharapova held serve there, and broke in the next game, and was on her way.

“The first three games she played very well, and I did quite the opposite. She served better, and I was giving her way too many free points on my serve,” Sharapova said. “And then I told myself to take it one point at a time and really focus. I felt like I just kind of got in my zone.”

Soon enough, she was marking shot after shot with her high-pitched grunts and celebrating point after point with her signature shouts of “Come on!” Up in the player guests’ seats, her fiance, New Jersey Nets guard Sasha Vujacic, would raise a fist or clap and say, “Bravo!”

Sharapova closed the first set, oddly enough, with a 103 mph ace, threw her head back and screamed.

Fully in control, Sharapova raced to a 3-0 lead in the second set, as some drops of rain began to fall. Lisicki tried, without success, to talk the chair umpire into suspending play — it would take a half-hour or so to close the stadium’s retractable roof.

Play continued, and Sharapova kept smacking ground-stroke winners on the run, generally looking like someone ready to regain the championship.

“The next match starts from scratch,” she cautioned. “Everything that kind of went before that doesn’t really matter.”

to limit the damage.

“I didn’t do anything crazy on the greens. I just played them solid,” Ogilvie said. “This course is set up like a U.S. Open. The fairways are a little bit wider, but it’s definitely playing similar — except for this year’s U.S. Open.”

Garrigus was the low American at the U.S. Open, where he tied for third. He shot all four rounds under par at Congressional, and still finished 10 shots behind. He struggled to break par at Aronimink and was close to the lead after one round.

“Anything under par today is great,” he said. “They changed a few of the greens, a little more severe around the edges, so you can hit a pretty good shot and not get rewarded. But you know where you can miss it. You know where you can’t hit and you know where you can.

“I don’t think double digits is going to win this week.”

not trying to qualify for the U.S. Open, and he said even some of his friends at home in San Diego asked him why he didn’t qualify.

“I told them I was playing a U.S. Open in two weeks on this course,” he said with a grin.

That was the consensus of most players, and details of some of the rounds added more credence.

Vegas managed to get around Aronimink without making a bogey. On No. 16, the easiest of the two par 5s, Wilson figured he had squandered his chance until he flopped a shot out of the rough and it firmly struck the pin and dropped for eagle.

Ogilvie said the key to his round was a bogey on No. 10. From where he hit his tee shot, left into the deep grass and trees, he figured he would be lucky to make double bogey. Instead, he managed to get up-and-down from about 90 yards called it a “stress-free” round.

The 30-year-old Australian wasn’t even planning to play the AT&T National, but felt his game was in decent shape and that he could use another start. So he lined up Tiger Woods’ caddie, Steve Williams, for another week of work. This time, they figure to stick around a little longer.

Haas ran off four straight birdies on the back nine early in his round and he was the only player to get to 5 under until he got out of position of the tee at No. 7 and made his lone bogey.

When he played his practice round Tuesday, it was raining. Haas was surprised how quickly the course became firm, especially the greens. The reminder came from a scoreboard he saw just before he teed off, showing four players from the morning batch at no better than 67 — Joe Ogilvie, Jhonattan Vegas, Dean Wilson and Kyle Stanley.

“I said, ‘Wow, I thought the scores would be a lot lower than that.’ And that’s just kind of where I put my mindset on the scoring and how to play this golf course,” Haas said.

Pat Perez was in the group at 68 that included Vijay Singh, Rickie Fowler, Justin Leonard and Robert Garrigus. Perez didn’t play the U.S. Open and felt as though he did on Thursday. Perhaps most telling is that Perez had no complaints about his score.

“This place is a month away from playing the U.S. Open,” Perez said. “If they brought the fairways in, no joke this course is ready for a U.S. Open doing very little. Because if you hit it in the rough five or six times, you’re dead.”

And then there was Chris Riley, who opened with a 69. He received some criticism for ries since 2003, beating the Toronto Blue Jays 6-2 on Thursday night.

The Pirates had lost 17 straight interleague series away from home since taking two of three at Tampa Bay in June 2003.

Karstens (6-4) allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings, improving to 3-0 with a 1.52 ERA in six June starts. He walked one and struck out two.

fun.”

Manager Clint Hurdle called Karstens’ solid first half “a big unexpected pleasure.”

“We thought he could come in and get us innings and win a game but the volume and depth of games he’s pitching and the efficiency, walks to strikeouts, hits, his WHIP, all of it, the ERA, he’s knocked the bottom out of some things,” Hurdle said.

Solo home runs by J.P. Arencibia and Yunel Escobar were the only blemishes for Karstens, who has allowed five home runs in his past two starts, all solo. The right-hander has given up 16 homers this season; all but one have been solo shots.

“It’s not like it’s happening later in the game or earlier in the game,” Karstens said. “I’ve just got to make some better pitches down in the zone. Usually all the home runs, except for a couple, have been up. It’s one of those things I’ve got to work on.”

As a staff, Pittsburgh pitchers have surrendered 10 home runs in the past five games. Nine of the 10 have been solo homers.

Chris Resop worked the eighth, Tony Watson got one out in the ninth and Jose Veras pitched around a triple by Aaron Hill to finish it for the Pirates, who have won six of eight. With NL Central leaders Milwaukee losing 5-0 and getting swept out of Yankee Stadium on Thursday, the Pirates are two games behind the first-place Brewers.

“Two games out going into July,” outfielder Matt Diaz said. “We’re really excited about that.

“We know no one else thinks we’re in a race at all,” he added, “but we think we are and we’re hoping to be here to stay.”

In a tight Central, where four teams are separated by two games, Karstens acknowledged he’s already started scoreboard watching.

“Always,” he said. “I was

NBA to lock out players after no new deal

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA’s thrilling season came with a high price tag. LeBron’s move to Miami and Dirk’s title in Dallas couldn’t hide a simple fact: Owners insisted they were losing money, perhaps $300 million this season, and weren’t interested in subsidizing a system they felt guaranteed they’d keep losing more. So the NBA will lock out its players, a long-expected move that puts the 2011-12 season in jeopardy and comes as the NFL is trying to end its own work stoppage that began in March.

The latest lockout begins at 12:01 EDT on Friday. It will last until player and owners can agree on a new collective bargaining agreement, one owners demand must give all teams a chance to profit.

“We had a great year in terms of the appreciation of our fans for our game. It just wasn’t a profitable one for the owners, and it wasn’t one that many of the smaller market teams particularly enjoyed or felt included in,” Commissioner David Stern said. “The goal here has been to make the league profitable and to have a league where all 30 teams can compete.”

Despite a three-hour meeting Thursday and a final proposal from the players — which NBA leaders said would have raised average player salaries to $7 million in the sixth year of the deal — the sides could not close the enormous gulf between their positions.

“The problem is that there’s such a gap in terms of the numbers, where they are and where we are, and we just can’t find any way to bridge that gap,” union chief Billy Hunter said. All league business is officially on hold, starting with the free agency period that would have opened Friday. The NBA’s summer league in Las Vegas already has been canceled, preseason games in Europe were never scheduled, and players might have to decide if they want to risk playing in this summer’s Olympic qualifying tournaments without the NBA’s help in securing insurance in case of injury.

Lehman set for Montreal Championship

BLAINVILLE, Quebec (AP) — With the Montreal Championship set to begin Canada Day, Champions Tour leader Tom Lehman didn’t miss the occasion to get into the holiday spirit.

“Does that mean we take the day off and sit at the range and drink beer?” Lehman joked Thursday after his pro-am round at Fontainebleau Golf Club.

Lehman and defending champion Larry Mize will tee off Friday in the second edition of the event.

Mize’s victory last year was his first in an official tournament in 17 years, dating to the 1993 Buick Open.

“The nice thing is I’m the only one that has won here before so you’ve got to use that as a positive to your advantage,” said Mize, the 1987 Masters winner. “It’s just great to be back and playing here and I’m just looking forward to getting back out and playing in front of these great crowds.”

The 52-year-old Georgian will be hard-pressed to defend his title against a field headed up by Lehman, a three-time winner this year who leads the Schwab Cup standings.

“I’ve had good momentum throughout the year,” said Lehman, who has six top-10 finishes in 10 events. “My game is good but there are a lot of other players who are playing very well, so it should be a very competitive tournament. But I have high expectations, obviously.”

Lehman, the 1996 British Open winner, can only add to his points lead. His nearest competition, No. 2 Nick Price and No. 3 Tom Watson, are taking the week off.

“The fact that they are not here, during the course of the year it balances out,” Lehman said. “I play some events that they don’t and they play some events that I don’t, so typically I don’t worry about it. I just try to get a good game plan for this week and do the best I can this week, and then I’ll take what I get.”

Hale Irwin, the Champions Tour’s career leader with 45 wins, had his 203rd top-10 finish Sunday in the Dick’s Sporting Goods Open in Endicott, N.Y., tying Bob Charles’ tour record.

The 66-year-old Irwin has finished in the top-10 five times in 11 events this year, including a fourth-place finish at the Senior PGA Championship in Louisville in late May, after accomplishing the feat just three times over the course of the three previous years combined.

‘Macho Man’ Savage died from heart disease

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A medical examiner says something went wrong with professional wrestler “Macho Man” Randy Savage’s heart before he crashed his car and declared the cause of death as heart disease.

The autopsy released Thursday reveals that 58-year-old Randy Poffo, known professionally as Randy Savage, had an enlarged heart with severe blocking of his coronary arteries. With only minor injuries from the crash, the Tampa Bay area medical examiner determined the cause of death to be heart disease.

Authorities say Savage was driving in Pinellas County May 20 when he lost consciousness and crashed into a tree. He was later pronounced dead at a hospital. Toxicology results showed small traces of alcohol and hydrocodone in Poffo’s system, but officials say the amounts wouldn’t have factored into the crash.

Still talking: NFL, players meet all day
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell and NFLPA head DeMaurice Smith met again Thursday, expanding talks on a pro football labor deal for the first time this week to include owners and players.

Sitting down with U.S. Magistrate Judge Arthur Boylan at a Minneapolis law firm were a handful of owners — John Mara of the New York Giants, Clark Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs, Jerry Jones of the Dallas Cowboys and Robert Kraft of the New England Patriots — and players including Jeff Saturday of the Indianapolis Colts, Brian Waters of the Kansas City Chiefs and Domonique Foxworth of the Baltimore Ravens.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 7/01/11

The new moon in Cancer and a partial eclipse of the sun are aspects that would have been feared by ancient civilizations who saw the disappearance of the moon and the obstruction of the sun as definite snubs from the gods. Now the omen is considered auspicious, signifying renewal. Take this chance to recharge your mind, body and spirit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Sometimes it seems unfair that the other guy gets to pick the fruit from the tree you planted. Today fortune favors you, and you wonder how you got so lucky as to eat the fruit from a tree you didn't plant.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You hate to ask people for anything you think you could provide for yourself. But get over it. Social scientists have proved that your helpers are more en- amored of you than those you help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Raise your expectations. If you accept your loved ones as they are, they will relax and become less than they could be. If you treat them as though they have already reached their potential, they just might do it.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). If you're going to make an assumption, let it be one that will enhance your life. It does you no good to assume that when bad things happen, it's "just your luck." Assume that fortune is smiling on you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You have so many more freedoms than you ever had before. Your life is filled with creative tools and flexible arrangements. You can truly design your time the way you always wanted to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You notice when someone needs your encouragement, and you readily give it. Your sign mate Mother Teresa said, "Kind words can be short and easy to speak, but their echoes are truly endless."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You are hesitant to engage those who have obvious and multiple problems because you realize that becoming involved will reduce your resistance and you'll somehow be sucked into finding a solution. And you're right about that.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It truly is a lucky day. You can drop a fear and identify yourself as brave and strong. This is true even if you've been afraid and struggled with feelings of inferiority all of your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You have the kind of hands-on experience that can't be bought; it must be earned. It happened because you learned the necessary steps and took them. Repeat the process with your new goal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Even the most popular performers spend a very small percentage of their life onstage. But they are in the public eye from the moment they walk outside. You also have the public's attention whenever you want it now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You made an agreement long ago and were gung-ho to do it. Now the excitement wanes, but your commitment stands fast. Your efforts to drum up more excitement will be laced with luck.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Make only empowering assumptions. For instance, assume someone likes you, and treat that person as though they already have a friendship with you — that friendship will develop quickly.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 1). You're headed for the top. Once you get there, stay awhile. There are always taller peaks to climb, but unless you stop and enjoy your current elevation, life will be filled with struggle and strife. This month and September are best for career and finance. August brings a comfortable groove with loved ones. Pisces and Scorpio people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 32, 19, 26 and 42.

Cleaning a barbecue

Heloise

Dear Readers: Here are some more "Blast from the Past" hints. Have fun reading them! — Heloise
CLEANING A BARBECUE
Dear Heloise: I have a small charcoal BARBECUE GRILL that has years of grease built up on the inside of the cover. Lately, I have noticed that when I cook, black specks fall on the meat. Is there a method that will clean the built-up grease off the inside of the barbecue grill cover? — James P., via fax

We checked with a major manufacturer of barbecue grills, which told us that those specks are caused by the cooking process. Without cleaning, the flecks will/can fall onto food items.

It's suggested that you clean the interior of the lid by first removing the loose gunk with a crumpled piece of aluminum foil or a grill brush. Next, with the barbecue warm, not hot, wipe the inside of the lid with paper toweling. You also can use a solution of warm water and mild soap to clean the inside cover. Be sure to rinse all soap residue off.

UPDATE: Many barbecue grills have an enamel finish on the lid, so DO NOT paint or put wax on it. And you should clean off the grate after every use. A barbecue grill brush does this best.

— Heloise

RECYCLED NOTEPADS

Dear Heloise: Knowing how pleased you are when we get involved with recycling, I thought you'd like to know what we are doing:

We are celebrating the anniversary of our cancer-research organization at a local restaurant. For one of the favors, we have made notepads out of sheets of paper from past functions, which we save for this purpose every year. We tie them with colorful yarn. We use different colors of scraps.

— Mildred S., Miami

PICTURE ARRANGEMENT

Dear Heloise: Here is a timesaving hint I found useful: My two large bookcase units had to be moved while the floor was being refinished. I had spent a long time arranging the books and artifacts in a pleasing arrangement on the shelves. All had to be removed because of the weight.

I photographed the contents and was able to easily put all back the way it was after the job was done. — Gail O., Bakersfield, Calif.

Constant state of fear around men is legacy

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing because I'm afraid I will never be able to have a normal, healthy relationship with a man. Until recently, I was the victim of a physically, verbally and sexually abusive father. Now I find myself unable to speak around even the most nonthreatening boy. At even the slightest hint of aggression or anger I flinch and run away. I'm afraid I will never escape the shadow of what he did to me. What should I do? — SHY AND BATTERED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR SHY AND BATTERED: For you to move from victim to survivor will take professional help. Few people are able to completely overcome the abuse you have experienced on their own. A good first step would be to contact R.A.I.N.N., the Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network. Its website is www.rainn.org and its toll-free phone number is 800-656-4673. The counselors there can guide you in finding help to repair your life. Men like your father belong behind bars, where they can't hurt helpless children. If he would sexually and physically abuse you, no child is safe around him. If there are minors still living with your parents, the police should be notified about what he did to you so they can be rescued.

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married for six years. My husband is kind, caring and honest. Our only problem involves jewelry. I'm not very good at wearing my wedding ring every day. I can be forgetful and clumsy, and I have misplaced it, almost dropped it down the drain, etc. I have tried wearing it around my neck, but it just gets in the way.

My husband wears his ring every day and says he doesn't mind if I don't wear mine because he trusts me. My problem is other people. My co-workers are suspicious. My family thinks it's "strange." Men have hit on me, and when I politely told them I'm married, they became angry and asked where my ring is.

Abby, I don't do or say anything to lead people on, and I often mention that I'm happily married. I'm becoming frustrated and have even considered getting a tattoo on my ring finger so that people know I'm married. My husband says not to let it bother me; that he doesn't care about what others think. Any suggestions? — NO RING ON IT, COLUMBIA, MO.

DEAR NO RING ON IT: I do not recommend getting your finger tattooed to allay your co-workers' suspicions or because some fool becomes angry that you don't welcome his advances. My recommendation is to listen to the secure, mature man you married and stop worrying so much about what other people think.

Narrowed spinal canal cause of pain

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My lower back has kicked up on me for quite some time. The doctor tells me it's spinal stenosis and that I have to learn to live with it. I take Tylenol, and it helps me some. Can anything more be done? — L.H.
ANSWER: Spinal stenosis is a common cause of low-back pain. It also can cause neck pain and pain in the upper back. It depends on what part of the spine has narrowed. The meaning of "stenosis" is "narrowing." The spinal cord is filled with nerve cells and connections to the brain. It's only the width of the little finger. It's very delicate. It manages to stay intact because the backbones encircle it and protect it. It runs from the neck to the lower back in a tunnel, the spinal canal, that courses through the backbones (vertebrae). The spinal canal narrows for many reasons. One is thickening of the ligaments of the backbones. Another is arthritis with the growth of bony spurs. A narrowed spinal canal compresses the spinal cord to cause pain.

Compression in the lower back leads to back pain and pain that travels to the buttocks or down the legs to the back of the thighs and calves in particular. Standing or walking worsens the pain. Sitting relieves it, as does bending forward at the waist, as people do when pushing a shopping cart.

If pain relievers like Tylenol, Aleve or Advil work for you, stick with them. The doctor can prescribe stronger painkillers if they're needed.

Physical therapy will keep your back limber and might possibly relieve compression on the spinal cord. Your doctor has to make a referral for you.

Back injections with cortisone — epidurals — reduce inflammation, which can open the spinal cord enough to alleviate pain.

Surgery is an option, but save that for last. The booklet on back pain presents a comprehensive picture of the problem, along with its treatment. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 303, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Do people die from diverticulosis? I am told I have it, but it hasn't been any problem for me. My sister tells me of her friend, who supposedly died from it. Is that possible? My sister loves to pass on information of this sort. — M.A.

ANSWER: With diverticulosis, tiny sacs formed from the colon's lining are forced through the wall of the colon so that they project from the colon into the abdominal cavity. Diverticulosis causes few symptoms. Inflammation of the sacs, however, is quite painful. That's diverticulitis.

I have never known a patient who died of diverticulitis, but it's a remote possibility. One of the inflamed diverticula could burst and release bacteria into the abdominal cavity. That's a serious infection with a potential to be deadly. It doesn't happen often.

Readers say counseling is worthwhile

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Readers: We recently printed a letter from "Problem Still Here," who asked our readers if counseling was worth it. We were inundated with replies from readers sharing their stories, and the vast majority found counseling tremendously helpful. We cannot possibly print all the letters we received, but the response was so overwhelming that we have decided to devote two days to the subject. Read on:

Dear Annie: I started counseling a few weeks after my father died. It was recommended by my faculty's office. I went in for grief counseling, but walked out with papers telling me how to properly take multiple-choice tests. A year later, I had a major breakdown and sought counseling at my new school. After our first meeting, I knew we'd have a productive relationship, and I kept seeing this counselor even after I graduated. Talking to a counselor is a lot like talking confidentially with a really intelligent, impartial friend. Your secrets are safe, your fears are heard, and eventually — with your help and dedication — solutions can be discovered. — No Name

Dear Annie: I am a 22-year-old woman who has been in counseling since I was 7. I dealt with divorced parents, abuse and being socially rejected, and counseling helped me overcome these things. I found my current counselor through a Google search. What is so important is to know that you don't need to stick with the first counselor you find. I scheduled several consultations so I could compare them until I found someone I liked. — N.N.
Dear Annie: I was at a crossroads and needed help. I went to the Human Resources person at work and requested help from their Employee Assistance Program. I was referred to a counselor who helped me wade through all the muck so I was able to make clear, well thought-out decisions. And my employer paid for these sessions. — M.

Dear Annie: I was no longer happy in my marriage of 34 years and told my wife I wanted out. She suggested marriage counseling. We went to several sessions together and separately. Halfway through my first private session, the counselor asked, "What would you miss most if you no longer had your wife?" I instantly said, "Her cooking." He considered that and said, "I think you should get a divorce." That was 12 years ago, and I only regret not doing it sooner. — Happy Guy
