Coroner: Woman strangled, body burned off Egypt Road

By MARY ANN GREIER

Staff Writer

PERRY TOWNSHIP — The death of a Salem woman whose burned remains were found just off of Egypt Road last October has been ruled a homicide, with strangulation the cause.

The Columbiana County Coroner's Office issued its final ruling Monday in the case of 60-year-old Ardes Ruth Bauman, whose body was discovered Oct. 25, 2010 by a Perry Township Police officer who noticed a small fire and a van in the closed off area known as Cry Baby Bridge.

► PERRY TOWNSHIP

Chief Mike Emigh said once Sgt. George Mlinarcik came upon the scene, he realized there was a body. A van titled to Bauman was parked nearby, with the remains found outside of the unoccupied vehicle.

The cause of death had been termed under investigation by the coroner's office for several months, pending completion of testing and study of the autopsy results from the Cuyahoga County Coroner's Office,

Salem school officials chart financial course

By MARY ANN GREIER

Staff Writer

SALEM — School board President Nick Bush laid out the district's financial status to about 21 residents who attended a community forum Monday night, noting the board had no plans for new levies, layoffs or reduced services.

"I think it's the staff from top to bottom that allows us to brag quite a bit,"

he said.

Bush painted a picture of a district fiscally solvent at the moment, with an excellent rating from the state and experiencing growth in student numbers, which he attributed to the staff.

He also noted, though, that with state cuts, they're predicting a cash shortfall by 2014 of about $1.3 million, but they've been taking action to try to address the situation.

"We're not alone here. We're not the only district facing this...I think we're ready for the storm," he said.

Bush said the idea was to share information with the public so there's an understanding about where the district stands and how the funding issue at the state level will affect the district.

He unveiled an updated five-year forecast to be approved in October which shows a $300,000 deficit by the end of this school year, but with a

Salem school administrators agree to freeze wages

By MARY ANN GREIER

Staff Writer

SALEM — Superintendent Tom Bratten said the district will save $48,000 over the next three years thanks to administrators agreeing to new contracts with pay freezes and higher medical insurance premiums.

"They really stepped up and came up with a creative idea," he said Monday. "I'm very proud of them."

The school board met in special session Monday morning to rescind a previous resolution granting administrative pay increases, then accepted resignations of 10 administrators and approved new three-year contracts for each of the administrators.

Bratten explained the move was a continuation of what the board had already done with his own contract, which was renegotiated last month with a pay freeze and benefits freeze. He said the administrators had a choice to either stay at last school year's salary amount or pay 15 percent toward their health care premiums, which is an increase. Those who chose the insurance option would get their salary step increase for years of service for this year, if they qualified for one, and then their salary would be frozen at that amount for the life of the contract.

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 13, the 256th day of 2011. There are 109 days left in the year. Ten years ago: Two days after the 9/11 terror attacks, the first few jetliners returned to the nation's skies, but several major airports remained closed and others opened only briefly. Five years ago: Gunman Kimveer Gill, 25, opened fire in a cafeteria at Dawson College in Montreal, Canada, slaying one student and wounding 19 before killing himself.

47 Lisbon students pass state grad test, choose to sleep in

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — Pass a test, get to sleep in an hour.

This was an option given this year to Lisbon high school students who passed all five sections of the Ohio Graduation Test, and about 25 percent of them chose to sleep in.

Middle/High School Principal Joe Siefke reported at Monday's meeting about the outcome of this new incentive program offered for the first time to sophomores who took the OGT.

The OGT is administered every March to all Ohio high school sophomores, who are tested in reading, mathematics, writing, science and social studies. Students must pass all five sections to graduate, and have their junior and senior years to do so.

Siefke said they began discussing possible incentives to get as many students as possible to pass all five sections the first time and they checked into the sleep option used in the Salem school district.

"We were looking at one of the things that motivates kids and it's sleep," he said.

Those sophomores who passed all five sections were given the following options for their junior and senior years: They could either come to school and sit in study hall or take an elective course during first period, which is the time slot set aside for specialized instruction devoted to helping students pass the OGT. Or they could come to school an hour later at 8:55 a.m.

Siefke said 47 students — 20 seniors and 27 juniors — opted to sleep in this year. According to the Ohio Department of Education, which administers the OGTs, 67.6 percent of Lisbon's sophomores passed all five sections last year, which was fifth highest among the 11 school districts in Columbiana County.

He pointed out none of these students are losing out on any required mandatory class time and they must meet academic and attendance standards to remain eligible for participation in the program.

"If they start abusing the privilege, by skipping school or showing up late, then they forfeit that option," Siefke said.

In years past, the OGT instructional classes were held throughout the school day, and those students who had already passed all five sections were forced to sit in a study hall during that time. Siefke said the incentive program eliminates that.

"This is what the state is pushing — that all time spent in a seat be valuable time," he said.

In other academic news, Superintendent Don Thompson said the district will not rest on its laurels after achieving "excellent" status for the first time on the most recent state report card issued last month.

"We are not going to be complacent," he told the board.

Lisbon went from a B (effective rating) to an A (excellent), and Thompson and the board credited the improvement to staff, students and their parents. He believes the biggest benefit came from the teachers' willingness to stay an extra half hour after school every day for personal development and planning sessions.

"It continues to be the day in and day out work with our students that makes the difference," Thompson said.

Salem

positive cash balance of $1.3 million keeping the district in the black. The cash balance is predicted to dwindle to $100,000 by the end of the next school year in 2013 due to a growing deficit, losses in state funding and increases in insurance costs. By 2015, the deficit has been predicted as $1.9 million, with the cash balance in the red by $4.7 million.

District revenues are expected to fall by 1.6 percent over the next five years, expecting to drop from 18.9 million in fiscal year 2011 (last school year) to about $17.7 million by fiscal year 2015. Bush said it's a state funding issue.

He explained that last summer, board members and school officials canvassed the community and spoke to about 250 families to ask what they liked and didn't like about the district and how they wanted them to proceed considering the financial picture.

"The message we got back from the community was pretty clear," he said.

With a commitment to live within the budget, Bush said the ground rules include having no reduction in services and no layoffs and no new levies, along with trying to achieve goals set by the board to continue investing in student learning, in the facilities and in customer service.

He pointed to the proactive approach they've been taking, with investments in new programs, such as the engineering program at the high school and the technology initiative for this year and next year to put iPad tablet computers in the classrooms. The district has invested in lighting and windows to make the buildings more energy efficient and has been setting aside about $250,000 per year for facility renovations planned for five years from now.

To address the cuts, he said they've been working on better procedures regarding purchases and the budgeting process and looked hard for savings and ways to increase revenue. Some savings have come from the energy efficiency projects, the renegotiation of gas and electric rates, and a new copier agreement which will save $30,000 per year. Increased revenues are coming from a reduction in students leaving through open enrollment. Each time a student leaves Salem for another district, it costs Salem about $5,700 per student.

Students seem to be staying here more, as evidenced by an increase in kindergarten enrollment to 198 students. The district also established Quaker Tech, an online option to keep students in the district which will mean $60,000 in revenue per year. They also realized a one-time windfall of $150,000 from a gas lease.

Bush explained other ideas implemented since May have meant savings, such as a deal for insurance premium holidays which could save the district about $220,000 per year, unfilled vacancies from four retirements which comes out to about $200,000 in annual savings. The retirees included two teachers, a bus driver and a maintenance worker. Administrator contracts have also been renegotiated to save the district money.

George Morris Sr., a retired insurance man who lives in Salem attended the forum and said he applauds what the school district has done.

"I think the fact they're being as proactive as they are says a lot about our school board and the staff," he said.

He questioned the percentage the employees contribute to the health insurance premiums, noting that the general public in the private sector pays a much greater percentage. With staff members paying about $91 per month for a family plan and the average salary about $45,000 per year, he said that comes out to about 1 to 2 percent.

He said the school staffs will have to go further and should contribute more to the insurance costs, just as the private sector does. He stressed that he applauded the fact that they're trying to face the issue of finances, which he said didn't happen before.

Former city auditor Jim Armeni, who works as regional liaison for the Auditor of State, attended the forum and said he wished more school and government entities would open up to the public and let the people know what they're doing. He was disappointed at the turnout, saying he expected to see at least 100 people in attendance.

The teachers' union contract expires on Aug. 31, 2012 and the union contract for the non-certified staff expires on June 30, 2013.

Washingtonville mayor: At least one interested in council seat

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

WASHINGTONVILLE — Mayor Norm Sommers said there is at least one person he knows of who is interested in taking Councilwoman Sharon Janovec's seat.

Janovec's four-year term expires on Dec. 31, but she resigned on Aug. 16 and Sommers said he expects council to accept the resignation at next Tuesday's meeting.

He added that the vacancy could be filled at the meeting.

Sommers said lifelong village resident Elmer Milsom, 51, of Washington Street, has shown an interest in the seat but anyone interested is welcome to apply.

"I don't know if anyone else is going to come down and apply for the position," Sommers said, adding council seats are open to registered voters who live either in the Columbiana or Mahoning County side of the village.

Janovec was elected 2007.

There are two council openings in the Nov. 8 general election, Janovec's seat and the seat currently held by Councilwoman Renee Jackson that expires on Dec. 31.

No candidate has filed for Jackson's seat and that opening will apparently be filled by an appointment sometime in 2012.

Council has 45 days, retroactive to Janovec's effective date of resignation, to appoint a replacement and if it fails to do that, then the appointment will be made by Sommers.

Sommers is being challenged for his seat by Council President Will Jones in the only contested race in November.

At the next meeting (Sept. 19), Sommers expects a representative from the Ohio Department of Transportation District 11 to attend and answer questions regarding the paving and widening of state Route 14 and the installation of a four-way traffic light at the state Route 14 and County Road intersection.

Sommers said widening the road will allow for turning lanes.

"Hopefully, if they come to the meeting, they can give us more information," Sommers said.

The new, wider stretch of road will run about 380 feet from the Marathon gas station east to the Washington Square.

He has yet to receive confirmation that an ODOT representative will attend, Sommers said.

Judge drops remaining cases against killer

CLEVELAND (AP) — A serial killer already sentenced to death for killing 11 women and dumping their remains around his house and property laughed and said the state had no case as a judge dismissed remaining rape and kidnapping charges against him on Monday.

The cases were dismissed at the prosecutor's request to save additional trial costs and spare two women who testified at Anthony Sowell's murder trial from having to testify again. Jurors said the grueling testimony of survivors was important in convicting Sowell, 52.

The women, Tanja Doss and Vanessa Gay, endorsed dismissing the charges, according to assistant Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Mahmoud Awadallah. The women did not appear in court.

EL man pleads guilty to several drug charges

LISBON — In Columbiana County Common Pleas Court, Alan P. Jakes Jr., 30, Market Street, East Liverpool, pleaded guilty to three counts of fourth degree felony trafficking in drugs, a third degree felony trafficking in drugs and a possession of drugs charge with a forfeiture specification. The indictment accused Jakes of selling 1.6 grams of crack cocaine and 2.4 grams of cocaine in January 2010, then in March 2010 he reportedly sold a gram of crack cocaine for $300 and two grams of crack cocaine for $300, including once in the vicinity of a child. He also was accused of possessing in February 2010 both cocaine and $1,023 believed involved in the sale of cocaine.

A dispositional hearing was set for Dec. 1. Jakes faces up to 10 and a half years in prison and a $17,500 fine. Each count could also lead to a five-year driver's license suspension.

Matthew S. Bell, 24, School Street, Washingtonville, pleaded guilty to three counts of trafficking in drugs for reportedly selling 5.5 grams of marijuana for $60 in November 2009. Then in December 2009 he sold 20.6 grams for $170, followed by 19.5 grams for $170. He faces up to a three-year prison sentence, a $7,500 fine and a 15 years license suspension.

Christie L. Thrasher, 31, George Street, East Liverpool, pleaded guilty to trafficking in drugs, a fifth degree felony. She faces up to one year in prison, a five-year license suspension and $2,500 fine. According to court records, Thrasher sold 0.9 grams of cocaine in March 2009. A disposition hearing was set for Nov. 3.

Steven E. Slagle, 22, West Street, East Palestine, pleaded guilty to two counts breaking and entering, theft, arson, receiving stolen property and misuse of credit cards. A dispositional hearing was set for Nov. 3.

Slagle was accused along with another defendant, Daniel Keller, of trespassing at the East Palestine Elementary School and Middle School in April by throwing bricks through the windows and taking money, candy and cash boxes from each building. He also was accused of taking a pickup belonging to Steven Grueber from the lot at Bill's Auto Repair, driving it to the East Palestine China lot and setting it on fire. Finally, Slagle reportedly had a credit card taken from the vehicle of Audrey Lipp and used at Circle K.

Howard C. Tomes, 52, last known address, Weirton, W. Va., stipulated he had violated his conditions of community control. He had been sentenced to three years community control after pleading guilty to theft in 2008. The charge stemmed from Tomes purchasing a used pickup in 2006 from Powers Pontiac using two checks for his $11,000 down payment, which were later returned because the account was closed. A review hearing was set for March 1.

POLICE REPORTS

Lisbon

— A North Beaver Street woman reported Friday a lock box containing her children's medications was stolen.

— The sheriff's office received a call at 12:25 a.m. Saturday that a large blonde male was egging Rose Drive apartments, and they asked police to handle it until a deputy could get there. Officers arrived but did not find anyone around, but the officer remained until a sheriff's deputy arrived.

— An East Chestnut Street man reported at 12:29 a.m. Sunday someone slashed all of his car tires and broke the side mirror.

— A caller reported there was a fight at the Night Court bar at 1:18 a.m. Sunday. Police arrived and spoke with the bartender, who said no fight had occurred.

— A man was found lying in a back yard on West Washington Street at 12:06 p.m. Sunday. He said he hosted a party the night before and was just getting up after sleeping outside. Police told him to do his sleeping inside the residence.

— Police were called to a home on Sunset Drive at 8:30 a.m. Sunday to stand by while an ambulance was summoned to treat a woman who had passed out.

— A West Washington Street woman reported Sunday being called 30 times between 3 and 7:28 p.m. by an East Liverpool woman she knows. Cox said the calls continued even after she told the woman to stop. Cox said the woman's ex-husband was visiting her and the woman was calling wanting to speak to him despite the fact an restraining order was in place.

OUR SIDE

No need for casino police

Sometimes it seems as if the biblical injunction to go forth, be fruitful and multiply has been adopted by government, for all the wrong reasons.

Consider the relatively new Ohio Casino Control Commission, set up to administer new gambling venues in four cities. One important OCCC task will be to prevent crime in the casinos.

To do that, the OCCC is considering using either the Ohio State Highway Patrol or the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation — but only for about two years. By then, the OCCC plans to have its own, separate investigative and enforcement division.

Why? Why set up an entirely new law enforcement agency when casino duties could be handled by either the BCI or the Highway Patrol? If necessary, either of them could add needed personnel. In all likelihood, that approach would carry with it lower costs because some existing Highway Patrol or BCI equipment and facilities could be used for casino enforcement.

But government’s when-in-doubt approach always seems to be to establish a new agency, bureau or department. Surely Ohioans have learned by now they can’t afford that. The OCCC should reconsider its plan.

When President Barack Obama urged Congress last week to approve his $450 billion “jobs program,” he assured lawmakers it is “paid for.”

Not really. Congress heard no details about how he plans to cover the cost without increased deficit spending because there are no specifics.

One possibility is for Obama to suggest the special committee of Congress studying ways to reduce deficit spending by $1.5 trillion over 10 years be told to increase its target to cover the additional $450 billion. In other words, Obama wants to claim his program is paid for — then, in effect, force Congress to back his pledge.

This is simply another situation in which Obama is telling Americans, “Trust me.” At one time, he was able to get away with that — but no more. Lawmakers should not allow him to dump his heavy lifting on them.

The ‘moderate’ Republican

MARK SHIELDS

Jon Huntsman, the former Republican governor of Utah and more recently U. S. ambassador to China, has had his true-believer GOP credentials openly questioned by the Conservative Police.

True, Huntsman believes in evolution and accepts the reality of climate change, while supporting civil unions for gay couples. But what made Huntsman suspect was his statement about Barack Obama, who appointed him ambassador: "I respect the president of the United States. He and I have a difference of opinion on how to help a country we both love. But the question each of us wants the voters to answer is who will be the better president, not who who's the better American."

Make no mistake about it: The Republican Party of 2012 is significantly more conservative and less moderate than the Republican Party that, four years ago, nominated John McCain. It's not that long ago that the Republican Party had real liberal stars such as Nelson Rockefeller, and U.S. Sens. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Jacob Javits of New York, John Chafee of Rhode Island and Mac Mathias of Maryland.

Not fully trusted by many liberal Democrats and disliked by many conservative Republicans, these GOP mavericks were taunted: The definition of a liberal Republican is someone who, when you're drowning some 30 feet offshore, throws you a 20 foot rope and boasts that he "went more than halfway."

Huntsman's positions on science, the environment and cultural issues are indeed unorthodox in today's Republican Party. But where the rubber hits the road -- on who pays federal taxes -- Jon Huntsman is no flaming moderate. He's more conservative than Mitt Romney.

This past week, Huntsman gave us his tax plan, which is enough to make Daddy Warbucks do handstands. Huntsman joins fellow GOP presidential candidates Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann, Texas Rep. Ron Paul, former House Speaker Newt Gingrich and former CEO Herman Cain in calling for the elimination of any federal tax on capital gains.

According to the best estimate of the respected Tax Policy Center, U.S. households making less than $50,000 a year pay an average of less than $10 a year on investments. Even those earning between $100,000 and $200,000 annually pay just an average of $400 in capital gains taxes.

And the real winners if the capital gains tax is in fact lowered to zero? According to the Tax Policy Center, the top 1 percent of earners with an average pre-tax income of almost $7 million, who under the Huntsman plan would get a windfall tax cut of $350,000 a year. How moderate would you call that?

Not very, by recent Republican standards. During the 1996 GOP presidential campaign, Malcolm "Steve" Forbes advocated a 16 percent "flat tax" plan that excluded interest and dividend income from federal taxation. Forbes was challenged by Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, who argued, "It's not fair to say that people who work with their head or with their hands ought to pay taxes, but that people who earn their living with capital ought not to."

Republican candidate Pat Buchanan was more colorful in his criticism, suggesting that Forbes' plan to exclude dividends from taxation must have been forged "by the boys at the yacht basin" because it would "let some trust-fund baby in Florida clip coupons the rest of his life and pay zero taxes."

The criticism of Gramm and Buchanan are just as valid today. Why should a firefighter or nurse or a Marine gunnery sergeant pay federal taxes on the wages each earns through blood, sweat and skill, while the lazy heir to a family fortune does not pay a dime to Uncle Sam?

You can call the candidate who wants to completely abolish the capital gains tax a lot of things, but you cannot call him moderate.

Romney and Perry clash over future of Social Security

By PHILIP ELLIOTT
Associated Press

A growing divide over Social Security splits the two leading contenders for the Republican presidential nomination, and the differences between Texas Gov. Rick Perry and former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney foreshadow a tricky political dance with older voters.

Romney has seized on what he perceives as Perry’s vulnerability on a program that seniors hold dear, Democrats venerate as sacrosanct and Perry has labeled a “Ponzi scheme.”

That sets up a battle for older voters in Iowa, retirees in Florida and the Sun Belt, and Baby Boomers everywhere worried about their own recession-scarred retirement plans.

Perry has refused to back down from his criticism of Social Security and argues the program is best left to states to administer — a non-starter for many, including some Republicans.

“If we nominate someone who the Democrats could correctly characterize as being against Social Security, we would be obliterated as a party,” Romney said on Sean Hannity’s radio program Thursday.

Perry is unyielding.

“It is a Ponzi scheme to tell our kids that are 25 or 30 years old today, you’re paying into a program that’s going to be there,” he said during Wednesday’s debate in California. “Anybody that’s for the status quo with Social Security today is involved with a monstrous lie to our kids, and it’s not right.”

An aging population has put a heavy burden on the Social Security Trust Fund: too few workers are paying for the benefits of a growing number of retirees. In 1950, there were 16 workers paying into the fund for each recipient. Last year, that ratio fell to three workers for every recipient.

But any talk of cutting benefits comes with political risk.

“Governor Perry’s immediate challenge is to knock down the hanging perception being driven that he wants to get rid of Social Security,” said Rich Killion, a Republican strategist who worked on Romney’s 2008 presidential bid and advised former Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty’s bid this year.

The Romney-Perry spat comes as the contest for the Republican nomination begins to flare. With three formal debates and a handful of forums this month, the campaign to challenge President Barack Obama has taken on urgency as voters return from their summer vacations and start to pay attention to politics.

Since Perry joined the race last month, Romney has seen his lead fade, driving him to focus his aggressive criticism on Perry instead of looking ahead to a general campaign against Obama.

“The governor says look, states ought to be able to opt out of Social Security. Our nominee has to be someone who isn’t committed to abolishing Social Security, but who is committed to saving Social Security,” Romney said, sharing the stage with his rival.

An AP-GfK poll in May found that 70 percent of Americans consider Social Security deeply important to their financial security in retirement. Just 6 percent said it was “not at all” important.

Yet the public is split on the likelihood Social Security will be there for them: 35 percent say it is extremely or very likely to provide income their entire retirement, 30 percent somewhat likely and 35 percent not too or not at all likely.

It’s that uncertainty that both campaigns hope to tap.

“I know Florida certainly has an interest in Social Security given the large number of seniors we have here,” said John Thrasher, a Republican state senator and former state GOP chairman who backs Romney.

“It’s not whether it’s a Ponzi scheme or not. These are retired people who are pretty intelligent. They want Social Security to be maintained. And they understand there are problems that need to be fixed. There is an opportunity to fix Social Security so it’s a continued benefit for people who are getting it now and those who will get it in the future.”

Romney now trails Perry by double digits in the polls and Social Security alone isn’t going to help him regain his lead, his advisers acknowledge. But his team plans to make it the opening volley against Perry, Texas’ longest serving governor and one who has never lost an election.

“Now, if you say Social Security is a failure, as I have just done, you will inherit the wind of political scorn,” Perry acknowledges, while his aides note that Romney hasn’t always had kind words for the state of the program.

In his latest book, “No Apologies,” Romney wrote: “To put it in a nutshell, the American people have been effectively defrauded out of their Social Security.”

He suggested increasing the retirement age, adjusting benefits for wealthy Americans or allowing workers to invest part of their Social Security taxes in private accounts.

And while he derides Perry for likening Social Security to the criminal fraud that put Bernie Madoff behind bars, Romney has compared lawmakers to dishonest trust fund managers.

“What would happen to the bankers responsible for misusing the money? They would go to jail. But what has happened to the people responsible for the looming bankruptcy of Social Security? They keep returning to Congress every two years,” Romney wrote.

Those statements offer Perry’s team a chance to punch back.

“In his book, Romney compared Social Security to a fraudulent criminal enterprise, but (during the debate) he ran from his position,” Perry spokesman Ray Sullivan. “His evolving and inconsistent position on this important issue is curious, but unfortunately not unusual.”

Leetonia Artisans' Festival set Sunday at Wick Park

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA — Community members will be able to once again enjoy local artisan creations this weekend.

The annual Leetonia Artisans' Festival is slated for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at Wick Park. It is sponsored by the Parks Board's Artisans Committee.

Admission, parking and entertainment is all free.

"It's a wonderful community event where families can come out and have a good time without spending a lot of money," said Shana Prince, Parks Board member.

The event will include over 40 artisans and food vendors offering homemade wares.

Pastor Kari Lankford of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will kick off the festival by singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" at 10 a.m.

Other entertainment will include local performers Niki Slaven from 10 to 11 a.m., Leanne Binder from noon to 1 p.m., "The Singing Senior Citizen" Loren Coler from 1 to 1:30 p.m. and 2 to 2:30 p.m., the Leetonia High School Marching Band from 1:30 to 2 p.m. and Ruthie Horner from 3 to 4 p.m.

There will also be a car show from 1 to 4 p.m., with no entry fee. The first 50 participants will receive a participation ribbon.

Free children's activities will also be available, including a chalk drawing contest at 11:30 p.m. and a bounce house sponsored by the ADAPT Coalition of Columbiana County from noon to 5 p.m.

A raffle of an Amish-made yard swing will also be held to cover the cost of the event.

"It's a great event to enjoy the fall weather and have fun locally," Prince said.

Charge (Continued from Page 1A)

Massillon Municipal Court online records noted that Garber was ordered to have no contact with the alleged victim, but Emigh said the judge did not issue any order preventing Garber from carrying his service weapon, which is the reason he's still able to work.

"At this time, I have to wait until the outcome of the court (case)," Emigh said, adding that everybody gets their day in court.

Garber has been working part-time for Perry Township since 2008. He had also been working for Salineville as a patrolman, but his employment there has been marked by some controversy. He was fired by Salineville City Council in June 2008, prompting him to file a lawsuit for wrongful dismissal. A judge agreed with his argument and ruled the council members failed to follow proper procedure.

The village appealed the ruling, but the 7th District Court of Appeals dismissed the case in January 2009 because the issue of damages had not been decided. According to previous published reports, a settlement was reached and he was back on the job last fall, but in January this year, the village accepted what they claimed was his resignation.

On the death certificate signed by Coroner Dr. William Graham Jr., the date of death was listed as Oct. 25, the day the remains were found, but the date of injury was estimated as Oct. 24, 2010, with the time of death and place of death listed as unknown.

The immediate cause of death was listed as asphyxia by cervical compression, with a description of the injury saying she was "strangled causing asphyxia and death." The amount of time between onset of the injury and death was listed as "minutes."

No arrests have been made, but Emigh said "we have people of interest." He wouldn't go into more detail about the people or the evidence.

"From the start, we had our reasons to believe it was a homicide. We just needed the coroner to confirm it," he said.

As far as he knows, this is the first homicide for the Perry Township Police Department.

Emigh said they've been handling it as a suspicious death and violent death and have tried to gather as much information as they can. An officer was specifically assigned to work full-time on the case in May, to work with the prosecutor's office.

When asked if he thought the fire was set to cover up the homicide, he said he couldn't comment on that.

Salem Police had been called on Oct. 13 to a residence on West School Street listed as Bauman's address after her brother visiting from out-of-town found their mother, Ruth Ziegler, malnourished and emaciated. The report was referred to Adult Protective Services, an arm of the Department of Job and Family Services.

An emergency guardianship case was filed by Adult Protective Services on Oct. 22 in county Probate Court regarding Ziegler, who had been taken to Salem Community Hospital for treatment. Just a few days later, Bauman's remains were found. Ziegler, who was 91 years old, later died in January this year in a nursing home facility.

Anyone with information about the Bauman homicide case should contact the Perry Township Police Department.

Goshen trustees go after FirstEnergy lighting project

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

GOSHEN TOWNSHIP — The trustees Monday night prepared for a lighting project that will be powered through a FirstEnergy grant.

The trustees approved Julian Electric of Salem to replace all the lights at the Administration Building pending approval of a $7,488 grant through FirstEnergy. The total cost of the project will be approximately $14,000, so the township will have to cover $6,511.

According to Trustee Chair Bob McCracken, the savings generated by the new lights will be approximately $2,761 per year, so the project will pay for itself in a little over two years.

McCracken further noted that the current light bulbs in use at the facility will be obsolete in that time, so the lights will have to be replaced at some point in the future, for which the township would likely bear the full cost.

The results of the grant should be available by Sunday, McCracken said.

In other business, the trustees approved the resignation of part-time police officer Brian McAllister, effective immediately, and hired Michael Wirkner as a reserve officer, effective immediately.

The trustees also declared items as surplus and hired Harry Hofmeister as auctioneer for an auction at the Administration Building to be scheduled at a later date.

Police Chief Steve McDaniel and Fire Chief John Bricker commended police officer Daniel Moser for his actions at a recent house fire in which he entered the home and extinguished the kitchen fire prior to the fire department's arrival, preventing further damage to the home. McDaniel noted that a letter of accommodation will be awarded to Moser.

McDaniel and Bricker also recognized the Celebrate Freedom ceremony coordinated by the Acts 2 organization on Sept. 11 honoring local first responders on the 9/11 anniversary, of which several members of both departments attended.

Trustee Todd Beeson reported that he attended a Knox Township trustees meeting last week where an Omnicity representative suggested the company should be able to provide Internet service to the Goshen Township area within six months.

A Customer Appreciation Day and Scrap Tire Drive will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the township recycling center, 12649 Seacrist Road. An Electronic Drive will also be held from 9 a.m. to noon the same day and location.

Car tires will cost 35 cents each for up to 50; $1 each over 50. A 50 cent charge will be added for tires still on rims. Truck tires will cost $6 each, plus $2 for rims; tractors tires will cost $10 each, plus $5 for rims. A nominal charge of $5 and up will be added to all televisions and monitors depending on size.

The next regular trustees meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 10 at the Administration Building.

With the district facing a possible budget shortfall by 2014, the superintendent said they've been trying to find ways to save money and this is another idea on the list. He said the administrative team "has been incredibly proactive in identifying creative options and offering viable solutions to the board."

As part of the deal, administrators agreed to permanently eliminate the schedule for step increases, which were automatic.

Treasurer Jill Rowe explained the insurance premium for the seven administrators who chose to pay a higher percentage will increase from $91 per month to $230.77 per month for a family plan or from $35.25 per month to $94.84 per month for a single plan.

The administrators who chose that option and the amount of their salaries for the contract are: Dennis Niederhiser, Buckeye principal, $81,019; Lisa Whitacre, Southeast principal, $81,025; Sean Kirkland, junior high principal, $82,247; Dr. Joseph Shivers, high school principal, $85,929; Sally Mainwaring, special education director, $69,664; Hank Brock, dean of students, $62,266; and Cathy Sanor, federal programs administrator, $85,930. Rowe explained that only two of the seven qualified for a step increase this year.

The administrators who chose the other option and their salaries were: Ken Hardy, maintenance supervisor, $65,309; Tim Roller, technology director, $71,666; and Tom Mather, transportation supervisor, $51,400. Rowe said they'll have less of a percentage increase for their health insurance premium, with the cost increasing to $103 per month for a family plan next year.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 9/13/11

Tomorrow Venus slips into Libra. But not before she begins an argument with Pluto in authoritative Capricorn. In the weeks to come, we will work on evening out the inequities of love, friendship and commerce. And though discussions and negotiations are likely to be smooth, bringing the subject up in the first place will take guts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Your plans are more ambitious than you first realized, though they are still very much within the realm of possibility. You will need a lot of help. Think about how you can rally people around your vision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You will have limits placed on what you can and can't do. The funny part is that you actually welcome the rules and impositions because you want to be challenged. How else are you going to become great?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll see 10 possible solutions to a problem, while the average person sees maybe one. So speak up. The world needs to hear your advice, even if they don't take it. You'll get people thinking differently.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). When you look around your home, you see a lot of things you really need -- and a lot of things you don't. Instead of increasing the number of things you own, scale down the number of things you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You won't be worried about your image or what others are thinking about you. You'll have an impact on someone's life, and that makes you feel absolutely marvelous.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It is said that misfortune brings a fool to his senses. But you don't have to be a fool to receive the wakeup call. Minor accidents, for instance, a slight slip or spill, will remind you to slow down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). There is such a thing as being too diplomatic. A line will be drawn today, and you'll be moved to take a stand. You will have the opportunity to declare a loyalty. There is dignity in this.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Do something out of the ordinary. You'll be in a social mood, though you might have to initiate the fun to make it happen. Call a friend to go bargain hunting or to take a bike ride on a scenic route.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Because of your selflessness, you'll make a favorable impression on someone interesting. This person will, at some later date, help you out. For now, though, you'll just be glad for the favorable attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your excitement over a project will be contagious. Make sure that you also have a specific plan. Work it through on your own before you share it. Your instructions will be followed to the letter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You will look back to when a problem first began. You might recognize that it started with circumstances very much like the ones you encounter today. You will take preventive measures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You don't want to be the "bad guy," but someone might put you in that position anyway. It's because you have such a soft way of delivering the hard facts. You're gifted in the art of letting people down easy.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 13). You'll have more time with someone who makes your heart beat a little faster. Take in new scenery in October. Unexpected visitors bring excitement at the end of 2011. January ushers in a different routine and increased energy and vitality. Your success will be intertwined with the success of family. Cancer and Capricorn people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 14, 3, 20 and 16.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: An E-READER is a blessing for those of us with low or limited vision. I have seen the expressions on faces and listened to the condescending comments from "book lovers," including librarians. When I explain the value of the e-reader, there is always an "I didn't think of that" response.

I have been an avid reader from the time I learned to read, and I still do enjoy reading. Unfortunately, I can't see the regular print in books (or newspapers) without a magnifier. Large-print books from the library are great, but they can be very heavy to hold and therefore make reading a chore.

My e-reader weighs 8 ounces, and I can change the font to a very large one. Not all books are digital, but I am rereading H.G. Wells, Steinbeck, Hemingway, etc., and occasionally purchase a best-seller. The reader doesn't play games or do anything but provide the opportunity to read. Hopefully, your readers will gain appreciation for the device as I have. -- Jean P., via email

Jean, thank you for sharing your positive experience. As a lover of "print" books, I'd never thought of your point of view! Now I know. -- Heloise

'ICE' HINT

Dear Heloise: A blank space before "ICE" ("in case of emergency") will list all the emergency numbers first on a cellphone. Then put A, B, C, etc., to organize the order in which people are to be notified. -- Patricia in Canada

LUMPY CHAIR MAT

Dear Readers: There was a lumpy chair mat (goes over carpet and under a rolling chair) in the office. What did Heloise Central do? We put the mat in the hot Texas sun for a few hours to soften it up. Worked great; it's as good as new! -- Heloise

SANITIZING A STAIN

Dear Heloise: While on a recent vacation, I accidentally marked my cloth car seat with ballpoint-pen ink. Since it's a new vehicle, I was really upset. Then, in a rare moment of creativity, I tried wiping it off using hand sanitizer and a tissue. Voila! It disappeared like magic. I know hand sanitizer is mostly alcohol, so I will always keep it in my handbag. -- Allene S., Bellville, Texas

How right you are! Most sanitizers list alcohol as the active ingredient. It worked in your case, but other readers should always test a hidden part of the fabric first to be safe. -- Heloise

Man who won't pay for seat lacking in class

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "Not Ungrateful in San Diego" (July 13) missed the mark. Her boyfriend of eight months is flying in business class to France, but he's only paying for a coach ticket for her? I was a divorce lawyer for 31 years (now retired), so I know a few things about relationships.

While Claude had no obligation to pay her way to France, once he invited her, he displayed a troubling character flaw. If he was going to pay her way, he should have paid for her to sit with him in business class. Her seat in coach is a warning sign: She'll always be in the back of the plane, the bus or his life. Of course buying business class seats for the two of them is expensive, but if he's going to take her to his family's chateau, he should treat her as an equal -- or not do it at all. -- PAUL IN SARATOGA, CALIF.

DEAR PAUL: I appreciate your viewpoint, one which is shared by many other readers. The responses to that letter were an interesting mix. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY: "Not Ungrateful" is unbelievable! My long-legged husband cannot sit in coach unless he is in an exit row, and those seats aren't always easy to get. Because I'm short, I don't need the extra space and, if I am assigned an exit seat, I gladly give it up to a tall person. That woman will be in France (paid for!) with her boyfriend. I would go in the BAGGAGE compartment for such an opportunity. -- HAPPY TO TRADE PLACES

DEAR ABBY: A less-expensive option for long-legged fliers is to buy an extra coach seat. Claude could purchase three seats together. That way he could sit sideways and put items in the central seat. Neither my wife nor I have long legs, but we fly this way for comfort on long flights. -- STEPHEN IN TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: When Claude offered to treat her to the trip, he put himself in the role of a "host." A host does not treat himself to steak while offering hamburger to his guest. I am accompanying my husband on a business trip. His company will pay for him to fly business class and I will purchase a coach ticket for myself. My husband insists on flying coach with me, saying that a gentleman would never fly in a different class than his wife. -- WE'RE IN IT TOGETHER

DEAR ABBY: My husband always sits in business class while I sit in coach when we travel long distances. He has a back problem and I don't. Why spend a lot of money on something so fleeting? We have plenty of time together once we arrive at our destination. I have never thought of myself as subservient -- just practical. -- ENJOYS LIFE IN COACH

DEAR ABBY: By all means, "Not Ungrateful" should go to France as planned. Her seatmate in coach could be a delightful person -- maybe even someone with whom she'd rather spend the rest of her life. Or, he could be someone she'll meet in France. Life's little twists and turns can be strange and mysterious, but they lead us to our destiny. -- BETTIE IN ALBUQUERQUE

DEAR ABBY: Claude wouldn't know chivalry if it bit him in the face. Men usually try to put their best foot forward in the beginning of a relationship. If this is his best foot, "Not Ungrateful" might want to pass on the trip and HIM altogether.

Trigeminal neuralgia, pain in face

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is trigeminal neuralgia, and what can be done to relieve its stabbing, excruciating pain? My daughter, 54 years old, suddenly experienced this unbearable pain on the right side of her jaw. The doctor gave her very strong pain pills.

She's been put on Tegretol (carbamazepine). It helps her tolerate the pain, but she still gets sharp pains off and on. Any advice would be appreciated. -- M.Y.

ANSWER: The pain of trigeminal neuralgia is incredible. The trigeminal nerve is the nerve that relays to the brain all sensations from the face. With trigeminal neuralgia, episodes of severe pain -- like an ice pick stabbing the cheek, chin, gum or lip -- occur unpredictably. A gentle breeze blowing on the face, chewing food, brushing the teeth or washing the face can stir up a bout of pain. It lasts for seconds to minutes but recurs day or night. Between attacks, the person is on edge, waiting for the next painful paroxysm.

Most often, this condition arises between the ages of 50 and 70. When it does so at younger ages, multiple sclerosis has to be considered. At older ages, the cause frequently is due to a blood vessel encircling the nerve and compressing it.

Tegretol is often chosen for pain relief, and it is a successful remedy for many. Other medicines used are oxcarbazepine (Trileptal) and lamotrigine (Lamictal).

When medicine treatment fails, surgical procedures can succeed. One is microvascular decompression, where a cushioning pad is placed between the vessel encircling the nerve and the nerve. Other procedures destroy the pain-carrying fibers of the nerve via injections or heat. The gamma knife, which isn't a knife at all but a focused application of radiation to the nerve, is a popular procedure.

I haven't given the details of all the procedures done for this problem, but your daughter can rest assured that there is hope for her.

TO READERS: Peripheral artery disease is a widespread illness that is treatable. The booklet on this common disorder describes what's going on and how it's treated. To obtain a copy, write: Dr. Donohue -- No. 109, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a granddaughter, 11, who became a vegetarian a year ago. She doesn't eat fish, meat or eggs. She drinks milk, eats cheese and a very few vegetables, and peanut butter. I am concerned about her diet at such a young age. I would appreciate your comments. -- B.P.

ANSWER: A large percentage of the world's population lives well on a vegetarian diet. Those people, however, have had generations of experience and have learned what keeps them healthy. Age 11 is not exactly an age to alter one's diet so greatly. Your granddaughter needs sources of vitamin B-12 and iron, and she would need calcium if she were not drinking milk. I wouldn't object to the girl becoming a vegetarian if she and her mother both obtained formal instruction on a balanced vegetarian diet from a dietitian.

Son's wife abuses, accuses him

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: My son has been married to "Josie" for 11 years. I admit I never cared for her. She has a volatile temper and creates destructive scenes. Once they married, I did my best to be friendly, hoping she would mellow with time. She has not.

In the past three years, Josie's violent behavior has escalated. She used to put holes in the walls and destroy dishes and furniture. Now she hits my son. If he defends himself, she calls the police and has him arrested. This has become a regular routine.

She recently held a loaded gun in his face. I'm scared to death that she is going to kill him. On top of that, their children are frequent witnesses to this madness. They have seen their father hauled off to jail numerous times, even though he is never the aggressor. Josie has actually hit herself in the face to create the impression that she'd been beaten. She once admitted to me that she smashed a bottle on her head so there would be blood.

I've pleaded with my son to get her help because she is mentally ill. Josie says she doesn't need counseling or medication, and my son cannot get her to go. Quite honestly, I don't think he's tried very hard.

Josie's family wants little to do with her, and her own mother warned my son not to marry her. He inherited money from his grandparents, and she has spent the majority of it on illegal drugs, yet he always goes back to her. I know I can't force him to do anything, but I want to protect my grandchildren. They always rally to their mother's defense despite her putting them in harm's way. What can I do? -- A Concerned Grandmother

Dear Grandmother: This sounds like a nightmare. Abused men often are reluctant to get help. Please urge your son to contact the Domestic Abuse Helpline for Men and Women (dahmw.org) at 1-888-7HELPLINE (1-888-743-5754). You also can call the Dept. of Children and Family Services, explain what is going on and ask them to investigate. And if you ever witness Josie hitting your son, call the police and file a report.

SHERIFF

— Jamie Metz, McCormick Run Road, Lisbon, reported an ATV accident near the Hoppel Arena area on state Route 518 near West Point at 12:54 a.m. Saturday. North Star Ambulance and West Point Fire Department reached the man, Gregg Kiger, 48, Georgetown, Pa., who had reportedly skidded sideways and off a high wall into a creek. Kiger was reportedly conscious and alert. He was transported to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown, but later released.

— A Cusick Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 8:46 p.m. Sunday her boyfriend was drunk and yelling, but later he had fallen asleep and she decided she did not want deputies to do anything.

— A Steubenville Pike, Lisbon, man reported at 1:31 p.m. Sunday another man took his four-wheeler without permission. He had gone out of town on Saturday and told the man to leave his four-wheelers alone, but he received a call Sunday informing him the other man had wrecked one of them.

— A Trinity Church Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 10:06 a.m. Sunday that sometime in the past few months their home had been burglarized. Multiple items were taken and her bedroom had been ransacked.

— Jeffrey Falk Jr, Jerome Street, Lisbon, was stopped near his home at 3:15 a.m. Saturday and charged with OVI, reckless operation and resisting arrest.

— A domestic dispute was reported at a state Route 154, Rogers, home at 6:56 a.m. Sunday. Deputies found Jennifer Cunning, who lives next door, had gone to her brother's house to get away from her live-in boyfriend, Eric Ream. She told deputies they had argued on Saturday night. He had been drinking, yelling at her, grabbed her by the throat and pushed her against a bay window and a wall. Ream had then grabbed her keys and left. Early that morning he called her to say the Highway Patrol had pulled him over and they were bringing him home. When the trooper left, the yelling began again, so she took her daughter and ran to her brother's home. Ream came there yelling for them, kicking the doors and forcing his way inside. Ream was charged with a felony domestic violence due to a previous conviction, along with criminal trespassing, possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of drugs (marijuana).

— A man in the 600 block of Fair Avenue reported at 3:18 p.m. Sunday that he was moving out of his ex-girlfriend's residence and she placed his couch on the porch. When he returned to pick it up, he alleged the recliner was damaged. He was told his options.

— Police were called for a landlord/tenant dispute at 7:27 p.m. Friday in the 1300 block of West State Street where people evicted from the trailer park were back at the lot where their trailer is parked burning debris from around the trailer. The manager said their eviction notice was for Monday, but the tenants said the notice was dated for Wednesday and they were to clean up the premises before leaving, which is what they were doing. An officer noted that neither date had passed. The tenants were told to put the fire out.

— A caller reported at 1:23 p.m. Saturday someone had taken a table and four wooden chairs he purchased at an estate auction earlier in the day. He said he made the purchase — Anonymous people reported a verbal dispute at an East Friend residence at 10:36 p.m. Sunday. Officers spoke with a woman, who advised that she and her ex-husband had words over child exchange.

Steelers regrouping after stunning 35-7 defeat in Baltimore

By WILL GRAVES

PITTSBURGH — Go ahead, pick your adjective. The Pittsburgh Steelers probably used it following a stunning 35-7 loss to Baltimore on Sunday.

Safety Ryan Clark called it “a whipping.” Several players went with “humbling.” Linebacker James Harrison considers it “a reality check” while offensive tackle Willie Colon labeled it “embarrassing.”

Whatever it was, it wasn't nearly good enough for a team that spent training camp talking about taking the next step after a crushing Super Bowl defeat.

Blundered snap was both lethal and legal

By TOM WITHERS

BEREA (AP) — As tough as it might be for them to accept, the Cleveland Browns were beaten by the Cincinnati Bengals — fair and square.

The quick snap was lethal and legal.

The Bengals did not violate the NFL's substitution rule when they caught the Browns' defense still huddling in the fourth quarter Sunday and quarterback Bruce Gradkowski alertly threw a 41-yard touchdown pass, a person familiar with the ruling told the Associated Press on Monday.

Gradkowski's toss to rookie A.J. Green with 4:31 left came after a legal snap with 14 seconds left on the play clock, said the person who spoke on con-

Brady's 517 yards pushes New England past Miami, 38-24

By STEVEN WINE

MIAMI — Tom Brady threw his first interception since October, so he wasn't perfect in the New England Patriots' opener.

He was close, though. Brady threw for a team-record 517 yards and four touchdowns, including a 99-yarder to Wes Welker, and the reigning AFC East champions started with a victory for the eighth consecutive season Monday night by beating the Miami Dolphins 38-24.

Defensive end Jared Odrick picked off a deflected pass to set up a Miami touchdown and end Brady's NFL-record streak of 358 passes without an interception. Otherwise Brady and the Patriots picked up where they left off last season, when he threw for 36 TDs and his team led the league in scoring.

New England totaled 622 yards, the most in franchise history and the most allowed by Miami.

Brady, who went 32 for 48, became the 11th quarterback to throw for at least 500 yards. Norm Van Brocklin set the record of 554 yards in 1951.

The capper came with 5:44 left and the Patriots leading 31-17. After they stopped Miami on downs at the 1-foot line, Brady lined up in the shotgun on first down and threw from his end zone to Welker, who had slipped behind Benny Sapp near the 30-yard line.

Welker caught the pass in stride and sprinted untouched for the score to complete the longest play in Patriots history.

Brady also threw touchdown passes on consecutive plays. He hit Aaron Hernandez

Pirates rally in the 8th, deal Cards a 6-5 loss

PITTSBURGH — The St. Louis Cardinals are in town for their final visit of the season, and Pittsburgh Pirates fans know what that means by now.

That's right, boys and girls, it's Albert Pujols time.

The All-Star first baseman didn't disappoint the 13,278 fans on Monday night, when he added pitcher Brad Lincoln to his long list of victims.

In the sixth inning, Pujols clubbed a two-run home run, only to be upstaged by the most unlikely Pirate of all.

Two innings later, seldom-used shortstop Pedro Ciriaco hit a two-out, two-run, bases-loaded double past Pujols to snap a 4-all tie en route to a 6-5 victory, as the Pirates snapped a streak of three consecutive losses.

The game-winner off reliever Fernando Salas came on his 19th at-bat of the season.

Closer Joel Hanrahan (37th save) allowed a run in the ninth inning, but struck out pinch-hitter Corey Patterson for the final out.

The jury remained out on Lincoln, who last month joined the rotation in a late-season tryout.

In five starts, the right-hander has a 1-3 record and 3.07 earned run average. He didn't pitch more than six innings in any of them.

Lincoln was nicked for an unearned run in the first inning, then his teammates scored twice on sacrifice flies off starter Kyle Lohse in the bottom half.

Shortstop Rafael Furcal singled to tie the score in the third inning, but second baseman Neil Walker hit the second of two doubles to get the lead back two innings later.

Moments later, Pujols took matters into his own hands.

After center fielder Jon Jay led off with a single, Pujols launched his 35th homer of the season, a drive into the center field bleachers.

In 169 games, slightly more than one full season, Pujols has a .367 batting average, 48 home runs and 143 RBI against the Pirates in his career. Perhaps more impressive, he struck out only 65 times.

Depleted Buckeyes not making excuses

COLUMBUS — Next man up?

Or is it all hands on deck? No matter what it is — pick your cliché — there seem to be some depth issues on the Ohio State football team.

Suspensions and injuries are ravaging the roster, and the Buckeyes are only two games into the season.

“It’s kind of crazy how many players we’ve got going down,” said tight end Jake Stoneburner on Saturday after the Buckeyes’ 27-22 win over visiting Toledo. “But that’s why we recruit great players.”

Because of the short-handed roster, many of those recruits are playing prominent roles.

Suspensions are creating the biggest problem for the Buckeyes. Not only are running back Dan Herron, receiver De-

Not everyone was ready for kickoff

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

It didn't take long for the lockout's impact to hit home. Where it struck most prominently on the NFL's opening weekend was a bit stunning.

Four teams, all 2010 division winners, flopped so badly on Sunday it makes you wonder if they realized these games counted. Most notable was how the Pittsburgh Steelers were torn apart in Baltimore. The NFL's most physical and violent rivalry turned into a tame stroll along the Inner Harbor on a late summer Sunday for the Ravens.

The defending AFC champion Steelers, a group that always comes to play, looked woefully unprepared, their vaunted defense allowing 385 yards, including 170 on the ground. There are some months when the Steel Curtain doesn't yield that many yards rushing.

The offense couldn't bail out the Steelers, either, not while committing seven turnovers — five by Ben Roethlisberger, who had won his last seven starts against the Ravens.

"We got beat into submission," linebacker James Farrior said.

We got handled in all three phases," added Steelers coach Mike Tomlin. "We accept responsibility for the plays we made and didn't make. We compliment them at the same time for the way they performed. Obviously, we have a lot of work to do."

A lot of that work didn't get done during training camp and the preseason, in part because many veteran teams — and the Steelers certainly have their share of vets — didn't want to push such players. Better to save them for the regular season, allowing them to work their way into "football shape."

But avoiding the pitfalls of preseason games has its drawbacks, too. That manifested itself in Baltimore, where the Steelers couldn't keep up.

"It was like we were a step slow all day," Farrior said. "From the first play of the game, they had their foot on the gas pedal and we couldn't stop it."

Ditto for the Falcons in Chicago, where the stats were relatively even, but the performances hardly were.

Chicago was the more-inspired team in a 30-12 romp that could have been worse. Anyone who expected Matt

Ryan, Michael Turner, Roddy White and John Abraham to be the best players at Soldier Field instead saw Jay Cutler, Matt Forte and Brian Urlacher — especially Urlacher — take charge.

"We've got a lot of things that have to be corrected," Falcons coach Mike Smith said, noting the high number of penalties, three turnovers and sloppy tackling — all symptomatic of poor preparation.

"In terms of how we're going to do that, we'll get back out there, get on the horse, jump back into the saddle and get back to work."

Cliches notwithstanding, maybe the Falcons needed to ride the horse more during training camp and the presea-dition of anonymity because play reviews between the league and teams are kept confidential. The source said the Browns had "ample time" to substitute before the ill-fated play, which will now be added to Cleveland's long list of heartbreaking plays.

BROWNS FROM 1B

Unlike most of the others, this one was preventable.

"It's a disappointing play," linebacker Scott Fujita said. "They caught the whole organization asleep on that one."

As the Browns' defense was waiting for a call to come in from the sideline, the Bengals hurried to the line and snapped the ball. Green, who had not caught a pass the entire game, hauled in Gradkowski's toss and easily outran cornerback Joe Haden for the TD to give Cincinnati a 20-17 lead.

On Sunday, Browns first-year coach Pat Shurmur wasn't sure if what the Bengals had done was permissible.

After reviewing videotape,

Shurmur's tone changed.

"There are no excuses," he said. "If they no-huddle or quick huddle, we have to get out there and cover. If that doesn't happen properly, let's call a timeout. It got snapped so quickly, we couldn't really get it because you're initially trying to get everybody where they need to be."

"It's something we'll work on. We'll make sure it never happens again."

Because players were not running on and off the field, there was nothing unusual about what was happening before the snap, the source said. If the side officials had determined the Bengals had gotten an unfair advantage, they would have raised their arms and stopped the play before the snap.

The only thing the officials failed to notice was that Cleveland had 12 players in the huddle.

There's no doubt the Browns were confused.

With the Bengals facing a third-and-11, Cleveland's coaching staff wanted to get the proper coverage package on the field. Defensive backs coach Jerome Henderson sent in rookie nickelback Buster Skrine, not realizing that Dimitri Patterson, who had sat out the previous play with an ankle injury, was already back on the field.

Patterson said he forgot to tell Henderson he was going back in.

As the Browns waited for linebacker D'Qwell Jackson to give them the defensive call, the Bengals broke their huddle, snapped the ball and caught Cleveland's players squeezing in an afternoon nap.

"We all had our eyes on D'Qwell," Fujita said. "It was one of those things that we were in the middle of a personnel change and everything was just kind of frozen and then, bam, they came out in 2-point stances. I think they had been gearing up to do that, and we were slow coming out of the huddle earlier, but that's on all of us."

"We just have to be quicker and have a greater sense of urgency."

Still, the Browns could have stopped the Bengals simply by using one of their three timeouts. Surely there were enough eyes on the sideline that someone, anyone, noticed the Bengals were about to get away with some planned trickery. However, not one person on Cleveland's sideline asked the officials to halt play.

Shurmur said in those situations it's up to him and the coaching staff to call time or for one of his defensive players to signal for a stoppage.

None of them did. Fujita regrets not doing it himself.

"I should have called it," he said. "Generally, we are supposed to get permission from the sideline before we can call a timeout on defense. But me being the crusty old bastard I am, I should have noticed it and I should have called it."

Fujita said the Browns have only themselves to blame for getting beat on the controversial play.

"Whether it was (legal) or not, no one really cares," he said. "We should have had better consciousness to what was going on on the field and on the sidelines the same thing, just from the top down, it was not good for anyone of us."

Shurmur wasn't going to blame one play for the Browns losing another season opener, his debut as coach.

He lamented too many penalties, poor execution on offense and a young roster that has to grow up. Shurmur saw enough positives to believe his team will rebound next week at Indianapolis. There's time to correct the mistakes in practice, especially getting out of the huddle on time.

If it happens again, the Browns will be ready.

"Regardless what happens, when they line up with two wideouts out there, we have to cover," Shurmur said. "I don't care if we're all standing in the middle holding hands — somebody has to cover those guys. We practice it, they know it. It's a hard lesson to learn."

Notes: Shurmur wouldn't say if P Richmond McGee, who averaged 36 yards on eight kicks in his debut, had lost his job. But Shurmur said the team was "evaluating" the position. ... RT Tony Pashos missed Sunday's game with a foot injury and Shurmur said it's possible the big man could sit out against the Colts as well.

OSU FROM 1B

DeVier Posey, left tackle Mike Adams and defensive end Solomon Thomas missing the first five games of the season for their part in the memorabilia-for-tattoos scandal, but there are others missing — and Ohio State doesn't know WHEN they will return.

Cornerback Travis Howard, running back Jordan Hall and cornerback Corey "Pittsburgh" Brown have missed the first two games under suspension for receiving improper benefits. Their status is still up in the air heading into practice this week, and they might or might not be available for Saturday's game at Miami.

Five of the seven — Herron, Posey, Adams, Hall and Howard — are would-be starters.

In the case of Herron and Hall, the first-and second-stringers on the depth chart are sidelined.

Simply put, there are a lot of players starting who normally wouldn't be starting.

But now, after two games, injuries are also taking their toll.

Starting receiver Corey "Philly" Brown went down with an ankle injury.

Word late Saturday afternoon was that it was a re-aggravation of an injury sustained against Akron — only worse.

Defensive end John Simon, arguably the best defensive lineman on the team, missed part of the second half against Toledo, while opposite defensive end Nathan Williams missed the entire game with injuries.

"Those guys are great players," linebacker said of the missing players, "but the thing we always thrive on is, 'Next man up.' Even those guys are great players, we have others who need to step up."

So far, the suspensions and injuries haven't hurt the Buckeyes in the win-loss column, though the biggest test of the season looms next Saturday when Ohio State visits Miami, Fla.

People like true freshman Michael Bennett, redshirt freshman J.T. Moore and sophomore Jonathan Hankins have picked up the slack on the defensive line.

Carlos Hyde (20 carries, 78 yards, 2 touchdowns) has been the running work horse, though Rod Smith's fumbles cause concern.

Dominic Clarke, who made a spectacular play to knock away a late Toledo pass, and Bradley Roby have lessened the blow of the absences of Howard and Pittsburgh Brown.

On special teams, Chris Fields — who had a 69-yard punt return for a score against Toledo — has made up for the absences of Herron, Hall and Philly Brown.

Said Coach Luke Fickell, "We're not going to dwell on it," and "The next guy's got to step up."

But at some point, one has to wonder how many more hits the Buckeyes can take before Fickell looks next to him on the sideline and realizes his reliable options are dwindling.

STEELERS FROM 1B

The offense, the one considered the team's most potent since quarterback Ben Roethlisberger took over eight years ago, turned it over seven times. The defense, the one that's shouted down any suggestion that it's starting to get too old, allowed Baltimore running back Ray Rice to go over 100 yards and failed to take the ball away once.

The best team in the AFC a year ago didn't look like the best team — or even the second-best team — in the AFC North.

Wide receiver Antonio Brown spent Monday dutifully going through tape highlighting the ugly details.

"A lot of guys would have never expected us to come out with a game like that," Brown said.

Particularly the Steelers.

Though coach Mike Tomlin did his best to try and calm his team, shaking hands with his players afterward and reminded them it was just three miserable hours in a four-month marathon.

Still, for a team playing against the usual high expectations, to fall woefully short of them even for a week was disheartening.

"We knew going into the game that we were going to face a lot of adversity, but we normally stay positive and respond to it," Brown said. "But I think everything we did, as far as responding to it, wasn't in the right way."

It's hardly time to panic. Yet it has been so long since the Steelers were manhandled so completely even the team's most even-keeled guys lost their cool. Safety Troy Polamalu, a day after signing a contract extension that will keep in with the team through 2014, found himself mixing it up with several Ravens out of frustration.

"I may have lost it a little bit, which is not a good example," Polamalu said. "You know what, that's also part of this game. The truth of it is we got our butts kicked."

There's plenty to work on heading into Sunday's home opener against Seattle.

The somewhat patchwork offensive line failed to open any holes for running back Rashard Mendenhall, who managed just 45 yards on 12 carries as the Steelers spent most of the second half trying to get back in the game. The Ravens also sacked Roethlisberger four times and harassed him into three interceptions.

The defense, which returned all 11 starters from a unit that led the league in points against a year ago, let Baltimore do whatever it wanted whenever it wanted.

Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco, who'd never beaten the Steelers when Roethlisberger was in the lineup, threw for 224 yards and three touchdowns. Rice, who managed a total of 84 yards in three games against Pittsburgh last year, ripped off a 36-yard on Baltimore's first snap and never looked back.

Harrison, who left the game with a knee contusion, posted on his Facebook page "That's what you call getting beat like you stole something!!!!"

The Steelers are hoping to steal back momentum next week against the Seahawks, who hardly looked like world beaters in a loss to San Francisco yesterday.

Pittsburgh escaped without any major injuries, and Tomlin brushed off any suggestion that his 30-something defense has lost a step.

"I'm not ready to judge it from a speed standpoint," he said. "We didn't turn around enough ball carriers. We didn't get off well enough on third down. We didn't create turnovers ... Usually speed is a part of that equation but I'm not ready to say that at this juncture."

What he is ready to say is that his team needs to get better quickly. The Ravens sent a loud message that they're not going anywhere anytime soon. The Steelers can't let their rivals become a distant speck on the horizon.

The benefit of being a veteran team, however, is that panic doesn't come easy. Sure, Pittsburgh knows it needed to play better and yes, the team hardly looked like the one that dominated the Ravens so thoroughly a year ago.

It was still just one week. There are 15 more to come.

"Coming into this game, we thought our offense was better than what it was," Roethlisberger said. "This gives us a chance to regroup and get ready for next week. I just think this was a bump in the

X-tra Mile Club to meet
SALEM — The Salem X-tra Mile Club's September meeting will be Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the bottom floor of the Memorial Building.

Topics will include the current cross country season and the future of the Star Trax race. All parents and coaches of Salem High School and Jr. High cross country and track and field athletes or anyone interested is urged to attend.

Rebound Club meeting set
EAST LIVERPOOL — The Rebound Club is holding its monthly meeting on Sept. 21 at 6 p.m. at the ELHS Fieldhouse Conference Room. All are encouraged to attend.

Ex-NFL player Corwin Brown arraigned
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Former NFL player Corwin Brown has been arraigned on two counts of confinement and one count of domestic battery stemming from a nearly seven-hour standoff with police last month.

Brown was being released Monday from the St. Joseph County Jail on $5,000 bond.

Prosecutors allege Brown held his wife hostage with a handgun and bruised her during the standoff on Aug. 12. Brown hospitalized with a self-inflicted gunshot wound after the standoff.

Brown's family has said they believe his actions may stem from brain trauma sustained from playing football. Brown played eight seasons in the NFL as a defensive back with the Patriots, Jets and Lions. He is also a former defense coordinator at Notre Dame.

A message seeking comment was left Monday for Brown's attorney, William Stanley.

Pittsburgh will stick with QB Sunseri for now
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitt coach Todd Graham isn't in a hurry to switch quarterbacks, yet he knows he needs to get more out of Tino Sunseri if the Panthers want to win Saturday at Iowa.

Sunseri threw a pair of interceptions during Saturday's 35-29 win over Maine, and all but one of Pitt's nine touchdowns this season have been scored by running backs.

After Sunseri's first pick Saturday, freshman Trey Anderson started warming up on the sideline. Then, following Sunseri's second interception early in the fourth quarter of a two-score game, Anderson stepped in under center.

Although Anderson led the Panthers (2-0) to a touchdown by completing 5 of 7 passes for 33 yards, Graham did his best to quell any budding controversy by insisting that Sunseri was his guy.

He, like many of Pitt's players, just needs to play better.

"Tino is our quarterback," Graham said Monday. "We have confidence he's going to get it done. Has he played well? No, he hasn't played well. He's made some good plays, but he has to play better and execute our system. I have a lot of confidence in him."

Sunseri's performance is hardly the only thing bugging Graham. The others? Try creating turnovers on defense, blocking better on offense and figuring out a way to be more consistent on field goals and extra points.

So far this season, Pitt has forced one turnover — an interception by Chas Alexih during a 35-16 win over Buffalo in Week 1 — and allowed seven sacks to FCS Maine. Kicker Kevin Harper has also missed three field goals and an extra point.

Serena Williams fined $2,000
NEW YORK (AP) — Serena Williams was fined $2,000 by the U.S. Open on Monday for berating the chair umpire during the final.

Tournament referee Brian Earley issued his ruling a day after Williams was cited by chair umpire Eva Asderaki for a code violation for verbal abuse during a 6-2, 6-3 loss to Sam Stosur in the women's singles championship match at Flushing Meadows.

A statement issued by the U.S. Tennis Association said the fine "is consistent with similar offenses at Grand Slam events."

Williams earned $1.4 million at the U.S. Open: $900,000 for finishing as the runner-up, plus a $500,000 bonus for having come in first place in the U.S. Open Series standings, which take into account results at hard-court tuneup tournaments.

The USTA also said Grand Slam committee director Bill Babcock conducted his own review and determined "Williams' conduct, while verbally abusive, does not rise to the level of a major offense under the Grand Slam Code of Conduct."

That means Williams does not face further disciplinary action — which could have included a fine and suspension from a Grand Slam tournament — under the "probationary period" she was put under after yelling at and threatening a line judge after a foot-fault call at the end of her loss to Kim Clijsters in the 2009 U.S. Open semifinals.

Djokovic beats Nadal to win 1st US Open title
NEW YORK (AP) — Novak Djokovic produced a nearly perfect performance to match his nearly perfect season.

Returning brilliantly, swatting winners from all angles, the No. 1-ranked Djokovic held on to beat defending champion Rafael Nadal 6-2, 6-4, 6-7 (3), 6-1 on Monday night in a final chock-full of lengthy, mesmerizing points to earn his first U.S. Open title and third Grand Slam trophy of 2011.

Djokovic improved to 64-2 with 10 tournament titles in a simply spectacular year, one of the greatest in the history of men's tennis — or any sport, for that matter.

He's been perfect against No. 2 Nadal, too, going 6-0 head-to-head, all in finals — three on hard courts, including Monday; two on clay; and one on grass at Wimbledon in July. Djokovic also won the Australian Open in January, and is only the sixth man in the 40-plus years of the Open era to collect three major titles in a single season.

Nadal did it in 2010, including a victory over Djokovic in the U.S. Open final. But the rematch was more of a mismatch, even if Nadal led 2-0 in each of the first two sets before Djokovic turned things around.

Only in the third set did Djokovic really falter for a few moments, getting broken while serving for the match at 6-5, then being outplayed in the tiebreaker. He was treated by a trainer for an aching back three times after that, getting massaged and taking pills to dull the pain.

But in the fourth set, Djokovic was in control from the start, breaking in the opening game with a forehand winner, then cruising from there.

When Djokovic ended it with a forehand winner, he raised his arms, then tossed aside his racket and dropped to the court. He pulled off his shirt and threw it into the stands, then put on a dark hat with "FDNY" written on it — a nod to Sunday's 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, which both he and Nadal mentioned during the trophy ceremony.

for a 31-yard score, and when a replay review determined the receiver was down at the 1, Brady threw to him again for a TD on the next play.

His other scoring passes covered 10 yards to Rob Gronkowski and 2 yards to Welker.

The performance overshadowed Miami's Chad Henne, who threw for a career-high 416 yards.

Brady was sacked only once, and good protection gave his receivers plenty of time to work their way open.

Newcomer Chad Ochocino had only one catch for 14 yards. But Welker made eight receptions for 160 yards, and tight ends Hernandez and Gronkowski combined for 189 yards on 13 catches.

The Dolphins' defense returned virtually intact from last season and was expected to be the team's strength, but Brady riddled them from the start.

He completed his first eight passes for 127 yards on the Patriots' first two possessions, and both ended with TDs.

Brady's first interception since Oct. 17 came early in the third quarter, when he tried to hit Julian Edelman in the flat. Sapp deflected the ball to the 304-pound Odrick, who rumbled 40 yards to the 9. Two plays later, Henne hit Brian Hartline with a 10-yard touchdown pass to make the score 14-all.

Brady was so rattled it took him 10 plays to put the Pats ahead to stay. They drove 73 yards and scored on his 2-yard pass to Welker.

► BUCKEYE PERISCOPE

COLUMBUS (AP) — What's brewing with the 2011 Ohio State Buckeyes ...

BUCKEYES BUZZ: R.J. Umberger, the Columbus Blue Jackets gritty forward, is a huge football fan. Well, to be honest, he's really only a huge fan of his alma mater, Ohio State, and his home-town Pittsburgh Steelers. So you can almost imagine how his weekend went. "I watched all of it. It was a nail-biter. But, you know what? Toledo's not a bad team," he said Monday at the Blue Jackets' media day, speaking of the Buckeyes' 27-22 victory over the Rockets. "They (the Rockets) have had some good teams in the past." Without specifically mentioning the NCAA investigation, allegations, sanctions and suspensions against the Buckeyes, he said he's changed his opinion about what this year's team can accomplish. "My expectations this year for the football team are not as high as the last couple," he said. "But I still think they'll do all right and they'll keep us proud." As for the Steelers, who stank up the place in a 35-7 season-opening beatdown at the hands of Baltimore, he was less than thrilled. "They missed a memo: They were supposed to be playing on Saturday because they should have been playing the college teams," he said with a laugh. "That was embarrassing."

FAST START: The Buckeyes went through their paces on Monday for Saturday night's show-down at Miami. But 10 minutes after last weekend's game, DL Garrett Goebel's head was on the Hurricanes. "I'm already thinking about Miami," he said. "It's going to be tough. It's a night game. I've never been down there or watched any film (on them). But I know Miami is always good."

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT: The NCAA has sent questions to Ohio State regarding three Buck-eyes football players suspended for accepting $200 for attending a charity event, and the univer-sity has responded with some answers. NCAA spokeswoman Stacey Osburn said in an email response to The Associated Press that Ohio State is still pulling information to answer all of the NCAA's questions. Cornerback Travis Howard, safety Corey "Pittsburgh" Brown and running back Jordan Hall have sat out the first two games after they admitted breaking NCAA rules by accepting cash for going to a charity event in Cleveland earlier this year. The suspensions came after several other team-mates were suspended for accepting improper benefits from a tattoo-parlor owner. The 17th-ranked Buckeyes have seven top players suspended heading into the Miami game.

CONFERENCE HONORS: The Big Ten's players of the week were Michigan QB Denard Robin-son (two TD passes in the last 1:12 of a dramatic 35-31 win over Notre Dame), Wisconsin LB Mike Taylor (career-high nine tackles, one fumble caused in a 35-0 win over Oregon State), and the special teams and freshman player of the week was Nebraska KR Ameer Abdullah (KOR for a TD in a 42-29 win over Fresno State).

► PIRATES NOTES

By Paul Ladewski

PITTSBURGH — There are at least six-million reasons why slump-ridden Pedro Alvarez still has the inside track as the Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman of the future. Or as many dollars as it took the organization to sign the first-round draft pick three years ago. But at 5-foot-8, Josh Harrison has beaten longer odds to get this far, and he isn't about to concede anything yet. "You should feel confident," said Harrison, whom the Chicago Cubs drafted in the sixth round in the same draft. "If you don't have that confidence, you're already defeated. I'm sure other guys feel the same way. That's part of the battle. You have to have some type of confidence. If not, you won't get the job done." "Regardless of who drafted me, I play with a chip on my shoulder. I've played that way for as long as I can remember. The way I see it, this organization traded for me, so somebody here liked me. I'm just glad to be a part of it." The rookie has been one positive development for the team this season, which is one of the rea-sons that Alvarez won't play regularly in the final weeks of the season. "I don't see that happening," manager Clint Hurdle said. "Some guys have earned playing time in his absence, and I don't want to turn my back on them or unplug them." Since the All-Star break, Harrison has hit the ball with more authority — eight extra-base hits in 85 at-bats. He also has been more dependable in the field. The turnaround began at his residence in suburban Cincinnati, where he was able to take a load off his achy body. The hurts included a troublesome right oblique and a swollen face, which he in-curred in a collision at home plate. "Definitely, I feel more comfortable," he said. "I'm also healthy. I had a few nagging things, not to make any excuses because I felt good enough to play. But just to be able to recover from the grind at the All-Star break after I was up and down, up and down (from the minor leagues) was good for me. I was able to go home and recharge." Harrison also took advantage of a three-week stay at Triple A Indianapolis, where he worked on patience and pitch selection at the plate. "It was a matter of adjustments," said Harrison, who hit .326 last month. "Before I was sent down, they told me what the wanted me to work on, and I really worked on that with the Triple A staff. When I came back up, I was able to get right into it." "Regardless of what I've done or other people think, what happens is not my decision. At the end of the day, all I can control is my effort and to play hard."

NO REST FOR THE WEARY: Outfielder Andrew McCutchen and second baseman Neil Walker faded badly in the last two months, but Hurdle had no intention to take his foot off the pedal in the final weeks of the season. Since Aug. 1, McCutchen has a .210 batting average and 18 RBI in 40 games, while Walker has a .246 batting average and 15 RBI in a like number of appearances. "How do you build up endurance?" Hurdle wanted to know. "I learned at an early age that, to build up running endurance, you run farther. You don't run the same distance every time. You stretch it out — running more, running longer, running harder."

LEROUX TO THE RESCUE: Reliever Chris Leroux retired 23 of the last 24 batters that he faced to solidify his place in the bullpen. Right-handers hit only .122 (6 of 49) without an extra-base hit against him this season. "He has gone out there with confidence," Hurdle said. "He has made (quality) pitches. He has eliminated the batter. He has pitched to the glove. He has good sink on the fastball, which has been located well. When you sink a fastball down and in to a right-handed hitter then follow that with a slider down and away, that's a lot (for the batter) to cover. That's really what he has done."

LOVE ME TENDER: Since Alex Presley replaced Jose Tabata (fractured left wrist) in the lead-off spot, the outfielder had two walks and 10 strikeouts in 38 at-bats. "We're going to want more contact up there," Hurdle conceded. "That's the (result of his) acclima-tion to the league, which tends to hit some hot spots of his. That's something that he'll be able to monitor and get better at and reduce over time."

DUE NEXT: Chris Carpenter (9-9, 3.75) will face Jeff Karstens (9-8, 3.32) this evening (7:05 p.m., Root Sports, WPGB-FM). Earlier in the day, it was announced that the 36-year-old Carpenter had signed a two-year, $21-million contract extension.

YOU THINK ERNIE HAS A GOOD HEAD FOR BUSINESS?

IT MAKES A GOOD PAPERWEIGHT!

DILBERT

YOU DIDN'T ANSWER MY EMAIL.

I TRIED TO READ IT BUT THE SIGNAL-TO-NOISE RATIO WAS TOO LOW.

SO IT'S SORT OF A TECHNICAL PROBLEM?

OKAY.

Classified Advertising Inside Sales Representative

The Salem News is seeking an energetic Classified Sales Representative to assist our team with meeting the advertising needs of classified customers over the phone, in person and online. Work as a member of a team in a fast-paced, multi-media environment. This position requires computer keyboarding speed and accuracy, attention to detail and strong customer service and sales skills. The right candidate will input classified inline and inline display ads via the newspapers classified system and effectively and efficiently meet ad copy deadlines. You will be expected to be a good communicator and represent the Salem News family of print and online publications professionally. Strong customer service skills, excellent spelling skills, ability to follow directions and experience working with the public a must. Experience in outbound calling and business development is helpful. If you are looking for a career opportunity, we want to hear from you.

GUEST REVIEW

'Three Musketeers'

pure entertainment on SCT's stage

By CHARLES CALABRESE

The Salem Community Theatre's production of "The Three Musketeers," directed by Dan Haueter and featuring a uniformly excellent cast, is pure entertainment, full of non-stop action, witty dialogue and wild plot twists.

Playwright Ken Ludwig, who adapted the story from Alexandre Dumas' novel, used his proven skills, honed on fast-paced farces like "Lend Me a Tenor" and "Moon Over Buffalo" to deliver a delightful package of entertainment, unwrapped flawlessly by SCT's cast and crew.

Since this is a swashbuckling epic, there is a lot of sword fighting and, thanks to choreographers Dan Haueter and Karen Hauck-Losito, it looks authentic and natural. The athletic, energetic cast began working on the fight choreography from the very beginning of rehearsals, and the effort shows in the seeming effortlessness the audience sees.

Haueter also designed the set, which is a marvel of simplicity and function, allowing the actors to move from one place and time to another without any needless delays, aided and abetted by Drew Bostwick and Haueter's lighting design. Brenda Morris' colorful, well-researched costume designs also deserve high praise.

Joshua Lankford is outstanding as D'Artagnon, a youth taught swordsmanship from early childhood by his Musketeer father, in the hopes that the son would one day serve the king and France as a Musketeer. Lankford is a cross between Jesse Eisenberg and Errol Flynn with his excellent comic timing, graceful swordplay and easy charm.

Lankford is matched perfectly by the beautiful Connie Baer as Constance, lady-in-waiting to the queen. Baer never ceases to please and amaze with her range and versatility as an actor. Her final scene with Lankford would be a campy disaster in the hands of a lesser actress, but she makes it moving, authentic and poignant.

One could not ask for a better embodiment of the three title characters, with Dan Haueter as the guilt-ridden Athos, Tim Gottschling as the fun-loving Porthos and Tom Kusiowski as the morally-conflicted Aramis. Each actor brings out the demons and angels who drive each man, without ever resorting to caricature. Each actor also portrays his respective character's fun-loving side with a gusto that enhances the audience's enjoyment of the show.

Karen Hauck-Losito is sexy and deadly as the mysterious Milady, and acquires herself in the fight scenes as well as any man in the cast. She also delivers a multi-layered performance that gives equal weight to her character's tragic past and to her ruthless present.

Hauck-Losito is contrasted perfectly by the stunning Niki Slaven as D'Artagnon's kid sister, Sabine, who is just as adept with a sword as her brother, which Slaven proves in an exciting duel with Hauck-Losito. Slaven also demonstrates a gift for romantic comedy in her character's hilariously awkward encounters with the dashing Aramis.

Brian Moore steals every scene he's in with his beautifully underplayed portrayal of the ruthless, psychotic Cardinal Richelieu. This is a part that is rife with opportunities for scenery-chewing, but Moore's calm, perfectly-modulated speaking voice makes Richelieu's evil all the more chilling so that, on those rare moments when the Cardinal loses his temper, the verbal and physical explosion shakes the stage.

Zach Devins' totally different approach to his character, the Cardinal's chief henchman, Rochefort, strikes just the right balance. Where Richelieu is subtle and diplomatic, Rochefort is hot-headed and blunt. Devins shows us a character whose monumental incompetence makes him more of a threat than his smarter allies.

Renee LaCivita is beautiful and graceful as Queen Anne, attempting to balance her marriage to the childish Louis XIII, played to the apex of immaturity by Wayne Morris, and her affair with the suave British Duke of Buckingham, given contrasting subtlety by Mark Kholos.

Pam Ramsey acquits herself well as D'Artagnon's mother, an abbess and a mother superior. Scott Wickersham has a wonderful moment as an innkeeper caught in his own web of lies by the Musketeers. Abby Cull, Brandon Ferry and Chris Jennings round out the cast with a variety of brief but impressive appearances.

While parents should be cautioned that "The Three Musketeers" has a healthy share of sexual innuendo, most, if not all of it will go over younger audience members' heads. Also, even though the violence is constant, the play's fast pace and life-affirming themes of friendship, loyalty and honor balance out any negative aspects of the story.

"The Three Musketeers" will be presented again this Friday and Saturday at 8:00 p.m. and Sunday at 2:00 p.m. I give it my highest recommendation as entertainment for the whole family. The fast pace set by director Haueter and the colorful characters embodied by an excellent cast will keep all ages engaged, excited and entertained.

I urge you to call ahead for reservations for "The Three Musketeers" at (330) 332-9688. Opening night saw one of SCT's biggest crowds ever for a non-musical play, and positive word of mouth should make the second weekend even better. Don't take a chance on missing this extraordinary entertainment.
