County officials work to ease deed crush

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — Columbiana County commissioners and Recorder Craig Brown both took steps Wednesday to alleviate the overcrowding created at the courthouse following a fire safety inspection.

Commissioners agreed to lease space at county juvenile court to one of companies performing mineral rights searches on behalf of shale gas drilling firms, while Brown announced he intends to make certain deed information available that should expedite the process.

Both actions were taken in response to an overcrowded situation resulting from Monday's surprise inspection of the courthouse by the Lisbon Fire Department's safety inspector after complaints were received about overcrowded conditions created by the small army of mineral rights researchers going about their business.

Following the visit, the inspector placed restrictions on how many researchers are allowed in the office at a time and ordered the removal of five folding tables in the courthouse basement hallway also being used by researchers.

This resulted in long lines of researchers waiting outside the recorder's office and other rooms for their turn to get inside to research and make copies of deeds stored on microfilm or in bound volumes.

The controversy also sparked a war of words between commissioners and Brown, with each accusing the other of failing to do their part to address the situation. Brown said commissioners passed on his suggestions, while they said the recorder has never provided them with a detailed plan to consider.

Commissioners at their 9 a.m. meeting agreed to lease office space to Western Land Services at the county juvenile court complex located in the former David Anderson High School. Western is to pay $1,000 between now and June 19, and then $20 per day afterwards until the firm vacates the premises.

This would accommodate about 30 mineral rights researchers currently assigned to the county by

Damascus house fire

The Damascus Fire Department responded to a house fire at 15892 U.S. Route 62 in Goshen Township at 11:40 a.m. Wednesday. Fire Chief John Bricker said there were no injuries but the two-story house sustained heavy smoke damage and one room was gutted. Damascus responded with 12 personnel, two tankers and an ambulance and received mutual aid from North Georgetown, Winona, Sebring and Salem departments while the Beloit and Green Township departments were on standby. Damascus firefighter Ben Hardy is pictured using a pike. The fire backed up traffic east and west for an extended period of time. Firefighters cleared the scene at 1:45 p.m. (Salem News photo by J.D. ## Leetonia council hears from 2nd waste company

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA — Village Council Wednesday night welcomed another waste management company suggesting franchising trash collection in the village.

John McGoran of Allied Public Waste told council about the benefits of having one company collecting trash, noting that it reduces heavy truck traffic on roadways, makes streets safer by reducing traffic and creates consistent rates for customers. He also noted that with one company, the village will always know with whom to talk if there are any issues.

In addition to the benefits to the village, having one company also will make it more affordable for customers since multiple companies will be bidding for the opportunity, McGoran said, noting that residents in one Trumbull County municipality get service for a $13.95 monthly fee. There will also be curbside recycling available, he said.

McGoran is the second representative from a solid waste company this year to suggest franchising. Chris Jacobs, executive director for Carroll, Columbiana and Harrison Solid Waste District visited council in January about the issue.

Trucking company tied to Chesapeake sets up 'Salem Yard'

By LARRY SHIELDS

SALEM — It's more evidence of the shale boom.

RN Industries Trucking (RNI) moved its new eastern Ohio operations onto the old People's Lumber facility in February.

The Utah-based company is hooked up with Chesapeake Energy and the "Salem Yard," as northeast division Manager Floyd Collett called it, is the third corner in a geographical triangulation that includes RNI operations in DuBois/Falls Creek and Washington, Pa.

"This one (Salem), we're planning on being pretty big," Todd Morgan, the northeast regional assistant manager, said Tuesday.

There are 100 people employed so far in the region and RNI's trucks have been running out of the Snyder Road location on which a large portion of the five acres is devoted to an

'12 Cruise planning nearly complete

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

SALEM — Plans for the 2012 Salem Super Cruise are reaching the final steps.

The seventh Super Cruise is scheduled for the June 21-24 weekend and at least four committees concluded plans during Wednesday's organizational meeting in city hall.

Service Safety Director Ken Kenst made the new Super Cruise T-shirts available to 19 people attending while the entertainment, advertising, concession and parking committees finalized details.

The T-Shirts are on sale in city hall for $10 each and are available in women's, men's and children's sizes.

Kenst said the purpose of the meeting was to finalize details.

Tom Hall and Sam Sicilia said that 23 trophies will be awarded during the Expert Tire Show 'N Shine car show that will run from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. Sunday at the Timberlane's lot.

Today is Thursday, April 19, the 110th day of 2012. There are 256 days left in the year. Ten years ago: The U.N. Security Council gave unanimous support to sending a U.N. fact-finding team to the Jenin refugee camp to determine what happened during Israel's military assault. Five years ago: Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid offered a bleak assessment of Iraq, saying the war was "lost," triggering an angry backlash by Republicans. One year ago: Cuba's Communist Party picked 79-year-old Raul Castro to replace his ailing brother Fidel as first secretary during a key Party Congress.

Seismic testing company, 4 farm families meet in courtroom

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — Four farm families in the western end of Columbiana County testified Wednesday in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court to explain why they have denied access to their properties to a company performing seismic testing for shale gas drilling companies.

TGS-Nopec Geophysical Co., which has a contract with Chesapeake Energy to perform seismic testing, has filed an injunction attempting to force the four property owners to allow the testing. The company's attorneys, Brent Barnes and Bruce Smith, as well as Wayne Millice, a vice president of onshore multi client at TGS, attempted to explain why they believe they have a right to perform the testing.

Smith contended the case is the first of its kind in Ohio, which could lead to other implications for other cases. In other states — Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana — Smith said rulings consistently allowed for seismic testing.

Millice testified that here, his company has hired another company, Cougar

Land Services, to go to property owners and ask them to sign permits to do seismic testing. The company reportedly has sent out 6,500 permits in the county with a 95 percent success rate getting the signatures, and he said the property owners are much more cooperative when they have signed.

However, the four defendants in the courtroom were among those who did not sign the permits. Instead, TGS-Nopec's attorneys attempted to prove their gas leases allow for the seismic testing anyway.

Two of the leases — the ones governing the properties of Gary and Eleanor Carter and Larry Fryfogle — were written in the 1950s. Their attorneys, Ken Vandy and Scott Zurakowski, argued the leases do not give an expressed right for seismic testing.

"(TGS) argues it has an implied right to explore," said Zurakowski, representing the Carters. "There is no implied covenant. The right is not granted in this lease."

Smith countered that by the leases granting the right to explore the properties for oil and gas, there is the right to do seismic testing.

"You are granting them the right to develop the resources," argued Smith. "Should we deny them the use of new technologies."

During the testimony of Joe Brown Jr., a representative of Cougar Land Services, Brown claimed Fryfogle threatened to shoot their employees and the next person who came out to his property.

Fryfogle testified the woman came down there every week for six weeks insisting he had the sign the permit. He repeatedly told her he did not have to.

"I used farmer's language," Fryfogle said. When his attorney, Vandy, asked him whether there was a concealed weapon or he had shown her a gun, Fryfogle denied it. "She was gone," he said. "She had the nerve to send another guy back three weeks later."

Fryfogle has four properties and three separate lease agreements, one of which was signed by his parents. He said in his case the lease agreements only cover gas storage. He had agreed to go in with other neighboring property owners to provide a bigger acreage track for another lease deal, but said he has no intention of signing anything allowing them to drill on his property.

One of his neighbors,

Dennis Smith, contended he allowed the seismic testing on his property and was promised it would cause minimal damage which would be repaired so he would never know they had been there. However, Smith said he now has ruts and damage to his alfalfa fields, as well as places where there are mounds of clay that he will strike with his farm equipment.

Millice testified to the seismic testing process they are using in the county, which includes drilling a hole 30 feet down and burying an explosive with a radio controlled detonator in the bottom. Those holes are 240 feet apart. Then a few weeks later a recording crew sets up equipment to read the shock waves and the explosives are detonated. Utilizing this technique Millice intends to create 3D charts showing what lies beneath the surface up to 12,000 feet down.

Millice was pushed by attorneys as to the value of his company's contract with Chesapeake. At first he claimed it was confidential, but when requested to answer the question by Judge C. Ashley Pike, Millice said they will receive $75,000 per square mile.

However, with large property owners like the four refusing to get involved, Millice said there will be areas where the data is incomplete or with low resolution. This makes the data less desirable and in order to make money on the project TGS planned to not only sell the information to Chesapeake but also to other companies.

Because the four property owners are not allowing the seismic testing, Millice said his company will be losing $30,000 per day while crews are on standby. The 200 people ready to do the testing are already in the Alliance area. TGS has invested $40 million in the project, according to Millice.

The other two defendants, the Golden H. Acres farm and James and Janet Zimmerman, signed recent gas drilling leases. However, Jay Herron of Golden H. Acres testified he researched the issue before convincing his parents and grandparents to sign leases. The 20-page leases created by their attorney, Bill Williams, states it grants rights exclusively to Chesapeake, which Herron said he believed meant Chesapeake and no one else.

He also said he researched on Chesapeake's website about seismic testing and it only explained Vibroseis trucks, which thump the ground to send shock waves.

Herron said the website said nothing about explosive seismic testing.

Barnes challenged Herron that the website was talking about another type of shale elsewhere and that type of testing does not work here. Bruce Smith said the lease states it allows seismic testing and you should not go beyond the "four corners of the page."

However, Frederick Coombs, the attorney for the Zimmermans and Golden H. Acres, argued the seismic reference is ambiguous, not even having testing with it. It does not explain what type of seismic activity is allowed.

Coombs contended in his closing statement that TGS never saw the leases for the properties before signing the contract with Chesapeake and did not know what was in them. Instead he indicated they intended to "bully landowners" to get their project done.

Pike assured both sides he would issue a ruling on the injunction by Friday and fax them all copies. The three attorneys representing the four property owners all made a motion the injunction should be denied based on the failure of TGS to prove it has a right to be on the properties.

DEATHS

Gyla Stern Nicely

EAST LIVERPOOL — Gyla Stern Nicely, 101, longtime East Liverpool educator and physical education enthusiast, passed away after a lingering illness at 9:55 a.m. Wednesday, April 18, 2012, at Crandall Medical Center in Sebring, Ohio. Mrs. Nicely had come to the East Liverpool area in the early 1940’s and had made this community her home, having resided on Parkway and on Armstrong Lane before moving to Sebring 11 years ago.

Born on June 14, 1910 in Beaver Falls, Pa., she was the daughter of the late Rosa Cole and Harry Hays Stern, and would have turned 102 this year. Those who knew her best would say her longevity could be attributed to her unending quest for knowledge and in staying active and interested in the lives of others.

She was graduated from Beaver Falls High School in 1928, where she had been a star basketball player before earning bachelor's of science and master's degrees in education from the University of Pittsburgh. While still in college, she became a nationally-rated basketball official and later was chairman of the Pittsburgh Board of national officials. She first taught physical education in the Avalon, PA, school district before teaching for 12 years in the undergraduate and graduate school of the University of Pittsburgh prior to moving to East Liverpool.

In 1956, Gyla became the physical education and health education instructor at East End Junior High School in East Liverpool, where she was also coach of both the volleyball and basketball teams, and also cheerleading advisor. Many of her summers were spent teaching in health workshops or serving as camp director on the Cheat River in West Virginia. While her husband, Norm, was serving with the Army in Germany, Gyla worked at a girls’ camp in Maine, and had served on the various physical education committee and boards. She retired from teaching in the East Liverpool school system in 1976. In honor of her many years of devotion to the school system, the East End baseball field was named for her.

Gyla was also heavily involved in the former Penn Avenue Methodist Church at one time, serving on the Pastor Relations Committee and Mission Board, and had taught the Welcome Class for many years. Upon moving to the Sebring area, she attended the Damascus Methodist Church. She was also a former member of the East Liverpool Board of Education, and belonged to Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary teaching society.

In her spare time, she loved to golf with her husband, and had at one time been the women’s champion at the East Liverpool Country Club. She and Norm also enjoyed the many summers they spent fishing in Canada and working in their flower garden together. Throughout her life, Gyla remained lively and energetic, and her enthusiasm was contagious to all who knew her.

Her husband, J. Norman Nicely, preceded her in death on Jan. 24, 1999. They had been married since 1940.

Also preceding her in death were two sisters, Thelma Courtney and Meda Liebendorfer, as well as a brother, Russell Stern.

Surviving are her nieces, Donna Lee Cook, Mary Sullivan, Nancy Courtney and Jeannie Myers, in addition to a nephew, Nils Liebendorfer. Several great nieces and nephews survive, as well as dear friends, Jim and Joyce Laughlin.

Services will be held at the Dawson Funeral Home at 11 a.m. Saturday, where the family will be present to receive friends for one hour prior to the service. Rev. David Parry, Chaplain of Copeland Oaks, will officiate.

Gyla will be laid to rest beside her husband at Beaver Falls Cemetery in Beaver Falls, Pa.

Those wishing to do so may make a contribution in Gyla’s name to Copeland Oaks Foundation, 800 South 15th Street, Sebring, OH 44672 or Hospice of the Valley, 5190 Market Street, Youngstown, OH 44512.

SHERIFF

— A North Street, Beloit, man reported at 8:56 a.m. Wednesday someone loosened the lug nuts on three of his vehicle's wheels.

— Mark Midose, with Precision Geophysical Inc. of Millersburg, reported at 12:10 p.m. Tuesday they were doing seismic testing in the area and sometime overnight someone took two of their receiving units, which are valued at $10,000. One had been located about 2,000 feet from Lewis and Smith roads, while the other was about 4,600 feet east of that location. A 1000-foot cable was also cut in half. The cable and a rack of sensors taken are valued at $700 and $150, respectively.

— A state Route 558, Leetonia, man reported at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday he received a cellular phone bill last month and paid it, but he said he does not own a cell phone. Now he has received a bill from Credit One Bank for $702 for a Visa card he also does not have.

— A state Route 45, Wellsville, woman reported at 2:29 a.m. Wednesday she was at her boyfriend's home and they had argued. The boyfriend allegedly pushed her to the ground and held her down in front of her son and his friend. She got up and packed her bags. The boyfriend left before deputies arrived. She said she did not want to pursue criminal charges.

— A Bowman Road, Alliance, man reported at 9:33 p.m. Tuesday he saw a suspicious car in a pull-off on South Mahoning Avenue. He kept driving down Bowman Road and nearly struck a woman standing in the middle of the road waving her hands. When he turned around he could not find the woman, nor the other vehicle. However, he did find a woman's coat, shoes, belt and wallet laying in the middle of South Mahoning. Deputies were able to contact the woman whose ID was found in the items. The woman reported she was assaulted by a man she knows while southbound on South Mahoning. She had jumped out of the vehicle. A dispatcher contacted Stark County Sheriff about her report, which would have occurred in their county.

— A Bill Smith Road, Wellsville, woman reported at 3:20 p.m. Tuesday a truck on jack stands had the engine running on Cannons Mill Road, but no one was around. Deputies found the driver, who said he went to the house to change his clothes.

— A Blacks Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 5:40 p.m. Tuesday her alarm went off at about 2:15 p.m. and she noticed one of her windows partially open.

— Kandy Biser, Bye Road, East Palestine, reported at 6:03 p.m. Tuesday she has a protection order against her son and he is at his father's house, which is in front of hers. Biser further reported the son was standing in the yard between the two properties calling her names. Deputies found the son in the driveway loading things into his car. Deputies explained the protection order to him, including the part which said he is to have no contact with her, including through another person. While deputies were still there, the son asked his mother's boyfriend to give her a message from him. Jonathan Weaver, 24, Bye Road, was charged with violating a protection order.

— A Faylor Street, East Palestine, man reported at 8:29 p.m. Tuesday he was walking down his street when his neighbor stopped his vehicle and pointed something shiny at him. He was uncertain what the object was, but he was concerned.

— A unters Camp Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 3:51 p.m. Tuesday she found the door to her in-laws' garage had been pried open. The dead bolt was broken. She did not find where anything was missing or disturbed.

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

— Wendy L. Smith, 42, 196 S. Madison Ave., Salem, was cited for assured clear distance ahead following a two-vehicle crash on West State Street at Jennings Avenue at 9:41 a.m. Tuesday in which she was westbound and allegedly failed to stop for traffic, striking the rear of a vehicle driven by Emily J. Brothers, 29, Kensington.

— Police responded to Centennial Park at 9:59 a.m. Tuesday where a parks department employee reported finding a suspicious item at a pavilion near Maple Street. Officers located the item, a 2-liter bottle filled with apparent gasoline and rags, sitting on a picnic table at the pavilion. The opening had been burnt as if lit.

— An East Fourth Street man reported at 4:32 p.m. Tuesday that a man he knows had threatened him with violence over the telephone the previous night. He stated that the threats had been ongoing for approximately one year in regards to a civil situation.

— Officers responded to a possible fight along the roadway in the 700 block of East State Street at 4:33 p.m. Tuesday in which the man allegedly struck the woman. Upon investigation, the individuals stated that the fight was verbal only.

— Police responded to a 400 block Fair Avenue home at 5:11 p.m. Tuesday where the resident stated that two people had been in her kitchen when she entered, claiming they were picking up items for her brother. She said the people left when she called the police department and that when she contacted her brother, he said that they had the wrong house. Officers searched the area but could not locate the suspects.

— A Hanoverton woman reported at 6:04 p.m. Tuesday that her boyfriend had shoved her during a dispute at his Arch Street home that day. The boyfriend denied the allegations, but both claimed to have belongings at the other's home.

— A man reported on station at 10:04 a.m. Wednesday that a man he knows had his license plates and refused to return them. An officer spoke with the individual who advised the complainant could retrieve them.

— Jacki A. Fieldhouse, 30, 605 S. Madison Ave., Salem, was cited for failure to control following a two-vehicle crash in the 500 block of East State Street at 10:27 a.m. Wednesday in which she was eastbound and allegedly struck the front of a parked vehicle while attempting to pull into a parking space along the roadway.

LISBON

— A caller reported there was someone driving backwards on Thomas Road and onto West Chestnut at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Kyle Temple, 18, North Market Street, was cited for reckless operation.

— A woman reported Tuesday her purse was missing from her car while it was parked in the county juvenile court. She had placed her purse under seat but it was gone when she returned, although the car was still locked. The woman called back to say she took a second look and found her purse farther back under her seat.

COLUMBIANA

— A man turned in a lost driver's license at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

— Ronald Shaffer, Leetonia, was arrested on a warrant from the county sheriff at 6:14 p.m. Tuesday on Howard Street.

— A woman reported at 8:21 p.m. Tuesday a man at a home behind United Rentals put gasoline on a telephone pole to kill ants and it caught fire and was burning out of control. Police checked and found no fire. The man had poured kerosene on an ant hill and there was no problem.

— A woman reported at 9:21 p.m. Tuesday people appeared to be trying to hide a white car in an alley by Naughton Plumbing. Police found a white jeep at the Performance Center that was moving inventory and there was no problem.

SALEM TOWNSHIP

— Salem Township Constable Dan Valentine received a call from a Boardman resident at 8 a.m. Monday who advised her vehicle was parked at a friend's house in the 3200 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road and was entered. A MP3 player was taken and the vehicle was unlocked.

— A resident in the 4300 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road at 2:51 p.m. Monday advised that someone entered her unlocked vehicle in the driveway and took some loose change.

— A resident in the 5200 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road reported at 2:51 p.m. Monday that both unlocked vehicles in the driveway were entered and cigarettes and loose change were taken.

— A resident in the 3700 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road, a mail carrier for the U.S. Postal Service, advised Valentine at 10:53 a.m. Monday someone entered her unlocked vehicle and took a stamp kit, book and a half of stamps, loose change and siphoned the fuel from her gas tank.

— At 7:20 a.m. Monday, Valentine received a report from a resident in the 4100 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road that her neighbor contacted her after discovering his vehicle had been entered and asked if hers was entered. She learned that her two vehicles unlocked and entered. A purse was dumped on the seat and the contents scattered. She didn't think anything was missing.

— A resident in the 3100 block of West Street, Leetonia, advised she at 7:02 a.m. Monday discovered both her vehicles were entered and a purse containing credit cards, money, ID and a checkbook were stolen. The purse was located later in the day at a nearby trailer park. All the contents were recovered except the money.

— Valentine was advised at 7:06 a.m. Monday by a resident in the 400 block of Lisbon-Canfield Road that he his unlocked vehicle was entered and someone attempted to steal the stereo. A shirt was missing from the vehicle.

— While investigating several thefts from autos at 8 a.m. Monday, Valentine located a purse in an open field and picked up the contents which included a drivers license, checkbook, credit cards and other papers. The owner was located and confirmed it was taken from her unlocked vehicle. It did not appear anything else was missing other than some loose change.

Be prudent when donating and give locally

To the editor:

It seems everywhere you go you hear or see something about the oil and gas phenomenon that is occurring in and around Columbiana County. Testimonies of property owners getting checks well into the six and seven digit mark are plentiful. Overnight millionaires make Jed Clampett and the Beverly Hillbillies seem like a modern day reality show.

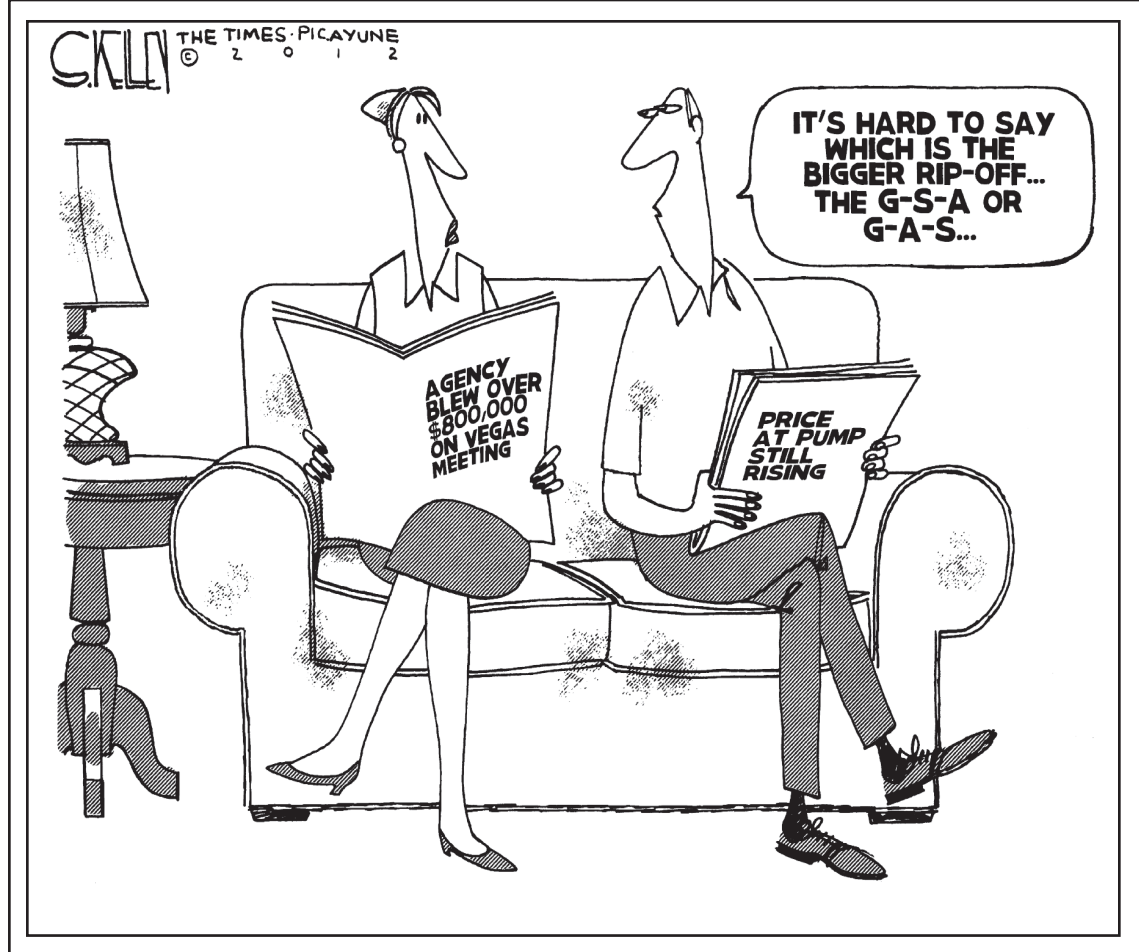

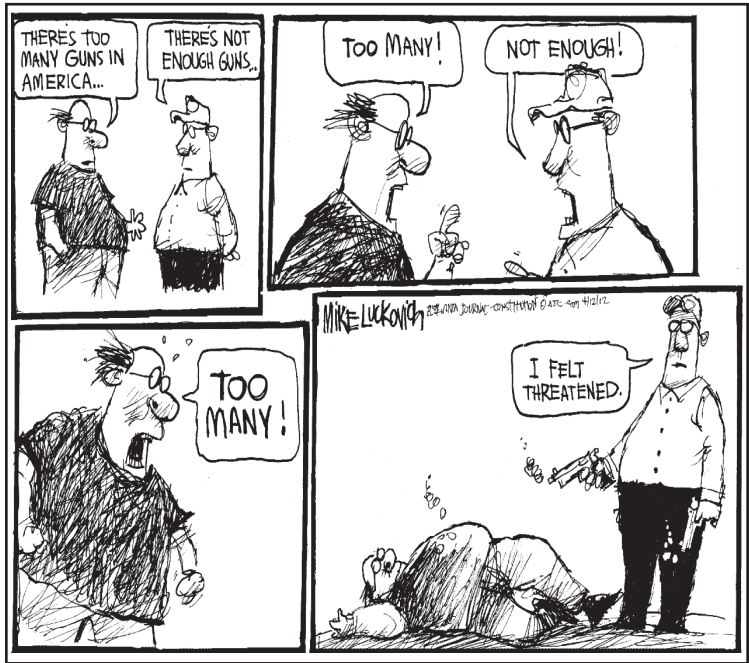

Preparedness is the strategy of the day from jobs, to skills, to food, lodging and housing. I attended a recent luncheon meeting presented by Consumer's Bank. Increased deposits are a sure sign that leasing and royalty checks are being cashed. Happy days are here again so it would seem.

It is my hope that along with the new found wealth, so too will be some old fashioned help thy neighbor spirit and support your local charities attitude. While we worry about sufficient infrastructure to support this oil and gas boom, let's consider the day-to-day social infrastructure provided by numerous local non-profit organizations. From social concerns to the Salvation Army and Community Foundations to the United Way. Senior citizens, children, the developmentally and financially challenged, 4-H, theater and the arts, nature, history and preservation and abused and neglected adults, children and pets need more support.

Consider a tax-deductible donation to local 501(c)3 non-profit organizations as a strategy to relieve some of the tax consequences to the income that is being deposited into your lives.

Before you give, look for a LOCAL option for your charitable giving. Don't just blindly donate, but ask to see financial records and spending habits along with a physical inspection of the operation. Sadly, there are organizations that will take your money that do not have the proper credentials to make your gift tax-deductible. Ask your investment or tax professional for help when evaluating possibilities for your gift of giving. Whatever the choice or size of the gift, look locally. Please give often. To whom much is given, much is expected.

Women, work, jobs and time

FROMA HARROP

To quote "Adelaide's Lament" from "Guys and Dolls," "You can feed her all day with the vitamin A and the bromofizz/ But the medicine never gets anywhere near where the trouble is."

That's the sense one gets from the recent tone-challenged courting of women voters.

On the Sunday talk shows, Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner called "ridiculous" Republican Mitt Romney's assertion that most of the jobs lost during the Obama years were women's.

The statement may have been true, but it ignored the bloodletting of mostly male-held jobs in the gruesome last months of George W. Bush.

Meanwhile, Democrats were finishing the week trying to recover from an offensive remark by a high-profile adviser. Hilary Rosen said that Mitt's wife, Ann Romney, "never worked a day in her life."

Ann raised five boys. Of course, her husband's fortune bought many a domestic service, freeing untold hours of housekeeping.

But anyone who has actively overseen the care, education and social development of children knows it's about much more than mopping the kitchen floor. Many stay-at-home wives are up to their triceps bathing children when their "Mad Men" providers are on their second cocktails.

As an apologetic Rosen tried to explain, Ann Romney's lot differed dramatically from that of women raising kids and clearing tables at Arby's. Point taken. How most single mothers do it is beyond me.

They have no time for civic participation, for normal cooking or doing their nails. At the end of the day, they collapse in front of a TV show exalting a surgically altered celebrity.

But Rosen is herself a top-paid lobbyist and can also hire others. For all the working-class melodrama of her delivery, Rosen's remark was a stab in the sensitivities of educated women who stay home with their children rather than use their degrees to make money elsewhere. It is oblivious to where the trouble is.

We're talking about women with the luxury of options. They have some control over the balance between work at home and work outside. What they don't have is time, and time for them takes several forms.

□ Biological time. Medical technology can stretch the childbearing years, but the easiest and healthiest time to give birth is in one's 20s and 30s. These are also the career-building years.

□ Career time. Of course, women can take a quick parental leave — and if they have the money, hire nannies to cover their toddlers. But they can never get back the time they could have spent having lunch with their 3-year-old and passing on their values.

□ Female beauty time. All cultures value female beauty, but our Hollywood-ized version boots women out of Eden after the second blush of youth. It's unfair, but comely women more often get the promotions, even in gray corporate offices.

And look at the daytime cable news anchors. The man is a mature voice of experience, and the woman, as the industry saying goes, is a "blonde half his age."

I talk to women-with-options all the time. Those who stay at home often speak sadly of lost opportunities and pain over a perceived lower status of not having a "real" job. They may feel guilt at not having used their education in the larger world.

I remind them that given today's life expectancies, they have time to have children and then later build careers. But when they worry about advancing in a profession they won't enter until age 40, I don't know what to say.

Even under the most comfortable circumstances, time is not on women's side.

For women, paying jobs are but one piece of a much bigger puzzle. Getting a job is often the easy part.

Don't be cowed on 'equity' by New York Times

MONA CHAREN

"Romney Camp Stumbles on Pay Equity Question" crowed The New York Times last week. "The Caucus" blog was referring to a conference call in which Romney top aides "seemed uncertain" about how to respond to a question about whether the former governor supported the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act.

The aide's reply, "We'll get back to you on that," marked a "fumble" the Times ruled, that is "not likely to help (Romney's) case" in attracting women voters. Please.

Notice that support for the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act, the first legislation President Obama signed in 2009, is now equated with support for women's equal pay. Thus do liberals constantly ratchet the country in a leftward direction, declaring every piece of legislation sacrosanct and daring conservatives to contradict them.

Romney should accept the invitation. The Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act is a terrible law that arguably diminishes opportunities for women.

The Times and surrogates for Obama (but I repeat myself) invoke the Ledbetter Act as if it marked some sort of milestone in anti-discrimination law. Hardly. Congress outlawed sex discrimination in wages nearly a half century ago with the Equal Pay Act of 1963, and then expanded those protections with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Pregnancy Discrimination Act of 1978, and the 1991 amendments to the Civil Rights Act.

Lilly Ledbetter was an employee of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. who waited more than five years after discovering a pay disparity with her male co-workers to file a claim under the Civil Rights Act. The law had a 300-day time limit (180 days in some states) for filing claims. The Supreme Court ruled that Ledbetter had waited too long. The act that bears her name resets the 180 day time limit with each new pay check so that employees claiming discrimination can wait years or even decades to file claims.

In Ledbetter's case, the executive accused of discrimination had died by the time her case was brought. This Obama-era law is an invitation to litigation and requires extensive and onerous record keeping by employers to guard against lawsuits. As Stuart Taylor reported in the National Journal, a federal magistrate judge had found that Ledbetter received consistently poor evaluations. It's possible that this, and not sex discrimination, accounted for her lower pay. But in any case, when years have passed, memories have faded, and principals have died, it becomes nearly impossible to ferret out the truth — which is why most laws have time limits in the first place. The Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act isn't really for women at all but for another key Democratic constituency — trial lawyers.

In practice, the law may actually damage women's opportunities as employers weigh whether to hire a woman or a man and consider the costs of a possible lawsuit by a disgruntled female hire.

Thanks largely to the Democratic Party, we've created a skein of laws and regulations to ensure equal pay for women. But just as with federal programs that provide food to the poor in an era of obesity, the feds are addressing a nonexistent problem. The feminist establishment endlessly hawks its "77 cents" figure, the phony statistic purporting to show that women are paid only about three-fourths of what men earn. But those global comparisons fail to account for key distinctions such as the competitiveness of the industries, work experience, and crucially, hours worked per week. Women consistently work fewer hours than men (for excellent reasons such as caring for children). If you control for marriage and children, as former Congressional Budget Office Director June O'Neill has demonstrated, the pay gap between men and women disappears. Even among some women with children, incomes are continuing to rise. Slate magazine recently wondered what to make of the new phenomenon of marriages in which wives earn more than their husbands (22 percent among those aged 30-44 and rising).

Here's the secret reason that mothers earn less than fathers — because they want to. Gasp! It isn't the patriarchy scheming to pay women less than they are worth. It's because women value time more than money. A 2007 Pew Survey found that 60 percent of mothers with minor children said that part-time work was their ideal. Another 19 percent preferred not to work outside the home at all. That's nearly 8 in 10 women who would prefer not to work full time while their kids are growing up.

So the Romney campaign shouldn't let The New York Times and the feminist establishment bully them into expressing support for the witless Ledbetter law. That's their agenda, not women's.

Cruise

Hall said the Expert Tire show will award three top trophies, best of show, mayor’s choice and a sponsor’s choice along with 20 participant trophies. It will also give away 100 dash plaques.

A DJ will perform until 6 p.m.

Hall said the parking committee has “pretty much settled down” and Bob Domincetti was named to head the parade committee.

Mick Orosz, the concession committee chairman, said there will be approximately 33 concessions using the Timberlanes lots and South Broadway Avenue, and at least three more are being located in a second midway on East Second Street.

Last month, it was decided to open that area to relieve congestion and overflow from the main staging area in the Timberlanes lot.

The municipal lots behind the Salem News will be prepared for entertainment by a DJ, vendor space and designated cruise car parking only.

Last year, there were 30 concessions.

Kenst said advertising was pretty much finished and Hall said they “needed to get the brochures out there because the car shows start in May.”

There will be six bands and three DJs, Kenst said, adding there will be a little more variety with country and western bands along with oldies bands.

A DJ is scheduled for the South Broadway/East State St. stage on Thursday night while the cruise kicks off at the Dunkin’ Donut restaurant on the east side of town.

“DJs will be at different places,” Kenst said and there will be a DJ on East Second Street.

Hall wondered about shirts for the cruise staff and Kenst said they are ordered and will have “Promo’s Unlimited” on the sleeve and Gene Johnson, who organizes the Arby’s Saturday night cruises, suggested a freelance photographer to take photos of cars lined up and cruising to post to cruise websites.

He said the photos can be posted on the sites free of charge and it is a good way to generate publicity.

Organizer Jim Bonfert is looking for more contributions for registered participant gifts. He’s obtained mostly restaurant gift certificates and is looking for just about anything for giveaways.

The gifts are awarded as door prizes to cruise participants throughout the weekend.

“That’s the main thing — that we give back to the participants,” Bonfert said, “because without them we’re nothing ... the more we can give back the better.”

Kenst said an overhead banner will be designed and placed across East State Street to greet people with: “Salem Welcomes Cruisers.”

Orosz and Bonfert gave everything a thumbs-up and Kenst said, “The main thing is if people have a good time, they’ll be back.”

The next meeting was set for 7 p.m. May 9.

Leetonia

Council once again noted that five companies currently have a license to collect trash in the village and agreed to discuss the issue for next year since the contracts with the companies renew at the beginning of the year.

In other business, Connie Thomas, a recycling consultant for Abibow Recycling, spoke to council about the company’s Paper Retriever program in which a bin is placed at a designated location and the host receives money for the amount of paper collected. The free program helps hosts raise money for special projects, such as those coordinated by the village’s Shade Tree Commission, she said. In 2011 the Pennsylvania-based company paid out between $1,200 and $5,800 to retrieval hosts.

The company typically empties the bins every two weeks, but service can be tailored to the host’s needs, she noted.

Also at the meeting, neighbors of an abandoned High Street property requested council to authorize the mowing and clean up of its yard and consider razing the building.

According to the neighbors, the building has gaping holes in the walls and roof and the interior is exposed to the weather, creating an environment that is attracting vermin and local teens. They also noted that a large tree had fallen down in the yard.

Zoning Inspector John Rydarowicz responded that there are at least two individuals interested in buying the property. He explained that the village cannot go onto the property to remove the tree, and as a result cannot mow the yard.

Additionally council reminded residents of an ordinance requiring owners to clean up their dog’s droppings after a resident complained of people not doing so.

Crowd

Western. Company official Sue Scott, who attended the meeting, said they will bring their own tables, chairs and a copier for the staff to conduct research. She said they could make copies of deeds and take them back to review.

Commissioner Mike Halleck, who has been critical of Brown, said they were forced to act quickly because of the "fiasco with the recorder's office" created by the safety inspection. He said they have been waiting months for Brown to bring them a plan for extending office hours but none ever materialized, forcing commissioners "to take it upon ourselves to find something that is workable."

Halleck said commissioners are also considering renting out more unoccupied county office space to other mineral rights research companies or possibly even relocating the entire recorder's office since there is no law requiring it be in the courthouse.

Brown said Western is one of about 10 such firms currently with researchers in the courthouse and he met with their representatives later Wednesday morning to discuss what could be done. He determined their greatest need is to get a look at the deed index book, which tells you where to go for deed information. To solve the problem, he intends to transfer the index information onto 10 flash drives and make them available to researchers. A flash drive is a portable storage device that can be plugged into a personal computer, allowing the information to be downloaded.

"The bottleneck (outside the recorder's office) is because of the index, so if we can get the index into more hands then the problem will go away," he said.

The cost of purchasing the flash drives is minimal but the more expensive component is transferring the index information from the 47 volumes, bringing the total cost to an estimated $4,700. Brown said the companies have agreed to cover the cost, but the upfront money to make this happen will come from his budget. He hopes commissioners will reimburse him once the companies pay the county.

"This is probably the most cost efficient way to address the problem, and quickest," he said.

Commissioners recently began allowing county juvenile court to keep its copying fees instead of letting the money go into the county general fund. Brown said it would greatly help his operations if commissioners would allow him to do the same or or keep a larger portion of his recording fees.

As for extending office hours, Brown said it has to be a joint effort with commissioners and other officeholders since it will likely require additional funding for his workers and the courthouse security staff. He intends to ask for a meeting next week with commissioners and other officials to work out the details.

"I just need to get people in and out. How (commissioners) handle security and cleaning, that's their responsibility," he said, comparing the situation to being a mall tenant.

Brown said the companies such as Western Land would prefer their workers be scheduled times when they would have access to the deed data, and nine of the 10 companies agreed. The only dissenter was DPS-Penn, which felt this placed them at a disadvantage since it has the most workers and deeds that need researched. DPS works for Chesapeake Energy, the largest lease-holder in the county.

"I can't do it if everyone isn't on board," Brown said, adding this is why he decided to make the data storage devices available.

As for relocating the recorder's office, Brown heard commissioners were contemplating move him to the county elections board building once the elections board moves into the new county government services building. He said such a move would prove costly, not to mention the elections board building would be less than ideal since it had water and mold problems in the past.

"I think there are better ways to solve the issue," he said.

Halleck also questioned the timing of the safety inspector's visit since it occurred the same day a story appeared in the Salem News about Democratic commissioner candidate Joe Csonka criticizing them for failing to act on Brown's plan to make deeds available online.

Brown said they never requested the safety inspection because the courthouse situation, while crowded, was manageable until the inspector ordered the restrictions, which resulted in "putting more people in the hallway."

As for placing the deeds online, commissioners are opposed because of the potential loss of copying fee revenue and security concerns. Commissioners indicated it would also do little to alleviate the situation because only deeds recorded after 1999 have the Social Security numbers redacted, and the vast majority of deeds being researched are much older and would still have the numbers on them.

Brown was asked if the mineral rights researching was winding down. "It's just the opposite, because there's a growing interest in oil," he said.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 4/19/12

Depending on what time they are born, some babies born today will be Aries and some will be Taurus. The sun moves into the Taurus part of the sky at 9:12 a.m. PST, making babies born beyond that point today bulls, not rams. The weeks to come bring a focus on the beauty in the world, especially that which is material in nature.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Feeling in control of your time is a key element of happiness and one you'll be grappling with today, as your loved ones need so much of your attention. Talk openly about your needs and expectations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your instincts drive you toward instant gratification. It's not your fault, but it is your challenge. A planning ritual will help you stay focused. What could you accomplish in order to feel productive and successful at day's end?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll get the chance to compete, and you should seize this chance in the spirit of fun and new experience. Beating the other players is far less important than doing your best.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Today you will do the same things you did yesterday, but with a new lightness of being. You're not trying to win love and approval with your actions. You're doing the things you do because it's what you enjoy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You like to be right, but not at another person's expense. Someone you love should have listened to you but didn't. You'll wisely resist saying "I told you so."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You may not be completely in touch with what's in your mind and heart, but your feet seem to know what's going on. They take you out the door and straight to where you can get clarity and peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). People want to connect with you, and if they don't have a good reason to do so, they may just invent one. Knowing this, weigh each request and suggestion. Try to assess the motive behind it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You're not one to look back, and yet you can't help thinking about what you almost had. Second chances abound as long as you realize what you missed out on and are willing to try again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You like to see things well done, whether or not you're the one doing them. Your moneymaking faculties will be put to good use as you gather up the opportunities that others miss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll love the casual way in which you connect with those you've known for a long while. It's easy and effortless, just the way you like it. Take this as a sign that these are the right people for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). What you name things will matter a great deal. Decide on a name that will make people wonder. Give others the gift of mystery, and they'll give you the gift of curiosity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A certain successful person you know will be more than pleased to help you become successful, too. Asking in the right way will be key. You'll be guided by the spirit of humility and realism.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 19). You'll have new faith in yourself this year. You'll spend the next seven weeks nurturing your talents and developing a plan to bring them to the world. A family connection helps you in June. You'll be building bonds with loved ones through many shared activities. Love blossoms when you're able to focus exclusively on the other person. Libra and Scorpio people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 29, 24, 38 and 19.

Paint tray in the bag

Heloise

Dear Heloise: When doing some PAINTING around the house, you can make cleanup a breeze by putting two plastic shopping bags (with print side turned inside out) on your paint tray. Just put one over the other on each end and tie with a knot. You may have to work the roller down in the tray if the bags are a little snug. Pour the paint in the wrapped tray and paint away. When it's time for cleanup, you can cut the knot and invert the bags back off the tray. You can even put the used roller cover inside the bags, close them up and throw them away. No cleaning your paint tray, and no need to buy a tray liner. — Carmen from California

Love this hint, as it's a cleaning and reuse one at the same time! — Heloise

EMERGENCY LIGHTING

Dear Heloise: Little did I know that the e-reader (Heloise here: an electronic tablet computer that you can download books onto) I received as a gift would come in handy during an emergency. As I was reading one night, the power suddenly went out. The room went totally dark, except for the light from my reader. The light it gave allowed me to find my way through the house to search for candles, flashlights, etc. It also holds a charge for quite a long time. I plan to keep it on my bedside table from now on. — Karen P., Conyngham, Pa.

EXTRA COUPONS

Dear Heloise: I have another way to share coupons. I would like to suggest giving them to animal shelters, humane societies and veterinarians' offices for pet/animal food or supplies. Many times people could use a little help feeding the furry little/big ones. I know I look for the coupons all the time. — Donna W. in St. Augustine, Fla.

DRYING GLOVES

Dear Heloise: I store my rubber dishwashing gloves on the top rack of the dishwasher. This allows them to drip-dry between uses and lets me know that the dishes are dirty until it's time to run it. — Patti, via email

Ex-wife can't take trash talk anymore

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband likes to call to ask me for advice. Our most recent conversation was in regard to his girlfriend and her sexual past, which he knew about before they started dating. He now disapproves of her history and he began calling her unpleasant names. He tells me he deserves better but intends to stay with her until he gets bored. Hearing this sort of talk gives me a stomachache and heartburn. I feel terrible for the woman. I want to be a friend to my ex, but I'm not sure I can handle the stress it causes. He has had a hard life, and I didn't make it any easier by divorcing him. Is the only solution not to take his calls, like my friends tell me? I'm not sure I can do that without major guilt. — WISCONSIN READER

DEAR READER: I'll offer another option: The next time your ex starts asking you for relationship advice, tell him you don't like hearing the way he talks about his girlfriend. Explain that it makes you so uncomfortable that you prefer to avoid the topic of his love life. If he respects your wishes, continue taking his calls. If not, because you find them upsetting, refuse them.

And please, stop feeling guilty about the divorce. From your description of your former husband, he is a user, and you're lucky to be rid of him.

DEAR ABBY: I attend a church with about 350 worshippers. The church provides a supervised nursery for infants to 2 years of age. Most parents with babies use it. However, one couple has a 2-year-old child and a 2-month-old baby. These parents do not take advantage of the nursery, but keep the kids in the sanctuary.

Last Sunday the baby, who was in the father's arms, cried during most of the service. The parents may be able to tune it out, but many of us were very distracted by the wailing.

The father is a schoolteacher. I couldn't help but wonder how this teacher would handle a student who caused such a disruption in his classroom. I don't think he would tolerate an hour of loud crying from anyone. Why don't these people understand their behavior prevents others from worshipping as they would like? — SILENCE, PLEASE

DEAR SILENCE, PLEASE: That's a good question, and one I recommend you pose to the person who was conducting the service. Out of consideration for the congregation, he or she should "remind" the parents that the nursery is available, and stress that in the future it be used to prevent the problem from recurring because the disruption caused "so many complaints."

DEAR ABBY: I was recently a bridesmaid at a friend's wedding. The bride gave all of us bridesmaids gifts after the reception. The bags were fancy and contained expensive gourmet chocolate candy. When I went to open mine, I noticed the box had already been unwrapped and half of it had been eaten. I didn't say anything to the others or the bride because I didn't want to hurt her feelings or seem ungrateful. What should I do? — BRIDESMAID IN TENNESSEE

DEAR BRIDESMAID: While it's unfortunate, I see no reason to bring it up now. Expensive or not, it's only a box of chocolates, and it appears someone may have bitten off more than they should chew.

Water on elbow from swollen bursa it's serious? — C.A.

ANSWER: If my diagnosis is correct, you have a fluid-filled bursa. The body has hundreds of bursas. They're strategically placed near joints to cut down friction when the joint moves. Here, behind the elbow, they protect the skin when the elbow bends and straightens. You irritated the elbow when you hit the ground. It's inflamed, and inflammation brings an infusion of fluid into the bursa. Ever hear of housemaid's knee? It's swelling of the knee that housemaids get from scrubbing floors. You have the elbow equivalent.

Trauma isn't the only cause of bursitis, as this condition is called. The medical term is olecranon (oh-LEK-ruh-nun) bursitis, elbow bursitis. Rheumatoid arthritis and gout cause it, too. People who rest their elbows on a desk for long periods also come down with it.

Early treatment is rest, ice and wrapping the elbow with an elastic bandage.

At this point, your doctor can drain fluid out of the bursa and inject it with cortisone to ease inflammation.

Is it serious? If it hurts most of the time or if it's hot and red, it's serious.

TO READERS: Questions on swollen legs are among the most asked. The book-

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I fell on concrete last month and broke one arm and bruised the other. Now the arm that wasn't broken has a big water blister on the elbow. It feels like it's filled with liquid. Every now and then, it hurts. Do you think let on edema and lymphedema explains why legs swell. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 106, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 78-year-old male, 6 feet tall and weighing 173 pounds. My 18-year-old granddaughter is 5 feet tall and weighs 113 pounds. Both of us take an occasional over-the-counter allergy-relief capsule — in the same dose.

My wife is 78, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 128 pounds. A neighbor lady is 73, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 249 pounds. Both take the same physician-prescribed medication for hypertension and COPD — at the same dose.

Are larger people undermedicated and smaller people overmedicated? — G.H.

ANSWER: Body size and age are two factors that do influence the level of medication a person absorbs and circulates. For this reason, most medicines have a wide degree of latitude when it comes to over- and underdosage. A person's metabolism and intestinal absorption also influence the dosage of drug a person gets.

For medicines that do not have such wide latitude of safety, more precise calculation of doses is mandatory. That's what's done with chemotherapy drugs, for example.

To complicate matters further, the ability of the liver to metabolize drugs and of the kidneys to excrete them are other important considerations when it comes to medicines with a small leeway of safety.

It all works out usually quite well, hard to believe as that might be.

Uncle certainly won't take it with him figuring he won't live much longer and so he wants to have fun. While we recognize his right to spend his money as he pleases, bank statements indicate he is now using credit cards at the casinos. He has run up debt on at least three cards, making only the minimum payments to keep them active. He has no "estate" left to hold responsible for debts after his death and figures everything will be written off. He sees nothing ethically wrong with this.

So, who will get stuck paying for the $20,000 in credit card debt when he dies? Who pays for the selfishness of his addiction? Why do credit card companies continue to raise credit limits for people his age, and how do they not notice that his charges are almost exclusively coming from gambling institutions? The casinos are no help getting him to stop. They send buses to pick him up. Is there anything I can do? — Wish He Knew When To Fold 'Em

Dear Wish: If your uncle has no assets at the time of his death, the debt would likely be written off. He could arrange to have himself barred from entering casinos, but he obviously doesn't want to be rescued from his addiction. Credit card companies are in the business of extending credit, and casinos are in the business of getting people to gamble. They aren't going to be of assistance.

You can contact Gam-Anon (gam-anon.org) for support, but understand that this becomes your problem only if your uncle gambles himself into destitution earlier than expected and you end up taking care of him. There's no point to being angry and frustrated. You don't have to admire your uncle, but you can learn to accept him as he is.

ACROSS OUR COMMUNITIES

Saving energy at home program being presented at KSU Salem

SALEM — A free event titled “Learn How to Save Energy in Your Home” will take place from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. today in the lecture hall of Kent State University, Salem campus.

The event is sponsored by Kent State Salem’s Student Government Organization in conjunction with Green Apple Project and Brewer-Garrett.

The workshop will educate both students and community members on how to save energy at home to help the environment.

The goal of the workshop is to help the students and the university “go green” by taking small, practical steps at home.

The Green Apple Project staff will present tips on energy savings at home that most people do not think about.

For example, most people do not realize that appliances continue to use electricity when they are plugged in but not being used.

The workshop will also provide demonstrations on how to save energy at home.

Salem Walmart associates will ‘Stuff the Truck’ Saturday to fight hunger

SALEM — From 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Salem Walmart associates will be volunteering their time to help “Stuff the Truck” as part of Walmart’s nationwide Fighting Hunger Together campaign.

Walmart associates will be asking customers to purchase extra food items to donate to Second Harvest Food Bank of the Mahoning Valley, a member of Feeding America, to help feed families in Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull counties. The food bank truck will be onsite and all non-perishable food donations will be accepted.

Walmart is asking all Facebook users to join the fight against hunger by voting for their community among 200 communities nationwide. The communities with the most votes will share a $2 million donation to local hunger-relief organizations from Walmart.

To vote for Second Harvest Food Bank, go to the Walmart’s Facebook page, and select the Fighting Hunger icon, then select Second Harvest Food Bank under the Youngstown-Warren community. Facebook users can vote once per day through April 30. For more information on how you can help feed hungry families in the Mahoning Valley visit www.mahoningvalleysecondharvest.org or call 330-792-5522.

SCH’s outreach services sponsoring Multiphasic Blood Analysis Program

COLUMBIANA—Salem Community Hospital’s outreach services will sponsor a Multiphasic Blood Analysis Program on May 12 at the Columbiana Medical Center, 750 E. Park Ave.

The screening includes over 30 tests, including a lipid profile for $40. This screening is an excellent way to learn how your body is functioning and detect any health problems in their early stages when they are most treatable. Some of the tests include red blood cells, white blood cells and platelets, electrolytes, enzymes, fats and lipoproteins, BUN, creatinine and uric acid. For an additional $10 each, participants may add a C-reactive protein screening or a prostate specific antigen screening.

Individuals should not eat or drink anything 12 hours prior to the test. Results will be sent to participants’ primary care physicians. Bring a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the screening to receive a copy of your results. Appointments are required and may be made by calling 330-482-3871.

South Range 5, Salem 2
SALEM — The Salem Quakers dropped a 5-2 decision to visiting South Range on Wednesday.

The Raiders scored a run in the sixth and two in the seventh to seal the deal.

Corey Deal earned the win in a complete game. Michael Dennison took the loss for Salem.

At the plate, South Range's Ryan Miller had two doubles. Andy Lacefield also doubled.

Keaton O'Brien had a double for the Quakers.

Salem is back in action today at West Branch.

COLUMBUS — What's a high-energy, fast-paced offense without a back who is capable of keeping a drive going?

With Dan "Boom" Herron no longer around, there are a lot of questions surrounding Ohio State's tailbacks.

Jordan Hall has clearly marked himself as the front-runner at the position, with Carlos Hyde, Bri'onte Dunn and Rod Smith in supporting roles.

Ohio State's coaches have not released a two-deep roster. But Hall, a senior who is probably more famous for being a high school teammate of Buckeyes outcast Terrelle Pryor than for anything he's done on the field in college, has clearly made an impression.

"We're going to play to Jordan Hall's strengths," running backs coach Stan Drayton said. "He's a guy who can be a

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jrue Holiday made five 3-pointers and scored 19 of his 24 points in the third quarter as the Philadelphia 76ers kept their hold on the Eastern Conference's final playoff spot with a 103-87 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers on Wednesday night.

Holiday dropped four of his 3s during a stunning 24-2 run when the Sixers blew open a tight game. Andre Iguodala added 19 points as Philadelphia snapped a three-game losing streak, won for just the third time in 10 games and increased their lead over Milwaukee to 2 1-2 games.

The Sixers play their final four on the road, including a matchup against the Bucks, who lost to Washington, next week.

Cavaliers rookie Kyrie Irving scored 9 points in his first game back after missing nine straight with a sprained shoulder. Samardo Samuels and Lester Hudson scored 15 apiece for Cleveland, which has lost 18 of 22.

ing counterpart Ilya Bryz-galov.

The Flyers led 3-2 when the Penguins reeled off seven straight goals to win the most lopsided game of the series.

“It was a crazy game in a lot of ways,” Pittsburgh coach Dan Bylsma said. “But we got a lot of big saves at key times, and we were able to turn it the other way.”

Claude Giroux, Kimmo Timonen and Jakub Vo-racek all scored for the Fly-ers, who blew their chance at a stunning sweep of the 108-point Penguins. Bryz-galov, shaky all series, was at his worst in Game 4. He was yanked for Sergei Bo-brovsky after allowing his fifth goal of the game.

“We had a task tonight to win one game, and focus only on one game,” Bylsma said. “And we got that win tonight. That’s our focus for the next game, back in Pittsburgh.”

The Penguins were the first team to score at least 10 goals in a playoff game since the Los Angeles Kings scored 12 against the Cal-gary Flames on April 10, 1990, according to STATS LLC.

“I think just our manage-ment of the puck,” Bylsma said, “and where we played it, was good in terms of keeping the flow in our favor.”

There’s little chance of a goalie controversy in Philadelphia. After earning huge cheers for stopping his first shot, Bobrovsky was worse than Bryzgalov, al-lowing four goals the rest of the second period.

Fleury made it stand the rest of the way and started to make up for a miserable first three games that saw him allow 17 goals.

Then again, Pittsburgh’s offense was so potent, not even Fleury could blow this one.

Long despised in Philadelphia, Crosby scored his second goal of the series on a deflection that tied the game at 3-all in the first. Staal followed with a goal from the slot for a 4-3 lead and the Penguins never looked back.

The Penguins were short-handed in their last-gasp ef-fort at trying to stave off elimination. Forward Arron Asham served the first game of a four-game sus-pension; and James Neal and Craig Adams served a one-game ban for their ac-tions in Game 3.

also sat out with an undis-closed injury.

Trying to stir the pot of an already emotional series, the Flyers showed league disciplinarian Brendan Shanahan’s video explana-tions of the Asham and Neal suspensions.

The crowd was fired up. But so were the Penguins.

Kris Letang shot high over Bryzgalov’s right shoulder in the opening minutes of the second for his first goal of the series and a 5-3 lead. Flyers coach Peter Laviolette saw enough and yanked his $51 million goalie.

The goals kept coming at a clip more appropriate for an All-Star game. Staal scored his second, Steve Sullivan and Pascal Dupuis each scored, and Staal slid an easy one through Bo-brovsky’s legs for the hat trick and a stunning five-goal third.

The Penguins scored four power-play goals in Game 4.

After the two teams com-bined for a whopping 158 penalty minutes in Game 3, the two teams played under control until the game spi-raled out of control late in Game 4.

The nastiness in the series spilled off the ice when Crosby said after Game 3 he didn’t like any of the Flyers.

The Flyers whipped up orange T-shirts for the game that read, “Guess What? We Don’t Like YOU Either!”

The tabloid Daily News photoshopped Crosby’s head on a lion with the headline, “The Cowardly Penguin: Time to Finish Off Sniveling Sidney.” One Philadelphia restaurant stuck a sign in its window that read: Crosby: (n). a) a baby penguin. b) slang term for extremely weak.

It was Pittsburgh’s cap-tain that got to savor the moment in Philadelphia, though.

For a few minutes in the first, it looked like the Flyers were set to roll toward a four-game sweep. The Fly-ers scored eight goals in each of the last two games, and scored three on the power play in the first. But the offense dried up and the Penguins took over.

By the time Malkin scored to make it 10-3 in the third, most of the fans had left and the crazed atmosphere from the opening faceoff was a distant memory.

Flyers fans roared when Lauren Hart, the daughter of longtime former Flyers broadcaster Gene Hart, sang “God Bless America,” alter-nating lyrics with Kate Smith, who was on a video image. Smith’s rendition of the song has been a rallying anthem for the Flyers since the mid-1970s.

Fans placed roses in the hand of Smith’s statue out-side the new entertainment complex across from the arena.

They might need a new good-luck charm if the se-ries returns to Philadelphia for Game 6 on Sunday.

bounds and Elton Brand had 12 points for the Sixers, who came in just 11-21 since Feb. 13 when they are among the Eastern Conference’s top teams.

It’s been all downhill since. However, Holiday ap-plied the brakes for one night.

Antawn Jamison’s basket with 7:53 left in the third brought the Cavs, who lost by 39 on Tuesday night in Detroit and have been get-ting blown out regularly, even at 57-all.

Moments later, Cleveland trailed by 22, shot down by Holiday.

His 3-pointer made it 62-59 and the third-year guard made three more long-range shots as the Sixers went on their 24-2 run over a 5:21 stretch to open an 81-59 lead. Philadelphia scored 19 straight with ease during the shocking outburst before Cleveland’s Samardo Samuels finally ended the Cavs’ drought.

Then, like a cold-blooded assassin, Holiday drilled an-other 3 for good measure, making it 84-64.

Goodnight, Cleveland. Drive safely.

Holiday went 6 of 6 on 3-pointers and didn’t play in the fourth quarter as coach Doug Collins got some needed rest for his starters, playing their third game in three nights and faced with playing their last four on the road.

The Cavs ended a stretch of seven games in nine nights and look exhausted. They did get Irving back, but only for 19 minutes.

Cavs coach Byron Scott admitted having some seri-ous apprehension about let-ting Irving play, but relented to the 20-year-old’s wishes and after the presumptive NBA rookie of the year was cleared by team doctors.

“He’s a competitor. He wants to play,” Scott said. “He wants to be out there with his teammates. The one thing I did tell him is that doesn’t mean you’re going to play the rest of the season. There’s still some games I still might shut him down. But I do want to see him get out there and enjoy being with his teammates and con-tinue to get better as a bas-ketball player.”

Irving didn’t wear a pro-protective sleeve on his shoul-der, which he first hurt on March 30. He gave the shoulder a good test in the second quarter, when he was sent sprawling into the padded basket stanchion after missing a layup.

Irving spent a moment laying on his back before being helped to his feet, a sight that drew a smile from Scott.

NOTES: It appears Cavs C Anderson Varejao’s season is over. He hasn’t played since breaking his right wrist on Feb. 10. Scott said the team hasn’t made a de-cision on whether Varejao will return, but with just five games left, it’s unlikely he’ll get back on the court until next season. Varejao was having an All-Star-cal-iber season before getting hurt, averaging 10.8 points and 11.5 rebounds. ... Philadelphia has won five straight over Cleveland. ... Walker’s bloop single gives Pirates 2-1 victory over Arizona

PHOENIX (AP) — These one-run games are practically an everyday thing for the Pittsburgh Pirates this season. Winning them, however, hasn’t been as routine.

Which made Wednesday’s 2-1 win over the Arizona Diamondbacks a little more satisfying.

The Pirates won their fourth one-run game in eight tries this season. A bloop single from Neil Walker to right-center field with two outs in the eighth inning providing the go-ahead run.

Clint Barmes scored from second base on the third of three straight singles with two out, the last of those by Walker off reliever David Hernandez.

“As many games as we played last year, one-run, I know that there’s a different feel,” Walker said. “There was a little more anxiety than there is now. You can tell our nerves are way more calm than last year. One-run games in the big leagues? That’s big time.”

The Pirates ended a West Coast road trip with three wins in their final four games after an 0-5 start, and won a series in Arizona for the first time since 2005.

Walker admitted he broke his bat on the hit.

“That is kind of sweet retribution for all the balls you hit hard that have been caught,” he said.

Walker entered the game with a .243 batting average and hit into two double plays Wednesday. Teammate Pedro Alvarez was thrilled, if not relieved, to record his second hit of the season — and second home run — in 27 at-bats.

Alvarez homered in the seventh on a 2-0 pitch from Daniel Hudson (1-1) to tie it at 1.

“Just glad I was able to put a good piece on it. Good things happen when you make good contact,” Alvarez said. He raised his batting average 32 points to .074.

Chris Resop and Tony Watson combined to pitch a scoreless eighth inning, and Juan Cruz earned his second save in as many games for the Pirates, who were without closer Joel Hanrahan due to a strained hamstring that forced him out of the past three games.

Hudson pitched 7 2-3 innings but got the loss because he’d allowed Barmes to reach base. He allowed two runs on six hits and struck out five.

“I was able to make a couple of pitches early on,” Hudson said. “Late in the game I couldn’t get that third out. Another thing I have to go through, I have to push through and get batters out.”

The Diamondbacks went ahead 1-0 after leadoff man Willie Bloomquist tripled and scored on Jason Kubel’s single in the first. It was the 10th game in 12 overall in which Arizona has scored in the opening inning.

Arizona turned three double plays in the first four innings.

Pirates starter James McDonald lasted four innings and threw 78 pitches.

Brad Lincoln (1-0), making his first major league appearance of the season after being called up earlier in the day, relieved McDonald and tossed three shutout innings, striking out four. He escaped a jam in the sixth with a double play with runners on first and third.

Pirates manager Clint

Hurdle said he was concerned that McDonald threw 33 pitches in the first inning, and decided to get him out of the game for a pinch hitter in the top of the fifth.

“I can’t let a young man throw 40 pitches in an inning,” Hurdle said. “It’s command. It’s repeating his delivery. It’s getting strike one. ... We’ve got to get that thing down around 15 pitches an inning.”

Lincoln earned the win after not sleeping the night before. He flew into Phoenix from Indianapolis in the wee hours of the morning.

“Keep working hard, and good things will happen,” Lincoln said. “There’s always that opportunity and you’ve just got to be ready for it.”

NOTES: The Pirates placed RHP Jeff Karstens on the 15-day disabled list before the game because of right shoulder inflammation. The club recalled Lincoln from Triple-A Indianapolis, where he was 1-0 with a 2.25 ERA in 12 innings. ... Karstens (0-1 in three games) started Tuesday’s game but left after one inning. ... Pirates RHP A.J. Burnett (orbital bone surgery) is expected to make a fourth rehabilitation start Saturday with Double-A Altoona. ... All five of the Diamondbacks’ losses this season have been by a single run. ... Hudson’s loss was the first for a Diamondbacks starting pitcher this season. ... Arizona OF Justin Upton was used as a pinch runner in the ninth, though he is unable to hit due to a left thumb injury.

OSU

versatile player for us. He is primarily a tailback, but we’re going to put more on his plate and see how much he can handle.”

However, Hall is on the small side (5-foot-9 and 198 pounds) and only carried 100 times last year. Hyde is more of a typical Ohio State back, at 235 bruising pounds. Dunn has gotten notice as a raw freshman and Smith still figures into the plan.

Heading into Saturday’s annual intrasquad scrimmage at Ohio Stadium, though, Hall knows he has a lot to prove — and that a lot of people are counting on him.

“It’s a perfect fit, really,” he said of the offense that new head coach Urban Meyer brought from Florida. “The offense, the zone reads, the screens, everything like that — just getting it in the open field — that’s a good fit for me.”

At Florida, Meyer made a point of getting the ball to his biggest threats. That meant putting wide receiver Percy Harvin, now with the Minnesota Vikings, all over the place — in the backfield, out wide, in the slot, taking direct snaps.

The tradition at Ohio State is for a quarterback — sometimes a pocket thrower, sometimes a combo runner and passer — to hand the ball to a back who is lined up behind him. Big linemen clear space, and the back runs to daylight.

Simple.

Herron, despite a six-game suspension for NCAA violations, rushed for 675 yards and seven touchdowns on plays that could just as easily have been drawn up by Woody Hayes back in the 1960s.

But that wasn’t the playbook at Florida. Harvin, a tall, lanky sprinter, flourished in the system — as did the Gators, who won two national championships running it. Quarterbacks Tim Tebow and Chris Leak threw the ball but were also used as another running option.

“In this system, in the Urban Meyer system, playmakers touch the ball. And we’re going to make the system fit our playmakers,” Drayton said. “We feel as if we’ve got ballcarriers here; they’re time-proven, they’re game-ready, they’ve been in game situations before. So there is no question that a thousand-yard rusher can be in this offense.”

The adjustment to fitting new players into Meyer’s attack has experienced some bumps along the way. The defense, where Ohio State returns nine starters, manhandled the offense in the early going this spring. Also, the passing game is well behind the run game.

All of which is to be expected, Meyer said.

“Throwing the ball is one of the hardest things to do in football because it starts with protection and timing and all of those types of things,” Meyer said.

“I can’t say that I’m surprised by what’s going on. That’s normal. The defense usually beats the mess out of the offense, the offense usually gets the running game going a little bit and then you develop the passing game.”

It’s clear that the coaching staff beams when talking about Hall. Mostly a kick returner through his first three years with the Buckeyes, he wasn’t much of a performer in the classroom either. But he has picked up his grade-point average from a baseline 2.0 to a 3.4. Quiet and unassuming around teammates, he’s also taken a more active role in encouraging younger players and assuming a leadership role.

Hall, still a close friend of Pryor who was banned from contact with Ohio State after NCAA violations, was asked if Buckeyes fans have ever seen anything like the offense the Buckeyes will utilize this season.

“Well, not from an Ohio State team. Maybe when coach Meyer was at Florida, they might know it from that. But I don’t think anything like this has been in Ohio Stadium,” he said. “I think we’ll be able to put up a lot of points in this offense. Yes, it’s exciting.”

Gomez suspended 5 games by MLB

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland pitcher Jeanmar Gomez has been suspended for five games and fined by Major League Baseball, which concluded he intentionally threw at the Royals’ Mike Moustakas last weekend.

Gomez hit Moustakas in the third inning of Cleveland’s 11-9, 10-inning win at Kansas City on Saturday, causing benches to clear to the second time. Kansas City’s Jonathan Sanchez had plunked Cleveland’s Shin-Soo Choo in the top half.

Gomez, Indians manager Manny Acta and Cleveland third baseman Jack Hannahan were ejected.

MLB senior vice president Joe Garagiola Jr. issued the suspension Wednesday. Unless the suspension was appealed, Gomez was to start serving it Wednesday night at Seattle.

BCS meeting: It’s all in the details

NEW YORK (AP) — No promises for a playoff, but the guys who run college football will meet next week as they inch toward making major changes to the postseason.

BCS executive director Bill Hancock said Tuesday that the meetings in south Florida on April 24-26 will not result in a final decision on how major college football will determine its champions, starting in 2014.

The goal instead for the 11 conference commissioners and Notre Dame’s athletic director is to come away with several very specific and detailed options for the leagues to consider when they begin meeting individually next month.

“This is not the final meeting,” Hancock said.

BCS officials are sticking to their self-imposed, mid-summer deadline for having a future postseason format completed. Though Hancock says it is “not a given” the BCS will switch to some type of four-team playoff.

There are versions of one being considered. A memo to college football officials, first reported by USA Today last week and obtained by the AP, details four options for the future of the Bowl Championship Series.

One is sticking with the current system with some tweaks, like eliminating automatic bids.

Another is a traditional looking playoff, with four seeded teams playing in semifinals and the winners advancing to a championship game. But there are four ways to set up that type of playoff being discussed, including playing the games in bowls, playing the game at neutral sites away from the traditional bowls or playing the semifinals on campuses.

The others have the participants in the championship game being selected after the bowls are played.

“There are so many details, intricacies to this,” Hancock said.

Dispute over Pettitte testimony at Clemens retrial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ability to “misremember” made its inevitable first appearance at the perjury retrial of Roger Clemens on Wednesday and momentarily detoured the court from a tedious jury selection process that will extend into a second week.

Shortly before the lunch break, U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton allowed the government’s lawyers to respond to a filing from Clemens’ lawyers over the scope of potential testimony from Clemens’ former teammate Andy Pettitte.

Pettitte is expected to testify that Clemens acknowledged using human growth hormone in 1999 or 2000. Clemens famously told Congress in 2008 that Pettitte “misremembers” their conversation.

Pettitte is also expected to say that he tried HGH himself a few years later. Prosecutors want Pettitte to be allowed to testify that the source of his HGH was Clemens’ former strength trainer, Brian McNamee, who says he injected Clemens with steroids and HGH.

Clemens’ lawyers claim that would be “classic ‘guilt by association’ evidence.” Invoking their client’s choice of vocabulary, their filing states: “The government apparently misremembers what the defense has said repeatedly about Mr. Pettitte.”

“We welcome Mr. Pettitte’s appearance, when he will presumably testify, as he did in his deposition, that he ‘must have misunderstood’ Mr. Clemens. ... There is nothing to be gained for Mr. Pettitte’s ‘credibility’ by proving an irrelevant fact about who injected him in 2002.”

Prosecutor Steven Durham said in court that the source of Pettitte’s HGH was crucial to the story. Durham noted that Pettitte and Clemens frequently worked out together with McNamee over several years.

“You cannot strip out half of the narrative, and have it make any sense whatsoever,” he said.

Walton did not give the defense a chance to respond, instead returning to jury selection in the afternoon. The judge said he planned to rule on the filing on Thursday.

Clemens is on trial on charges he lied to Congress at the 2008 hearing and at a deposition that preceded it when he denied using steroids and HGH during his 24-season major league career. The first attempt to bring the case before the court ended in a mistrial last July when prosecutors played a videotape for the jury that contained a short segment of inadmissible evidence.

Coyotes’ Raffi Torres suspended for Hossa hit

CHICAGO (AP) — The NHL suspended Phoenix Coyotes forward Raffi Torres indefinitely on Wednesday for knocking Chicago’s Marian Hossa out of the game — and maybe the playoffs — with a shoulder blow to the head.

Hossa won’t play in Game 4 on Thursday with the Coyotes leading the series 2-1. He was at home resting, exchanging texts with his Blackhawks teammates less than 24 hours after he was carried off the ice on a stretcher and taken to a hospital.

The hard knock by Torres was the latest in a first round that has been dominated by brawls and violent hits. The NHL scheduled a Friday hearing in New York for a player who has a reputation for big — and some say dirty — hits.

Depending on the locker room, the severity of the blow — one year after Torres did the same thing to Chicago’s Brent Seabrook while playing for Vancouver — differed and took the spotlight from a competitive first-round matchup that has seen all three games go to overtime.

“I’ve seen a lot of other hits like it in the league. It’s a fast game,” Coyotes coach Dave Tippett said Wednesday. “The thing about TV is you can slow it down and you can click and click and click it. When you’re out there on the ice, it’s not slowed down and click, click, click. It’s a fast game.”

“I don’t think there was any malicious intent on Raffi’s part,” he added. “He’s a hard hitter. That’s the way he plays the game. He turned, coming full speed, caught a guy right in the chest. Unfortunately, the player was injured.”

Torres’ skates were off the ice as he hit Hossa and sent Chicago’s regular-season points leader crashing to the ice in the first period. Hossa had just passed the puck when he was hit.

“There’s only been one dirty hit in our series and you saw the same thing from that guy last year in the same series,” Chicago’s Patrick Sharp said. “You know it’s coming. You try to warn your linemates and be aware when he’s on the ice. He’s got a history of targeting guys’ heads and having questionable hits. It makes it that much more frustrating to see it happen, but we got to rally behind Hoss.”

MIKE RANDELL/KANSAS CITY STAR/MCT

After seven races, driver Brad Keselowski is in 15th place in the 2012 Sprint Cup points standings.

LOOKING FOR A SPARK

Brad Keselowski hopes a strong finish at Kansas Speedway can stabilize his up-and-down season

BY JIM UTTER
McClatchy Newspapers

On the surface it may seem Brad Keselowski is in a similar situation as last year heading into the Sprint Cup Series' first race of the season at Kansas Speedway.

Before the spring Kansas race in 2011, the Penske Racing driver was 25th in the series standings with a single top-10 finish and desperately looking to get his season on track.

He earned a victory and ended up finishing the 2011 season with three wins and contending for the series championship.

Almost a year later, Keselowski is again in need of a strong finish or win in Sunday's STP 400 to help get his season on track.

Though not necessarily for the same reasons.

"As a race car driver, it's really hard to try to reflect back on past successes as you are trying to continue to move forward and progress. I've always said that past success, or failure for that matter, doesn't guarantee anything for the future," Keselowski said.

MIKE RANDELL/KANSAS CITY STAR/MCT

Keselowski celebrates his 2011 victory in the STP 400 at Kansas Speedway in Kansas City, Kan.

"There is no doubt, though, that this team is in a different place than we were prior to the race at Kansas last spring."

For one, Keselowski already has a race victory in hand, at Bristol, Tenn., last month. In seven races this season, he has two top-five and three top-10 finishes.

He is 15th in the series standings, but not for lack of speed.

Penske Racing has been beset by some problems with its fuel pickup system this season, which have plagued both Keselowski and his teammate A.J. Allmendinger.

Those problems have contributed to Keselowski's haphazard results. He has three finishes of 32nd or worse and three finishes of ninth or better, including a victory.

"I think, going back to our Nationwide series championship year in 2010, Paul (Wolfe, crew chief) and I always knew we could get it done at this level. He has done a great job in building a very good team, which makes all the difference," Keselowski said.

"Now, we go to the track expecting to be one of the cars to beat. It's really just a cool feeling to know that we are continuing the proud tradition of the 'Blue Deuce' (the nickname of his No. 2 Penske Racing car, which has long been sponsored by Miller Brewing Co.'s Miller Lite beer) and I think the best is yet to come."

Keselowski credits the win a year ago at Kansas to jump-starting the 2011 season.

"The big thing about winning Kansas for us was my crew chief, Paul Wolfe, gained so much credibility within Penske Racing and was able to move the needle on some projects that we needed to make happen to get faster," Keselowski said. "Once that happened, the rest of the season kind of snowballed from there. Our team got a lot stronger and it showed."

Another victory is certainly possible this weekend, and so long as Keselowski remains in the top 20 of points, having two wins this early in the season could well lock him in as one of two "wild card" entries in the Chase for the Cup.

In his brief history at the track, Keselowski has made four starts, only once finishing worse than 13th.

"Kansas is quite a bit different than some of the more traditional mile-and-a-half tracks, like Charlotte and Texas. You can also run all over the track at Kansas, from the high lane to the low lane," Keselowski said. "It's a great racetrack."

THIS WEEK'S RACE

STP 400

Where: Kansas Speedway, a 1.5-mile banked, paved tri-oval located in Kansas City, Kan.

When: Sunday at 1 p.m. (all times ET)

TV: Fox.

Radio: Motor Racing Network.

Last year's winner: Brad Keselowski.

Worth mentioning: Since Jimmie Johnson took the checkered flag last fall in the Hollywood Casino 400 at Kansas Speedway — the 199th time a Rick Hendrick-owned car has won a Sprint Cup race — it seemed only a matter of time before Hendrick Motorsports scored its 200th victory. Johnson finished second at Texas Motor Speedway Saturday night, can he do one spot better for his second consecutive win at Kansas Speedway and victory No. 200 for Hendrick?

Johnson

STOP 'N' GO

WHO'S HOT

■ Kasey Kahne: Helped make the inaugural Truck race at Rockingham one to remember.

■ Andy Hillenburg: All his hard work, time and money produced a grand return of NASCAR racing to The Rock.

WHO'S NOT

■ Kyle Busch Motorsports: Whether in Nationwide or Trucks, this organization had hit tough times this season.

■ Stewart-Haas Racing: An unusually sub-par weekend at Texas in what has been a great start to the 2012 season.

Roush Fenway owner likes Texas hats, prefers Cup crowns

BY CARLOS MENDEZ
McClatchy Newspapers

They call Jack Roush "the cat in the hat."

The NASCAR car owner is always in a hat. When he leaves Texas, he's usually wearing a cowboy hat.

It's the symbol of success at Texas Motor Speedway, which gives everybody on the winning team a Charlie 1 Horse cowboy hat to take home.

Texas track president Eddie Gossage loves to plunk the western headwear on the winning driver.

"Well, first off, God bless Texas," Roush said. "Eddie Gossage has supplied me with a lot of Texas hats."

Roush collected his 18th and 19th hats this weekend at Texas Motor Speedway. His team, Roush Fenway Racing, won the Friday night Nationwide race with Ricky Stenhouse Jr. and Saturday night's Sprint Cup race with Greg Biffle.

It's the third time Roush Fenway has swept a Texas weekend. Its nine Sprint Cup victories at TMS are the most by any organization. The Nationwide victory was Roush Fenway's fourth in a row at TMS.

"I don't know if this is my last sweep or not, but I am going to remember this one for a while," Roush said.

But enough cowboy hats. Roush, who turns 70 this week, wants a Sprint Cup title.

The team hasn't produced the points champion in eight years,

Owner Jack Roush wears a cowboy hat, a prize given to winning team members at Texas Motor Speedway, after his No. 16 car won the Samsung 500 on Saturday.

TOM PENNINGTON FOR NASCAR

since Kurt Busch won in 2004.

After that, Jimmie Johnson ran off five consecutive championships for Hendrick Motorsports. Tony Stewart won last year for his team, Stewart-Haas Racing.

Roush Fenway almost got its champion last year, but Carl Edwards lost the title on a tie breaker.

Edwards is the team's No. 1 driver.

Matt Kenseth won the Daytona 500.

But Biffle may be Roush Fenway's No. 1 hope this season.

Biffle padded his lead in the points standings with Saturday's win in the Samsung Mobile 500. He has a 19-point lead on Kenseth and Hendrick's Dale Earnhardt Jr.

The combination of Roush Fenway and Ford engines is proving powerful at 1.5-mile tracks like Texas Motor Speedway, and another one is coming up this weekend at Kansas.

Biffle sensed the opportunity ahead of him.

"I thought here and Kansas would be two racetracks that stuck out," Biffle said.

It's at Texas that a team can tell it is a championship contender. Stewart won November's race en route to the title.

Two years ago, Denny Hamlin won twice at TMS and finished second in the standings.

In 2007, Jimmie Johnson won the Samsung Mobile 500 in his championship year.

The seven winners before Biffle have all finished fourth or better in the final standings.

There's more to like about a win at TMS than a hat.
