Company gets 2 more weeks to pay Timberlanes taxes

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

SALEM — Unique Ventures Group, the company that purchased Timberlanes, was granted a 14 day continuance on a court order to pay all back taxes and confirm the sale of the property, Assistant Columbiana County Prosecutor Tad Herold said Thursday.

During a Jan. 13 phone hearing Columbiana County Common Pleas Court Judge Scott

Washam had ordered the company to file a confirmation of sale and payment of back taxes within 14 days.

The deadline was Thursday and Herold said the company's attorney called Wednesday saying they didn't have the money.

Herold said Unique Ventures was trying to line up "franchise money" and because of the circumstances Herold said he did not object to the extension.

Herold explained the company had originally asked for 30 days on Jan. 13, but Washam denied that.

Last March, Unique Ventures bought Timberlanes on a credit bid during a sheriff's sale.

It was the sole bidder.

County Treasurer Nick Baborak said the arrearage totaled over $100,000 including $94,193 in property taxes on two parcels.

Store hit by truck

Owners get 6 months to fix TanFastic building in Salem

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — The owners of the East State Street building, which housed TanFastic, have agreed in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court to make substantial repairs to the building within six months.

In an agreement between their attorney Brian Macala and City Law Director Brooke Zellers, Timothy and Deborah Smith have agreed to make repairs to the building within the next six months. The building at 363 E. State St. will not be reopened until the repairs are made and an inspection has been passed.

The agreement allows the Smiths to re-enter the building to begin making repairs.

"My clients' desire is to get the place built back up, rehabilitated," Macala said after the hearing.

He added estimates by his clients and the city to demolish the building within Environmental Protection Agency regulations were somewhere between $40,000 and $50,000. Additionally, there remains a lienholder who would have to be satisfied.

"The city of Salem gets to keep buildings and businesses in downtown," Zellers said of the city's interest in seeing the Smiths make repairs as opposed to demolishing the building.

Two Salem firefighters, Inspectors Mike Burns and Aaron Loper, attended Thursday's hearing. The two men inspected the building in the past, bringing concerns to the city about the condition.

The Butler Art Institute, 343 E. State St., located next to Smith's building, had contacted the city about bricks from the neighboring building falling and causing damage. The Butler Art Institute's website now notes there are no current exhibits being held at the Salem branch.

The earliest report of damage to the building was a June 2008 fire department report. One citation on Nov. 16, 2010 noted the inspectors had requested repairs be made or the damaged portions demolished. However, subsequent reports noted the building's roof continued to leak and there were expanding holes in the upper floor.

Death at Calcutta Wendy's considered a suicide

By JO ANN BOBBY-GILBERT
Staff Writer

CALCUTTA — The death of a young man at Wendy's on state Route 170 is being considered a suicide by the St. Clair Township Police Department.

Chief Don Hyatt confirmed Thursday afternoon that the 20-something man's death was self-inflicted.

The man's body was found in the restaurant's office by owner Patrick Clutter when he came to open up for the day, according to reports. The victim was an employee as well as a family member, Hyatt said.

Officers arrived on the scene just before 9 a.m. and stood by as the victim was checked by Lifeteam ambulance personnel, who found no signs of life, at which point the county coroner's office was notified.

An investigation by township police and the coroner's office is under way, but Hyatt said, "Every indication is that the young man took his own life. There were no signs of foul play, no forced entry, and nothing was ransacked."

The restaurant was closed for the day, which didn't stop customers from trying to order. Area police reported being called by irate customers saying they were at the drive-up window and demanding to know why no one was taking their orders.

Open house set by Columbia Gas on Salem line project

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — Columbia Gas will hold an open house from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Feb 9 in council chambers at city hall to explain the details of a $4.25 million gas line replacement project affecting businesses and residences in the center of Salem this year.

According to a press release issued this week, the work area will include from Seventh Street to the north, Railroad Street to the south, Vine Street to the east and Stewart Avenue to the west, with a few small exceptions.

The project is expected to begin next month for the replacement of more than 43,000 feet of existing steel pipe with long-lasting plastic pipe, along with the relocation of indoor gas meters to the outside of homes and businesses.

Letters with detailed information about the project were expected to go out this week to affected customers. The detailed information will cover the steps to be taken and will include a map showing the affected streets. The map is also

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 2012. There are 339 days left in the year. Ten years ago: Wafa Idris, a Palestinian paramedic, became the first female suicide bomber against Israel; her attack claimed the life of an 81-year-old man. Five years ago: Tens of thousands of anti-war demonstrators marched in Washington, D.C., calling for the U.S. to get out of Iraq. One year ago: Tens of thousands of Yemenis demanded their president step down; taking inspiration from Tunisians' revolt, they vowed to continue until their U.S.-backed government fell.

SALEM

— Michael Viglio, 54, of Youngstown, was cited for failure to yield after pulling from Strawberry Alley and colliding with a southbound car on North Howard Avenue driven by Jacquelyn Chestnut, 20, of Speidel Road, East Rochester, at 12:37 p.m. Thursday. The report said Viglio told police he had stopped for the stop sign and looked left, right and left, but didn't see the Chestnut vehicle. No injuries were reported.

— A woman came to the police station at 11:57 a.m. Thursday with her 5-year-old child who had disrupted the classroom he was in earlier Thursday. The officer tried to explain to the boy that it was important to listen to his parents and teachers.

— A woman in the 400 block of Penn Avenue reported at 11:45 a.m. Thursday that she was being harassed by a known person.

— A Salem man reported at 2:28 a.m. Thursday that someone scratched his vehicle while it was parked in the FreshMark parking lot between 3 p.m. Wednesday and 1 a.m. Thursday.

— Police were called at 1:44 a.m. Thursday to the 800 block of Summit Street and found a man and a woman in a back yard. The woman was visibly upset and said she and her boyfriend were arguing and she walked across the street from her house to her mother's house and he followed her and continued arguing. She had mud on her jeans from him allegedly shoving her to the ground. She was given options and he was told to leave and not return or he'll be charged with criminal trespassing.

— An officer warned an elderly man about his traffic violations and told him he would be sending a request to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles for a retest for him after a slow-speed chase at 9:46 p.m. Wednesday on Cleveland Street and in a parking lot. The officer had been following a vehicle going between 5 mph and 10mph in a 25 mph zone and thought several times the vehicle was going to turn into a drive, but it continued at a slow speed. The officer initiated a traffic stop as the vehicle pulled into a parking lot and the driver stopped and opened the door, but then continued pulling away from the officer back toward Cleveland Street. The officer activated his siren, but the vehicle continued through the parking lot past Cleveland Street at a slow rate. The officer maneuvered alongside the vehicle and the elderly male driver saw him and stopped. He claimed he didn't know the officer was behind him and didn't see the flashing lights or hear the siren. Another man came up and said he was supposed to be following the elderly man home. He said he would help to get him there.

— A woman in the 1000 block of East Third Street reported at 6:32 p.m. Wednesday that she was returning home and saw a neighbor standing on the sidewalk and said it appeared he was looking into her house. An officer contacted the neighbor who said he was looking at the vacant house next door because he thought he saw a broken window.

— An officer was flagged down at 6:17 p.m. Wednesday and told about a domestic in the 400 block of Vine Avenue. A couple had a dispute over money, but there was no physical violence.

— A man in the 700 block of East Fifth Street, reported at 5:56 p.m. Wednesday that he found a hole in his gas tank on Monday and wasn't sure if it was caused by a person or nature. The damage had already been fixed.

— A business owner in the 800 block of West State Street, reported at 5:37 p.m. Wednesday, that a customer arrived at the business irate and a verbal altercation allegedly led to the customer assaulting him. Information was gathered to forward to the prosecutor for review.

— An anonymous caller at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday reported dirt bikes in the 200 to 300 block of West Wilson Street. An officer located two people on mini-bikes in a driveway, but there was no evidence of them being in the street. They were told not to ride in the street and to put the bikes away after 9 p.m. due to the noise issue.

— A man in the 700 block of East Fifth Street, reported at 4:11 p.m. Wednesday that he found some burned items on the side of his residence. He requested an extra watch of the area.

— A woman in the 100 block of South Howard Avenue reported at 4:08 p.m. Wednesday that she was concerned people may be entering her residence without her knowledge. She was told her options.

— A neighbor in the 800 block of Southeast Boulevard reported suspicious people at a vacant residence at 1:51 p.m. Wednesday. An officer found a company had been hired to winterize the home because the owner moved out.

— A man reported at 8:03 a.m. Wednesday that he was staying with a female acquaintance for a few days in Salem and brought his belongings with him. He had a fight with her and began moving his belongings onto the porch and called another friend to pick him up. She locked him out while he was on the porch and his laptop computer was still inside. He said she wouldn't give it back and left, leaving the house locked. He was told to seek action through small claims court since police couldn't prove ownership of personal property.

PERRY TWP.

— A resident in the 1000 block of Cunningham Road reported at 9:13 a.m. Tuesday that someone stole several metal construction materials from the garage.

— Police were called at 6:29 p.m. Monday for a male customer harassing the clerks at Circle K South on South Lincoln Avenue. An officer told him to stop.

— Brian Graham Jr., of 1129 W. Perry St., was charged with violation of a protection order at 7:25 p.m. Monday and taken to the Columbiana County jail.

— A resident in the 1100 block of West Perry Street reported at 5:57 p.m. Monday that three juveniles were throwing snowballs at them while they were getting the mail. An officer spoke to the mother of the juveniles.

— A woman in the 1100 block of West Perry Street reported at 11:06 a.m. Monday that someone entered her residence and stole her laptop computer and two boxes of checks.

— A caller in the 1100 block of West Perry Street reported at 5:26 p.m. Sunday that an unwanted person was banging on the door and yelling. Police learned it was a neighbor dispute because someone visiting the caller parked in the common driveway for multiple apartments, blocking access to the other apartments. When the neighbors attempted to make contact, an argument started. An officer spoke to both neighbors and determined the landlord would have to settle the parking issue.

OEPA reports on spill

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency considers the case closed concerning a small oil spill last week which was traced back to a Pershing Street recycling business.

OEPA spokesman Mike Settles said a field representative visited the Downtown Metals business at 432 W. Pershing St. on Thursday as a followup to a visit last Friday when the business was considered the likely source of a spill into the storm sewer which ended up in Buttermilk Run, the creek along Pennsylvania Avenue.

A plumbing snake was placed in the floor drain in the garage and oil was found on the end of it when it was brought back out last week. Settles said the floor drain apparently emptied directly into the sewer.

The floor drain in the garage and the floor drain in the main building have both been sealed and covered with concrete in an effort to prevent a similar incident. The business owner also planned to do some additional work on the property in the spring.

"The gentleman was fully cooperative," Settles said.

City firefighters were contacted the morning of Jan. 19 after someone called the police regarding a sheen on the water along Pennsylvania Avenue, then the source was tracked back to the area of Pershing Street in the storm sewer. Booms used to absorb materials during spills were placed in four different spots and firefighters built a pair of dams to reduce the water flow along Pennsylvania Avenue.

All that's left now is to figure the cost for the response. Fire Chief Jeff Hughes said a bill would be sent to the business owner to cover the costs for the firefighters, including overtime since off-duty firefighters were called out.

Settles said the OEPA also bills its time and costs to the responsible party.

Death of Gerald Klusch officially ruled homicide

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — The death last fall of Gerald Klusch has been officially ruled a homicide, with two gunshot wounds to the head from an undetermined range listed as the cause.

Sheriff Ray Stone said his department has been investigating the case as if it was a homicide since Klusch's disappearance in September. The official ruling will not change the investigation which continues to be ongoing.

Besides continuing to work with family members, Stone said investigators are waiting for results from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification.

The sheriff's department had BCII investigators collect evidence from Klusch's pickup, which was found damaged and with blood inside the bed on Beacon Light Road the day after his disappearance. BCII was also given Klusch's clothing which was found with his body, and his wallet, which was found near the body with Klusch's identification and credit cards still inside.

Klusch's body, which was recovered on Nov. 18 in a wooded area off Hazel Run Road near Salineville, had been sent to the coroner's office in Summit County for examination. Following the results from that investigation, Columbiana County Coroner Dr. William Graham signed the death certificate listing homicidal penetrating gunshot wounds (2) of the head as the cause of death.

Klusch, 71, of U.S. Route 30, Lisbon, was last seen alive by his employee Matt Bailey when Klusch dropped Bailey off at his home on Dungannon Road on Sept. 29.

Grand jury issues 30 indictments

LISBON — The Columbiana County Common Pleas Court grand jury issued 13 open indictments and 17 secret indictments following three days of testimony this week. Two cases were issued no indictment.

The following are the open indictments:

Juston E. Buskirk, 32, North Market Street, East Palestine, charged with burglary, a felony three, after he allegedly admitting to Doug Smith, the owner of a home on College Street, Rogers, that he had broken into the home, took several items using them in Youngstown to obtain drugs.

Mary E. Kiehl, 27, Park Avenue, East Palestine, charged with complicity to burglary. Court documents allege Kiehl waited in the vehicle on Nov. 18, while Buskirk burglarized the home and went to Youngstown to sell the stolen items for drugs.

Jeremaine N. Lewis, 26, Sherman Street, Lisbon, charged with burglary, a felony three. Court documents allege Lewis on Nov. 11 forced his way into a home on Sherman Street, broke into a locked bedroom, stole money and used it to buy cigarettes at Circle K.

Ralph K. Lee, 34, Broadway, Wellsville, charged with failure to notify the sheriff of a change of address as a registered sex offender.

Bryan K. Moffett, 39, Lusk Lock Road, Lisbon, charged with burglary after he was accused of breaking into the home of Beau and Terry Manley, Wood Street, East Palestine, on Thanksgiving.

David E. Bristol, 27, North Market Street, East Palestine, charged with failure to notify the sheriff of a change of address as a registered sex offender.

Beau B. Brown, 32, 18th Street Heights, Wellsville, charged with burglary. According to previous media coverage, in November Brown was accused of breaking into the home of Sierra Shannon and Chris Pierce, West Fourth Street, leaving with jewelry and about $50 in loose change. The home was ransacked and Shannon's wallet had been gone through, with her license found in different room from the wallet. The home was entered by forcing a window.

Alex J. Blosser, 23, Crafton, Pa., charged with failure to verify his residence and failure to notify the sheriff of a change of address as a registered sex offender.

Bryan L. Jarrard, 41, Spartan Road, Salineville, charged with OVI.

Nicole E. Gamble, 25, Church Street, East Liverpool, was charged with deception to obtain a dangerous drug and receiving stolen property. According to court documents, Columbiana police found a stolen prescription bottle of medication in her vehicle.

Kyle L. Minamy, 24, East Chestnut Street, Lisbon, charged with three counts of unlawful sexual conduct with a minor. According to earlier coverage, the father of a 14-year-old girl reportedly caught them together in late December.

Shawn L. Paulin, 32, West Pershing Street, Salem, was charged with two counts of receiving stolen property and two counts of misuse of a credit card. Paulin allegedly used a credit card belonging to Sue Cole at Circle K, West State Street, Salem.

Christopher L. Hyler, 23, County Home Road, Lisbon, charged with three counts breaking and entering, two counts of receiving stolen property, two counts of theft and one count of attempted theft. Hyler is accused of selling a large quantity of stolen copper to HMF recycling in Lisbon and Downtown Metal in Salem.

Charged dismissed; defendant dead

LISBON — A charge of harassment with a bodily substance against Dean A. Shaffer, 35, North Lincoln Avenue, Salem, was officially dismissed on Thursday following his death at the Salem Community Hospital emergency room in November.

Shaffer had been accused of spitting upon Salem Patrolman Robert Keister on June 4 while in police custody.

A status conference for the case had been scheduled for Thursday.

OUR SIDE

Appreciate don't mock our local police forces

On Tuesday, a suspected car thief escaped custody of the Leetonia police. Albert Bell remains at large as of this writing. He is wanted on charges of a fourth-degree felony for receiving stolen property and third-degree felony escape. He was arrested for having a stolen car — being found sleeping in the vehicle in the Cherry Valley Coke Ovens parking lot. It was reported stolen by the Akron Police.

Bell was taken to the Leetonia police station for processing. While an officer was filing paper work, Bell, who had been secured in the station booking room, somehow slipped out of his handcuffs and ran out of the station. Bell was chased into the woods and escaped.

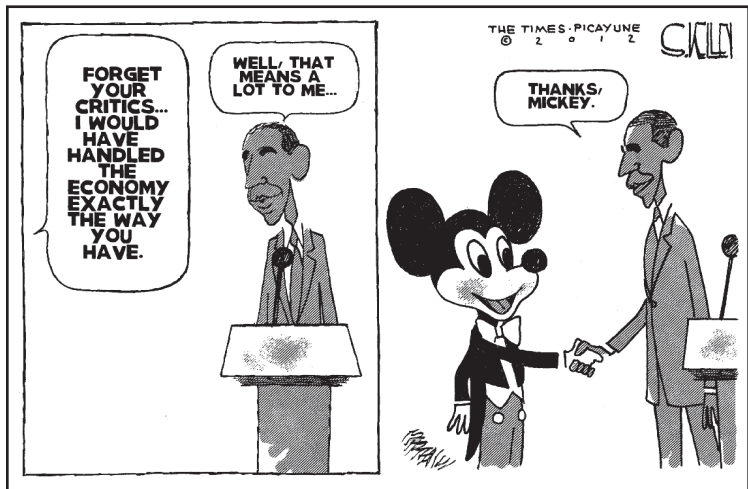

Of course this was reported through all the media outlets. Albert Bell and his Houdini handcuff trick, though impressive, doesn't rank with John Dillinger and his wooden gun. But an escape is an escape.

We've heard a few crass comments our way regarding the Leetonia Police and its handling of the arrest. Uh huh, the Barney Fife kind. You know, hick cops and all. This is a grand opening for all the insensitive critics of cops to line up in the mockery firing range and take their best shots. Which isn't surprising. There are those, go figure, who seem to live for such moments — to publicly ridicule at the expense of others. Even those who protect and serve. Who hasn't heard all of those worn-out cops and doughnuts jokes?

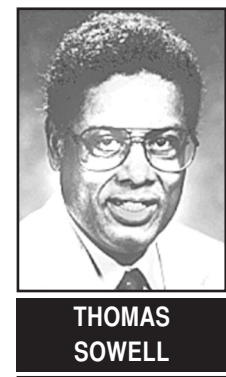

Granted, this must be causing embarrassment. Was Bell's escape neglect? Hard to believe. Carelessness, maybe? Certainly at least to a degree. This does fall squarely on the cops. And, yes, it could've been worse — nobody got hurt or even killed by this.

Other local departments and police members must be feeling for the red-faced Leetonia Police Department and Chief John Soldano. Perhaps all of us should do likewise. At least to a degree. The escape happened. It shouldn't have but it did.

Our area, whether cities, townships or villages like Leetonia, boasts many skilled and conscientious cops. Same goes for the Columbiana and Mahoning counties sheriff's departments. For every slip — such as the regrettable one that happened Tuesday — local police have hundreds of moments when arrests, serving warrants, helping out community members and defending the law are executed without a stumble. This usually all goes unnoticed. And while this area isn't a big crime-ridden metro there are everyday risks. Cops' lives are on the line on a daily basis. Understand that reality and appreciate all of those who serve including Chief Soldano and members of the Leetonia police force. There's no escaping that they deserve our full respect and support.

Is anybody in the Republican race serious?

THOMAS SOWELL

Barack Obama in the general election, thanks to fellow Republicans.

Whether you are a Democrat, a Republican or an independent, this is a very serious and historically crucial time for the United States of America. What Mitt Romney did or did not do when he was with Bain Capital, or what Newt Gingrich did or did not say to his ex-wife, are things that should be left for the tabloids. With the economy still faltering and Iran on its way to getting nuclear bombs, surely we can get serious about the issues facing this nation. Or can we?

Mitt Romney's boasts about what he did at Bain Capital are as irrelevant as Newt Gingrich's demagogic attacks on Romney's role there. Romney is not running to become head of Bain Capital.

While Gingrich backed away from his demagoguery about Bain Capital, Romney is continuing to press ahead with his charges that Gingrich was a lobbyist for Freddie Mac. As someone who has been a consultant, but never a lobbyist, I know the difference.

As a consultant, I have offered advice to people in government and in private organizations, both businesses and non-profit organizations. But I have never gone to a government official to urge that official to make a decision favorable to those who were paying me, or to those for whom I did free consulting.

It takes two to tango, and lobbying requires not only a lobbyist but also someone who is being lobbied. With more than 500 people in Congress alone who could have been lobbied, and additional officials in the bureaucracies, if Romney cannot find even a single person to say that Gingrich lobbied him or her, then it is long past time for him to either put up or shut up.

On the other hand, if Romney just wants to sling a lot of mud in Newt's direction and hope that some of it sticks, then that should tell the voters a lot about Romney's character.

So much of what has been said by various Republican candidates, as well as by the media, has been in the nature of unsubstantiated, peripheral or irrelevant talking points for or against particular candidates, rather than serious statements about serious issues confronting the nation.

So common has this approach become that even some conservative writers have come to the defense of John King, the CNN reporter who opened the South Carolina debate with a question about Newt Gingrich's former wife. These writers have declared that question "legitimate," in some undefined sense.

If all that "legitimate" means is that John King was not doing anything that many other reporters would have done in the same circumstances, that is making common practice a substitute for our own judgments about what is and is not relevant in a given context. Neither the audience in that room nor the millions watching on television were there to find out about Newt Gingrich's marital problems. If it is a common practice for the media to focus on such things, so much the worse for the media — and for the country.

"The politics of personal destruction" — as Bill Clinton called it, and as he himself practiced it — is not the way to solve the nation's problems. It has already poisoned the well of political discourse this season and claimed Herman Cain as its first victim, on the basis of unsubstantiated accusations by women with checkered pasts of their own.

Whether Herman Cain was good, bad or indifferent as a candidate, and whether his chances of winning the Republican nomination were substantial or non-existent is not the issue. Nor is this the issue as regards Newt Gingrich, Mitt Romney or any other candidate.

Poisoning the well of political discourse may be one of the reasons why we see such unsatisfactory sets of candidates for political office in both parties, not only this year but in previous election years as well.

Many able and decent people are understandably reluctant to subject themselves and their families to a mud-slinging contest or to media "gotcha" questions. The creeping acceptance of such practices is hardly a justification, but is itself part of the degeneration of our times.

The time is long overdue to get serious. Thomas Sowell is a senior fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305. His website is www.tsowell.com. Newt in Wonderland

KATHLEEN PARKER

When it comes to Newt Gingrich's post-speecher activities on the Hill, it all depends on what your definition of "lobbying" is.

In Monday's debate, Mitt Romney charged Gingrich with "influence peddling." But Gingrich insists that he was merely working as a historian when he collected $1.6 million from Freddie Mac over a six-year period.

Which in some version of reality could be true. Broadly speaking, a historian who is hired to dig ditches is still a historian.

But, strictly speaking, Gingrich did sign a contract with the mortgage giant at a time when Republicans wanted to end its special status as a government-backed private entity. And, he was a cheerleader for Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae, according to political action committee donors who heard him speak in 2007 before he became a critic insisting that others who backed the mortgage companies should be jailed.

Under pressure from the Romney campaign, Gingrich's consulting firm released a copy of one year of its contract with Freddie Mac, which leaves another five years unaccounted for and only shows earnings of $300,000. That leaves a significant time gap and a chunk of change, but the operative question is whether Gingrich acted as a lobbyist for the company. The question is crucial to the issue of character because the American people and congressmen deserve to know whether someone is being paid to advocate for a position.

A lobbyist for Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae whose tenure overlapped with Gingrich's told me on background that both signed the same contract. This person immediately registered as a lobbyist and said that Gingrich was clearly exerting his influence, though he may have been able to maintain a legal, if not entirely ethical, distance from the definition of "lobbying."

The law is very specific about what constitutes "lobbying," having to do with, among other things, the number of times one meets with legislators and/or how many times one speaks to a particular group. If you come just under that number, then you're technically within legal bounds.

Gingrich was familiar with relevant law, as one might imagine, and in 2000 even hired the co-author of a legal text on lobbying to advise him. He didn't want to step over the line, clearly, and may not have. But it is fair to ask whether such line-walking is appropriately transparent and forthright for a presidential candidate. If you only meet once with a high-level government official to advance a position for which you are being paid, does anyone really believe that's not lobbying?

Gingrich's claim to have been hired as a historian, meanwhile, is a hard sell when no such role exists. It is also a stretch for him to present himself as an anti-establishment, Reagan-conservative rebel when he is raking in money for his association with companies, some of whose interests are anything but conservative.

Yet another mother lode for Gingrich has been the health care industry. Various companies paid Gingrich $55 million between 2001 and 2010, according to Bloomberg News. When asked what the companies received in return, Gingrich told The Washington Post that they got to visit with "a really important guy who really knows a lot and who really has lots of information." That person would be Gingrich's Holy Trinity — Me, Myself and I.

Gingrich also earned more than a million from drugmaker Novo Nordisk, reportedly to help expand the U.S. market for its diabetes treatment. Again, there's nothing wrong with this as long as Gingrich was honest about his role with the company. The company's own annual report to shareholders listed Gingrich under "public-policy activities," which, the company added, "are often referred to as lobbying."

He also personally urged GOP congressmen to support the $395 billion Medicare prescription drug benefit, according to, among others, Rep. Jeff Flake and former Reps. Jeb Bradley and Butch Otter. Gingrich is unapologetic for supporting the Medicare benefit, especially while campaigning in Florida where an appreciative elderly population is otherwise known as a significant voting bloc. And it was, after all, a Republican initiative under President George W. Bush, even though many conservatives opposed it then as now.

Gingrich has insisted that throughout these dealings he was merely acting as a private concerned citizen, chatting up his colleagues about issues of mutual interest. This may well be the case, even within the legal definition of "lobbying," but most people don't get paid millions to shoot the bull over massively lucrative legislative initiatives. For Gingrich in Wonderland, as Humpty Dumpty explained to Alice, "When I use a word, it means just what I choose it to mean — neither more nor less."

Taxes

The company owes $90,248 in taxes on one parcel at 544 E. Pershing St. and $3,945 for the parcel across Penn Avenue (parking lot).

“I’m going to file a contempt of court motion on Feb. 9,” Herold said if the back taxes and confirmation of sale are not filed on Feb. 8.

“My plan is to ask the court to find them in contempt,” he said, explaining that “at the least” that would lead to another hearing for Unique Ventures to “show cause” why it shouldn’t be held in contempt.

A 60-room motel and steak house, Timberlanes was considered a Salem landmark.

It was opened in 1962 and closed its doors in January 2009 after being in placed in receivership.

Unique Ventures bought it from Ciena Capital Funding LLC in September of 2009 and had hoped to re-open later that year, but a legal appeal prevented that.

At the time of the sheriff’s sale, Carl Baker of I-vest Development LLC, said the group (Unique Ventures) controlled the liquor license and a decision about placing a Perkins Restaurant, either upstairs in the main dining room or in the downstairs restaurant, were pending.

For many years, Timberlanes was an award-winning restaurant and acclaimed as the best in the region.

property.” The committee is recommending they add a line saying “or any combination thereof, for a total of five.”

Drummond said a previous revision done last summer which addressed the dog/cat number issue and added a section dealing with exotic animals has been scrapped. The council chamber was packed during the last meeting on the issue in August, when pit bull owners and a store owner who sells some exotic pets came armed with questions and criticisms for the proposal.

Nothing ever happened with the proposal, leaving the chief’s question still unanswered, so Drummond said they were clarifying only the section the chief asked to be clarified. He asked if they thought they should add something about a grandfather clause for those people who currently have more than five dogs and cats, but Brown said five should be the limit.

“I see no reason to grandfather anybody in,” he said.

Brown also talked about cats and how some people have indoor cats and outdoor cats and how do you count them, since many won’t claim the ones outside if they’re asked about them.

The consensus of the committee was that if a complaint if filed and someone is found out of compliance, they would have to take it upon themselves to get the number of dogs or cats or combination down to five.

“We’re not going to go into peoples’ homes counting animals,” Dickey said.

Rice noted that the city doesn’t usually respond to a residence for this type of situation unless a complaint is filed and sometimes the people complaining can exaggerate the numbers. He said he hasn’t really had much of a problem with it in the last few years.

The committee also held a brief discussion on the issue of vacant houses. Drummond talked about how Councilman Brian Whitehill raised a safety issue regarding vacant houses due to copper thefts and the threat of explosion.

Brown said he thought that should fall to the responsibility of the titled owner and the city shouldn’t be involved until somebody contacts the city with a complaint. He said the city doesn’t have the personnel to keep watch on all the vacant houses.

Rice said he agreed with Brown and said a large number of vacant homes are owned by banks and a large number of them don’t acknowledge ownership. Drummond questioned who maintains them. Rice said some of them contract with companies to take care of the properties, but some are contacted by the city when the grass gets too high. If the city mows the grass, the owner is billed or the cost is placed against the taxes.

Dickey talked about a program in Alliance where the city places a lien against a property if bills get to a certain level, sometimes ending up with the property, which can then be torn down or sold by the city.

Drummond said he didn’t know if there’s anything the city could really do about the vacant houses, but he wanted to start the discussion. He’s planning to talk with Whitehill and check on an ordinance passed by Youngstown City Council to deal with the issue.

Fewer police calls in Green Township

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

GREENFORD — The Goshen Township Police Department 2011 annual report for the Green Township district showed a small decline in total number of events recorded compared to 2010, according to Chief Steve McDaniel.

Police continue to emphasize residential and business checks and the overall the numbers vary little from 2010 except in the number of traffic stops which dropped nearly 22 percent in 2011.

In 2010, there were 862 traffic stops compared to 673 in 2011.

There were nine adult OVIs and one OVI crash in 2011 compared to 11 adult OVI s in 2010.

There were also 51 traffic complaints in 2011 and 52 in 2010 which include downed trees.

There were no capital crimes recorded and one sex offense was listed.

There were 5,822 total events in 2011 compared to 5,929 in 2010, a decrease of two percent while residential and business checks were up.

There were five residential and two business breaking and enterings in 2011 compared to seven residential and five business breaking and enterings in 2010.

During 2011 police made 1,977 business checks compared to 1,807 in 2010 for an increase of 8.5 percent while making 2,433 residence checks in 2011 compared to 2,382 in 2010, for a two percent increase.

In 2011, the department responded to 25 car versus deer calls compared to 35 in 2010 and handled 38 animal complaint in 2011 compared to 24 in 2010.

The department answered 24 civil matter/custody calls in 2011 and 20 in 2010.

Domestic dispute and domestic violence calls totaled 24 in 2011 compared to 26 in 2010; non-domestic disputes in 2011 totaled three compared to six in 2010; and there were nine juvenile complaints in 2011 compared to 28 in 2010.

Police also handled responded to 14 criminal endangering calls in 2011 compared to 18 in 2010 while responding to 62 suspicious person/vehicle calls in 2011 compared to 79 in 2010.

Thefts in all categories (more and less than $500 and from vehicles and buildings) totaled 41 in 2011 compared to 18 in 2010.

Goshen Township police assisted area police departments, the highway patrol, Mahoning county sheriff and the Green Township Fire Department 90 times in 2011 compared to 92 assists in 2010.

Also, in 2011, there were nine juvenile complaints, 18 mental calls, three misuse of credit cards, 15 noise complaints; one runaway juvenile; and 12 welfare checks.

Police cruisers racked up 77,409 miles patrolling the township.

Group aims for ban on fracking, injection wells in Beaver Township

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

NORTH LIMA — Residents of Beaver Township are looking to fight back against oil and gas companies.

Angry residents from the township and other surrounding communities are hoping to enlist the services of the Pennsylvania-based Community Environmental Legal Defense Fund (CELDF) to develop a community rights resolution to ban hydraulic fracturing (“fracking”) and injection well deposits in the township.

“We as a community have a right to clean air and clean water,” said organizer Julia Fuhrman Davis. “These companies are putting harmful materials into our community putting us and our future generations at danger. We as a community have a right to put a stop to it.”

The residents are responding to the Class II injection well on state Route 7 just north of the McDonald’s in North Lima which will be used to deposit potentially hazardous material created during the fracking process at drill sites in western Pennsylvania. Injections wells have been banned in Pennsylvania by the United States Environmental Protection Agency, but are permitted in Ohio, which is regulated by the state EPA.

According to Davis, the CELDF has assisted several communities in Pennsylvania and New York pass rights-based ordinances banning various corporate activities — including fracking — deemed harmful to the environment by the residents. She said she hopes the group can help put an end to fracking and injection wells in the area.

At a brainstorming meeting Tuesday night, residents split into groups to develop plans for educating the public about the dangers presented by fracking and the injection well, as well as to prepare to work with the CELDF to obtain signatures on a petition that will be used in the community rights resolution protecting residents’ health, safety, welfare and property values. Davis said she plans to present the resolution to township trustees in February in hopes of achieving a local bill banning the activity in the township.

According to the CELDF website, rights-based ordinances rely on a community’s right to local self-government, the rights of natural communities and ecosystems, the right to water and the rights of community members over corporations; and they are not challenged by corporations. Non-rights-based ordinances, however, are based on state regulatory law and are frequently challenged and over-ruled due to violations of the corporations constitutional and civil rights.

The CELDF, which has successfully assisted communities in Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia, did not respond to an attempt at contact.

For information about the movement or how to help can contact Davis at 330-549-0019.

Woman hit by car, dies in North Lima

Staff Reports

BEAVER TOWNSHIP — A New Middletown woman was killed Wednesday night after she was struck by a vehicle while walking across state Route 7 in North Lima.

The Canfield Post of the Ohio Highway Patrol is investigating the accident along with Lisbon Post's traffic reconstructionist Todd Jester.

Sean M. Lynch, 20, Beaver, was driving a 2003 Hyundai Elantra on state Route 7 when he struck Kristina J. Kaiser, 51, who was attempting to cross the road near the Chalet Premier establishment, according to a Canfield Post press release. The accident happened at 10:25 p.m.

Kaiser was taken from the scene by Beaver Township EMS to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown where she was later pronounced dead, the release stated. Lynch was not injured.

available on the Columbia Gas of Ohio website at www.columbiagasohio.com, under the heading “more for you,” then “pipeline improvements” and “are you working in my neighborhood (Salem Road).”

Mayor John Berlin announced during his first week in office that he had been contacted while still the mayor-elect about the project. When he spoke with a Columbia Gas representative, he said he made it clear to them the city didn’t want the project interfering with the Quaker City Weekend Cruise.

The press release issued by Dave Rau, Communications & Community Relations Manager for Columbia Gas Ohio, said “special care will be taken to ensure that the project does not impact the Quaker City Weekend Cruise scheduled for June.”

City leaders met with Columbia Gas officials recently to ask their questions and find out what will happen. Lines to be replaced include the main lines running under the streets and the service lines into homes or businesses, which will require some digging.

Gas service will need to be shut off at some point when it’s time to connect a home or business to the new line, but workers will attempt to make contact with customers prior to shutting off the service and to turn it back on. Columbia Gas workers and contractors will carry identification cards with their name, photograph and identification number.

Construction is expected to be completed in the fall and will affect about 511 customers. The project will affect the following streets: Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Columbia, East School, Pershing, Railroad, State, West School and Wilson streets, Broadway, Ellsworth, Howard, Jennings, Lincoln, Lundy, Newgarden, Stewart and Vine avenues, East, South and Sugar Tree alleys, Sulea Drive and Youngstown Salem Road.

Alexis Nicole Vandepol, 20, Cricket Lane, Columbiana, was fined $250 for driving under suspension.

Devin E. Baker, 26, McClure Road, East Palestine, was fined $250 and required 40 hours of community service for failure to reinstate a license and failure to control. An expired registration charge was dismissed.

Charles Tucker Cope, 39, Duquesne Street, Columbiana, was fined $150 for a miscellaneous watercraft violation in June on Lake Tomahawk, which caused a collision and injuries to a woman on a jet ski.

April D. Ammon-Faulkner, 36, West State Street, Salem, was fined $150 and required 20 hours of community service for disorderly conduct for misleading police who were looking for someone in her

Ashley Baddely, 26, West Wilson Street, Salem, was fined $150 and required to perform 40 hours of community service for disorderly conduct amended from assault after allegedly causing injuries to a woman on Nov. 14.

Dwight L. Nelson and Sarah Marie Nelson, both of Carey Road, Salem, were each fined $100 for failure to file a return and payment of taxes to the city of Salem. They were further ordered to file immediate returns and begin making $25 monthly payments on back due taxes.

William G. Bartolovich, 41, West Fifth Street, East Liverpool, was fined $60 for speeding.

Benjamin A. Curl, 23, Court Street, Columbiana, was fined $50 for failure to control.

A driving under FRA suspension charge against Daniel S. Stonestreet, 21, Hanna Drive, Hanoverton, was dismissed.

A Feb. 23 sentencing was set for Michelle L. Shingleton, 23, Chris Avenue, Washingtonville, who pleaded guilty to theft for attempting to leave Sparkle in Salem with $47 worth of groceries.

A Feb. 28 pretrial was set for John R. Treleven, 27, Jones Drive, Salem, charged with OVI first offense and improper registration.

A March 1 pretrial was set for Patti Loshinski-Colon, 39, Stocking Street, Washingtonville, charged with theft for allegedly attempting to walk out of the Walmart in Salem without paying for two bags of Puppy Chow, one bag of Meow Mix and a box of hair coloring, all of which she reportedly went back for after paying for her other items.

A March 1 pretrial was set for Desiree L. Britter, 39, North Market Street, Lisbon, charged with obstructing official business and disorderly conduct after police were called to her apartment three times on Jan. 19 due to reports of a woman screaming and throwing things. Britter reportedly refused each time to come to the door when police arrived.

A March 3 pretrial was set for James C. Tribble, 28, Boardman, cited with driving under suspension and speeding.

— A Glasgow Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 11:23 a.m. Wednesday her husband is causing problems and arguing, threatening he would bash her head in if she did not move out. He went outside when she called deputies, but returned arguing with her about cigarettes and where she put his shotgun. While the dispatcher was still on the phone listening during these arguments he threatened to file a police report that she had stolen the gun. She told him they were already on the phone and offered him the phone. He left the house.

— A state Route 45, Lisbon, man reported at 10:42 a.m. Tuesday when he went to his shop he found a window broken out of the shed and the door to his garage open. Extension cords, jumper cables, arrows and a compound bow were among $3,314 in items taken.

— Someone reported an accident in the parking lot of the State Line Tavern at 10:55 p.m. Wednesday. Deputies found a telephone line down across the parking lot from the tavern to Leake Oil. Elliot Wheeler Jr., Toledo, told deputies he missed his stop, pulled into the parking lot to turn around, and the trailer of his semi-truck caught the wire, pulling it down. The line fell onto two vehicles in the parking lot. The owners of the vehicles had already left.

— A Bayard Road, Minerva, woman reported at 5:06 p.m. Wednesday someone shot the light on her home and broke it.

— A Steubenville Pike, Lisbon, woman reported at 9:05 p.m. Wednesday she had argued with her husband, and he grabbed her and shook her. She told deputies she was going to get some clothes and leave. She signed a refusal to prosecute form.

— A North Market Street, East Palestine, woman asked police to check on a child at a state Route 164 home in Fairfield Township. The child had not been returned to her from visiting the father. There was no one found at the home.

— A state Route 170, East Palestine, man reported at 11:56 a.m. Wednesday someone he knows dumped a truck load of construction debris in his driveway. Deputies spoke to the other man who claimed to have an agreement with the homeowner to dispose of the material for $20. Burket agreed to go back and pick up the materials, although he said he already gave Hostetter money.

— A Steubenville Pike Road, Salineville, woman reported at 3:26 p.m. Tuesday someone stole her medication on two occasions last week. First she found 30 Hydroco tablets missing and now the remaining 12 are gone also.

— A Wells Hollow Road, Wellsville, man reported at 10:20 p.m. Tuesday he has an ongoing problem with the neighbor's trash blowing onto his property. The neighbor puts out a trash can, but puts additional bags which animals get into. The trash blows onto his property.

Hospital donation

The staff of Home Delivery Healthcare LLC in Lisbon recently participated in a special fund drive to benefit the Charitable Foundation for Salem Community Hospital's Community Fund. During the fund raiser, employees were permitted to wear blue jeans on Fridays for a $1 donation. A total of $150 was collected. Stephanie Kruse, left, the agency's CEO, presented the check to LuAnn Haddad, Salem Community Hospital vice president of institutional advancement. (Submitted photo)

Staying active is important and although I might be slowing down, I don't intend to stop. I still want to be able to play golf, ride my bike or log my daily treadmill miles. Over the last few years, a lot of my buddies have undergone hip and knee replacement surgeries and now are as good as new. Of course, the rehab took some time – especially for those who tried to do it on their own.

The Transitional Care Unit at McCrea Manor offers the perfect place to recover following hip or knee replacement – even heart surgeries or stroke. McCrea Manor features a dedicated unit with private rehab suites, an advanced therapy gym and as well a trained staff of therapists as you'll find anywhere.

So don't fumble your recovery. Check out the new Transitional Care Unit at McCrea Manor today.

Build Your Child's Self Esteem

Kids who feel good about themselves are much less likely than other kids to turn to illegal substances to get high.

Drugs are not toys or candy!
stay away from them!

- Offer lots of praise for any job well done.
- Spend one-on-one time with your youngster
- Say, "I love you." Nothing will make your child feel better.

Repeat the Message!

Information and lessons about drugs are important enough to repeat frequently. Be sure to answer your child's questions as often as they ask them to initiate conversation whenever the opportunity arises.

Eltringham lawyer questions whether he can get fair trial after stories

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON — Attorney Richard Hura questioned Thursday in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court whether media coverage would prevent his client, who is accused of beating and robbing a World War II veteran, from receiving a fair trial in this county.

Joseph Eltringham, 44, is charged with aggravated robbery, a first degree felony; felonious assault, a second degree felony; and intimidation, a third degree felony. He is scheduled for jury trial on March 12.

There have been several hearings held in Eltringham's case, including a preliminary hearing in Columbiana County Municipal Court when 86-year-old Robert Kastelic took the stand and testified about the evening of Aug. 17, when he says he was beaten, threatened and robbed in his own home by Eltringham, who is an acquaintance. Kastelic had to crawl out of his bedroom window, then across the street to the neighbor's field to escape. He laid in a field there until he was found by Chief Deputy Allen Haueter.

The story reciting that testimony along with several others have been in the local newspapers, and Hura displayed the news articles on large poster boards in the courtroom Thursday, showing the stories ran on the front page and above the fold. Hura said both he and Eltringham's family share concerns about whether or not a fair trial will be possible.

In December, Judge Scott Washam had denied a request by Hura for Eltringham's to have his case moved to a felony Veterans Court or the Mental Health Court in Mahoning County. Thursday he reiterated a previous statement that he would wait until jury selection to determine whether pre-trial publicity will hinder Eltringham's right to a fair trial in the case.

Also on Thursday, it was reported Eltringham's psychological evaluation has been completed, but the results were not yet completed. Hura again asked his client be tested for Post Traumatic Stress Disorder by an expert in that field as it pertains to military personnel. While Hura previously had pushed for an expert in Illinois, on Thursday he said he now has found a local expert.

Eltringham, who before his arrest was a member of the National Guard, had recently returned from active duty overseas before the alleged attack.

Appeals court stays collection of water funds pending appeal

By TOM GIAMBRONI

Staff Writer

LISBON — East Liverpool will have to wait a little while longer to find out if and when it can collect on the $4.8 million judgment owed it by the Buckeye Water District.

The Ohio 7th District Court of Appeals agreed this week to delay enforcement of the judgment pending the outcome of an appeal filed last month by the BWD of a ruling issued by Columbiana County Common Pleas Court Judge C. Ashley Pike.

The court indicated it is prepared to act quicker than usual with this case, saying the matter will be "given expedited consideration." A hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. Feb. 29 at the appeals court in Youngstown, with written arguments and replies due before the hearing.

The BWD was appealing the Dec. 13 decision issued by Judge Pike stemming from East Liverpool's successful breach-of-contract lawsuit against the BWD involving a water-purchasing agreement. The latest ruling was about what BWD funds could be used to satisfy the judgment since some of the funds represented money loaned from federal and state agencies for various BWD projects.

Pike ruled that of the $4.2 million in question, only $27,468 in a BWD account marked for the Ohio Water Development Authority was protected from being garnished to satisfy the judgment owed East Liverpool. One of the other agencies owed money by the BWD, the Ohio Public Works Commission, also filed an appeal challenging Pike's ruling.

County commissioners are also on the hook for the judgment since the county is a co-defendant in the lawsuit because it once operated the water district that later became the BWD. Commissioners turned over control of the district when the BWD was formed in the 1990s, which has been operating it as an independent agency ever since.

West Branch OKs contracts

By KEVIN HOWELL

Staff Writer

BELOIT — The West Branch Local school board Thursday night approved supplemental contracts for spring athletic coaches.

The board rehired head coaches Walt DeShields and Shawn Alazaus for baseball, Elaine Bonar for boys' tennis, Jennifer Woods for softball, Tracy Orwick for boys track and Robert Altenhof for girls track

The board also approved contracts for the following coaching positions: Walt DeShields and Shawn Alazaus, assistant varsity baseball, to split the head coach and assistant coach stipends; Scott Loudon, junior varsity baseball; Gary Martin, freshmen baseball; Larry Griffith, assistant varsity softball; Nathan Heddleston, girls track assistant; Kevin Buckley, boys track assistant; and Merrellyn Banks, assistant boys tennis; and acknowledged Caroline McDermott as volunteer swim coach for the 2011-2012 school year.

In other personnel business, the board accepted the retirements of Patricia Brogan, who has been with the district since 1994, as elementary counselor effective July 1; and Bonita Rice, who has been with the district since 1980, as cashier effective at the end of the school year. The board also hired Merrellyn Banks and Kathy Brown as home instructors on an as needed basis for the 2011-2012 school year.

Also at the meeting, the board obtained a waiver from the Ohio Department of Education to request the delay of the unfunded state mandated all-day, every day kindergarten for the 2012-2013 school year. West Branch currently has an all-day "experience," consisting of a half day with a teacher and a half day with an aide, so by law must obtain the waiver to continue the program as is.

The board also approved the 2012-2013 school calendar with the first day for students on Sept. 5, last day on June 5 and commencement on June 2.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 23 at the high school Media Center.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS

Mercury is up to mischief again. The plucky messenger forms a disrespectful angle to Saturn and then jolts off to Aquarius like nothing happened. It's the cosmic equivalent of a ring and run. When Saturn is roused to answer the door and no one is there, he'll gripe about the injustice and immaturity he has to deal with, and so will we.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Your communication skills will be highlighted. You'll make your story interesting -- so interesting that others may ask for follow-up guidance as to how they might have a similar experience.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You don't live to serve, but you may have to serve to live. Making others happy is just part of your deal now. The better you do this the more personal satisfaction you'll derive from your interactions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Recreation is not just for fun now. Your competitive instincts will kick in. You'll be sure to address the issue of rank. Everyone will know the score.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You may resist change even though you know it's inevitable and possibly even beneficial. You don't want to let go. That is only natural and a way of honoring this special time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You will ask for assistance, but you won't depend on it. Anything you get will be a bonus. Your reliance on yourself is unshakable. The more you can do on your own the more confident you'll be.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Your focus on joint finances, children and friends will yield an interesting and unexpected outcome. You'll realize how well you know your people and how much there still is to learn.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). How would you like to be honored in this lifetime? You'll soon get a taste of it. Start now by focusing your energy and aiming it on what you would like to accomplish in the long term.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll be locked in on your target like an animal on the hunt. There's something you need to understand, and you'll learn it from your experiences chasing this goal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You have not yet reached the limit of your capacity for joy. You won't willfully be able to go there, but you can quietly suggest this to yourself and give yourself permission to investigate the boundaries.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You may visit the land of dissatisfaction with your life -- but you'll stay only for a short time. Move immediately to the feeling that will help you be positive and craft a stellar plan of improvement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll embark on an adventure. It starts off in familiar waters, and quickly you're out to the unknown and unpredictable sea. You'll navigate both with equal skill.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Lately there have been a few mismatches in your world. You would love to know about the people who would love to know you. Your social luck is about to turn around.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 27). Your feelings of safety, security and certainty won't come from the outside world. Your experiences help you continue to grow a powerful core inside of you. The goals you set next month will bring you into new circles. You'll give a presentation in March that attracts investors. Love drives the action in April. Pisces and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 2, 10, 43, 24 and 19.

Lock bags when flying

Heloise

Dear Heloise: We will be traveling by air to South America. Should we put a LOCK on our checked baggage? — Sheri in California

Hi, Sheri: The answer is an absolute yes! Heloise Central was referred by the Transportation Security Administration to one of the Department of State's websites, www.travel.state.gov. (The TSA has jurisdiction only in the U.S.) The State Department recommends that you lock your bags. Use a TSA-approved lock so that it can be opened by the TSA, if necessary. You also may want to carry plastic zip ties (found in home-improvement stores) to secure your bags, especially if going out of the United States.

The State Department also advises people traveling in a foreign country to travel light, and to leave valuables and items that can't be replaced at home. — Heloise

EASY READER

Dear Heloise: I thought that my son would never learn to read. Then an older boy gave him some comic books, and just like a miracle, he started reading. I had the same problem with his younger brother. My husband bought a book about one of the superheroes. It was just like we flipped a switch — he started reading.

I had always read to my children and tried to encourage them, but it was comic books that did the trick. — Ellen B., Lady Lake, Fla.

MAKIN' BACON

Dear Heloise: I like to buy bacon in 1-pound packages when it is on sale, and I use it mostly for seasoning dishes. Since I rarely need a whole package, here's what I do: Using kitchen shears, I cut across the entire slab into preferred sizes, usually 1-inch sections. I then slip the amount I want (on the cardboard backing) into freezer bags and freeze.

If you want to save freezer bags, place two sections back-to-back in a bag. Simply pull a bag out of the freezer and throw the bacon into the skillet or pot. It thaws very quickly. — Celeste H., Barclay, Texas

ADDED PADDING

Dear Heloise: A friend recently broke her ankle and had to wear a "boot." It rubbed on her foot and the incision, and, of course, was uncomfortable. She decided to slip a sanitary napkin in there, and it acted as a buffer. She also used a cloth diaper one day, which worked just as well. — J.M. in Texas

High school letters seem best forgotten

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago I received a large white envelope from a friend I had been close to in high school. "Jen" returned every letter, card and note I had written to her throughout our four years of school. She thanked me for being a good friend and thought I might like to have them.

I can't tell you how upsetting it was to read how awful I was as a teenager. I was promiscuous, used foul language and made references to experimenting with drugs. It brought back so many terrible memories that I had blocked.

I have been married for 23 years and have three children who would be crushed if they discovered my past. I don't know what to do. The letters are full of history and my innermost feelings. Some passages are humorous and the thoughts of a silly teenager talking to a dear friend. I can't bring myself to throw them away and have hidden them in my hope chest. What should I do with them? — SECRETS OF THE PAST

DEAR SECRETS: The problem with the written word is that it often outlives the writer. If you don't want your children or grandchildren to remember you through your true confessions, censor them NOW. Unless you're "hoping" your family will discover the letters after you're gone, you should destroy them. However, if they contain memories you would like to keep, copy the passages down and place those in your hope chest.

DEAR ABBY: I was sexually assaulted two years ago by a boy at a party I attended while away at school. I reported the incident to local and campus police, but there wasn't enough evidence to have him arrested.

It took me a while to realize I needed help to deal with it. I'm looking for a counselor and hope to volunteer at a rape crisis center after I have gotten the help I need.

I have learned that the man who attacked me is getting married. I don't know his fiancée, but I'm horrified at the thought of this unsuspecting woman marrying a predator. I know if I do nothing, anything that happens to her or their children is on my hands for staying silent. I don't even know if she'd believe me, but I feel I have to try. Some advice, please, Abby. — ANXIOUS IN ALABAMA

DEAR ANXIOUS: You are not alone. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly one in five women report having been raped or suffered an attempted rape in their lifetime.

If there is a rape crisis center near you, contact it now and let the counselors there counsel and guide you in your healing. If you approach your predator's fiancée at this point, you probably won't be believed. Not being believed is like being raped twice. So get some professional help before you attempt to reach out to her.

What makes blood potassium rise?

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In the past you raised the subject of a high potassium reading and said it could come from the way blood was collected. Will you repeat that for me? If I remember correctly, it was caused by the method used in collecting the blood.

Is there an explanation for a high reading to persist? Every food seems to have potassium in it. What is the acceptable potassium level? What underlying conditions cause it to rise? — D.P.

ANSWER: If you're into looking things up on the Internet, high blood potassium is hyperkalemia. It spawns a number of problems. Heartbeat abnormalities are one of them. It changes the appearance of the EKG. Very high levels stop all heart action. High potassium leads to muscle weakness and even paralysis. It upsets the body's normal acid-base balance.

The reference you want repeated was on pseudohyperkalemia (false high blood potassium). It's a release of potassium from blood cells during or shortly after blood is collected in a tube. Clenching the hands into a fist too forcefully or too repeatedly can lead to potassium leak from blood cells. Fist-clenching makes veins stand out so obtaining the specimen is easier and less painful. Cooling of the tube on its way to the lab is another source for false potassium elevation. These are not common occurrences. A second sample solves any confusion arising from a false elevation of potassium.

Can't be herself at daughter's wedding

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I never thought I'd be writing, but here I am. I was a single mother and struggled to raise my children without help. They are all good kids. One daughter, "Susan," lives 2,000 miles away from the rest of the family. She left home early, went to the big city and educated herself. She is the only member of the family to have a degree, and we are very proud of her. Susan has worked hard to distance herself from her blue-collar roots. She has high expectations of the rest of her family in terms of our behavior and attitudes, and we invariably disappoint her. Recently, Susan cut off all contact because the stress of dealing with us is "making her ill."

Next spring, Susan will be marrying into a wealthy family. She has made it clear that we are not to behave in any manner that embarrasses her and informed me that she will Potassium is found in many foods. We're encouraged to get 4,700 mg of it daily. It keeps blood pressure on the low side. Dietary potassium is seldom the cause of persistent blood elevation of it. The kidneys are expert chemists and get rid of any dietary overloads. Conditions associated with a rise in potassium include muscle injury, strenuous exercise, heart failure, overuse of nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (Aleve, Advil, Motrin, etc.), failing adrenal glands and kidney malfunction. Don't get involved in tracking the cause of high potassium. That's something your doctor has to do.

The normal reading for potassium is 3.5 to 5.0 mEq/L. Symptoms don't appear until the value is 6.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My dad died of diverticulitis at age 58. I live in fear of it. Is it inherited? — F.W.

ANSWER: Heredity has little, if anything, to do with diverticulosis or diverticulitis. Diverticulosis is the presence of many tiny pouches protruding from the wall of the colon. Diverticulitis is inflammation of those diverticula. Death from diverticulitis is quite rare.

Diverticulosis is common in North America. One reason is the lack of dietary fiber. Our grains (flour) are refined. The refining process removes fiber from the grains. The best way to prevent diverticulosis is to increase fiber with whole-grain cereals and breads, vegetables and fruits.

The booklet on diverticulosis/itis explains it and how to prevent and treat it. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 502, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

have friends "keeping an eye on us" throughout the event. It hurts all of us that we are not up to par for the social circles she is now a part of.

If I go to the wedding, I cannot genuinely be myself. I was looking forward to meeting her new in-laws. (I haven't met them in the five years she's been with her fiancé.) I want to share in Susan's joy, but I feel I'll be an actor in her play. She doesn't truly want me there. She only wants me to fill a role.

Do I bow out of the celebration and regret it for the rest of my life? Or do I attend and participate in this charade? — Heartbroken Mother of the Bride

Dear Mother: You've answered your own question. If you don't attend, you'll regret it for the rest of your life. So go. Most weddings require a certain amount of play-acting and being on one's very best behavior. Surely you can manage it for a few hours on Susan's wedding day. Yes, she seems more than a little snobby, but if you don't focus on how much you dislike your role at the wedding, you might even enjoy yourself. Please try.

Solid start for Woods

Tiger opens 2012 with bogey free 70; McIlroy 5-under

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — No momentous shots for Tiger Woods. No bogeys, either. The 14-time major winner opened his 2012 season with a solid first round Thursday at the Abu Dhabi Golf Championship, shooting a 2-under 70 that left him three strokes behind co-leader Rory McIlroy, his playing partner. “Hit the ball well all day today. It was a good ball-striking round,” Woods said. “I had a hard time reading the greens out there. The greens were pretty grainy and I just had a hard time getting a feel for it. Toward the end I hit some pretty good putts but overall I got fooled a lot on my reads.”

McIlroy shot a 67, as did Robert Karlsson. But the best shots of the day came from Sergio Garcia (71) and Jose Manuel Lara (70) — each had a hole-in-one on the par-3 12th hole. Gareth Maybin, Richard Finch and Jean-Baptiste Gonnet were one shot behind the two leaders. Top-ranked

SAN DIEGO — Spencer Levin and Kyle Stanley knew they had to post low scores on the easier North Course at Torrey Pines to get off to a good start Thursday in the Farmers Insurance Open. It went even better than they expected. Stanley made eagle on his final hole for a 10-under 62, his best score in two years on the PGA Tour. Levin shot 29 on the back nine and had a 62, matching his career best on tour. “I played the pro-am on the North Course yesterday. There were just a lot of birdie opportunities out there, so I knew there was a good score — maybe not 10 (under), but I’ll take it,” Stanley said. They were a shot ahead of FedEx Cup champion Bill Haas, who had a double bogey on his 15th hole and still managed a 63. The top 12 on the leaderboard played the North, which played slightly more than 3 1/2 strokes easier than the South Course, which hosted the U.S. Open four years ago. The best score from the

Lady Raiders use big third quarter to win Inter-Tri County League Tier 1 battle over Lisbon 48-32

Stride for stride

Lisbons’ Pam Pierce looks to get past South Range’s Alexis Naples during their game Thursday at South Range High School. Naples had 18 points, 11 assists and six steals, and the Lady Raiders won 48-32. South Range is now 8-2 in the league. (Salem News/B.J. Lisko)

CANFIELD — Lisbon came into Thursday’s game at South Range searching for a sweep. The Lady Raiders came looking for a split. After 32 minutes on the court, it was South Range that accomplished its mission with a 48-32 win. “I was proud that we got them after losing at their place earlier in the season,” South Range coach Wayne Johnson said. “Lisbon is a good team. We’re happy to get the win tonight.” The Raiders fell to the Blue Devils 50-49 in double overtime on Dec. 15, but no overtime would be needed to avenge that loss. “You have to give it to South Range,” Lisbon coach Jason Thompson said. “They played tough. They decided they weren’t going to lose this game and they didn’t.” If a decision was made, it was likely made in the third quarter. The Raiders took control of the game by scoring 20 points to Lisbon’s four in the period, including an 11-1 run. Alexis Naples — the game’s high scorer with 18 points — notched eight in the third. Steve Taylor added six points in the frame and Kelsey Maynard scored four. Lisbon was held to just a field goal and free throw and committed nine of its total 28 turnovers in the in the quarter.

Lady Eagles stay unbeaten in league

HANOVERTON — United has had its fair share of adversity to overcome this season, but so far it hasn’t been anything that has bothered the Eagles. The Inter-Tri County League Tier 1 leaders took another step to a fourth straight league title by dumping Crestview 47-40 on Thursday. The Eagles (12-3 overall) are in control of the league with a 9-0 mark. South Range trails them by two games, while the Rebels fell to three 1937 — Tris Speaker and Cy Young are elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

1973 — UCLA, led by Bill Walton, sets an NCAA record for consecutive victories with its 61st win, an 82-63 victory over Notre Dame. UCLA breaks the record of 60 set by San Francisco in 1956. Walton scores 16 points, grabs 15 rebounds and blocks 10 shots.

1982 — Geoff Houston of the Cleveland Cavaliers hands out 27 assists, two short of the NBA record and scores 24 points in a 110-106 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

1991 — The New York Giants survive the closest Super Bowl ever when Scott Norwood's 47-yard field goal attempt with 8 seconds left in the game goes wide. The Giants win their second Super Bowl in five years, 20-19 over the Buffalo Bills.

1993 — American Chad Rowan is awarded the highest rank in sumo wrestling, the ancient Japanese sport, making him the first foreign "yokozuna." The 6-foot-8, 455-pounder from Honolulu, becomes the 64th person to hold the top rank in the sport's history.

1996 — The U.S. Golf Association elects Judy Bell as the first female president in its 101-year history.

2001 — Jennifer Capriati upsets three-time winner Martina Hingis 6-4, 6-3 to win the Australian Open and her first Grand Slam tournament title.

2003 — Hermann Maier wins a World Cup super giant slalom in Kitzbuehel, Austria, a victory he ranks among his finest triumphs. The win comes 18 months after he almost loses his leg in a motorcycle crash.

2007 — Serena Williams wins her third Australian Open singles title, routing Maria Sharapova 6-1, 6-2. Unseeded and ranked 81st, Williams wins her eighth and most improbable Grand Slam. She is the second unseeded woman to win the Australian title in the Open era.

2008 — Novak Djokovic fends off unseeded Frenchman Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-6 (2) in the Australian Open final, earning his first Grand Slam title.

2008 — Eric Staal wins the most valuable player award in the NHL All-Star game, registering two goals and an assist in the East's 8-7 win over the Western Conference. Staal helps set up Marc Savard's winning goal with 20.9 seconds left.

2010 — Washington's Gilbert Arenas and Javaris Crittenton are suspended without pay for the remainder of the season by NBA commissioner David Stern. Both players admitted bringing a gun or guns into the Wizards' locker room — a violation of the collective bargaining agreement — after a dispute stemming from a card game on a team flight.

2011 — Roger Federer, the 16-time Grand Slam winner, is knocked out of the Australian Open by Novak Djokovic in a semifinal match, 7-6 (3), 7-5, 6-4. Federer's loss marks the first time since 2003 that he wouldn't hold any of the four major titles.

turnovers in the in the quarter. "We definitely converted turnovers in the third quarter," Johnson said. "We scored 20 points, but we more importantly we had six assists. We started to find each other."

The Blue Devils had trouble handling the ball in the first half, but were able to dominate the glass and keep the game close. Lisbon had 11 rebounds throughout the first two quarters. The Raiders came up with just two — one offensive and one defensive. Despite eight first-quarter turnovers, the Blue Devils were down just 10-6 after one quarter. Lisbon turned the basketball over seven more times in the second quarter, yet trailed just 18-17 at the break. But the third quarter proved just too much. "We had too many mental breakdowns," Thompson said. "We had breakdowns in the first half, but in that third (South Range) was able to convert and the game got out of hand real quick."

Blue Devils started to take good shots and make good baskets in the fourth, but by that time the Raiders' lead proved to much to overcome. "We can't decide when we want to play," Thompson said. "We can't take breaks. We have to play all four quarters."

Johnson echoed Thompson's sentiment. "We stood around a lot in the first two quarters," Johnson said. "We can't do that. We have to perform for 32 minutes."

Aside from her 18 points, Naples also finished with six steals and 11 assists. Taylor added 12 points and five assists. Allison Oliver had a Raider-high five rebounds. Lisbon's Lindsey Hayko and Pam Pierce tied for a team-high 10 points. Hayko, who scored all of Lisbon's first-quarter points, had five field goals on the night. Pierce hit three from the field and was a perfect 4-of-4 at the line. Pierce and Hayko also led Lisbon in rebounding with each nabbing five. Tiffany Ketchum chipped in four points and three assists. The Raiders improved to 9-5 overall and 8-2 in the league. They host United on Monday. The Blue Devils are 9-6 and 6-

4. They play at East Palestine on Monday. In J.V. action, South Range came out on top of a 56-18 final. Holly Heck scored 14 points for the Raiders, while Sara Boyd had nine for Lisbon.

UNITED

back (12-4 overall, 7-3 in the league). United was playing its fifth straight game without senior forward Ruth Prosko. Prosko, who has had knee troubles throughout her career, tore an ACL at the beginning of the calendar year and will have reconstructive surgery on Monday. She will miss the rest of the season. The Eagles also played the first nine games of the season without sophomore point guard MacKenzie Gatchel who also had an injury. "It has been different without Ruth," junior guard Emily Zehentbauer said. "I know he have Gatchel back, but we have to play really hard to make up for (Prosko's) absence. We have had to really work on our rebounding because she did a lot of it." United was not sharp on Thursday, but neither was Crestview. Both teams combined for 51 turnovers (United had 28, Crestview 23). But that was dictated by the physical style of play each team employed. "It was an ugly game, but we expected Crestview to come in here and give us their best shot," United coach Sam Mathias said. "They didn't want to go three down in the league, so we knew we going to see pressure, trapping and everything they did tonight. We were prepared for it, but we get a little lazy sometimes handling pressure. It showed at times."

The most critical moment in the game came in the first quarter when the Eagles went on a 10-0 run to open up a 14-3 lead. Zehentbauer had eight of her

12 points in that run which gave the Eagles a cushion they would generally keep in tact the rest of the game. "It was awesome because last game I was shooting so bad," Zehentbauer said. "It was like I was in a shooting depression."

The Rebels struggled all night getting anything consistent going on the offensive end. Standout junior Ashley Harrison led the Rebels with 14 points and five steals, but most of her output came in the fourth quarter. "We dug ourselves a hole and had to battle back the whole night," Crestview coach Rick Gates said. "We played extremely hard, but we just didn't play well. On the other hand, United played great defense."

Taylor Smith, the only senior in the Eagle starting lineup, picked up the slack in the post with 12 points and 13 rebounds. "We come together well as a team," Smith said. "When MacKenzie was out we had to work around that. When she came back, Ruth went out. So we had to work around that." Gatchel produced a solid game as well with nine points, 10 rebounds and four assists. "They are the best team in the league right now," Gates said. "Some other teams have played well at times, but to United's credit they have been consistently good."

Gates said it's an extreme long shot that the Eagles will be caught. Morgan Newbauer and Geri Sickie had seven rebounds each for the Rebels. The Eagles will be back in action on Monday at South Range. A win there would go a long way to securing the league title, but the Eagles aren't boasting about anything yet. "I see us going on the way if we stick together, but we'll see," Smith said. Crestview is at Springfield on Monday. United won the jayvee game 43-27. McKenzie Firth had 12 points for the Eagles. Allison Parks added nine. Alexya Brooks had 11 points for the Rebels.

In Memoriam

Jesse D. Paxson

Jan. 27, 1928 - Apr. 25, 2008

PLEASE, GOD, FORGIVE A SILENT TEAR, A CONSTANT WISH THAT HE WAS HERE, OTHERS ARE TAKEN, YES I KNOW, BUT HE WAS MINE AND I LOVED HIM SO.

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE SOMEONE WHO MEANS A LOT, TREASURE THEM WITH CARE, FOR YOU NEVER KNOW THEIR VALUE TIL YOU SEE THEIR VACANT CHAIR.

WHEN SOMEONE YOU LOVE BECOMES A MEMORY, THE MEMORY BECOMES A TREASURE.

YOU CAUGHT MY EYE... AND STOLE MY HEART FOREVER.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, JESS. I LOVE YOU! DOROTHY
