COLUMBIANA COUNTY

Wargo: Payne should resign

Claims commissioner is misleading voters over legitimacy of degree

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — Columbiana County Commissioner John Payne is being asked to resign by an election opponent, who says Payne is misleading voters by claiming to have a legitimate doctorate degree.

"I'm asking him to resign because he's misrepresented himself as a candidate ... and if he doesn't, I'm considering filing charges with the ethics commission," said John Wargo during a press conference held Thursday.

Wargo is running in the Nov. 6 election against Payne in what is a three-way race, with the other candidate being Tim Weigle.

At issue is a doctorate degree Payne obtained from Northwestern International University (NIU), which Wargo says is an unaccredited online college he compared to a "diploma mill."

Payne has listed the degree on his resume and campaign literature and also sometimes uses Ph.D. — the abbreviation for doctor of philosophy — next to his name.

Wargo said after becoming suspicious, he checked into it and learned NIU offers doctorate degrees for $495. "For $450 you can get your degree. For $450 I can get a set of tires down at No. 1 Snyder," he said.

Payne said he has done nothing wrong and has no intention of resigning, saying he earned the doctorate degree in 2006. His dissertation was on personnel policy of Ohio's boards of elections and took him 18 months to research and write, which involved contacting all 88 election boards. Payne, who was county elections board director at the time, said he did this as a personal challenge.

"This was simply another goal I had for myself. Again, I did not use it to promote myself for any type of employment," he said.

Wargo disputed this, saying

SALEM — A one-time only amnesty program launched Monday and announced last month has already brought money into city income tax coffers and resulted in lots of inquiries from both citizens and businesses.

"This is an opportunity for people to clear up their taxes before we take another step with our contract with CCA," Salem City Income Tax Administrator Fred Pamer said.

The city contracted with the Central Collection Agency through the city of Cleveland Income Tax Department to help locate people who should be paying income tax to the city but who have not filed or reported income. The city of Cleveland has access to federal income tax records that the city of Salem does not and will compare those

Salvation Army will begin accepting holiday sign-ups

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

Low income families in the Salem, Leetonia, Washingtonville and Columbiana areas looking for help at Christmas can begin signing up next week at the Salem Salvation Army.

Applications for Christmas assistance will be taken at the Salvation Army headquarters, 1249 N. Ellsworth Ave., from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Oct. 12, 15 and 19 and from 3 to 7 p.m. Oct. 18.

The Christmas assistance program covers families in the zip codes of 44460, 44408, 44431 and 44490. "We're just trying to get the word out," Lt. Kristin Price said.

Last year the Salvation Army in Salem assisted almost 700 children and their families with food, clothing and toys for the holiday.

"It's one of our biggest programs we do every year," she said.

Applicants need to bring the following items with them for the application process:

— a current photo identification (driver's license, Ohio ID or Human services ID)

— proof of all children and adults in the household (birth certificates, medical cards, or custody papers required)

— picture ID for all other adults in the household

— proof of income (pay stubs from the last 30 days, Ohio Department of Job and Family Services printouts, child support papers, SSI/SSD letters, workers' comp paperwork, rent subsidy/utility allowance stubs, and any other income verification) — proof of all monthly bills (lease/rent agreements, utilities, car payment, insurances, child care, etc.).

Applicants are also told they can only register once for Christmas help with one agency.

If they sign up with another agency for assistance at Christmas, the Salvation Army won't be able to assist them.

Families receive a Christmas food box with turkey and all the fixings, milk and bread, clothing consisting of a new outfit for each child up to eighth grade and toys for each child up to eighth grade. Families with just adults can receive food assistance.

Price said they receive donations from the community, from individuals, community groups and businesses, who contribute to the cause to help families have a nice Christmas. Last year she said a lot of individuals and businesses helped out, including the Kent State University nursing program and St. Mary's Alzheimer's Center. Groups can also adopt a family or a adopt a child and buy their gifts.

She said the back-to-school program by Church Women United experienced an increase this fall, so she's expecting a possible increase in the number of Christmas applications.

The annual kettle campaign begins Nov. 1, with a kickoff planned for Nov. 3. Anyone wanting to donate to either the kettle campaign or the Christmas assistance program can contact the Salvation Army at 330-332-5624.

Payne is clearly trying to use his online doctorate to curry favor with voters, noting it is listed on his campaign literature and elsewhere.

"This was done to deceive the public, to give them some feeling that this man is important and highly educated," he said.

According to Payne's resume, he also has a bachelor's degree from Kent State University and a master's degree from the University of Dayton. He listed the doctorate on his campaign literature because "it's part of my credentials. They are an accredited school, an online school," Payne said of NIU, adding, "It's overseas accredited. It's not some kind of diploma mill or whatever."

A "diploma mill" is defined as an unaccredited university, which may be legal in some states but is generally considered an illegitimate university. According to its website, NIU is accredited by the Euro-American Accreditation Agency, which is a division of NIU. An official with the regional office of the organization that accredits colleges in Ohio and 18 other states said NIU is not listed with it as an accredited university.

Wargo said as best he can determine, NIU is based out of Gibraltar, and the English-speaking professors listed on the website are all from various Russian universities.

Before going public with his charges, Wargo said he spoke with an acquaintance, Dr. Thomas Shipka, a retired professor and chairman of the Philosophy and Religious Studies Department at Youngstown State University. Shipka said Wargo called him this week and asked him what he knew about NIU, and his research led him to conclude it was a diploma mill.

"If it barks like a dog and wags its tale like a dog, it's probably a dog," he said.

Shipka confirmed he told Wargo degrees from unaccredited online universities are worthless and should be excluded from anyone's resume, let alone someone running for public office. He said those with legitimate doctorate degrees should be offended most of all.

"This particular institution is essentially a place to go, if you have sufficient money, to get a sheepskin to call yourself doctor," Shipka said.

Payne said he is proud of his doctorate degree. "It's an academic goal I set for myself and I achieved it. I'm not going to hide it," he said.

Payne attributed Wargo's attack to election-year politics. "It's the campaign season, I understand that. It's a specious argument," he said of the criticism.

"It's a credibility issue ... I didn't put it forth. He put it forth," Wargo said.

Payne, who was appointed to the vacant commissioner seat earlier in the year, is a Democrat, while Wargo is a Democrat running as an independent. Weigle is a Republican.

records with Salem's records to track down city income tax evaders. Before the city takes that step, though, city council agreed to hold the first-ever, one-time only, income tax amnesty program.

Pamer said the idea is to pay the tax due in full by Nov. 15, which is the absolute last day for the program, and the city will waive the penalty charges and reduce the interest due by half. He said that's a considerable savings over what they'll pay if they wait until after Nov. 15 or for CCA to start searching for non-filers.

As an example of the savings possible, Pamer said suppose a taxpayer comes in and owes $2,400. Once the penalties are waived and the interest cut in half, the taxpayer can save $900 and only end up paying $1,500.

City Treasurer Bob Tullis updated council members on the results so far, saying it's been effective. He said if people owe the city money for income tax or think they might owe or aren't sure of their status, they should call the income tax department at 330-332-4241, option 2, or just stop in the second-floor office in city hall.

At least 30 people had come in or made some type of contact with the office so far, with some resolving their situations right away and some still getting their information together. Tullis explained previously that senior citizens who live in the city who don't have earned income from W-2 wages, rental income, business income or lottery winnings have no tax liability.

Income from Social Security, a pension or investment income is not considered taxable income by the city, but they must register and file at least one time with the income tax department for records purposes.

All city residents 18 years or older are required to file with the income tax office even if they have no income.

Besides owing taxes, penalties and interest, violators could also face criminal charges for not filing income tax. During the council meeting earlier this week, Mayor John Berlin asked about the landlords who are supposed to file quarterly reports regarding their tenant and whether the amnesty includes them if they're not filing the reports.

Tullis said they had not enforced the ordinance previously, but were working on it and may look at fine-tuning the ordinance. Landlords who pay water and sewer for their tenants are required to report new tenants' names to the income tax department every three months, along with listing tenant who have moved during the three-month period. Landlords can face penalties for not filing the reports. When asked how many landlords comply with the rule, Tullis said "no one does."

He said many of them probably don't even know about the rule. Berlin said he would like to see it enforced.

Auditor questions five school districts' policies

COLUMBUS (AP) — The state's auditor says five Ohio school districts have used questionable attendance policies and practices, putting them at a higher risk for scrubbing attendance data to improve their school report cards.

The districts are Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo, Marion and Campbell in Mahoning County. Scrubbing is the practice of removing students from enrollment without lawful reason.

State Auditor Dave Yost

released the preliminary findings Thursday as part of his investigation into potentially irregular attendance and enrollment practices around the state. He anticipates the last pre-election update by Oct. 23, two weeks ahead of fall levy votes in many districts.

"My sense is most schools are not doing this," Yost said. "My sense is also that as we continue this work, we are going to find other schools."

Yost cautioned that his review has not addressed districts' motives for scrubbing the data. He said it could be entirely innocuous.

"There's always been the possibility of criminal referrals. Ohio has a records tampering statute. It's a serious matter," he said. "That said, it does have a 'mens rea,' or an intent element, to it. And so the kind of work we've done here is necessary to support a criminal prosecution but it's not sufficient."

The results released Thursday were drawn from a review of an initial 100 school buildings — or about 3 percent of Ohio's 3,688 public schools. The schools, housed in 47 districts, were selected for initial review because they had the highest number of student assessment test takers whose scores were "rolled up" to the state level and removed from district averages.

In a statement, Columbus Superintendent Gene Harris said she'd hoped the preliminary report would offer schools more guidance about improving how they record attendance data, and she expects the auditor to provide specific recommendations in the future.

"I am determined that we will fully address any shortfalls in student record-keeping and/or reporting," she said. "This data is vitally important to us as a management tool — and it is vitally important that the community can trust our information."

Yost said some schools in the five districts withdrew students based on a pattern of absences, which could have been influenced by lower test scores, without proper documentation.

That included Toledo City Schools, which automatically withdraws students who have had a total of 20 unexcused absences for the year after five consecutive days of them. Auditors found the district dropped this "5/20 rule," then reinstated it after seeing a decline in local report card rankings.

Cleveland failed to document student withdrawals under a similar policy as a matter of routine, Yost said. "So we have to report that Cleveland is un-auditable," he said. In Columbus, 81 of 82 files for questionably withdrawn students lacked proper documentation. Their cases were selected from among about 10,000 students who withdrew during the 120-day window when student performance counts toward their school's overall ranking yet showed up as withdrawing after the window had closed, the report said. The superintendent said she was troubled that some targeted student files couldn't be found but noted that it's a large district in which many students change schools during the year. Harris said she planned to look into the issue further before drawing any conclusions.

State auditors found that 32 of 40 student withdrawals flagged for examination in Campbell were similarly unsupported.

Grand jury issues no bill of indictment in shot fired case

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — A man initially charged after his live-in girlfriend was reportedly grazed in the head by a shot he fired was not charged with a felony by the Columbiana County grand jury.

Michael F. Byers, 29, Johnson Road, Lisbon, initially had been accused with pulling the trigger on his shotgun during an argument at their home on Aug. 6.

His girlfriend, Melissa Delauder, 28, was taken to Pittsburgh Presbyterian Hospital for the wound on the top of her head.

Byers had reportedly helped her and then fled into the woods. Deputies and others searched for him, but he was not located that night. He was found later that week after he went to the St. Elizabeth Hospital seeking psychiatric help.

Initially, Delauder told deputies she did not know the man who pulled the trigger. Then at a preliminary hearing in county Municipal Court on Aug. 13, Delauder told Judge Mark Frost it was her fault for not taking the gun in for repairs when she should have. She contended she was fine.

At the time, Byers was bound over to the grand jury on a second degree felonious assault.

After hearing the evidence, however, the grand jury issued a no bill of indictment.

Speaker will discuss Idora Park

Richard S. Scarsella, local historian and author of "Memories and Melancholy: Reflections on Youngstown and Mahoning Valley," will speak about Idora Park at 7 p.m. Oct. 15 when the Historical Society of Columbiana and Fairfield Township meets at the First Presbyterian Church in Columbiana.

He will tell about the origins, heyday and decline of the park which opened in 1899 and closed after a devastating fire in 1984.

Failed efforts to save the ballroom, merry-go-round and other attractions will also be discussed.

Cider and doughnuts will be served by Joann Cook and the refreshment committee. The public is invited.

THE READERS TAKE OVER

An open letter from Charlie Wilson

To the editor:

For those of us in South East and East Ohio, the coal industry has always been a way of life.

Our fathers, grandfathers or sons have worked in the mines. Maybe we knew a neighbor or former classmate who worked at one of the many power plants that operate along our river.

The economic impact, much like the coal itself, runs as a vein through our communities. This is our industry and right now it is under attack.

When I was in Washington I fought to protect our coal industry. Burdensome EPA regulations impact more than just our mines. Over regulation is an assault on our local economy, property values and ultimately endanger our children's schools.

What Washington bureaucrats fail to realize is that when one mine is closed the entire community pays the price.

I fought in Washington — sponsoring HR 6113, a bill that would block the EPA from using federal funding to shutdown Appalachian mines.

I stood up to my own party and voted against the disastrous Cap and Trade Bill that would apply an energy tax and have devastating affects on our power plants and ultimately our mining operations. I took this vote not as a Democrat but as a Congressman who was sent to Washington by his constituents to represent their best interests.

My family has operated a small business in Belmont County for 114 years. Among my earliest memories was riding with my father, who operated our local ambulance, to carry injured miners to the hospital.

What outsiders fail to understand that mining is a part of our entire community, not just a community unto itself. The War on Coal is a war on our way of life.

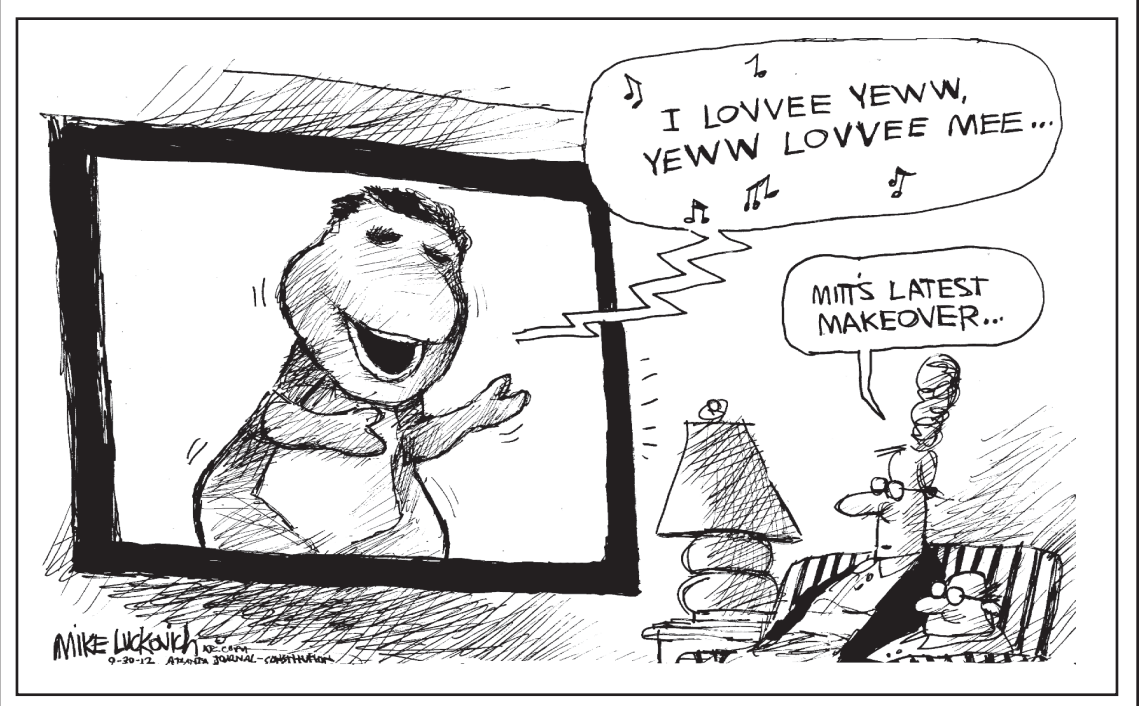

I am proud to have the endorsement of the United Mine Workers of America and will continue to work to eliminate EPA overregulation when I return to Washington.

CHARLIE WILSON,
Bridgeport

An American original leaves voluntarily

MARK SHIELDS

War is hellish and hateful. But even more hateful is the "chicken-hawk" who cheerleads and champions war while ducking any personal risk of engagement for himself, his blood relatives or his social peers. These are the tough-talking, think-tank commandos in and out of Washington, including the press corps, who love to expropriate the language of the combat they have done everything to personally escape.

Army Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf silenced the flatterers who tried to lionize him after his successful leadership in the Persian Gulf War: "It doesn't take a hero to order men into battle. It takes a hero to be one of those men who goes into battle."

Nobody understands that hard truth better than Sen. Jim Webb, who has chosen to leave the U.S. Senate after serving a single six-year term from Virginia. Long before he would become the first graduate of the Naval Academy to serve as Secretary of the Navy, under President Ronald Reagan, 23-year-old Webb was a Marine company commander in Vietnam combat where he earned the Navy Cross, the Silver Star, two Bronze Stars and two Purple Hearts.

Proud of his service in that war, Webb has never hesitated to challenge directly those who, so often as a first resort, urge sending American Marines and soldiers once more into harm's way. Rebuking those national security types who are able to reduce flesh and bone into policy abstractions, Webb has been emphatic: You don't use 'force.' You send young people who have dreams, who want a future."

By 32, Webb had written "Fields of Fire," which Tom Wolfe called "the finest of the Vietnam novels" and in which a Marine sergeant returns to Vietnam for a second tour after visiting his hometown in the States and says: "Lieutenant, you'd hardly know there was a war going on. It's in the papers ... but that's it. Airplane drivers still drive their airplanes. Businessmen still run their businesses. College kids go to college. It's like nothing really happened except to other people. It isn't touching anybody except us."

Vietnam then, Iraq after that, and Afghanistan now. History teaches us the painful truth that the strength of a nation is measured directly by the will and the resolve of the people of that nation to stand together through individual and universal sacrifice for the common good. War demands equality of sacrifice. Yet we, the vast majority of Americans, have shown in the 21st century that we prefer instead to pay no price, to bear no burden, thank you.

This past week, introducing President Obama to a Virginia crowd, Webb reminded his audience that at least one American politician was capable of straight talk. Referring to Gov. Mitt Romney's "comments about the culture of dependency in our society," Webb continued: "Gov. Romney and I are about the same age. Like millions of others in our generation, we came to adulthood facing the harsh realities of the Vietnam War. ... This was a time of conscription where every American male was eligible to be drafted. ... I have never envied or resented any of the choices that were made as long as they were done within the law..."

"These young Marines that I led have grown older now. They've lived lives of courage, both in combat and after their return, where many of them were derided by their own peers for having served. That was a long time ago. They are not bitter. They know what they did. But in receiving veterans' benefits, they are not takers. They are givers, in the ultimate sense of that word. There is a saying among war veterans: 'All gave some, some gave all.' This isn't a culture of dependency. It is part of a long tradition that gave this country its freedom and independence. They paid, some with their lives, some through wounds and disabilities, some through emotional scars, some through lost opportunities and delayed entry into civilian careers which had already begun for many of their peers who did not serve."

Washington doesn't understand how much it will miss Mr. Webb of Virginia.

Akron Beacon Journal, Sept. 30

Too fat for the death penalty. For many people around the globe, that is the essence of the argument made by Ronald Post, a 480-pound inmate on death row in Ohio set for execution early next year....Get beyond the guffaws about a man supposedly eating his way out of a lethal injection, and you arrive at a question that has vexed the state in recent years: How does Ohio appropriately, justly and humanely conduct the death penalty?...

Recall that in 2007, the state had trouble with the execution of Christopher Newton, 6-feet tall, 265 pounds. A procedure designed to take 20 minutes consumed two hours, as the execution team struggled to find veins for the required injections....

New attorneys for Post have put forward credible assessments from medical authorities about the potential troubles ahead. One expert explained at length the likely difficulties, from the lack of available veins to the inadequacies of the doses involved in lethal injection. The substantial risk is, the procedure won't work, requiring additional injections and other steps, perhaps covering as much as 16 hours, the state even coming close to torture....

The state must confront the real possibility that the execution of Post would become a spectacle.

The (Findlay) Courier, Sept. 28

New law which updates the state's five public pension programs is an example of how Ohio's government can work even during contentious times.

Gov. John Kasich signed bills this week that lawmakers believe will bolster pension systems for teachers, public employees, school employees, the State Highway Patrol, and police and fire.

Changes increase employee contributions, compute new final average salaries, require longer service, and reduce cost-of-living adjustments.

The bills basically incorporated plans proposed within the past three years by the various pension boards.

Some may argue the changes didn't go far enough or took too long to pass. But that any reform at all was achieved is encouraging. The most remarkable aspect was not the content of the complicated bills, but that they passed both the Senate and House nearly unanimously.

Getting Republicans and Democrats to agree on much of anything has been difficult since November, when voters soundly rejected Issue 2 (Senate Bill 5), which would have limited certain collective bargaining rights of public unions in Ohio.

Had that controversial bill not been repealed, Republicans likely would have plowed forward with more drastic pension reform measures. Instead, they worked with Democrats to make reasonable, long-term corrections to the pension plans without increasing the burden to taxpayers.

Yes it was pre-planned. An ambassador died, Obama lied

MONA CHAREN

"Bush Lied, People Died" they chanted. When the intelligence about weapons of mass destruction in Iraq — information that was believed by the intelligence agencies of our major allies; that was described by the Clinton-appointed head of the CIA as a "slam dunk"; and that was agreed to by heads of state and leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties — turned out to be badly mistaken, George W. Bush was branded a liar.

Even Democrats such as Bill Clinton, Al Gore, John Kerry, Hillary Clinton, Nancy Pelosi, Tom Daschle, and Ted Kennedy, who had warned about Saddam's WMD program on various occasions, quickly scurried to the "Bush lied, people died" slander when the intelligence proved inaccurate.

Neither Bush nor Secretary of State Colin Powell lied about Iraq. They received bad information. Error is part of the human condition. So is venality, and that is what marked the Democrats' scurrilous attacks on Bush when the intelligence failure came to light. They could have reasonably criticized Bush for not being more skeptical of intelligence reports, but no, they resorted to slurs.

On the 11th anniversary of the September 11 attacks, an al-Qaida-linked band of terrorists attacked our consulate in Benghazi, Libya and killed our ambassador and three other Americans. President Obama and his entire administration denied that the attack had anything to do with the anniversary of al-Qaida's greatest victory, attributing the attack to spontaneous rage at an Internet video. On September 13, White House spokesman Jay Carney said, "The protests we're seeing around the region are in reaction to this movie. They are not directly in reaction to any policy of the United States or the government of the United States or the people of the United States." They stuck to this story for more than a week, even as evidence accumulated that it was false.

If it were a simple matter of bad information, the administration had ample opportunities to modify its initial response to the tragedy. As Eli Lake reported in The Daily Beast, intelligence agencies were confiding within 24 hours that the attacks seemed pre-planned. Intercepts showed that an al-Qaida affiliate boasted of its success to another al-Qaida group on September 12. "There was very good information on this within the first 24 hours," an intelligence official told Lake. Skeptical Republicans with military experience like John McCain and Mike Rogers also observed, in those first hours after the attack, that RPGs are not usually carried to "spontaneous" protests.

Nevertheless, five days after the attacks, and long after it was clear that the consulate (along with a safe house half a mile away) had been targeted by terrorists, U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice toured five Sunday morning TV shows to deliver the administration's line that the murder of our diplomats was a case of mob violence that had been "hijacked by extremists." Appearing on ABC's This Week, Rice said, "Our current best assessment, based on the information that we have at present, is that, in fact, what this began as, it was a spontaneous — not a premeditated — response to what had transpired in Cairo." Jay Carney repeated that spin at White House briefings.

Except that, as CBS reported, there was never any protest at all in Benghazi about the Internet movie. It was a straight-up terror attack. Only on September 20 did Carney finally acknowledge the obvious — "It is, I think, self-evident that what happened in Benghazi was a terrorist attack. Our embassy was attacked violently, and the result was four deaths of American officials."

Why would the administration attempt to deceive the world about a terror attack?

Two possibilities suggest themselves. The Obama administration has substituted a bumper sticker, "Osama bin Laden is dead and General Motors is alive," for a foreign policy. They've been hoping that the death of bin Laden would be seen as total victory over Al-Qaeda and jihadism. A brazen and successful attack against Americans in Libya, including the first assassination of an ambassador in more than three decades, undercuts that self-satisfied narrative, suggesting that, while bin Laden is dead, bin Ladenism is very much alive.

The second explanation is that this administration has relied on the supposed appeal of Barack Obama's persona in place of American military and diplomatic strength. That appeal is proving chimerical, and the administration will go to great lengths to disguise that reality.

But whatever the rationale, the facts are clear: The administration purposely misled the country, and has so far not been held accountable.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS

Yesterday, the sun, Mercury and Saturn were in Libra. Today, the cosmic dynamic changes, first with Mercury and then with Saturn slipping into Scorpio. Saturn's transit is the more dramatic of the two, having generational implications. The planet of responsibility and limits will move slowly through Scorpio's transformation spell until Dec. 23, 2014.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Instead of seeing the huge task before you as an overwhelming job, see it as a series of little jobs, all of which happen to be quite doable with your current resources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). There will be some drama. It will take but three days for the non-sense going on now to get old. Knowing that you'll look back on it and think it's just ridiculous, you may want to limit your current investment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). With the moon rooting you on, there's a bubbly quality to your conversation. Be careful: Effervescence is contagious. Tonight features a social and culinary destination.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll be attuned to the story behind things. When the story isn't being told, you'll either speculate as to what it might be, or you'll ask gentle questions to try to nudge out the truth.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You may get the feeling that a boss, client or friend is sharing incorrect or irrelevant information. Though the "customer" is not always right, it's sometimes necessary to treat them as if they are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Jokes and stories are best shared face to face. Resist the urge to forward them in email form because it robs you of the opportunity to work on the social skills that really matter today: how you present yourself in person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You have no interest in making a good impression. You feel that unless you can wow people, it's not worth your time to show up. So you'll over-deliver on what you never promised you'd do in the first place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Mercury encourages you to take up space and command attention with your communication style. You'll gain the support of authority figures and the approval of those who see you as an authority.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You may feel inclined to reach out and quite literally touch people. Handshakes and hugs are healing, especially since you've spent so much energy communicating virtually.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Do not underestimate the power of your friendships. As your sign mate President Woodrow Wilson said, "Friendship is the only cement that will ever hold the world together."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). If love is a game, this feels like the prize-winning round. Hand on the buzzer, you hope to come up with the right answer. Of course, it's best not to make your move until you're really sure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your inner circle will like hearing what you think, but beyond that, there is little to gain and much to lose from discussing personal views with business associates or the general public.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 5). A new attitude takes hold in you this year. Your joy will be reflected in an activity in which you love to immerse yourself. You could rescue an animal or be someone's hero in November. Finances improve in 2013 simply because you create a budget and stick to it. An adventure (and a possible relocation) launches in May. Scorpio and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 37, 16, 5 and 43.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: It's natural to gravitate toward the familiar whether or not it's what you really want. TAURUS: You'll show your love by fulfilling a request. GEMINI: Crushes are only fun when they do not make your heart feel quite literally squashed. Casual interests are better than obsessions. Keep it light. CANCER: You'll be conscious of how your eyes convey messages, and you'll use them well. LEO: You're not in it for the sheer pleasure; you want a relationship of shared virtue. VIRGO: When you and a love have the same wish, your relationship grows in this bond. LIBRA: Life may feel like a revolving door. When you're circling through with someone you love, it's a pleasure to keep going in circles, getting nowhere. SCORPIO: You have a way of turning a simple "thank you" into a memorable, romantic scenario. SAGITTARIUS: Share your insights. Someone loves how smart you are. CAPRICORN: The most romantic gift you can give to another is the gift of your time. AQUARIUS: You're not fragile, but you appreciate the one who handles you with care. PISCES: As you look at a person with your heart, you see what's invisible to the eye.

Vinegar wacks weeds

Heloise

Dear Heloise: When there are WEEDS in the cracks of our driveway, I use vinegar to kill them. The next day, they are drying up, and eventually, no more weeds. It works great. — Lorena S., Plymouth, Ind.

Lorena, this is a cheap, Earth-friendly way to keep weeds not only out of the driveway, but from between cracks in the sidewalk or stepping-stones. Just pour or spray full-strength vinegar on any unwanted weeds around your home. This is one of many cost-saving hints in my vinegar pamphlet. Want to know even more? Order my pamphlet by sending $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (65 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Did you know that vinegar can help stop the itch of some insect bites? Simply soak a cotton ball in vinegar and dab it on the bite. — Heloise

CHANGING COVERS

Dear Heloise: I love my smartphons and the different covers I can use. It can get quite expensive to constantly change the cover. I found a way without the cost. I bought a clear cover and cut scrapbook paper to fit inside it. Now I can easily change it out to reflect my mood or outfit. It works well with photos, too. Just be careful not to cover any ports or the camera! Love your column. — Wendi, via email

WRAPPING LARGE GIFTS

Dear Heloise: I discovered a good way to wrap gifts, especially children's, after I was frustrated at not being able to find wrapping paper with my grandson's favorite cartoon character. I bought a tablecloth for a couple of dollars and was able to wrap several large gifts and even redecorate a gift bag. My grandson was so excited to see his favorite cartoon character on several of his gifts. Also, if it is plastic, it won't tear while transporting gifts. — Ivana, via email

RECIPE HOLDER

Dear Heloise: I had trouble keeping a recipe book or even a copy of a page from a recipe book handy so that I could easily read it and put the recipe together. At my annual girl's lunch, I mentioned my dilemma, and my friend Laura came up with the best solution ever! She suggested that I get one of the skirt or pants hangers from the closet. Use one that is nice and sturdy, whose clips are strong and tight. Then put the hanger over a knob on an upper cabinet and attach the book or page to it! Oh my gosh — it worked fabulously! — Marlene R., via email

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: I save the wire hangers from the dry cleaners and take them with me when I travel. Most hotels provide only a couple of hangers, and between my wife and me, we usually need more than that. There is no stress, either, if they get left behind. — Tim in Oregon

Sales parties take advantage of loyalty

DEAR ABBY: Your column has been a fixture in my life. Thank you for the smiles and the tears. My dilemma: I received yet another invitation to someone's home for a "product party." In the past year, I have been considered a prospective buyer of cookware, candles, makeup, toys and vitamins. While I have at times used all these products, the invitations to sales parties that come from friends and sometimes friends of friends, irritate me.

When I phone to decline, the hostess invariably says, "Oh, you don't have to buy anything." Of course that's not exactly entirely true because it's a sales party, and "guests" are pressured in various ways to buy the product. People often buy things they don't need or want because they fear they'd be disloyal to the hostess if they didn't. When I was growing up, my father said, "You don't invite friends to your house to sell them things." Maybe Dad was on to something. Abby, how should unwanted invitations be handled? — IRKED IN INDIANA

DEAR IRKED: Continue to decline the invitations. Tell the hostess you have "a conflict" and cannot change your plans. (You don't have to give any details.)

P.S. To ease your conscience, your "conflict" can be your plan to watch your favorite "I Love Lucy" rerun on TV.

DEAR ABBY: I'm wondering what I should do when my biological father dies. He and my mother divorced before I was born. I've had little contact with him, but my older sister and brother lived with him growing up and are close to him.

My mother died 20 years ago, and afterward I tried to get to know him, but he didn't want to know me. He never paid child support. Both he and my mother remarried. I was fortunate to have a loving stepfather, and I was very close to him until his death.

When the time comes, I am considering not going to my birth father's funeral. I have not told my sister how I feel because she thinks he is the greatest. I think he is a dirt ball.

What do you advise, under these circumstances? — CONFUSED IN SIOUX CITY

DEAR CONFUSED: Funerals are for the living. Go to his funeral and give your siblings the emotional support they will need. I understand why you feel the way you do, but in this situation, it would be an act of kindness to keep your true feelings to yourself.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, when I read one of your letters about pennies from heaven, I laughed about it to myself. My sister-in-law had died a few months earlier and I said, "OK, Sharyn, if you're there, send me a penny from heaven." Abby, the next day when I arrived at work, there on my keyboard was a perfectly placed penny. And for weeks afterward I kept finding more pennies. Finally I had to say, "OK, Sharyn, I get it." And the pennies stopped. — A BELIEVER NOW IN SOMERS, CONN.

DEAR BELIEVER NOW: I'm glad your faith is restored. If you saved them, have them made into charms for a bracelet. Every time you wear it you'll feel close to the sister-in-law who's smiling down on you.

Surgery or catheter valve replacement?

Dr. Donohue

DEAR DR. DONOHUE AND ROACH: My wife and I face a dilemma. Her aortic valve is narrowed and needs replacement. We have two options: transcatheter replacement of the valve, or cracking the breastbone open to reach the valve. Most of the articles we have read suggest the catheter approach. My wife's cardiologist said that method is too experimental and the possibility of infection is greater. I can see how it is more difficult to ascertain the correct size of the valve in the catheter method. My wife is 81, slender and has maintained her current weight of 100 pounds on a body of 5 feet 1 inch for 30 years. She is in good physical condition. — A.G.

ANSWER: For readers, the catheter replacement of the aortic heart valve involves using a thin, pliable tube — a catheter — to transport the new valve into the heart by introducing the catheter into a surface vessel and inching it to the desired heart location. With surgery, the sternum (breastbone) has to be split for the surgeon to reach the heart and the site for the valve replacement. There is no argument that the catheter approach is easier on the patient. There also is no argument that the chest approach has been around for a longer time, and heart surgeons are more familiar with it.

The immediate outcome of surgery and transcatheter replacement are equally good, and remain equally good for two years. Later, leakage of the valve happens more often to the transcatheter-placed valves.

Currently the surgical replacement of the valve is the mainstay treatment for reasonably healthy people. For those unable to withstand the rigors of surgery, catheter replacement is the better choice.

Why not discuss this matter with the surgeon who has been chosen to perform the operation? You'll hear both sides of the story.

As for your fear of an error in judging the size of the valve in the catheter procedure, exact dimensions are obtained by ultrasound pictures of the aortic valve area before either procedure is done.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE AND ROACH: Please explain degenerative changes of the spine noted on an X-ray. I have known that my back is very bad for quite a while. What exactly are these changes? What are remedies for it? — J.O.

ANSWER: "Degenerative" changes of the spine is the same thing as saying you have osteoarthritis of the spine. Osteoarthritis is the most prevalent kind of arthritis, the kind of arthritis that comes with aging. Bone spurs form on the backbones, back disks shrink and the situation is painful.</

Cleveland interviews Alomar Jr.

Former Red Sox, Phillies manager Francona also heads list of candidates

CLEVELAND (AP) — Over more than two decades, Sandy Alomar Jr. has been an All-Star player, coach and interim manager for the Cleveland Indians.

On Thursday, he was something new: an applicant. Alomar, who guided Cleveland in its final six games after Manny Acta was fired last week, interviewed to become the Indians' next full-time manager. Alomar spent most of the day in meetings with owner Paul Dolan, general manager Chris Antonetti and other front office members at Progressive Field, a place he knows well after playing 11 seasons with Cleveland.

Alomar and former Phillies and Red Sox manager Terry Francona, who will interview with the club on Friday, head the list of possible replacements for Acta.

Antonetti was impressed with the job Alomar did in his short stint replacing Acta, who was dismissed after Cleveland collapsed in the second half of the season.

"As expected, Sandy did a great job," Antonetti said. "There was a lot to work through especially for someone who does not have that extensive managing experience so he was doing a lot of things for the first time. But he did an exceptional job in how he went about preparing for it, reaching out to coaches, how he communicated with players and putting himself and the team in a position to succeed."

"In a short time he did a good job." The Indians went 3-3 under Alomar, a six-time All-Star catcher with Cleveland who served as Acta's bench coach this season. Alomar has not managed at any level but previously interviewed with the Chicago Cubs, Boston and Toronto. Antonetti feels the 46-year-old Alomar has paid his dues and is prepared to lead a major league club.

OSU says it 'owes' Nebraska for loss

'Huskers came back from 21 to win last year

COLUMBUS (AP) — It was a game that went into the Nebraska record books — and the Ohio State memory banks.

The Cornhuskers mounted the biggest comeback in school history a year ago, finishing with a 24-0 flurry to erase a 21-point, second-half deficit, to beat the Buckeyes 34-27 in the first Big Ten game ever played in Lincoln, Neb.

Stadium, a number of the 12th-ranked Buckeyes believe some payback is due to the No. 21 Cornhuskers for what happened then.

"I have heard them talk," said Ohio State coach Urban Meyer, who wasn't around for last year's wild, up-and-down struggle at Memorial Stadium. "I haven't brought it up. But I hear them say that 'We owe this team.'"

It's clear that the Buckeyes have taken note. "It's a loooooong flight," safety Bradley Roby said of the return trip after a road defeat like the one at Ne-

Homecoming heroics?

Salem hopes to tally first game in win column as Quakers host winless Alliance Friday at Reilly Stadium

SALEM — Friday night will be an evening of firsts for one team at Reilly Stadium. The Quakers, over-matched in size and skill for much of the season, will look across the field to see a team much like themselves.

The young Alliance Aviators will be lining up in opposing territory during a special week for the Salem community — homecoming. "They've found new and exciting ways to lose football games," Salem head coach Ron Johnson said. "They have been in control of several games, Canton South, Louisville — they've been a really good football team that just hasn't closed the deal yet."

Alliance comes into this week also winless at 0-6. The Aviators came up short in a close battle with Louisville last Friday which saw them take an early first quarter lead and then fail to put up more points until a safety in the fourth quarter.

Two weeks ago, the Aviators stood toe-to-toe with Canton South, who cruised to a 46-15 win over the Quakers last week.

The run defense for Salem has been stout in the team's last two contests, particularly last week when the

Eagles aim for sacks

Roethlisberger taken down an awful lot for his size

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For a big guy, Ben Roethlisberger goes down quite a bit.

Roethlisberger has been sacked an NFL-high 177 times since 2008, including eight times in his last regular-season game against the Philadelphia Eagles four years ago.

That beating is fresh on Roethlisberger's mind as the Pittsburgh Steelers (1-2) prepare to host the Eagles (3-1) on Sunday. Byron Leftwich had to finish up a 15-6 loss in Philadelphia on Sept. 21, 2008 after Roethlisberger took a hard hit from Leetonia coach Matt Altomare just has to laugh when Columbiana coach Bob Spait compares the Bears to villagers "defending the wives and the children against the Barbarians."

"I don't know what to think about a lot of that stuff, but I guess it's a compliment as far as how hard we play them," Altomare said. "You know Bob though, he's one of a kind with the quotes he

Leetonia (4-2, 2-1 in the Inter-Tri County League lower tier) has been the surprise of the season so far and the Bears' good start to the season might be exactly what the doctor ordered for a rivalry game that will count in the league standings for the first time since 2005.
"It's exciting to be playing a rivalry game in week seven in October instead of August or September," Altomare said.
Leetonia will play at Columbiana on Friday night. Spaite admits that the league status of this game will give a shot-in-the-arm to the Bears.
"Now they will be all juiced up," Spaite said. "They will have their 75 bonfires and be burning coconuts. They will be amped up and ready to go. There's no doubt about it."
As for the Clippers (5-1, 3-0 in the ITCL lower tier), they'll likely be without starting quarterback Nate Huk and all-around best player Britton Steinginga, who both suffered injuries against Southern last week.

"I know they'll have a lot of questions coming into this game and I'm sure we'll find out what's going on with their players by the time Friday comes around, but we'll prepare like they're going to be at full strength," Altomare said.
Spaite is convinced that the game will come down to who plays the hardest because "the best" sometimes don't get the win in this feud.
"I can't tell you the number of times in the series where the team with the best players did not win," Spaite said. "It goes both ways too."
Despite coaching against the Bears for many years, Spaite still has trouble wrapping his head around the intensity this rivalry produces from ages ago.
"Until we both started making the playoffs on a regular basis in the early 2000s, they actually had an alumni game," Spaite said. "They had guys 40 and 50 years old suiting up. That's insane, but it's part of the whole Columbiana-Leetonia deal. That's just what they do."
In other lower tier action, league co-leaders Western Reserve hosts winless Sebring and Southern (4-2, 2-1) will try to right the ship against rival Wellsville (3-3, 1-2).

Crestview, ranked fifth in the state in the latest Div. V Associated Press poll, has definitely got the attention of United Local coach Mike Ward.
"I've been coaching for 37 years and I can't remember any team putting up as many points as they have," Ward said. "They're probably the best scoring offense I have seen in this area."
The Rebels (6-0, 3-0) are searching for their fifth straight Inter-Tri County League upper tier title and if the first three games in the league are indication they won't have to look too hard.
Crestview is averaging 52.8 points per game and is well on its way to making a stab at scoring more than 500 points in the regular season.
"It's surprising for us because we were looking at a lot of new starters coming into the season," Crestview coach Paul Cusick said. "I think now everything is working well, but we have to be prepared for a week when it isn't working well."
For each team, this is a story of two players — at least on offense. Crestview showcases quarterback Collin Gilbert and two-time

1,000-yard rusher Nick Blower, while United hits back with a similar situation in quarterback Garrett Beech and running back Mike Martin.
"You can't simulate what they do in practice," Ward said. "They have the size, speed and chemistry all there. It's a big challenge and we'll give our best shot."
"Beech reminds me a lot of Josh McLaughlin who they had a few years ago," Cusick said. "He has the ability to do a lot of good things."
United (4-2, 2-1) can get back into the ITCL upper tier race with a win, but the young Eagles are still dedicated to their goal of having everything in place for a run at the title next year.
"We have a lot of our guys coming back next year, so we're just trying to get better every week," Ward said. "I know we're young, but we're going to prepare the best we can."
In other ITCL upper tier action, East Palestine and Jackson-Milton will break the winless deadlock in the cellar as the two go at it in North Jackson.
League co-leaders South Range (4-2, 3-0) host struggling Mineral Ridge (3-3, 2-1), while Springfield (2-4, 1-3) is at Lisbon (2-4, 1-3) to round out the upper tier slate.

Playoff outlook
— Crestview will be in the driver's seat for a home game if it wins this week as struggling Jackson-Milton and East Palestine follow on the schedule. United and South Range have a slim chance, but have to win out. Everyone else in the upper tier is out of luck.
— Columbiana will have to win out to make it in Div. V, Region 17. Southern didn't make it at 9-1 last season, so 8-2 (if the Indians happen to win out) is probably not going to work out.
— In Division VI, Wellsville and Leetonia have the ability to sneak under the wire depending on how they fare in the last few games. The playoff prediction web site Fantastic50.net, run by Drew Pasteur, has the Tigers with a six percent chance of making the playoffs and the Bears with a 21 percent chance. If Leetonia beats Columbiana, those chances go up to 71 percent.
Western Reserve controls its own destiny and has a 60 percent chance of returning to the playoffs.

SALEM FROM 1B

Quakers held the Wildcats to negative yards on the ground through the first half.

"We're tackling so much better," Johnson said. "We're starting to understand the defense better. We're flying guys to the football. Now we just have to stay in coverage as well."

Offensively, the Quakers will be up against a high-risk, high-reward defense that the Aviators bring.

Salem had its opportunities early last week but was unable to connect for the big play.

"They're going to bring a lot of pressure," Johnson said. "They're going to bring a minimum of six guys every snap and just try and wreak havoc. They're so talented in the back that they can play man coverage. There are going to be a lot of negative yardage plays but they will give up big plays too."

As always, special teams will play an important role. With two winless teams hungry to notch their first

"W," extra emphasis was given to just that.

"We have an outstanding kicker, we have great coverage teams, I think our return game is very strong," Johnson said. "We have to use that to our advantage and hopefully get a couple scores or short fields just to help us out."

The Quakers could have their hands full with Aviator quarterback Kordelle Phillips, who has completed 66-percent of his passes this season. His favorite target is Ryan Bevington, who has six receiving touchdowns.

Not go be forgotten about is Parrish Martin, who had a breakout game last week against Louisville and rushed for 116 yards.

"They can rush the football very well," Johnson said. "Their quarterback is extremely talented carrying the football. We've seen a few of those this year so we really have to keep him in check. But they also have some guys that are very special with catching the football."

Salem and Alliance kick off at 7 p.m. at Reilly Stadium.

STEELERS FROM 1B

Brian Dawkins in the fourth quarter.

"They got after us and sacked me a bunch," Roethlisberger said. "It was a very frustrating game. I remember after that game going to one of my teammate's houses and saying 'I don't know if I can do this much longer.' They wreak havoc on you and they create a lot of issues."

Roethlisberger didn't quit, of course. He was back on the field the following week for an overtime victory over Baltimore, and he wound up leading the Steelers to their second Super Bowl championship in four years that season.

"I believe," he said, "that year ended up pretty good for us."

Despite knocking Roethlisberger around in their last meeting, don't tell the Eagles he's easy to bring down. At 6-foot-5 and 241 pounds, Roethlisberger is one of the biggest quarterbacks in the league. To hear some of the Eagles, you'd think Roethlisberger was a defensive lineman.

"He's about 260, 270 pounds, so arm tackles are not going to tackle him in the pocket. Grabbing one leg or something like that won't work against him," linebacker Jamar Chaney said. "Most quarterbacks, you probably can do that, but with him you can't. When he gets outside the pocket, some of their receivers just take off down the field and he just throws it up."

Two-time Pro Bowl defensive end Trent Cole is the only one of the six players who sacked Roethlisberger four years ago still with the Eagles. He agrees with Chaney.

"He's a big guy. You can't tackle him low, so you have to tackle him high," Cole said. "That's one of the keys to getting him on the ground."

If they don't, Roethlis-berger can cause several problems for defensive backs. Though he's certainly not in the scrambling class of Michael Vick, Robert Griffin III or Cam Newton, Roethlisberger has a knack for escaping trouble and turning potential losses into big gains.

Many of those long pass plays occur when he's moving out of the pocket and throwing down field to a receiver that's wide open because the defenders came up to try to make a tackle on Roethlisberger.

"He extends plays, he's very strong in the pocket, and he has mobility," Eagles coach Andy Reid said. "He always keeps his eyes down the field. He keeps every play alive. As a secondary player, you better continue to cover your player until the play is history and it's over, or he's going to make you pay for it."

The Eagles are having trouble sacking quarterbacks smaller than Roethlisberger.

TRIBE FROM 1B

"I fully expect that he's ready to do the job and be successful at it," Antonetti said.

Antonetti did not put a timeline on naming a new manager, and said the team would not rush into an important decision following a disappointing season which ended with a 68-94 record and fourth-place finish.

Antonetti said during the interview with Alomar there were discussions on his vision for the ballclub, ability to lead, communication skills and relationships on the club.

"What we are looking for is someone to lead this group of 25 guys," Antonetti said. "We're looking for someone who has the ability to motivate a group of guys to achieve and perform at their best. A lot goes into that, a winning environment, a winning culture as well as helping players develop and reach their potential."

Alomar would seem to be an ideal fit.

He knows Cleveland's roster already and enjoyed a good rapport with many of the Indians' players. Antonetti said several players made it clear during their exit interviews that they would be happy to play for Alomar.

"I can tell you that Sandy is held in very high regard among our players," he said.

Before the season finale, pitcher Justin Masterson said Alomar would be a great choice to take over the Indians, who were within 3 1-2 games of first place on July 27 before losing 11 straight games and fading from contention.

"I like Sandy a lot," Masterson said. "Everybody in this clubhouse respects him."

Alomar also has the support of Cleveland fans, some of whom chanted "San-dy, San-dy" after he came out of the dugout to argue a call earlier this week.

Although Alomar would appear to be the frontrunner because of his close ties to the team, Antonetti said there isn't a favorite.

"I wouldn't give anyone a leg up in the process," he said. "We feel good about the two initial candidates that we have identified."

Not long after Acta was fired, Antonetti called Francona, who has spent the past year working as a TV analyst. Francona, who previously worked as an adviser in Cleveland's front office and has remained close with Antonetti and team president Mark Shapiro, told the Indians he was "excited to get back on the field."

Francona led Boston to World Series titles in 2004 and 2007.

He was fired after the 2011 season, when the Red Sox fell apart down the stretch.

Last week, Francona told the AP he would welcome the chance to work again with Antonetti and Shapiro.

"It's great to hear," Antonetti said. "We have always had a great deal of respect for Terry. We had an opportunity to work together for a little over a year and stayed in close touch with him throughout the last decade. It was great to hear that he was interested, and I'm very confident with he and Sandy leading and starting this process that we will emerge from it with a great leader."

Francona reportedly makes $1.7 million in his job with ESPN. Antonetti said economics would not impact any decision on hiring a new manager.

"We will go with the best person that we think fits best for the job," he said.

Antonetti touched upon a wide-range of topics during an informal one-hour meeting with reporters. Among the top items were:

— The Indians' August meltdown. Antonetti said the team is still trying to determine what went wrong during a 5-24 month, the worst in franchise history. "I don't think there's any one sole reason," he said. "We've asked a lot of people that question trying to get a lot of different feedback and a number of different perspectives on it. The one thing we all feel is that we have better talent than our record shows."

— Antonetti met for more than an hour with outspoken closer Chris Perez, whose comments throughout the season angered opponents, fans and some of his teammates.

"It comes from a good place with Chris," Antonetti said. "He's an extremely competitive guy that badly wants to be a contributor to a winning team. That's where it's coming from. I wish he would communicate his words differently and how he communicates those messages, but the root from where he's coming from is a deep-seated belief that he wants to be a part of a winning team."

— Antonetti said it's possible outfielder Grady Sizemore and designated hitter Travis Hafner could return to the club "but the level of investment would be very different than it was in the past." Sizemore missed all season with injuries and Hafner was limited to 66 games.

— No decisions have been made on club options for pitchers Ubaldo Jimenez or Roberto Hernandez.

happen again," linebacker Ryan Shazier said.

Despite falling to 0-2 in the Big Ten with the loss, the Buckeyes regrouped to win their next three games but then closed what would be a 6-7 season — their most losses since 1897 — with four consecutive defeats.

Even though the entire season didn't tilt on that one, cool Saturday evening in Nebraska, many of the Buckeyes believe it did.

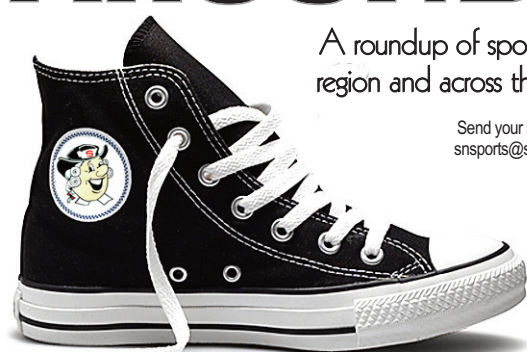

"Last season as a whole is brought up more than just one single game," offensive tackle Jack Mewhort said. "The Nebraska game was part of it, just the way it happened and we let the lead go. It adds a little something and gives you a little more of a chip on your shoulder."

Nebraska coach Bo Pelini and his players barely mentioned the game this week.

But the Buckeyes are well aware of what happened.

"Last year was last year. I'm not going to forget it, but I'm not going to dwell on it either," Ohio State linebacker Etienne Sabino said. "But we're looking forward to this game this week."

Big Ten says MSU player wasn't gouging foe's eyes

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Big Ten has determined that a Michigan State player did not violate the conference's conduct policy after Ohio State sent in film that appeared to show him trying to gouge the eyes of a Buckeyes player.

In a statement, Michigan State athletic director Mark Hollis said the Big Ten determined that MSU offensive lineman Jack Allen didn't violate the conference's sportsmanlike conduct policy.

A video Ohio State sent to the Big Ten appeared to show Allen trying to get his gloved hand inside the facemask of Ohio State defensive lineman Johnathan Hankins during Saturday's Ohio State victory in East Lansing. At the same time, Hankins was trying to get his hands inside Allen's facemask.

Hollis concluded that Allen's actions "weren't a football play" but also it was not an eye-gouging incident.

Red Sox fire Valentine after 1 tumultuous season

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox thought Bobby Valentine would restore order to a coddled clubhouse that disintegrated during the 2011 pennant race.

Instead, he only caused more problems.

The brash and supremely confident manager was fired on Thursday, the day after the finale of a season beset with internal sniping and far too many losses. Valentine went 69-93 in his only year in Boston, the ballclub's worst season in almost 50 years.

"I understand this decision," Valentine said. "This year in Boston has been an incredible experience for me, but I am as disappointed in the results as are ownership and the great fans of Red Sox Nation. ... I'm sure next year will be a turnaround year."

A baseball savant who won the NL pennant with the New York Mets and won it all in Japan, Valentine was brought in after two-time World Series champion Terry Francona lost control of the clubhouse during an unprecedented September collapse. But the players who took advantage of Francona's hands-off approach bristled under Valentine's abrasive style.

More importantly, they didn't win for him, either.

Under Valentine, the Red Sox started 4-10 and didn't break .500 until after Memorial Day. By August, when the contenders were setting their playoff roster, the Red Sox knew they would not be among them and they traded some of their best players — and biggest salaries — to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Without Adrian Gonzalez, Carl Crawford and Josh Beckett, the Red Sox will save $250 million in future salaries and have a chance to rebuild over the winter. But that will be too late for Valentine.

"Our 2012 season was disappointing for many reasons," general manager Ben Cherington said in a statement announcing the firing. "No single issue is the reason, and no single individual is to blame. ... With an historic number of injuries, Bobby was dealt a difficult hand. He did the best he could under seriously adverse circumstances, and I am thankful to him."

Nicks out for Sunday against Cleveland

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants wide receiver Hakeem Nicks won't play in Sunday's game against Cleveland because of recurring left foot and knee problems.

Nicks has missed the last two games and coach Tom Coughlin said Thursday that Nicks won't be available against the Browns. That complicates New York's passing game because backup Ramses Barden has a concussion and his status is uncertain.

Safety Antrel Rolle said he won't be sidelined with a left knee problem, and the Giants certainly could use him in a secondary plagued by injuries. The other starting safety, Kenny Phillips (right knee), is out, and cornerback Corey Webster is playing with a broken right hand. Webster also has a hamstring injury.

"Whenever I am not out there, it is not anything I will ever be comfortable with," said Rolle, who also didn't practice Thursday. Neither did Webster nor linebacker Michael Boley (hip), who also said he expects to play against Cleveland.

braska. "I went through it last year. It's not fun at all. So that's what we're trying to send them back with."

Funny, but at halftime the game appeared to be a high point for the Buckeyes, who were muddling through a transitional season after Jim Tressel was forced out for knowingly playing ineligible players.

Several Buckeyes were suspended for the Nebraska game because of NCAA violations and the final sanctions had yet to be handed down.

Assistant Luke Fickell was serving as interim coach, Ohio State had a true freshman quarterback in Braxton Miller playing every down and there was a feeling that the season could go either way.

When the Buckeyes bolted to a 20-6 halftime lead, quieting a crowd of 85,426, it appeared that perhaps the program might be able to weather the storms battering it from outside and within and still have a successful season.

But then Miller went down. He had completed 5 of 8 passes for 95 yards, including a 32-yard touchdown pass to Jake Stoneburner, and had run for 91 yards on 10 carries. Everything seemed to be clicking until he sprained his right ankle and wasn't able to return.

"We had a good game plan, things went well, and in the second half I just messed up my ankle," Miller recalled.

Asked if he felt the game shifted at that point, he nodded and said, "Yeah."

It wasn't just the players who felt that way. Mike Vrabel, then and still a defensive assistant coach, felt the momentum shift.

"Our quarterback went down and our guys on defense felt like that was going to be it — they said that after the game," Vrabel said. "We were getting stops and forcing them to kick field goals and then things just started to steamroll and pile up on you. And there was not a play to be made to stop anything."

Fifth-year senior Joe Bauserman came on but things had changed. Nebraska's Blackshirts defense was now much more active, much more inspired. The crowd was back in the game. And Huskers quarterback Taylor Martinez, booed late in the first half, regained his footing.

Martinez ran for a touchdown and passed for two others and running back Rex Burkhead exploded to total 119 yards on 26 carries, catching one scoring pass from Martinez and also adding the go-ahead touchdown on a 17-yard run with 5:10 left.

Bauserman went 1 for 10 passing for 13 yards with an interception, meaning he completed as many passes to Nebraska players as he did to Ohio State's. He was unable to lead a final drive to tie the game.

The video from the Oct. 8, 2011, game rivals a horror flick for the Buckeyes.

"We look at those things and try to get, not revenge, but not let anything like that

GOLF NOTES

Ryan Moore shoots 61 to take Las Vegas lead

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ryan Moore matched the course record and his career best with a 10-under 61 on Thursday in the first round of the Justin Timberlake Shriners Hospitals for Children Open.

The former UNLV player had nine birdies, an eagle — on the 341-yard, par-4 15th — and a bogey in perfect conditions at TPC Summerlin to take a one-stroke lead in the Fall Series opener.

"Just one of those nice days," Moore said. "Got off to a great start. Kind of 7 under on the front nine and just kind of cruised the next nine. Made bogey there on my 17th hole, No. 8, which I wasn't too happy about. It was great to bounce back with a birdie on the ninth hole."

No wind and perfect temperature, greens are reasonably soft and rolling nice on top of that. So it's one of those days that you just keep putting it in play. You know you're going to have a bunch of pitching wedges, 9-irons, 8-irons into these greens, and a few shorter irons, too."

Brendon de Jonge had a 62, and Tim Herron and John Huh shot 63. Justin Leonard, Chris Kirk and Jonas Blixt were three strokes back at 64. Kirk eagled the 15th and par-5 16th. Moore also shot a 61 this season in the Humana Challenge on PGA West's Nicklaus Course.

The Las Vegas resident has seven top-10 finishes and is 36th on the money list. The final top 30 will receive spots in the Masters.

Moore tied the TPC Summerlin record set by Davis Love III in 2001 and matched by Tag Ridings in 2004 and Hunter Haas in 2011. Chip Beck holds the overall tournament record, shooting a 59 in 1991 at Sunrise Golf Club.

"I had no idea that was the course record, so that's nice," Moore said. "I've just been playing good, solid golf lately. Just kind of keep hitting the ball solid and giving myself opportunities. On a golf course like this, I'm probably more comfortable. I've played it more this year than any other coming in to it."

He won the 2009 Wyndham Championship for his lone PGA Tour title.

Two-time heart transplant recipient Erik Compton had a 66, and defending champion Kevin Na opened with a 68. Casey Martin shot a 71. The Oregon coach, playing on a sponsor exemption, is allowed to use a cart in competition because of a rare circulatory disorder in his right leg.

OSU NOTES

Deposed coach makes debut on Cleveland TV

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — What's brewing with the 2012 Ohio State Buckeyes ... BUCKEYES BUZZ: If you ever watched a lengthy Jim Tressel news conference, then you probably never envisioned him as a sparky TV personality.

Now, despite his stiff delivery, propensity for circular logic and love for high-minded coaching maxims, that's precisely what he is. Tressel is doing a short, weekly segment on WKYC-TV in Cleveland.

He speaks about teamwork and selfless effort in a clearly scripted 2 minutes. There is no mention of his being forced out at Ohio State for knowing about likely NCAA violations but still sending his star players out on the field in 2010.

Tressel has moved on, of course. He's now being paid $200,000 a year to work with students at the University of Akron in a non-athletic position. He is not permitted to do any coaching because he's still serving a five-year "show cause" — the most severe penalty the NCAA can levy on a coach.

The NCAA called him dishonest and untruthful in its final report on the Ohio State situation, and he is not allowed to coach at any NCAA institution unless the school that hires him presents a case for why it should hire him.

Ohio State is still dealing with the scorched earth he left behind — NCAA probation, a bowl ban after this season, vacating the 2010 season, a return of hundreds of thousands of dollars in bowl revenue and numerous other matters.

WKYC says Tressel will speak about the subjects he wrote about in several of his books: faith, integrity, honesty and ethics.

To see the video: JUST SO YOU KNOW: It was announced on Thursday that the TicketCity Bowl will now be called The Heart of Dallas Bowl.

The game will be played at Cotton Bowl Stadium on Jan. 1, 2013.

The game will pit teams from the Big 12 and Big Ten in 2013, and the Big Ten and Conference USA in 2014.

QUOTABLE: Nebraska coach Bo Pelini played at Ohio State in 1986-90 and was a captain. He was asked the last time he had been in Ohio Stadium.

"I don't know," he said. "It was a long, long time ago."

INJURY UPDATE: Ohio State coach Urban Meyer confirmed that RB Jordan Hall (partially torn knee ligament) is out for Saturday's 8 p.m. start against Nebraska. He termed CB C.J. Barnett as a "maybe," adding that he was still limping around practice on Wednesday.

QB Braxton Miller was bruised and beaten up at Michigan State and took a couple of days to get back to something approaching healthy for a major-college quarterback who gets hit 20 or 30 times a game. Two other Buckeyes have been cleared to play. D.L. Nathan Williams (microfracture knee surgery) has seen limited action all season, but has had a full week of practice and is ready to go. Also, DL Michael Bennett (groin) still isn't full speed but is available to play.

YOU HAVE BEEN WARNED: The Nebraska game is a sell-out. Apparently some people are still making and selling fake tickets. The Ohio State athletic department is reminding fans to only purchase tickets from authorized sources because of the risk of counterfeit, stolen or voided tickets.
