GOP chief: Troubled by missing treasurer emails

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — The Columbiana County Republican Party chairman says his “investigation” into the county treasurer’s office investment controversy has uncovered several troubling aspects, including the possible loss of emails he was seeking due to a computer crash.

David Johnson issued a news release last Friday announcing his findings four weeks after he filed a public records request with Treasurer Linda Bolon seeking documentation related to the investment account in question and investment policy, as well as emails between Bolon and former county Treasurer Nick Barborak, who was elected state representative last year. Bolon and Barborak are Democrats.

The GOP chairman said he learned from the response to his records request that Barborak’s “computer ‘mysteriously’ crashed just about the time that his term of office was to expire. So the records that I have requested relative to electronic communications between Barborak and WesBanco, and most especially the Youngstown office of the state auditor’s office, are ‘not available,’ he wrote.

WesBanco is the investment firm hired in 2010 by the county advisory board on Barborak’s recommendation to invest $5 million in county funds. Bolon reported in March she inherited a bookkeeping problem involving the WesBanco investment account, resulting in the county’s investment income being overstated by $118,779. During the course of trying to correct the problem, Bolon also discovered several investments were made illegally because they exceeded the maturation time limit allowed by law.

No losses resulted from any of the transactions, and Barborak has said he was unaware of the illegal investments.

Johnson said the email communications he was seeking are essential to determining “who knew what and when they knew it. I, frankly, do not buy these records somehow vanished in a computer crash and that they just cannot be retrieved.”

Barborak said his computer crashed mid 2012, not toward the end of his term as Johnson claimed. Barborak said he contacted the IT person his office shares with the county auditor’s office, but efforts to resurrect the computer were unsuccessful, at which point he was provided a new machine.

“(Johnson) is just trying to make an issue. He’s trying to imply there was something criminal or nefarious, and that’s not the case,” he said. “I came into the office one day, and it didn’t work.”

Oh Wow! science center brings lesson to students at Leetonia school gym

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA— Students at Leetonia schools on Tuesday were busy building motors in the middle school gym.

Oh Wow! The Roger and Gloria Jones Children Center for Science and Technology in Youngstown visited the school, offering fifth- and sixth-grade students a hands-on lesson in electromagnetism. The event was held in conjunction with the Leetonia Community Public Library.

With assistance from high school volunteers, the students made mini motors that emphasized the science of electromagnetism using a kit designed by the Youngstown Warren Inventors Association. To build the motors students used simple household materials including AA batteries, a 3-volt cell battery, LED diodes, a neodymium magnet, a screw and pieces of copper wire. The students were able to build three different machines with the materials, and were given the kits to take home to continue experimenting.

According to Audra Carlson, Oh Wow education manager, the program is a Make It! program at Oh Wow and Leetonia schools is the first of the center’s effort to expand its outreach.

“We realize how hard it is for schools to make it to the center, so this is a way to bring our hands-on activities to them,” Carlson said.

Carlson said she felt the program went very well.

Spruce up Salem

Saturday effort offers chance to shred, remove and clean

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — Area residents can help spruce up downtown Salem, remove graffiti or shred their desks and offices of paperwork clutter during three separate, but related events Saturday morning.

A spring clean-up of downtown takes place from 9 a.m. to noon, a graffiti removal event takes place from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. meeting at city hall’s front parking lot and a community shredding event is from 10 a.m. to noon in the Salem Area Chamber of Commerce parking lot, hosted by the Chamber Ambassadors and Cintas Document Management.

The work kicks off at 9 a.m. at McCulloch Park on East State Street in downtown Salem where the chamber’s Beautification Committee will assign areas and send people out to sweep sidewalks, clean out flower beds and around bushes and trees, pull weeds and clean up municipal parking lots.

The clean-up will continue until noon, with volunteers asked to bring their own tools, such as rakes, leaf blowers or brooms. Bags will be provided.

Pressure cooker bombs used in Boston blasts

BOSTON (AP) — Federal agents zeroed in Tuesday on how the Boston Marathon bombing was carried out — with kitchen pressure cookers packed with explosives, nails and other lethal shrapnel — but said they still didn’t know who did it and why.

An intelligence bulletin issued to law enforcement and released late Tuesday included a picture of a mangled pressure cooker and a torn black bag the FBI said were part of a bomb.

The FBI and other law enforcement agencies repeatedly pleaded for members of the public to come forward with photos, videos or anything suspicious they might have seen or heard.

“The range of suspects and motives remains wide open,” Richard DesLauriers, FBI agent in charge in Boston, said at a news conference. He vowed to “go to the ends of the Earth to identify the subject or subjects who are responsible for this despicable crime.”

President Barack Obama branded the attack an act of terrorism but said officials don’t know “whether it was planned and executed by a terrorist organization, foreign or domestic, or was the act of a malevolent individual.”

Scores of victims remained in hospitals, many with grievous injuries, a day after the twin explosions near the marathon’s finish line killed three people, wounded more than 170 and reawakened fears of terrorism. A 9-year-old girl and 10-year-old boy were among 17 victims listed in critical condition.

Heightening jitters in Washington, where security already had been tightened after the bombing, a letter addressed to a senator and poisoned with ricin or a similarly toxic substance was intercepted at a mail facility outside the capital, lawmakers said. There was no immediate indication the episode was related to the Boston attack. Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid said the letter was sent to Republican Sen. Roger Wicker, of Mississippi.

Officials found that the bombs in Boston consisted of explosives put in ordinary 1.6-gallon pressure cookers, one with shards of metal and ball bearings, the other with nails, according to a person close to the investigation who spoke on condition of anonymity because the probe was still going on. The bombs were stuffed into black duffel bags and left on the ground, the person said. DesLauriers confirmed that investigators had found pieces of black nylon from a bag or backpack and fragments of BBs and nails, possibly contained in a pressure cooker. He said the items were sent to the FBI laboratory at Quantico, Va., for analysis.

The FBI said it is looking at what Boston television station WHDH said are photos sent by a viewer that show the scene right before and after the bombs went off. The photo shows something next to a mailbox that appears to be a bag, but it’s unclear what the significance is.

Columbiana school officials set record straight on bond issue

By KATIE SCHWENDEMAN
Staff Writer

COLUMBIANA — School officials are setting the record straight. “We were not here to attack or confront anyone,” Columbiana School District Treasurer Lori Posey told City Council Tuesday night.

Posey was referring to the April 2 council meeting in which members of the Columbiana Building Excellence Committee said misinformation was posted on a councilman’s website last year.

The information about the $4 million bond issue the district put on the August special election ballot last year appeared on Bryan Blakeman’s personal website. It had already been removed before the last council meeting.

The 29-year bond issue failed by a majority vote at the August election and the board of education has since approved putting it on the May 7 election ballot.

The money that would be generated through the additional tax is targeted for facility improvements at South Side Middle School, mostly a new roof.

Blakeman had posted on his website, www.columbianacitycouncil.com, the bond issue would cost taxpayers more than what the district was saying it was.

Posey had commented on the website the information being put out was not correct and provided the accurate figures.

On Tuesday she explained that what was posted online wasn’t necessarily incorrect, although it was causing some confusion.

She said the information was taken from the original ballot language, which refers to cost in terms of “taxable value” as opposed to the common reference, “market value.”

“When the difference of calculation was pointed out to Mr. Blakeman, in his communications to his constituents he clarified that point,” she said. “I want to apologize that this issue was brought up ... we are all on the same page regarding calculation of cost.”

Posey also thanked Blakeman for attending the latest committee meeting at Firestone Farms on Sunday.

In turn, Blakeman thanked Posey for the apology and clarification.

If approved, the bond will cost the owner of a $100,000 home an additional $37.67 a year in taxes and the owner of a $50,000 home $18.83 a year.

The figures are based on property real estate values.

Posey also said that real estate taxes went down last year by nearly as much as the cost of the bond issue as a result of the public library bond expiring.

“The decrease would show on the taxes you paid in 2012. The increase for the school’s bond issue would begin on taxes paid in 2014,” she said.

Hura also pointed out that while the ballot language includes athletic facility improvements, no taxes generated from the bond will go toward those without taxpayer approval first.

The school board passed a resolution reinforcing that at the March meeting.

Hura and Clancy then showed an informational video the committee is distributing to the community.

Clancy said the committee has ordered 400 lawn signs advertising the bond and those have already been placed in about 230 yards in town.

The signs were purchased through donations, which has amounted to roughly $4,000 to date.

“We were able to present a difficult concept in a completely new way than most of them would have had the opportunity to learn it in,” Carlson explained. “It’s a hands-on way for them to hopefully grasp the concept a little more easily.”

The program was made possible through the efforts of Library Director Lisa Rohrbaugh, who proposed the idea to Carlson and the science teachers at Leetonia. Teachers Heidi George, fifth grade, and Marcia Bable, sixth grade, helped organize the event. An anonymous donation from the community, as well as donations from volunteers and library patrons, made it possible for all students in both grades to participate at a minimal fee.

Considering an increase in state standards as well as upcoming testing, the program fit well with the students’ current lessons, George said.

“With electromagnetism, you get more from it when you can do something with it,” she said. “[The program] is also a nice break from the rigorous preparation for testing. They’ve been so involved, so focused (in the program), they haven’t even been aware of what is going on around them.”

Rohrbaugh said that she was excited the library could help provide such a unique opportunity for the students.

“Parents probably won’t drive to downtown Youngstown, so we wanted to bring [Oh Wow] down here,” she explained. “The teachers were really excited and I’m glad we were all able to cooperate and get it done.”

The Oh Wow center is located at 11 W. Federal St. For hours and other information about the center visit www.ohwowkids.org. The center will host a Make It! activity of weather tools from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday at a cost of $2 additional to the $8 admission fee.

Salem Twp. constable tells residents to lock cars to deter thieves

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

FRANKLIN SQUARE — They’re probably hitting the area around two, three or four in the morning, Salem Twp. Constable Dan Valentine said after receiving resident calls regarding another wave of vehicle enterings on Tuesday.

Valentine said residents are frustrated and so is he.

During last week’s trustee meeting, Valentine reported break-ins on the rise because of the warming weather.

He noted Leetonia, Springfield and Beaver townships had been getting hit too.

Residents have called reporting doors ajar, glove boxes and consoles rifled with “paperwork thrown about,” Valentine said, adding they are probably looking for loose change.

Valentine said nothing was reported missing from the overnight activity.

He told trustees last week, “A lot of it’s drug activity, people who can’t keep a job and hit four or five vehicles to get them through to the next day.”

“I’m not sure how many reports the sheriff had,” he said, explaining some people don’t find out about it until going to work in the morning.

The Columbiana County sheriff reported a vehicle was entered on Lisbon-Canfield

Road in Leetonia early Tuesday morning. That complainant said it was the third time one of her vehicles was entered and about $30 in change was taken in Tuesday’s theft.

Most of the break-ins were south on state Route 558 and Lisbon-Canfield Road “within the general area of Franklin Square, that little area there,” Valentine said.

“Not one vehicle, that I’m aware of, was locked,” Valentine said and suggested the rash of activity is connected to the Leetonia church break-ins.

Leetonia’s St. Patrick Catholic Church has been the target of at least three break-ins in the past couple of months, the most recent on April 6.

“I think it’s all tied together,” Valentine said.

Asked about a time, Valentine said, “If I had to guess, two to three a.m.”

He suggested residents act as soon as possible if they observe or hear anything suspicious.

“People call a day or two later,” he said, “saying, ‘I got up at 1 a.m. and saw someone in the backyard.’”

He said if residents hear anything, dogs barking, anything to call him at once at 330-427-0808.

DEATHS

Louise Hanna Scott Breazeale

OXFORD, Miss. — Louise Hanna Scott Breazeale, 86, passed away on April 13, 2013, at Emeritus at Oxford in Oxford, Miss. The funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, April 18, 2013, at Oxford-University United Methodist Church in Oxford, Miss. The graveside service will follow in Oxford Memorial Cemetery.

Visitation will be held prior to the funeral service beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the church fellowship hall. Waller Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

The daughter of the late Harry C. and Phoebe M. Hanna, Louise was born in Lisbon, Ohio. She graduated from Salem High School and remained active in the Salem High School Alumni Association and in class reunions. Louise moved to Oxford after graduating from Grove City College in Grove City, Pa., where she majored in French, Spanish and English. Louise's first teaching assignments were at Leetonia (Ohio) High School and University High School (Oxford, Miss.). In later years, she taught at College Hill Academy and Oxford-University School.

Louise was preceded in death by two wonderful husbands. Louise and her first husband, Charles M. Scott, were parents to two sons and a handicapped daughter, Amy. Working with Amy inspired Louise and C.M. to become advocates for the handicapped. The results of these efforts are the Scott Center for profoundly handicapped children and the Amy Scott Playground named in honor of their daughter. The Scott family were members of the Friends organization of the North MS Regional Center and supported it in many ways.

Louise's second husband, Dr. Mack Breazeale, was a physics professor at the Whitten Center for Physical Acoustics and the University of MS. They enjoyed traveling and attending physics conferences in Europe and Asia where they made many friends. They would often invite these colleagues to visit them in Oxford.

Louise was a member of Oxford-University United Methodist Church where she sang in the choir for many years. Louise was also the owner of Scott's Forge, a custom framing and hobby shop, located in the former Country Village. Louise's other activities included membership in PEO, University Dames, the Historic Preservation Group, and the American Cancer Society.

In addition to Charles M. Scott and Mack A. Breazeale, Louise was preceded by her daughter, Amy Louise Scott.

Louise is survived by two sons, Charles M. Scott (Rebecca) of Clinton, Miss., and Stephen H. Scott (Linda) of Flora, Miss.; three stepchildren, Jennifer Breazeale Ball (David) of Knoxville, Tenn., David M. Breazeale (Karen) of Nashville, Tenn., and William C. Breazeale of Sacramento, Calif.; two grandchildren, Shelly Vincent (Jeremiah) and Jeff Scott (Amy); three step-grandsons, David Ball, Hunter Breazeale and Landon Breazeale; two great-grandsons, Hunter Vincent and Jake Scott; a sister, Marjorie Hoffman (Jerry) of Boston, Mass.; two brothers, David H. Hanna (Flo) of Cleveland, Ohio, and John W. Hanna (Nancy) of Delaware, Ohio; numerous nieces and nephews. The family extends their appreciation to Louise's friends and caregivers, Loretta and Oddis Barr.

Memorials in Mrs. Breazeale's memory may be made to Oxford-University United Methodist Church, 424 S. 10th Street, Oxford, Miss. 38655 or The Scott Center, 401 N. Fifth St., Oxford, Miss. 38655.

OSU: no explosives found in backpack

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio State University has lifted the evacuation of a student activity center on campus after no explosives were found in an unattended backpack found outside the facility. The university issued a statement Tuesday evening saying normal operations are being resumed at the Ohio Union on the Columbus campus. The facility had been evacuated for about an hour as police investigated the backpack.

The school didn't say how many people were evacuated or exactly where the backpack was found. The discovery came as authorities urged heightened awareness of anything suspicious in the aftermath of deadly bombings near the Boston Marathon finish line. The Ohio Union is used by many student organizations and includes food venues and event spaces.

Truck driver pleads to lesser charge in fatal Route 7 crash

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — Michael Bair, the man accused in the death of an East Liverpool man in an accident on state Route 7 last year, agreed Tuesday in Columbiana County Municipal Court to plead no contest to a lesser charge of vehicular manslaughter and assured clear distance.

The plea agreement did not seem to set well with some members of family of the victim in the case.

Bair, 32, of Poland, had faced a first-degree misdemeanor vehicular homicide charge after David Mayfield, 35, Annesley Road, East Liverpool, was killed on March 13, 2012 by a dump truck overturning onto his Dodge Durango off the side of state Route 7. Bair, the driver of the dump truck, was hauling gravel for Sebastian Trucking Inc. at the time of the accident.

Bair pleaded no contest to both the vehicular manslaughter charge, a second-degree misdemeanor, and the assured clear distance citation. Judge Mark Frost fined Bair $100 for assured clear distance. Sentencing was scheduled for next month on the vehicular manslaughter charge.

Assistant County Prosecutor Don Humphrey Jr. explained the vehicular homicide charge is more difficult for the prosecution to prove, especially to a jury. He continued that vehicular homicide makes it "necessary to prove a substantial lapse of due care" by the defendant. Whereas the alternate vehicular manslaughter only requires proof that a minor misdemeanor traffic violation caused the death of another person.

If Bair had been charged with both vehicular homicide and vehicular manslaughter, Humphrey pointed out a jury could be asked to consider if there was enough evidence of substantial lapse of due care and if the jury decided there was not, the person could still be found guilty of vehicular manslaughter.

At the same time, Humphrey stated the case was strong and paint samples recently obtained on a search warrant appear to have bolstered his case, although the final report has not been received from the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation.

Humphrey said he will ask for a 90-day jail sentence, but ask for some to be suspended. Additionally, he will ask for a $500 fine, a 90-day license suspension and two years probation.

"We will ask for either 30 days in jail," Humphrey said, "or if he's not working and we understand at this time he is not we will require 45 days in jail without work release."

Family members could be heard grumbling in the courtroom about the proposed plea agreement. Several months earlier Bair had changed attorneys, which in the eyes of Mayfield's family only delayed the process for a while.

Speaking on behalf of some of the dozen family members of Mayfield in the courtroom, attorney Nick Amato said the family members he spoke to did not agree with the plea agreement, which amended the charge and allowed Bair to plead no contest to the charge.

"They are upset it has gone on as long as it has," Amato said. "Mr. Mayfield has been gone a year now and we are back at almost the same point we were three months ago."

Amato represents Mayfield's widow, Diana Mayfield, in a civil case which has already been filed in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court.

Frost scheduled sentencing on May 1 for the vehicular manslaughter charge. Family members and those on both sides will be allowed to make statements or submit them in writing prior to sentencing.

There is a deposition in the civil case scheduled for May 3. While noting the civil case is still pending, Frost said he hopes the resolution of the criminal portion can still help the family move on. He said that in the past Mayfield had been in the courtroom serving as a bail bondsman and although he did not know Mayfield well, he remembered him as a likeable man.

"Money isn't going to make anything better here," Frost said. "The only thing that would help is a time machine and I'm sure every person in this courtroom wishes we had one of those."

In late 2011, Diana Mayfield had filed for divorce from David Mayfield. The case went unresolved prior to his death on March 13, 2012.

Man claiming to be cop charged with OVI

By JO ANN BOBBY-GILBERT
Staff Writer

EAST LIVERPOOL — A Steubenville man stopped Sunday on state Route 7 by the highway patrol claimed to be a police officer and asked the trooper to let him go.

Terry G. Weyand Jr., 24, Lovers Lane, was charged with OVI, failure to yield to an emergency vehicle and a marked lanes violation by Trooper D. M. Brown, who was apparently unswayed by Weyand's appeal for leniency.

Brown reported he was on a traffic stop, standing next to his patrol car when an SUV drove past in the right lane, failing to move over into the left lane away from the cruiser.

The woman involved in the initial traffic stop was also walking up the berm toward her vehicle as the SUV drove past, at one point going off the right side of the highway after it passed, Brown reported.

Brown pursued the vehicle, which stopped on Shadyside Avenue just outside East Liverpool, and when he reached the vehicle, the driver identified himself as Weyand, who said he was a police officer.

Brown said he detected an odor of alcohol coming from the vehicle and Weyand had glassy, bloodshot eyes. When asked if he had been drinking, Weyand reportedly told Brown he had had a couple beers but his passenger was "smashed," so he had taken her keys and drove so she would not.

Weyand said he failed to yield to Brown's overhead lights because he was on his phone, according to reports, which indicated Weyand's speech was slurred and slow.

After field sobriety tests and a portable breathalyzer that registered .081, Weyand was asked to place his hands behind his back, prompting him to say to Brown, "I'm a cop. I would give you a break. Can't you let me go? I'll just disappear," according to reports.

After Weyand was placed in the patrol car, Brown returned to the SUV, which was registered to the passenger's husband, a Columbiana man.

Brown reported he found the woman, who was not identified in reports, with her pants and underwear down to her knees, exposing herself. He said she seemed confused about the place and time and smelled of alcohol.

Her husband was contacted and asked if Weyand had permission to drive his vehicle, to which he said no. He was notified the vehicle was being towed.

Weyand is also facing a pending charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in regard to driving the vehicle.

At one point in the interview process, Weyand reportedly told the trooper he had drunk six beers and a shot. At the patrol barracks, a breathalyzer test resulted in a reading of .100.

Weyand's claim to be a police officer could not be confirmed by this reporter.

A call to the Steubenville Police Department resulted in Chief William McCafferty saying, "I've never heard of him," but he found a Terry G. Weyand with the same Steubenville address listed as a loss prevention officer at Walmart.

"I've never had him here," McCafferty said.

Calls were also made to the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department and Wintersville Police Department, both of which said Weyand is not employed there.

He was among candidates who passed a Civil Service test in 2012 for East Liverpool Police Department and was interviewed, but not hired.

In East Liverpool Municipal Court this week, Weyand appeared before Melissa Byers Emmerling, who scheduled a second arraignment for April 22, with own recognizance bond of $1,000 set.

During his arrest, when advised he would be appearing before Byers Emmerling, Weyand reportedly told Brown, "Well, I'm (expletive). She doesn't like me."

EL woman charged with taking pot into jail decade ago

LISBON — A woman who was indicted more than a decade ago, was served with her secret indictment this week. Nancy Coma, Sugar Street, East Liverpool, is charged with illegally conveying prohibited items onto the grounds of a detention facility.

She was served at the Mahoning County Jail. Coma is accused of taking marijuana into the Columbiana County Jail. The indictment was issued in November 2002.

OUR SIDE

Another Boston Massacre for our history books

There is something about the date April 15 that brands it — for good and bad — into the American consciousness.

For instance, the good: Jackie Robinson became baseball's first black major league baseball player, appearing in the 1947 season opener as his Brooklyn Dodgers beat the Boston Braves.

The bad: on April 15, 1865 President Abraham Lincoln died, nine hours after being shot by John Wilkes Booth. Another example: On April 15, 1912, New York City-bound RMS Titanic sank in the North Atlantic. It struck that infamous iceberg with 1,514 dying.

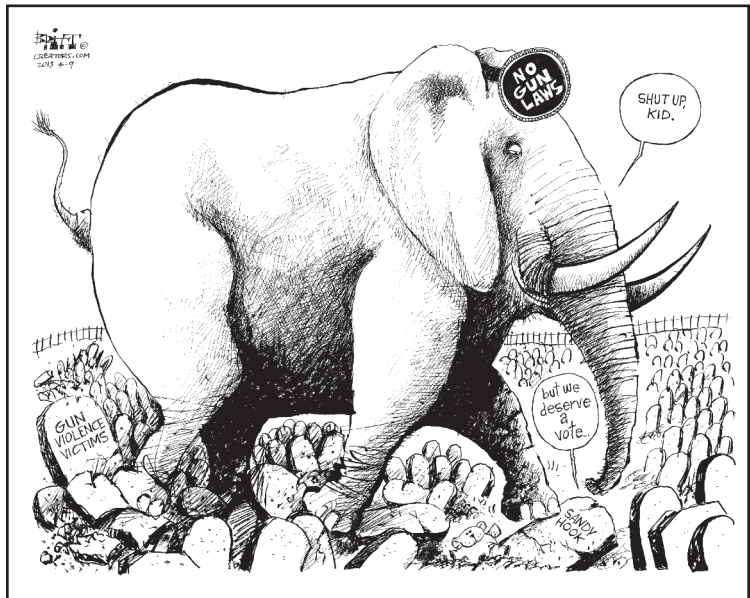

Then came April 15, 2013 and, if you will allow, a second Boston Massacre for our history books.

Terrorist(s) — that is the requisite term for anyone senselessly killing and maiming innocent citizens — used pressure cookers that can be had anywhere to kill three and wound more than 170 on Patriot's Day. That day is a civic holiday in Boston which annually celebrates the Battles of Lexington and Concord, fought, ironically, during the Revolutionary War which had the original Boston Massacre. Like Monday, innocent citizens were killed during that incident nearly 250 years ago.

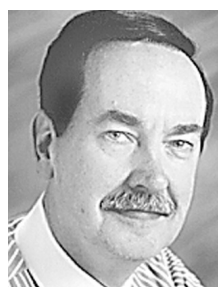

What happened in Boston Monday should hit home with any of us. What happened in Boston could happen at any public event anywhere including in Salem or anywhere in our county or region. Terrorism comes in many shapes and terrorists come in many forms. That what is the most scariest: knowing just how vulnerable we are — including our precious children. We had local residents participating and watching the Boston Marathon on Monday. That is hitting way too close to home.

The weapons created were crude. According to reports, used were 6-liter pressure cookers placed in duffel bags. The "ammunition" which ripped body limbs off victims in carnage usually seen only in war zones, were metal shards, nails and ball bearings. You could put this newspaper down right now and during the course of an afternoon, easily accumulate — without arising much suspicion, even after Monday afternoon — like items needed to render massive harm. A doctor said that nails were sticking out of a little girl's body. How sickening is that? How cowardly is someone wanting to wreak that kind of harm on a mere child? Innocence became a casualty for many Monday amid the blood, fear, confusion and lost limbs and lives. It will probably be never recovered by our young who experienced the horror. That is tough burden to go through life with for a young person.

This is what we are dealing with even after all of the installed post 9-11 precautions and increased security measures. We will always be vulnerable. We will always flinch. We were always cautiously hold our collective breathes. We will always look over our shoulders at times. At least to a certain degree. That is the lingering residual fallout that terrorism acts provoke. The chief FBI agent in Boston vowed "we will go to the ends of the Earth" to find those responsible. That is comforting to hear. And when found how about pushing them off the end of the earth?

Britian's hateful politics

CAL THOMAS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The death of former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has prompted reactions from Britain's far left that takes bad taste to new extremes. During its Top 40 music countdown Sunday night, BBC Radio 1 was "forced" to play a seven-second clip of "Ding Dong the Witch is Dead" from the 1939 film "The Wizard of Oz," because Thatcher haters had bought enough copies during a feverish online campaign to bump it to the top of the pop charts. It ultimately reached the number two spot, 5,000 sales short of the top position.

If you think U.S. politics has become too corrosive, consider the British variety. Call it patty cake vs. cage fighting.

"Death parties" have been held across the UK at which anti-Thatcherites celebrated her passing. Anarchists, who demonstrated their hatred for Thatcher over the weekend, plan to join other haters for a demonstration at her funeral on April 17, which has prompted Scotland Yard to make preparations to defend heads of state, or their representatives, along with celebrities against terrorist attack.

A veteran Metropolitan Police officer, Sergeant Jeremy Scott, tweeted that he hoped Thatcher's death was "painful and degrading," adding the world would be a "better place" if Prime Minister David Cameron and some of his cabinet members were also dead. Scott has since resigned.

The Daily Mail reported that a drama teacher named Romany Blythe called Baroness Thatcher a "despot" and said: "They danced in the streets when Hitler died, too."

Some students who attended death parties were too young, or not yet born, to be aware of the Thatcher years. The Daily Telegraph quoted 21-year-old Aamna Mohdin, a biology student at Queen Mary, University of London, who called Thatcher a "terrible person" and a "draconian woman" who did nothing for women or feminism.

These are the products of "higher" education. One student who attended a death party was quoted as saying she didn't become a liberal until she went to university. No surprise there.

Why such visceral reactions to a woman who served her country for 11 years as prime minister? For many, government is a drug to which they have become addicted. They need the drug to survive. Margaret Thatcher tried to break that addiction and get her people to support themselves. Anyone who suggests it is possible even desirable to break the government "habit" becomes the target of the "addicts" and their enabling politicians, both in life and now in death.

The British press has reported on families in which several generations have been on "benefits" with no expectation of ever working, and no motivation for finding work. They are offended by suggestions they look for a job.

Thatcher sought to break that cycle and in so doing angered many who thought it their "right" to be on the receiving end of other people's money. The debate in the UK mirrors that taking place in the United States as too many politicians, reluctant to tell anyone "no" for fear of losing votes, indulge people in their social and economic addiction to government.

The battle being fought in both countries is between those who value the individual as supreme and others who regard the state as supreme. In the UK and U.S., government has exceeded its boundaries and just as last winter's floods in the UK have caused severe damage, there has been similar damage to liberty and the promotion of capitalism in both countries.

The Cameron government has cautiously tried to emulate Thatcher in its reform attempts. These include the costly and underperforming National Health Service — a preview of coming attractions if Obamacare is fully implemented in the U.S. next year.

If Cameron succeeds, the left will probably celebrate his eventual demise, too. Such is the poisoned well of British politics.

The (Canton) Repository, April 14

Football's past, present and future come together here this year.

Canton is always the center of the football universe for a few days each summer. But this year, the sport's past, present and future will come together here in a spectacular way.

This is the Pro Football Hall of Fame's 50th anniversary year, and it's the perfect reason for the biggest reunion ever of enshrinees.

At last count, more than 90 Hall of Famers had said they'll be here Aug. 2-4, including for the Aug. 3 enshrinement of the Class of 2013. Officials say they ultimately expect 130, which will easily top the 40th anniversary celebration, when 111 enshrinees returned.

What an opportunity this will be for Canton and Stark County to celebrate — and to share with what likely will be a record number of visitors — a bond between the Hall of Fame and the community that has never been stronger.

The most visible commitment that visitors and returning enshrinees will see, of course, is the hall's 33,000-square-foot expansion and equally large renovation, which will bring nearly 100 years of football history into a stunning 21st-century setting.

The community's commitment to the hall also will be increasingly visible over the next few years, thanks to a collaboration between the Hall of Fame and ArtsInStark, the county arts council....

Everyone who loves Canton and football and the history they've made together is looking forward to August — and beyond. The Hall of Fame's expansion project, after all, is called "Future 50."

Progress in Arab world far from inevitable

MONA CHAREN

To understand the magnitude of what Egyptian columnist Khalid Muntasar has done, it helps to get a taste of what most Egyptian and Arab media are like. In Egypt, expressions of vicious anti-Semitism are not just acceptable, they are commonplace. Mohammed Morsi, the Muslim Brotherhood leader and now president of Egypt, was famously captured on tape describing Jews as the "descendants of apes and pigs," as recently as 2010. This aroused not a flicker of controversy inside Egypt. In 2002, Egyptian state television, along with channels throughout the Arab world, ran a program giving credence to the infamous Czarist forgery, "The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion," a "document" that supposedly traces the Jewish conspiracy to rule the world and a durable standard of anti-Semitic ravings for a century.

The most vile anti-Jewish (not just anti-Israeli) calumnies are circulated widely in the Arab press. Mein Kampf is a bestseller in the Palestinian territories, and Islamist supremacism blends with ethnic hatred throughout the Arab world to concoct a brew of overpowering anti-Semitic (and often anti-Christian) virulence.

Palestinian media relentlessly celebrate and honor terrorists who have distinguished themselves by the act of blowing up innocent Israelis. Just in the past couple of weeks, the Facebook page of Mahmoud Abbas's Fatah (the Palestinian Authority) lauded the anniversary of the "martyrdom" of Ahmed Masharqa. He is described as "Hero of the Kedumim settlement operation who answered the call of justice and the shout of duty when the land called to him." Translation: In 2006, Masharqa disguised himself as a religious Jew, strapped a suicide belt under his clothes and crossed the border to an Israeli village. When an Israeli family offered him a ride, he blew himself up inside the car. Or, as Fatah has it, "He caused the deaths of five Zionists and wounded many." Keep in mind Abbas is a "moderate" in the Middle East context.

Consider "moderate" Jordan. By an overwhelming majority (110 of 120), the Jordanian parliament has called for the release of a former soldier who is serving time for the murder of seven Israeli schoolgirls in 1997. The students had traveled to the ironically named "Island of Peace," a manmade island that lies on the Jordan/Israel border and has been made into a park. The island was developed by Israel, but as part of a peace agreement with the late King Hussein, Israel ceded it to Jordan. On March 13, 1997, a group of 13- and 14-year-old Israeli girls was visiting when one of the Jordanian soldiers opened fire on them, killing seven and wounding many others. The death toll would have been even higher if Ahmed Daqamseh's gun hadn't jammed.

At the time, King Hussein traveled to the girls' hometown to express condolences and beg forgiveness on behalf of his country. But that was then. Hussein Mjali, Daqamseh's defense lawyer, has since become Minister of Justice in Jordan.

In 2011, he described the unrepentant Daqamseh as a "hero" who should never have been imprisoned, and a huge majority of Jordan's parliament agrees.

So it was nothing less than vertigo-inducing to see Khalid Muntasar, a columnist with the Egyptian daily Al-Watan, write in praise of three Jewish billionaires who've endowed a new award called the Breakthrough Prize in Life Sciences. Noting that Mark Zuckerberg, Sergey Brin and Yuri Milner are all Jewish, Muntasar wrote "When the Jewish internet and social network magnates get together ... and unite to declare a $33-million grant for medical research on incurable diseases ... I cannot help but cry out 'long live the descendants of apes and pigs.'" Muntasar went on to heap scorn on those who "detonate bombs in the midst of the innocent, assassinate politicians, thinkers and intellectuals, and accuse others of being infidels."

"By God," this brave columnist continued, "who is more conscionable, moral and loves life and his fellow man — is it these three Jews who contribute to science, health, happiness and the improvement of life, or bin Laden, al-Zawahiri and al-Zarqawi, Mullah Omar, and those who display their pictures, kiss them, memorize their ideas and adopt them? Who does more good to humanity and the world, and even to Muslims — those who fly the flag of science, or Abu Islam (an Egyptian sheikh) and Hatoli Ragel (a religious television show) ... ?"

Muntasar is a tiny green shoot amid the toxic intellectual terrain of the Arab world. He is not alone, but he is vastly outnumbered, and deserves, for that reason, all the more honor for his courage.

Mary Lou Popa renews call for citywide cleanup

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — Former city councilwoman Mary Lou Popa banged the drum again for a citywide cleanup during an appearance before Salem City Council Tuesday night, calling on residents to contact their council representatives.

“We owe this to the city residents,” she said.

Popa has been making the request for several years to no avail, along with asking for a second housing inspector to be hired. Discussion about housing inspections took place last year, with a fee considered that could have raised more funds for the operation, but the fee idea was rescinded after landlords protested a new fee.

She also mentioned the Save Downtown Salem project and called it a good idea, with the exception of the funding that had been discussed from the residents.

She was thanked for her comments, but no comments were made in response to her requests. During city Service/Safety Director Ken Kenst’s report, he talked about the success of the recent large furniture/appliances/electronics drop-off event hosted jointly between the city and Perry Township in the municipal lot off of Pershing Street, prompting a question from Councilman Dave Nestic.

Kenst said the difference would be that residents had to bring their items to the parking lot. With a citywide cleanup, they would probably receive more items since residents would be able to put the items curbside and the city would have to pay the cost.

Kenst pointed out that the Carroll-Columbiana-Harrison Solid Waste District paid most of the cost of the recent drop-off event, paying for two large dumpsters to hold the items. Since they were so inundated with items, the city and township ended up asking for a third dumpster. Kenst said the city and township will split the $550 cost for the additional dumpster.

He did explain there was a point on Saturday morning during the two-day event that they shut down for about 15 minutes because they ran out of room, but they did what they had to do to get open again.

During introduction of ordinances, council approved an appropriation and transfer of $13,854 so the police department can hire a part-time secretary and also approved the creation of a telecommunications specialist position at $12 per hour. A current dispatcher will be elevated to the position of telecommunications specialist and serve as a dispatcher in charge while still working shifts as dispatcher.

Council also approved creation of a part-time accounts payable clerk position for $14 per hour for the auditor’s office where a full-time position being vacated won’t be filled. The ordinance was also corrected to include the position of temporary part-time tax clerk, which already existed, but wasn’t written in the ordinance for non-represented city employees. An ordinance for the purchase of a police cruiser was tabled.

In other business, Kenst was given authorization to renew a contract for the city to dispatch for the village of Beloit for fire calls and other services, but at a higher rate than the previous contract. The current contract was a five-year deal at a rate of $450 per month. Mayor John Berlin said the new contract will be a three-year deal for $750 a month in the first year, $900 per month next year and $1,150 per month in the final year. The contract takes effect Aug. 1 and continues through July 31, 2016.

Council also approved appropriations and transfers for the city’s share of $69,871 for the purchase of a new bucket truck for the city electrician and $7,000 for the jail transformation into a new detective room in the police department and the payment of $1,134 in accrued sick leave for three city employees who left.

Council accepted an invitation from First Energy Area Manager David Turner to attend an informational session about storm response, communications and economic development opportunities for First Energy at the line shop on Depot Road on June 11.

Linda Steffen was confirmed as a reappointment to the Shade Tree Commission for three years.

The next city council meeting is set for 7 p.m. May 8, which is a day later than usual due to the primary election on May 7. Council had agreed to the change at its last meeting. A finance committee meeting will be held 6:30 p.m. May 9 to further discuss the gas lease money and possible grants for the fire department.

JOHNSON FROM 1A

Barborak doubts there were any emails to Bolon on the computer anyway. Barborak has said before that he first told Bolon about the investment-interest problem in late December, before leaving office to assume his new duties as state representative. He had also advised the state auditor’s office of the problem in 2011.

Bolon said the IT worker, Wayne Wallace, told her the computer’s hard drive was sent to a company by the name of Phoenix, but the firm was unable to retrieve the information. Neither she nor Wallace knows what became of the hard drive.

“Who knows?” Wallace said. “It may have been destroyed or misplaced. I know it didn’t come back to me, but they supposedly don’t have it at Phoenix either.”

Bolon said her inability to fully comply with Johnson’s email request led her to ask the county prosecutor’s office for guidance on how she should proceed on the hard drive issue.

Meanwhile, Ohio Republican Party Chairman Bob Bennett has filed his own records request with Bolon and Barborak, seeking, among other things, any type of written or electronic correspondence between Barborak and Bolon and their staff.

Barborak said he will make available his 2013 text messages exchanged with Bolon, all of which address an upcoming adoption bill before the legislature (Bolon served as state representative from 2006-2010). Barborak questions whether he is legally required to do so, “but in the interest of transparency we’re making them available,” he said.

“They’re obviously on a fishing expedition,” Barborak said of Johnson and Bennett’s blanket records request.

While Johnson is not suggesting Barborak stole any money, he said “it is clear, however, that the former county treasurer was grossly negligent, perhaps even purposefully evasive in the manner in which he handled or mishandled millions of county taxpayer dollars.”

Barborak dismissed Johnson’s actions as politically motivated. “Dave Johnson has a history of calling for investigations into anything you can think of. His loyalty is to the Republican Party and to win elections, and that tells you everything you need to know about this,” he said.

Johnson also had some harsh things to say about the state auditor’s office failing to require something be done about the interest income problem. He said after being alerted about the problem, state examiners “failed” to do their job by “permitting thousands of dollars in overstated income to go unaccounted for not just one year, but repeatedly for the past three years. Their suggestion that these annual ‘imbalances’ in a $5 million investment account were ‘not material’ is, frankly, unbelievable. Was their relationship with Nick Barborak a bit cozy? We will probably never know.”

Current Ohio Auditor David Yost, who is a Republican, took office in 2011. The state is taking a look at the investment issue as part of its current routine audit of the county books for 2012, the results of which are expected to be released sometime this year.

Johnson said when the 2012 state audit is released, he expects Barborak to be cited in some manner. “Had such findings been revealed in a timely manner, he would not have been able to get by with the claims he made as a candidate for state representative of ‘safeguarding’ the people’s money and such. What hogwash.”

He urged the county investment advisory board to seek retrieval of these records from the computer’s hard drive or ask the state auditor’s office to provide any correspondence it may have. It was the advisory board, acting on Barborak’s recommendation, that authorized him to pursue contracting with WesBanco Trust and Investment Services in 2010 to invest $5 million in county funds.

SALEM FROM 1A

Chamber Executive Director Audrey Null said people will go in teams and noted any community groups or church groups are welcome to join them. She noted that Salem Varsity Football Coach Ron Johnson planned to bring members of the football team to help out.

“We also want to encourage people in the community to work around their own homes outside. It’s a good day to take stock of what needs done around your property, whether it’s your business or home,” Null said. “Just the little things make such a difference.”

For the shred event from 10 a.m. to noon, she said people are asked to enter the alley behind the chamber building from Pershing Street. People are asked to limit the number of boxes to 10 banker/copy paper size boxes. If any businesses have more than 10 boxes, they can contact Cintas and make arrangements for pickup at their office at a reduced rate by calling Cintas rep Bob Thomas at 330-277-3194.

Null said they had heard about other shred events and thought it was a good opportunity for the Salem area. It’s free and all the shredding is done on-site in a truck. Null said it’s a safe way to get rid of documents that have been accumulating and “it’s a good outreach for the chamber to serve the community.”

During the shred event, the Salem Memorial & Patriotic Association will have a table set up in the chamber parking lot to collect American flags for proper disposal and give out flyers for ordering new flags. The Salem Area Safety Council will have coloring books and crayons for children.

City Councilman Rick Drummond, who’s been leading an anti-graffiti group, said volunteers are asked to meet in the front parking lot of city hall at 10 a.m. and bring supplies if they have some. He purchased some buckets and scrub brushes, along with several cans of spraypaint removal spray. A rain date of April 27 is set for the same time.

During a recent inventory, the group documented more than 90 pieces of graffiti throughout the city. Plans call for them to fan out in groups and remove as much as they can. They’ll be armed with addresses of businesses and homes, along with waiver forms. Property owners will be approached for permission before volunteers enter any properties. Drummond urged residents to come out and help. “This is your city. If you’re serious about it, show up,” he said.

The Beautification Committee will be planting flowers in May. This year the committee is asking the public to help water the flower containers from June through August (not more than four containers per person.) Individuals, groups, boy/girl scouts or families would be welcome.

Last year, several committee members had 12 to 15 containers each to water three to four days a week. With the tremendous heat last year, the task was overwhelming for several of the members, committee co-chairman Karen Carter said.

All flower containers for the Adopt-a-Planter program have been sold, with Null offering thanks to all who donated to the cause. The committee will continue presenting an award for Home & Business of the Month, starting this year in May (home only). Co-chairman Elaine Rousseau-Kothera said, “We will continue our awards for home & business of the month from June to September. If you would like to nominate someone, please call the chamber.”

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

— Antonio Papale, of Salem Alliance Road, reported at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday that he and his wife put a down blanket into a dryer at Quaker Laundry in the 2300 block of East State Street between 11 and 11:10 a.m. and left to go to Home Depot. When they returned at 11:40 a.m., the blanket was missing. The owner of the business had been contacted and said he would check to see if he could locate the blanket.
— A dog was reported at large in the area of East Pershing Street near South Lundy Avenue at 10:58 a.m. Tuesday. The dog allowed officers to put a leash on him and the owner drove up and claimed the dog. She was given a warning for dog at large.
— Frank Farkas, of Claysville, Pa., was cited for failure to maintain reasonable control after attempting to turn the westbound truck he was driving left onto Ellsworth Avenue from East State Street at 9:32 a.m. Tuesday and striking a vehicle driven by Briana Rumsey, of Bandy Road, Alliance, who was eastbound on East State Street stopped in traffic in the northbound lane for North Ellworth. No injuries were reported.
— Melanie Paulin, 35, of 610 Sharp Ave., was taken into custody on an active warrant from Columbiana County for receiving stolen property after police were called to her residence for an alleged domestic at 9:07 a.m. Tuesday. The parties gave conflicting stories and no visible injuries were seen and no domestic arrest made. While checking the people for warrants, the active warrant for Paulin was found. She was turned over to a sheriff's deputy.
— Ed Little, of South Lundy Avenue, called at 9:01 a.m. Tuesday to report a suspicious person incident that occurred the evening before. His mother was coming to pick him up at the Salem Community Center when she saw a short man with a black hoodie looking in her vehicle which was locked on Lundy. She reportedly asked him what he was looking for and he took off running.
— City police were called at 7:14 p.m. Tuesday to assist Perry Township by responding to a reported domestic on Benton Road while Perry was handling a traffic crash. Numerous attempts were made to contact someone at the residence, but no contact was made.
— A white box truck was seen parked with the left side to the curb in the 400 block of East Fourth Street at 11:09 p.m. Monday. The owner was contacted and turned the truck around to correct the problem.
— A landlord for a building in the 1300 block of North Ellsworth Avenue reported at 9:19 p.m. Monday that he found one of his apartment doors wide open. The prior tenant was scheduled to move out, but he wasn't sure if the tenant in fact moved. An officer checked the interior and found nothing out of the ordinary. The keys to the apartment were left on the floor and the apartment was vacant.
— Police responded to the 400 block of Franklin for a report of a suspicious person at 8:11 p.m. Monday. The man was located, identified and sent on his way.
— A possible dead animal was reported at 7:32 a.m. Monday in the 200 block of Sharp Avenue, but was not found.
— A dog was reported at 7:24 p.m. Monday in the 800 block of Jennings Avenue, but no violation was found.
— Andrea Kinney reported at 6:29 p.m. Monday that unknown persons damaged mailboxes at a building in the 600 block of East Sixth Street. The building owner was notified.
— Officers were called at 5:59 p.m. Monday to the 1100 block of East Sixth Street for a juvenile problem, located a vehicle in question and advised the people to leave the area.
— A purple truck westbound in the 2800 block of East State Street was reported operating recklessly at 5:39 p.m. Monday. Officers checked the length of State Street and did not see the truck.
— Police were called at 3:06 p.m. Monday for a report of vehicles at a vacant home on Newgarden Avenue where people there were supposedly taking items from the property. They left before officers arrived.
— Residents at a home in the 700 block of West Pershing Street at 3:04 p.m. Monday had a dispute over a new boyfriend coming to the residence to stay. Some agreed to go to another residence to cool off.
— Amanda Noble, of Liberty Street, reported at 2:01 p.m. Monday that her vehicle was stolen. She said a person she knows asked her to give his cousin a ride. She was driving a rental car and was on the way to turn it in but picked up the man prior to going to the car wash to clean the car. After she cleaned the car, she walked to a convenience store to buy a drink and when she returned, the car and the man were gone. The vehicle was found at the rear of a State Street property and the rental agency was contacted and picked up the vehicle, which had minor damage. Officers spoke to some people at the property, but no one was charged.
— A woman in the 600 block of South Union Avenue reported a suspicious vehicle on the street at 10:13 a.m. Monday. The vehicle was found sitting in a no parking area on the west side of the road facing south with the back hatch open. A man came out of the residence and said he was doing some work on the residence. The parking situation was explained and he moved the vehicle.

SHERIFF

— Bobby Howe operations manager at Unity Tube, state Route 165, East Palestine, reported at 6:53 a.m. Monday when he arrived at work he found a man sleeping in the entrance lobby to the building. A deputy woke the man up. Joseph Resutek, 61, told the deputy he is hitchhiking from Johnstown, Pa. back home to Tacoma, Wash. and was seeking shelter at the building. There was no damage and Howe asked deputies to have the man leave.
— A U.S. Route 62, Salem, man reported at 5:34 p.m. Monday his 13-year-old daughter's Kindle was taken about a month ago. He called Amazon.com to have the internet shut off and learned it was now in someone else's name. He needed to file a police report for Amazon to help him learn who has the Kindle.
— A U.S. Route 30, Minerva, man reported at 5:12 p.m. Monday a domestic dispute between himself and a woman. They reportedly argued over a personal matter, and each claimed the other started throwing things around or breaking them. The woman did admit to throwing things at him. Both signed a refusal to prosecute.
— The owner of the Guilford Grille reported a suspicious man at 4:22 p.m. Monday. The raggedy looking man had reportedly been sitting on the property for days asking for money. The man, Kenneth Butler, told deputies he is from California. He and his girlfriend are having problems, and he wants to go back to California. The girlfriend agreed to let him stay for a little while but then plans to take him to a homeless shelter as soon as she can.
— A Taylor Road, Negley, woman reported at 7:14 p.m. Sunday she found trash dumped on the hillside on her property. She found a calendar with the name of a neighbor on it, but he has been known to stay multiple places, and she did not know where he is. Deputies attempted to reach him, but could not.
— A Buck Road, Beloit, man reported at 6:34 p.m. Sunday his neighbor has been getting drunk, coming onto his property and causing trouble. Deputies spoke to the neighbor who said he just goes over to visit someone, but agreed to stay away.
— A state Route 9, Kensington, woman reported at 7:05 p.m. Sunday, a woman called asking for help, but when asked her name and location she hung up. Deputies tracked the number to a Hanoverman man, who told them he did not call Thornhill and there are no women in his home.
— Sharon Pink, Hamilton Road, East Palestine, reported at 6:31 a.m. Tuesday sometime overnight someone ran over her mailbox and her in-laws' mailbox. Both the poles and boxes were destroyed.
— A Lisbon Road, Leetonia, woman reported at 6:44 a.m. Tuesday her vehicles were entered and ransacked overnight. About $25 to $35 in change was taken. This is the third time someone has entered her vehicles.
— Ronald Richards, state Route 7, Lisbon, reported at 8:07 p.m. Monday his friend's vehicle was damaged while it was parked in his driveway. The back window was broken out, the front windshield cracked, the driver's window scraped, the truck and rear bumper scratched, the driver's mirror was broken and the driver's side quarter panel dented. The vehicle is owned by Alexander Pascarella of Boardman.
— A state Route 7, Rogers, woman reported at 3:06 p.m. Monday her child support card was stolen and someone used $2,000 from the card. She believed someone who helped her move from Lorain to Rogers took it. She has not used it in about eight and a half months and believed the card was among items she had in storage until she noticed the money was gone.
— A Hartley Road, Alliance, man reported at 10:48 a.m. Sunday his live-in girlfriend has been threatening to harm him. He had told her to move out, but she could not go until next Saturday. She reportedly threatened to throw hot grease on him. The girlfriend told deputies she is concerned about her belongings being damaged before she can move out. Arrangements were made for her to get her belongings from the garage with a third party present, and she left with a few items Sunday night.
— An Elkton Road, Lisbon, woman reported at 8:44 a.m. March 16, she had purchased an iPhone 4S for $140 from someone on a local buy, sell or trade website, and when she went to get it activated, she learned it had been reported lost or stolen. She tried to contact the person she bought it from but has been unable to reach her. Deputies were investigating.

Youngstown man guilty on stolen property charge

Staff Reports

LISBON — Christopher Hamrick, a Youngstown man accused of receiving stolen property for a motorcycle in his possession on Jan. 21, was found guilty in a jury trial which ended Tuesday morning in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court.
Hamrick, 30, will face sentencing on Friday. A jury of seven women and five men deliberated for 14 minutes Tuesday afternoon before finding him guilty.
Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Ryan Weikart called four witnesses on Monday, showing Hamrick attempted to sell the stolen dirt bike to a business in Mahoning County. The business' owner reportedly became suspicious after finding the same motorcycle had been reported stolen by reading about it on a social media website.
Salem police Detective David Talbert began an investigation, recovering the dirt bike, a 2003 Honda CR 250 motorcycle, on Jan. 24 and taking Hamrick into custody in an alley off West Wilson Street in Salem.
Hamrick testified on his own behalf on Tuesday morning, followed by closing arguments by Weikart and defense attorney Richard Hura.
Judge Scott Washam increased Hamrick's bond $100,000 cash or surety following the verdict.
According to Weikart, Hamrick has 14 previous convictions of criminal offenses in Columbiana and Mahoning counties, including seven prior felonies. In 2009, Hamrick was found guilty in connection with a stolen Suzuki dirt bike in Columbiana County.

The Mothering Cancer Moon

With the solar shift around the bend, we're reminded that change takes energy, and energy must be periodically recharged. The bubble of comfort and safety that the Cancer moon provides is just the ticket. This moon is like a nurturing mother, welcoming us in after the efforts of the day, fixing a healthy snack and inviting us to decompress.

ARIES (March 21-April 19).

You would be wise to extend your personal network, as there are opportunities on the horizon for you that will require you to have greater resources and a wider reach.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20).

You easily sense when people are in need, but it will take more concentration and talent to accurately pinpoint the need and know precisely how you might help. Or, you could just ask!

GEMINI (May 21-June 21).

Your strong values are extremely attractive, especially to those around you who could use more structure in their lives. You communicate most powerfully by living your values, not talking about them.

CANCER (June 22-July 22).

When you notice that someone needs assistance, you spring into action. In fact, you can't understand people who don't notice. But it takes all types in the world, and you'll observe many of those types in action today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22).

Success in one area of life won't necessarily translate to success in another, but the basic principles still apply: You have to be willing to go through all the steps and learn what it takes to be masterful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).

Taking the point of view that you should know something already will only stop you from learning. Better to admit what you don't know and gather experience than to unnecessarily stumble around in the dark.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23).

Your direct and assured action will be necessary. Hesitate, and you'll lose power. Wait, and it will only get harder and harder to influence the situation. Act now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21).

When you really think about it — and you will today — miracles abound. You believe this because you've seen the evidence, and you continue to produce more evidence because you believe it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21).

How would your life change if you made happiness your No. 1 priority? The answer to that question may inspire you to change your schedule slightly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19).

You do trust the wisdom of the ages, but even more beneficial is the timely value you find in what specific people tell you. You'll take to heart the stories and advice of friends and family.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).

The line between respect and attraction is easily blurred these days. You'll avoid murky relationships and messy situations when you stay clear about your feelings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20).

To someone who doesn't know you very well, it seems like you are all smiles and acceptance. But woe to the one who crosses your lines. After all, what good is a boundary that is not enforced?

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 17).

You make a hobby of shocking and impressing people this year. Your ideas are bold. The execution of those ideas is sometimes brilliant; other times, a brilliant fail and a good story. May brings strange luck. June brings the chance to glue broken relationships back together. July features social and professional growth. Aquarius and Virgo people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 1, 33, 2 and 15.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS:

I think my life is being ruined by my shortage of confidence. I want to start my own business, but I can't make myself take the financial risk, so I stay working a demanding job at an advertising agency that doesn't allow me extra time to work on much else. I want to be more social and fun, but I can't seem to put myself out there. My love life is nonexistent. How can I become more confident and do the things I want to do? — Under-confident Pisces

Good news, Pisces. Confidence is a quality that is both misunderstood and overrated. So the fact that you don't have much may be one of your best assets. Many extremely successful people have low confidence levels. The unsure feeling they have about their next move inspires them to set reasonable goals, work harder and take all of the necessary steps to ensure the greatest probability of success. So be confident about your low confidence, and go forward with small goals that you are likely to hit. Suggestions: Invite a few friends to join you for drinks after work. Talk to a friendly-looking stranger. Save a certain amount of each paycheck for that business you will start one day, when you're ready.

Hash browns in soup

Heloise

Dear Heloise: In the midst of MAKING POTATO SOUP from scratch, I realized that I needed more potatoes. Remembering I had hash browns in the freezer, I grabbed the package. I was able to add enough frozen potatoes to complete my soup. It was so easy and tasty that I know this will be my favorite recipe in the future. — Kay C. in Texas

Kay, you even could add frozen potatoes to canned soup that you are cooking for added flavor or to thicken. This is another example of why soup is a favorite meal for so many people. It is easy to experiment with when trying new flavors and ideas. I enjoy soup so much that I wrote a pamphlet, Heloise's Spectacular Soups, which includes some of my favorite soup recipes as well as those of my staff. To receive a copy, send $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (66 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Soups, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. If you make soup and it is too watery, you can thicken it by adding a small amount of instant mashed potatoes, a little at a time, until the soup is the consistency you desire. — Heloise

BERRY HOLDER

Dear Heloise: We read your column in the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald every day and love the hints. Here's one for convenience:

My grandkids love all kinds of berries. They must be washed, and I worry about messy berry stains. We were in a hurry to get to an appointment, so I grabbed two coffee travel mugs (with handles and sealable tops). We put the berries inside and rinsed by filling with water several times and pouring the water out. The kids thought that was so much fun!

They carried the mugs to the car, removed the lids and poured the berries, a few at a time, into their mouths. No berries on the floor, no mess and no purple fingers. — S.G., via email

Love the hint, and your newspaper, too! Say hello to my friends in Omaha! — Heloise

MORE TOMATO

Dear Heloise: We are tomato lovers, and have always grown our own in Indiana. Now, in Florida and retired, we no longer have the abundance, so we treat every tomato with more respect.

To increase the yield on a tomato, don't slice it to remove the stem portion. Instead, slice down through the stem so that the tomato is halved and the stem is on both halves. Now V-cut the stems out, and you will enjoy more tomato and have less waste. — A Reader in Florida

COLLECT DUST

Dear Heloise: I collect cookie jars and display them on top of my kitchen cabinets. When it comes to spring-cleaning, I am shocked to see what is on top of my cabinets. To avoid the muck that accumulates from cooking, I line the top of the cabinets with newspaper. Now when I clean, all I do is throw away the old paper and add new paper. No more muck. — R.M. in Ohio

Feels cheated by her cellphone affair

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married 17 years. For the most part, our marriage has been great, and I love her very much. Lately, though, I have felt that our sexual and emotional intimacy has been lacking. I spoke to her about it recently and tried to explain how I feel. She has responded, and things are improving.

Still, she spends most of her time on her cellphone checking email, Facebook, Pinterest and watching Netflix. At bedtime, she stays on her phone or laptop until after I have gone to bed. When she comes to bed, she ignores me and goes straight to sleep, even if I have been lying there awake in the dark waiting for her.

Has she fallen in love with her cellphone? Even if we don't have sex all the time, I would just like to be able to talk to her or hold her for a minute before we go to sleep. Any suggestions other than throwing her phone out the window? — ABANDONED HUSBAND IN UTAH

DEAR ABANDONED: You say your wife has responded and things are hopeful. That means she is at least receptive to working on your marital relationship.

The problems that cellphones cause in relationships is something I am hearing about with increasing frequency. People have become so dependent upon their digital companions that in some cases it's impossible to turn them off because people have become literally addicted.

In cases like this, a licensed therapist should be consulted. Of course, like any addiction the sufferer must be willing to admit there is a problem and want to do something about it. I wish there was a 12-step program to which I could refer you, but I was unable to locate one. In the future I'm willing to bet that they'll sprout up like mushrooms.

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago, I realized I had a drinking problem and decided to go through a chemical dependence program as an outpatient. I'm sober now and attend meetings a few times a week. My problem is someone I was barely acquainted with was also in the same program. I didn't regard it as a problem at first, but now I'm concerned.

At a meeting a few months ago, I mentioned to the group that I also attend a meeting in another town closer to my home. Next thing I know, this man is attending the same meeting. He always makes a point of telling me about what's going on with the people we went through treatment with.

I am active in service work and plan to attend a regional meeting at a resort over a weekend. Guess who has suddenly decided to do the same?

I'm nervous about being around this man. I don't want to compromise his sobriety, but I can't stand seeing him at every meeting and event I attend. My husband is also bothered by it, and I'm considering not attending any meetings at all because he's creeping me out. How should I handle this? — SOBER AND CREEPED OUT

DEAR CREEPED OUT: If there is a group moderator or contact, discuss this with that person. Because you want less contact with your "admirer," look around for another group. Even if you will have to travel a bit farther, it will be worth the effort.

If you do happen to run into him in the future and he tries to engage you in conversation about other patients from your program, cut the conversation short by telling him you are not interested in hearing about them. One of the hallmarks of 12-step programs is anonymity — and it should be respected.

Pancreatic cancer test still years off

Dr. Keith Roach

DEAR DR.

ROACH: I have recently read that Jack Andraka, a teenager from Maryland, discovered a test to determine if a person has early stage pancreatic cancer. He won the 2012 Intel International Science and Engineering Fair.

He used a paper dipstick sensor in blood or urine. He worked for several months with Anirban Maitra, a researcher at Johns Hopkins University.

My dad had pancreatic cancer when he was 70 years old. How can I get this new test? I am nearing 70. — R.G.

ANSWER: First off, congratulations to Mr. Andraka. What a remarkable feat at any age! I am sure we can expect much more from him.

However, this is not yet a screening test for pancreatic cancer. It works by detecting mesothelin, a protein expressed by most (57 percent to 97 percent) pancreatic cancers but not in healthy people. In that respect, it is similar to PSA as a marker for prostate cancer. It remains to be seen whether the test can find cancer early enough to be able to remove it while curable.

Teen dating should not be hazardous to a teen's health

By CATHY BROWNFIELD

Family Recovery Center Publicist
"Ouch!" Terri was shocked that her boyfriend slapped her and left a red mark on her forearm.

"Ah, that's just a love tap," he said.
"Well, it hurt," she snapped. "Don't do it again!" She closed her locker and turned toward her next class.

After school, Leo drove her home from school. He wasn't talking much. He almost seemed angry, but Terri couldn't think of anything she might have done to provoke him. He looked around before he turned his eyes on her. "I saw you talking to Art."
"So what? He's just a friend."
"You should stay away from him."

Terri didn't like the look in Leo's eyes. She didn't want to argue with him. "I have homework to do," she murmured, and started to get out of the car. Leo grabbed her wrist and squeezed uncomfortably tight. She looked down where he gripped her and saw her arm getting red, his fingers white.
"Stay away from him. You belong to me now."

She pulled away from his grasp. "Wrong, Leo. I belong to me. And don't touch me again. You need help."

His face reddened. She hurried from the car and toward the house, her door key in her hand. She didn't look back until he squealed tires when he took off down the street. For a moment she was afraid, but she shrugged it away. Everyone has bad moments, she thought. She must be over-reacting.

But once she was inside she locked the door again, in case Leo decided to come back. She was afraid to tell anyone what had happened. She didn't want her parents not to like her boyfriend. She didn't want everyone to think she was crazy. Maybe she should wait and see what happened the next time she talked to Leo.

Dating violence is a problem among teens. Dating violence is a pattern of abusive behaviors used to control a boyfriend or girlfriend. The abuser uses manipulation to control the person and to gain power over them. They make a person feel bad about self, family or friends. And they make their victims afraid. Abuse may be emotional, physical, sexual or verbal. And one in four teens report such abuse annually.

Unchecked, teen dating violence leads to poor health and well being causing anxiety, depression, unhealthy weight control, sexual risk behaviors, pregnancy, substance abuse and re-victimization, to name a few. The first episode of such victimization is around age 15. Women age 16-24 experience the highest rates of dating abuse.

School districts are encouraged to address dating violence by adding a curriculum on dating abuse and to add classroom activities that educate students about what a healthy relationship should be like. Staff should be trained to recognize the signs of dating abuse.

Often, the adults on staff at school are the only adults that students talk to regularly. And published reports say that about 43 percent of teens who experience dating abuse are experiencing it on school property or in the school building. Additionally, dating abuse can affect student health, academic success and school safety.

Parents need to be educated about this problem as well. Their teens need to feel safe and comfortable enough to tell Mom and/or Dad what's happening. Abusers will tell their victims such things as, "If you tell anyone, the brakes on your mom's car will fail on her way home from work and she will die." As graphic as that may sound, that is one of the realities of abuse.

Earth Day recycling project planned at Mill Creek MetroPark

YOUNGSTOWN — An Earth Day recycling project, placing recycled Christmas trees into Glacier Lake to serve as fish habitat, begins at 1 p.m. Monday at Mill Creek MetroPark, Glacier Lake Boathouse on West Glacier Drive.

This project highlights the collaborative effort between the Ohio Division of Wildlife and the Mahoning County Green Team to recycle Christmas trees throughout Mahoning County each year. This project is beneficial to all Ohioans since it keeps these trees out of landfills and turns them into hot spots where anglers can catch fish.

These "hot spots" concentrate prey (bait) fish thereby attracting sport fish targeted by anglers. Crews will place 50 trees into Glacier Lake.

Ohio United Way honors Hays as one of its heroes

HAYS

Ohio United Way celebrated 100 years of service by recognizing 100 heroes from United Ways across the state at its annual lobby day luncheon on April 10 in Columbus.

George W. S. Hays, executive director of United Way Services of Northern Columbiana County, was recognized as one of the 100 heroes for his service to the community and to the public policy committee of Ohio United Way.

More than 230 United Way employees, board members, and legislators attended the luncheon held at the Capital Club across from the Statehouse.

Ohio United Way's board president, Clair Dickinson said, "Ohio United Way is thrilled to use the occasion of its anniversary to honor people who have made its work possible: individuals from across Ohio who have given selflessly to make a positive difference in their communities."

In introducing Hays to the audience, Scott Robinson of the Tuscarawas County Chamber of Commerce also cited Hays' active involvement in Rotary International as another example of his commitment to community service.

"I am honored and humbled to be recognized by Ohio United Way," Hays said. "I draw inspiration from these other heroes, many of whom have far more experience and who have contributed far more to the success of United Way than I."

Barbara Sykes, president and CEO of Ohio United Way, welcomed each honoree upon arrival, and official photographs were taken of each honoree with Sykes.

Other honorees from northeast Ohio included Erskine Cade, United Way of Greater Cleveland board of directors; Maria Hegge, president, United Way of Greater Stark County; Bill Kiston, president, United Way of Greater Cleveland; Steve Kleiber, president of United Way of Portage County; Thomas Krysiak, executive director of United Way of Trumbull County; Robert Kulinski, president of United Way of Summit County; Kim Leininger, executive director of United Way of Geauga County; and Brenda Linnick, executive director of United Way of Wayne and Holmes counties.

Cleveland's hearts are with Boston

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Napoli hit a three-run double in Boston's seven-run second inning and the Red Sox, playing with heavy hearts one day after the deadly bombings back home, beat the Cleveland Indians 7-2 on Tuesday night.

Boston's players were already en route to Cleveland when they learned of the explosions near the Boston Marathon's finish line that killed three and injured more than 170. The Red Sox were hoping to bring some relief to those affected by the tragedy, and they may have while winning their fourth straight.

The series opener was also Indians manager Terry Francona's first game against the Red Sox, the team he led to two World Series titles during eight seasons in Boston.

Helped by five walks, the Red Sox scored seven runs in the second off Ubaldo Jimenez (0-2) and gave Felix Doubront (1-0) all the support he needed.

Staked to the big lead, Doubront allowed two runs and four hits in five innings. He struck out seven.

Monday's tragic events in Boston brought a somber tone to Francona's reunion as well as to the Red Sox. Before the game, in a clubhouse devoid of its usual pregame sound and bustle, several players spoke of how a memorable Patriots Day win over Tampa Bay turned horrific.

"It's weird," pitcher Jon Lester said. "You see these things, it's like movies. For it to hit home like this, to be on that sidewalk plenty of times, eaten at those restaurants plenty of times, it hits right at home. It's a scary deal."

With the American flag clinging to the pole and at half-staff, the Red Sox and Indians, wearing black arm-bands, solemnly took the field for a moment of silence before the national anthem to honor those who lost their lives in the Boston bombings. As players placed their caps over their hearts, closed their eyes and bowed their heads, Boston's "B" logo appeared on the left-field scoreboard with "STRONG" written underneath.

And then before the first pitch, Fenway Park music standard "Sweet Caroline" filled the ballpark, another nod to Boston and moving forward.

Francona was hoping the game could bring Red Sox Nation — and everyone affected by the tragedy — some comfort.

"If it helps anybody at all, that would be terrific," he said. "I don't know how you quantify what happened. It's just unfair. I just hope maybe this game does help some people."

Cleveland did all it could to make the visitors welcome. A young Indians fan presented the Red Sox with a sign he wrote in red ink and ordained with hearts. The note, which was hung in Boston's dugout, read: "From our city to your city: Our hearts and prayers go out to you, Boston. Love, Cleveland."

The Red Sox hung a gray jersey with No. 617 — Boston's area code — above their bench during the game as a reminder that they were playing for more than each other.

For Francona, there will be another day to reflect and get nostalgic about his years in Boston.

Fullum powers Clippers

By JON RUDDER
Staff Writer

SALINEVILLE — Last season, Columbiana's Khylea Fullum belted three home runs.

After a two-run blast to help the Clippers cruised past the Indians in a 15-1 victory on Tuesday afternoon, Fullum has matched the total from her junior campaign.

"I haven't been hitting the ball this year, it's been big hits or no hits," Fullum said. "I just wanted to see what I could do and I knew she was the type of pitcher I could maybe hit one off of."

The Clippers improve to 8-1 overall and 6-0 in the Inter-Tri County League lower tier.

Fullum came close to clearing the bases in the second inning, pulling a pitch fouled that would have sailed over the left field fence with little question had it stayed in fair territory. Ultimately, she popped out to the shortstop for the final out of the inning.

In the fourth, she left no doubt.

"I knew it was gone," Fullum said. "Just from the sound of the bat."

Fullum's blast sparked an eight-run fourth inning that more than doubled the Clippers 7-0 lead that had amassed through three innings.

In all, 12 Clippers made a trip to the plate as Columbiana blew open a game that was slowly slipping away from the Indians.

"It's hard to focus after you beat a team by as many as we beat them by last night," Columbiana coach Jerry Beltempo said. "But I'm still going to remind them of things that we have to do."

Despite the lopsided score, the Clippers ran into outs on the basepaths through early innings that could have added more runs to their total.

"We have to be more aware of how many outs there are, who's covering what base," Beltempo said. "When we give a particular sign, not to miss the sign, and picking up the coaches on the bases. Little things that add up."

In the fourth, things began to click, and one after another the Clippers came up to the plate and scored shortly after.

Columbiana batted around in the inning and Fullum found herself at the plate again in the same inning.

"My dad always tells me, 'It's not the home run, it's what you do after the home run that matters,'" Fullum said. "So that's always my main focus is just getting a base hit the next at-bat."

She came through with her third hit of the afternoon, a rope down the third base line that scored Colette Steingina and Dakota DeAmicis to continue the big inning.

"I'm glad I had that hit," Fullum said. "I almost took out my teammate but she was okay."

Fullum finished the afternoon going 3-for-4 with five RBIs.

"Khylea is one of our top hitters," Beltempo said. "She's been struggling a little bit but she obviously nailed that one down the line and hit one out. In order to be successful, we need to have COLUMBIANA — After playing most of the game through a cold, driving rain, it was the threat of darkness that finally put a halt to a thrilling baseball game between Crestview and Springfield Tuesday at Springfield High School.

With the score tied at 3-3 entering the eighth inning, the umpires called over Springfield coach Matt Weymer and Crestview coach Matt Strank. After talking it over, both coaches agreed to stop the game.

The game will resume at 5 p.m. today at Crestview High School.

Crestview starter Anthony Marnejon was on the mound warming up for the top of the eighth when the game was called. Springfield was on its second pitcher, James Hillyer. Neither coach is sure which arm he will go with at the outset today.

"It's going to be a game time decision," Strank said. "I'll have to see how I feel tomorrow."

The game almost didn't require extra innings.

bottom of the seventh trailing 3-2 thanks to a go-ahead single by Springfield first baseman Joey Wrask in the top of the frame.
 After losing to the Tigers 4-3 in the bottom of the seventh on Monday, Crestview was three outs away from falling two games behind Springfield in the Inter-Tri County League upper tier standings.
 “We had a really good feeling in the dugout, we weren’t nervous at all,” Crestview rightfielder Jake Ferris said. “We have confidence that everyone throughout the order can put the bat on the ball.”
 Andrew Batchelor led off the inning with a single back up the middle and quickly advanced to second on a passed ball. With nobody out and the tying run in scoring position, Hillyer bore down, getting both Austin Eskra and Marnejon to strike out looking. With two outs, Ferris strode to the plate representing Crestview’s last chance.
 “I never had the feeling we were going to lose the game,” Ferris said. “I was pretty relaxed at the plate.”
 With the count 1-1, Ferris smacked a fastball right back up the middle, bringing home Batchelor with the tying run.
 “I watched his (Hillyer) second pitch go right past me for a strike,” Ferris said, “I thought if he came back there again I would put an aggressive swing on it.”
 Hillyer regrouped to strike out Brandon Jayne and send the action to extra innings.
 “It seems fitting that today’s game ended like it did,” Weymer said. “Since I’ve been here it seems like every game with Crestview is hard-fought right until the end.”

starter Dalton Donachie.
 Crestview scratched across a run in the first inning on an RBI double by Ferris. That run stood up until the fifth, as Marnejon was untouchable early. The Rebel left-hander retired 13 of the first 14 batters he faced, with the only blemish being a walk to Eoghan Bees.
 “Anthony was fantastic tonight,” Strank said. “He doesn’t overpower anybody but he really knows how to pitch. Tonight he was outstanding with his location.”
 However, with two outs in the fifth, Wrask doubled for Springfield’s first hit. Hillyer was the next batter, and rode an elevated fastball over the fence in left field to give the Tigers the lead 2-1.
 “Early in the game we were too aggressive at the plate,” Weymer said. “The second time through the order out approach was much better and we were finally able to get something going.”

 Hillyer relieved Donachie in the sixth and was greeted with an RBI single by Michael McDonough tying the score at two, and setting the stage for the seventh inning drama.
 “I feel good going into Wednesday,” Strank said. “We have a veteran team who has been through these situations before. There really isn’t a whole lot that needs to be said to them. I’m confident they’ll show up ready to play.”
 Springfield currently sits at 6-1 overall and 5-0 in the ITCL. Crestview is 6-1 and 4-1 in the ITCL.

Lisbon Golf League needs teams

COLUMBIANA — The Lisbon Golf League that plays on Mondays at The Links at Firestone Farms is seeking additional teams and players. If interested call Kurt Gresh at (330) 383-2847 or the golf course.

Salem track meet canceled

SALEM — The Salem varsity track meet with Carrollton on Tuesday was canceled after the 800 relay due to rain.

Pirates rained out

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jonathan Sanchez didn't look like a guy ready to give the Pittsburgh Pirates bullpen a needed night off after the St. Louis Cardinals touched him for two runs in the first inning on Tuesday.

Instead, Mother Nature intervened.

A massive thunderstorm hit at the end of the second inning with the Pirates leading 4-2, and the game was called after a delay of 1 hour, 24 minutes. No makeup date was immediately announced.

The deluge wiped out a promising start for Pittsburgh's offense but the Pirates could certainly use the break after the bullpen did yeoman's work in relief of struggling starter James McDonald on Monday night.

The right-hander gave up eight runs — three earned — in a 10-6 loss but insisted he's not injured.

The struggling McDonald understands his velocity is down but doesn't believe it is injury-related. His fastball — which can top out at 94 mph — rarely ticked about 90 mph against the Cardinals. He isn't panicking, pointing to similar issues early in the 2012 season.

"It was just one of those times you don't feel too well," McDonald said on Tuesday. "It's just one of those times where your body feels beat up."

McDonald fell to 1-2 as his ERA rose to 5.27. While there may be some mechanical issues at work he believes he's also just trying to get into the rhythm of the season. The ball doesn't feel quite right leaving his hand but he thinks he can still get hitters out.

BOSTON FROM 1B

This wasn't the time or place.

Francona did all he could to downplay his first meeting against the Red Sox since he was fired following the 2011 season, when Boston collapsed down the stretch.

The year he spent working as an ESPN analyst may have helped heal some of the hurt feelings, but Francona knows things will be different on Cleveland's visit to Boston next month.

"We're not in Boston. I had mostly eight really good years (there)," he said. "I don't think I would've scripted the end the way it ended. And you move on. Sometimes it's time to move on. I'm really happy where I'm at here, and I think it's unfair to the players for me to have like nostalgia week."

"Our job is to beat them. And it is 'them.'"

His starting pitcher didn't help.

Jimenez was atrocious in his two-inning stint. The right-hander walked five, including two with the bases loaded, to force in a pair of runs.

Pedro Ciriaco hit a sacrifice fly and Ellsbury had an RBI single off Jimenez, who was pulled after walking Pedroia to load the bases on his 59th pitch. As he walked slowly to the dugout, Indians fans let Jimenez know how they felt about his latest poor performance. He is 1-12 since the second half of last season.

Cody Allen relieved Jimenez and gave up Napoli's three-run double to make it 7-0.

The Indians got a run off Doubront in the second on Mike Aviles' sacrifice fly. They had a chance to catch up in the fifth, loading the bases with one out. A passed ball with two outs got Cleveland within 7-2, but Doubront got Mark

Reynolds to pop to short right and end the threat.

It's a good thing the Red Sox struck early. They struck out 16 times against five Cleveland pitchers.

NOTES: The Red Sox placed closer Joel Hanrahan on the disabled list with a hamstring injury. ... The Indians will place CF Michael Bourn on the 15-day disabled list in the next few days. Bourn sliced his finger open diving into first base Sunday and got stepped on by White Sox pitcher Matt Thornton. Francona wants to make sure LHP Scott Kazmir can pitch Saturday before making the roster move. ... To commemorate Jackie Robinson Day, both teams wore No. 42 jerseys.

Francona was asked if Indians Hall of Famer Larry Doby, the AL's first black player, should have his No. 14 retired. "He probably endured every bit as much, but you don't hear as much," he said. ... Red Sox DH David Ortiz was hitless in four at-bats on a rehab assignment at Triple-A Pawtucket. The slugger is rehabbing an Achilles injury and hasn't played for Boston this season.

Summerall gave voice to NFL's great games

DALLAS (AP) — Pat Summerall was the calm alongside John Madden's storm.

Over four decades, Summerall described some of the biggest games in America in his deep, resonant voice. Simple, spare, he delivered the details on 16 Super Bowls, the Masters and the U.S. Open tennis tournament with a simple, understated style that was the perfect complement for the "booms!" and "bangs!" of Madden, his football partner for the last half of the NFL player-turned-broadcaster's career.

Summerall died Tuesday at age 82 of cardiac arrest, said University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center spokesman Jeff Carlton, speaking on behalf of Summerall's wife, Cheri.

"Pat was my broadcasting partner for a long time, but more than that he was my friend for all of these years," Madden said in a statement. "Pat Summerall is the voice of football and always will be."

His final play-by-play words beside Madden were succinct, of course, as he called the game-ending field goal of the Super Bowl for Fox on Feb. 3, 2002, when New England beat St. Louis 20-17.

"It's right down the pipe. Adam Vinatieri. No time on the clock. And the Patriots have won Super Bowl XXXVI. Unbelievable," Summerall said.

Sparse, exciting, perfect. A flawless summation without distracting from the reaction viewers could see on the screen.

At the end of their final broadcast together, Madden described Summerall as "a treasure" and the "spirit of the National Football League" in a tribute to the partner that complemented the boisterous former Oakland Raiders coach so well.

As former teammate and broadcaster Frank Gifford put it in an accompanying video tribute: "America is very comfortable with Pat Summerall."

Summerall played 10 NFL seasons from 1952 to 1961 with the Chicago Cardinals and New York Giants, but it was in his second career that he became a voice familiar to generations of sports fans, not only those of the NFL.

"Pat was a friend of nearly 40 years," CBS Sports broadcaster Verne Lundquist said. "He was a master of restraint in his commentary, an example for all of us. He was also one of the great storytellers who ever spoke into a microphone."

Summerall started doing NFL games for CBS in 1964, and became a play-by-play guy 10 years later. He was also part of coverage of the PGA Tour, including the Masters from 1968-94, and U.S. Open tennis.

When CBS lost its NFL deal after the 1993 season, Summerall switched to Fox to keep calling NFL games with Madden. Summerall had hoped to keep working with CBS for other events like the Masters, but network executives saw it otherwise. At the time, CBS Sports anchor Jim Nantz said he was "very saddened" that Summerall didn't get to leave CBS under his own terms.

"Pat Summerall was a hero to me," Nantz said Tuesday. "I treasured the gift of friendship that I had with him. I was his understudy for 10 years. He could not have been more generous or kind to a young broadcaster."

Browns owner: Family company under criminal probe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cleveland Browns owner Jimmy Haslam said Tuesday the federal government has launched a criminal investigation into rebates offered by the truck stop chain owned by his family, including his brother, Tennessee Gov. Bill Haslam.

Agents from the FBI and Internal Revenue Service raided the Pilot Flying J headquarters in Knoxville on Monday.

Jimmy Haslam, who is the CEO of Pilot Flying J, held a news conference in Knoxville to confirm the investigation is criminal, rather than civil, in nature.

"We don't know a lot. It appears to be centered on a very insignificant number of customers and the application of rebates, that rebates that were owed to the customers were not paid. We, of course, disagree with that," the CEO said.

Haslam said subpoenas had been issued to several members of his 23-person sales force, though he said he was unable to identify any specifically. Haslam said he had not been subpoenaed and no one has been arrested.

Bill Killian, the U.S. attorney in Knoxville, told The Associated Press that four search warrants have been served on Pilot, but the reasons have been sealed by a federal court.

FBI and Internal Revenue Service agents locked down the Pilot Flying J headquarters Monday afternoon and ordered most employees out of the building as they conducted their search well past midnight.

Haslam said essential personnel were allowed to remain in the building to ensure the company's nearly 500 truck stops had sufficient fuel supplies. It was unclear why the IRS was involved in the raid, he said.

"It does not involve, as best we can tell — and I'm pretty sure we're right — any type of tax issue," he said. "So there's no evasion of tax or federal taxes, which candidly is what your suppliers, particularly fuel suppliers, worry about."

Investigators are looking at rebates offered to trucking company customers, the company said. Some trucking companies receive discounts or rebates on fuel purchases from truck stop chains.

Boston Marathon

(AP) — The deadly bomb attacks at the Boston Marathon raised concern Tuesday about safety at major sports events around the world, including the Olympics and World Cup.

Organizers of the London Marathon, scheduled to be run Sunday, said they were reviewing security for a race that is expected to attract 30,000 participants and half a million spectators.

Elsewhere, sporting event organizers were taking precarious and re-addressing security procedures. Some examples:

- The NFL plans to take what investigators learn in the aftermath of the Boston Marathon bombing and incorporate it into its security plans for the cold-weather Super Bowl at MetLife Stadium. The league said it has raised its security levels for all its games and events since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in 2001. For the past two years, it been working closely with federal, state and municipal agencies developing a comprehensive security plan for the Super Bowl, which will be played in the shadow of New York City.

- The Red Sox postponed an open house for fans at Fenway Park that was scheduled for Wednesday. "We all personally feel the grief of the horrifying tragedy that struck our community on Patriots' Day," said Red Sox President/CEO Larry Lucchino. The team said the open house would be rescheduled.

- Kansas Speedway is increasing the police presence for this weekend's NASCAR race. Track president Pat Warren said fans attending the Truck Series race on Saturday and the Sprint Cup race on Sunday should budget more time for when they're entering the facility. The speedway doesn't plan to change its policy of allowing coolers into the track.

- Organizers of the Grand Prix of Long Beach Indy Car race said they will be working in conjunction with the Long Beach police department, fire department, city and other agencies in taking appropriate measures to provide for the safety of fans, workers and participants at the race Sunday.
