Perry looks ahead to next snow season

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

PERRY TWP. — Winter may appear to be over, but Perry Township officials have already started planning for the next snow season.

Trustees agreed Monday to participate in the 2013-2014 salt program, with plans to order 350 tons of salt for next year.

When asked if that would be enough, road supervisor Darreck Farrell said he ordered 300 tons of salt last year. Under the program, they have to take at least 80 percent of their order throughout the winter, but they can go as high as 120 percent of the order if necessary.

He said he just ordered another

120 tons of salt out of last year's order to reach the 120 percent mark because he heard the price may go up next year.

This past season, the township used 120 tons of salt on the roads. He explained the road crew uses a mix of salt and small gravel, with about 1/3 salt and 2/3 gravel.

In other business, trustees hired Shawn Butler as a part-time road department worker at a rate of $12.50 per hour for up to 30 hours a week. Trustees also noted a list of roads for line striping this year will be sent to the Columbiana County Engineer's office.

Fiscal Officer Susan Johnston noted the Painter Road/Brooklyn

Avenue and Depot Road sewer extension project is expected to begin construction May 1 with a completion date of Sept. 30. Columbiana County Commissioners awarded the contract for the project to the lower bidder, Waugh Excavating, for $248,838.

In other announcements, Trustee Don Kendrick said eight building permits have been secured so far this year, with four this month. He said at least two of those permits this month had to be caught, meaning the project was started before securing a permit and Kendrick went to the property owner. Property owners must get a building permit before starting any projects, he said, such as new windows or a new roof.

The township fire department will hold a pancake breakfast/open house from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27 at the north station on North Ellsworth Avenue. Plans call for live demonstrations of equipment and for Lifelight and ambulances to also be on hand.

The cost of tickets for the pancake breakfast will be $6 for adults, $4.50 for children ages 6 to 13 and children 5 and under free.

Trustees have changed the date of their next meeting to 6:30 p.m. April 29.

Planning board OKs split for duplex

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

The city Planning Commission voted to allow the splitting of a lot holding a duplex with two separate housing units into two separate lots on Park Avenue, with the property line splitting the building in half.

The owners of each side of the duplex requested the replat, with the commission also agreeing to allow similar replats, if requested, for other properties on Park Avenue where several duplexes were built and sold as separate properties on single parcels of land. The lots in question are located between Ridgewood and Maple

The commission addressed the issue Monday, but had taken similar action for another lot on Park Avenue on Sept. 10, 2012.

The only difference this time was the blanket approval for the other parcels facing the same situation of two individual housing units on one lot. Owners of those properties will still have to prepare a replat map and file a request with the city

EP native brings Paranormal Research group to area

By KATIE SCHWENDEMAN
Staff Writer

EAST PALESTINE — Engaging in curiosity about the after life, Jennifer Albert is expanding the research organization she founded in Cleveland about two years ago.

Albert was born and raised in East Palestine and relocated to the village recently after living in Cleveland for college, where she earned a Bachelor's degree in criminology and psychology. She founded the Cleveland Paranormal Research Society while attending college and has always been interested in the paranormal.

Her own experiences include communicating with her deceased grandmother in her childhood home on West Main Street, and seeing or hearing spirits through the use of equipment geared toward paranormal research.

One piece of equipment is called a Spirit Box, and is a device that allows spirits to speak through the white noise created through radio channels as they are being scanned.

Other, more common equipment used in the research are computers, digital cameras and digital recorders.

On the society's Google page, clevelandparanormalresearch, Albert said the digital equipment is great for capturing things not seen by the naked eye, such as orbs or mists that signify the presence of spirits.

She finds the communication to be a comfort and not something to be afraid of, although caution is always advised.

The purpose of the research society is to help people understand the paranormal world.

"We want to bring closure to those in need about loved ones they have lost and educate people on what could be on the other side after death," she said.

The society also attempts to help spirits who may be "trapped on Earth move on since their journey has ended," she added.

Since its founding the society has gained a crew of eight

JC Penney ousts CEO Ron Johnson

NEW YORK (AP) — J.C. Penney's board of directors has ousted CEO Ron Johnson after only 16 months on the job as a risky turnaround strategy backfired and led to massive losses and steep sales drops. In a statement issued late Monday, the department store chain said that it has rehired Johnson's predecessor Mike Ullman, 66, who was CEO of the department store chain for seven years until November 2011.

The announcement comes as a growing chorus of critics including a former Penney CEO Allen Questrom called for his resignation as they lost faith in turnaround strategy.

Penney reported dismal fourth-quarter results in late February that capped the first full year of a transformation plan where Penney amassed nearly a billion dollars in losses and its revenue tumbled almost 25 percent to $12.98 billion.

Under Johnson, 54, Penney embarked upon a strategy that included ditching coupons and most of its sales events in favor of everyday low prices, bringing in hipper designer brands such as Betsy Johnson and remaking outdated stores by installing specialty shops devoted to brands like Joe Fresh and Levi's to replace rows of clothing racks.

DEATHS

Travis James Balint

MINERVA — On April 4, 2013, following a brief illness, the best part of the Balint Family went home to be with Jesus. Travis James Balint, 38, was the best son, brother, uncle, and friend that anyone could have. His gentle quiet spirit made an impact to all who took the time to know him. He set an example for all to follow. He was always there with a listening ear, a helping hand, and a giving spirit. He was kind with everyone, and forgave unconditionally. He lived a life showing the highest form of love — agape love. Travis attended and graduated from Carrollton High School (Class of 1992) and Kentucky Christian University (Class of 1997). He was a member of the Greenford Christian Church where he enjoyed the services he attended. He never felt like he had to go to church, but that he got to go to church. Travis was not only welcomed into heaven by Jesus, but by his grandfather, Paul J. Heylman of Minerva, and his grandmother Ruth M. (Allison) Heylman of Salineville, Ohio, and his cousin Lisa L. (Brown) Evans of Malvern, Ohio. He was also greeted by a wonderful saint who had an impact on forming the man Travis became, Mr. Harry Toot Sr.

Those of us here left on earth to miss him until we meet again are: his parents, Willard and Pat (Heylman) Balint, his younger brother, Brandon L. Balint, wife Kanyshai, his youngest brother, Sgt. Christopher “Brady” Balint, wife Heather, and his sister Lorraine G. (Rowe) Smith and her children: Bethany, Jonathan, and Jenna and his aunt Marge Brown of Malvern. Those who will miss him most are the lights of his eyes, his three nephews: Noah, Paul, Tristan and his niece Beth, along with the stepdaughter Madison Long.

There will be no formal memorial service and the family is asking that in lieu of flowers please give donations to Big Reach Center of Hope c/o The Greenford Christian Church, 11167 Lisbon Road, P.O. Box 53, Greenford, Ohio 44422.

Cincinnati casino draws $21M in 1st month

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ohio’s newest casino raked in $21 million during its first month of operation as the state’s three other casinos saw double-digit percent increases in their revenues, according to a report released Monday by the Ohio Casino Control Commission. The report is the first for Horseshoe Casino Cincinnati, a $400 million facility in the city’s downtown that opened March 4. Even though Cincinnati’s figure represents just under a full month of operation, it had the second highest March revenues in the state after Cleveland, which drew $24.5 million. “We’re feeling great about our start,” said Kevin Kline, general manager for Cincinnati’s casino. The casino tallied about 441,000 visitors in the first month, Kline said. “I feel like, for the first month to come out of the gate with that reception ... I think that’s a great foundation and a great catalyst for what we’d expect to see in the future months,” he said. The state’s three other casinos in Toledo, Cleveland and Columbus each topped $20 million in their first full months. Cleveland’s saw the largest at $26.1 million in June. The new revenue report also shows that the casinos in Toledo, Cleveland and Columbus each saw revenue gains from their February numbers. Toledo’s casino saw the biggest percent increase, from $14.8 million in February to $17.8 million in March. That’s a 20 percent increase. Columbus’ casino saw a 13 percent gain, from $18.5 million in February to $20.9 million in March. And Cleveland’s revenues jumped by 11 percent, from $22 million in February to $24.5 million in March. Statewide, casino revenues increased from $55.5 million in February to $84.3 million in March, partially because of the addition of Cincinnati into the mix. Taking Cincinnati out would mean revenues of $63.3 million, a 14 percent increase.

— Suspicious activity was reported at 2:51 p.m. Monday in the 700 block of East School Street. Ohio officials should go after food stamp fraud

It should not require a formal agreement for the federal government to cooperate with states in reducing food stamp fraud, but apparently it does.

Federal officials announced this week that Ohio has become one of the first states in the nation to be part of a new program to curb crime in the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, popularly known as food stamps. Under the arrangement, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the state will share data that will help the state monitor food stamp transactions and detect fraud.

About 1 percent of the $80 billion spent nationwide on the program is lost to fraud, federal officials estimate. That is down from 14 percent just a few years ago — and the lower estimate certainly is suspect.

More than 1.8 million Ohioans receive food stamp aid, dispensed through “swipe” cards. The program costs more than $2.4 billion a year in the Buckeye State alone.

Just a year ago, state Auditor Dave Yost warned of abuse in the food stamp program. Yost said one scam involves obtaining a food stamp card, using or selling it, then seeking another one by claiming the original was lost. As many as 17,000 Ohio food stamp clients received 10 or more “reissued” cards during the previous year, he said.

Clearly, curbing food stamp fraud is in taxpayers’ best interests. Ohio state officials should use this new data-sharing opportunity to stop at least some of it and file criminal charges against those responsible.

Illegal drugs from the murderous Mexican cartels already can be found throughout the United States. But now, authorities across the nation say, the cartels have sent their operatives to several U.S. cities, including Columbus.

That is not acceptable. Home-grown drug gangs are bad enough, using violence frequently to settle their squabbles. But the Mexican cartels are on another, much more brutal level of violence.

U.S. authorities, including those in Ohio, should make it a top priority to send the cartel operatives packing. The illegal drug crisis is bad enough without their presence.

Pro-'choice' intolerance common in academia

GEORGE WILL

We know Johns Hopkins University is devoted to diversity, because it says so. Its “Diversity and Inclusion Statement,” a classic of the genre, says the university is “committed to sharing values of diversity and inclusion ... by recruiting and retaining a diverse group of students.” Hopkins has an Office of Institutional Equity and a “Diversity Leadership Council” that defines “inclusion” as “active, thoughtful and ongoing engagement with each other.” Unless you are a member of Voice for Life, an anti-abortion group.

Hopkins’ Student Government Association has denied VFL status as a recognized student group, for two reasons: VFL’s website links to other organizations that display graphic images of aborted babies. And VFL plans to engage in peaceful, quiet “sidewalk counseling” outside a local abortion clinic, which the SGA considers “harassment.” Hopkins’ student conduct code enjoins students “to protect the university as a forum for the free expression of ideas.” And although Hopkins has a stern policy against sexual harassment, it says the purpose of this policy is not “to inhibit free speech or the free communication of ideas by members of the academic community.” Presumably that also applies to other forms of “harassment.”

Suppose such SGA-recognized student groups as the Arab Students Organization, the Black Student Union, the Hopkins Feminists or the Diverse Sexuality and Gender Alliance were to link their websites to provocative outside organizations, or were to counsel persons not to patronize firms with policies those groups oppose. Would the SGA want to deny them recognition as student groups? Of course not. Obviously, the SGA has acted to express animus against the content of VFL’s speech, and to protect students from the discomfort of disagreement.

Persons who do not want to see the images to which VFL links need never see them. Nevertheless, an SGA member says pro-life demonstrations make her feel “personally violated, targeted and attacked at a place where we previously felt safe and free to live our lives.” If encountering ideas she does not share makes her feel this way, she is unsuited to a proper academic setting. She may, however, be suited to Hopkins, which should be embarrassed, if it still can be.

Hopkins’ institutional intolerance would be boring were it simply redundant evidence of academia’s commitment to diversity in everything but thought. It is, however, indicative of the increasingly extreme ambitions and tactics of those operating under the anodyne rubric of “choice.” In Florida recently, a legislative debate that reverberated in the U.S. Senate in the 1990s was revived concerning the right to choose infanticide.

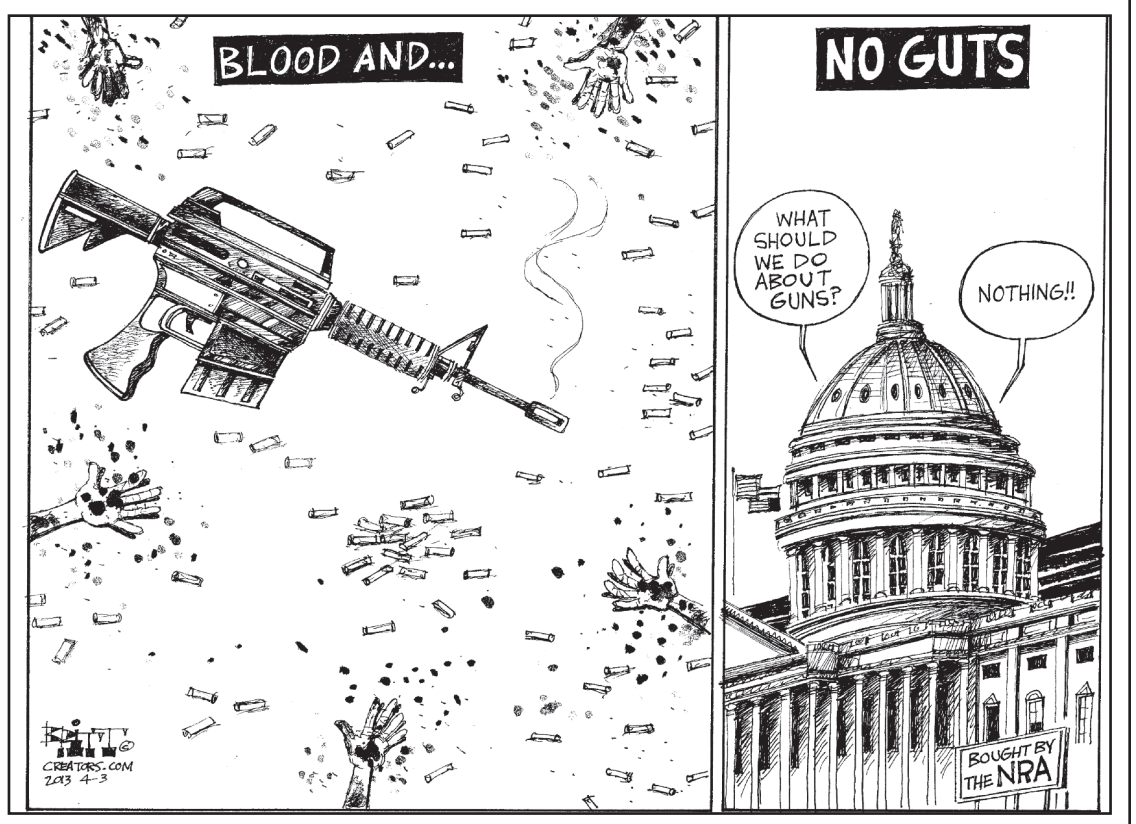

In 1996, the Senate debated outlawing partial-birth abortion, whereby a baby is delivered feet first until only the top of the skull remains in the birth canal, then the skull is punctured and its contents emptied. Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., asked two pro-choice senators, Russ Feingold, D-Wis., and Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., this: If the baby slips entirely out of the birth canal before it can be killed, should killing it still be a permissible choice? Neither senator would say no. In a 1999 debate, Santorum asked Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., whether she agreed that “once the child is born, is separated from the mother, that that child is protected by the Constitution and cannot be killed.” Boxer said: “I think that when you bring your baby home ...”

Sort of like driving a new car away from the dealership. But, then, what principle forbids killing a baby at home if its crying interrupts the parents’ enjoyment of Jay Leno’s monologue?

Recently in Florida, Alisa LaPolt Snow, representing Florida Planned Parenthood organizations, testified against a bill that would require abortionists to provide medical care to babies who survive attempted abortions. Snow was asked: “If a baby is born on a table as a result of a botched abortion, what would Planned Parenthood want to have happen to that child that is struggling for life?” Snow replied: “We believe that any decision that’s made should be left up to the woman, her family and the physician.” She added, “That decision should be between the patient and the health care provider.” To this, a Florida legislator responded: “I think that at that point the patient would be the child struggling on a table, wouldn’t you agree?”

Planned Parenthood, which receives more than $500 million in government subsidies, is branching out, expanding its mission beyond the provision of abortions to the defense of consumers’ rights: If you pay for an abortion, you are owed a dead baby.

Honeymoon for a Pope

MARK SHIELDS

In politics, maybe even in life, perception frequently becomes reality. If enough people see you as a winner, then you will be treated like a winner, which means that your calls, even to important strangers whom you have never met, are promptly put through.

Everything becomes a poll. When other candidates, including former rivals, push to appear on the same platform with you, angle to be photographed in the same picture with you or seek to introduce their closest relatives to you, each of these is, for you, a positive poll.

This week, the Pew Forum on Religion & Public Life released a real poll that found that American Catholics give the new leader of the Catholic Church an 84 percent favorable rating (42 percent “very favorable” and just 5 percent unfavorable). Pope Francis, less than a month in office, is enjoying what could be called a real political honeymoon.

If you want proof of the new pontiff’s popularity, look at the total about-face toward Pope Francis, the former cardinal-archbishop of Buenos Aires, by Argentina’s populist President Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner.

In Argentina, the two had disagreed on public policy, from divorce laws to same-sex marriage, and she had prevailed. But the president, responsive to her anti-clerical supporters, never chose to forge an alliance to aid the Argentine poor by working with then-Archbishop Jorge Mario Bergoglio, who had refused the chauffeur-driven limousine and the bishop’s palace to instead take the bus to work and live in a two-room apartment where he could cook his own meals.

Unprepared for the waves of popularity the modest Pope Francis would inspire both in Argentina and around the globe, Kirchner barely acknowledged his election to succeed Pope Benedict XVI. Scrambling to recover, the president flew to Rome, where after a private lunch with Francis, watched on TV by most of their countrymen, she posed, respectfully, for dozens of photos with him and then miraculously discovered their shared passion for caring for the poor. As I said, everything is a poll.

How has this son of Italian immigrants to Argentina evoked such positive reactions in so many different people, including your faithful correspondent? Consider the Holy Thursday ceremony recalling the Last Supper, where Christ, to teach His disciples what it meant to be a servant, washed the feet of the 12. As archbishop of Buenos Aires, he had celebrated the washing of the feet not in a splendid cathedral, but among the poorest and most marginalized of his neighbors — in jails, AIDS hospices, and homes for single mothers and their babies.

Thus on Holy Thursday 2013 did the 76-year-old Francis become the first pope to kneel on the stone floor of a juvenile detention center in Rome, there to wash, to dry and to kiss the feet of a dozen young prisoners, including those of two Muslims and of two women.

As the Jesuit scholar and writer the Rev. Tom Reese has pointed out, in Buenos Aires, Cardinal Bergoglio “fought the Argentine government when they cut benefits for poor people. He is very concerned about the grave impact of globalization on workers ...” And, yes, he was roundly criticized by Catholic conservatives because he entered into a prayer service with evangelicals in Argentina. On matters of church teaching, there is unlikely with Pope Francis to be any major disagreements with the theology of Pope Benedict XVI or Pope John Paul II.

The moral costs of the sex abuse crimes against powerless children by Catholic priests, enabled and abetted by powerful Catholic bishops, are still incalculable. The estrangement from the church of the young continues. A new pope is not the silver bullet for the church’s problems. His honeymoon will not last forever. But a humble shepherd who resists ermine and Prada and who cares most for the poor, the strangers and the powerless can truly lift the spirits.

Telegraph of Macon on not abandoning U.S. troops' allies:

When American troops went to war in Iraq and Afghanistan, they relied on local translators, drivers and guides to help them navigate incalculable risks. In exchange, the United States promised, beginning in 2006, to provide visas for those men and women whose work put them in danger. But nearly a decade later, it has yet to fulfill that commitment.

Washington must live up to its obligations. A good place to start would be for Congress and the White House to move swiftly to extend the Special Immigrant Visa program, which is due to expire in the months ahead. Enacted by Congress in 2007, the program provides 6,500 new visas annually for Iraqis and Afghans to resettle in the United States. Yet it has been plagued with problems.

An unwieldy application process, coupled with enhanced security measures designed to weed out possible terrorists, has led to backlogs and long delays. As a result, only a fraction of the available visas have been issued. In fiscal year 2012, for example, fewer than 2,000 visas were granted, according to the U.S. Department of State’s data. Overall, only 22 percent of the authorized Iraqi visas and 12 percent of the authorized Afghan visas have been issued since the program began.

The Obama administration has made some efforts to improve the program in Iraq, but it has yet to undertake similar reforms in Afghanistan. It ought to ensure that the application process is streamlined in Baghdad as well as Kabul, where some published reports indicate that as many as 5,000 applications are pending.

The delays in processing applications aren’t simply an inconvenience. Many applicants have been waiting years for approval and have had to live in hiding during that period.

Clearly the Special Immigrant Visa program isn’t working as Congress intended it to. But allowing it to sunset is not the answer.

SHERIFF

— A Middle Beaver Road, Lisbon, man reported at 11:30 p.m. April 1 his wife left with one of his hunting bows and four fishing poles. The man reported someone went into his friend's home and also took his Horton "Hunters Special" bow, three arrows and a Horton scope belonging to him. Deputies spoke to his wife, who denied going to the house or taking the items. Deputies did see a quiver for a bow laying on the back floorboard of the wife's vehicle.

— A Parkview Drive, Hanoverton, woman reported at 8:19 p.m. Sunday she returned home and found the living room and children's room windows were open. Her two dogs, which had been roaming freely when she left, were locked in the bedroom. The 50-inch television they were renting from Aaron's was missing.

— A state Route 14, New Waterford, man reported at 6:19 p.m. Sunday when he and his wife came to their storage unit on state Route 14, they found the garage door halfway open and the garage door opener no longer working. Missing was a two-seat dune buggy and two chainsaws.

— An Elberon Avenue, Salem, woman reported at 3:59 p.m. Sunday when she went to her ex husband's house to pick up her daughter, the ex was not there. His family was with the daughter and his mother threw a bag of clothes at her.

— A Crestview Road, Columbiana, man reported at 2:07 p.m. Sunday some people were on his property riding four-wheelers. He stopped them, told them not to return and threatened to use weapons against them the next time he catches them. Deputies warned him against threatening them with weapons and implored him to call deputies next time.

— A Lakeview Drive, Guilford, woman reported at 10:18 p.m. Saturday she came home from surgery and was given some pain medication. Six of her pills were missing and her grandson admitted to her he took them, reportedly to complete a debt he owes a drug dealer. Deputies spoke to the grandson about possible consequences and the grandmother declined to pursue charges.

— While on Bowman Road at 8:47 p.m. Saturday deputies found a stop sign at the intersection with Knox School Road completely covered by dark paint.

— An East Main Street, Salineville, man reported at 5:30 p.m. Saturday he has been having a problem with a neighbor's dogs running loose. He has filed a report with the Salineville police and on Saturday found his pickup scratched.

— Jim Herrington, no address listed, reported at 6:27 p.m. Friday he had been riding his dirt bike at the Salem Motorcycle Club on Teegarden Road and another man, Matt Hodgkinson, Newton Falls, was injured. Hodgkinson reportedly had gone over a jump and the bike popped a wheelie. He was heading toward a tree, so he pushed the bike away and landed on his feet, did a split and fell to the ground. Hodgkinson was transported by KLG to Salem Community Hospital where he was treated for a broken leg.

— A Y and O Road, East Liverpool, man reported at 10:57 p.m. Friday there was an assault between people driving in Jeep on Hammond School Road in the area of the Beagle Club. Deputies found the Jeep sitting across the road from the Beagle Club and spoke to the driver, who claimed his wife had been walking on the road and he picked her up to take her home. She agreed with the story, telling deputies her husband helped her into the Jeep.

— A Roberts Road, Leetonia, man reported at 10:36 a.m. Sunday sometime overnight someone damaged his mailbox and threw it across the street.

DUPLEX FROM 1A

Planning & Zoning Office, but Planning & Zoning Officer Patrick Morrissey will have the commission's permission to allow the splits without the property owners having to seek approval from the commission.

Real estate agent Linda Courtney of Towne & Suburban Realty spoke briefly to the commission about the situation, explaining the replat was necessary for the sale of the one housing unit.

According to the meeting agenda, the homes were built as duplexes and sold as individual units without the benefit of a condominium association. The owners of the dwellings on one lot requested permission to split the lot and building in half so each dwelling is on its own piece of real estate.

Commission member Royal Schiller said his only concern was any disagreements by the property owners, but said he wasn't against taking the action.

Morrissey estimated the potential for six more similar scenarios on that street where a replat may become necessary when a property is being sold.

PARANORMAL FROM 1A

people and conducted investigations in places such as the Mansfield Reformatory, Ashtabula, Elyria, East Palestine, and most recently at Hill View Manor in New Castle, Pa.

Ironically, the trip on March 16 drew a group of 13, she said.

"We actually had a lot of really good results, good mist pictures. It was an all-around really good experience. We had things whistle at us. The Spirit Box was very active all night," she said.

While the investigations typically draw people who are already interested in the paranormal, some skeptics have taken advantage as well, she said.

"Obviously you're going to have skeptics. I had been there previously so I knew the place legitimately has things going on," she said of Hill View.

Hill View Manor was constructed in Lawrence County in the late 1920s for purpose of housing the mentally ill, aged and homeless. The 63,000-square-foot facility closed in 2004 as a result of financial difficulties. More information is available online at www.hauntedhillview.com

The society has another investigation planned for the Mansfield Reformatory on May 16 and tickets are already sold out. The crew conducted a successful investigation there last summer, she said.

While that event is no longer available, those interested in the paranormal will have plenty of opportunities to get involved since the society is now serving Columbiana, Mahoning, Allegheny, and Lawrence counties.

Specific coverage will include the cities of Salem, Youngstown, Warren, Pittsburgh and New Castle, Pa. The society plans to have a local office out of Shops on Main in East Palestine in May, Albert said.

"We are looking at getting a lot of projects in this area going, to stir up the economy here," she said.

The society functions on donations and will be selling T-shirts and bracelets at the East Palestine Street Fair and Columbiana County Fair. A portion of the proceeds will go toward the Ballas Foundation in California, a non-profit organization for suicide prevention.

Albert said she got connected with the non-profit after learning it was looking for sponsors.

"If we can do something to keep someone from a committing a crime that can't be undone we will do whatever we can to help," she said.

The society is an official member of the Ghost Adventures Crew and can be contacted on Facebook and Twitter. It can also be reached by phone at 216-632-2702.

Goshen Police District personnel moves approved

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

GOSHEN TOWNSHIP— The township trustees Monday night approved several personnel moves for the Goshen Police District.

The trustees approved the resignations of Det. Kevin Stratton, who has taken a full-time position on the Boardman Police Department, effective April 6; reserve officer Mitchell Gobely effective April 7; and reserve officer James Nichols, who was hired last week.

The trustees also promoted part-time officer Matthew Beck to full-time effective April 7 and hired as reserve officers Brandon Bridgewater of Kent and Tyler Thaxton of Columbiana.

In other business the trustees approved a mutual aid agreement between the police department and the village of Washingtonville, in both Mahoning and Columbiana counties. The trustees also approved updates to the road department policy manual, including a new sequential disciplinary policy; and cemetery rules and regulations, addressing the growing popularity in cremation burials.

Additionally the trustees approved the Green Team recycling site lease agreement for 2013 at $12,000, including the sites at the maintenance garage on Seacrist Road, the Damascus Fire Station No. 1 on state Route 534 and the Colonial Villa Estates on Goshen Road, as well as a business route.

The trustees also granted permission to the Sebring-West Branch Hot Stove League to use the baseball field at the Administration Building with the league assuming maintenance responsibilities; approved a resolution expressing agreement with the Mahoning County Solid Waste Management District's management plan update; and agreed to send Trustee Todd Beeson to the county board of health's wastewater seminar May 7 and 8 for $15.

Also at the meeting, Damascus Fire Chief John Bricker reported that the department received a $10,000 grant through the Ohio Department of Commerce for radio equipment and turnout gear. He said that Assistant Chief Derek Day has also applied for a couple more grants, but won't know the results for another few months.

Road Foreman Jim Stryffeler reported that he can purchase emulsion for chip and sealing roadways this summer, but must use limestone instead of slag. He said the materials can still be purchased from East Fairfield Coal Co., but that the trustees need to decide roads will be resurfaced as soon as possible since the stone is scarce. The trustees agreed to meet to examine the roads and determine which ones should be resurfaced.

Recycling Coordinator Paul Manypenny reported that there will be a scrap drive the week of May 18 at the Seacrist Road site and a household hazardous waste collection from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 11 at the Canfield Fairgrounds.

EL man sentenced to year for intimidating calls

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — John Thompson Jr., the East Liverpool man a jury convicted of intimidating a witness after calls he made from the police station to his live-in girlfriend after she accused him of domestic violence, was sentenced on Monday to a 12-month sentence by Columbiana County Judge C. Ashley Pike.

"I want to go home," Thompson told Pike prior to sentencing. "It's killing me. My kids are sitting in the hallway and I can't even touch them." Thompson, 23, asked for rehabilitation, noting he is not only hurting himself, but his daughter and step-children.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John Gamble, filling in for his co-counselor Tammie Riley Jones who prosecuted the case, said he was familiar with the case. Gamble stated that when the case was brought to the prosecutor's office, he had the opportunity to listen to the taped calls from Thompson to Browning and others.

"I have rarely had the hair stand up on my neck as it did when I heard those recordings," Gamble said, calling them "cold, calculating and very offensive."

Thompson's attorney Richard Hura in his statements noted Gamble was not at the jury trial when Desiree Browning, Thompson's live-in girlfriend, testified she was not afraid of him. "The same phone calls which made the hair stand up on the back of his head caused the victim to giggle while on the stand," Hura said. "She had kind of a different interpretation of the tone and the words that were said."

Browning took the stand again prior to sentencing asking Pike to consider a low sentence or probation and renewed her statements that she is not afraid of him. In reaction to questions from Pike, Browning said since they got together Thompson has not been out on the street selling drugs and is the only father four of her children have ever known.

"There's been times I've threatened to take him out in his sleep," Browning said. "We just argue different than other people I guess ... I've gotten to the point where I've thrown everything in the house at him."

Pike called their relationship one of "kids and conflict" and asked Browning if she understood how much a couple fighting and constant calls to police tax the system.

Thompson's father and sister made statements prior to sentencing as well. Both asked for him to receive drug treatment instead of prison time.

"Give him the three years (maximum) hanging over his head and if he messes up, I will come in myself and tell you," John Thompson Sr. said.

His sister, Darla Davis, said she and her brother grew up in a home of domestic violence. After some time in prison, their father did a complete turnaround. While she admits she has been in an abusive relationship, she believes her brother should want better for his family.

Hura said his client continues to maintain his innocence regarding the charge and asked Pike to appoint another attorney to file an appeal on Thompson's behalf. Pike denied a request that the sentence be held until after an appeal is heard. He did grant Thompson credit for 194 days served.

"I'm not saying you are a bad person," Pike said. "Some how, some way, we need to send a message. You have a father who has set a good example of how to turn your life around."

At the same time, Pike had asked Browning about whether Thompson was with her when East Liverpool police claim he violated the protection order forbidding them to be together. Although she denied it, Pike pointed out he does not think Browning was telling the truth and Thompson shows a disregard for whether rules really apply to him.

In other sentencing before Pike on Monday morning:

— Dereck J. Barnhart, 38, Hull Road, Salineville, who stole a long list of items from a disabled neighbor in 2011 and fled police at high speeds in 2012, was sentenced to two years prison.

According to court documents, Barnhart went into Ronald Riggle's garage on West Water Street in September 2011, taking tools, metals, pieces of lawn or motor vehicle equipment, a forklift, an antique stove, lawn mowers, propane and gas tanks. Then on June 18, 2012, he fled from Patrolman Adam Little of Salineville police at high rates of speed, crossing into oncoming travel lanes, passing on a blind curve and continuing for about 8.6 miles. His convictions were for theft, breaking and entering and failure to comply with the orders of a police officer.

Barnhart blamed alcohol for his extensive criminal record, noting the fleeing charge was entirely caused by drinking.

"I'm ashamed of myself," Barnhart said. "I'm almost 40 years old."

A man Barnhart has done construction work for in the past spoke on his behalf, as did Barnhart's attorney James Lanzo, who called him a "hard-working young man" who often is steadily employed, who supports a family and makes child support payments.

Pike cited Barnhart's extensive criminal record as contributing to his decision to sentence him to two years in prison.

— Jonathan M. Cobb, 21, Roosevelt Avenue, Salem, was found eligible for a program at Eastern Ohio Correctional Center and sentenced to go there as soon as a bed is available. In the meantime, he will remain incarcerated in the county jail.

At a previous sentencing in mid-March, Pike had requested Cobb be evaluated for the EOCC after it became apparent that if he had received prison time or probation, he would eventually have no home to go to. Pike assured Cobb that following his time in the EOCC, where he will receive counseling, the probation department will work with the Columbiana County Counseling Center to find housing for Cobb.

"I'm sorry for everything I have done," Cobb said. "I'm just ready to move on."

He was ordered to have no further contact with his mother, unless she requests contact through the probation department. It was her home he was accused of burglarizing.

Fairfield trustees agree to deal to bring power to ballfield

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP — Trustee Chairman Bob Hum was authorized to sign an agreement with Ohio Edison to place electrical service in the township's ballfield during its April 4 meeting.

Trustees approved the measure with a 3-0 vote and Hum will sign a general service line installation contract with the company which agreed to pay for $6,350 of the $10, 583 cost.

The township's 40 percent will be $4,773 and taken from the Ohio Edison aggregation line item.

The upgrades will help the Crestview Baseball Association which requested putting electricity at the ballfield.

Hum has been in touch with an Ohio Edison engineer from Akron and explained the deed and an easement is needed before the company will assign the project to its Salem-based construction crew.

In other business, Road Supervisor Melvin Miller advised the board the department began sweeping intersections to remove snow control materials including in front of the school and replaced culverts on Short and Kirk Roads while adding two catch basins.

Miller said the crew patched roads as needed and worked on ditches.

Trustees also approved obtaining road maintenance materials from four nearby companies as it has customarily done in the past.

The action allows Miller to use his discretion to find the best deal for material including delivery costs.

Trustees also decided to take care of a firearm it owns from the days when it employed a constable.

Hum said the Glock 40 has been in the safe. "I'm not interested in selling it," Hum said, adding, "I don't want it disappearing and something evil happening and it's traced back to us."

Hum said, "I have access to a plasma cutter, we can cut it up and put it back in the safe ... I think it's a loose end ... and we'll put the parts back in the bag."

Trustee approved the action with a 3-0 vote and Hum noted there are two or three ballistic vests and wanted to "figure out a way to destroy" them.

"They're expired," he said, suggesting a band saw might be the way to destroy them. "I don't want them ending up at the Rogers Sale."

DIY Wishing Well

How do you make a wish? Some do it on birthday candles, others on stars. You could do it by throwing a penny into a well or while brushing a fallen eyelash from the cheek of a loved one. One of my personal favorites is to wish on the Aries new moon, a cosmic genie of sorts. Tonight is the pre-party, and it's a perfect time to get your wishes in order!

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You are wary of doing things that you expect the general public will find impressive, because you don't seek attention or reputation. It's more important that you quietly serve your key people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you talk about what you're doing, sometimes you don't sound so enthusiastic. Are you more excited than your expressions suggest? If not, how can you drum up more enthusiasm?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You can't control how other people take your words. When what you say inspires an unintended consequence, you'll suddenly find yourself on an interesting ride into the psyche of another.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The feeling that your options are limited brings on a self-fulfilling state and one that is far from the truth. When you are aware of the situation around you, you will have more options.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Sometimes it feels like you never, ever, ever get a break. Everyone seems too focused on what they want to consider your part. So instead of waiting around, give yourself the break you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Try to envision the long-term picture for every decision you make today. Short-term gains may feed something shallow and immediate while starving a deeper part of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Those who have a reputation for being difficult may have cultivated that perception for a long time, but you'll break through it with your kindness and attention to detail.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You don't mind if another person wants to take charge, unless the task has already been assigned to you. Just know that it's only because you make it seem so fun that they can't help but rush in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Efficient interactions are preferred in business, but when it comes to your pleasure, things don't have to be so buttoned up. Loose, lingering and meandering connections will bring you joy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The menacing creatures of the woods usually come with sounds to match their nature: roars, growls and the like. But in the civilized world, the ones to watch out for may coo with enticingly smooth tones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You feel comfortable enough to take action in certain situations but not in others. Pushing to the edges of your comfort zone is favored today, but crossing into territory deep beyond them won't help anyone, least of all you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There's too much to be accomplished for you to abandon the plan, though you may decide to approach it differently -- namely, with a smile. You are playful and fun, but you will stay on task all the same.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 9). People feel comfortable around you because you communicate warmly, purposefully and succinctly. It's a skill you'll continue to cultivate this year to great effect. Relationships of all kinds blossom over the next 10 weeks. You'll cash in on an investment in March and July. You'll accept a stellar offer in October. Pisces and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 4, 13, 24 and 10.

HOW TO WISH: Aladdin rubbed a lamp. Jacob rubbed a monkey's paw. From the fisherman who caught a magic fish to countless movie characters in need of a plot device, the act of wishing runs through storytelling ancient to modern. And a common lesson of these stories is that people typically don't wish wisely: money and riches, love undeserved, positions unearned. Such wishing is bound to bring about unforeseen circumstances and an "I told you so" along the lines of "be careful what you wish for." So how could you cast your wishes wisely on this eve of the Aries new moon?

1. Word your wishes well. Write down the phrasing, and test each word for integrity, clarity and specificity. Do this as if you were communicating with someone who would translate your words to a mother tongue or to someone half-deaf.
2. Don't wish for money. Figure out what you're going to do with the money, and wish for that instead.
3. Wish for something that will help others as it is helping you.
4. Tack on "this or something better" for good measure, acknowledging to the universe that your view may be limited compared to that of the creative spirit that animates the cosmic wishing well!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I read in the newspaper a reference to FAMILY PICTURES and would like to suggest an additional point.

I am our family's genealogist, and I have borrowed some of my cousins' pictures and scanned them into my computer. I created files, arranged them in chronological order by black-and-white and then color. After, I copied the files onto flash drives and returned the pictures, as well as the flash drives. Now we all have a collection of family photos that we didn't have before. This has brought our relationships closer in spite of the long distances. Hope you can use this suggestion. -- John Valdez, via email

I'm happy to print your excellent hint, and a big hug to you for doing all of the work! -- Heloise

DONATE MAGAZINES

Dear Heloise: I read your column every day in the paper and also in Good Housekeeping. I actually keep a file of all your hints that I find helpful.

I have many magazines that I would like to donate, but I don't know where to take them. Can you suggest venues? Most of them are home, remodeling and fashion magazines. -- Lucille C. in San Antonio

Lucille, there are many places that will accept the magazines. You will need to call to double-check that they want them and if they have any specific needs or wants.

Here are some places to check:
-- Grade-school, high-school or college art departments or classes.

-- Ask family, friends or co-workers, who may want them for crafts.

If current copies:
-- Nursing or assisted-living homes.
-- Ask the reference desk at the library.

Hopefully, one of these places will be happy to receive the magazines you have. -- Heloise

GARAGE-DOOR OPENER

Dear Heloise: Recently, my husband, David, installed a garage-door opener. We found out that our wired 10-button box on the outside and the button inside of the garage door were not compatible with the new opener. We wanted an additional switch on the inside door frame. Dave came up with the idea to put self-gripping tape on one of the remote controls and attach it to the inside of the door frame. We can get in the garage and immediately hit the button to close the garage door. He made it so easy. -- Alice in Youngstown, Ohio

AN UNDIE LAUGH

Dear Heloise: I had to laugh at an item suggesting accounting for all undies in the laundry, lest they fall out conspicuously later. I had a similar experience years ago. Just a few days after my husband and I got married and I did our laundry for the first time, my husband and his father went on an errand together. As they were walking out in public, a pair of pink undies fell from my husband's clothes -- there were a couple of guys with pink faces! -- Linda, via email

Bisexual woman should show colors

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to your answer to "Bi in the Deep South" (Jan. 2), the woman who is happily married to a man, but who now realizes she is bisexual and wants to come out.

My wife is an out bisexual woman. You were correct that it is possible to be bisexual without having acted on it, as people are not defined solely by the partner they have. Precisely for that reason, some individuals feel that "bisexual" is who they are, and to omit it feels like living a lie.

The notion that stating one's bisexuality is "advertising that one is available" is why my wife chose to come out -- to combat this misconception. Just as straights can be attracted to people of the opposite sex besides their spouse, so might a coupled bisexual person be attracted to other individuals of both genders. Bisexuals, however, are no more likely to ACT on this attraction than anyone else.

"Bi" should just be herself and tell anyone who needs to know when she feels comfortable telling them. And you're right, Abby -- she should tell her husband first. But if her marriage is as strong and happy as she indicated, I'm pretty sure he already knows. I know I did. -- JON IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR JON: Thank you for writing. The comments I received about that letter were passionate and informed:

DEAR ABBY: Bisexual women and men who begin identifying and clarifying their sexual identities in the context of committed relationships need spaces where they can sort through their understandings of themselves.

A support group that is either counselor- or peer-led, in-person or online, can be an important resource to help "Bi in the Deep South" recognize that others have also experienced what she is going through and she can learn from them. She will see there is a place of support and encouragement where it's OK to talk about what bisexuality means for her. Being part of such a group can be particularly liberating. -- LICENCED COUNSELOR, AUSTIN, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: If "Bi in the Deep South" is comfortable enough with who she is to tell someone, she should not be advised to stay in the closet to any degree. She has the right to be honest with herself and her family and not go through life hiding.

As for posting one's sexual orientation on social media profiles, doing so does not change your relationship status. You can be both "in a committed relationship" AND "bisexual." They are not mutually exclusive. -- BI IN THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST

DEAR ABBY: There is real power in coming out, in voicing your authentic self. There is an emotional cost to remaining silent. Many who do so feel like they are allowing others to assume things about them that are just not true. I speak from personal experience. I was silent for five years, and the day I started talking about the fact that I am bisexual, I felt as though a huge weight had been lifted off me.

I hope "Bi in the Deep South" will find the courage to come out and fly her rainbow colors. Although she may have to correct some people's misconceptions of what it means to identify as bisexual, she will feel much better. -- ROBYN IN MASSACHUSETTS

Cirrhosis not always due to alcohol abuse

Dr. Keith Roach

DEAR DR.

ROACH: I am 77 years old and recently have been diagnosed with cirrhosis of the liver. I do not drink and never have! Apparently this has been caused by a buildup of fat. I am now watching everything I eat and have cut out fried foods completely. Is there any hope for me at all? I thought that the liver regenerated itself every so often? I am healthy otherwise. -- M.P.

ANSWER: Cirrhosis of the liver is a chronic liver disease where much of the normal liver is replaced by fibrous and scar tissue, along with nodules of regenerating liver cells. Cirrhosis can be caused by many different conditions, including alcohol abuse, but certainly not every case of cirrhosis is caused by alcohol. The most common causes of cirrhosis in the U.S. and Canada now are hepatitis C, alcohol abuse and fatty liver. All kinds of cirrhosis are worsened by exposure to alcohol, so being a never-drinker is good sign for you.

Non-alcoholic fatty liver disease is commonly, but not always, associated with being overweight, especially extra weight in the abdomen (as opposed to hips and thighs), and with prediabetes or diabetes. However, there are other causes, such as sleep apnea and untreated hypothyroidism.

In obese people, the rate of nonalcoholic fatty liver disease ranges from 50 percent to 90 percent. Only about 5 percent of people with fatty liver go on to develop cirrhosis. Even a 5 percent to 10 percent loss of body weight can prevent progression, and some medications are showing promise at preventing progression.

Once cirrhosis has set in, it usually isn't curable; however, that certainly doesn't mean there is no hope! There are many important things that can be done to prevent problems, even in people with cirrhosis. A few are easy: Get vaccinated against hepatitis A and hepatitis B. These viruses can be very serious to someone with existing liver disease, and are completely preventable with vaccination. Also, diet is very important. In addition to avoiding all alcohol (which you already have done), people with cirrhosis should avoid undercooked or raw foods, especially seafood like shellfish. Your doctor will periodically look at your liver to evaluate for precursors of liver cancer, and may recommend medication to prevent bleeding in the esophagus, both of which are complications of cirrhosis.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Twenty-six years ago, at age 42, I was infected with Gardnerella by my philandering husband

Salem teen competes in pageants

Isabella Greathouse, 16, is a sophomore attending Salem High School. She works at McDonald's and in her free time likes to act, model, do pageants, volunteer at the Banquet in Salem and read to young children. On April 19 and 20 she will compete in two pageants, Dream Girls U.S.A. and Young American Miss International. Isabella is representing Salem and the state of Ohio. The first-place winner receives a $5,000 cash prize. Isabella, daughter of Tracy and Nick Delphia of Salem, feels honored she was selected to be a part of the pageants. She could not do it without the help and support from everyone. When Isabella is older she said she wants to be a cop or chef — and continue her modeling career. ▶ MLB Hafner, Yanks spoil Indians' opener, 11-6

CLEVELAND (AP) — Travis Hafner tipped his cap and soaked in the applause from Indians fans who spent 10 years pulling for him.

The love ended after his first at-bat. Hafner hit a tone-setting, three-run homer in the first inning and drove in four runs in his Cleveland homecoming, and Robinson Cano busted out of his early slump with two homers as the injury-riddled New York Yankees ruined the Indians' highly anticipated home opener under manager Terry Francona with an 11-6 win Monday.

In a ballpark he knows better than any, Hafner turned the cheers to boos with one swing.

"If you're playing for the Yankees and do well, you're going to get booed," he said.

Hafner homered in the first off Ubaldo Jimenez (0-1) and added an RBI single in the third. Cano connected in the fifth and sixth for the Yankees, who are trying to hold on until All-Stars Derek Jeter, Alex Rodriguez, Curtis Granderson and Mark Teixeira get healthy and come off the disabled list.

Hiroki Kuroda (1-1) shook off a shaky, 34-pitch first and showed no signs of being bothered by a bruised right middle finger as the Yankees finally won a home opener after losing their own and Detroit's last week.

It was a sweet return for Hafner, who spent 10 seasons with the Indians before signing a one-year, $2 million free agent contract in February with New York. His shot over the fence in center — his 100th career homer at Progressive Field — seemed to deflate Cleveland's sellout crowd that had been counting down the days until Francona and the Indians came home.

So was that Hafner's plan? "Not a bad plan," he said, smiling.

Hafner, who hit a career-high 42 homers for the Indians in 2006 but was slowed by injuries in recent years, received a warm ovation during pregame introductions.

"It was really special," Hafner said. "It's something I'll never forget. There's so many people here I know. It's a little strange seeing people with

Raiders finish strong vs. Eagles, 15-0

HANOVERTON — Following the first inning of the South Range Raiders 15-0 victory over United on Monday afternoon, South Range coach Don Feren wasn't pleased with what he saw.

"First inning, we went 1-2-3 and I said, 'Hey our level has dropped five levels from what we were playing at down there (Myrtle Beach).'" Feren said. "They picked it up as the game went on. For us to have the type of season that we want, we need to play at that upper level all of the time."

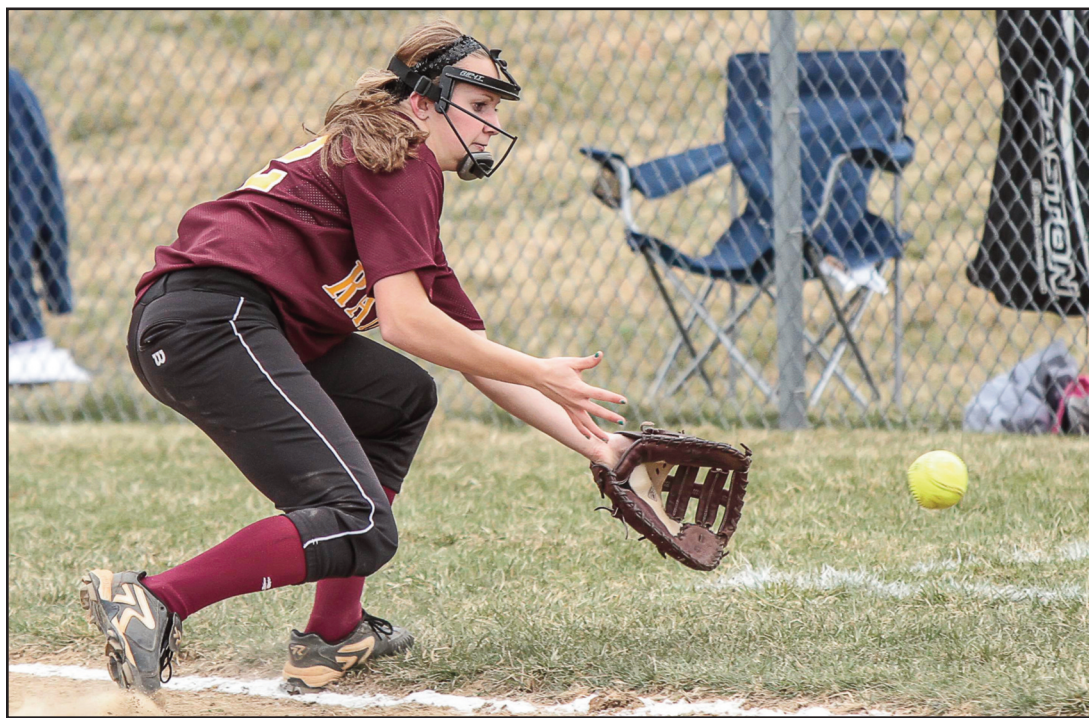

Whatever hangover that the Raiders (4-1, 1-0 in the Inter-Tri County League upper tier) may have been shaking off from their return on Friday from a stint of games in Myrtle Beach, S.C., had little effect as the innings wore on against the Eagles.

South Range tacked on a pair of runs in the second and third innings before blowing things open in the fourth with a five run outburst.

"I thought we were a little rough from coming back on Friday, we hadn't done anything over the weekend, but we needed to pick up a level a bit," Feren said. "We hit the ball pretty well tonight. You can't take anyone for granted because that's when teams will jump on you."

Feren and the Raiders want to carry over momentum from a trip that saw them go 3-1 against stiff competition in the Carolinas. Against an overmatched United team on Monday, the Raiders tacked on six more in the seventh to widen their margin.

Bingham steps down from EP coaching post

EAST PALESTINE — Sometime this season, East Palestine basketball coach Tom Bingham started thinking hard about his coaching future.

That's when he knew it was time to step aside.

"It's like (former Steelers coach) Chuck Knoll used to say 'When you start thinking about it, then it's time,'" Bingham said.

Choking back emotion, Bingham made the announcement of his resignation as basketball coach at the East Palestine school board meeting on Monday.

He said the board of education and Superintendent George Fisk offered him a chance to reconsider, and during that time he just couldn't change his mind.

He said that if he stayed, he wouldn't be able to give 100 percent anymore.

"It's just a lot of time ... a lot of wear and tear mentally and physically," he said.

He added that over the years there have been a lot of sleepless nights—especially the evenings before a game.

"Nothing happened to lead me to this decision, I just felt mentally and physically burned out," he said.

Chinese youngster to play in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Guan Tianlang is in good company this week at Augusta National.

He played a practice round Monday with two-time Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, then headed out in the afternoon with Tiger Woods. He has a game lined up Tuesday with Tom Watson, an eight-time major champion. On Wednesday, he plans to play the Par 3 Tournament with Nick Faldo, winner of six majors.

Can't he play with someone his own age?

Not at this Masters. Guan is the 14-year-old from China, the youngest to ever play in the Masters and the youngest player at any major in 148 years. He qualified by winning the Asia Pacific Amateur Championship last fall in Thailand, and now he gets a crack at the best in the game, on one of the most famous golf courses in the world.

Louisville holds off Michigan, 82-76

ATLANTA (AP) — Rick Pitino capped the greatest week of his life with the prize he wanted most of all.

Luke Hancock produced another huge game off the bench, scoring 22 points, and Pitino became the first coach to win national titles at two schools when relentless Louisville rallied from another 12-point deficit to beat Michigan 82-76 in the NCAA championship game Monday night.

This title came on the same day Pitino was announced as a member of the latest Hall of Fame class, a couple of days after his horse won a big race on the way to the Kentucky Derby, and a few more days after his son got the head coaching job at Minnesota.

This was the best feeling of all. The Cardinals (35-5) lived up to their billing as the top overall seed in the tournament, though they sure had to work for it.

Louisville trailed Wichita State by a dozen in the second half of the national semifinals, before rallying for a 72-68 victory. This time, they fell behind by 12 in the first half, though a stunning spurt at the end of the period wiped out the entire deficit.

1947 — Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is suspended for one year by Commissioner A.B. "Happy" Chandler for "conduct detrimental to baseball." Durocher is linked to gambling interests.

1950 — Jimmy Demaret wins his third Masters, by two strokes over Jim Ferrier.

1962 — Arnold Palmer wins a three-way playoff, beating Gary Player and Dow Finsterwald in the Masters.

1978 — Gary Player shoots a final-round 64 to win his third Masters, edging Hubert Green, Rod Funseth and defending champion Tom Watson by a shot.

1978 — Denver's David Thompson, battling San Antonio's George Gervin for the NBA season scoring title, scores 73 points against the Detroit Pistons. It's the third-highest output ever in an NBA game. Gervin, not to be outdone, later scores 63 against the New Orleans Jazz. It's just enough to give Gervin the scoring crown, 27.22 points per game to Thompson's 27.15, the tightest one-two finish ever.

1989 — Britain's Nick Faldo makes a 25-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the Masters. Runner-up Scott Hoch missed a 2-foot putt for par on the first hole of the playoff that would have given him the title.

1993 — The Pittsburgh Penguins beat the New York Rangers 10-4 for their 16th straight win to break the NHL record of 15 held by the New York Islanders.

2000 — Fiji native Vijay Singh meets every challenge to win the Masters, closing with a 3-under 69 for a three-stroke victory over Ernie Els.

RAIDERS FROM 1B

"It's good because we play teams that we've never even heard of," South Range senior Darrian Yanek said. "Teams around here, we have been growing up around and we know them, I think that's probably the coolest part of those games."

Yanek took the win for the Raiders on the mound, going seven innings without allowing any runs and scattering three hits. Yanek struck out seven and didn't issue a free pass. "I'm more of a junk ball pitcher," Yanek said. "I rely on my curve or my screwball or changeup — tonight mostly my changeup," Yanek said. "I think we need to keep that same mentality like we had down there, like we are playing those Division I schools."

This was the third trip in as many years that the Raiders have made the trip south, but the first for both the J.V. and varsity clubs. Road trips are often a setting where teams can learn about each other and grow together, for the Raiders it was no different.

"We group them as varsity and J.V., so a lot of those J.V. players, even though they may know each other, it's the first time they've actually had to live with each other," Feren said. "It makes them work through things and learn how to deal with each other not just on a softball field but over all."

Building team chemistry will help keep South Range mentally focused throughout this upcoming season, and the Raiders echoed their coach's sentiment about taking each opponent seriously.

"It's very mental because if you come to a game thinking 'we played them before and beat them, and slack off, you never know what can happen,'" South Range senior Carly

DeRose. "The other team can come out and play hard and beat you just because you're not mentally prepared and you're not playing like every play matters."

Kiersten Fillman took the loss for United. She pitched the complete game, allowing 13 earned runs on 10 hits. South Range and United are back in action today at South Range.

Game Notes

— South Range's Carly DeRose will be playing softball at Slippery Rock next spring. The senior pitcher made her decision in November and signed during the early signing period.

"The campus is amazing, the campus really won me over," DeRose said. "Everyone there is one big family, the coaches are younger so they get along with the players well and they make you feel like you are at home."

DeRose will continue to pitch at South Range. She compiled 49 strikeouts in 23 innings in Myrtle Beach.

— While in South Carolina, the Raiders' Darrian Yanek connected on her first home run of the season. Her family made the trip to Myrtle Beach while the team was there and was in the stands when Yanek's homer sailed over the fence.

"My dad was watching and so was my mom, so that was probably one of the best memories that I've had down there," Yanek said. "All the families are down there, and there's a big nice cheering section and everyone is cheering for you, it's just awesome."

Francona gets lost before home opener

CLEVELAND (AP) — Terry Francona has 80 more games to find his way to Progressive Field. His first trip was an adventure.

Call it an unintentional walk.

Cleveland's new manager said he got lost Monday making the two-block walk from his apartment to the ballpark for the Indians' home opener against the New York Yankees.

Francona is living in downtown Cleveland during the season and he plans to ride a small scooter he used during spring training in Arizona for the short commute to the ballpark. However, he decided to hit the streets on foot early in the morning and ended up needing directions to find his new workplace.

"I got lost three times," he said. "Even when I got to the garage two people who work here said, 'Hey, do you know where you're going?' I was like, 'Nope.'"

Fortunately for Francona, an Indians employee picked him up in a golf cart and got him to the stadium.

Boston's manager for eight seasons, Francona was overwhelmed by the assistance he received while encountering a few fans on his maiden voyage.

"Cleveland is officially the nicest people I've ever met," he said. "Everybody

TERRY FRANCONA

I did walk by said, 'Hello.' That's a little different than I'm used to."

Francona said he has always preferred to stay as close as possible to where he works.

"I like being close to the ballpark, always have," he said. "If I had my druthers on the road, I would rather stay in a motel next to the ballpark than have to drive a half-hour."

Francona was looking forward to catching a ceremonial first pitch from his father, Tito, who played outfield for the Indians from 1959-64. The Franconas were to take part in special pregame festivities involving several Indians players and their fathers.

"That will be really cool for me," Francona said.

As a kid, Francona often visited Cleveland's old ballpark with his dad and that's where he got his nickname, "Tito."

"Guys would say, 'Hey, little Tito,'" Francona said. "It just kind of stuck."

Hafner Indians jerseys. It was strange coming to the visiting clubhouse and visiting dugout. It was a little weird, but overall it was great being back here."

Cano walked with one out and Kevin Youkilis singled before a slimmed-down Hafner, who lost 15 pounds during spring training, drove a 2-0 pitch from Jimenez over the wall in center for his second homer with New York. As he rounded the bases, Hafner, the man known simply as "Pronk" was booed — it didn't take Indians fans long to swear him off as a new enemy.

"They're passionate fans here," Hafner said. "I knew with me playing for the Yankees the cheers wouldn't last too long."

It was a breakout game for Cano, who came in batting .130 with no extra-base hits or RBIs. Manager Joe Girardi knew it wouldn't take long for Cano to bust out.

"I haven't even seen anything change Robbie's attitude no matter what's he's going through," Girardi said. "He come to the ballpark ready to work with a smile on his face and having fun. I wasn't worried."

Mike Aviles hit a two-run homer in the eighth for the rebuilt Indians, who lost the opener of a 10-game home-stand after going 3-3 on the road.

After Francona was hired in October, Cleveland owner Paul Dolan spent nearly $120 million on free agents like Nick Swisher, Michael Bourn and Brett Myers. The Indians, though, may not have enough starting pitching to contend and that was the case against the Yankees as Jimenez was tagged for seven runs in 4 1-3 innings.

The Indians beat two Cy Young winners — R.A. Dickey and David Price — on their season-opening road trip, but couldn't keep pace with the Yankees.

LOUISVILLE

FROM 1B

For that, they can thank Hancock, named the most outstanding player. He came off the bench to hit four straight 3-pointers after Michigan got a boost from an even more unlikely player, freshman Spike Albrecht. He, too, made four straight from beyond the arc, blowing by his career high before the break with 17 points. Coming in, Albrecht was averaging 1.8 points a game and had not scored more than seven all season.

While Albrecht didn't do much in the second half, Hancock finished what he started for Louisville. He buried another 3 from the corner with 3:20 remaining to give the Cardinals their biggest lead, 76-66. Michigan wouldn't go away, but Hancock wrapped it up by making two free throws with 29 seconds left.

While Pitino shrugged off any attempt to make this about him, there was no doubt the Cardinals wanted to win a national title for someone else — injured guard Kevin Ware.

Watching again from his seat at the end of the Louisville bench, his injured right leg propped up on a chair, Ware smiled and slapped hands with his teammates as they celebrated in the closing seconds, the victory coming just 30 miles from where he played his high school ball.

Any pain he was feeling from that gruesome injury in the regional final, when he landed awkwardly, snapped his leg and was left writhing on the floor with the bone sticking through the skin, was long gone as he hobbled gingerly onto the court with the aid of crutches, backing in a sea of confetti and streamers.

Peyton Siva added 18 points for the Cardinals, who closed the season on a 16-game winning streak, and Chane Behanan chipped in with 15 points and 12 rebounds as Louisville slowly but surely closed out the Wolverines (31-8).

Michigan was in the title game for the first time since the Fab Five lost the second of two straight championship games in 1993. Players from that team, including Chris Webber, cheered on the latest group.

Verrazano regains No. 1 spot in AP Derby rankings

NEW YORK (AP) — Verrazano will attempt to break a longstanding Kentucky Derby jinx — win the race without having run as a 2-year-old.

It's been done before, but only once in 138 previous runnings, and that occurred in 1882 when Apollo won the Run for the Roses.

Since 1937, 57 3-year-olds have tried and failed to win the Derby without having raced at 2. Three finished second, Coaltown in 1948, Strodes Creek in 1994 and Bode-meister last year, and four others finished third. The rest? Off the board.

After winning the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct over the weekend, an unbeaten Verrazano will take his turn on May 4. On Monday, the colt reclaimed the No. 1 spot in the AP's latest Run to the Roses' Top 10 list of Derby contenders, with Florida Derby winner Orb dropping to second.

Bryan Sullivan of co-owner Let's Go Stable says the topic has been discussed, noting Verrazano was set to run in late December but a suitable race was unavailable. The colt's first race was the day he turned 3 — Jan. 1, 2013 — and he won by 7½ lengths at Gulfstream Park.

"At some point, it's going to be broken and, obviously, we'd love to be the people that do it," Sullivan said recently of the 2-year-old jinx. "But I don't think that's going to stop us. I don't think I'm going to point after the Kentucky Derby and say, 'Geez, you know what? The reason why we didn't win it is because we didn't run nine days earlier.'"

Adds trainer Todd Pletcher: "If they had a race on New Year's Eve he would have won that. That's totally out of our control. I think one thing we've seen over the last 10 years is all the Derby jinxes and Derby trends have been blown up, starting with Barbaro."

In 2006, Barbaro became the first horse since 1956 to win the Derby off a five-week layoff. Some others: In 2007, Street Sense became the first Breeders' Cup Juvenile winner and the first 2-year-old champion since Spectacular Bid in 1979 to win it; in 2008, Big Brown became the first horse to win from the No. 20 post; and in 2009 Mine That Bird joined Funny Cide (2003) as one of two geldings to win since 1929.

Here's our Top 10:

1. Verrazano (Todd Pletcher, trainer; John Velazquez, jockey): Fended off two rivals in stretch of Wood Memorial to improve to 4-0. ... Will attempt to become eighth Derby winner with unbeaten record. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby, Churchill Downs, May 4. ... Final Derby future wager odds: 7-1.

2. Orb (Shug McGaughey, John Velazquez): New rider possible since Velazquez is likely to stick with Verrazano if he's healthy enough to ride after a weekend spill. ... Florida Derby winner takes four-race winning streak to Derby. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 13-1.

3. Revolutionary (Pletcher, Javier Castellano): Louisiana Derby winner gives Pletcher a strong No. 2. ... Son of War Pass has won three in a row. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 12-1.

4. Goldencents (Doug O'Neill, Kevin Krigger): Big effort to win Santa Anita Derby gives O'Neill a shot at second straight Derby win. ... Last African-American jockey to win Derby was Jimmy Winkfield in 1902. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 49-1.

5. Itsmyluckyday (Eddie Plesa Jr., Elvis Trujillo): Florida Derby runner-up has been in the money in eight of 10 starts. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 10-1.

6. Normandy Invasion (Chad Brown, Castellano): Despite only a maiden win, strong finish to get second in Wood has colt's stock rising. ... Castellano has choice to make since he also rides Revolutionary. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 18-1.

7. Will Take Charge (D. Wayne Lukas, Jon Court): Rebel winner may or may not run in Blue Grass before heading to Churchill Downs. ... Next start: Undecided. ... Odds: 19-1.

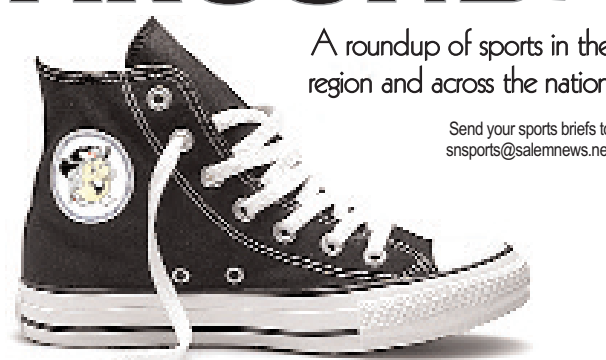

8. Vyjack (Rudy Rodriguez, Joel Rosario): Unbeaten no longer after third-place finish in Wood. ... Wins in Jerome and Gotham make him a legit Derby prospect. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 10-1.

9. Oxbow (Lukas, Mike Smith): Worked 6 furlongs in 1:14.60 Friday at Oaklawn. ... Edged by stablemate Will Take Charge in Rebel. ... Next start: Arkansas Derby, Oaklawn Park, Saturday. ... Odds: 21-1.

10. Govenor Charlie (Baffert, Martin Garcia): Can a Sunland Derby winner take the real Derby, too? ... Bloodlines indicate colt can indeed get 1 1/4-mile Derby distance. ... Next start: Kentucky Derby. ... Odds: 5-1 (mutuel field).

Keep an eye on: Black Onyx, Falling Sky, Mylute, Uncaptured, War Academy.

McCartney to perform 1st public concert at Safeco

SEATTLE (AP) — Paul McCartney will perform the first public concert at Safeco Field on July 19.

The former Beatles bassist will play the home of the Seattle Mariners as part of his "Out There" tour, Live Nation announced on Monday. McCartney already has announced dates for Boston's Fenway Park and Nationals Ballpark in Washington. The Beach Boys played a private concert at Safeco Field in 2008. McCartney's show will be the first public concert, according to the Mariners.

Aside from baseball, the stadium has hosted a college football bowl game, World Cup soccer qualifying and WWE's WrestleMania.

Tickets will go on sale Friday. The stadium is expected to hold more than 40,000 for the show.

Juneau police investigate if coach punched player

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Two Juneau football coaches have been placed on administrative leave while police and state officials investigate whether a coach punched a player and knocked him unconscious during a boxing match held last year during an out-of-state football camp.

One piece of evidence police are looking at is grainy video that appears to show the incident. It was posted on YouTube but has since been removed by the website as a violation of its anti-bullying policy.

The video showed a boxing match with two people wearing gloves. The smaller boxer was hit in the face. After turning away, the smaller boxer was punched from behind and floored as those watching cheered. It's not clear who shot the video.

The boy's father tells the Juneau Empire he was provided a copy of the video by Juneau police after he learned of its existence from Thunder Mountain principal Dan Larson. The Associated Press is not identifying anyone the father or son because the boy is a minor who might be the victim of a crime. Attempts to reach the father Monday were not immediately successful.

Boy with cancer scores big with Cornhuskers fans

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Standing barely chest-high to his Nebraska teammates, 7-year-old Jack Hoffman was the star of the Cornhuskers' spring game this weekend after taking home the title of leading rusher.

And now his 69-yard touchdown, along with his story about fighting brain cancer, is attracting millions of fans.

Video of Jack dressed in a full Nebraska uniform, charging down the field Saturday before more than 60,000 fans, had been viewed more than 2 million times on YouTube by Monday. It also aired on ESPN and national news networks.

His father says he hopes Jack's memorable touchdown will highlight the need for more research into pediatric brain cancer.

Jack, who lives in Atkinson, Neb., was diagnosed in 2011. He's had two surgeries and is on a two-week break from a 60-week chemotherapy regimen.

Rutgers reviewing all sports practice videos

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Rutgers officials are scrutinizing practice videos of all sports to see if any coach engaged in behavior like the type that cost men's basketball coach Mike Rice his job, the university president announced Monday.

The inquiry into Rice and how university officials responded is also going deeper as the school announced that it plans to hire a consultant to conduct an independent review.

University President Robert Barchi, speaking Monday during a town hall meeting on the school's Newark campus, said he wants any instances of bullying or homophobic language to be reported immediately.

He also reiterated that he wished he had viewed the video where Rice — whom Gov. Chris Christie on Monday called an "animal" — shoved players and called them gay slurs when it first surfaced in November, saying he would have fired Rice then.

Yankees to host Spain-Ireland, Man City-Chelsea

NEW YORK (AP) — World and European champion Spain will play an exhibition game on June 11 at Yankee Stadium, which also will host a postseason friendly between Manchester City and Chelsea on May 25.

Spain, which leads second-place France by one point in Group I of European qualifying for next year's World Cup, does not play another qualifier until Sept. 6 at Finland but will get getting ready for the Confederations Cup in Brazil.

Ireland, which hosts the Faeroe Islands in a qualifier on June 7, is fourth in Group C, eight points back of Germany and trailing Austria and Sweden on goal difference.

Manchester City also plays Chelsea on May 23 at Busch Stadium in St. Louis.

City has toured North America in two of the last three years in an attempt to boost its profile in the region.

Auriemma looks for eighth national championship

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Geno Auriemma has never lost an NCAA championship game.

Of course, his UConn Huskies haven't had to face a team like upstart Louisville, which is making an unprecedented run through the tournament. A victory Tuesday night over the Cardinals would be UConn's eighth title, matching them with Tennessee for the most ever in women's basketball.

Auriemma didn't want to think about it. "Talking about things that haven't happened yet is never a good idea," Auriemma said.

History is on the Hall of Fame coach's side: UConn is 7-0 in title games, including a victory in the 2009 game against Louisville and the 2004 game that was also played in New Orleans. That game was the college finale of Diana Taurasi, who finished with three straight championships.

NFL, ex-players prep for battle over concussions

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — With perhaps billions of dollars at stake, a hearing Tuesday over concussion litigation filed against the NFL promises to be a contest between legal lions.

About 4,200 former players have sued the league. Some suffer from dementia, depression, Alzheimer's disease and other neurological problems. Others simply want their health monitored.

And a small number, including Ray Easterling and 12-time Pro Bowler Junior Seau, committed suicide after long downward spirals.

The players' lawyers accuse the NFL of promoting violence in the game and concealing known cognitive risks from concussions and other blows to the head. They hope to keep the litigation in federal court so they can use the discovery process to access NFL files — and see what the league knew when.

Crosby improving but no timetable for return

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lacing on hockey skates is going to have to wait. At this point, Sidney Crosby would settle for a meal that didn't require a straw.

The Pittsburgh Penguins star and his surgically repaired mouth remain on a liquid diet as he recovers from a broken jaw sustained in a win over the New York Islanders on March 30. The NHL's leading scorer remains sidelined indefinitely and has not been cleared to return to practice.

The Pittsburgh Penguins star and his surgically repaired mouth remain on a liquid diet as he recovers from a broken jaw sustained in a win over the New York Islanders on March 30. The NHL's leading scorer remains sidelined indefinitely and has not been cleared to return to practice.

Crosby — sporting a handful of new teeth — spoke on Monday for the first time since taking a puck to the face in the first period against the Islanders when a slapshot from teammate Brooks Orpik was re-directed at Crosby's face. He crumpled to the ice immediately and spent two days in the hospital while doctors repaired his jaw and tried to minimize the damage.

The concussion-like symptoms that sidelined Crosby for the better part of two seasons have returned. The only side effect he's concerned about at the moment is the inability to chew solid food.

Crosby has been living on milkshakes for the last nine days and admitted keeping weight on is "impossible."

"It hasn't been too enjoyable," he added with a laugh.

The Penguins do have the luxury of time. They clinched a playoff spot on Sunday night and barring an epic collapse will win the Atlantic Division with ease. That gives them more than three weeks to get healthy before the postseason begins, though the injured list continues to grow.

Forward James Neal did not practice on Monday and will miss Pittsburgh's road swing with a concussion. Neal took an elbow to the head from New York's Michael Del Zotto in the third period of a 2-1 shootout victory last Friday. He did not play the final 8½ minutes of regulation or the overtime period.

Neal was battling for a puck near the New York net when Del Zotto — who had his back to Neal — struck Neal in the head. Del Zotto was not disciplined by the NHL office and Neal's teammates declined to speculate on whether the hit was dirty.

"I felt it but I didn't see it," said Crosby, whose 56 points are tops in the league. "It was kind of a weird bounce and just one of those things that happen and having gone a week or however long it's been now, it's gotten better. I feel a lot better than I did after it happened."

Even if Crosby remains unsure when he'll be back on the ice. He expects to meet with doctors later this week but will not be a part of Pittsburgh's three-game road trip that begins on Tuesday in Carolina.

"We'll see how it heals and it will be a process here the next little bit but I'm not too worried about the teeth," Crosby said. "I'm worried about making sure I'm healed and hopefully that's sooner rather than later."

Neal was battling for a puck near the New York net when Del Zotto — who had his back to Neal — struck Neal in the head. Del Zotto was not disciplined by the NHL office and Neal's teammates declined to speculate on whether the hit was dirty.

There has been no indication the concussion-like symptoms that sidelined Crosby for the better part of two seasons have returned. The only side effect he's concerned about at the moment is the inability to chew solid food.

Search called off for kayaking dad, child

SANDUSKY (AP) — Authorities along Lake Erie in Ohio say they have suspended the search for a father and his 12-year-old daughter who were last seen in their kayaks on Sandusky Bay. The Erie County Sheriff's office said two empty kayaks were found floating Sunday morning in the bay, but there was no sign of the 30-year-old man and his daughter. The pair did not have life jackets when they set out on the water early Saturday evening. The sheriff's office says the two who are missing are Jonathan Francis, of Sandusky, and his daughter Viola Francis. Francis' girlfriend tells the Toledo Blade that the weather was mild when they left to kayak. The U.S. Coast Guard and local authorities searched the water with boats and a helicopter while family and friends looked along the shoreline. The search was called off Sunday night.
