Salem cop charged with drunk driving

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — City Police Chief J.T. Panezott said he'll release today what action the administration plans to take in response to the weekend arrest of Patrolman Gary Poage in Canfield for alleged drunken driving.

Poage, 47, of Salem, was charged with OVI and marked lanes after a traffic stop at 2:32 a.m. Sunday on South Broad Street, just south of Fairground Boulevard, blowing a .260 during a portable breath test. The legal limit in Ohio is .08.

According to records on the Mahoning County Court web site, he's scheduled to be arraigned for the misdemeanor charges at 5 p.m. Wednesday in

POAGE

Canfield.

According to the Canfield Police Department report, he was placed under administrative license suspension and his driver's license was seized, so he's not permitted to drive. He has not worked since the incident because he was already scheduled to be off.

When initially contacted about the arrest Monday, Panezott said they were looking at their options. He met with Mayor John Berlin and city Service/Safety Director Ken Kenst Monday afternoon and planned to speak with Poage this morning to discuss the situation. Poage has been a full-time patrolman with the department since June 1993.

According to the incident report narrative, a Canfield police officer on patrol as part of the Mahoning County OVI Task Force saw a red Pontiac traveling southwest on Fairground Boulevard allegedly travel left of center on two occasions while passing Hood Drive. The officer continued to follow and allegedly saw the vehicle begin to weave within the lane of travel and initiated the traffic stop.

In the report, the officer said he made contact with the driver and he said "I observed his eyes to be glassy and I smelled the moderate scent of an alcoholic beverage. I informed him of the reason for the stop and he did not acknowledge the violation."

After he requested his operator's license and proof of insurance and was provided with both, the driver was identified as Poage, who allegedly told the officer "he was on his way home from a 'bad date.'"

After his information was checked and he was determined to be a valid operator, he was asked

Clearwater inspections of Damascus homes in works

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

GOSHEN TOWNSHIP— Damascus residents could be getting a letter from the Mahoning County Board of Health seeking permission to conduct a clearwater inspection at their homes.

Trustee Chair Bob McCracken shared a standardized letter that the Sanitary Engineer's Office in conjunction with the Board of Health is sending to residents following a recent sanitary sewer project. The letter states that there is a potential for an excess of clearwater (storm or rain water) from footer drains, down spouts and sump pumps entering the sewer system. A clearwater inspection of each home should have been completed at the time of the project, but wasn't.

In other business the trustees approved the promotion of Patrolman David Eck from part-time to full-time effective Feb. 10 and approved revised appropriations for 2013 of $1,616,003.88, down from the original $1,700,903.88, since the program used to determine the appropriations would not allow for advances.

Also at the meeting, Trustee Todd Beeson reported that the prosecutor's office has not moved forward on the transfer of Lumberton Cemetery from Berlin Township to Goshen Township due to a discrepancy between the map and survey regarding actual acreage. He said Berlin trustees might conduct a deed search to determine if the cemetery has expanded if the problem is not resolved soon.

The trustees in November agreed to accept full responsibility of the cemetery, located at the corner of Western Reserve Road and state Route 534, under the condition that the township takes full ownership of the property including mineral rights, Berlin Township assumes associated costs of the transaction and Berlin Township residents must pay non-resident rates for plots.

The next regular trustees meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. March 11 at the Administration Building.

Firefighters to pick up new truck Feb. 28

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

Perry Township firefighters plan to pick up their new fire truck from Warren Fire Equipment on Feb. 28, but first they'll be inspecting the new KME pumper from bumper to bumper the day before.

Fire Chief Bruce Whitcher said check everything and take it for a spin to make sure the vehicle passes their approval. Once they get the truck back to their station, they'll transfer their equipment from the old truck to the new truck.

"We're going to get it in service as soon as possible," he said.

Trustees opened bids for a new pumper truck in July, with the low bid totaling $344,988 from Warren Fire Equipment for a KME model. The other bid came from Tri State Fire Apparatus for a Toyne pumper, with one model for $392,844 and another model for $374,025.

They accepted the bid from Warren Fire Equipment in August, noting a payment discount they're supposed to receive of $6,905, bringing the cost of the truck down to $338,083. The cost of the truck will be covered by fire levy funds and safety forces levy funds.

The new truck will replace

Kosiba shares shale boom story at Cleveland summit

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

MAYFIELD HEIGHTS — Speaking at the Crain Cleveland Shale Summit 2013 last Tuesday, Larry Kosiba, the executive director of the Sustainable Opportunity Development Center in Salem, got a chance to tell people outside this area how the shale boom was changing things.

Called "Ohio & Shale: Getting it Right" the day-long conference attracted a "sold out" crowd of 600 that brought together people representing industry and civic interests in the shale boom.

The keynote speaker was former Shell Oil Company President John Hofmeister, who is also the founder and chief executive of Citizens for Affordable Energy.

Kosiba's talked about how the shale boom was affecting Salem and Columbiana County with one hard-to-ignore consequence being that Salem now has no less than four hotel developers interested in it, along with the Timberlanes' renovation.

Not only will lodging be an issue, but so will housing, Kosiba said Monday, following up on last week's conference. While five hotels, including Timberlanes, may be useful and even needed, Kosiba is concerned about long-term sustainability and guiding the city through what could be explosive growth in a "smart" way.

'We need to start preparing and get out in front of this stuff or we're going to get overrun.'

Larry Kosiba, executive director, Sustainable Opportunity Development Center

He calls it the "pace" of development and the decisions made will have ramifications stretching years ahead.

Salem could maybe support five hotels for "how long?" he asks. Our role is looking after sustainability, he said adding three or four empty buildings does no one any good.

"We need to look at it from sustainability," he said, "developers need to do their homework ... there will be winners and losers ... it will be great for the building trades ... but how long will they be here?"

He said developers should also consider exit strategies.

Aside from the competition, hype and broad range of considerations, Kosiba sees it as one step at a time, but a quick step. He's seen enough of how the oil gas industry operates.

When the companies need it, they need it now. If the first call fails, they make the second and third until they get it.

It's immediate gratification in the extreme: "I want it all and I want it right now."

Kosiba recognizes that.

"We need to start preparing and get out in front of this stuff or we're going to get overrun," he said, noting infrastructure for transportation, both primary and secondary roads, will need extra maintenance.

He also pointed out that the area lacks rail support, which is necessary to bring in the sands and water for drilling wells.

Communities will see a crunch in lodging and local businesses will see undergraduate management and skilled trades raided as the shale boom tightens its grip.

Kosiba wonders and then worries about those talent pools, noting local companies will need to find ways to attract people siphoned off by the boom.

"Getting them here is the hard part," he said,

Vatican stunned by pope's resignation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With a few words in Latin, Pope Benedict XVI did what no pope has done in more than half a millennium, stunning the world by announcing his resignation Monday and leaving the already troubled Catholic Church to replace the leader of its 1 billion followers by Easter.

Not even his closest associates had advance word of the news, a bombshell that he dropped during a routine meeting of Vatican cardinals. And with no clear favorites to succeed him, another surprise likely awaits when the cardinals elect Benedict's successor next month.

"Without doubt this is a historic moment," said Cardinal Christoph Schoenborn, a protege and former theology student of Benedict's who is considered a papal contender. "Right now, 1.2 billion Catholics the world over are holding their breath."

The Feb. 28 resignation allows for a fast-track conclave to elect a new pope, since the traditional nine days of mourning that would follow a pope's death doesn't have to be observed. It also gives the 85-year-old Benedict great sway over the choice of his successor.

This April 19, 2005 file photo shows Pope Benedict XVI greeting the crowd from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica moments after being elected, at the Vatican. On Monday, Benedict XVI announced he would resign Feb. 28, the first pontiff to do so in nearly 600 years. The decision sets the stage for a conclave to elect a new pope before the end of March. (AP File Photo)

Though he will not himself vote, he has hand-picked the bulk of the College of Cardinals — the princes of the church who will elect his successor — to guarantee his conservative legacy and ensure an orthodox future for the church.

The resignation may mean that age will become less of a factor when electing a new pope, since candidates may no longer feel compelled to stay for life.

"For the century to come, I think that none of Benedict's successors will feel morally obliged to remain until their death," said Paris Cardinal Andre Vingt-Trois.

Benedict said as recently as 2010 that a pontiff should resign if he got too old or infirm to do the job, but it was a tremendous surprise when he said in Latin that his "strength of mind and body" had diminished and that he couldn't carry on. He said he would resign effective 8 p.m. local time on Feb. 28.

"All the cardinals remained shocked and were looking at each other," said Monsignor Oscar Sanchez of Mexico, who was in the room at the time of the announcement.

As a top aide, Benedict watched from up close as Pope John Paul II suffered publicly from the Parkinson's disease that enfeebled him in the final years of his papacy. Clearly Benedict wanted to avoid the same fate as his advancing age took its toll, though the Vatican insisted the announcement was not prompted by any specific malady.

The Vatican said Benedict would live in a congregation for cloistered nuns inside the Vatican, although he will be free to go in and out. Much of this is uncharted territory. The Vatican's chief spokesman, the Rev. Federico Lombardi, said he isn't even sure of Benedict's title — perhaps "pope emeritus."

Since becoming pope in 2005, Benedict has charted a very conservative course for the church, trying to reawaken Christianity in Europe where it had fallen by the wayside and return the church to its traditional roots, which he felt had been betrayed by a botched interpretation of the modernizing reforms of the Second Vatican Council.

His efforts though, were overshadowed by a worldwide clerical sex abuse scandal, communication gaffes that outraged Jews and Muslims alike and, more recently, a scandal over leaked documents by his own butler. Many of his stated priorities as pope also fell short: He failed to establish relations with China, heal the schism and reunite with the Orthodox Church, or reconcile with a group of break-away, traditionalist Catholics.

There are several papal contenders in the wings, but no obvious front-runner — the same situation as when Benedict was elected after the death of John Paul. As in recent elections, some push is expected for the election of a Third World pope, with several names emerging from Asia, Africa and Latin America, home to about 40 percent of the world's Catholics.

The Vatican stressed that no specific medical condition prompted Benedict's decision, saying he remains fully lucid and took his decision independently.

"Any interference or intervention is alien to his style," Lombardi said.

Man accused of posing as woman to rape children found competent

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — An East Liverpool man accused of posing as a woman for years in order to gain access to four children has been found both sane and competent to stand trial.

Aaron LaGrand is charged with two counts of rape, two counts of rape with an age specification, three counts of engaging in sexual conduct with a minor and sexual importuning. Because of the ages of the children, the charges carry a maximum possible sentence of life in prison.

Columbiana County Common Pleas Court Judge C. Ashley Pike noted into the record he was in receipt of both a competency evaluation and a sanity evaluation, which state LaGrand knew what he was doing, understands the court hearings being held and is capable of assisting in his own defense.

Court-ordered evaluations were conducted with LaGrand after his defense attorney, Fred Naragon, had made a motion for LaGrand to be found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Following the results of the evaluations, Naragon withdrew that plea and noted he will begin preparing for LaGrand's defense in a trial. LaGrand signed a waiver allowing for additional time for the case and the matter was set for a jury trial on June 11.

LaGrand, 33, West Eighth Street, East Liverpool, is accused of sexual conduct with four different children between 2004 and August 2012. One of the children was less than 10 years old during the period between 2004 and 2006 when some of the crimes were alleged to have occurred.

Most of the sexual acts were alleged to have happened at a West Eighth Street home, although one in 2004 allegedly happened in the LaBelle Terrace Apartments when the child would have been between 6 and 7 years old.

LaGrand, who reportedly went by the woman's first name Erin, reportedly posed as a woman for the eight years prior his arrest. When he was bound over to the grand jury in East Liverpool Municipal Court, bond was set at $100,000. Pike continued the bond and LaGrand remains in custody.

SHERIFF

— A Millrock Road, East Palestine, woman reported at 1:21 a.m. Sunday an intoxicated man was in the area. Deputies found a man near the intersection of state Route 558 and Millrock Road. He was checked for warrants and given a ride home.

— A possible sexual assault in Center Township was reported by a nurse at the East Liverpool City Hospital at 6:10 a.m. Saturday. The matter is under investigation.

— An Idaho Street, Wellsville, man reported at 6:48 p.m. Sunday his late neighbor gave him some firearms as a present before he passed away. Now a family member of the neighbor called to report he was coming to get the firearms back from him. Deputies explained the matter is a civil one.

— A Y and O Road, Wellsville, man reported at 9:01 p.m. Saturday a teenage neighbor was shooting toward his home with some of the bullets coming close to striking his mother. Deputies spoke to the teen and his mother about safe shooting and the caller, who has prior military service, offered to teach the boy to shoot safely.

— Amanda Hoskinson, Seigler Road, Salineville, reported at 8:27 p.m. Saturday her boyfriend had been drinking and they argued about her not allowing him to drive her vehicle because he has no license. The boyfriend called his brother to pick him up, went outside and reportedly punctured the tire of Hoskinson's vehicle. Deputies found two pieces of a knife laying right beside the tire. Daniel E. Riggs, 35, Walnut Ridge Road, Salineville, was charged with criminal damaging.

CORRECTIONS

A blotter item from a Salem Police report in Monday's edition incorrectly listed the age for a man charged with operating a vehicle intoxicated, driving under suspension and possession of drug paraphernalia following a traffic stop at 1:26 a.m. Sunday on West State Street. The name and age should have been listed as Christopher P. Jennings Jr., 19, of 12696 W. Middletown Road, Salem.

A house in Unity Township was sold to John and Kristen McNicholas, not John and Krista McNicholas, as reported in Saturday's real estate listings.

Approximately 56 percent of the Wellsville school district's operating revenue comes from the state, not 46 percent as reported in Sunday's edition.

Minerva man killed in crash
Staff Reports
WEST TOWNSHIP — A Minerva man was killed early Monday after losing control of his vehicle on state Route 172.
According to the highway patrol said James A. Shorb, 32, of Minerva, was westbound on state Route 172 near Knox School Road when he traveled left of center and off the left side of the road. Once off the road the 2002 Pontiac Grand AM overturned, partially ejecting Shorb, who was not wearing a seat belt, the patrol said.
He was pronounced dead at the scene by a county coroner's investigator. The crash at 6:31 a.m. is still under investigation. No other vehicles were involved.
The fatality was the second the patrol investigated this year, after eight in 2012. That does not include two county residents killed in Mahoning County and a 9-year-old Salem girl struck and killed on a city street.

MUNICIPAL
LISBON — In Columbiana County Municipal Court on Monday, a Feb. 19 preliminary hearing was set for Aaron M. Pierson, 23, Academy Street, Salineville, charged with burglary, a third-degree felony, and three counts of breaking and entering, each fifth-degree felonies. Additionally, a pretrial was set for the same date for a theft charge. Court documents allege he broke into homes on Victor Avenue, Salineville, on Jan. 1, with the purpose of committing a theft, including taking a credit card. He also is accused of taking two video games and a game console from the home of Tracey Crooms, Water Street, Salineville, on Dec. 18 and selling the items at Game Stop at the Southern Park Mall.
A Feb. 19 preliminary hearing was set for Chelsea A. Cope, 35, Siliman Street, New Waterford, charged with deception to obtain a dangerous drug, a fifth-degree felony. Court documents allege police found an empty pill bottle for Alprazolam, a Xanax substitute, in Cope's former bedroom. Cope allegedly admitted to having the prescription, which is in her husband's name filled while her husband, Jason Cope, was in the county jail.
Theresa A. Teeters, 48, Allen Drive, Lisbon, was fined $725, had her license suspended for six months, sentenced to three days in jail and required 30 hours community service for OVI first offense and failure to control.
Tyler D. Postiy, 24, Margaret Lane, Alliance, was fined $350 for failure to control and reckless operation amended from OVI first offense. A seat belt violation was dismissed.
Hasper O. Leggette, 59, Niles, was fined $350 and required 20 hours community service for a seat belt violation and failure to file a registration for a vehicle amended from receiving stolen property for a stolen dealer plate reportedly on his vehicle.
Jerry D. Lewis, 54, Church Street Extension, Salineville, was fined $250 and required 40 hours community service for driving under suspension.
Matthew A. Shingleton, 29, Orchard Drive, Leetonia, was fined $250 and required 40 hours for failure to reinstate a license.
Beau M. McGuire, 35, Gavers Road, Hanoverton, was fined $200 and required 30 hours community service for assault for beating and throwing around Candee M. Campbell on Dec. 5 leading to her seeking medical assistance at Salem Community Hospital.

Kasich wise to hedge bets on casino revenue

Ohio officials will hedge their bets on state revenue from casino gambling, Gov. John Kasich revealed this week. That is wiser than the attitude adopted in some states, of wishful thinking similar to that of a compulsive gambler.

Four years ago, as the Buckeye State was being primed to accept casino gambling, officials estimated four table gambling venues would bring in as much as $1.9 billion a year for the state.

But Kasich, in outlining his two-year budget proposal last week, included less than $1 billion a year from the casinos in Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Toledo.

The new estimate is, in a word, more realistic than pie-in-the-sky claims from a few years ago. It takes into account competition for gamblers, both within and outside Ohio. It also factors in lower-than-expected revenue from the three casinos already in operation.

Again, skepticism about gambling revenue is far from widespread. But Kasich and state legislators are wise to assume the state's "take" from gambling will be less than initially predicted. That will avoid headaches later.

Republicans to showcase Rubio as new face of party

In the Republican Party's developing effort to put on a new face after last November's presidential defeat, the latest gesture is trotting out freshman Sen. Marco Rubio of Florida to deliver the GOP response to President Obama's State of the Union Address before Congress tonight.

The 41-year-old Rubio, the American-born son of naturalized Cuban-American parents, will deliver his speech in English and Spanish -- in case anyone might miss the political significance in a country with a rapidly surging Hispanic population that gave 73 percent of its votes to Obama.

Rubio, in his rapid political rise from speaker of the Florida House of Representatives to the U.S. Senate, was often identified as the new darling of the tea party movement in the GOP. Be that as it may, Republican congressional leaders Mitch

McConnell and John Boehner proclaimed him as "a champion of the growing American middle class."

This attempt to set up Rubio as a rival to President Obama for that distinction is an obvious ploy to move the GOP beyond the greatly damaging Mitt Romney gaffe of 2012. His remarks about "the 47 percent of Americans" who were supposedly dependent on the federal dole forced the Republican Party to run for cover.

In the post-election scramble to pick up the broken pieces, it makes sense for Republicans to appoint Rubio as the visible triage doctor in the emergency room. Young, articulate and most of all of Hispanic roots, he is well equipped to convey the message of a wised-up Republican Party.

Rubio said he was honored to get a chance "to discuss how limited government and free enterprise have helped make my family's dream come true in America." That sounds as if he may trot out the story of his parents came here. He originally indicated they arrived as refugees from Fidel Castro's dictatorship. It turned out later they had left Cuba four years before Castro came to power, though they returned several times after arriving legally and subsequently became citizens. Rubio said afterward that "the essence of our family story is why they came to America in the first place, and why they had to stay."

Rubio has now taken the lead in assembling a bipartisan group of eight U.S. senators urging an immigration reform plan. It pushes against the GOP's pre-election determination to fight against an eventual path to citizenship for foreigners already here illegally. But among the prospective candidates for the party's next presidential nomination, he is hardly alone in calling for a GOP awakening from its 2012 loss.

House Majority Leader Eric Cantor told the American Enterprise Institute earlier this week that "we must balance respect for the rule of law and respect for those waiting to enter this country legally, with care for people and families, most of whom just want to make a better life and contribute to America." He also had encouraging words for compromise on education and tax reform, saying new policies need to "reflect the priorities of working families and the future they're trying to shape for their kids."

Cantor, though, also returned to rearguing the fight over health-care reform that Obama won and the Supreme Court declined to overturn. "Obamacare has unnecessarily raised the cost of health care," he told the AEI. "There are some who would rather avoid fixing the problem in order to save this as a political issue. I reject this notion and call on the president to help lead us toward a bipartisan solution rather than the common political divisions of the past."

Obama, obviously, will have no interest returning to a fight he won in what was the singular domestic legislative achievement of his first term. Cantor's desire to wage that battle again hardly indicates a Republican recognition that the party must offer a new face and new attitudes to recover from its November defeat.

All this, along with the candid observations of Louisiana Republican Gov. Bobby Jindal that the GOP "must stop being the stupid party" and "insulting the intelligence of voters," measures the depth of the ditch in which the party dug for itself all last year.

For Obama, State of Union chiefly about firing up his base

As President Obama prepares for his State of the Union address, he has indicated that gun control and immigration will be two of his top priorities. His administration's actions also indicate an ongoing commitment to place a high priority on environmental concerns. These items, though, tend to rank fairly low on voter lists of priorities.

Consider that 86 percent of voters nationwide rate job creation as most important, and 80 percent say the same about general economic concerns. Seventy-one percent believe that government spending is very important.

Where do the president's priorities fit on that scale?

Forty-eight percent rate gun control very important; 45 percent say the same about immigration, and 35 percent rate environmental concerns that highly. In fact, out of 15 issues regularly tracked by Rasmussen Reports, 11 are seen as higher priorities than the president's top issues. Only the war in Afghanistan falls lower on the scale.

So why is Obama pursuing these particular initiatives? It may, of course, be due to the fact that they are important to the president himself. Freed of concerns about re-election, it may be that these are simply things he wants to get done.

Another factor may be that the president can do little in the short term to impact issues higher on the public list of priorities. While the economy is the top issue for voters, the president and his team seem to believe things are getting better and that time is on their side.

Sixty-six percent of voters consider health care issues to be very important, but that's another place where the president's policies have been set. Democrats tend to think the president's plan will work, while Republicans expect it to collapse. Now it's a matter of waiting to see how the public responds when the law goes fully into effect. Not much the president can do on that topic other than hope his team can handle the implementation well.

But beyond the president's personal preferences and the fact that he can do little to affect other priorities in the short-term, something else appears to be at work. A hint comes from the partisan breakdown of the data.

When it comes to gun control, 71 percent of Democrats regard it as a very important issue -- a view shared by only 28 percent of Republicans and 40 percent of unaffiliated voters. Democrats place a higher priority on controlling guns than on controlling spending. Other voters reverse those priorities.

Six out of 10 Democrats place a high priority on environmental issues. Fewer than one in four other voters see those issues as that important. A similar pattern is found on the question of legalizing the status of illegal immigrants.

These partisan breakdowns suggest that the president's priorities are intended to fire up his voter base for the 2014 midterm elections. Obama is unlikely to pass significant gun control measures or environmental initiatives over the next two years. He may get something done on immigration, but that is far from a sure thing. But by focusing on the ability of Congress to block progress on these initiatives, the president may give his base strong motivation to show up for the midterm elections.

The Seattle Times on birth control coverage in the Affordable Care Act:

The Affordable Care Act requires health-insurance plans to provide women free access to birth-control benefits and contraceptives. Good public policy, but one element is still a work in progress.

For the third time in a little over a year, the Obama administration has modified language in the act to protect religious organizations that object to providing contraception coverage.

On Feb. 1, the administration announced that churches and other religious organizations would not have to provide or pay for coverage of contraceptive services. The revision also covers nonprofit religious organizations — such as universities, charities and hospitals — with religious objections.

Instead the coverage would be offered free via insurance carriers. The argument is their costs would be held neutral because of lower overall health costs without paying for maternity expenses.

The new language offers specific exemptions for churches, religious groups and religious affiliations that provide social services. The debate has no end in sight, because others want an exemption for secular employers who have private religious objections. The Obama administration drew a reasonable line. ...

The Affordable Care Act will help millions of Americans gain access to health care. Contraceptive services are a basic part of the package.

Feb. 4

The New York Times on unbalanced U.S. political support for Israel:

One dispiriting lesson from Chuck Hagel's nomination for defense secretary is the extent to which the political space for discussing Israel forthrightly is shrinking. Republicans focused on Israel more than anything during his confirmation hearing, but they weren't seeking to understand his views. All they cared about was bullying him into a rigid position on Israel policy. Enforcing that kind of orthodoxy is not in either America's or Israel's interest. ...

Hagel, a former Republican senator, has repeatedly declared support for Israel and cited 12 years of pro-Israel votes in the Senate. But that didn't matter to his opponents, who attacked him as insufficiently pro-Israel and refused to accept any deviation on any vote. Hagel was even forced to defend past expressions of concern for Palestinian victims of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. ...

The sad truth is that there is more honest discussion about American-Israeli policy in Israel than in this country. Too often in the United States, supporting Israel has come to mean meeting narrow ideological litmus tests. J Street, a liberal pro-Israel group that was formed as a counterpoint to conservative groups like the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, has argued for vibrant debate and said "criticism of Israeli policy does not threaten the health of the state of Israel." In fact, it is essential.

I in 4 consumers had error in credit report
WASHINGTON (AP) — One in four consumers has had an error in a credit report issued by a major agency, according to a government study released Monday.
The Federal Trade Commission reported also said that 5 percent of the consumers identified errors in their reports that could lead to them paying more for mortgages, auto loans or other financial products.
The study looked at reports for 1,001 consumers issued by the three major agencies — Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. The FTC hired researchers to help consumers identify potential errors. It closely matches the results of a yearlong investigation by The Columbus Dispatch. The Ohio newspaper's report last year said that thousands of consumers were denied loans because of errors on their credit reports.
The FTC says the findings underline the importance of consumers checking their credit reports.

First tugboat reaches disabled cruise ship
HOUSTON (AP) — Passengers aboard a cruise vessel stranded in the Gulf of Mexico had limited access to bathrooms, food and hot coffee on Monday as they waited for two tugboats to arrive to tow them to Mexico, Carnival Cruise Lines said in a statement.
The Carnival Triumph has been floating aimlessly about 150 miles off the Yucatan Peninsula since a fire erupted in the aft engine room early Sunday, knocking out the ship's propulsion system. No one was injured and the fire was extinguished. The ship has been operating on backup generator power since the incident, the statement said.
The ship, which left Galveston, Texas, on Thursday and was scheduled to return there Monday, will instead be towed to Progreso, Mexico, and the 3,143 passengers on board will fly back to the United States. There are also 1,086 crew members aboard the ship. They are to arrive in Mexico on Wednesday.

Small Business administrator resigns
WASHINGTON (AP) — Karen Mills is leaving her post as head of the Small Business Administration, opening yet another Cabinet-rank job for President Barack Obama to fill at the start of his second term.
Obama says Mills played a leading role supporting start-up businesses and entrepreneurs.

Boeing wraps up 787 test flights for now
Boeing conducted a second test flight of its 787 on Monday as it looks for the cause of battery problems that have grounded the planes. It said no more tests are currently planned.
Boeing said Monday's flight lasted one hour and 29 minutes and was uneventful. Flight-tracking service FlightAware showed that the plane flew from Boeing Field in Seattle, east over Washington State, and back.
Federal officials grounded the 787 on Jan. 16 because of battery problems that caused one fire and forced another plane to make an emergency landing. Boeing won permission from the Federal Aviation Administration last week to conduct test flights under special conditions, including that the planes fly over unpopulated areas.

Novo Nordisk tumbles on drug delay
Shares of Novo Nordisk tumbled Monday after the Danish drugmaker said U.S. regulators want to see a new study before they can finish their review of two diabetes treatments with a long-acting insulin.

The company said Sunday that the Food and Drug Administration requested information from a study that looks at cardiovascular health before it makes a decision on Tresiba and Ryzodeg, which both use the insulin degludec.
Novo Nordisk said it was surprised and disappointed by the decision. The company plans to provide the requested data, but it probably will not be able to do so this year.
Greeks snatch urban metal in crisis
THESSALONIKI, Greece (AP) — When Greece adopted the euro, it poured billions into modernizing its infrastructure, building spectacular bridges, highways, and a brand new rail transit network for Athens.
Now, locked in recession and crushed by debt, Greeks are targeting many of those projects, gouging out the metal and selling it for scrap to feed ravenous demand driven by China and India.
Police say they now arrest an average of four metal thieves every day, compared to a few cases every month before the crisis started in late 2009. They are accused of stealing industrial cable, power-line transformers and other metal objects — triggering blackouts and massive train delays. The profile of the metal thief is also changing, authorities say, from gypsies and immigrants living on the margins of society to mainstream Greeks who have fallen on hard times.

Romania defends slaughterhouses
BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — A maze of trading between meat wholesalers has made it increasingly difficult to trace the origins of food — enabling horsemeat disguised as beef to be sold in frozen meals across Europe.
Finger-pointing has grown by the day, involving more countries and more companies. On Monday, Romanian officials scrambled to defend two plants implicated in the scandal, saying the meat was properly declared and any fraud was committed elsewhere. France says Romanian butchers and Dutch and Cypriot traders were part of a supply chain that resulted in horsemeat being labeled as beef before it was included in frozen dinners including lasagna, moussaka and the French equivalent of Shepherd's Pie.

Report: AMR, US Airways boards to meet
DALLAS (AP) — Directors of American Airlines and US Airways reportedly plan to meet Wednesday to consider a merger.
The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that negotiators were still considering the makeup of the combined company's board and an exact role for the CEO of American parent AMR Corp.
US Airways and AMR declined to comment.
The companies are trying to finish a deal before Friday, when a confidentiality agreement covering some AMR bondholders expires. That could result in public disclosure about negotiation details.
If the two carriers were to strike a deal, it would create the world's biggest airline by passenger traffic, although United Continental Holdings Inc. would still be bigger if regional affiliates are counted.
AMR has been operating under bankruptcy protection since November 2011.
US Airways has pushed for months for a merger. AMR executives were initially reluctant, but the company's bankruptcy creditors urged AMR to consider a merger that they could compare to an independent American Airlines.

Maker's Mark cuts alcohol volume in its bourbon
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The producer of Maker's Mark bourbon is cutting — likely permanently — the amount of alcohol in each bottle to stretch every drop of the famous Kentucky whiskey. The alcohol volume is being lowered from its historic level of 45 percent to 42 percent — or 90 proof to 84 proof.
The brand known for its square bottles sealed in red wax has struggled to keep up with demand that more than doubled the past seven years. Distribution has been squeezed and the popular premium brand has had to curtail shipments to some overseas markets.
“Over the last 100-plus days, there are many, many instances across all of different cities where bars, restaurants, package stores have run low, run out,” Rob Samuels, chief operating officer for Maker's Mark and grandson of the brand's founder, said Monday.
“Given the surge in demand outstripping supply, what we've decided to do very carefully is to slightly reduce the alcohol volume.”
The recipe and production process will stay the same, except “a touch more water” will be added when the whiskey comes out of the barrel for bottling, Samuels said. The brand's bourbon is made at its distillery near the small town of Loretto, 45 miles south of Louisville.
Water is typically added before whiskey goes into the barrel for aging and after bourbon comes out for bottling, he said. It's the first time the bourbon brand, more than a half-century old, has altered its proof or alcohol volume.
The lower alcohol volume is seen as permanent and will increase available volume by about 6 percent, Samuels said. The change was done only after extensive testing showed it didn't alter the taste of Maker's Mark, he said.
“Paramount in our decision was ensuring the taste standard is exactly the same,” Samuels said.

His father, Bill Samuels Jr., chairman emeritus of the brand started by his parents, said he thought his father would approve.
“He never really was wed to 90 proof anyway,” the elder Samuels said. “It's just that he had to pick something, and he knew that anything over 90, the alcohol smothered the taste of whiskey and he was a little nervous about going too much lower.”
Chuck Cordery, an American whiskey writer and author of “Bourbon, Straight,” said “time will tell” how the change sits with the brand's legions of devoted fans in an industry that clings tightly to tradition.
“They're banking that this won't be a deal-breaker with their consumers, that there will be a hew and cry for a few days, but sales won't miss a beat,” he said in an email. “Are they right? Maker's is in many ways unique, so it's hard to say.”
Maker's Mark is owned by spirits company Beam Inc., based in Deerfield, Ill. Its other brands include Jim Beam bourbon.
The supply shortage at Maker's Mark comes amid an ongoing expansion of its operations that has cost tens of millions of dollars.
A distillery expansion completed last year boosted production capacity by 45 percent, Rob Samuels said. Maker's last year added warehouse space for 100,000 more barrels of aging bourbon, and it expects that expansion pace to continue for at least another five years.

ACROSS OUR COMMUNITIES

3 types of lasagna offered at dinner
COLUMBIANA — A choice of one of three types of lasagna is available at the Heartland Christian School Class of 2014’s fund-raising dinner from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. today at the school, 28 Pittsburgh St. The meal includes salad, garlic bread, dessert and punch. The suggested donation is $10.

Pizza Challenge set in Leetonia
LEETONIA — Leetonia Ruritan Club will host its annual Pizza Challenge from 4:30 to 7 p.m. today at the Leetonia Elementary School gymnasium. Cost is $6 per person and free for children under 5. Area pizza vendors will compete for votes. The Leetonia/South Range basketball game follows in the high school gym.

Men of Salem 1960 lunch set
SALEM — Men of the Salem High School Class of 1960 will meet for lunch at noon Wednesday at the Salem Hills Golf and Country Club.

Columbiana Boosters to meet
COLUMBIANA — Columbiana Athletic Boosters will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the High School Commons.

Harvest for Hunger kicks off
YOUNGSTOWN — The Second Harvest Food Bank’s 22nd annual Harvest for Hunger kick-off begins at 10 a.m. Wednesday at 2805 Salt Springs Road.

This month-long food and funds drive takes place during March to help stock food bank shelves for the summer months when donations taper off and children are home from school.

Last year, Harvest for Hunger raised more than $160,000 and collected 41,000 pounds of food. All funds raised and food collected stays in Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull counties to help feed hungry friends and neighbors.

To participate in the Harvest for Hunger campaign by conducting a food or funds drive to benefit the food bank, contact Rita Brady at 330-792-5522 Ext. 11 or visit www.mahoningvalleysecondharvest.org, to download a registration form.

Contributions may also be made at Supermarket Sponsor Giant Eagle stores and Sparkle Markets by tearing off a $1, $5, or $10 coupon at the register or dropping off a non-perishable food donation at the front of the store. Monetary donations made at Giant Eagle and Sparkle Markets are added directly to your grocery bill.

Nursing information offered
SALEM — Information sessions will be held at Kent State’s Columbiana County campuses for registered nurses who are interested in earning bachelor’s degrees in nursing.

The RN to BSN information night will be held Wednesday at Kent State Salem and Feb. 21 at Kent State East Liverpool. Each information night begins at 5:30 p.m. The Salem session will be held in room 192 of the Health and Sciences Wing, and the East Liverpool session will be held in room 208 of the Mary Patterson Building. For more information call Kent State Salem at 330-332-0361 or Kent State East Liverpool at 330-385-3805.

The RN to BSN program at Kent State is designed for the busy and varied schedule of a working registered nurse. It includes online nursing courses and face-to-face classes; seven-week courses; individualized academic plans; and rolling admissions so that students can begin any semester. The updated curriculum reflects critical competencies for contemporary nursing practice as recommended by the American Association of Colleges of Nursing. Kent State nursing programs are approved by the Ohio Board of Nursing and accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education.

Hospital chief to speak in Damascus
DAMASCUS — Steve Ruwoldt, president and chief executive officer of the Salem Community Hospital, will be the guest speaker when the Damascus Ruritan Club meets at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Damascus United Methodist Church, 300 Valley Road. The public is invited.

Meeting set for Leetonia program
LEETONIA — An informational meeting for parents and 10th and 11th grade students begins at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Leetonia High School library. Information about the junior/senior to sophomore program will be provided. Leetonia High School began offering the program during the 2008-09 school year. The junior/senior to sophomore program awards high school and college credits to students who elect to take college courses while in high school. In order to participate, students must be accepted by a participating college or university.

Currently, Leetonia High School students are enrolled in the program at Kent State University, Salem campus. Students and parents interested in learning about the program should attend the meeting where they will learn about the 2013-14 school year requirements.

Parents and students must notify the school of their intention to participate in the junior/senior to sophomore program by March 2013. Mary Rice, Leetonia High School’s guidance counselor will be available to answer any questions at Thursday’s meeting or at the school 330-427-2115 Ext 2466.

Humane Society launches 2013 membership drive

Pictured is Max, one of eight puppies removed from a Columbiana County home recently, all in need of medical attention to address demodectic (non contagious) mange and eye infections. Over a six week period, there will be follow up visits to the vet, medicated baths, and skin scrapings while they recover with a foster family. The cost to address these issues alone is $663.20, which does not include standard vaccines, heartworm preventative, flea and worm treatment, or spay/neuter prior to adoption. Once healthy enough, they will be spayed or neutered, vaccinated and microchipped before they are adopted into their approved home. (Submitted photo)

SALEM — The Humane Society of Columbiana County (HSCC) is now conducting their 2013 HSCC membership drive. The theme for 2013 is Together Everyone Achieves More (TEAM HSCC). Individuals who donate at the basic $5 TEAM HSCC level or more are entitled to the benefits of membership which include voting on issues impacting HSCC and electing board members at the October annual meeting. Members also receive advance notice of and premium seating at all 2013 events including the ROCC and Rescue Reverse Raffle to be held Nov. 3 at the Salem Golf Club, a quarterly newsletter and a 50 percent discount on any HSCC T-shirt. Additional membership levels are $25-Best Friend, $100 Loyalty, $500 Good Samaritan, $1000 Life-saver and $5,000 Master.

HSCC is a no-kill, no suffering 501(c) non-profit animal welfare organization. Trained and court appointed volunteer humane agents investigate concerns of animal cruelty, abuse and neglect in Columbiana County. During the fourth quarter of 2012, agents responded to over 159 calls which included 28 in E. Liverpool, 24 in Salem, 21 in Lisbon, 13 in Wellsville. Other communities served were Salineville, Minerva, East Palestine, East Rochester, Columbiana, Leetonia, Rogers, Guilford Lake, Alliance, Beloit, Damascus, Fairfield Township, Gavers, Hanoverton, Homeworth, Moultrie, Negley, New Alexander, New Waterford and Winona. Office personnel assisted 226 callers. HSCC also provides care, medical attention and adoption processing to pets in need at their ROCC, Rescue and Adoption Center near Salem.

According to Director and Humane Agent Heather Jurina, “We work tirelessly to raise the money needed to support our work. Because we are not funded by the county government or any national animal welfare organization, we either fund raise or beg donors for every dollar we get. Simply, the more financial support we get from the public, the more pets we are able to help.”

ILLUSTRATED

Local artist Craig Wetzel is the illustrator of our community map highlighting businesses in Salem, Washingtonville, Beloit, Damascus, Hanoverton and Alliance.

The map is a beautiful representation of our area, printed on a glossy, heavy stock paper, measuring 27"x40", suitable for framing.

The map is a detailed, colorful illustration of the Salem area and surrounding communities. It shows a variety of businesses, including restaurants, shops, and service centers, each with its name and logo. The map is set against a backdrop of rolling hills and greenery, with a red border around the entire illustration. Labels for various locations are placed throughout the map, including STRATTON, COLUMBIANA, LISBON, BELOIT, DAMASCUS, HANOVERTON, and ALLIANCE. The map is a comprehensive visual representation of the local business landscape.

Raiders edge Clips on Senior Night

By JON RUDDER
Staff Writer

GREENFORD — South Range senior Lexi Naples couldn't have imagined a better way to go out on Senior Night.

The 5-foot-6 guard netted a game-high 21 points to lead the Raiders to a 50-43 win over Columbiana on Monday night.

"The rivalry with Columbiana, and senior night against them was just crazy and so much fun," Naples said. "It was probably the most fun we've had in a game all season. Everybody just works together and we connect so well."

Naples poured in 16 of her 21 points in the second half, and was key in an 11-0 run through the third quarter to help the Raiders (12-9) withstand a surge from the Clippers in that same stanza.

"That is the Lex Naples from last year," South Range coach Wayne Johnson said. "She was like that all of last season, literally almost every game. She has had a lot on her shoulders because we are young at the varsity level."

"We knew that they were going to come out strong after halftime, so we had to come out stronger," Naples said. "Coach just talked to me and Allison Oliver and said this is your day you girls have to go. That sparked the fire and everybody else started scoring."

Fellow senior Allison Oliver netted pulled down a team-high six rebounds.

"Everyone just believes in each other on our team and we all can depend on each other," Naples said. "So everyone knows that whoever is going to the free-throw line, they're going to make them whoever's driving to the lane, they're going to draw the foul and sink the free-throws."

The Clippers (18-3) fell behind early and were never able to fully recover. Foul trouble to key members of their lineup further complicated their comeback attempt.

"We needed to play in a game like that," Columbiana coach Ron Moschella said. "They (South Range) came out and really played hard and jumped on us early and losing our two seniors, it's hard to win when you lose those two."

Columbiana's Khylea Fullum and Megan Cutlip each fouled out in the fourth quarter. Fullum, the Clippers' leading scorer, finished with just seven points while Cutlip added five. Baylie Mook led Columbiana with 11 points and Lindsey Ron-cone and Emily Witmer each added 10 points.

"I thought my kids hung in there, (Emily) Witmer played outstanding, Mook played well, Roncone played well," Moschella said. "But Megan Cutlip and Khylia Fullum, when you lose those two it's tough. But I take my hat off to South Range, they played hard, they really did."

The Clippers must regroup before senior night of their own on Thursday. Columbiana begins tournament play on Feb. 18 when they take on Heartland Christian on the very same floor they suffered their third loss of the season on.

"I want them to feel this and remember this," Moschella said. "I love it here, what a great place to play. Hopefully that can see us through the tournament."

For the Raiders and coach Johnson, the win cemented was an exclamation mark to begin a week that follows a big win over Youngstown Cardinal Mooney, and shows his group is gelling at the right time.

"We played probably our best game of the year, we put everything together offensively and defensively," Johnson said. "We really took care of their pressure and we were able to capitalize on that."

And for Naples, her last triumph on her home floor included a special spectator watching from the stands.

Salem's Stiff sets school record

From Staff Reports

YOUNGSTOWN — Katherine Stiff scored a season-high 29 points, including a school-record eight three-pointers, to lead the Quakers to a 65-41 win over Youngstown Christian on Monday.

Stiff hit two three-pointers in each quarter, including her eighth and final one off a screen from her sister, Olivia. The previous record of seven three-pointers was set in 2007.

The Quakers led 30-15 at the half and made it 52-23 heading into the fourth.

Lindsey Foster contributed a double-double for the Quakers with 11 points and 13 rebounds, while Megan Lehwald added 11 points and six assists.

Salem, which improves to 7-14 on the season, hosts Niles on Wednesday.

Bulldogs best Beavers, Wellsville knocks off Heartland

From Staff Reports

EAST PALESTINE — Beaver Local got off to a slow start offensively on Monday and were never able to overcome an early deficit in a 46-37 loss against East Palestine.

The Bulldogs took a 16-4 lead after the first quarter and went into the half with an 18-point advantage.

The Beavers' offense came alive in the third quarter with 21 points, but the Bulldogs were able to increase their lead in the final frame.

The win moves East Palestine to 5-15 on the season, while Beaver Local falls to 3-18.

Brooke Gedeon led all scorers with 19 points on the night to go with nine rebounds for East Palestine.

Logan Gatchel and Courtney Weber both finished with 10 points, while Kelsey McKim added two points and five rebounds.

No Beaver Local players reached double digits. Danna Talbott led the Beavers with nine points, while Sierra Wright and Courtney Ricciardi both finished with eight points.

In junior varsity action,

Indians sign Bourn

CLEVELAND (AP) — Free agent outfielder Michael Bourn has agreed to a four-year, $48 million contract with the Cleveland Indians.

Bourn, an All-Star with Atlanta last season, must pass a physical later this week in Goodyear, Ariz., before the deal can be completed. Bourn batted .274 with nine homers, 57 RBIs and 42 steals last season for the Braves.

As long as there isn't a hangup, the 30-year-old Bourn, who has remained on the market all winter, will move into the Indians' starting lineup.

He played center field last season and would give an immediate boost to a Cleveland team that has reloaded with the acquisition of free agent Nick Swisher, manager Terry Francona and starter Brett Myers.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Nothing more exciting than Big Ten

(AP) — The Big Ten may well be the best league in the nation. It has certainly been one of the most fun to watch this season.

The depth of the conference — which has three top 10 teams, five in the Top 25 and eight with at least 15 wins — has led to dozens of high-profile matchups and the most entertaining season in recent memory. It's all whetted the appetite for what should be a fascinating stretch run.

"There's a buzz. You stop at the grocery store or fill up your car with gas, everybody is talking about it," Michigan State coach Tom Izzo said.

The buzz is backed up by the numbers.

The Big Ten is on pace to lead the nation in attendance for the 37th year in a row, easily topping the other high-major leagues with an average home crowd of 12,704. The league's BTN network said January was its highest-rated month ever in prime time, a bump it credited largely to high-profile basketball games.

The league has certainly offered some thrilling programming — and last week featured some unforgettable games.

Michigan knocked off 13th-ranked Ohio State on Tuesday when Tim Hardaway Jr. blocked Aaron Craft's shot under the basket in overtime. The following night, Wisconsin won in double-overtime against Iowa, 74-70.

The Badgers and Wolverines hooked up on Saturday, and Wisconsin won in OT after Ben Brust's 45-foot heave tied things up at the end of regulation.

Unranked Illinois stunned top-ranked Indiana on an inbounds pass with less than a second left. The Illini then beat Minnesota in Minneapolis and received 26 points in the latest AP poll despite a 4-7 league record.

Oh, and Indiana bounced back with an 81-68 thrashing of No. 13 Ohio State on Sunday to keep its No. 1 ranking.

"It's always been an entertaining league," Purdue coach Matt Painter. "I think getting some upsets and having some wins on the road makes it even a more entertaining league."

With the exception of winless Penn State and perhaps 3-8 Nebraska, every team in the league has enough talent to be considered dangerous every time out. Seven of the 12 Big Ten teams are 31st or higher in RPI, and only the Nittany Lions have a losing overall record.

"I think the league gets branded as the best league any of which can have a huge say in who captures the league crown.

The Gophers were ranked No. 18 before a pair of losses last week, and Iowa's seven defeats in the Big Ten have come against the league's top seven teams.

The youthful Boilermakers are a surprising 5-6 in conference, and Northwestern is 4-7 with four games left against the Big Ten's top five teams.

According to Ohio State coach Thad Matta, the league's depth starts at the top. With the exception of Illinois first-year coach John Groce, all the coaches in the group below the lead pack have been at their school for at least three years.

"Guys can really, really coach in this league. I think from that perspective, you see guys really doing a good job of putting their players in a position to be successful," Matta said.

Though it will be nearly impossible to match last week's drama, there should be plenty to see in the Big Ten this week.

Michigan State hosts Michigan on Tuesday night in a matchup with major title ramifications for both teams. Ohio State will seek a huge road win at Wisconsin on Sunday, while Minnesota plays an Iowa team in desperate need of wins.

The race for the Big Ten title should remain murky for weeks. But according to Izzo, the question over which league is the best is very clear.

"If anybody wants to argue that top to bottom this isn't the best by far, I wouldn't even argue," Izzo said. "It wouldn't be worth the argument."

Liriano, Pirates report to training

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Francisco Liriano reported to spring training camp Monday, but it will be at least another month before he throws his first pitch.

Liriano, who throws with his left hand, will spend the next four weeks rehabilitating the broken humerus in his right arm. He likely won't be ready to make his regular-season debut until early May.

"It's coming along pretty good," Liriano said. "I'm going to take it one day at a time and see how it feels over the next couple of weeks."

Liriano began jogging and throwing soft toss on flat ground two weeks ago. He'll wear a removable brace on his arm for the next two weeks before moving to the next phase of his recovery.

In December, Liriano and the Pirates agreed to a two-year contract. But on Christmas, the day before he was supposed to fly to Pittsburgh and sign the deal, Liriano broke his arm at his home in the Dominican Republic. Liriano said he was injured when he slapped a door in his house. About 20 minutes later, his upper arm was swollen and painful.

"I was surprised when I got to the hospital and they told me it was broken," Liriano said. "It didn't feel like it was broken."

Liriano then had to call his agent and the Pirates to tell them about the injury.

"At first, they thought I was joking," Liriano said. "I said, 'No, I'm serious. Cancel the flight because I don't think I can fly there tomorrow.' It was sad and disappointing. There was nothing I could do except

Browns owner back as CEO with family business

CLEVELAND (AP) — Browns owner Jimmy Haslam has gone back to running the family business. Haslam is returning to his role as CEO of Pilot Flying J, his Tennessee-based truck-stop empire, a move the Browns say will not affect his involvement with the re-building NFL franchise. Haslam, who bought the Browns for $1 billion from Randy Lerner in August, had stepped down from Pilot Flying J in September when he hired former PepsiCo president John Compton. Haslam wanted to devote his energy into fixing the Browns, who have made just one playoff appearance since 1999 and have undergone numerous coaching and front-office changes. However, on Monday, Pilot Flying J announced that Haslam will “reassume” his role as the company’s CEO and Compton will take a new position as strategic adviser to Pilot Flying J, the Browns and Haslam family. Haslam’s decision is partly based on him hiring former Eagles president Joe Banner as the Browns’ new CEO. Last month, Haslam and Banner hired Mike Lombardi as vice president of player personnel. Team spokesman Neal Gulkis said Haslam’s decision to go back to Pilot Flying J will have “no impact on the operations of the Browns nor will it affect Jimmy’s involvement with the team.” Haslam noted in a release Compton’s skills in marketing, operating excellence and strategic thinking. Gulkis said the team will tap into Compton’s expertise. “If there is ever an opportunity to pick his brain on something we will,” Gulkis said. “But his role will be strictly as an advisor.” Haslam told the Knoxville News Sentinel that he missed being CEO of Pilot Flying J. “This is about me realizing my first love is running Pilot Flying J and wanting to return to that job,” Haslam told the paper. “It’s not at all about John. It’s more about Jimmy having a change of heart in terms of what he wanted to do. I realize people will look at it in different ways, but that’s the reality.”

Snedeker on the rise with Pebble win

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Everything about Brandt Snedeker moves at warp speed, including his rapid rise into golf’s elite. He talks so fast that he always seems to be a few words short of a complete sentence. He plays fast, giving his hips a quick swivel to set his position before pulling the trigger. Even his putts go into the hole quickly, most of them struck with purpose instead of hope. But when he reached the 18th tee box at Pebble Beach, he had to wait for the fairway to clear before taking a victory stroll up one of the prettiest closing holes in golf. And that was OK with him. “There’s not much better place to be on the planet with a three-shot lead on that tee box,” Snedeker said Sunday. “It felt pretty special there.” Indeed, Snedeker is in a special place. With his 10th consecutive round in the 60s, Snedeker finally had a trophy to show for his astounding start to the 2013 season. He knew the opening seven holes were critical, and he made an eagle and three birdies to build a quick lead. He realized a late birdie would give him a cushion, and he fired at the flag on the par-3 17th to 10 feet below the cup and holed the putt. He closed with a 7-under 65 for a two-shot win over Chris Kirk in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. It was the fifth win of his career, and his fourth in the last 22 months. But it’s the last six months that have really turned heads. He captured the $10 million FedEx Cup prize with a win at the Tour Championship, where he held off the likes of Rory McIlroy, Tiger Woods and Luke Donald going into the final round. He played in his first Ryder Cup. He started this year with a third-place at Kapalua, and runner-up finishes in consecutive weeks to Woods and Phil Mickelson, both of whom had big leads going into the final round. Go back to the start of the FedEx Cup playoffs last August and Snedeker now has six top 3s in his last nine starts. Since missing the cut at the PGA Championship, he has broken par in 33 out of 37 rounds. No wonder he now is No. 4 in the world, the best ranking of his career. “Just hard to put into words, to have a stretch of golf like I had the last couple of months,” Snedeker said. “Something you dream about. Something you think that you can do, but you don’t really know until you actually put it together. And I have. “I’m really enjoying this, and hopefully can parlay this into the best year of my career.” Snedeker set the tournament record at 19-under 267, one shot better than Mickelson (2007) and Mark

O’Meara (1997), who each had a 20-under 268 when Poppy Hills (par 72) was part of the rotation. It has been replaced by Monterey Peninsula, which is a par 70. Chris Kirk closed with a 66 to finish alone in second, though he was never closer than two shots of the lead on the back nine and finished with a birdie. Kirk finished on 269, a score that would have been good enough to win all but four times at Pebble Beach since this tournament began in 1937. “We’ve had a lot of tournaments like that on tour this year where somebody has really just kind of blitzed the field,” Kirk said. “I felt like I played well enough to win a golf tournament and came up a little bit short.” Snedeker could have said the same thing — except for Woods at Torrey Pines, and Mickelson going obscenely low to win the Phoenix Open. He wasn’t about to take a back seat to anyone at Pebble Beach. Snedeker started the final round tied with James Hahn, a 31-year-old rookie from the Bay Area, with Kirk one shot behind. He set the tone early with a 4-iron into the par-5 second hole that was on the edge of the left green. It hit the collar and kicked slightly to the right, rolling toward the pin until it settled 4 feet behind the cup. “Kind of lucky, but it was a good shot, and to end up where it did was a great way to start the day,” he said.

Hahn hit his approach high and pure, and it nearly hit Snedeker’s ball before stopping 6 feet away. Hahn missed. Snedeker made. It was like that over the front nine. Snedeker started to pull away with a 3-wood that came off the edge of the green, ran by the cup and stopped 20 feet away for a two-putt birdie. Then, he holed a 15-foot birdie putt on the seventh and was on his way. Most impressive about Snedeker this week was bouncing back from bogey. He made five bogeys for the entire week, and four times made birdie on the next hole. On Sunday, his lone mistake was knocking an 18-foot birdie off the green and three-putting for bogey at No. 9. The answer, like everything else about him, was fast and furious. He knocked in a 25-foot birdie putt on the 10th, and then holed from 15 feet for birdie on the 12th. Right when it looked as though he would make another bogey on the par-3 12th, he made par from just short of 10 feet. There’s a reason Snedeker led the PGA Tour in putting last year, though it’s his driving that has vastly improved. Snedeker studied some statistics last year that showed his odds of hitting the green go way up when he starts in the fairway. And once he’s on the green, he’s tough to beat.

Tyson hopes to show Indy his new personality INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Tyson the entertainer is coming back to the city that put him in prison. The boxer once dubbed as the “Baddest Man on the Planet” is settling into his new role as the star of a one-man, 36-city road show called “Mike Tyson: Undisputed Truth.” Now 46, Tyson hopes to show city residents Wednesday night he’s a very different person than the one they remember — the brash young heavyweight champion who was convicted of raping an 18-year-old beauty pageant contestant and then spent three life-changing years behind bars in the 1990s. Helicopters were on hand for his release from prison in 1995, and he hasn’t been back since. “At the time, I was living a pretty hectic life and pretty wild and I don’t know what would have happened if I had three more years of that life,” Tyson told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Las Vegas. “So maybe that was, everything happens for a reason. You know, when I left prison, I did a lot better than when I came. So everything happens for a reason, everything’s a developmental stage in life, and I’m just going on this journey in life to find out what’s next.” Tyson’s show details his rise from the streets of Brooklyn to champion boxer, the subsequent fall and all those glorious and inglorious moments that defined his life — drug use, biting of Evander Holyfield’s ear, relationships with ex-wife Robin Givens, new wife, Kiki, boxing promoter Don King, the late Cus D’Amato, his former trainer, and, of course, his version of what happened in Indianapolis. Tyson’s lawyers argued that the sex was consensual. Some reviewers have interpreted Tyson’s words to be apologetic, though Tyson made it clear in the interview this is no apology tour. He said he is not sure what kind of crowd reaction he will get, though the original two-day Indy program has been cut to a one-night only performance. “It’s not like no kryptonite. There’s nothing about that stuff that evokes any bad memories to me,” he said. “I’m a professional, I’m going to go there, I’m going to entertain the crowd. I’m not going to be there and say, ‘Oh, my God.’ No, I’m a grown man. That’s 21 years ago. You think I’m scared to come to Indianapolis because of something that happened 21 years ago? I’m a totally different person now.” Local talk radio host Greg Garrison, the man who successfully prosecuted Tyson, declined to comment on the boxer’s return. The show has already appeared in Las Vegas and on Broadway, and after spending three nights in Indianapolis this week, he heads to Chicago. He says he spends two hours a day, seven days a week rehearsing the script written by his wife, and the show is directed by Spike Lee. The tour is scheduled to take him to places such as San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, and Washington, and more could be on the way if things go well. Tyson has already had roles in “The Hangover” series and last week made a cameo appearance on “Law and Order: SVU.” When he’s not rehearsing, Tyson said he’s working with his Mike Tyson Cares, an organization that helps underprivileged and homeless children receive medical treatment, find shelter, help with school expenses and assist with job placement.

That’s the new Tyson. But his penchant for the drama, not all of his own doing, has not changed. In December, Tyson told a television show he was “high on cocaine” during filming on the original “Hangover.” In November, a Polish court ordered Tyson to pay $48,000 to the organizer of a boxing gala after Tyson didn’t show up. In October, he was banned from traveling to New Zealand because of his rape conviction. New Zealand immigration authorities initially granted him a visa so he could give talks about overcoming adversity in his life before a charity withdrew its support and officials reversed their decision. Tyson’s comment that he was going to New Zealand and there was nothing anybody could do about it, didn’t help, either. “I brought that on myself because I was being arrogant at the time,” he said when asked about the dust-up with New Zealand authorities. “I really had the OK to go there, but I made a statement about the prime minister and he got mad at me, and I should have been more humble about the whole situation. Other than that, all of the people that wanted to come from New Zealand they came to Australia, and I was very grateful for that.”

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Big Ten officials worry over recruiting rules

(AP) — Big Ten athletic directors and football coaches say they have reservations about loosened NCAA recruiting rules that would allow unlimited contact between recruiters and high school players. The NCAA Board of Directors in January approved rulebook revisions that, among other things, remove limits on the number of phone calls and text messages to prospective recruits. The eased restrictions are set to begin July 1.

During their regularly scheduled meeting in Park Ridge, Ill., on Monday, athletic directors and coaches issued a statement expressing “serious concerns whether these proposals, as currently written, are in the best interest of high school student-athletes, their families and their coaches.” The ADs and coaches also said they “are also concerned about the adverse effect they would have on college coaches, administrators and university resources.”

Ohio State coach Urban Meyer, who put together one of the nation’s top-ranked recruiting classes this year, called the looming changes “bad stuff.” Nebraska coach Bo Pelini said he’s spoken with high school coaches who are worried that their players will be overwhelmed with phone calls, texts and mailings. “I think it’s going down the wrong road,” Pelini said.

Big Ten officials also discussed expanding the conference football schedule from eight games per season to nine to 10.

Conference commissioner Jim Delany told reporters after the meeting that the eight-game format is “not even on the table.” “We like to play each other, and those are not hollow words,” Delany said, according to the Chicago Tribune. “We are getting larger and want to bind the conference together.”

As for the NCAA rules changes, president Mark Emmert in August 2011 urged the governing body of college sports to pare down its massive rulebook to eliminate rules on relatively minor issues such as phone calls.

A group of college presidents sent 26 proposed rule changes to the board, which approved 25 of them during the NCAA convention. Five of the rules affect recruiting.

“The rule changes adopted by the Division I Board of Directors last month are the first part of a multi-phase, deliberative and collaborative process,” NCAA spokeswoman Stacy Osburn said in a statement. “Because NCAA member schools and conferences create the rules, membership feedback was repeatedly requested throughout the process and was critical leading up to the Board of Directors vote last month.”

The Big Ten athletic directors and coaches said they were concerned that the July 1 start date wouldn’t allow the Football Recruiting Subcommittee of the NCAA Leadership Council to “thoughtfully consider the impact of the proposals.”

The statement said the ADs and coaches are specifically concerned with three of the changes.

The first would allow schools to hire additional staff, beyond the allowable 10 full-time coaches, that would focus solely on recruiting. The second would deregulate phone calls and text messages, allowing coaches to contact a prospect an unlimited number of time beginning July 1 after the prospect’s sophomore year of high school.

The third would allow schools to send an unlimited number of mailings to prospects.

The Big Ten athletic directors and coaches did not raise concerns with the removal of restrictions on how many coaches can recruit off campus at one time or the elimination of required materials a school must send to recruits, such as lists of banned drugs and the school’s Academic Progress Rate data.

Meyer said the people who came up with the idea to deregulate recruiting probably had never gone through the recruiting process as an athlete or coach.

“I’m not a big fan of deregulation,” Meyer said. “I’m a big fan of firm, harsh penalties for people who break rules, not saying, ‘Just go — we can’t follow all this stuff, so have at it.’ I don’t agree with that at all.”

Pelini said the NCAA rules makers need to meet with football coaches and administrators to develop a good understanding of the challenges in recruiting. Pelini said the easing of the rules will cause recruited athletes to spend less time concentrating on their schoolwork and developing as an athlete and person.

“The more time a kid is spending on the phone texting and on the telephone and doing all the other things that are taking away from that is doing the kids ... a disservice.”

Pelini said he would grudgingly change the way Nebraska recruits if the rule changes are implemented July 1.

“You’re going to have to change some things in your staff and how you go about things to give yourself the best opportunity to keep up with the Joneses,” Pelini said. “Believe me, we’ll do what’s necessary to put together the best classes we possibly can.”

Baseball today

SPRING TRAINING IS HERE
(AP) — New Marlins manager Mike Redmond arrived at his office at 5 a.m. Monday ready to go long before the Florida sun was shining, his thoughts already on a date 254 days from now: Game 1 of the World Series.

Ah, spring training. When all 30 teams are still contenders. “Everybody’s excited,” Redmond said in Jupiter. “Obviously, we’ve got a tremendous opportunity for guys in this camp and I think everybody realizes that. It’s a fresh start.”

From a chilly and damp Phoenix, Ariz., to balmy Kissimmee, Fla., pitchers and catchers for 10 teams reported to training camp Monday, taking physicals, meeting new teammates and, in some cases, managers and coaches.

The pop of fastballs in mitts, they could be heard, too. Many eager players have been working out “informally” for weeks on minor league fields — position players don’t report for several more days, and all teams will be in full swing by the weekend.

In Tampa, Fla., Yankees captain Derek Jeter ran on a treadmill for the first time since breaking his ankle on Oct. 13, a big step toward reaching his goal of being in New York’s opening day lineup on April 1 against Boston in the Bronx.

In his third week of baseball activities, Jeter was on the infield grass fielding groundballs and in a batting cage taking swings — all while dozens of autograph-seeking fans lined up outside the Yankees’ minor league complex down the road from the big league facility.

“I feel fine,” Jeter said. “I was able to do everything else. I just had to be careful with my ankle, but now I’ve gotten the green light with that. I’ve gotten all the green lights I need.”

In Fort Myers, Fla., Red Sox principal owner John Henry put to rest reports that he was considering selling the franchise.

“You just don’t get an opportunity to own something like the Boston Red Sox. As long as we can do it, the three of us are committed to being here,” Henry told reporters, while acknowledging team president Larry Lucchino and chairman Tom Werner. “These thoughts that we’re somehow selling, those are just not true.”

With a new manager, John Farrell, replacing Bobby Valentine after one disastrous 69-93 season, Henry likes Boston’s chances. “I would say, especially in comparison to last year, I should be optimistic,” Henry said.

In Kissimmee, Fla., the Houston Astros began their first day in the bruising AL West. One of the most inexperienced teams in baseball will wear fiery orange practice hats and jerseys that evoke the orange rainbow stripes of a better time for an organization that lost over 100 games each of the past two seasons.

AMERICA’S CUP FINANCING
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco officials are racing to raise tens of millions dollars from private donors to pay for security, transportation and the other costs of hosting the America’s Cup yachting championship later this year.

A spokeswoman for Mayor Ed Lee said officials have raised about $14 million of the estimated $31 million to $34 million needed to host the 55 days of racing beginning in July.

Spokeswoman Christine Falvey said Monday that the mayor has recently stepped up his own efforts to meet personally with chief executives of prominent companies based in San Francisco in an effort to meet the goals.

The city aims to pay for the event that expects to attract millions of spectators without having to dip into its general fund.

A February 2012 report by the city controller’s office raised concerns that the America’s Cup Organizing Committee wasn’t raising funds fast enough to meet that goal.

HOROSCOPE

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS
2/12/13

Cupid Draws His Bow

The Venus and Saturn arrangement has Cupid drawing back his bow before he really has a clear shot of the target. We can expect a few misses and also instances in which the wrong person gets the arrow. But at least this happens in a comedy-of-errors style. The light-hearted Aquarius influences wouldn't have it any other way!

a. In the past, you haven't always been the one who stops the social flow to take a picture. But now you'll see the value in doing so. You'll freeze the current moment to contribute to everyone's future happiness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Having the right view and the right intention automatically leads to the words and actions that are right. You'll live this principle. You won't even have to think of the next correct move. It all flows naturally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll be handed items you don't quite know what to do with. While it's always more satisfying to get things you actually want, this new development deserves a fair chance. It will be more useful than you expect.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You know that existence and living are not the same things, and yet sometimes you forget to choose activities that will reinforce this concept. Plan a bit of lively fun that will remind you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Creative or spiritual work is on the agenda. You've already done enough research and talking. Now your efforts will thrive in silence. It won't occur naturally. You'll have to create a bubble of quiet around you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're in the mood to boldly risk it all; however, "it all" doesn't want to be risked. "It all" will cling to you, begging you to reconsider, and perhaps you should. This fever will die down, and then where will you be?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Romantic love may not be your thing right now, but that is only one small side of love. Your compassion is strong. You feel you could give generously to all of humanity, one person at a time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Often the people who think they know something have far less to impart than the ones who are sitting quietly, observing the action. You're smart to be wary of big talk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're not afraid of society, but you have the need to retreat. You may take a break from your usual outgoing style so you can focus intently on your inner life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You can move faster and do more than you did last week. As you move quickly, you'll have the concentration of an expertly trained ninja, so nothing falls through the cracks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll express yourself in silly ways, and equally playful people will love it. Overly serious people will be outwardly baffled but inwardly intrigued. So you really can't lose.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're somewhat detached from your own self-image today, as you realize that you can be anyone you decide to be. You're very much in control of how people perceive you, and you'll have fun with this.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 12). Just because others happen to be celebrating you doesn't mean you shouldn't also celebrate yourself. You'll find your environment to be highly motivating over the next 10 weeks. By May, you're in a completely new place. In the process of figuring out who you are, you'll find different things to believe in and be. Profitable deals go down this month and next. Taurus and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 14, 33, 8 and 12.

LOVE AND THE WATER SIGNS: Is your valentine a water sign? Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces are famous for forming the kind of soul-level bonds that turn relationships into magical, totally immersive experiences. Water is symbolic of emotion and also of cleansing and healing. The love of a water sign has healing properties that are a part of the reward that comes with a Cancer, Scorpio or Pisces connection. If you have been in a relationship with a water sign for a long time, chances are you feel that your love understands you at a very deep level -- a level beyond words and the senses.

However you choose to celebrate Valentine's Day, your water-sign love wants your time together to be meaningful. One way to make sure this is the case is to articulate just what this connection means to you. Describe how you see your love and how you feel when you are together. Tell the story of this relationship -- what it was like to meet for the first time and how you decided this person is special. Your water sign will cherish your written words more than the gift, so give careful attention to what you put in the card!

Sick of ink click

Heloise

Dear Heloise: You had an article about the HIGH PRICE OF PRINTER INK. This is about printers in general. I love my printer; however, the manufacturer has installed an automatic alert system for when it gets low on ink.

Great -- now I can go buy another cartridge for when it is empty. My complaint is that it starts alerting me when it is just barely below half and throws two or three screens up that I have to click out of before I can go ahead with the printing project I have.

I called the company, and it cannot be reconfigured. I spend many minutes clicking and clicking because the printer thinks I'm low on ink. Believe me, I will never repurchase this brand of printer again. -- Sherril Gerard, Santa Ana, Calif.

Sherril, that sounds like a pain! This is why it is important, before you buy a printer, to check on the price of refill cartridges. So, in your case, just keep clicking away. This way, you will get the most for your money. -- Heloise

LOST PHONE

Dear Heloise: To help people return my locked phone if I lose it, I make a note with my husband's cell number on it ("If found, please call _____") and put its picture in my photo album. I then use that photo as my lock-screen picture. -- Bev Calfee, The Villages, Fla.

HIDING PASSWORDS

Dear Heloise: My friend hides passwords for her accounts and stuff in a computer file. I told her that this is a terrible idea, because if the computer crashed and she lost her hard drive, no more stored passwords.

I told her that I keep all of my passwords in an address book. But they are written in a way that no one except me knows how to read them. There are many different things you can add to a password to make it unknown. -- Bobby Jo, via fax

This is one reason why you should always "back up" your computer info on a regular basis! -- Heloise

HANDY CLASP ENVELOPE

Dear Heloise: On a recent trip to the hospital with my wife, I took a large clasp envelope. Each time I was handed papers, signed forms or discharge forms, I placed them in the envelope and noted them on the outside of the envelope. When we got home, all of our paperwork was together and available as we needed it. -- T.C.H., Little Rock, Ark.

PLACE MATS

Dear Heloise: I was reading a column and saw the hint where old place mats are used for lining drawers and cabinets. Well, I have been doing this, but mainly for heavy things like mixers and blenders that will scratch the lining I have in my shelves. I usually use clear place mats. By the way, I love reading your columns. -- Patricia, Mission Viejo, Calif.

He feels betrayed to learn of abortion

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that my girlfriend of nearly four years had an abortion when she was in high school.

I overheard her during a conversation she was having with someone. I later asked her what was implied when the name of her ex-boyfriend from high school was brought up. She proceeded to tell me what had happened and then said, "I never told you that?" Obviously, she never mentioned it to me because I certainly would have remembered something of that magnitude.

My reaction is feelings of disgust, betrayal and of having been lied to. Am I overreacting or are my feelings warranted? -- FEELS BETRAYED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR FEELS BETRAYED: That depends upon whether you ever had a conversation with your girlfriend about her sexual history during which you were supposed to tell each other "everything." If so, then the omission was deliberate. If not, she was under no obligation to reveal that she had terminated a pregnancy during high school.

Abortion is a deeply personal and often complex decision for women. Ultimately, I am told, most women feel a sense of relief after an abortion. However, many do not feel that it is something to celebrate and may not be comfortable sharing that they have had one.

DEAR ABBY: My husband gives me gift cards for my birthday and special occasions, but with it comes, "I want to know everything you buy!" I tell him it's a gift and I shouldn't HAVE to tell him what I use it for. If I do tell him what I bought, he invariably says, "Did you really need that?"

It ruins the whole thing for me when I must reveal what I bought with the card. So who's right -- he or I? -- RELUCTANT RECIPIENT IN ALASKA

DEAR RELUCTANT RECIPIENT: You are, for the reason you stated. The object of a gift is to bring pleasure, and there are few comments your husband could make that would put a bigger damper on your purchase than, "Do you really need that?" The next time he asks what you bought, tell him, "None of your beeswax!"

DEAR ABBY: My stepmother was in a fatal car accident. She was very dear to me. A few days after the funeral, Dad told me the best way to handle grief is to clean house -- so we began cleaning house like crazy, stopping to cry every now and then.

We ran out of towels, so I went to fetch more from the guest bathroom where they are kept. Seeing a penny on the sink, I grabbed it and threw it in the wastebasket. (I wondered where it had come from because I hadn't noticed it there earlier in the day.) Suddenly, I remembered the letters in your column from people saying if you find a penny after you have lost a loved one, it means they are sending you a message of love from heaven.

I quickly reached into the wastebasket to retrieve the penny, praying that it was newly minted -- and it was! I showed it to Dad, explaining the significance, and we both had a good cry. We keep it in my stepmother's china cabinet to remind us that love is eternal.

To us, that penny is priceless. Thank you for running those "pennies from heaven" stories. -- READER IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR READER: You're welcome. To me your EXPERIENCE is priceless.

Interstitial cystitis, bladder inflammation

can be anywhere from mild to severe, along with increased urinary frequency and discomfort, and sometimes pain during sex.

Depression is commonly associated with this condition, probably because of the chronic pain. Many more women than men have this disorder.

Diagnosis is difficult, and there often is a long delay from the time someone complains about symptoms until the time it is correctly diagnosed. Often, there have been many treatments with antibiotics for presumed but not proven urinary infections.

The prognosis is mixed. On the one hand, interstitial cystitis doesn't increase the risk of cancer or progression to worse diseases. However, the pain can be disabling, and the treatments aren't always effective. One specific treatment is pentosan (Elmiron). Other treatments include antidepressants like amitriptyline, which can reduce pain. Most people with interstitial cystitis find that certain foods tend to aggravate the problem, especially acid foods.

The interstitial cystitis association at www.ichelp.org has many useful suggestions.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My 18-year-old son has a lymph node in his neck that's been

DEAR DR.

ROACH: What can you tell me about interstitial cystitis? A friend of mine was recently diagnosed with this. What is the prognosis? She is only in her 30s. -- D.S.

ANSWER: Interstitial cystitis is an inflammation of the lining of the bladder. Its cause is unknown. Its major symptom is pain, which swollen for a couple of months. He does have wisdom teeth coming in. Does he need to worry or see an internist? -- K.R.

ANSWER: Swollen nodes in the neck are common, but if your son's was or is greater than 2 cm (about an inch) at its largest dimension for more than six weeks, it should be evaluated. Most often, it's reactive, such as to an infection. A wisdom tooth coming in provides an entrance for bacteria to the system, and that certainly can cause an enlarged node.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 61-year-old woman in good health. Earlier this year, I had a blood test for suspected Lyme disease (I did not have it), and one of the results in the blood test showed a positive ANA. My primary-care physician sent me to a rheumatologist, and it was explained to me that my result is a possible sign of scleroderma or perhaps lupus. I have no symptoms of any of these diseases, and have no joint or skin problems. The rheumatologist ordered some additional blood tests, and nothing else remarkable showed up. Should I be concerned? -- W.T.

ANSWER: The ANA test is a test for anti-nuclear antibodies, which are common in autoimmune disorders, like the scleroderma and lupus you mentioned. However, a false-positive ANA test is very common. At least 5 percent of healthy people will have a positive ANA at any given time, and as we get older, that number goes higher, as high as 30 percent.

Since you took the test to look for Lyme disease and not because of suspicion of an autoimmune disease, it is even more likely that this is a false positive. Sometimes ANA tests turn positive months or years before symptoms of lupus or other autoimmune diseases start, but I think it is much more likely that this is not something to worry about.

Cheating wife won't move forward

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: Twenty years ago, my wife had an affair with a co-worker. It ended when he moved back to his home state 2,000 miles away. At the time, I asked my wife to go to counseling with me. We made it to one session before she pronounced our marriage "healed."

Sixteen months ago, out of the blue, this same guy contacted my wife via email, and they began communicating. I discovered they were planning to meet in Las Vegas. I begged her not to go, but she was convinced she loved him and had to know if they should be together. The month before her trip, I endured more pain than I've ever experienced. I set up counseling sessions for us with separate therapists, arranged a meeting with our pastor and lost 20 pounds from the stress.

In the end, this creep flaked out on their Vegas rendezvous, probably because he couldn't see himself leaving his children for her. She also was reluctant to leave our kids. However, the breakup crushed her, and she initially refused to work on our marriage. Finally, we went to a joint counseling session, but when the therapist made reference to her "profound betrayal," that was that.

My wife refuses to reshaw what happened. I'm worried that the only reason she is recommitting to our marriage is because the other man gave up on her. Things just don't feel the same. She insists she's done with this guy, but who really knows? Is it possible to move forward without dealing with the past? -- Torn Up in California

Dear Torn: Maybe, but not if your wife is using your marriage as her rebound relationship in order to soothe her heartbreak. That's a temporary commitment. Refusing to examine the reasons behind her vulnerability to the affair leaves open the possibility of repeating the betrayal -- and this is undoubtedly what most worries you.

You cannot force your wife to work on this, so please get counseling for yourself, on your own. You need to learn what you can live with.

Dear Annie: "Don't Want a Contest" feels his fiancée's 13-year-old son is jealous. Please tell him to back off. It is normal for a single mom and
