SALEM —A nearly 20-year veteran of the Salem Police Department resigned Friday, just a few days after being suspended without pay pending the outcome of a case against him for charges of drunken driving and marked lanes.

Gary Poage submitted his letter of resignation to Salem Police Chief J.T. Panezott, with copies made for Mayor John Berlin, Service/Safety Director Ken Kenst, Auditor Betty

Brothers and the Salem Civil Service Commission. "He has that right," Panezott said, opting against further comment.

Poage, 47, was charged with OVI and marked lanes by Canfield Police after a traffic stop early last Sunday morning on South Broad Street. He was found to be more than three times over the legal limit for alcohol after blowing a .260 during a portable breath test. The legal limit in Ohio is .08. At the police station, he agreed to a chemical test which resulted in a reading of .244, also over the legal limit.

Poage entered a plea of not guilty during arraignment Wednesday night in Mahoning County Court #5 in Canfield. A pretrial hearing is set for March 20, according to online court records.

Items police took from his car included two empty beer bottles and two plastic cups containing what appeared to be beer, according to the arresting officer's report. His driver's license was also seized and his driving privileges suspended.

After noting he was suspending Poage without pay pending the outcome of the court case, Panezott said he was evaluating Poage's personnel file "to decide if any other action will be taken prior to this being resolved in court.'

He also noted that he was evaluating the personnel file in the written notification to Poage dated Tuesday regarding the suspension.

South Range to accept enrollments in March

By KEVIN HOWELL

Staff Writer

BEAVER TOWNSHIP-The South Range Local School District will begin accepting open enrollment applications for the 2013-2014 school year for students in kindergarten through sixth grade beginning 8 a.m. March 4.

The open enrollment program is only open to residents from adjacent school districts which include Boardman, Canfield, Columbiana, Crestview, Leetonia, Salem, Springfield, West Branch and Western Reserve.

Procedural forms and applications may be picked up between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. beginning Feb. 25 at the South Range Local Schools Board of Education offices at 11375 Columbiana-Canfield Road, Canfield. Applications are due by 4 p.m. March 28.

The school board approved the program for the first time last month in response to declining enrollment and a shrinking

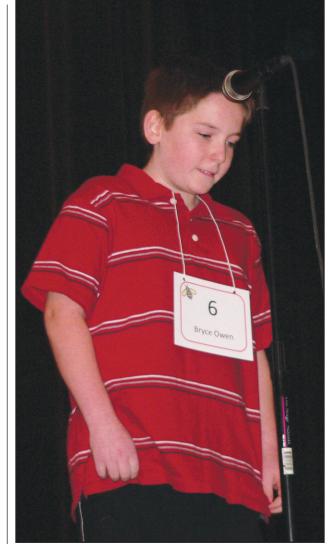

According to schools Superintendent Dennis Dunham, enrollment has declined steadily over the past four or five years, going from a capacity of 100 per graduating class eight years ago to under 60 in the first grade now.

"In order to sustain (and) maintain our current level of course offerings and activities, we need to bring the (enrollment) numbers back up to where they were eight years ago," he said. "[The current enrollment] projected over eight or nine years...it'll be very difficult to offer higher level courses to so few students.'

"For the district to run as efficiently as possible, we need to get back to capacity," Dunham said.

SALEM — Sixth graders Bryce Owen and Given Warner displayed their spelling prowess once again in battling for the Salem City Spelling Bee championship, but this year Bryce took home the top trophy.

"You're clearly looking at the two best spellers in our district right now," Salem Junior High Principal Sean Kirkland said Friday.

The two Southeast School students spelled against each other for the last six rounds of the 12-round contest at the Salem High School auditorium, with Given missing on the word "barrow" after Bryce correctly spelled "windily" in the 11th round. Bryce became the champion by correctly spelling the word "slav" in the our district right 12th round.

Columbiana mayor disagrees with comment on hiring

By KATIE SCHWENDEMAN

COLUMBIANA - The city's mayor doesn't agree with a statement made by the man seeking his position in the primary election.

David Spatholt said councilman and candidate for mayor Bryan Blakeman's comment that the city hired Lance Willard as manager over 25 others who scored "higher" on the civil service commission test isn't Blakeman had said at a recent council meeting he didn't agree with the hiring based on the fact that Willard had not even passed the scoring test.

Each applicant was scored based on their experience, education and other criteria, and only those with a score of 10 or 12 were considered for the position.

Willard was one of roughly 70 to apply and competed for the job with one other city employee, police Chief Spatholt had previously said Gladis and Willard were given interviews because they deserved that right as city employees.

He said Blakeman's recent statement that 25 people "scored higher" isn't correct, because none of the applicants were ranked.

"He made it sound like they ranked them. They just scored them," he said.

He explained that once the civil service commission scored the applicants, the resumes were forwarded to the selection advisory committee, which consisted of himself, councilman Lowell Schloneger, (now former) councilman Bob Bieshelt and civil service commission member

The resumes were then narrowed down and nine people were chosen for interviews, he said.

In the meantime, however, two of the nine accepted jobs elsewhere, leaving seven applicants for inter-

"When we were done interviewing we couldn't come to a conclusion and we brought it down to three names and we had a second interview with those three ... he (Blakeman) was only involved in the second interview," Spatholt said.

Meteor explodes over Russian city, 1,100 hurt

MOSCOW (AP) — With a blinding flash and a booming shock wave, a meteor blazed across the western Siberian sky Friday and exploded with the force of 20 atomic bombs, injuring more than 1,000 people as it blasted out windows and spread panic in a city of 1

While NASA estimated the meteor was only about the size of a bus and weighed an estimated 7,000 tons, the fireball it produced was dramatic. Video shot by startled residents of the city of Chelyabinsk showed its streaming contrails as it arced toward the horizon just after sunrise, looking like something from a world-ending science-fiction movie.

The largest recorded meteor strike in more than a century occurred hours before a 150-foot asteroid passed within about 17,000 miles (28,000 kilometers) of Earth. The European Space Agency said its experts had determined there was no connection between the asteroid and the Russian meteor — just cosmic coincidence.

The meteor above western Siberia entered the Earth's atmosphere about 9:20 a.m. local time (10:20 p.m. EST Thursday) at a hypersonic speed of at least 33,000 mph (54,000 kph) and shattered into pieces about 30-50 kilometers (18 to 32 miles) high, the Russian Academy of Sciences said. NASA estimated its speed at about 40,000 mph, said it exploded about 12 to 15 miles high, released 300 to 500 kilotons of energy and left a trail 300 miles long.

"There was panic. People had no idea what was happening," said Sergey Hametov of Chelyabinsk, about 1,500 kilometers (930 miles) east of Moscow in the Ural Moun-

"We saw a big burst of light, then went outside to see what it was and we heard a really loud, thundering sound," he told The Associated Press by telephone.

The shock wave blew in an estimated 100,000 square meters (more than 1 million square feet) of glass, according to city officials, who said 3,000 buildings in Chelyabinsk were damaged. At a zinc factory, part of the roof collapsed.

The Interior Ministry said about 1,100 people sought medical care after the shock wave and 48 were hospitalized. Most of the injuries were caused by flying glass, officials said.

Scientists estimated the meteor unleashed a force 20 times more powerful than the Hiroshima bomb, although the space rock exploded at a much higher altitude. Amy Mainzer, a scientist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said the atmosphere acted as a shield.

The shock wave may have shattered windows, but "the atmosphere absorbed the vast majority of that energy," she said.

Emergency Situations Ministry spokesman Vladimir Purgin said many of the injured were cut as they flocked to windows to see what caused the intense flash of light, which momentarily was brighter than the sun.

There was no immediate word on any deaths or anyone struck by space fragments.

President Vladimir Putin summoned the nation's emergencies minister and ordered immediate repairs. "We need to think how to help the people and do it immediately," he said.

Some meteorite fragments fell in a reservoir outside the town of Chebarkul, the regional Interior Ministry office said. The crash left an eight-meter (26-foot) crater in the ice.

Lessons had just started at Chelyabinsk schools when the meteor exploded, and officials said 258 children were among those injured. Amateur video showed a teacher speaking to her class as a powerful shock wave hit the room.

Yekaterina Melikhova, a high school student whose nose was bloody and whose upper lip was covered with a bandage, said she was in her geography class when a bright light flashed outside.

"After the flash, nothing happened for about three minutes. Then we rushed outdoors. ... The door was made of glass, a shock wave made it hit us," she said.

Russian television ran video of athletes at a city sports arena who were showered by shards of glass from huge windows. Some of them were still bleeding.

Other videos showed a long shard of glass slamming into the floor close to a factory worker and massive doors blown away by the shock wave.

Meteors typically cause sizeable sonic booms when they enter the atmosphere because they are traveling so much faster than the speed of sound. Injuries on the scale reported Friday, however, are extraordinarily rare.

"I went to see what that flash in the sky was about," recalled resident Marat Lobkovsky. "And then the window glass shattered, bouncing back on me. My beard was cut open, but not deep. They patched me up. It's OK now."

Venezuelan government shows first photos of Chavez in 2 months

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The world got its first glimpse of Hugo Chavez since he underwent a fourth cancer-related surgery in Cuba more than two months ago, with photos released Friday showing the Venezuelan leader smiling alongside his daughters in Havana.

Along with images of the puffy-faced Chavez came a government explanation for why no one has heard from the longtime president since his surgery: He's breathing through a tracheal tube that makes speech difficult.

Chavez's government described his condition as "delicate" and said he continues to undergo "vigorous treatment for his fundamental illness.

The images and new details filled a vacuum of information about Chavez's condition that has unleashed rampant speculation in Venezuela. Government officials say Chavez has been recovering in Cuba since his cancer surgery Dec. 11.

The four photos show Chavez reclining on what appears to be a bed, his cheeks reddish, and a blue pillow behind his head. He smiles broadly, while his daughters Rosa and Maria lean in close to him.

Sheriff: Ex-cop Dorner died from shot to head, had been hiding near officers SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Fugitive ex-cop Christopher Dorner killed himself as the cabin he was barricaded inside caught fire following a shootout with officers, police revealed Friday while also confirming he spent most of his time on the run in a condominium just steps away from the command center set up to find him.

The information that we have right now seems to indicate that the wound that took Christopher Dorner's life was self-inflicted," sheriff's Capt. Kevin Lacy told reporters at a news conference.

Authorities initially were unsure whether Dorner killed himself, had been struck by a deputy's bullet or had died in a fire that engulfed the cabin during the shootout.

The search for Dorner began last week after authorities said he had launched a deadly revenge campaign against the Los Angeles Police Department for his firing, warning in a manifesto posted on Facebook that he would bring 'warfare" to LAPD officers and their families.

Within days he had killed four people, including two

Jesse Jackson Jr., wife to plead guilty;

$750K allegedly spent on personal items WASHINGTON (AP) — In a spectacular fall from political prominence, former U.S. Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr. and his wife agreed Friday to plead guilty to federal charges growing out of what prosecutors said was a scheme to use $750,000 in campaign funds for lavish personal expenses, including a $43,000 gold watch and furs. Federal prosecutors filed one charge of conspiracy against the former Chicago congressman and charged his ex-alderman wife, Sandra, with one count of filing false ioint federal income tax returns for the years 2006 through 2011 that knowingly understated the income the couple received. Both agreed to plead guilty in deals with federal prosecutors.

Both face maximum penalties of several years in prison; he also faces hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines and forfeitures. But the government did not immediately release the text of its plea agreements. Such agreements almost invariably call for prosecutors to recommend sentences below the maximum.

The son of a famed civil rights leader, Jackson, a Democrat, entered Congress in 1995 and resigned last November. Sandi, as she's known, was a Chicago alderman, but resigned last month amid the federal investigation.

Jackson used campaign money to buy such things as a $43,350 on a gold-plated, men's Rolex watch and $9,587.64 on children's furniture, according to court papers filed in the case. His wife spent $5,150 on fur capes and parkas, the document said.

Incoming space rocks just hours apart point up danger 'lt's a shooting gallery' CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A space rock even bigger than the meteor that exploded like an atom bomb over Russia could drop out of the sky unannounced at any time and wreak havoc on a city. And Hollywood to the contrary, there isn't much the world's scientists and generals can do about it.

But some former astronauts want to give the world a fighting chance.

They're hopeful Friday's cosmic coincidence — Earth's close brush with a 150-foot asteroid, hours after the 49foot meteor struck in Russia - will draw attention to the dangers lurking in outer space and lead to action, such as better detection and tracking of asteroids.

"After today, a lot of people will be paying attention," said Rusty Schweickart, who flew on Apollo 9 in 1969, helped establish the planet-protecting B612 Foundation and has been warning NASA for years to put more muscle and money into a heightened asteroid alert.

Earth is menaced all the time by meteors, which are chunks of asteroids or comets that enter Earth's atmosphere. But many if not most of them are simply too small to detect from afar with the tools now available to astronomers.

In Chicago, Obama talks about ways to build 'ladders of opportunity'

CHICAGO (AP) — Pressing his case in the town that launched his political career, President Barack Obama called Friday for the government to take an active, wideranging role in ensuring every American has a "ladder of opportunity" into the middle class.

Speaking at Hyde Park Academy in Chicago, Obama sought support for proposals, unveiled this week in his State of the Union address, to increase the federal minimum wage and ensure every child can attend preschool. He also pitched plans to pair businesses with recessionbattered communities to help them rebuild and provide

"In too many neighborhoods today, whether here in Chicago or in the farthest reaches of rural America, it can feel like for a lot of young people the future only extends to the next street corner or the outskirts of town, that no matter how much you work or how hard you try, your destiny was determined the moment you were born,"

Brother of dead woman wants out of plea deal

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON - In a handwritten affidavit, Jamie Adkins, the brother of shooting victim Holly Carosiello, submitted a motion requesting to be allowed to withdraw his plea and vacate his 10-year prison sentence.

Adkins pleaded guilty on Oct. 19 to involuntary manslaughter, burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but faced a maximum of 24 years.

From the Lorain Correctional Institution, Adkins submitted a handwritten motion dated Feb. 4. In it he claimed his rights had been violated because he had ineffective assistance from his court-appointed counselor, Kelly Linger.

Adkins wrote that during plea negotiations he had told Linger that in order for him to sign the plea agreement, the prosecutors had to agree that the people or persons responsible for the death of his sister, Carosiello, must be indicted before he was sentenced.

Adkins said Linger told him the prosecutor's office did agree to that stipulation, then changed her story after he signed it. At the sentencing hearing, she then reportedly told him the prosecution had not agreed to wait and it was at that point too late to withdraw his plea.

"I signed my plea on false pretenses and would never signed if I knew the state didn't agree with the terms, being a violation of my constitutional rights," Adkins wrote.

When asked about Adkins' complaint, Linger denied she misled her client.

"I was never untruthful with him, but I understand his frustration," Linger said.

According to court documents, the prosecutor's office has until Feb. 25 to file a reply to the motion. However, Assistant County Prosecutor John Gam-motion. In it he noted Adkins was originally scheduled for a change of plea hearing so he could plead guilty on May 30, 2012, but on that date he claimed to have been coerced into changing his plea and requested new counsel. Attorney Douglas King was allowed to withdraw and Linger was appointed at that time. After a 10week delay, Adkins again informed the court he planned to plead guilty and a second hearing was scheduled on Aug.

On that date, Adkins had signed and dated the agreement. One of the clauses stated no promises were made to him aside from the terms of the agreement. Additionally, he told the court he was satisfied with the services of his attorney. Finally, he noted he was making his plea voluntarily and of his own free will.

Gamble went on to state Adkins did not raise any concerns about wanting to change his plea when he appeared for sentencing in October.

"The defendant's claims are neither credible nor supported by the record," Gamble wrote. "Moreover, no competent criminal defense lawyer, certainly not someone with Attorney Linger's experience, would ever consent to the impossible stipulation Adkins alleges in his affidavit."

Carosiello and Adkins, along with a group of people he organized reportedly attempted to break into her estranged husband's house, when Carosiello was shot and killed. The plea agreements signed by Adkins and the other defendants involved in the burglary required that they all cooperate, including testify if called, at any additional grand jury or criminal proceedings involving Carosiello's death.

COLUMBUS(AP) - Gov.John Kasich has chosen a former Public Utilities Commission of Ohio staff member to fill an opening on that board.

The Republican announced Friday he's appointing 42year-old M. Beth Trombold, now at the Ohio Development Services Agency. Her appointment must be confirmed by state senators.

Trombold, of Columbus, was the only woman among four finalists. She was appointed to fill the unexpired term of former Commissioner Chervl Roberto and then a full term ending in April 2018. By law, Roberto's seat can't go to a Republican because the party already controls three of five seats.

OUR SIDE

Men and women throughout the world in general, and Roman Catholics in particular, were a little stunned Monday morning. when word spread that Pope Benedict XVI announced that he would retire as of Feb. 28.

As he has done throughout his entire eight years in the papacy, Benedict put the needs of the church and its more than 1 billion followers first, emphasizing that the post requires "both strength of body and

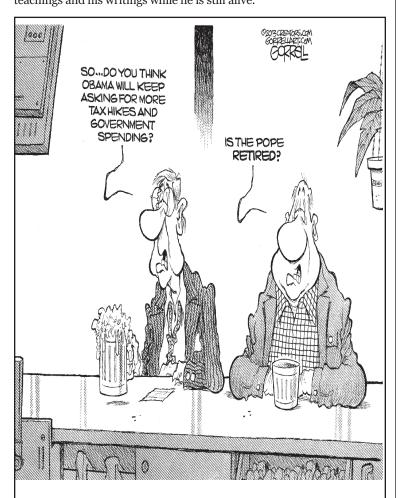

The pope, who felt he simply no longer could muster that strength, put his faith first after realizing his "incapacity to adequately fulfill the ministry entrusted to me.'

While Benedict's future is fairly well laid out — he will spend time at the papal summer retreat Castel Gandolfo before moving to his retirement home in a monastery on the edge of the Vatican gardens — the road ahead for church officials is far less smooth.

It's a situation they have not seen since 1415, when Gregory XII stepped down to end the Great Western Schism among competing papal claimants, and one that raises many questions, not the least of which s how the former pope will be addressed.

Church officials have said that whatever else happens, Benedict will have no role in the selection of his successor. When that will occur is not yet known, but it is expected that the next pope will be elected by the College of Cardinals before Easter.

It's too early to judge what legacy he leaves, but Benedict's retirement gives theologians and historians a rare chance to examine his works, his teachings and his writings while he is still alive.

CAL THOMAS

President Obama's approach to so-called "climate change" appears to include recycling old ideas.

In his State of the Union address, the president recycled the idea of spending more on education, though we are still getting unsatisfactory results. A fact he inadvertently acknowledged by saying we're not keeping up with other countries in science and math. He maintained there are tens of thousands of jobs available but companies can't fill them because public schools aren't teaching students what they need to know. We spend huge sums on education already, so money and achievement must not be re-

Infrastructure? We've heard that before, too. Why is nothing ever fixed with all the money that's been spent the last four years? Because it's about maintaining union jobs, not creating new jobs that produce products and services and grow small businesses.

The president mentioned the coming sequester, but Douglas Elmendorf, the director of the Congressional Budget Office, told the Senate's Committee on the Budget, that he can't score the proposal to replace the sequester because he hasn't yet seen "a specific proposal." The sequester was the president's idea, though he now suggests it came from Congress. The House has proposed targeted spending cuts that protect defense. Those proposals have gone nowhere in the Sen-

The president spoke of "...the basic bargain that built this country -- the idea that if you work hard and meet your responsibilities, you can get ahead." Yes, and if you do you will be taxed at ever increasing rates, labeled rich and powerful and accused of not doing

What would be fair is for government to stop spending more than it takes in.

The president claimed his national health insurance is driving down medical costs. It's actually the reverse. ABC News reported on the conclusion of the nonpartisan Health Care Institute: "Spending on health care rose 4.6 percent in 2011 -- up $4,500 per person, on average." The network also noted a Kaiser Family Foundation report that said, "Health insurance premi-ums for individuals and families also climbed yearover-year, up 3 percent ($186) on average for an individual and 4 percent ($672) on average for a fam-

The Washington Times reported, "President Obama's health care law will push 7 million people out of their job-based insurance coverage -- nearly twice the previous estimate, according to the latest estimates from the Congressional Budget Office...'

The president spoke of reducing America's nuclear arsenal at a time when Iran and North Korea are building theirs and threatening nuclear attack. This is part of the failed ideology he has applied to the Middle East, which says that if we will just be nice to our enemies, they will be nice to us.

The president promised to cut the deficit in half by the end of his first term. Instead, he has deepened our deficit and national debt. Jobs? According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, since Barack Obama took office in 2009, 8.5 million Americans have given up looking for work. Those lucky enough to find work, often receive very low pay. The president's proposed increase in the minimum wage won't help create new jobs. If it passes, which it won't in the House, it will more than likely eliminate new hires.

There are so many more recycled ideas, but not enough space here to list them all.

Sen. Marco Rubio (R-FL.) gave one of the better and more substantive responses to a State of the Union address. Rubio sought to identify with the common man, noting his Florida home is among middle-class people. He retold his story as the son of immigrant parents and made the case for smaller government, rewarding initiative entrepreneurship and improving education through school choice.

The state of the union would be much better if government were smaller and if people were allowed to keep and spend more of their hard-earned money. President Obama takes the liberal view; Marco Rubio the conservative view. The debate in the next two elections will be between the party that wants to empower government and the party of individual empowerment; between recycling old and failed ideas and trying new ones.

Loveland (Colo.) Daily Reporter-Herald on why the Boy Scouts need to be inclusive:

The Boy Scouts of America exists to develop character, citizenship and personal fitness in its members.

In its effort to support this mission, the BSA has set nationwide, exclusive standards for members and leaders. But now it is rethinking one of those restrictions. The organization — which turns 113 this year — is scheduled to consider ending its longstanding policy against the admission of homosexuals to the ranks of its membership and leadership.

As it weighs this decision, BSA leadership should keep in mind a couple of questions: Will this policy change compromise its mission? When a Scout promises to do his duty to God and country, to obey the Scout Law, to help other people at all times, to remain physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight, do sexual inclinations hinder that promise?

Specifically, the BSA will consider allowing the organizations that charter troops - such as service clubs and churches — to decide for themselves the guidelines for accepting members and selecting

We applaud the idea, not because the BSA is caving to social pressure but because this policy change would allow the organization to reach boys and men who have not felt welcome, while not forcing sponsoring organizations to compromise their beliefs. ...

Boys and men who desire to be a part of that organization, to conform to those standards and to do their "duty to God and country" should not be turned away.

Rubio comes up short in verbal duel with Obama

The anucre verbal duel he anticipated Tuesday evening between President Obama and Republican Sen. Marco Rubio of Florida -the former in his State of the Union Address and the latter in the official Republican response -was an obvious mismatch. It seemed a case of man vs. boy, and of a perhaps overly ambitious agenda for the future vs. the same old GOP naysaying.

The president, invoking all the pomp and power of his office, had one of politics' best platforms from which to preach optimistically of progress at home and withdrawal from combat abroad. He used it to build on his second inaugural speech on how he would re-energize a flagging American mid-

Rubio, confined to an ordinary Capitol Hill office devoid of any similar trappings, offered himself as a personal tribute to middle-class opportunity based on individual grit and smaller government. Although the face was new, the message was the tired Republican boilerplate voters rejected in November.

Rubio's appearance came amid much discussion of the Republican Party's need to shed its image as the Party of No and its association with the rich that did Mitt Romney in. In an obvious sense, the Hispanic-American senator from a middle-class family speaking in Spanish as well as in English filled the bill.

His selection to rebut Obama was a recognition that his party needs to respond more to the needs of Latino voters, who gave the president a whopping 73 percent of their votes last November. But Rubio's message merely sought to outbid Obama as a champion of the middle class. It was a futile effort in light of the president's proposals that included a boost in the federal minimum wage and a new preschool initiative for kids of poor parents.

Obama, with his re-election behind him, spelled out the aggressive proposals of his second inaugural address in more inclusive and combative tones, building on the new leadership image he has been projecting for his second term. Rubio, in contrast, failed to offer himself as much more than an earnest young messenger recycling the old conservative GOP litany of opposition to a bigger, more expensive and intrusive federal government.

Alluding to the way Romney was effectively tarred as a well-heeled defender of the haves against the nation's have-nots, Rubio said he did not oppose Obama's agenda "because I want to protect the rich." Rather, he said, he wanted to "protect my neighbors, hard-working Americans who don't need us to come up with a plan to grow the govern-

At the same time, Rubio acknowledged that his neighbors, including his own mother, were "retirees who depend on Social Security and Medicare," two federal programs of Democratic paternity that have been strong sources of voter support for Rubio's presentation had no memorable moment to match the president's closing exhortation to the members of Congress present in the House chamber. Obama's challenge that the victims and survivors of the Newtown and other recent gun violence tragedies "deserve a vote" on his anti-gun proposals put new heat on his captive audi-

Unfortunately for Rubio, his own most memorable moment had nothing to do with the substance of anything he said. Rather, late in his speech, when he reached out of the television camera's view for a water bottle and quickly gulped from it, tweeting viewers went berserk.

Such is the nature of commentary in the trivialized world of social media. Rubio's distracting lurch had, of course, nothing to do with the substance of what he was saying. But it left him open to the merciless ridicule of the late-night comedians posing as social and political commentators.

At only 41, boyishly attractive and articulate, Marco Rubio from his Senate perch will remain a poster boy for the conservative Republicans looking to rebound from their party's November defeat. The fact that the GOP appears to have no surefire veteran waiting to inherit the next presidential nomination will keep Rubio in the guessing game.

But his initial foray into presidential politics hardly established him as the Republican version of the Barack Obama who catapulted to national attention with his speech to the 2004 Democratic National Convention.

Vote board throws out primary petitions of three candidates

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON — The petitions of three candidates — two from East Liverpool and one from Lisbon — were disqualified for the May primary election by the Columbiana County Board of Elections on Friday.

Brian E. Kerr, who was running for the council-at-large seat; Raymond M. Perorazio Sr., the only person seeking the 1st Ward council seat; and Joseph S. Morenz, a Lisbon councilman, were each disqualified due to issues with their petitions.

The petitions of all remaining candidates who filed for the primary were approved.

Kerr, a Democrat, had three proper petitions, but a fourth petition was invalidated because the candidacy statement was signed and dated Feb. 4. There were four petition signatures, which pre-dated the candidacy signature. Those four were determined to be invalid. Kerr had turned in 67 total signatures, but Kerr was left with only 49 of the 50 valid signatures he needed because 14 signatures came from people not registered oters and were therefore invalid

Likewise, Morenz, a Republican, had a candidacy statement which was dated on Jan. 31, but two signatures on that petition were dated Jan. 26. Others were disqualified because the signers were not registered voters, which left Morenz with 45 of the 50 he needed. Board of Elections Director Adam Booth pointed out Morenz only filed

Finally, Perorazio, a Democrat, filed one petition with 21 signatures, but only nine were valid. On a second petition he didn't sign the circulatory statement at all. Perorazio needed only 25.

The three candidates would still be eligible to run as independents or theoretically could file to be a write in, according to Booth. However, those running as independents would still have to be approved by the board of elections, which could disqualify them if they are currently affiliated as a

The deadline for candidates to file to run in the general election as independents is May 6. The deadline for write-in candidates to file for the primary is Feb. 25, and the deadline for write-ins in the general election is Aug. 26.

Because of candidates were invalidated and due to a lack of people filing, there are no partisan races for the primary. Only 39 precincts are expected to be open, all of them due to ballot issues such as levies. The county currently has only 89 precincts total.

One local liquor option which was filed by True North Energy, the Shell gas station in Salem, will have to wait until the fall general election because there are no contested races in the precinct.

In another matter, the board of elections received only one bid from a company interested in printing ballots. Election Systems and Software bid 24 1/2 cents per ballot for 14-inch ballots and 27 1/2 cents per ballot for 17-inch ballots.

Booth said he anticipated only the 14-inch ballots would be needed for the primary election and possibly even the general election this year.

RESIGNS

FROM 1A

The letter also said, "If this case results in a conviction on the OVI charge it is my intention to terminate your employment with the City of Salem Police Department."

Poage had been with the department since June 1993 and in that time he received numerous favorable performance evaluation reports which included high praise for his neatness, efficiency, cooperativeness, judgment, dependability, initiative and public relations.

The latest report dated in 2009 and signed by former Chief Bob Floor and Lt. Don Beeson said he did an "excellent job of seeing cases through to the end." The report also said he related to people well, resulting in several confessions.

He received a commendation for an act of valor in March 1998 when his actions resulted in saving the life of a young man in Salem. He received another commendation in August 1997 for an investigation of multiple thefts which resulted in the return of some electronic equipment. Letters from people he had helped recognized his professionalism and abilities in

His record, though, also included other disciplinary suspensions besides the one he received this week.

According to a record of disciplinary action from Jan. 8, 2009, Poage was suspended for 30 days without pay for "reporting for duty while intoxicated."

A letter in 2010 from former city Service/Safety Director Steve Andres said he received a verbal warning for excessive absenteeism in March 2010 and a written reprimand in May 2010 and then in October 2010, he was suspended for three days without pay for excessive absenteeism, noting the taking of sick days before scheduled days off.

In March 2011, he was suspended without pay for 15 days, again for excessive absenteeism, a report of disciplinary ac-

According to records of disciplinary action for September 1999, he was suspended without pay for periods of 15 days and three days related to an off-duty incident in February 1999. He had been charged with misdemeanor counts for alleged criminal damaging, aggravated menacing and discharging a firearm while intoxicated by Perry Township Police, but

He later filed a lawsuit against the Perry Township Police Department and Perry Township which was eventually settled, with no details of the settlement released.

With Poage gone and another patrolman injured on the job, Panezott said he's currently down a pair of officers. He had already started to move the sergeant who's working parttime with the Columbiana County Drug Task Force to fulltime with the DTF, but pulled him back because he's needed to help with coverage. Plans to move another patrolman to sergeant and then hire another patrolman also remain pend-

Panezott said a civil service examination for patrolman is scheduled for March 26. Eventually he'll be hiring two new patrolmen, one to replace Poage and one to replace the officer who will move to sergeant.

HIRING

FROM 1A

Blakeman confirmed he was only present for the second interview. He said he knew there was difficulty coming to an agreement.

He said it was Ted Andrzejewski who was being considered during an executive session on Jan. 22 and that council had agreed, by 5-1 to hire him, but the decision was not finalized. He and councilman James King and Bieshelt were shocked and disappointed when Andrzejewski was not hired on Jan. 29. The vote was split 3-3 among council with Schloneger, Tom Ferguson and Mary Calinger against, and Spatholt casting the deciding vote to go with Willard instead.

Schloneger has said more than once that there was never a consensus and that statements made "by some on council" do not represent the entire council.

When asked to respond to Schloneger's comment, Blakeman said it was true because it was Schloneger who refused to compromise during the Jan. 22 executive session.

"I said, 'Let's remove Bob's pick, remove Lowell's pick and rally around Noel's suggestion," Blakeman said.

His reasoning was because Noel does no hiring within the city and "wouldn't have a stake in it."

Blakeman said recently that he stands by his comment, and reiterated again that Willard wasn't in the group of applicants who scored a 10 or 12, and also wasn't even in the group who scored slightly below that.

Noel disagreed.

"There was no ranking. We took some of the categories they (council) were looking at and gave them (applicants) some points based on that. There was no ranking," he said.

He went on to say that the scoring system wasn't even a requirement for the hiring, but was simply a "tool" used to help narrow down the selection process.

With 70-some applications, council wouldn't have the time to interview that many people, he noted.

The scoring system was "just to give us a feeling for what we felt that the city was looking for. I don't think it was the only criteria .... The scoring was just a way to give an initial first blush look at how the council may want to look at the information," he said.

He declined to verify whether he had suggested Andrzejewski during the process.

Civil Service Commission member Patricia LaLonde also declined to comment. kschwendeman@mojonews.com

Ohio school shooting suspect in plea talks

CHARDON (AP) - Negotiations are under way for a possible plea deal for a teenager suspected of killing three students at a high school cafeteria, one of his attorneys said Friday.

Attorney Ian Friedman confirmed the negotiations but wouldn't offer details about the discussions in the case of 18-year-old T.J. Lane.

Friedman said if a plea occurs it could happen as early as Lane's next court date, on Feb. 26, the day before the anniversary of the deadly shootings at Chardon High School, east of Cleveland.

Lane is charged with fatally shooting the three students and injuring others.

A judge has ordered psychiatric testing for Lane. Attorneys for both sides want the testing to determine if he is competent to stand trial.

Before the case went to adult court last year, a juvenile court judge ruled that Lane was mentally competent despite evidence he suffers from hallucinations, psychosis and fantasies.

Prosecutors say Lane fired 10 shots at a group of students in the cafeteria. He was at the school waiting for a bus to his alternative school. Investigators say he admitted shooting at students but said he didn't know why he did it. Lane faces a maximum sentence of life in prison without parole if convicted. He isn't eligible for the death penalty because he was 17 at the time of the shootings. The school district plans to commemorate the anniversary of the Feb. 27 shootings with service projects and other events, including a memorial walk to the town square by students, staff members and first re-

One of the shooting survivors, 17-year-old Nate Mueller, says the tragedy has motivated him to lobby for gun safety, which he did during a recent trip to Washington. Mueller told WEWS-TV on Friday that surviving a bullet that grazed his ear prompted his involvement in the issue and that he feels it's his duty

Salem man to change rape plea, lawyer

By DEANNE JOHNSON Staff Writer

LISBON - Anthony Mehno, the Salem man who pleaded guilty to sexual battery in November and was scheduled for sentencing Friday, was granted a motion to change attorneys and reverse his plea. Attorney Kenneth Lewis will replace Rhys Cartwright-Jones at Mehno's request. Lewis was granted a 90-day request to get familiar with the case. New court dates were set for May 3 for final status and May 14 for a jury trial. Mehno, 26, East Fourth

with rape, sexual battery and unlawful sexual contact with a minor. Court documents allege on April 29, 2010 Mehno was involved in sexual conduct with a teen between the ages of 13 and 16.

Although he did not oppose the change of counsel. Assistant County Prosecutor Timothy McNicol pointed out the victim in the case was in attendance in the court room and deserves to see the case move "expeditiously.

Lewis had asked for the 90-day extension, noting he had just received the case file and it was too early to determine if he would be filing any additional motions in the case. Additionally, McNicol noted the date may have to be moved again if the

Prosecutor probes Kasich school critic

LEBANON (AP) - A southwest Ohio prosecutor is investigating a school superintendent for possible misuse of public resources for political campaigning.

Franklin City Schools Superintendent Arnol Elam wrote a letter to parents this week urging them to join "an active campaign" to make sure Gov. John Kasich and legislators supporting him aren't re-elected. Elam is among school officials in some of the state's poorer districts upset about the Republican governor's new school funding plan.

Warren County prosecutor David Fornshell said Elam might have crossed a legal line by using school resources for campaign purposes. A message was left Friday for the prosecutor's office seeking more details.

Ohio Democratic Party chairman Chris Redfern on Friday called the GOP prosecutor's investigation "a politically motivated witch hunt."

physician he plans to call to testify cannot fit the trip into his schedule. The physician has relocated to Idaho since the case began. The secret indictment was issued in late

Persistent Parker nears top job at American Airlines

Doug Parker has no problem donning rapper Psy's light blue tuxedo for Halloween and performing his own version of Gangnam Style before hundreds of employees. The CEO of US Airways even let a video of his dance get posted to YouTube. He's outspoken, confident, and persistent, and he is very close to being put in charge of the world's largest airline.

After the 9/11 terrorist attacks, Parker camped out in Washington for three months to secure a government loan to keep his airline in business. One executive who was with him said it often seemed like the other airlines just wanted America West to go out of business

Parker later engineered an audacious merger of America West and the larger US Airways. Then he spent the next seven years looking for another partner. First Delta rebuffed him. Then United. Twice. Parker then went after the only big airline left: Amer-

American also resisted at first. But Parker convinced its unions and bankruptcy creditors to pressure American management until it relented. The two sides announced Thursday they'll combine to form an airline that's bigger than United and Delta. Parker will run it.

States' insurance choices set up national health experiment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama's health care overhaul is unfolding as a national experiment with American consumers as the guinea pigs: Who will do a better job getting uninsured people covered, the states or the feds?

The nation is about evenly split between states that decided by Friday's deadline they want a say in running new insurance markets and states that are defaulting to federal control because they don't want to participate. The choice was left to state governments under the law: Establish the market or Washington

With some exceptions, states led by Democrats opted to set up their own markets - called exchanges — and Republican-led states declined.

Herbalife stock surges after Icahn

Both men have a keen interest in Herbalife, a maker of dietary supplements designed to promote weight loss. Ackman claims the company is a fraud and has bet that its stock price will crumble; Icahn says it's a great buy.

They both can't be right, and for now it's not clear which one is. Icahn, for his part, disclosed in a regulatory filing late Thursday that he had taken a 13 percent stake in the company, essentially betting that Ackman is dead wrong. Icahn says he's not making his bet merely to spite Ackman.

US factory output falls on weak auto production

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. factories slowed production in January after two solid months of cranking out goods. The weakness mainly reflected a big drop in output at auto factories that is likely tempo-

Manufacturing output fell 0.4 percent in January from December, the Federal Reserve said Friday. The decline followed increases of 1.1 percent in December and 1.7 percent in November.

Overall industrial production edged down 0.1 percent in January compared with December. Output In mining, the category that covers oil and gas drilling, fell 1 percent. Utility output jumped 3.5 percent, as a cold snap led more households to turn up their heat.

Foreign holdings of US debt

hit $5.56 trillion in December WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign demand for U.S. Treasury securities rose to a record level in December, evidence that overseas investors remained confident in U.S. debt despite on-going budget battles in Washington.

The Treasury Department said Friday that foreign holdings of U.S. Treasurys rose 0.3 percent in December from November to $5.56 trillion. It was the 12th consecutive monthly gain.

China, the top foreign holder, increased its holdings 1.7 percent to $1.2 trillion. Japan, the second largest holder, boosted its investment 0.2 percent to

Burger King feels heat as rivals focus on value menus

NEW YORK (AP) — A revamped menu helped boost Burger King's profit in the fourth quarter but now the world's second biggest hamburger chain says it needs to play up value more aggressively to compete with rivals.

The Miami-based chain said Friday that sales in the new year are trending "modestly negative" as the broader fast-food industry fights to attract cashstrapped diners with cheap eats.

To address the intensifying focus on value from competitors, Steve Wiborg, president of Burger King's North America operations, noted the company launched a limited-time offer for a Junior Whopper at $1.29 this week.

The company, with brands like Oscar Mayer and Miracle Whip, also raised its 2013 earnings forecast Friday and announced that it will look to level out annual pension contributions after this year.

Kraft anticipates quarterly earnings of about 15 cents per share. Excluding charges, however, adjusted earnings would be 57 cents per share. That easily tops the 23 cents that analysts polled by Fact-Set expected.

US Airways will join list of extinct airlines

By The Associated Press

Pan Am. TWA. Eastern. Braniff.

Their planes were once familiar sights at airports across the country and even around the globe. They helped define air travel for decades

Today they exist either in name only or in collectors' memorabilia. The U.S. airline industry was once filled with dozens of carriers whose planes crisscrossed the nation and flew over oceans, but consolidation has culled the flock to just a handful of companies.

The pending merger of American Airlines and US Airways will leave four big airlines that will dominate the U.S. travel market — the post-merger American, United, Delta and Southwest — and a smattering of smaller rivals.

Even if their merger is approved this year, American and US Airways will continue to operate as separate airlines for at least several months. But eventually, executives say, the US Airways name will disappear.

The same will happen over the next few years with AirTran Airways, which was bought by Southwest in 2011. AirTran planes will be repainted in Southwest's logo and colors.

Here are some famous airlines that failed or were bought out by rivals: - Pan Am. It started with mail delivery in the 1920s and grew into a giant of international passenger service. It started operating jets in 1958, was a symbol of luxury travel in the 1960s. Years of financial trouble and rising competition took their toll. Pan Am sold off valuable assets including its Pacific routes and New York-to-London route. It failed in 1991, although other companies have reused the name since.

-TWA. Trans World Airways was a major domestic player and competed with Pan Am on international routes. Known for leading technology, TWA used pressurized planes and was an early proponent of jets. It struggled with high fuel prices in the 1970s and — after deregulation of the airlines — competition from low-fare carriers in the 1980s. Corporate raider Carl Icahn bought it and sold many routes. American Airlines bought TWA out of bankruptcy in 2001 and retired the name.

- Braniff. It built a powerful hub airport operation in Dallas and roamed across the middle of the country and even as far as Hawaii with a fleet of colorfully painted planes. Braniff was squeezed by competition from American and upstart Southwest Airlines, however, and it shut down in 1982. Jay Pritzker, whose family owned the Hyatt Hotels chain, resurrected an airline that came to be known in the industry as Braniff II, but it too failed.

Eastern Air Lines. Famed aviator Eddie Rickenbacker bought Eastern, which had been pieced together from several predecessors, in 1938. It built a successful network along the East Coast and launched low-fare shuttle flights from New York to Washington and Boston. It was hurt by competition from Delta and People Express and was beset by labor-management tension, including strikes, under Frank Lorenzo. It failed in 1991.

People Express. One of the first airlines to take advantage of deregulation. People Express was modeled after a British low-fare airline, and started flying in 1981 in Newark, N.J. It grew quickly - maybe too quickly. Burdened with debt, it was merged with Continental in 1986. A new carrier began using the name last year.

- Northwest Airlines. The Minnesota-based carrier was noted for its strong routes across the Pacific to Japan. In 1993, it formed a partnership called a code-sharing agreement with Dutch carrier KLM, and that deal became the forerunner of modern airline alliances. Delta Air Lines bought Northwest in 2008, making Delta the biggest airline in the world — at least Continental Airlines. It began as Varney Speed Lines in the 1930s and eventually grew to offer transcontinental and international service. Lorenzo's Texas International bought the airline and combined it with others including Frontier and New York Air. It went through two bankruptcies but was brought back from the brink by CEO Gordon Bethune. It combined with United Airlines in 2010, allowing United to surpass Delta as the world's biggest airline. The final Continental flight landed in March 2012.

FFA History

Founded in 1928, the Future Farmers of America brought together students, teachers and agribusiness to solidify support for agricultural education. In Kansas City's Baltimore Hotel, 33 young farmboys charted a course for the future. They could not have foreseen how the organization would grow and thrive.

Since 1928, millions of agriculture students - no one knows exactly how many - have donned the official FFA jacket and championed the FFA creed. FFA has opened its doors and its arms to minorities and women, ensuring that all students could reap the benefits of agricultural education.

Today, the National FFA Organization remains committed to ten individual student, providing a path to achievement in premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education. Now, the organization is expanding the nation's view of "traditional" agriculture into the classroom.

Mission

The National FFA Organization is dedicated to making a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.

To accomplish its mission, FFA:

• Develops competent and assertive agricultrual leadership.

- Increases awareness of the global and technological importance of agriculture and its contribution to our well-being.
- Strengthens the confidence of agriculture students in themselves and their work.
- Promotes the intelligent choice and establishment of an agricultural career.
- Encourages achievement in supervised agricultural experience programs.
- Encourages wise management of economic, environmental and human resources of the community.
- Develops interpersonal skills in teamwork, communications, human relations and social interaction.
- Builds character and promotes citizenship, volunteerism and patriotism.
- Promotes cooperations and cooperative attitudes among all people.
- Promotes healthy lifestyles.
- Encourages excellence in scholarship.

Motto

The FFA motto gives members twelve short words to live by as they experience the opportunities in the organization.

Salem outlasts Louisville At 36, Grilli Bush, Shivers, Wolfgang each record double figures embraces

From Staff Reports LOUISVILLE — Salem completed its league schedule on a high note Friday with a 60-52 win at Louisville.

The win moves the Quakers to 15-6 overall and 9-5 in the Northeastern Buckeye Conference.

The Leopards jumped out to a 14-12 lead after the opening quarter, but the Quakers rallied in the second to go into the half with a six-point advantage. Salem's Ryan Bush led all scorers with 22 points. The Quakers continued to pile on points in the third quarter as they outscored the Leopards 16-11 to head into the final stanza with an 11 point lead. Anthony Shivers chipped in 17 points, while Max Wolfgang added 11 points. Zack Wukotich also contributed four points in the winninf effort for the Quakers. Brendan Webb and Zach Economous each notched three points to round out the scoring for Salem.

For Louisville, Joe Crank and Blake Hoover both netted 10 points.

The Quakers will finish their regular season slate on Wednesday at United. Salem will open postseason play in the Division II sectional at Boardman on Feb. 26 against Lakeview.

NOTE: Bush continues to improve upon his school scoring record. He now has 1,233 career points.

trade Joel Hanrahan and his 76 saves over the last two seasons to Boston. The decision wasn't exactly due to Grilli, and he knows that. Hanrahan's effectiveness made him too expensive. He will make $7 million this season for the Red Sox, or more than Grilli will make during the entirety of the two-year, $6.75 million deal he signed in the offseason.

There were other suitors for Grilli, but the Pirates offered more money and perhaps just as importantly, some stability. If he stays healthy and plays through the end of his contract, Grilli will have pitched more games for Pittsburgh than any of the five teams he's suited up for in his career. "I'm comfortable here," he said. "My heart is here. I'm tired of changing colors, changing teams, changing agents. It's been all change for me.'

Pittsburgh took a chance on Grilli in July 2011, plucking him off Philadelphia's Triple-A roster and asking him to shore up a bullpen that needed help and a veteran presence. Manager Clint Hurdle, whose relationship with Grilli dates back to 2008 when both were in Colorado, called it "taking a chance on the One that's paid off considerably for both sides.

Grilli was steady in 2011 but spectacular for long stretches in 2012, when he went 1-6 with a 2.91 ERA and an eye-popping 13.9

strikeouts per nine innings, well above his career average. Though he was considered a setup man, the truth is he was more a "heart of the order guy." If the Pirates were leading in the seventh inning or beyond and the opponent's middle of the lineup was coming to bat, Grilli found himself with the ball in his hands.

"The majority of the time what he did when he came in, he faced 3-4-5, he faced 2-3-4," pitching coach Ray Searage said. "That's pretty darn hard. What does it matter if you face those guys in the seventh or the eighth? Why can't you get 'em out in the ninth? What's the thing? What's the problem?'

The Pirates certainly don't think there will be one.

"He's actually taken the words 'I've got nothing to lose' and he's brought them off the page," Hurdle said. "They're not just words anymore. It's the way he thinks. It's the way he conditions.

It's the way he competes. And this is not a one-shot deal. There may be bumps along the way but Pittsburgh is committed to turning to Grilli. Searage points out there were some growing pains while Hanrahan — a middle reliever for before becoming a full-time closer in 2011 — found his footing. "It wasn't always smooth as silk when Hanny got in there," Searage said. "I was sitting on the bench chewing my nails to the cuticles going 'Oh my God."

It's a phrase Searage has repeated more than once watching Grilli harness his four-seam and two-seam fastballs with a potent curveball that can keep hitters off balance. Grilli didn't suddenly become a better pitcher the last two seasons, just a smarter one.

The fact he no longer worries about his future helps. Grilli began his professional career as a starter before Detroit moved him to the bullpen eight years ago. Earning a living in middle relief is noble if anonymous work. He's put in his time. Now he hopes it is his time.

"Nobody says 'I want to mop up some innings. Geez let me mop up some innings," Grilli said. "Does a lineman wish he was a running back or a quarterback? Sure. I just know 'Alright, these are the cards that I've been dealt. I'm going to make my mark in the big leagues.

Short turnaround for Buckeyes, Badgers

COLUMBUS (AP) -Having just dispensed with their first losing streak — a meager two games — in the past three years, the 13thranked Ohio State Buckeyes get little time to rest.

For that matter, neither does their next opponent.

After a closer-than-thescore-indicates 69-59 win over scrappy Northwestern on Thursday night, the Buckeyes hit the road this weekend to play at No. 20 Wisconsin. The Badgers were also busy the same time as Ohio State, losing 58-53 in overtime at Minnesota.

The game is a huge road test for the Buckeyes.

Deshaun Thomas, leading the Big Ten in scoring, has been around for some big victories in foreign territory the last two seasons. He knows what such a win can mean to a team.

"It ignites everybody and gives us confidence in our team," he said. "It'd be a big boost for us."

With the season winding down, the game will be a way of winnowing the Big Ten field for the stretch run: The Buckeyes and Badgers are each 8-4 in conference play and tied for third with Michigan, two games back of co-leaders Indiana and Michigan

"What are we, like third in the Big Ten? So, you know, (if we win), people are going to have to watch out at Michigan State and Indiana," Thomas said.

Wisconsin (17-8, 8-4) is as good as anybody in the nation at home. The Badgers are 179-17 over the last 12 years at Kohl Center, including 29-11 against teams ranked in the Associated Press Top 25.

One of those losses came a year ago when the Buckeyes beat Wisconsin 58-52 right in front of the Grateful Red student section.

No one knows how diffia lot of success while winning conference titles the last three years and five of the last seven during his nine seasons at Ohio State

"That's something that is a lot easier said than done, he said of winning on the road. "No. 1, it's just the competitive nature of how this league is. No. 2, it's the venues you go into, every game is as challenging of an environment as it can be."

throws and had a couple tough turnovers," coach Bo Ryan said of his team's play down the stretch.

Now the tables are turned and Wisconsin is miliar faces.

Thomas knows that neither team can afford another loss.

"Guys are thinking about it," he said. "If we lose one more game, it could be not our chance this year to win the Big Ten."

To underscore the importance of Sunday's game, the Buckeyes have not exactly been road warriors.

They're just 3-4 on the road this season, splitting their six conference games away from home. Their three wins have come against arguably the three worst teams in the Big Ten: Nebraska, Penn State and

The Buckeyes have come close to pulling off a big win they led in the second half at Michigan State and at Michigan, games that they eventually lost by a combined five points. The game with the Wolverines even went to overtime something that has become commonplace in the ultracompetitive and evenly matched Big Ten.

NFL commissioner paid more than $29 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Roger Goodell was paid $29.49 million by NFL owners in 2011, nearly triple his compensation from the previous year.

According to the league's most recent tax return, most of Goodell's pay comes in the form of a $22.3 million bonus. His base pay was $3.1 million. The NFL was scheduled to file the return Friday.

While the league declined comment on specifics, it must, by law, make the return available upon request.

In 2011, Goodell helped the league reach a new 10-year labor deal and work out lucrative TV contracts. Atlanta Falcons owner Arthur Blank issued a statement calling the NFL the "most successful and best-managed sports league in the world," and it "is in no small part due to Roger's leadership." He added that Goodell's "compensation reflects that." Goodell earned $11.6 million in 2010.

DALLAS (AP) — The man credited with designing the famed blue star logo of the Dallas Cowboys has died.

The Cowboys say Jack Eskridge died Monday at a Valley Falls, Kan., hospital. The funeral for the 89-year-old former Cowboys equipment manager is scheduled for Saturday morning at Carson-Speaks Chapel in Independence, Mo.

According to the team website, Eskridge was one of coach Tom Landry's first hires in 1959, the year before the Cowboys' debut season. It was he who designed the white-bordered blue star used after the Cowboys began with a white star. Eskridge remained with the Cowboys until 1973.

Green Bay Packers release Woodson

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Charles Woodson is on the market.

"We are grateful for all that Charles has given to the Green Bay Packers over the past seven years," general manager Ted Thompson said. "He has been an integral part of the Packers' success and our Super Bowl title in 2010 would not have been possible without his contributions. A once-in-a-generation talent as a player, he is also a great leader and ambassador for the organization off the field."

The Packers clear about $10 million in cap space by releasing Woodson, Carl Poston, Woodson's agent, said the veteran wasn't done yet.

"The Packers told Charles they're going in a different direction," Poston said. 'Charles told me he still wants to play — for a Super Bowl contender."

Woodson — the 1994 Ohio Mr. Football while at Fremont Ross High School signed a five-year deal before the 2010 season that was worth as much as $55 million. He missed nine games during the 2012 regular season because of a broken right collarbone and played in two postseason games for the Packers in his seventh year with the franchise.

"We had a good run," Woodson wrote to ESPNWisconsin.com in a text mes-

Woodson was the NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 2009 and the Defensive Rookie of the Year in 1998. He spent the first eight years of his career with the Oakland Raiders, who drafted him out of Michigan with the No. 4 overall pick.

He's the only player in NFL history with touchdowns off interceptions in six straight seasons, a feat he pulled off each year from 2006 to 2011, and leads the league with nine touchdowns off interceptions since 2006. He went to the Pro Bowl every year from 2008-11.

New faces light up Indians' spring training

GOODYEAR, Ariz. (AP) Sitting in front of his cubicle, All-Star closer Chris Perez pushed aside the crossword puzzle he was working on and eyed the other side of the Indians' clubhouse. The changes are obvious. Across the busy room, center fielder Michael Bourn, fresh from signing a four-year, $48 million contract, shook hands with teammates, some of whom were stunned by his arrival. Just a few feet away, Brett Myers and Mark Reynolds, two more of Cleveland's free-agent acquisitions, chatted with slugger Jason Giambi and new right fielder Drew Stubbs pulled on socks before the team's first full-squad workout. After hiring manager Terry Francona and spending millions on players this winter, the Indians have been remodeled, upgraded and overhauled. If there was an offseason championship, the trophy would be headed to Cleve-

"It seems like this year there are no excuses," said Perez, who had 39 saves in 2012. "The front office stepped up and now it's time for us to get it done. There's no reason why we can't win this year.'

For the first time in years, expectations are soaring for the Indians, who collapsed last August on the way to losing 94 games. But general manager Chris Antonetti, given the go-ahead and financial resources by owner Paul Dolan to make moves, rebuilt the Indians and restored their rele-

"Chris had a pretty good winter," Francona joked. Perez was much more serious.

The colorful right-hander has been critical in the past, contending the Dolan family hadn't done enough to keep the Indians, who haven't been to the playoffs since 2007, competitive. Perez doesn't have any such complaints these days. In fact, he couldn't happier with the makeover. "We have so much more depth that we've had before," Perez said. "It's a totally different atmosphere, and for the guys who have been here for the last four or five years, it's refreshing - for sure.'

There's a distinct buzz around the club, and it's got nothing to do with the lowflying planes landing at the airport bordering the Indians' training complex.

With the signings of Bourn, Nick Swisher (four years, $56 million), Myers (one year, $7 million), and Reynolds (one year, $6 million), the Indians have spent a combined $117 million on free agents after dishing out a total of just $8.3 million in the past two

If future options for Bourn, Swisher and Myers kick in, the Indians could pay out $157 million, a staggering figure for a middlemarket franchise which has had to trade top players (see CC Sabathia, Cliff Lee, Shin-Soo Choo) in the past for fear of losing them in free agency.

Bourn's signing caught the baseball world as flatfooted as a power hitter sitting on a fastball and getting fooled by a curve.

The Indians were thought to have been tapped out when they signed Swisher. But with a chance to nab the speedy 30-year-old Bourn, a twotime All-Star and Gold Glove winner with Atlanta who led the NL in steals three times, Cleveland made a move that has invigorated their franchise from top to bottom.

"Signings of this magnitude typically don't happen at this time of the year largely because teams have set their budgets," Antonetti said. "We were able to sign Michael because of significant investment from our ownership. They recognized this was a unique opportunity to bring in an unbelievably talented player at a unique junc-

As the winter dragged on, the Indians kept in touch with Bourn's agent, Scott Boras, and were able to finalize a deal earlier this week.

"It was a long offseason, but it was fun for me," a smiling Bourn said at a news conference as his 3year-old son Bryson bounced on his knee. "It taught me patience. I landed in a spot where I think that I'm wanted, where they're committed to me and I'm committed to them, and that was main focus.

"I'm ready to rock and roll."

Boras said Antonetti was "relentless" in the club's pursuit of Bourn, who after doing some research on a team he didn't know well, realized the Indians had a core of young, talented players like shortstop Asdrubal Cabrera, second baseman Jason Kipnis, left fielder Michael Brantley and catcher Carlos Santana.

"The difference between the Indians now and four years ago is that these players have arrived," Boras said. "These are really, really good players and when you start adding components to it, it makes the Indians that much better." Bourn will make $7 million this season, $13.5 million in 2014 and 2015 and $14 million in 2016. The Indians have a $12 million option for 2017 that's guaranteed if he reaches 550 plate appearances in 2016. But money aside, Bourn brings speed to burn to the

Faried shines in Rising Stars game

HOUSTON (AP) - Kenneth Faried had 40 points and 10 rebounds and entertained the crowd at the end with a series of dunks, leading Team Chuck to a 163-135 victory over Team Shaq in the Rising Stars Challenge on Friday night.

Faried, in his second season with Denver, made 18 of 22 shots and was selected the game's most valuable player. He'll compete Saturday night in the dunk contest at All-Star Weekend and offered a sneak preview of what he has planned with a series of powerful jams.

For the second straight year, the rosters of both teams were a mix of rookie and second-year players and former stars Shaquille O'Neal and Charles Barkley served as opposing general man-

Sacramento point guard Isaiah Thomas had 18 points and 10 assists for Barkley's team. Cleveland point guard Kyrie Irving, last year's MVP, scored 32 points and rookie Dion Waiters, Irving's Cavs' teammate, added 23 for Shaq's team.

The average score of the game over the past five seasons was 138-131, and New Orleans rookie Anthony Davis set the tone with an alley-oop pass to San Antonio's Kawhi Leonard for a dunk 20 seconds into the Barkley's team finished virtually all of their first-half possessions with uncontested 3-pointers or dunks and led 90-66 at halftime.

Team Chuck went 12 for 18 from 3-point range in the first half and Thomas hit his first four tries. Cleveland forward Tristan Thompson was the only player on Barkley's team who didn't hit a 3 in the half, but he made up for it with four dunks.

Thomas also had seven of Team Chuck's 25 first-half assists. Barkley's team made 37 of 56 shots (66 percent) in the half.

Leonard sank two 3-pointers, and Davis converted Ricky Rubio's 10th assist into another dunk early in the second half as the offensive showcase resumed. Leonard blocked Waiters' dunk attempt at the other end, one of the few displays of individual defense showed all night.

Late in the game, an individual duel developed between Detroit guard Brandon Knight and Irving, stirring the indifferent crowd. Knight sank a 3-pointer and a stepback jumper, but Irving then made Knight stumble with a crossover dribble and a jumper of his own.

Players on both teams stepped aside for a while to let Irving and Knight go at it. Irving blew by Knight for a layup, and Knight returned the favor with a quick drive at the other end. He missed the shot, though, and Faried was there for the offensive putback as he was most of the night.

The last few minutes devolved into a spontaneous dunk contest, with players taking turns showing off their acrobatic moves while the others stood and watched. Faried drew the biggest cheers with four thunderous

Leonard scored 20 points and Thompson finished with 20 points and 10 rebounds. Barkley's team went 17 for 32 from 3-point range and shot 64 percent (69 of 108) overall in the game. Team Chuck also had a 51-24 rebounding edge and finished with 42 as-

Cabrera hoping for more of the same with bat

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) -Since there's no Quadruple Crown in baseball, it will be awfully tough for Miguel Cabrera to top his performance from 2012.

The Detroit slugger puts plenty of pressure on himself to help the Tigers win, but when it comes to individual achievements, his approach is pretty low key.

"I always believe you can be consistent," he said. "I don't know if you're going to get better, but my goal is always to be consistent.'

Cabrera has made that look startlingly easy. Last year, he became baseball's first Triple Crown winner in 45 years — and incredibly, his batting average was actually 14 points higher the season before. He's hit below .320 only once in the last eight years, and hit under 30 home runs once in the last

There are no sure things in a sport as fickle as baseball, but Cabrera's contributions are becoming almost routine.

"Taking for granted is probably not the right choice of words, but I know he's going to do good — I'm pretty sure of that," manager Jim Leyland said. "I think you just really gain an appreciation for how good these guys are — major league players and when you see one that's a special, special player ... we're pretty fortunate.

The Tigers held their first full-squad workout Friday on a wet morning in Lakeland, ending a busy offseason for Cabrera. It started late because Detroit reached the World Series last year, and after Cabrera hit .330 with 44 home runs and 139 RBIs to win the Triple Crown and the American League MVP, there were interviews and other attention to deal with.

Even spring training will be different than usual because of next month's World Baseball Classic. That interruption means it's more important than usual for Cabrera, a Venezuelan, to get a lot of work in early.

Last season, Cabrera

Hit A Home Run! Advertise in the Classifieds! Call your Salem News Sales Rep TODAY! 330) 332-4601 moved from first base to third, and there is still a lot he'd like to improve defensively.

"Try to get better in the first step — side to side, to slow groundballs," he said.

At the plate, of course, Cabrera ĥas no obvious weaknesses. His powerful, compact right-handed swing can do just about anything to pitches all over the strike zone. He nomerea onto a camera platform beyond center field in a game last June against the New York Yankees. The following month, his 300th career homer went sailing toward the ivy in that same area of Comerica Park.

But there are also more subtle features in his swing.

"Last year, I went through a little funk," said outfielder Torii Hunter, who signed with the Tigers this offseason. "I watched video on him, how he stays inside the ball and everything. So I went out there and tried it, and I was like 3-for-4 for four days."

Cabrera can apparently stay close to midseason form for 12 months a year. "I remember when he left to go to Venezuela," catcher Alex Avila said. "I read in the paper that he wins the home run derby at their All-Star game. It's been like a month and a half since the season ended, and he hasn't hit at all, and just goes and wins a home run derby like that. It's incredible."

The biggest goal for Cabrera and his teammates is a World Series title. Cabrera homered once in an otherwise forgettable loss to San Francisco last year — the Giants swept the series in four games. If the Tigers reach the postseason again, he'll probably be the most feared hitter in their lineup — as usual.

His remarkable exploits have become the norm, but Cabrera can still amaze.

"That's the perfect swing," Hunter said. "To pull the ball, it's easy. But to hit the ball to right-center out of the park, that's hard, and he's probably one of the best at it.

DURANT VS. JAMES

HOUSTON (AP) - Kevin Durant wanted to set the record straight once and for all about his relationship with LeBron James. "I hate him," he said before breaking into laughter. Then he got serious.

"We're actually really good friends," he continued. "I think people want us to hate each other so bad just because we're battling against each other."

That doesn't mean he has any good feelings toward him when they pair face each

"I like the friendly competition, but when we're on the court we're the furthest thing away from being friends," he said. "We don't take it easy on each other."

That much was never more evident than when the two competed in last year's NBA Finals, which the Heat won in five games. James led his team in scoring in each game, and Durant paced the Thunder in all but

Soon after that, the two met up once again to play for the U.S. in the Olympics in

"He's going to go down as one of the best of all time." Durant said about James. "I don't think anyone will be like LeBron James. I'm glad I get a chance to compete against him vear in and vear out, and I'm also glad I was on his team to win the gold medal.

James and the Heat beat Durant's Thunder 110-100 on Thursday night, James entered the game having scored 30 points with 60 percent shooting in an NBA-record six straight games. James had 39 points in that game, but the Thunder took some solace in keeping him below 60 percent shooting "I'm glad we held him under 60, but he still shot 58 percent on us," Durant said. "But I'm glad his streak didn't continue. He's such a great player. He's somebody I look at as competition, and look at as a guy that I'm chasing every single day. Him and Kobe Bryant and Carmelo (Anthony), those are guys I look at and feel like I'm chasing and trying to be as good as them

PISTORIUS FACES MURDER CHARGE PRETORIA. South Africa (AP) — In a courtroom, not an Olympic stadium, there was no click-click of Oscar Pistorius' prosthetic limbs. His only sound Friday was loud, uncontrollable sobs as prosecutors charged him with premeditated murder in the shooting death of his model girlfriend.

"Take it easy," Chief Magistrate Desmond Nasir told the Olympic star-turned-murderdefendant as his father, Henke, and his brother, Carl, reached out to touch his shoul-

The 26-year-old Pistorius, the doubleamputee sprinter who won world acclaim by competing in last summer's London Olympics, did not speak or enter a plea. He held his head and wept as he heard the charge, which carries a life sentence.

A statement released later by his family and agent said Pistorius disputed the murder charge "in the strongest terms." The track star's arrest in the Valentine's

Day killing of 29-year-old model Reeva Steenkamp shocked South Africa, where Pistorius was a national hero dubbed the Blade Runner for his high-tech prosthetics and revered for overcoming his disability to compete in the London Games Prosecutor Gerrie Nel said he would pursue a charge of premeditated murder against Pistorius in the slaying of Steenkamp, a leggy blonde model with a law degree who had spoken out on Twitter against rape and abuse of She was discovered in a pool of blood before dawn Thursday by police called to Pisto-rius' upscale home in a gated community in the South African capital of Pretoria. Authorities said she had been shot four times, and a 9 mm pistol was recovered at the home. Throngs of reporters, photographers and videographers filled the brick-walled Courtroom C in Pretoria Magistrate's Court, where Pistorius appeared. Nasir's first ruling focused on the press as he dismissed requests from the state broadcaster and a private television station to air the hearing live Nasir also ordered that no photographs be taken while court was in session. That left dozens of photographers kneeling less than a yard from the sobbing Pistorius to simply stare at a man many had photographed previously sprinting on his famous carbon-fiber Police said investigators had conducted an autopsy on Steenkamp's body but the results would not be released. Pistorius' family left quickly after the hearing, without speaking to journalists

NHL MEETS WITH IIHF AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) - Two days of talks between the NHL and international hockey officials wrapped up Friday with signs that the league will wind up sending its players to the 2014 Sochi Games.

NHL Commissioner Gary Bettman and International Ice Hockey Federation President Rene Fasel met for about 2 1/2 hours after a 90-minute get-together Thursday night. No new talks were scheduled, but the sides are expected to meet again.

NHL players have participated in the past four Winter Games, and the league is weighing whether it gets enough return on its overall investment, which requires North American hockey to shut down its season for over two weeks to take part.

"I think it is fair to say that if this can be worked out to everybody's satisfaction, we'd all like to have NHL players at the Olympics," Bettman said. "To go through chronicling issue by issue isn't going to serve anybody's purpose and probably isn't all that interest-"I think, most importantly, hockey fans that like and love the Olympics would like to see us get this done, and that's what we're going to be focused on. ... Ultimately, the IOC, the NHL players and the board of governors are going to have to approve what we get done, but we're working on it." Players' association executive director

Don Fehr joined the discussions by phone from Toronto. The union and the NHL appear aligned in their position on the Olympics now that their labor dispute is behind them. IIHF General Secretary Horst Lichtner

NHL Deputy Commissioner Bill Daly and league chief operating officer John Collins also took part in the talks Friday. Daly said the sides intend to touch base again next "There are many issues that are of common interest," Bettman said. "I believe we have been supportive of issues the players association has raised, and the players' association has been supportive of issues that we have raised. The IIHF has been supportive to the IOC on issues that both the players' association and the league have raised. No decision on whether NHL players would head to Russia next February was expected this week, but one will have to be

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 2/16/13 Luxury-Lovers' Moon

Luxury goes disguised as necessity, so it's hard to tell the difference under this sensual and hunger-prone Taurus moon. The Venusian qualities of Taurus are highlighted during this lunar aspect, which inspires quests for feminine beauty, lovely scents and luscious sights. There's pleasure to be gained from fussing over the ex-

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You and your family share experiences and the same background, and yet it often feels like you're not coming from the same place at all. It's further proof that each person mentally makes up his or her own TÁURUS (April 20-May 20). It feels as though you are precari ously perched on the balance beam of life. True, life can be dangerously risky. But you also can count on the solid support of those around you. You are safe.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). People will do silly things to impress you. What does it mean? It's a sign that you are powerfully attractive, though you probably have no idea what to do with all of the at-

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your pleasure and satisfaction are important, but they are not the most important factors now. Step back and consider the effect of your actions on the others around you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It's strange how issues can become simultaneously clearer and more complex. Your philosophical mood mixes with the light of morning to make this happen. You won't know what to do just yet. It's better to wait until you're sure.

VÍRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). No good will come of psychological or actual grasping. All that's beautiful, wholesome and true will alight on an open heart and palm of one who has already let go.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The volume yoù choose will make a big difference in how your message is received. Gentle, quiet words can accomplish much as long as they are spoken with confidence. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You are mighty persuasive even though your influence is hardly detectible. You show up knowing what you want. You are unwavering. The prize will eventually yield to your consistent and persistent will SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your powers of empathy are strong. You really will experience the world from another person's vantage. Then you will return to yourself with new understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There are those you like but don't know very well. Knowing more wouldn't necessarily lead to liking more. Attraction relies on mystery to a great degree now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You may have a hidden agenda, but it's not hidden for any negative reason. It's just that you're more powerful when people can't tell what you want. Charm is stronger

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). When you know you have a strong influence over a situation, you back off so as not to come off as intimidating or pushy. The wise will interpret your gentle approach as a sign

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 16). When you are around those you want to impress, you become positively radiant. So stock your life with admirable individuals. They will inspire you to grow. As a complementary partner, you will enjoy the perks of teamwork in March and April. You'll earn an award or a contract in May. Invest in training in June. Virgo and Libra people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 1, 24, 38 and 30

ASTROLOGICAL QUES-TIONS: "A client stiffed me. He took the design work I did, and he then decided that he wanted to go in another direction. I told him the kill fee was 50 percent, and he said I was crazy and that he'd give me a much lower amount. I then told him to forget it and let him go without paying a cent. I've been in business for 14 years, and this has only happened twice, so I'm not very upset about it. But because it happened right at the start of the Chinese New Year, I just want to make sure that it's not a bad omen for what's to come. I'm a Libra.

All businesses have their challenges, but the fact that you have only had two difficult clients in 14 years is not a bad omen; it's something to celebrate — a reminder of all of your successes. Design is perfect for your sun sign, as Libra is well aligned with the energies of Venus. Just as the product you show clients reflects your taste and aesthetic, the way you interact with clients is a kind of art form. You should give yourself credit for not getting involved in the bad energy of fighting for your money. Moving on is the most graceful way. CELEBRITY PROFILES: Zachary Gordon is easy to sympathize with as Greg Heffley in the "Diary of a Wimpy Kid" films. The Aquarian teen will soon share the screen with some of the biggest names in comedy, Steve Carell and Jim Carrey, in "The Incredible Burt Wonderstone." With his sun, Mercury, Uranus and Neptune all in friendly Aquarius, Gordon makes friends and fans everywhere he

Plan ahead to ease spring cleaning

Heloise

Dear Readers: Who really likes CLEANING, especially the deep cleaning that we all need to do once in a while? To make it a little easier, let's start the planning process. Read on for some Heloise Hints on making upcoming springcleaning easier:

- Get everyone involved. Select a date when everyone is available, then make a list and assign a cleaning task to each family member. Remember that even small children can do small things. - Set out a box for items to be donated or saved for a garage sale.

Get cleaning products together. Put them in a cleaning-supply carrier or plastic tub to easily take from room to room. Vinegar is always in my carrier! It is my favorite cleaner and can be used on just about everything. Vinegar is a cheap alternative to expensive cleaners. Every household should have a bottle or two of vinegar on hand. I have a pamphlet that includes many of my money-saving uses for vinegar. To receive a copy, send $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (66 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. This pamphlet will save you from the get-go, because you won't have to buy other cleaners. Always read label directions on all other cleaners. DON'T let kids handle the strong

Dear Heloise: While cutting up block cheese into small chunks for making mac and cheese, my smart husband suggested that I use a cheese slicer to make the job easier. After almost 50 years of marriage and cutting the cheese into pieces all these years, the light came on, and I said, "What a great idea!"

I asked him why he didn't suggest this years ago! Husbands can be such a help, and smart! -- Phyllis Noel, Nottingham, N.H.

GOLF-BALL MASSAGE

Dear Heloise: A recent hint told about using a golf ball to massage shoulders, or having someone use the golf ball to massage your back.

Another suggestion is to take one or two golf balls or a tennis ball, put them in a sock and tie the end of the sock into a knot. You can massage your back or shoulders on your own by holding on to each end of the sock and "rolling" the sock across the affected areas. --A Connecticut Reader, via computer tablet

Mom of 4 musters courage to leave

DEAR ABBY: I have lived in an abusive marriage for 11 years. Now, when I have finally mustered the courage to leave, everybody says I must stay "for the children" as he is a "changed man."

I no longer love him and he refuses to give me a divorce. He also refuses to admit there is anything wrong in the marriage and says I'm exaggerating

I have tried counseling and therapy alone because he refused to join me. I do not want my four children to be affected by my choice and wish for a mutual discussion, but he doesn't want to discuss divorce. I am afraid to stay and afraid to leave. I have no support system here. — WANTS OUT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR WANTS OUT: After 11 years of abuse and counseling and therapy alone because your husband would not accompany you, his wishes should no longer affect your decision. Pick up the phone and contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline, 800 799-7233. That's the place to find information about how to form an escape plan for yourself and your children. Whether your husband is willing to discuss divorce or not, he cannot force you to remain married to him. An attorney can help you with the process once you are out of there.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23-year-old woman with a university degree, a fulfilling job, downtown apartment and a busy social life. I am also heavily tattooed. My tattoos bring me a great deal of happiness. I work in a field where visible tattoos are acceptable, and I'm very good at covering them when necessary.

My problem is how to politely deal with strangers who criticize my tattoos when I'm out in public. I have been told I have "ruined" myself, that I have no future, that I'll never find a husband, that I am ugly, an insult to women and trashy. I do not dress scantily and, in my opinion, these comments are uncalled for.

I usually tell people that I am affecting only myself and that I'm happy, but this usually results in scoffs or more rude remarks. Part of me wants to be rude back because I am offended. What should I say the next time I am inevitably picked on? — INKED AND IRKED IN CALGARY, CANADA

DEAR INKED AND IRKED: I printed a letter last spring about a Canadian woman who insisted that people north of the border are nicer than people in the U.S.A. Your letter shows that's not necessarily the case. The next time someone makes an unkind remark about your body art, look the person in the eye and say, "That you would say something so hurtful to me shows you are uglier on the inside than you think I am on the outside.

After divorce, mother overprotective of granddaughter

Mailbox

Annie's

Dear Annie: My parents and brother live in another state. A few years ago, my brother went through a nasty divorce. He and my 11-year-old niece, "Jenny," are still estranged from the ex-wife.

The issue is how my mother is reacting to the divorce. She was very shocked by the events leading up to their separation, and I think it has damaged her trust in people. She seems to be transferring this anxiety onto Jenny. Mom wants to protect Jenny from all disappointments in life, and together they have developed an "us against the world" mentality. Annie, there are other family members who love Jenny and want to be part of a loving support system for her, and yet we feel shut out by the alliance with my mother. I know that my mother loves Jenny immensely, but I'm not sure whether she is helping or hurting. Ambivalent in Alabama

Dear Alabama: If your mother acts as Jenny's confidante and works through the girl's feelings of abandonment or grief over the divorce, she is helping. Jenny may find that her grandmother is easy to talk with and seems to understand her best. However, if Mom is deliberately keeping Jenny away from family members and encouraging her to blame her mother or father, mistrust others or behave secretively, she is doing harm. Your brother may be preoccupied with his own problems. We recommend you try to connect with Jenny when you can (don't push), and encourage her to speak to her school counselor.

Dear Annie: I'm 46 and have a handicapped license plate. I can't believe how many people have given me dirty looks for parking in handicapped spots. One guy even confronted me at the grocery, saying, "I hear they're giving out some pretty hefty fines for that." I was issued the plate because I was born with a clubfoot. I've had three reconstructive surgeries, acupuncture treatments and 14 cortisone injections. I take a non-steroidal anti-inflammatory medication daily and Vicodin when I absolutely must. I have arthritis in my foot and ankle, and part of my Achilles tendon has calcified. Please tell your readers that one doesn't have to be in a wheelchair to warrant a handicapped plate. — Pennsylvania

Dear Pennsylvania: In their zeal to protect the rights of the handicapped, many well-intentioned folks mistakenly assume that unless they can see your disability, you must be faking. We often hear from people with emphysema telling us of the hostility they encounter when legitimately using handicapped parking spaces. Please, folks, when you see a car with a handicapped license plate, sign or decal, assume there is a good reason, even if you can't see what it is. Be kind.

Army may have to extend deployments in Afghanistan

 ${\it WASHINGTON\,(AP)-Soldiers\, deployed\, to\, Afghanistan}$ next year may see their war tours extended because budget cuts will drastically limit training for brigades to replace them, the top Army general said Friday.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Raymond Odierno said the military will be able to fund training and operations for combat units in Afghanistan now and for those deploying in the summer and fall. But he says there will be delays in training for those deploying in 2014.

If those training delays can't be made up, Odierno said he would have to send forces to war that aren't ready or extend deployments of units already there. A number of combat brigades will be deploying later this year and next year, even as the U.S. winds down the war.

"We will try to divert money so we do not have to extend people in Afghanistan," Odierno told a conference at the Brookings Institution in Washington. "That's a very big concern of mine.'

He said that right now the Army is facing a shortfall of as much as $8 billion in operating funds for Afghanistan, and there could be another $5.4 billion in cuts if Congress can't resolve the ongoing budget standoff and automatic reductions go into effect.

President Barack Obama announced earlier this week that he will cut the size of the U.S. force roughly in half by a year from now. There are currently about 66,000 U.S. troops at the warfront, and he said he will withdraw about 34,000 by this time next year.

Longer deployments have been a difficult issue for the

In 2007, the Army extended the yearlong deployments to 15 months in order to meet the demands of the Iraq war, including the surge of troops ordered by then-President George W. Bush. In many cases combat brigades returned home and were ordered to deploy again 12 months later, leading top military leaders to worry that the force was being strained almost to the breaking point.

Over time, as the Iraq war ended, the Army deployment times were scaled back to a year, and most are now about nine-months long.

Among the units scheduled to deploy later this spring is the 4th Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, but the Army has not announced what units will go to Afghanistan later in the

Hanford nuclear tank in Wash. leaking liquids

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) - A tank that holds radioactive liquids is leaking at the nation's most contaminated nuclear site, Washington Gov. Jay Inslee said Friday, raising concerns about the integrity of other storage facilities at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation.

The U.S. Department of Energy said liquid levels are decreasing in one of 177 underground tanks at the nuclear reservation. Monitoring wells near the tank have not detected higher radiation levels, but Inslee said the leak could be in the range of 150 gallons to 300 gallons over the course of a year and creates a long-term threat that could impact groundwater or rivers.

"I am alarmed about this on many levels," Inslee said at a Friday afternoon news conference. "This raises concerns, not only about the existing leak ... but also concerning the integrity of the other single shell tanks of this age.'

The tanks hold millions of gallons of a highly radioactive stew left from decades of plutonium production for nuclear Inslee said the state was assured years ago that such problems had been dealt with and he warned that spending cuts — particularly due to a budget fight in Congress — would create further risks at Hanford. Inslee said the cleanup must be a priority for the federal government.

"We are willing to exercise our rights using the legal system at the appropriate time. That should be clear," Inslee

Inslee said the state has a good partner in Energy Secretary Steven Chu but that he's concerned about whether Congress is committed to clean up the highly contaminated site. The tank in question contains about 447,000 gallons of sludge, a mixture of solids and liquids with a mud-like consistency. The tank, built in the 1940s, is known to have leaked in the past, but was stabilized in 1995 when all liquids that could be pumped out of it were removed.

Inslee said the tank is the first to have been documented to be losing liquids since all Hanford tanks were stabilized in 2005. His staff said the federal government is working to assess other tanks.

At the height of World War II, the federal government created Hanford in the remote sagebrush of eastern Washington as part of a hush-hush project to build the atomic bomb. The site ultimately produced plutonium for the world's first atomic blast and for one of two atomic bombs dropped on Japan, effectively ending the war.

Plutonium production continued there through the Cold War. Today, Hanford is the nation's most contaminated nuclear site. Cleanup will cost billions of dollars and last

Central to that cleanup is the removal of millions of gallons of a highly toxic, radioactive stew — enough to fill dozens of Olympic-size swimming pools — from 177 aging, underground tanks. Over time, many of those tanks have leaked, threatening the groundwater and the neighboring Columbia River, the largest waterway in the Pacific North-

Construction of a $12.3 billion plant to convert the waste to a safe, stable form is years behind schedule and billions of dollars over budget. Technical problems have slowed the project, and several workers have raised lawsuits in recent months, claiming they were retaliated against for raising concerns about the plant's design and safety.

LA cardinal to be deposed in abuse lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cardinal Roger Mahony, the former Roman Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles, will be questioned under oath next week as part of a clergy abuse lawsuit just days before he flies to Rome to help select the next pope, attorneys said Friday.

The recently retired head of the nation's largest archdiocese will be deposed Feb. 23 about how he handled a visiting Mexican priest who police believe molested 26 children in the Los Angeles archdiocese during a nine-month stay in 1987. The Rev. Nicolas Aguilar Rivera fled to Mexico in 1988 after parents complained. He has since been defrocked but remains a fugitive, with warrants for his arrest in both the U.S. and Mexico.

The agreement was brokered behind closed doors Friday by a Los Angeles judge. Michael Hennigan, an archdiocese attorney, confirmed the parties agreed to a four-hour deposition with no limitations on the line of questioning.

Mahony has been deposed in civil clergy abuse lawsuits multiple times over the years. Next week's deposition, however, would be the first since the archdiocese released thousands of pages under court order from the confidential personnel files of more than 120 priests accused of sex abuse.

The files show that Mahony and other top archdiocese officials maneuvered behind the scenes to shield accused priests and protect the church from a growing scandal while keeping parishioners in the dark.

The cardinal was publicly rebuked by his successor, Archbishop Jose Gomez, but on Friday, the archdiocese released a letter Gomez sent to priests urging them to pray for Mahony as he prepares to go to Rome to select the next pope.

The letter indicates that Pope Benedict XVI will hold a farewell gathering with the College of Cardinals — of which Mahony is a member — on Feb. 28. "Cardinal Mahony will be the senior American cardinal from among the 11 cardinal electors from this country," Gomez wrote in his letter.

I am confident that Cardinal Mahony's accomplishments and experience in the areas of immigration, social justice, sacred liturgy and the role of the laity in the church will serve the College of Cardinal well as it works to discern the will of the Holy Spirit in these deliberations."

Critics called the statement "tone deaf" and one group, Catholics United, said they were launching a petition to demand that Mahony recuse himself from the papal conclave.

Mahony wrote Thursday in a blog post about Lent that he has been publicly humiliated numerous times by people angered by his handling of the clergy abuse crisis. "I could understand the depth of their anger and outrage — at me, at the Church, at about injustices that swirl around us," he wrote.

"Thanks to God's special grace, I simply stood there, asking God to bless and forgive them."

The deposition agreement allows attorneys to question Mahony before he leaves for Rome, said Anthony De Marco, who represents a 35-year-old man who alleges he was abused by Aguilar Rivera.

Church officials warned the priest that parents had complained about abuse but then waited two days to call police - allowing him to flee to Mexico, court papers allege. One memo in Aguilar Rivera's confidential file shows that Mahony later ordered church officials not to turn over a list of altar boys to police who were investigating.

We cannot give such a list for no cause whatsoever," Mahony added in a handwritten note on a memo from Jan. 26, 1988.

De Marco hopes to get much more out of this deposition of the cardinal than he did in 2007, when he questioned Mahony but had strict limits about what he could ask. At the time, he said, he only had about 40 pages of the priest's 158page confidential file.

Since then, he has seen nearly 540 pages related to the Aguilar Rivera case, he said in court filings.

"It's a vastly different examination when you have their contemporaneous notes, which we have now," De Marco said outside court Friday. "In that case, we have a whole lot more that we know and we don't have limitations on scope, so we should learn a whole lot more."

The archdiocese agreed to a record-breaking $660 million settlement in 2007 with more than 500 plaintiffs that included a promise to work to release the confidential files of priests accused of sexual abuse.
