SALEM — Lt. Gov. Mary Taylor said making Ohio more competitive and creating more opportunities to bring business back to the state was one aim of Gov. John Kasich's 50 percent small business tax cut.

During a Tuesday morning tour of Haltec Inc., Taylor said that unlike small business roundtable meetings she's attended, she could see skilled workers make a direct contribution to the economy.

Haltec manufactures tire valves and tire-related accessory products while serving original equipment manufacturers and replacement markets for off-highway vehicles, mining, construction, forestry equipment, heavy and light-duty trucks, buses, cars, tractors, farm implements, and motorcycles.

The 60,000-square foot plant employs 85 people and 60 to 70 percent of those in the assembly department are women, according to Frank Bezon, chief financial officer. The business started in Winona in the 1970s.

Taylor's visit sprang from an issue with a Salem restaurant having local regulatory issues and her office being contacted.

In 2011, Kasich named Taylor to lead Ohio's Common Sense Initiative (CSI) aimed at helping create a more jobs-friendly regulatory climate in Ohio.

The agency promotes economic development and is responsive to regulated businesses by making compliance as easy as possible.

The idea is, according to the governor's website, that comprehensive regulatory reform will help revive Ohio's economy and create jobs by generating a more jobs-friendly environment.

While on the way to consult with Big Dog Seafood Steak and Ale in Salem, Haltec was selected from list of six or eight companies for Taylor to visit, according to Audrey Null, executive director of the Salem Area Chamber of Commerce.

After a tour of the plant, Taylor noted areas in which government can assist companies with employee workforce training program and grant acquisition.

She noted that new industries need employees that match their needs and every business has needs for a skilled workforce.

"It's important to understand the needs of the businesses and the business community," she said, adding that meant career and technical centers and

Officials to watch chemical levels in reservoir

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

SALEM— The Utilities Commission Tuesday agreed to monitor the chemical levels in the Stewart Road water reservoir instead of installing equipment to circulate the water.

Superintendent of Utilities Don Weingart suggested the commission approve a project to install valves in the reservoir that would draw the water into the mid-section and then wait to see if the circulation improves. He estimated the project would improve circulation by 40 or 50 percent. If the circulation does not improve, he said a second phase would include installation of a distribution system in the reservoir.

Cost of the first phase, which Weingart wanted to pursue, is estimated at $104,400.

The commission noted that the chemical levels, which can cause federal and state violations, are at the highest in August and September and that the first phase of the project will not be completed until after that time, so it makes sense to wait to evaluate the success of other corrective measures being employed by the water department, such as altering the water levels.

The 3 million-gallon reservoir was built in 1946 and was designed to draw water from area wells, not the wastewater treatment plant, thus causing poor circulation and increasing the likelihood of chemical formations, according to Weingart's report.

In other business, the commission approved up to $10,000 for Underground Utilities Service to perform a water leak survey. Weingart said the annual flushing of hydrants showed a need for the survey. The last one was conducted in 2011 at a cost of $9,800 and revealed five leaks.

Weingart said the department has handled 30 breaks so far this year. There can be up to 80 breaks some years, he said.

Driver in fatal crash sentenced

By DEANNE JOHNSON

LISBON — Conner Sell, the young driver of the vehicle involved in a crash which killed Jesse E. Mitchell in 2012, received the 90-day jail sentence with work release allowed as part of his plea agreement.

However, first Sell got to hear from the family of Mitchell, who had some words of advice when the 20-year-old Alliance man appeared Tuesday in Columbiana County Municipal Court.

"I don't hate you," said Mitchell's 19-year-old sister, Kimberly Mitchell. "I pray it makes you a better person."

Additionally, she told him to be thankful he was able to walk away from that wreck and will spend time with his family and friends, instead of his family having to go through the pain of losing him. She urged him to make the most of every day.

She noted her brother taught her to

Women in Cleveland kidnap case thank public for support

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stylish and smiling, three women allegedly held captive in a Cleveland home for a decade offered thanks on YouTube for emotional and financial backing they've received since going "through hell and back."

From Amanda Berry, 27: "I want everyone to know how happy I am to be home, with my family, my friends," she said. "I would say 'thank you' for the support," said a soft-spoken Gina DeJesus, 23, in response to prompting from a narrator.

And from Michelle Knight, 32, who wasn't a familiar face on a milk carton around town like the other two, came a sometimes halting yet defiant reading of a statement.

"I may have been through hell and back, but I am strong enough to walk through hell with a smile on my face and with my head held high," she said. "I will not let the situation define who I am. I will define the situation. I don't want to be consumed by hatred."

The 3½-minute video, produced last week and posted at midnight Monday, was filmed in a Cleveland law firm overlooking treetops, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum and Lake Erie.

DeJesus' parents, Felix DeJesus and Nancy Ruiz, joined the heartfelt statements of gratitude, thanking the public for donations to a fund set up to help the women. More than $1 million has been donated.

Ruiz encouraged parents with missing loved ones to reach out for assistance. "Count on your neighbors," she said. "Don't be afraid to ask for the help because help is available."

The women have turned aside media interview requests and appealed again for privacy since they were rescued in May when Berry broke through a door and yelled to neighbors for help.

The women had disappeared separately between 2002 and 2004, when they were 14, 16, and 20 years old. The owner of the home where they were found, 52-year-old former bus driver Ariel Castro, was arrested and has pleaded not guilty to a 329-count indictment alleging he kidnapped them off the streets and held them captive in his two-story home.

In the video, none of the women had any visible scars of the abuse they said they suffered. Castro fathered a 6-year-old daughter with Berry and is accused of starving and punching Knight, causing her to miscarry.

"I am getting stronger each day," Berry said. "Having my privacy has helped immensely."

The trio wants to maintain that privacy, according to a statement from the team of lawyers and crisis management experts helping them without charge.

Castro's trial is scheduled for next month but could be delayed if the defense asks for more preparation time. Last week a judge rejected Castro's request to see Berry's child fathered by him.

Castro's lawyers did not immediately respond to a message seeking comment on the video and on whether they were concerned it might bias jurors.

In the video, the women were smiling and appeared upbeat.

Berry, the only one who has been in photographs that have appeared publicly since her release, had shorter hair with a blonde streak in it. Knight, who authorities said had been taken captive first, wore glasses, had closely cropped hair and spoke a bit haltingly.

Kathy Joseph, Knight's attorney, said in a statement that the three women wanted to "say thank you to people from Cleveland and across the world, now that two months have passed."

She said they're being recognized in public, "so they decided to put voices and faces to their heartfelt messages."

Pilots relied on automatic speed control

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — The pilots of Asiana Flight 214 relied on automated cockpit equipment to control the jetliner's speed as they landed at San Francisco airport, but realized too late they were flying too low and too slow before the aircraft crashed, investigators said Tuesday.

The new details were not conclusive about the cause of Saturday's crash, but they raised potential areas of focus: Was there a mistake made in setting the automatic speed control, did it malfunction or were the pilots not fully aware of what the plane was doing?

One of the most puzzling aspects of the crash has been why the wide-body Boeing 777 jet came in far too low and slow, clipping its landing gear and then its tail on a rocky seawall just short the runway. The crash killed two of the 307 people and injured scores of others, most not seriously.

Among those injured were two flight attendants in the back of the plane, who survived despite being thrown onto the runway when the plane slammed into the seawall and the tail broke off.

National Transportation Safety Board chairman Deborah Hersman said the autothrottle was set for 157 mph and the pilots assumed it was controlling the plane's airspeed. However, the autothrottle was only "armed" or ready for activation, she said.

Hersman said the pilot at the controls, identified by Korean authorities as Lee Gang-guk, was only about halfway through his training on the Boeing 777 and was landing that type of aircraft at the San Francisco airport for the first time ever. And the co-pilot, identified as Lee Jeong-Min, was on his first trip as a flight instructor.

Autothrottles typically have three settings — off, on and armed. An autothrottle that is armed but not on will remain at its previous speed, which was probably near idle, said Doug Moss, a pilot for a major U.S. airline and an aviation safety consultant in Torrance, Calif. Pilots will frequently shift to idle off and on when preparing to land in order to descend faster.

The pilot flying the plane had turned off his flight director, while the training captain had his flight director on, Hers-man said. The flight director computes and displays the proper pitch and bank angles required in order for the aircraft to follow a selected path.

In most airliners, an autothrottle will not turn on if one flight director is off and one on because it has to work in harmony with the flight directors — both need to be either on or off, Moss said.

Only moments before the crash did the training captain realize the autothrottle wasn't controlling the plane's speed, Hersman said.

"This is one of the two hallmarks of complexity and challenge in the industry right now," Moss said. "It's automation confusion because from what Deborah Hersman said, it appears very likely the pilots were confused as to what autothrottle and pitch mode the airplane was in. It's very likely they believed the autothrottles were on when in fact they were only armed."

Their last second efforts to rev the plane back up and abort the landing failed, although numerous survivors report hearing the engines roar just before impact.

Economist named Egypt's prime minister as army presses for smooth transition

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt's military-backed interim leader named a new prime minister and won $8 billion in promises of aid from wealthy Arab allies in the Gulf on Tuesday in moves aimed at stabilizing a political transition less than a week after the army deposed the Islamist president.

The armed forces warned political factions that "maneuvering" must not hold up its ambitious fast-track timetable for new elections next year. The sharp message underlined how strongly the military is shepherding the process, even as liberal reform movements that backed its removal of Mohammed Morsi complained that now they are not being consulted in decision-making.

The Muslim Brotherhood denounced the transition plan, vowing to continue its street protests until ousted Morsi, the country's first freely elected president, is returned to power.

The appointment of economist Hazem el-Beblawi as prime minister, along with the setting of the accelerated timetable, underlined the military's determination to push ahead in the face of Islamist opposition and outrage over the killing of more than 50 Morsi supporters on Monday.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates provided a welcome boost for the new leadership. The two countries, both opponents of Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood, celebrated his ouster by showering the cash-strapped Egyptian government with promises of $8 billion in grants, loans and badly needed gas and oil.

Republicans say Obama exceeds presidential authority in case after case

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the courts of law and public opinion, congressional Republicans increasingly accuse President Barack Obama of exceeding his constitutional authority for the benefit of special interests, most recently by delaying a requirement for businesses to provide health care for their workers.

In one instance, Senate Republicans formally backed a lawsuit challenging the president's appointment of three members of the National Labor Relations Board without confirmation. The Supreme Court has agreed to review a ruling in the case, which found that Obama overstepped his bounds.

Most recently, the White House's decision to postpone a key part of the president's health care law drew rhetorical denunciations Tuesday from Republicans who, ironically, want to see the law repealed in its entirety.

Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky said the action was part of a pattern of "indifference to the rule of law on the part of this administration. ... He did it with immigration. He did it with welfare work requirements. And he did it with the NLRB when he took it upon himself to tell another branch of government when it was in recess.

"And now he's doing it again with his own signature health care law," said McConnell, who is seeking re-election next year in a state where Obama is unpopular.

Defense trying to get Martin's texts on fighting introduced at Zimmerman trial

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — Defense attorneys are trying to get Trayvon Martin's text messages and phone photos that deal with fighting and guns introduced at George Zimmerman's second-degree murder trial.

Zimmerman's attorneys late Tuesday called a forensics computer analyst to tell a judge that text messages on Martin's cellphone showed he was trying to buy or sell a gun.

Jurors were out of the courtroom. The testimony was given to Judge Debra Nelson to help her decide whether to allow the defense to use them. The Florida judge had ruled that information about Martin's interest in guns and fighting couldn't be used during opening statements. But she left open the possibility that they could be introduced later.

The 29-year-old Zimmerman is pleading not guilty, claiming he shot the unarmed black teenager in self-defense. Zimmerman identifies himself as Hispanic.

Pentagon orders review of POW-MIA group, citing concern about report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said Tuesday it will take a "second look" at how it goes about accounting for missing Americans on foreign battlefields, following the disclosure of an internal assessment that the work is "acutely dysfunctional" and at risk of failure.

"We have a sacred obligation to perform this mission well," Pentagon press secretary George Little told reporters, referring to the Joint POW-MIA Accounting Command, or JPAC, which is based in Hawaii and run by a two-star general.

The U.S. estimates there are more than 83,000 Americans missing from World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

Over the past three years, JPAC has reported an average of 69 identifications of recovered remains per year, down from 85 per year over the previous three years. Congress is demanding that it make at least 200 identifications per year starting in 2015, a target it is widely expected to miss.

Override votes make Illinois last state to allow carrying of concealed weapons

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The last holdout on allowing the public possession of concealed guns, Illinois joined the rest of the nation Tuesday as lawmakers raced to beat a federal court deadline in adopting a carry law over Gov. Pat Quinn's objections. Massive majorities in the House and Senate voted to override changes the Democratic governor made just a week ago in an amendatory veto.

Some lawmakers feared failure to pass something would mean virtually unregulated weapons in Chicago, which has endured severe gun violence in recent months — including more than 70 shootings, at least 12 of them fatal, during the Independence Day weekend.

"This is a historic, significant day for law-abiding gun owners," said Rep. Brandon Harris, a southern Illinois Democrat who, in 10 years in the House, has continued work on concealed carry begun by his uncle, ex-Rep. David Phelps, who began serving in the mid-1980s.

Lois A. Hickey Peters

SALEM — Lois A. Hickey Peters of 28963 Hartley Road, Salem, Ohio, passed away peacefully with her family at her side at the Carilion Roanoke Memorial Hospital on July 7, 2013, of complications from a serious car crash on June 20, 2013, near Roanoke, Va.

She was born in Salem on Jan. 2, 1959, and is the daughter of Robert Hickey and the late Nancy Hickey.

A 1977 graduate of Salem High School, Lois married Robert "Nick" Peters on June 16, 1979. Shortly after, she joined the family business, Hickey Metal Fabrication and has been an integral part of the business, serving as the corporate secretary/treasurer.

Lois was a vibrant and loving person. She enjoyed being at their farm or traveling, spending quality time with her husband Nick. Her two sons, Nick and Ben, were truly her pride and joy. Lois' brother Leo was her right hand man throughout her 54 years here with us. One thing is for sure, Lois made the most out of every day.

She is survived by her loving husband of 34 years, Nick Peters; two sons, Nicholas Peters and Benjamin Peters; her father, Robert Hickey; brother, Leo Hickey and sister-in-law Suzanne Hickey, all of Salem; her nephews, Keith (Noelle) Hickey of Jacksonville, Fla., and Adam Hickey of Columbus, Ohio, and her two uncles. She is also survived by numerous brothers and sisters-in-law, Glenda (Neil) Liber of Brenham, Texas, James Peters of Salem, Edward (A.J.) Peters of Columbiana, Kenneth (Jayne) Peters of Salem, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Lois was preceded in death by her mother, Nancy Hickey.

The family wishes to thank Lois' many friends for the love, support and prayers over the past 18 days and for days to come. We would also like to thank the wonderful doctors and nursing staff of the Carilion Roanoke Memorial Hospital for their love and care during a difficult journey.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that you designate donations to be made to the "Lois A. Peters Memorial Scholarship" through the Salem High School Alumni Association, 330 E. State St., Salem, Ohio 44460.

Friends may call at the Stark Memorial Funeral Home on Thursday, July 11, 2013, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Services will be held at St. Paul Catholic Church on Friday, July 12, 2013, at 11 a.m., with Father Robert Edwards officiating and assisted by Pastor Doug George of the Methodist Church. A prayer vigil and burial will follow at Grandview Cemetery in Salem.

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

— Police responded to a domestic dispute in the 800 block of East Fifth Street at 6:01 p.m. Monday and found it to be a verbal dispute between an adult male and juvenile female resident.

— Police responded to a Vine Avenue apartment at 6:40 p.m. Monday for a well-being check and found an elderly resident who died from apparent natural causes.

— An officer responded to a 2700 block East State Street business at 11:17 a.m. Tuesday in reference to a set of keys that had been left on the counter over a week ago. The keys were taken to the police department until claimed.

— Officers responded to a neighbor dispute in the 400 block of Franklin Avenue at 6:59 p.m. Monday in which a resident claimed her neighbor had taken a photo of her while she mowed the lawn. The neighbor denied the allegation.

— Trina E. Bryan, 29, 452 W. Fourth St., Salem, was cited for assured clear distance ahead following a two-vehicle crash on West Fourth Street at 7:38 p.m. Monday in which she was eastbound and allegedly failed to stop for traffic stopped at North Ellsworth Avenue, striking the rear of a vehicle driven by John S. McClish, 44, Salem. No injuries were reported.

— A Vine Avenue resident reported on station at 9:18 p.m. Monday that his ex-girlfriend has slapped him across the face while at his home that day. He wished to press charges and the information was forwarded to the county prosecutor's office.

— An officer responded to a Vine Avenue home at 10:58 p.m. Monday where a resident had made statements of wanting to harm themselves. The resident reluctantly agreed to be transported to the hospital for evaluation.

— Police responded to a West Wilson Street home at 11:20 p.m. Monday where a resident reported receiving unwanted text messages from a woman she knows. The woman was advised to stop contact with the complainant.

— Officers responded to an East Fourth Street home at 11:59 a.m. Tuesday where a resident reported her neighbor had been cutting off her flowers while mowing the lawn. The neighbor claimed the landlord had hired him to maintain the property and denied damaging any flowers.

— Officers responded to the 500 block of Cedar Street at 2:35 p.m. Tuesday for a report of a large ball-type python in the ditch. The resident told officers upon arrival that the snake had continued north behind her home. Officers were unable to find the snake in question, but did find a 3-foot black snake in the ditch which witnesses said was not the snake they saw.

— A Washington Avenue resident reported on station at 3:05 p.m. Tuesday that his sister had been knocked to the ground after the bicycle she was riding was struck by a passing vehicle on East Pershing Street behind the hospital, and that she was found to have a fractured wrist and swelling on her face.

— Police responded to Centennial Park at 3:26 p.m. Tuesday for a report of a male juvenile carrying two knives, but were unable to find anyone matching his description.

LISBON

— A Grant Street resident reported at 5:01 p.m. Sunday his neighbor was burning tires.

— A Rite Aid employee reported at 7:11 p.m. Monday a car struck the propane tank outside the building. The 17-year-old driver, Rebeckah Phillis, told police she was pulling into a parking space and left off the clutch while the vehicle was still in gear. The vehicle's owner, her father, Scott Phillis, was called and the driver released. There was no injury or damage to the car.

— An East Chestnut woman reported at 7:17 p.m. Monday her ex-boyfriend called her and threatened to both break the windows and slash the tires of her vehicle.

— A West Spruce Street resident reported at 8:05 p.m. Monday a dog at a neighboring home had been tied all day and had no water, causing it to howl.

— Smith Oil reported at 8:36 p.m. Monday a $20 drive-off by someone in a green Impala. Police contacted the owner of the vehicle, Lance Wilson, and told him to return to pay for the gas.

— A domestic dispute was reported at Greentree Place at 8:30 p.m. Monday where Marjorie Wilson reported her husband and her daughter's boyfriend had argued over the boyfriend, David Wales, using their car and driving away from Smith Oil without paying for the gas. Police spoke to Wales, who admitted to the drive-off.

— Wires were reported hanging low on Sunset Drive at 8:52 a.m. Tuesday. The wires reportedly have been down for more than a week, making it difficult for vehicles to get through and causing a garbage truck to back down the street because they cannot drive under it.

— Mary's Pizza requested an ambulance at 2:10 p.m. Tuesday for an elderly man who passed out. Police and KLG arrived to provide assistance.

COLUMBIANA

— Police warned four people in a South Main Street apartment for loud noise at 1:52 a.m. Monday.

SALEM TWP.

— Dan Vlacovsky, of Canton, reported at 6:45 p.m. Saturday he was riding on the bike trail and took off his bike bag, which contained his wallet. He inadvertently rode off without the bag but did not realize it until he was home.

— Lance M. Morris, 27, Hilltop Drive, Lisbon, was southbound on state Route 9 in Butler Township at 8 p.m. July 3 and went left of center and overturned in a field. He was taken to Salem Hospital with non-incapacitating injuries and cited for failure to control, OVI and seat belt.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE

— Nicole Jones, Depot Road, Salem, reported at 8:41 a.m. Monday she has been having problems with her neighbor using her driveway. Jones said the neighbor was involved in a domestic dispute with her brother and there is a protection order protecting the neighbor from Jones' family. The neighbor, Margaret Keen, called deputies reporting she was harassed by Jones, who reportedly placed a large rock in the drive to prevent her from using it. Keen reported Jones then started yelling while carrying a garden hoe, which she threatened to bury into Keen's head. Both were told to come to the sheriff's department to give statements, but neither had as of Tuesday morning.

— A Camp Boulevard, Hanoverton, woman reported at 3:44 a.m. Tuesday she has been talking to a man online from Kentucky, who has also started messaging her so often she felt awkward about it and requested he stop. However, he refused until deputies called and told him to cease immediately.

— A Middle Beaver Road, Lisbon, man reported at 9:57 p.m. Monday he believed he heard a gunshot and then a man yelling for help across the street. Deputies checked the area, but did not find anyone around.

— A Francis Drive, Wellsville, man reported at 8:07 p.m. Monday two young children found a marijuana plant in the woods. Deputies removed the marijuana plant, which was about three feet tall.

— A Grant Street, Lisbon, woman reported at 5:31 p.m. Monday someone stole tomatoes from her garden. She also said motorcycles have been speeding past her home all hours of the day.

— A caller asked deputies to check on her brother at 9:10 p.m. Monday, after she became concerned about him due to a break-up with his girlfriend.

Deputies found the brother passed out lying headfirst out the front door of his home on state Route 170, East Palestine. A spent .45-caliber casing was found next to him and a loaded .45-caliber gun was lying on the living room couch. He told deputies he fired into the ceiling and had been drinking. The bullet hole confirmed the story. He agreed to be transported for an evaluation. Both the handgun and seven live rounds were taken by deputies for safekeeping.

— Damascus Farmers National Bank employees reported at 10:31 a.m. July 2 they received a call from Anthony Yoho alerting him he was coming to take money from his mother's account. According to bank employees, Yoho has come to the bank to do this before while intoxicated and has been aggressive with the tellers. Yoho's name is not on the account, but his sister's name is and she had told the bank he is not allowed to take money from the account. Deputies found Yoho has a warrant from Portage County. Deputies waited in the area for about 15 minutes, but then left to answer other calls. He arrived shortly after they left and deputies returned to take him into custody on the warrant. The bank's manager also informed Yoho he is no longer welcome at the bank.

— Deputies checked on a 12-year-old boy in the Beloit area at 12:36 p.m. July 2 after receiving a call from someone concerned he may be being left home alone. Deputies checked on the child and learned the neighbors were watching the boy while his mother was at work.

OUR SIDE

More funds alone won't cure schools

Ohio's recently enacted state budget bill makes some changes to the way schools are funded. Officials appear to be making an effort to address issues that led State Chief Justice Maureen O'Connor to express concern about the constitutionality of the state's funding formula.

Calculations for state aid to schools have been adjusted, and the amount of money each district gets per pupil has been increased. State Senate President Keith Faber, R-Celina, said he believes the changes in the two-year budget bill make Ohio's school funding formula constitutional.

But throwing more money at a problem does not mean legislators can wash their hands of it. Between 1992 and 2011, per-pupil spending by U.S. public schools doubled. Report after report shows our students are not getting twice as good an education, and, in fact, a growing body of research shows them falling behind their peers in other nations. Ohio, meanwhile, has outspent the rest of the country. In 2011, the last year for which U.S. Census bureau data are available, Ohio spent $11,223 per pupil, compared with the national average of $10,560.

Despite that level of spending, Ohio again is being accused of not complying with a 2002 court order to equalize school funding between rich and poor districts. But among the revisions to the state's funding formula are more requirements for how districts can spend money, including directing more into classrooms and less for administration and support.

William Phillis, of the Ohio Coalition for Equity and Adequacy in School Funding, reminded legislators the new funding level "has nothing to do with funding the components of a quality education."

Adding more money to the formula will not address conditions that changed little in the past decade. Gov. John Kasich and the General Assembly may be on the right track in adjusting the variables and trying to get better results with what money is available. But Ohio already appears to be funneling plenty of money into its schools.

Ohio may have something to learn from Texas, which this year faced its own lawsuit over public school funding. A witness in the case told the court he saw no correlation between per student spending and test results.

"If we simply put more resources into schools and use it the way (Texas) districts have been using it ... we should not expect higher achievement from students on average," said Eric Hanushek, an education expert at Stanford University. "We are wasting resources to the extent that we are spending on things that don't matter."

Ohio's school funding system is still unbalanced. Instead of adding more weight to the financial side of the scale, it is time for politicians to lean more heavily on the side of improving teachers, schools and the development of the state's greatest resource.

Who are your heroes?

BETSY
MCCAUGHEY

Last Sunday, President Obama told a Cape Town audience that South Africa's heroes -- Steve Biko and Albert Lutuli -- inspired him to enter politics. He discussed an affection he has not shown publicly toward James Madison and Alexander Hamilton. It was stunning to watch, as we at home in the U.S. were pulling out our flags and preparing to celebrate America's 237th Independence Day.

We the People are disgusted with Washington's shenanigans, but we revere our nation's past. More than three quarters of Americans disapprove of the job Congress is doing. When asked, "Do you believe the United States would be a better country if we followed the ideas of the Founding Fathers and the Constitution more closely, an amazing 77 percent said yes. (Fox News poll, June 22 to 24).

More Democrats than Republicans were included in the poll. This commitment to the values of the founders is broad based. Independence Day isn't a quaint celebration of the past. It's about the ideals that provide a roadmap forward.

Sadly the top dogs in Congress have strayed from these ideals. Last week, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid rammed through a 1,198-page "comprehensive" (another word for unread) immigration bill over the objections of senators who hadn't had time to scrutinize it. That's a repeat of how Reid rushed the Obama health law through the Senate on Christmas Eve, 2009. He sent it on to then House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, who amazingly said "we have to pass it so we can find out what's in it." Reid and Pelosi are James Madison's biggest nightmares.

Madison, chief architect of the Constitution, warned in Federalist 62 that it was meaningless to guarantee people "that the laws are made by men of their own choice if the laws are so voluminous that they cannot be read, or so incoherent that they cannot be understood." Voluminous and incoherent describe the gobbledygook in Obamacare and the Senate immigration bill, both concealing costly provisions slipped in to buy the last minute votes of reluctant lawmakers.

The next president of the United States should pledge not to sign any bill into law if it is over 20 pages or filled with legalese. Twenty pages should be enough. The framers created the entire federal government in the U.S. Constitution's eighteen pages.

Of course, the biggest threat to freedom is not the size of laws but the size of government. Madison cautioned that our personal freedom would be taken away not all at once but by "gradual and silent encroachments." That describes the predatory practices of the IRS, the information gathering activities of the National Security Administration and Obamacare's intrusions into what you confide to your doctor.

In the 2010-midterm elections, tea party activists made fidelity to the Constitution a major issue. At their instigation, the House of Representatives opened its proceedings in January 2011 with a reading of the Constitution, a first in the chamber's history, and adopted a rule that every bill must indicate the specific Constitutional provision that authorizes Congress to pass it.

Sadly, Congress has continued to spend, pushing the nation toward 17 trillion in debt and ignoring the admonitions of Jefferson that no nation should borrow more than the current generation can repay. In the fall of 2012, only 21 percent of Americans approved of the job Congress was doing. Yet when they went to the polls, they supported 90 percent of House members and 91 percent of Senators who sought re-election.

In his 2013 inaugural address, President Obama tried unconvincingly to put the imprimatur of the Constitution on his exorbitant spending for the collectivist good, referring again and again to "We the People."

So here we are, celebrating Independence Day 2013, proud of our heritage but disgusted with a Congress of our own choosing. This is the moment to resolve that "We the People" deserve better, and that the next national election will be different.

he Reagan revolution came about when Americans refused to re-elect the same disappointing people. In 1980, voters returned fewer incumbents to the U.S. Senate than in any other modern election. It can be done again. It must be done. When the authors of the Constitution finished their work, Benjamin Franklin was asked what they had created. "A Republic, if you can keep it," he said. Keeping it is up to us.

OTHER VOICES

The (Newark) Advocate, July 7

Anyone who has paid attention to the growing concerns about human trafficking, better described as modern-day slavery, probably wasn't surprised by recent discoveries of women being held against their will in Cleveland and Ashland.

In fact, the cases of a Cleveland man charged with holding three women captive in his home and raping them for about 10 years and four Ashland residents accused of forcing a 29-year-old woman with cognitive disabilities to perform manual labor inside their two-story home, aren't classic cases of human trafficking.

This crime can be even more sinister and widespread, with pimps literally selling women to one another for their sex businesses. Even worse, these crimes remain widely underreported...

Although a recent Ohio Attorney General's report found only 30 investigations into trafficking cases this past year, researchers believe more than 1,000

Ohio children alone are trafficked into the sex trade each year...

Residents often play huge roles in solving these crimes, which is why it's so critical for all of us to pay attention to our surroundings and report suspicious activity to police. You never know what's really happening in a home.

It's also incumbent upon state lawmakers to continue improving Ohio's laws so clearly criminal acts can be prosecuted properly...

Ohio finally made modern-day slavery illegal, with a law protecting child victims from being treated as prostitutes and increasing penalties for traffickers.

In June, the Ohio House unanimously passed a law making it easier to prosecute people who sell minors and developmentally disabled individuals for sex. That's a bill we hope the Senate will approve quickly during its next session.

Obamacare threatens to become election issue again

JULES
WITCOVER

The political football of health care insurance, supposedly taken off the playing field in 2012 by the Supreme Court decision declaring the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act constitutional, is being kicked around again.

The Obama administration has put the ball in the air again, just in time for the approaching 2014 congressional elections, with its decision to delay for another year the employer mandate requiring companies with 50 or more workers employees to provide coverage.

Many Democrats assumed that the surprising vote of Chief Justice John Roberts in the 5-4 decision on what for good or ill is now universally known as Obamacare had killed its opposition as a decisive political issue. They chuckled at the House Republican kabuki dance of passing 31 separate bills to "repeal and replace" the legislation that all knew was going nowhere.

But Obamacare's ardent foes have been given a reprieve by the administration's delay in the face of widespread pressure from recalcitrant or just plain confused small-business employers seeking more time to comply with excessive implementing paperwork. Administration defenders insist the delay will benefit all concerned by assuring the mandate is properly and comprehensively launched, which smacks of weak rationale.

The Republicans in turn have gleefully seized on it to fire off a salvo of we-told-yous, that Obamacare is an incomprehensible mess that most Americans don't want and don't understand. House Speaker John Boehner unsurprisingly has led the chorus, saying the administration's pullback is "a clear acknowledgment that the law is unworkable" and that "the train wreck will only get worse."

Suddenly, the temporary Obamacare sidetracking gives the Republicans another chance in next year's midterm elections to resurrect the issue that in 2010 helped them take control of the House, to the deep dismay of the Obama administration.

Up to now, the Republicans' chief political worry looking to the 2014 midterms has been the fight over immigration reform. Many in the GOP continue to resist it despite the trouncing the party took in 2012, when 70 percent of Hispanic voters backed Obama for his support (or punished Republicans for their opposition).

Whether Congress before the next midterms passes immigration reform or it is blocked again by the House Republicans, 2014 looms as a peril to their majority. At a minimum, a revival of Obamacare as an issue gives the party a vehicle to divert the political conversation to more favorable ground, at least temporarily.

In the meantime, the Obama administration must make the case all over again for its health-care insurance plan, and to offer a much more lucid explanation of what already seems an uncertain and convoluted path to wider insurance coverage for Americans.

Ever since the Bill Clinton administration, what has been advertised as near-universal coverage has had a hard slog to general voter acceptance. The secretive and drawn-out efforts to construct and pass a comprehensive package by then-first lady Hillary Clinton ended in frustration and failure, and cast a shadow on her own presidential aspirations in 2008.

Revisiting the health care fight that Obama finally won may remind voters of Clinton's own losing experience in that arena, just as expectations rise that she will seek the presidency again in 2016. Her strong campaign in 2008, and her subsequent, acclaimed four-year service as secretary of state, have made the next Democratic nomination seem hers for the taking.

Meanwhile, Obama himself has more immediately at stake in seeing that the Affordable Care Act survives renewed Republican opposition and unforeseen implementation hurdles.

As voters contemplate the future of Congress in the 2014 midterms, the president can't afford to have Obamacare revived as a central issue if he hopes to complete his presidency with Capitol Hill in more cooperative hands.

The commission also approved $12,000 for Ohio Drilling to drill a test well at Cold Run Creek approximately 330 to 480 feet north of the Cold Run Creek raw water pumping station to determine the possibility of a production well.

Also at the meeting the commission tabled discussion of financing the tie-in of Calvary Baptist Church to the new sanitary sewer on Depot Road. Weingart said the church had been told by the county engineer's office that the county could not assess the cost of the project since the church is a tax-exempt organization and does not pay property taxes. Weingart suggested financing the project direct and collecting the debt through the Salem Utilities billing system on a monthly basis.

In response to Weingart's indication that the county should be able to assess the project, the commission asked him to contact the county engineer's office before considering financing the project.

The next commission meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m. Aug. 13 in the Utilities Office conference room.

be genuine and kind-hearted. He was someone who rolled with the punches and would want them all to go on living.

Mitchell's mother, Kim Mitchell, spoke first, talking about the nauseating pain the family has felt since the day a highway patrol trooper gave them the news their son was in an accident and did not survive.

"Your poor-decision making has changed our lives forever," Mitchell's mother said, adding that their faith and their son's faith in God was helping them.

She read from a report her son wrote at age 15, one where he stated the most important person in helping someone deal with grief is God, who places the people around them and gives them the strength.

For his part, Sell and his attorney, Jeffrey Jakmides, stood while the family members spoke about their loss. Sell told the family he was "tremendously sorry," adding he wakes up every day wishing he could go back before the crash.

According to reports by the patrol at the time of the crash, Mitchell, a 19-year-old from Alliance, was driving a Chevrolet Cavalier east on Hartley Road on Feb. 17, 2012, when his car was struck by a Toyota Celica driven by Sell, who was southbound on Knox School Road.

Sell and his passenger, a 16-year-old Taylor R. Steed, were taken to Aultman Hospital in Canton with non-life threatening injuries.

Tuesday in court, Jakmides, Assistant County Prosecutor Don Humphrey Jr. and Judge Mark Frost all expressed their sympathy.

Humphrey pointed out there was nothing he was able to say to ease the pain of the Mitchell family or increase the remorse by Sell. He said he planned to ask for the agreed upon 90 days in jail with work release, and hoped on the 91st day Sell would begin living his life with a new purpose.

"Perhaps his life can become an example of redemption and remorse," Humphrey said.

Frost echoed that sentiment, telling Sell he needs to remember what happened and stating Sell's decision to plead guilty to vehicular manslaughter despite the possible civil implications of such a plea shows he was ready to "man up and accept full responsibility for his actions."

Sell will begin his jail term on Aug. 1, once his current school semester concludes. He will only be released to go to work and must return every night to the jail.

Frost reminded him not to give into the temptations or threats he may receive from other inmates to bring cigarettes or worse into the jail to them. Any violation will revoke his work-release privileges.

Once he is released Sell will be on a three-year probation and for two years will only have driving privileges to go to and from his job, school, counseling and church. He has also been fined $750.

State change may hurt Columbiana levy bid

By KATIE SCHWENDEMAN
Staff Writer

COLUMBIANA — A provision included in the new two-year state budget may negatively affect a bond issue being sought by the Columbiana School District this fall.

The provision eliminates the 12.5 percent of automatic reduction on all new property levies that is currently being paid by the state.

District Treasurer Lori Posey said the provision will mean a slightly more than 14 percent increase to taxpayers on the bond issue already approved for the Nov. 5 election ballot.

The bond failed the May 7 election by 131 votes. At that time taxpayers were looking at an increase of $18.83 on a $50,000 home and $37.67 a year on a $100,000 home.

The elimination of the rollback will mean the owner of a $100,000 home will pay $43.04 a year on the bond issue, Superintendent Don Mook said.

The district is seeking the 1.23 mill bond for a new roof and refurbishments at South Side Middle School on Columbiana-Waterford Road. If passed, it will generate $4 million over 29 years.

Mook said the provision "hurts all school districts," and pointed out that, like Columbiana, 24 other districts had also approved tax levies for the November ballot before the state budget legislation went through.

"It is a critical change," he said of the provision that will require property owners to pay 100 percent of the bill for tax levies.

Posey has already begun contacting state officials requesting an exception to the provision.

In an email to state Sen. Joe Schiavoni (D-Boardman), she said, "I understand that this is part of a larger tax reform package and I understand the need for it, however, it seems unfair that this provision was added and passed after the board had already taken action."

She urged the senator to seek an emergency clause to delay the effective date of the provision to Jan. 1 of next year.

She also said in the email that if delaying the provision is not possible the state should seek something keeping school districts from being affected that had already decided to put a tax levy before voters prior to the budget's passing.

Schiavoni voted against the state budget and, like other Democrats at the state level, has said it benefits the wealthy while leaving the middle class behind.

A phone call to Schiavoni's office last week has not been returned, and Mook said Tuesday the district hasn't heard any feedback regarding their request at this point.

Schiavoni has been quoted in other articles saying the rollback elimination will make it more difficult to pass levies.

Educators across the state have echoed the same sentiments. An extensive article in the Akron Beacon Journal said voters in many communities may not realize how the provision will affect them from a tax standpoint.

Posey said she has spoken to other local districts about the change and the need for an emergency clause.

"Some have said they are glad someone is taking the initiative to do this. They will also speak to their representatives," she said.

Should the bond issue fail, the district will need to use operational money to repair the middle school roof, she and Mook have said.

With a new school year under way next month the district is doing what it can to remedy the problem. In late May the board approved patching the roof, closing a portion of the building and moving students to other areas.

The money for the patching is coming from the general fund, and although not as costly as a replacement, it has resulted in at least two reductions in force through staff reorganization.

This marks the third time the district has put the bond before voters. The first time was in August of 2012.

Elliot D. Crank, 18, North Ellsworth Avenue, Salem, was fined $300 and required 30 hours community service for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and underage consumption for taking his grandfather's pickup without permission on June 12, crashing and then drinking a bottle of vodka after the accident.

Kristina M. Sluter, 21, North Elm Street, Columbiana, was fined $250, sentenced to three days in jail and required 25 hours community service for falsification. Court documents state Sluter falsely accused her ex-boyfriend of grabbing her by the throat at his home on June 23, then recanted her story on June 24.

Jennifer A. Hepfner, 19, Cunningham Road, Salem, was fined $250 and credited with six days served for theft for driving two men to a Franklin Avenue, Salem, address twice on April 29 knowing they intended to steal tractor wheel weights from that location and then drove them Quaker City Auto Parts where they sold the weights as scrap.

Julie Barnett, 46, Township Road, Irondale, was fined $250 and required 40 hours community service for driving under suspension.

Christopher W. Short, 25, Canton, was fined $185 and required 50 hours community service for speeding, failure to display a valid sticker and failure to reinstate a license amended from driving under suspension.

Mauro Ixcoy Hernandez, 18, West Fifth Street, salem, was fined $100 and credited with two days served for disorderly conduct after he was found passed out in a yard on the corner of North Ellsworth and East Fifth Street on Sunday.

Charles E. Melott, 37, state Route 164, Leetonia, was fined $100 and required 50 hours community service for driving under FRA suspension.

Eric M. Harsanye, 19, Western Reserve Road, Salem, and Toni A. Donnelly, 42, Winona Road, Salem, were each fined $100 for speeding.

Joshua A. Frank, 18, South 15th Street, Sebring, was fined $75 for no license amended from driving under FRA suspension.

Jaime D. Weiling, 37, Pompano, Fla., was fined $55 for no license and a traffic control device.

Jason Logan Pitts, 31, Savannah, Tenn., was fined $50 for no headlights. A driving under suspension citation was dismissed.

Ryan K. Stanley, 27, Sharp Avenue, Salem, was fined with $35 for allowing a dog to run at large and keeping chickens within 150 feet of another home.

A criminal damaging charge against Brian M. Soliday, 28, Bayard Road, Minerva, was dismissed. Court documents alleged Soliday punched a windshield of a vehicle owned by Sherry Edwards cracking it on May 6.

A July 30 pretrial was set for Dana A. Campbell, 39, North Howard Avenue, Salem, cited with driving under suspension and a failure to yield the right of way to a public service vehicle.

An Aug. 6 pretrial was set for Thomas G. Piatt, 18, East Third Street, Salem, cited with underage consumption.

An Aug. 8 pretrial was set for Charitey A. Riggs, 19, North Lundy Avenue, Salem, cited with criminal trespassing after she was found inside an East Fourth Street apartment in Salem, while the owner of the apartment was in jail and unable to give her permission.

An Aug. 8 pretrial was set for Malinda M. Green, 39, Beaver Falls, Pa., charged with domestic violence for allegedly biting her sister and striking her with a ceramic statue, her fists and her boots on Jimtown Road, East Palestine, on Oct. 8, 2004.

An Aug. 8 pretrial was set for Adam T. Gottschling, 28, Morton Street, Lisbon, cited with commercial speeding.

An Aug. 8 pretrial was set for Luke A. Pizulo, 26, Poland, cited with commercial speeding.

An Aug. 13 pretrial was set for Steven A. Douglas, 36, Clark Avenue, Wellsville, cited with driving under suspension and a seat belt violation.

Lisbon school board OKs raise for staff

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON — The Lisbon school board on Tuesday approved an agreement with the classified staff members, a month after approving a new agreement with teachers.

Superintendent Don Thompson told the board the new contact had many similarities with the teachers contract, including increases of 2 percent this year, 2 percent next year and 1 percent the third year.

The only exception would be in a case where the minimum wage increases by a bigger percentage than what was agreed upon. For instance, Thompson said if the minimum wage increases by 3 percent next year, then in January the classified staff would receive an adjustment providing them with an additional 1 percent.

Thompson said the concern was the unfairness of those classified staff members making minimum wage receiving larger increases in the past than other classified staff members.

Non-union, the Lisbon schools classified staff members generally negotiate with members of the board once the teachers contract is completed, Thompson said. The classified staff would include bus drivers, custodians and cooks.

In other matters before the board:

— The board accepted the resignation of Theresa Mottle, an English and language arts teacher at the high school, who will be leaving to take another job closer to her home. The board approved Kyle Bing, a former teacher at Southern Local, to replace her. Additionally, they hired Lauri Sauerwein to teach health and physical education.

— The board approved maintenance contracts for the summer with R and R Seal Coat, $8,900 for sealing and striping; Hunsburg Concrete, $3,700 for concrete replacement; and Sanford Heating and Cooling, $3,500 for heating and cooling line repair.

— The board changed an adjustment made last month to the reduced price breakfast and lunch prices. Last month, the board had approved a 10-cent increase for each of them, but the reduced prices were reinstated Tuesday at the original prices of 30 cents for breakfast and 40 cents for lunch.

Air Force withdraws sexual assault prevention brochure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has pulled a brochure circulated at a South Carolina base after a lawmaker complained about some objectionable advice to sexual assault victims — such as submitting to an attack rather than resisting. Rep. Louise Slaughter, D-N.Y., who had complained about the brochure in May, on Tuesday released a copy of a letter she received from the Pentagon informing her of the Air Force's decision and steps the services are taking to deal with the epidemic of sexual assault in the ranks, including reviewing its prevention material.

"We have reviewed the Shaw Air Force Base brochure you mentioned in your letter," Jessica Wright, acting undersecretary of defense, wrote to Slaughter. "We share your concerns over some of the materials presented, and the Air Force has withdrawn the brochure from circulation." The letter was dated June 20, received by Slaughter's office during last week's congressional recess and released on Tuesday.

The brochure contained some common-sense recommendations, such as checking around a car before entering and using dead-bolt locks and peepholes when home alone. It also included advice that the congresswoman described as victim-blaming and inappropriate as the military struggles with the problem of sexual assault. "If you are attacked, it may be advisable to submit than to resist," the brochure said. "You have to make this decision based on circumstances. Be especially careful if the attack has a weapon."

The brochure also suggested that if an individual is accosted in a parking lot, "consider rolling underneath a nearby auto and scream loud. It is difficult to force anyone out from under a car."

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

Late to the Chinese market, Ford aims to catch up... CHONGQING, China (AP) — Dave Schoch has one of the toughest jobs at Ford Motor Co.: catching the competition in the world's biggest car market.

When Schoch arrived in China 13 years ago, the government was building eight-lane freeways in major cities, but bicyclists and pedestrians still filled the streets. The Chinese were buying fewer than 2 million cars and trucks each year, a fraction of the 14.4 million sold in 2000 in the U.S.

When he returned to China last year, Schoch was stunned. The freeways were choked with cars, from inexpensive, Chinese-made Wuling minivans to Mercedes-Benz sedans. The red-hot Chinese economy had more than doubled annual sales, giving millions of people the money to buy a first vehicle or move up to a luxury brand.

Ford wants to double its Chinese market share to 6 percent by 2015. To make that happen, the company is launching six new vehicles in China this year, including two small SUVs called the Kuga and the EcoSport, the Mondeo midsize sedan and the Explorer SUV, which is exported from Chicago. The Lincoln luxury brand will arrive next year.

Kroger adds Harris Teeter to supermarket network... NEW YORK (AP) — Kroger, already the country's largest traditional supermarket operator, is expanding its reach in key south-eastern and mid-Atlantic states by snapping up regional grocer Harris Teeter Supermarkets Inc.

Harris Teeter has 212 stores in eight states. That includes locations in Delaware, Florida, Maryland and Washington, D.C., where Kroger currently does not have a presence.

Role of aircraft automation eyed in SF air crash... WASHINGTON (AP) — The crash landing of a South Korean airliner in San Francisco has revived concerns that airline pilots get so little opportunity these days to fly without the aid of sophisticated automation that their stick-and-rudder skills are eroding.

to pilot error. What is known is that Asiana Airlines Flight 214 crashed short of its target runway Saturday at San Francisco International Airport in broad daylight under near ideal weather conditions. The Boeing 777's engines are still being examined, but they appear to have been operating normally. And the flight's pilots didn't report any mechanical issues or other problems.

NYSE operator takes over LIBOR bank rate... LONDON (AP) — The company behind the New York Stock Exchange will take over running and restoring confidence in the scandal-hit London interbank offered rate, or LIBOR, a UK committee has ruled.

The independent panel, set up by the UK Treasury, on Tuesday chose NYSE Euronext to take over LIBOR from the British Bankers' Association, which had supervised the rate-setting for decades. The changeover is scheduled to be completed by early 2014, the panel's chair, Baroness Sarah Hogg, said in a statement. The panel did not identify other bidders. LIBOR underpins trillions of dollars of transactions all over the world. It is an average rate that measures how much they expect to pay each other for loans. The rate is also used in calculating borrowing costs of hundreds of trillions of dollars in loans and investments such as bonds, auto loans and derivatives.

A break for smokers? Glitch may limit penalties... WASHINGTON (AP) — Some smokers trying to get coverage next year under President Barack Obama's health care law may get a break from tobacco-use penalties that could have made their premiums unaffordable. The Obama administration — in yet another health care overhaul delay — has quietly notified insurers that a computer system glitch will limit penalties that the law says the companies may charge smokers. A fix will take at least a year to put in place.

Older smokers are more likely to benefit from the glitch, experts say. But depending on how insurers respond to it, it's also possible that younger smokers could wind up facing higher penalties than they otherwise would have.

IMF forecasts slower global growth in 2013-14... WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund said that it sees slower global growth in 2013 and 2014 than it did just three months ago, citing expectations of a slowdown in key developing countries such as China and Brazil and a more protracted recession in Europe.

Criminal probe opened in Quebec oil train derailment

LAC-MEGANTIC, Quebec (AP) — Canadian authorities said they have opened a criminal investigation into the fiery wreck of a runaway oil train in this small town as the death toll climbed to 15, with dozens more bodies feared buried in the burned-out ruins. Quebec police Inspector Michel Forget said Tuesday that investigators have "discovered elements" that have led to a criminal probe. He gave no details but ruled out terrorism and said police are more likely exploring the possibility of criminal negligence.

The death toll rose with the discovery of two more bodies Tuesday. About three dozen more people were missing. The bodies that have been recovered were burned so badly they have yet to be identified. Investigators zeroed in on whether a fire on the train a few hours before the disaster set off a deadly chain of events that has raised questions about the safety of transporting oil in North America by rail instead of pipeline. The unmanned Montreal, Maine & Atlantic Railway train broke loose early Saturday and sped downhill in the darkness nearly seven miles (11 kilometers) before jumping the tracks at 63 mph (101 kph) near the Maine border. All but one of the 73 cars were carrying oil. At least five exploded. Rail dispatchers had no chance to warn anyone during the train's 18-minute journey because they didn't know it was happening themselves, Transportation Safety Board officials said Tuesday. Such warning systems are not in place on secondary rail lines, said TSB manager Ed Belkaloul.

tated by the train's owners, Nantes Fire Chief Patrick Lambert said. Edward Burkhardt, president and CEO of the railway's U.S.-based parent company, Rail World Inc., suggested that shutting off the locomotive to put out the fire might have disabled the brakes. "An hour or so after the locomotive was shut down, the train rolled away," he told the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Lambert defended the fire department. "The people from MMA told us, 'That's great — the train is secure, there's no more fire, there's nothing anymore, there's no more danger,'" Lambert said. "We were given our leave, and we left."

Transport Canada, the government's transportation agency, said Tuesday there are no rules against leaving an unlocked, unmanned, running locomotive and its flammable cargo on a main rail line uphill from a populated area. Officials also said there is no limit on how many oil-filled, single-hull tank cars a train can pull. Transportation Safety Board investigator Donald Ross said the locomotive's black box has been recovered but that the investigation was still in its early stages. The tanker cars involved in the crash were the DOT-111 type — a staple of the American freight rail fleet whose flaws have been noted as far back as a 1991 safety study. Experts say its steel shell is so thin that it is prone to puncture in an accident. The derailment also raised questions about the safety of Canada's growing practice of transporting oil by train, and is sure to support the case for a proposed oil pipeline running from Canada across the U.S. — a project that Canadian officials badly want. Efforts continued Tuesday to stop waves of crude oil spilled in the disaster from reaching the St. Lawrence River, the backbone of the province's water supply. Environment Minister Yves-Francois Blanchet said the chances were "very slim."

Lac-Megantic's mayor said about 1,200 residents were being allowed to return to their homes. A sense of mourning had set in among the survivors. "Everybody that is gone — we're a close-knit community — they are my friends' children, they're former workmates, they're elderly people that I know, I knew them all," Fluet said. "I'm on adrenaline and not doing too badly, but I know that when the names come out and the funerals take place it will be another shock."

Leo Moon Playtime

The Leo moon is childlike, playful and imaginative with an instinct to entertain. Who would you like to get closer to? You might do this in an unusual way. Teasing and flirting heighten attractions between people. The Cancer planets warn that everyone is sensitive, though, so do use your tact and discretion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19).

You'll get organized with calendars and contacts. Each event and every person on the list gives you a feeling. Is it time to make some additions and deletions? Your contact list should be rich with uplifting people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20).

It's good to be needed, but not too much — it's a lot of pressure. In situations of dependency, it's difficult to control the amount and intensity of the need. So teach others to be as self-sufficient as possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21).

Can you make the point and make someone laugh at the same time? Can you be so breezy in making your point that no one is embarrassed, ashamed or made wrong? A re-sounding "yes" is the answer, and you'll prove it today.

CANCER (June 22-July 22).

You cherish someone, and it's felt. It's in the tenderness of your eyes, the thoughtfulness of your words and the intention of your touch. You will get as much from the exchange as the one you cherish.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22).

You'll be working on a pretty attitude to match your face. Sometimes it doesn't come easily. Challenging, immature and ungrateful people make it hard to smile and be positive, encouraging and easy-going.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).

You're sensitive and soulful today. Good music is a must. The one who controls the radio dial or the playlist that's running through the speakers controls the mood of the space. Let that person be you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23).

Thinking can solve as many problems as it creates. There's a point at which it's wise to stop with the thoughts and start with the feelings. Don't let your mind drown out the knowingness in your body and soul.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21).

Your heart does more than pump blood. It wants to get involved in everything today, to beat for more than you, to process the joy of the world. Your big heart cannot be contained.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21).

You'll get a break from the cacophony of daily life. As the silence thickens, you are drawn to a hidden part of yourself that's demanding release. Why haven't you heard this voice before?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19).

You're about adventure, being free, finding out what's going on over there, and over there, too. As for your responsibilities, you've managed them well, and you'll be back. In the meantime, they can wait.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).

There's something you must do that you don't like doing at all. Do it first. This will improve the overall quality of your day. Otherwise, you'll spend the whole day cozier up to a nagging feeling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20).

Extraordinary beauty is created with consistent and simple acts. Don't forget this when you observe a beautiful result. Instead, remember that you, too, can do this with the right plan.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 10).

You'll see the options you missed before in your personal life. A new friend colors your world this month and next. By September, things develop into a more formal arrangement. Your time with a mentor will end, and you'll pay it forward by taking on students in September. November and February bring bonus money. Aquarius and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 10, 38, 12 and 50.

DEVELOP YOUR INTUITION, GEMINI:

As the sign of communication, Gemini people typically possess a rare freedom of expression. Each time they speak their minds and hearts, they strengthen the connection between intuition and verbalization. On those occasions when the twins do not say what's on their minds and hearts, blockages occur. The unspoken words go nowhere. They stay lodged in the heart and soul, cluttering the channel between intuition and the outside world. If a Gemini is feeling blocked, he or she can say the unsaid words out loud to clear the channel. It isn't necessary to say them to anyone in particular. Just saying them aloud and feeling the associated emotions — letting it all come out — is often enough to get back in touch with intuition and free expression.

If Gemini is feeling intuitively blocked and cannot figure out what the unsaid message causing the blockage is, there are other verbalizations that can help. Humming, singing, chanting Sanskrit, reciting scripture or other affirmations can be effective. As a bonus, these kinds of verbalizations typically resonate through the entire body with healing sound waves. In choosing what song to sing or what words to say, know that the best choice is going to be the words that feel right to you.

Two mustard types

Heloise

Dear Heloise: What is the difference between DRY AND PREPARED MUSTARDS? — M.K. in New Mexico

Good question! And as a person who loves all kinds of mustard, I had to think for a second! Dry mustard is the dry, ground-up mustard seed that you buy in the spice aisle. Prepared mustard is the popular condiment that is a mixture of ground mustard seed (dry mustard), water and vinegar.

In most recipes, you can substitute dry and prepared mustard for one another. When the recipe calls for 1 tablespoon of prepared, substitute 1 teaspoon of dry. When it calls for 1 teaspoon of dry, substitute 1 tablespoon of prepared. Want other substitution hints, along with some sauce and marinade recipes? Please send for my Heloise's Seasonings, Sauces and Substitutes pamphlet by mailing $3 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (66 cents) envelope to: Heloise/SSS, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Did you know that most mustard does NOT need to be refrigerated? Refrigeration may help keep the flavor, but if you prefer your mustard at room temperature, just keep it out! — Heloise

PERFECT PATTIES

Dear Heloise: I have a great way to make hamburger patties without touching the hamburger. Open a 1-pound package of hamburger and place into a plastic zipper-top bag. Zip the bag shut and mash the hamburger to fill the bag evenly (let a little air out midway through to get it perfect). Place the bag on a flat surface and use the dull side of a large breadknife to quarter the bag. Place in the freezer and, when ready, simply break off perfectly formed, square quarter-pound patties for grilling. — F.B., via email

MOVING MUSHROOMS

Dear Heloise: I love to make and eat stuffed mushrooms, and I get many requests to bring them to get-togethers. I discovered a hint to transport the mushrooms: I use a foam egg carton. The mushrooms can sit in the individual cups without losing any stuffing or falling along the way. — Debbie R. in Ohio

For safety, line the carton with plastic wrap before placing the mushrooms in it to keep bacteria away. — Heloise

FROZEN BANANA

Dear Heloise: When I have overripe bananas, I freeze them, whole, in the peel. When ready to use, I take out the number I need and let them thaw. I snip off one end with a pair of scissors and squeeze out the banana. They are now ready to be mashed or used in any way you need. — Karen, via email

BAKING FOR BRACES

Dear Heloise: Many of my favorite recipes include things such as nuts, which are difficult for people with dental issues (such as braces or dentures) to eat. I decided to make a treat for a friend with braces. I finely chopped the nuts until they were crumblike in texture. This made it easy to add into the recipe for a great taste, and easier eating for a great friend! — Marceline in Pennsylvania

Girl must escape abusive guy quickly

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who has been in a relationship for a year and a half with "Richard." I love him with everything in me, but he is mentally and physically abusive. He is also addicted to cough medicine.

I knew I should have stopped talking to him before we started dating, but he was such a mess I thought I could help him — and I did. He's no longer an alcoholic. He went to jail for seven months because of our age difference, but I refused to testify, so he got out. While he was in there I thought he had changed and wouldn't hit me anymore, but he still does.

Anyone in their right mind would get up and leave, but the one time I did, he pretended he didn't care and I attempted suicide. I don't know what to do. I love him, but I know I shouldn't. — ABUSED TEEN IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR TEEN: I'm glad you wrote. Richard may no longer be drinking liquor, but cough medicines contain alcohol, which means he's still an alcoholic. His violence toward women will probably never stop unless he is incarcerated for it, and even then there is no guarantee.

Regardless of how much love you give him, you can't fix what's wrong with him or make him love you back because he isn't capable of it.

Because you are so emotionally fragile, you should seek refuge with relatives who can help you heal physically and emotionally from this experience. If that's not possible, then contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline. Its website is www.thehotline.org, and the toll-free phone number is 800-799-7233. Ask for a referral to a women's shelter where you can receive counseling and support.

Help is available for you if you are open to it. Staying where you are is not an option because if you do, this man could kill you.

DEAR ABBY: While riding with my new boss to a sales appointment, he needed some information from his company-issued iPad. He asked me to turn it on and gave me the passcode. When I did, up popped a porn site. He almost wrecked the car grabbing the iPad from me.

Not another word was said until we arrived at the appointment and he looked up the item prior to going in. Nothing has been said about this incident since.

Every time I think about my boss having gone to that porn site before I touched the iPad, I get sick to my stomach. HE makes me sick. Do I resign or stay? — GROSSED OUT IN OHIO

DEAR GROSSED OUT: If the nausea is affecting your ability to perform your job, you should quit. But before you do, be sure you have another one lined up. And when you interview, as tempting as it may be, refrain from saying anything negative about your boss because to do otherwise will reflect poorly on you.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend wants to open the door for me when I am the one driving. I'm thrilled that he wants to be a gentleman, and I love when he opens the door for me when I am in the passenger seat or in front of any other door, as he always does. I am just not comfortable with it when I'm the one who's driving. It seems awkward to me. Your thoughts? — AT A LOSS IN COLORADO

DEAR AT A LOSS: Your boyfriend may do this because he wants to please you, or he was raised this way. Personally, I think what he's doing is endearing. However, because it makes you uncomfortable, explain that it "isn't necessary" and you would prefer he not do it when you are the driver.

Help for those with IBS, similar ailments

Dr. Keith Roach

DEAR DR.

ROACH: Some time ago, there was a letter from a woman whose spouse was having intestinal problems. Specifically, he would have a bowel movement every time he ate, often four to five times a day. Usually, he would have to rush to get to the bathroom in time. My husband has this same problem, and his father did also. He has had regular colonoscopies and has tried probiotics and lactose supplements, to no avail. Do you have any answers or ideas? Thank you. — R.W.

ACROSS OUR COMMUNITIES

'Drive-by' chicken dinners will be sold

LEETONIA — The Leetonia United Methodist Church at 50 Lisbon St. will hold its monthly chicken "drive-by" dinner from 4 to 6 p.m. July 18, or until sold out.

The meal consists of stuffed chicken breast, mashed potatoes and gravy, green beans and a brownie. Cost is $7. Proceeds will be used for a new roof for the church.

Tourism Bureau hosting summer steak fry

COLUMBIANA — The Columbiana Area Tourism Bureau will host its fourth annual summer steak fry from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. July 18 at the Links at Firestone Farms, 105 St. Andrews Drive.

The event features a four-course, 12-ounce strip-steak dinner. New displays for the 2013 "Joy of Christmas" holiday light show in Firestone Park will be previewed. An auction will also be held for individual sponsorships for the over 60 new and current light scenes which will be on display at the annual holiday light festival.

Cornell Bogdan, popular radio host of 93.3 WNCN Youngstown's "Tangled Up in Blues" show will be this year's emcee and auctioneer. Cost is $10 per person.

Advance reservations are required by calling the bureau office at 330-482-2282 by July 15. All proceeds from the event will fund this year's light show.

Corporate sponsors for the steak fry include the Links at Firestone Farms and Greg Burbick Farms Inc., both of Columbiana and Chalet Premier, Wines, Spirits and Beer.

SCT schedules 'Treasure Island' audition dates

SALEM — Salem Community Theatre has scheduled audition dates for the adventure tale "Treasure Island," the theatre's opening show of its 38th season. Auditions will be held at 7 p.m. July 21 and 22 at the theater. Director Dan Haueter will be looking for actors, nine men, and two women, youth and adults, for a variety of roles, ages 16 and over.

Those auditioning should bring a prepared to read from the script, interact with other actors, and demonstrate appropriate acting skills and abilities. Rehearsals beginning in late July. Show dates are week-ends Sept. 20-29.

Based on the masterful adventure novel by Robert Louis Stevenson, "Treasure Island" is a stunning yarn of piracy on the tropical seas. It begins at an inn on the Devon coast of England in 1775 and quickly becomes an unforgettable tale of treachery and mayhem featuring a host of legendary swashbucklers including the dangerous Billy Bones, the sinister two-timing Israel Hands, the brassy woman pirate Anne Bonney, and the hideous form of evil incarnate, Blind Pew.

At the center of it all are Jim Hawkins, a 14-year-old boy who longs for adventure, and the infamous Long John Silver, who is a complex study of good and evil, perhaps the most famous hero-villain of all time. Silver is an unscrupulous buccaneer-rogue whose greedy quest for gold, coupled with his affection for Jim, cannot help but win the heart of every soul who has ever longed for romance, treasure and adventure.

Bynum weighs offer Cavs offer

CLEVELAND (AP) — As the Cavaliers await word from Andrew

Bynum, two other teams have joined the chase for the free agent center. Bynum, who didn't play a single second for Philadelphia last season because of knee injuries, is considering a two-year offer from the Cavs, a person familiar with the negotiations told The Associated Press on Tuesday.

Cleveland made the offer, which includes a team option in the second year, during his visit to the Cavs' facility Monday.

Bynum did not work out but the team examined him thoroughly. The person with knowledge of the negotiations spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the talks. Yahoo! Sports first reported Cleveland's offer and said it was worth $24 million.

While mulling Cleveland's deal, Bynum visited the Atlanta Hawks on Tuesday and plans to meet Wednesday with the Dallas Mavericks, his agent, David Lee, told the AP on Tuesday night.

Lee said there has been no decision made on Cleveland's deal. He would not say if the Hawks made Bynum an offer. Bynum lives in Atlanta and could be convinced to stay home.

"I don't want to comment about any ongoing negotiations," Lee said.

The 25-year-old Bynum had arthroscopic surgery on both knees in March, but the Cavs apparently are confident he will return to the form that made him one of the NBA's best centers and a two-time All-Star.

They're also counting on him thriving under

Chase Elliott impressing on NASCAR national level

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Neither father nor son can remember a time when Chase Elliott wanted to be anything other than a race car driver.

The little boy spent his early years at the race track watching "Awesome Bill" win races deep into his 40s. One of Chase's earliest memories was the 2002 victory at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

His uncles worked on cars and engines, and so much time was spent in the Dawsonville, Ga., shop, that Chase never dreamed of doing anything but following in the footsteps of the 1988 NASCAR champion and 16-time most popular driver.

"I don't think I've ever wanted to do anything else," Chase said. "Who doesn't want to be like their Dad?"

He certainly wasn't destined to be a student, crying himself sick every morning as he tried to get out of going to school.

"I didn't think we'd ever get him through third grade. He hated it so bad," Bill Elliott recalled.

But it's funny how life changes, when commitment and desire become so overwhelming that attitudes adjust and tasks become more bearable. Chase wanted to race, but his parents insisted life wouldn't be all fun and games at the track.

"What we tell him is 'Right now, school is the most important part. The racing can go away in a heartbeat,'" Bill Elliott said. "Anything can take it away. So it's always been 'Get your education.' Chase is in a good school, and he's done a very good job of keeping his grades. He needs just a little prod now and then, but we work closely with the principals and teachers for them to understand what he needs to do. He's been very good about it."

So good that the 17-year-old is spending the summer before his senior year getting a taste of racing at NASCAR's national level. A tweak to the age requirements this year opened the gate for drivers as young as 16 to compete in the Truck Series on ovals a mile or shorter in length and on road courses. The previous age limit was 18.

It's allowed Chase to put together a partial Truck Series schedule this year in a joint effort between Hendrick Motorsports, where Chase is the first developmental driver the organization has had in six years, and Turner Scott Motorsports.

He heads to Iowa Speedway this weekend for his fourth Truck Series race of the year and a legitimate shot at picking up his first victory. In his previous three races, Elliott finished sixth, fifth and fourth.

And in ARCA, which this year allowed 17-year-olds to drive at both Pocono Raceway and Kentucky Speedway after passing an approval test, Chase won his series debut at Pocono last month. He followed it with a fourth-place finish at Road America.

"He just surprises me every time I watch him," said Rick Hendrick. "The maturity he shows — most young guys with an opportunity, they wreck a bunch of stuff trying to figure out how to impress people. They are fast and have talent, but they don't know how to race."

"Chase has really impressed me with how smooth he is. He doesn't get rattled. At Dover, he got a speeding penalty and didn't get rattled. He went back out there and drove it back to the front and finished fourth. And I've really been impressed with how buttoned up he's been, how polished he is and how respectful he is of the team and the equipment."

Hendrick credits Bill and Cindy Elliott with raising their son correctly, and Bill's coaching helps Chase understand the importance of preserving his equipment.

In typical Bill Elliott style, he downplays his role.

"He's a teenager. You can't tell him anything — he listens to a little bit, maybe with half an ear," said Elliott, before softening his stance. "For the most part, he gets it. He's got a pretty good head on his shoulders. This is all up to him. If he wants to race, that's fine. If he don't, that's fine, too. But he's got to go on and make it for himself."

"You get him to a point and then from then on, performance and driving, has to continue on its own. It's up to him and circumstances."

Indians start series vs. Jays on high note with 3-0 victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Coming off a tough series against the Detroit Tigers, the Cleveland Indians needed a boost.

That's exactly what they got in Tuesday night's 3-0 win over Toronto.

Ubaldo Jimenez and three relievers combined on a shutout while the offense made the most of four hits to help the Indians rebound from losing three of four to the Tigers, who came into town and widened their lead in the American League Central.

"This was a nice bounce-back win," manager Terry Francona said. "We didn't do a lot offensively but we played a crisp game. Again, it starts with pitching."

Jimenez (7-4) dodged constant trouble in six innings, allowing five hits with two walks and four strikeouts.

Cody Allen, Joe Smith and Chris Perez blanked Toronto over the final three innings. Perez allowed two hits in the ninth, but earned his 10th save as the Indians recorded their AL-leading 11th shutout.

Nick Swisher and Michael Brantley had RBI singles in the fourth when the Indians put together a walk and three straight singles off starter Josh Johnson (1-4), who gave up two runs in seven innings.

Asdrubal Cabrera added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

The win was also a nice bounce-back performance for Jimenez, who took a 5-0 lead into the sixth in his last start against Kansas City, but didn't retire a batter in that inning and the Indians went on to lose 10-7. When faced with trouble this time, Jimenez didn't buckle.

"Like they say in baseball, you have to forget quick," he said. "You can't be thinking about bad stuff that happened. You have to forget about that and move on."

"This was a nice bounce-back win. We didn't do a lot offensively but we played a crisp game. Again, it starts with pitching."

— CLEVELAND MANAGER TERRY FRANCONA —

"He pitched around some things but he never let it spiral or get out of hand," Francona said. "There was a lot of things to like."

Toronto stranded nine runners, with seven in the first five innings, and was 1 for 12 with runners in scoring position. Maicer Izturis and Rajai Davis singled with one out in the ninth, but J.P. Arencibia struck out and pinch hitter Josh Thole lined out to shortstop.

The Blue Jays' best threat against Jimenez came in the fourth when they had runners on first and third with nobody out. Colby Rasmus started the inning with a double and took third on Izturis' single. Davis hit into a fielder's choice and stole second but Arencibia struck out and Emilio Bonifacio flied out to deep right.

Jimenez's strongest inning came in the sixth, the only time he retired the side in order. After finishing 9-17 with a 5.40 ERA in 2012, the right-hander has had much better results this season. He has won his last three decisions and is 4-1 with a 2.93 ERA in his last eight starts.

"He's done a pretty damn good job," Francona said. "He should be proud. What happened last season was difficult for him. He gives us a chance to win. We'll take that."

Johnson retired the first 10 hitters before Cabrera drew a one-out walk in the fourth. Johnson fell behind 3-0 before a foul ball and called strike ran the count full. Cabrera walked on an inside pitch before Jason Kipnis hit a hard ground ball past shortstop Jose Reyes for Cleveland's first hit.

Swisher bounced a single through the right side that scored Cabrera and moved Kipnis to third. Brantley's line single to right made it 2-0.

Johnson beat Baltimore on June 23 for his only win of the season, allowing four runs in six innings. He was sidelined from April 21 to June 9 with right triceps inflammation. Johnson won his first career start against the Indians on May 20, 2012, while pitching for Miami. Toronto has lost each of Johnson's last three starts.

The Blue Jays are 5-10 since winning 11 straight from June 11-23.

"We outthit them, but we just didn't outscore them," Toronto manager John Gibbons said. "That's what hurts. We had our chances, but we just couldn't get that big hit tonight."

NOTES: The start of Tuesday's game was delayed by rain for 36 minutes. ... RHP Danny Salazar will be recalled from Triple-A Columbus to start Thursday's game and make his major league debut for the Indians. ... Blue Jays OF Melky Cabrera (left knee) is scheduled to begin a minor league rehabilitation assignment Friday, but will not be activated until after the All-Star break. He was placed on the 15-day disabled list on June 28. ... Blue Jays 3B Brett Lawrie (left ankle) had his rehab assignment shifted to Triple-A Buffalo after playing seven games at Single-A and Double-A. ... The Blue Jays have released C Ramon Hernandez from his contract with Buffalo. ... Indians RHP Justin Masterson (10-7, 3.78 ERA) takes on Blue Jays RHP Esmil Rogers (3-4, 3.84) in the second game of a three-game series Wednesday.

Richmond is ace in wet 1st round of Ohio Amateur

CANTON (AP) — Long before rain suspended play for half the field early in the evening, Corey Richmond staked a claim to a near-perfect day.

How many golfers have a hole in one and shoot an 8-under 63, the lowest round they've ever had in a tournament?

Playing in his first Ohio Amateur but managing it like a veteran, the Northern Kentucky senior-to-be forged a three-stroke lead after Tuesday's rain-delayed first round at Brookside Country Club.

"It's crazy," he said of his rapid rise to the top of the leaderboard. "It hasn't really soaked in yet."

The West Union native holed an 8 iron from 178 yards on the seventh hole and added eight birdies on a Donald Ross layout considered one of the toughest tests in the state.

After teeing off in the very first threesome, he posted a low score that had to be daunting to a lot of those in the 144-player field.

"I wouldn't want to tee off in the afternoon and see that, I guess," Richmond said with a grin.

He sure got everyone's attention. After teeing off at 8 a.m. in the same group that included former Cincinnati Reds third baseman Chris Sabo, he needed just 29 shots to play his first nine holes.

Michael Bernard — you may remember him from three years ago at the age of 16 as the youngest winner ever of the Ohio Am — also opened with a 29 on his first nine but the round stalled out coming down the stretch. The Ohio State sophomore from Huber Heights doesn't know Richmond but figures he has to be a great player.

"The guy that shot 63, that was pretty impressive," he said, shortly after following Richmond into the scorer's tent. "A 63 on this course is really impressive."

Golfers love to swap news about what everybody's doing on the course. That was no different on the rolling hills at Brookside.

"One of my friends told me at the turn that two people had shot 29s on their first nine," said Andrew Dorn, who matched Bernard with a 66. "I heard the scores were really low and I was, just, 'Wow.'"

The round was delayed by an hour due to lightning early in the morning. Then most of the field played in humid weather and under bright sun for the next several hours. But a major thunderstorm pounded the course late in the day, preventing 72 players from completing their rounds. They'll return early on Wednesday and finish up before a belated start to the second round.

The 21-year-old Richmond had a fine season at Northern Kentucky, where he was the No. 1 player on the team and was medalist of the Bearcat Invitational. His only previous ace came at a little nine-hole course, Adams County Country Club, when he was 12.

His low score last season in college was a 67. But he sure topped that at Brookside, coming within a shot of matching the competitive course record.

"Most of the bunkers are playing at like 310 or 305 (yards), and that's usually how far I hit my drives," said Richmond, who qualified at Coldstream Country Club in Cincinnati because it is close to his apartment. "With it being wet today actually helped because my ball stuck in front of some of the bunkers and made it easy to fire at the pins."

Not many people had any idea who he was before the round. One who did was defending Ohio Amateur champion Nathan Kerns, who shot a 72.

"That's incredible," he said of Richmond's magical round. "We played a lot of matches together. I played a lot with him in high school and a few times with him in college. He's a great player. You can't not be a great player and shoot a 63."

Bernard, who has won two tournaments in recent weeks, said it's a nice thing to have won the tournament but isn't so certain it's much help.

"The fact that I've won it, it's nice to know that you can do it," he said. "But just the fact that you've won it isn't particularly going to help you play better on a certain day."

Dorn, who will be a junior at Coastal Carolina and calls West Chester home, is coming off an eye-popping win at the 113th North & South Amateur at Pinehurst No. 2, one of the nation's most prestigious events for non-pros.

Among the other names on the North & South trophy are Jack Nicklaus, Francis Ouimet, Curtis Strange, Hal Sutton, Corey Pavin and Davis Love III.

"I've been playing very good lately," he said. "So my hopes are pretty high this week. I didn't want to put too much pressure on myself but I still want to come out here and compete."

Massillon's Tyler Light was alone in fourth with a 67, followed by Parker Hewit of Westfield Center at 69 and Dublin's Nathan Clark and Akron's Dan Belden, each with a 70.

Remarkably, Richmond wasn't the only player with an ace at the seventh hole. Erik Hoops holed a 7-iron at the hole while shooting a 72.

The 2011 winner, Korey Ward, had a 71, with 1995 champion Alan Fadel at 74 and two-time winner Robert Gerwin II at 74.

Peter Hammar, who won the Ohio Am the last time it was played at Brookside in 1987, sagged to a 79.

Bucs drop 4th straight, 2-1, vs. A's

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Straily pitched two-hit ball into the seventh inning. Brandon Moss hit a two-run homer and the Oakland Athletics beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 on Tuesday night.

Straily (6-2) struck out seven and walked three in 6 1-3 innings for his second straight strong outing. Grant Balfour worked the ninth to remain perfect in 24 save chances this season. The A's have won 10 of 13.

Gerrit Cole (4-2) lost his second consecutive decision despite working seven innings for the first time in his four-week major league career. Cole allowed five hits, struck out four and walked two.

After the start was delayed 1 hour, 42 minutes, Pedro Alvarez hit his 23rd home run but Pittsburgh matched a season high with its fourth straight loss.

Straily has struggled starting on four days' rest during his brief major league career, coming in 0-3 with a 7.16 ERA when not given at least five days between starts.

Yet the rookie had no issues dealing with Pittsburgh's suddenly punchless offense. The Pirates have scored just six runs during a 2-6 slump that has dropped them behind first-place St. Louis in the heated NL Central race.

Alvarez provided Pittsburgh's lone run with a 448-foot drive to the bushes in center leading off the second. The home run made him just the third player in team history to reach 23 homers before the All-Star break, joining Ralph Kiner and Willie Stargell.

In a way, Alvarez is having the type of season the franchise once envisioned for Moss. The first baseman spent parts of three seasons with the Pirates between 2008-10, with Pittsburgh hoping his raw left-handed power would help him pound balls off — or over — the Clemente Wall in right field.

It never really happened. Moss hit all of 13 homers in 195 games for the Pirates before eventually making his way to Oakland, where he's become a key cog in one of baseball's biggest surprises.

Moss provided a glimpse of what could have been in Pittsburgh in the fourth when Cole wobbled for the briefest of moments. The right-hander had retired nine straight when John Jaso stepped to the plate. The Pirates swung the defense to the right only to have Jaso smack a double down the left-field line. The ball would have been playable if Alvarez was in his normal position at third base. Instead, he was 40 feet away as the ball rolled into the outfield.

Buckeyes fan, 12, beats cancer he named 'Michigan'

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio State football fans always want to defeat what they call "That school up North."

So when a 12-year-old Buckeyes fan was diagnosed with cancer 14 months ago, he chose to name his disease Michigan. He wanted to beat it — and he has.

The young fan, Grant Reed, was released from Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus Friday after receiving a final chemotherapy session.

Grant's father, Troy Reed, on Tuesday said his son was readmitted to the hospital over the weekend because of a bacterial infection, but he added the boy is doing "very well."

"Our prognosis is very good," he said. "It shows that he has indeed beat Michigan."

In May 2012, Grant underwent a 16 1/2-hour surgery to have a brain tumor removed. Although the surgery was successful, he woke up without being able to move his left side or speak and had a serious vision problem.

He spent nearly 10 weeks at the hospital following the surgery. He then went through occupational and speech therapies and was able to continue to attend school. He will be in seventh grade this fall.

But his road to recovery included several rounds of radiation and chemotherapy treatments.

Grant's first chemo session, his dad said, was during the Buckeyes' season-opening game in September.

"We had a mini party and watched the Buckeyes play here at the hospital," Troy Reed said Tuesday while Grant was back at the hospital. He added that the Reeds continued to watch OSU games at the hospital during the weekends that Grant was admitted to continue his chemotherapy treatment.

Buckeyes head coach Urban Meyer visited the boy at the hospital in December. Grant's father said his son talked to Meyer for about 20 minutes.

"He was thrilled," the father said.

Grant's parents met as members of the Ohio State Marching Band and got engaged during a game in 1994. Troy Reed said Grant and his 9-year-old brother Collin have a "true respect for the rivalry that OSU and Michigan share."

Troy Reed said the family is hoping to attend a game during this year's season, provided that Grant's health allows them.

BYNUM

FROM 1B

Cleveland coach Mike Brown, who has returned to the Cavs after being fired three years ago. Brown and Bynum spent one season together with the Los Angeles Lakers and the 7-footer had his best year, averaging 18.7 points and 11.8 rebounds. Over the past four seasons, Bynum has averaged 14.7 points and 9.5 rebounds.

Cleveland would like to get an answer from Bynum as soon as possible, but the team did not give him any deadline. The NBA's free-agency moratorium period ends Wednesday.

The Cavs have already landed forward Earl Clark and guard Jarrett Jack in free agency and are looking to move up quickly. They would immediately vault into contention in the Eastern Conference with a healthy Bynum paired with All-Star guard Kyrie Irving and a roster that includes forward Tristan Thompson, guard Dion Waiters and forward Anthony Bennett, the No. 1 overall pick in last month's draft.

Lee has said Bynum will be ready to play by the start of training camp.

The Sixers acquired Bynum last summer from the Lakers as part of a four-team trade. But Bynum, who made $16.9 million despite not playing last season, never got healthy enough to get on the floor and the Sixers crumbled.

The Cavs would be taking a risk with Bynum that could have huge rewards. He would instantly raise their profile and probably get them back to the playoffs after winning just 66 games combined the past three seasons. In giving him only a two-year deal, they would not be tying up much money which would allow them to stay flexible next summer when several top-tier free agents — possibly LeBron James — will be on the market.

Jimmie Foxx collected 16 total bases, and Eddie Rommel of the A's pitched 17 innings in relief for the win, despite giving up 29 hits and 14 runs. 1934 - Carl Hubbell struck out Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in succession, but the AL came back to win the All-Star game 9-7 at the Polo Grounds as Mel Harder gave up one hit in the last five innings. 1936 - Philadelphia's Chuck Klein hit four home runs in a 9-6 10-inning victory over the Pirates, and it wasn't in the cozy Baker Bowl. He hit them in Pittsburgh's spacious Forbes Field, including the game-winning three-run shot in the 10th off Bill Swift. Klein almost homered in the second inning when he sent Pirates outfielder Paul Waner to the wall in right to haul in a long fly ball.

Golf notes

An Ohio course buys a hovercraft For the curious and the adventurous, a round of golf at an Ohio course is about to cost a lot more. Windy Knoll Golf Club tries to keep the price under $40 on the weekend, which includes a cart. That soon will go up to $230 - when the round of golf includes a hovercraft. Pete Duffey, the managing director of the public course in Springfield, Ohio, was so intrigued by the YouTube video of Bubba Watson skimming over water and through bunkers in a hovercraft built for golf that he called the manufacturer to make sure it was real. And then he ordered two of them. "We're always looking for a way to set ourselves apart from the competition," Duffey said Tuesday. "We'll be able to offer something that no one in the area, in the state and at this point in the country can offer." The golf hovercrafts are made by Neoteric Hovercraft in Terre Haute, Ind., which specializes in light hovercrafts for personal and commercial use. Its clients include government agencies and companies such as Disney World, according to its website. Neoteric built a golf hovercraft for Oakley, which sponsors Watson and wanted it for corporate events. Duffey said his first golf hovercraft is to arrive on July 18 and the other a week later. The club plans to launch its new "carts" during a promotional outing on July 27 that is to feature LPGA great Nancy Lopez. He said the cost would be $230 for golf in the hovercraft. He declined to say how much it cost the club except that it was "10 times the cost of a standard cart." Why just two? "We thought it made sense for a foursome to use," he said. Unlike the video, golfers in the hovercraft can go anywhere. Duffey said there would be a designated area on the front and back nine where the golfers can take it onto the lake. And the club has decided to make the putting green and bunkers off limits, even though Neoteric says it has a footprint pressure 33 times less than the human foot. He said the club is working with an attorney and its insurance company on liability issues, and that golfers using the craft will have to go through a half-hour presentation on how to drive it. And how will this help pace of play at the club, one of the top issues in golf? "It's going to turn heads," Duffey said. "I think other golfers on the course might find themselves so interested in looking at it that if it did slow play down, I don't think it will be noticeable." For those who don't want a cart or a hovercraft, walking remains an option.

THE FINAL STRETCH: In the first year of the FedEx Cup, there was so much promotion that Vijay Singh said he was tired of talking about it even before the season started. His sound advice was to worry about that when it mattered later in the year, much like the Presidents Cup or Ryder Cup standings. It's getting to be that time. There are only six tournaments remaining to get into the top 125 and take part in the $35 million bonanza known as the FedEx Cup playoffs. Singh won the FedEx Cup and its $10 million bonus in 2008. Now, he is on a short list of players who have never missed the playoffs and currently are outside the top 125. Singh is at No. 136. Others outside the top 125 who have never missed the playoffs since they began in 2007 include Sean O'Hair, Jonathan Byrd and Robert Allenby.

This would be a bad year to miss out. After the playoffs, there is no longer a Fall Series for players to make up ground. The top 125 earn cards for the following season, while the next 75 players (if not already exempt) would go to a four-tournament series with top Web.com Tour players who play for a card. That's because the next season starts in October.

OUT WITH THE OLD: Mission Hills in China is one of the largest golf complexes in the world with over 20 courses, most of them named after players who typically "consult" on the design and have the course named after them. There are courses for Vijay Singh, Jumbo Ozaki, Annika Sorenstam, Ernie Els, Nick Faldo, David Leadbetter and Jose Maria Olazabal. There's even one for David Duval, a former world No. 1 and British Open champion. But not much longer. Mission Hills China announced two weeks ago that U.S. Open champion Justin Rose and Ian Poulter of Ryder Cup fame will stage an exhibition match Oct. 28 to celebrate the opening of the redesigned "Rose-Poulter" course.

Brian Curley is the architect of the redesign. The course had been "designed" by Duval and was known as the "Duval" course. Rose said in the press release, "We've had a number of discussions with Brian Curley and I look forward to coming to Mission Hills in October and seeing the end result."

NEW HOME FOR FRYS: The Frys.com Open is moving to its third course, and this one should make Johnny Miller happy. The tournament will be played at his Silverado Resort and Spa in Napa, Calif., starting in 2014. The Frys.com Open spent three years at Grayhawk in Scottsdale, Ariz., before moving to CordeValle just south of San Jose, Calif. The goal is to move to The Institute across the highway from CordeValle when the clubhouse is built. Silverado previously hosted the Kaiser International Open Invitational from 1968 to 1976, and the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic for four years after that. It also held a Champions Tour event. This year's event at CordeValle will be the official start of the 2013-14 season on the PGA Tour.

A roundup of sports in the region and across the nation

Blood and bruises: A day's work for Tour sprinters SAINT-MALO, France (AP) - Hitting the asphalt at something like 60 kilometers (40 miles) per hour flayed off a patch of skin from Tom Veelers' right thigh. Blood snaked down his leg from his sliced-up right knee. His white jersey was torn and soiled.

"Bruised and scratched from all sides," said the big Dutchman when asked how he felt. "But ... yeah, OK." In short, Stage 10 was another day at the office for the charging-bull sprinters of the Tour de France.

Chris Froome, the race leader, isn't a sprinter. The Briton was just relieved to survive unscathed all the pushing and shoving on two wheels. The "worst nightmare," he said, for riders like him - lighter, less muscular and with eyes fixed on reaching the podium in Paris on July 21 - is to be felled by crashes like the one that floored Veelers on Tuesday in Saint-Malo. The fall came in the shadow of this Brittany port's crenelated walls, with spectators crammed cheek by jowl to get a look.

"Every day you get through with the yellow jersey is a blessing," Froome said. "So I'm happy just to tick that one off." Veelers' job is to help launch his teammate, sprinter Marcel Kittel, in the final mad dash for the line. He did that just fine on Tuesday, because Kittel won - becoming the first rider at this 100th Tour to win two stages, having also won Stage 1.

Chelios, Niedermayer top 2013 Hockey Hall class

Chris Chelios played in the NHL for as long as he could. And he did it at a high level. "I always said I'd go right until the tank was empty," he said. "And, I believe I did." Chelios and fellow defenseman Scott Niedermayer along with forward Brendan Shanahan found out Tuesday they will be inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame in November.

Only Hall of Famer Gordie Howe was an older NHL player than Chelios, the only player in league history to play in at least 400 games with three different teams. His career ended with the Atlanta Thrashers during the 2009-10 season when he was 48. "I was part of an era, Chris was part of a few," Niedermayer joked.

Chelios, Niedermayer and Shanahan will be joined in the 2013 class by Geraldine Heaney, the third woman to be enshrined in the hall, and coach Fred Shero, who led the Philadelphia Flyers to the Stanley Cup in 1974 and '75. He was selected posthumously in the builder category. "There's no sense looking back as to why it didn't happen sooner, because today's a happy day to celebrate the fact that a guy that deserves it immensely has finally been elected to the Hall of Fame," Flyers chairman Ed Snider said.

Chelios and Niedermayer earned hockey's biggest individual honor in their first year of eligibility, and Shanahan got in on his second shot.

Indians' Perez marijuana case off until Sept. 3

ROCKY RIVER, Ohio (AP) - The marijuana possession case against Cleveland Indians closer Chris Perez and his wife could extend to the final month of the season. The two were at Rocky River Municipal Court on Tuesday in suburban Cleveland and the case is to resume Sept. 3. According to The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer, attorneys discussed evidence sharing. Perez and his wife, Melanie, pleaded not guilty to misdemeanor possession charges after marijuana was mailed to their home in their dog's name. Police say they were tipped off by postal inspectors to suspicious packages.

Class status denied in Super Bowl seating lawsuit

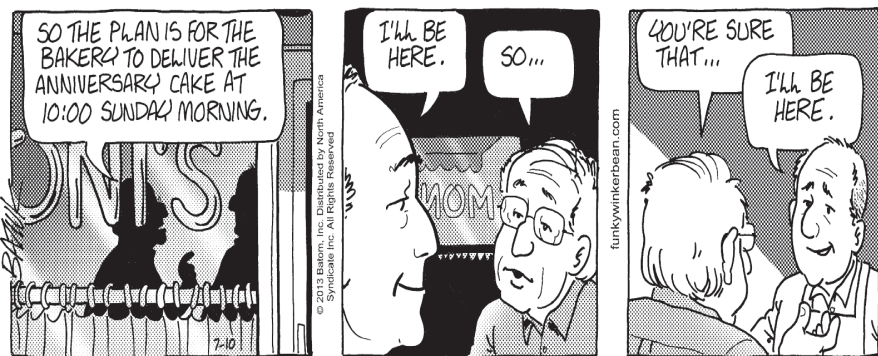

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - A judge on Tuesday denied class-action status in a lawsuit filed by ticket-holders who were displaced when seats weren't properly installed for the 2011 Super Bowl in Texas. The ruling issued by U.S. District Judge Barbara Lynn denied class-action status to fans who were denied seats, those who were moved to other seats and people who claim they had obstructed views that weren't disclosed on the tickets. About 1,250 temporary seats at Cowboys Stadium in Arlington were deemed unsafe just hours before the Green Bay Packers beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 31-25. That forced about 850 ticket-holders to move to new seats and 400 others to watch from standing-room locations.

Lynn ruled that the plaintiffs failed to prove that the number of people suing was large enough to require that common issues prevailed over individual concerns. The ruling also said there wasn't a universal way to calculate damages because fans incurred different expenses. "The Court, therefore, concludes that the variation in the materiality of the omissions combined with the individual questions of reliance and damages predominate over common issues," the ruling stated in denying class status for fans with obstructed-view seats.

The NFL said it was pleased with a ruling "refusing to certify any class in this case." Plaintiffs attorney Michael Avenatti said he would move on with individual breach of contract lawsuits.
