Perry Township firefighters scrub down their new pumper truck just after arriving home with the KME Kovatch model Thursday afternoon, driving 4 1/2 hours, including through snow, from the company's truck building headquarters in Nesquehoning, Pa. to the volunteer department's north station on North Ellsworth Avenue. The cab even had that new truck smell as firefighters started transferring equipment from the Engine 72 they're retiring to the new Engine 72. Below, township officials and fire personnel stand next to the new pumper truck which arrived in the township Thursday. The new truck cost $336,908 and will replace a 1977 pumper being retired from the road. Firefighters come home with new pumper

Perry Township firefighters came home Thursday afternoon with a new fire engine, complete with that new truck smell. "I'm excited. It's a huge relief knowing that we have two good engines in the township now," Fire Chief Bruce Whitcher said. The new KME Kovatch pumper offers foam capabilities, the ability to pump more water per minute, more safety features and lights, more room for equipment and an enclosed cab to keep firefighters safer while en route to a fire scene. The 1977 pumper the new truck will replace pumped 1,000 gallons of water per minute when new and was down to 750 gallons per minute due to wear and tear. The new truck pumps 1,250 gallons of water per minute. The old pumper had an open cab and was not heated. Whitcher said they'll have more visibility on the scene due to the safety features and they can fit more firefighters, more equipment and more air tanks. The truck came with two pike poles and two ladders. They planned on spending much of the night transferring equipment, such as hoses, air tanks, axes and other tools, from the retiring Engine 72 to the new Engine 72, which will be housed at the south station off of Depot Road. The truck has a new radio. Whitcher and company traveled to inspect the truck

Wednesday at the KME Kovatch headquarters in Nesquehoning, Pa. where it was custom built. Only a few minor fixes had to be made, then they drove 4 1/2 hours on Thursday to bring the truck home. The truck has 430 miles on it and he described the ride as quiet and smooth. "Everything on this rig is brand new so we're not

Police, auditor warn of scams

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

Salem Police and the city Auditor's Office are warning residents to be wary of a recent scam where the caller claims to be with Publishers Clearing House, tells the potential victim they've won a huge prize, then asks them to pay money to receive their winnings. "If you didn't enter the contest, you didn't win anything," Lt. Don Beeson said Thursday. Sue Laughlin of the city auditor's office said she received a call at home after 10 p.m. Wednesday from a caller claiming to be from Publishers Clearing House who said she had won $2 million and a 2012 Mercedes Benz. She said she was skeptical and figured it was a scam, but listened to what he had to say. He said she would need to go to a CVS Pharmacy and wire $350.49 and asked if she would be using cash or a debit/credit card, so she went along and told him cash. He then asked if she preferred the prize presentation be private and confidential or public and she said private, with him telling her not to tell anyone about it. The prize was going to be delivered on Thursday. She told him she couldn't go to CVS Pharmacy since it was late and she had to work and told him she wouldn't be available until next week. He told her that was too long to wait and asked if she could go to Walmart on Thursday after work. She told him she would call him back Thursday and he gave her a number to call, which she put in her cell designated as scam. On Thursday, he called her on her cell phone and she let it ring and he called back two more times. Beeson came up to the second floor of city hall to check the police mailbox and she told

Commission: Don't raze until paid

By TOM GIAMBRONI

LISBON — Cities, villages and townships are being advised by Columbiana County commissioners to wait before tearing down any homes until the money is in hand to do so. The letter is in regard to a housing demolition program being funded with $500,000 awarded to commissioners from the state. The money represents what Ohio received as part of a nationwide settlement with five mortgage companies sued by states for engaging in fraudulent and deceptive lending practices that contributed to the foreclosure epidemic. The state will reimburse the county on a house-by-house basis, so commissioners voted earlier this

Fire at Zarbana Industries

The Columbiana and Leetonia Fire departments responded to a large fire at Zarbana Industries on Easterly Road in Columbiana shortly before 8:30 p.m. Thursday. Workers at neighboring Buckeye Transfer reported hearing what sounded like a truck hitting the building and then, upon looking at the structure, saw the north wall bow out followed by fire breaking through the siding in the press area of the plant. A trucker picking up sand at Buckeye Transfer called 911. The Columbiana Fire Department was still at the scene late Thursday. (Salem News photo by Patti Schaeffer)

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, March 1, the 60th day of 2013. There are 305 days left in the year. Ten years ago: Suspected 9/11 mastermind Khalid Shaikh Mohammed was captured by CIA and Pakistani agents. Five years ago: President George W. Bush, speaking at his Texas ranch, declined to promise more U.S. troop withdrawals from Iraq before leaving, underscoring the need for a strong military presence during Iraqi provincial elections. One year ago: Senate Democrats narrowly blocked, 51-48, an effort by Republicans to overturn President Barack Obama's order that most employers or their insurers cover the cost of contraceptives.

Alleged mastermind of burglary that lead to death indicted

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — The man authorities believe may have set up the events leading to the death of Holly Carosiello was served a secret indictment on Thursday morning.

Johnny P. Paroda, 22, Green Lane, East Liverpool, is charged with complicity to involuntary manslaughter, a first-degree felony; conspiracy to commit burglary, a second-degree felony; two counts of conspiracy to commit burglary, both fourth-degree felonies; and two counts of obstructing official business, both third-degree felonies.

According to court documents, on Aug. 11 and 12, 2011 Paroda assisted in the planning of a burglary at the home of Nick Carosiello, Township Line Road. Nick Carosiello was the estranged husband of Holly Carosiello.

The court documents state Paroda allegedly assisted in the discussions about how the burglary would be done and led other conspirators to the location of the home to be burglarized. On Aug. 11, the day before the attempted burglary, Paroda accompanied them to the location, according to court documents. Along with others reportedly involved in the burglary approached through a field next to the home.

The documents also claim on Aug. 12 he conspired with Jamie Adkins, Holly Carosiello's brother, to plan the attempted burglary. Adkins eventually pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter, burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary. He has been sentenced to 10 years in prison, but has since filed court documents requesting he be allowed to withdraw his plea.

During previous court hearings for those involved, it was learned prosecutors believe Nick Carosiello and others were waiting for the burglars in the home on Aug. 12. Holly Carosiello, 22, was shot in the head as she was attempting to enter the home through a window after Adkins had helped boost her up. She died at the scene.

Court documents claim when Paroda was questioned about what happened that night by detectives from the sheriff's department on Aug. 18 and 19, he allegedly attempted to mislead them by providing false information, thus hindering a potential murder investigation.

Paroda faces up to 28 years in prison if convicted on all charges and made to serve the sentences consecutively. The secret indictment was issued by the grand jury earlier this week.

Several others involved in the attempted burglary have already been convicted and sentenced. Dustin Green, 22, May Street, East Liverpool, received six years for complicity to commit burglary and conspiracy to commit burglary. Joshua Rudder, 22, St. Clair Avenue, East Liverpool, who drove the group to the burglary, was sentenced to five years. Nick Carosiello's brother, Anthony Carosiello, 26, Francis Drive, Wellsville, who removed evidence from the scene which hampered the investigation, was sentenced to 24 months in prison.

Media ground rules for Steubenville trial issued

By MARK LAW
Special to the Salem News

STEUBENVILLE — The trial for two Steubenville High School football players charged with rape is scheduled to begin March 13 in the juvenile courtroom at the Jefferson County Justice Center and will last at least three days and may go into the weekend.

Media representatives met with juvenile court officials Wednesday to discuss coverage of the upcoming trial before visiting Judge Tom Lipps.

Trent Mays, 16, of Bloomingdale and Ma Lik Richmond, 16, of Steubenville have been charged with rape in connection with an incident that allegedly happened Aug. 11-12. Mays also faces a charge of illegal use of a minor in nudity-oriented material for allegedly having a picture of the victim in an outgoing text message on his cell phone.

Attorneys for both defendants have denied the charges.

The Ohio Attorney General's Office is expected to call 28 witnesses, according to a juvenile court official. An attorney representing one of the defendants may call about a dozen witnesses. Attorneys for the other defendant haven't filed a witness list with the court.

Juvenile court will require television stations to use one pool camera.

Lipps during the probable cause hearing asked witnesses, both juvenile and adult, if they wanted to be videotaped or audio recorded. Nearly all the witnesses said they didn't want to be taped.

The trial will begin at 10:30 a.m. on March 13 and 9 a.m. on March 14 and March 15. The court officials said Lipps intends to stay in court until at least 6 p.m. to get the case finished. The judge is willing to stay until Saturday or even Sunday, if necessary.

Lipps is expected to immediately rule on the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

A court official said if the teens are found guilty, they will be taken into custody and placed in juvenile detention. They have been released on house arrest since the probable cause hearing in November. Lipps also may impose sentencing at the time.

Attorney Walter Madison is representing Richmond, and attorneys Brian Duncan and Adam Nemann are representing Mays.

MUNICIPAL

LISBON — In Columbiana County Municipal Court on Thursday, Kathryn L. Fisher, 32, Washington Street, Salem, waived her right to a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the Common Pleas Court grand jury on an illegal possession of a firearm in a liquor establishment charge. According to court documents, Fisher had a loaded .22 caliber handgun and a loaded .45 caliber handgun both in her purse, while she was intoxicated. A witness reportedly told Salem police Fisher and a passenger in her vehicle had brandished a handgun while inside the Foxes Den night club on Jan. 1.

Henry Parks, 54, Middle Beaver Road, Lisbon, was fined $1,025, had his license suspended for a year and was sentenced to 163 days in jail for OVI second offense, driving under suspension, unsafe vehicle and speeding. A license requirement citation was dismissed.

Joseph W. Schossler, 33, Akron, was fined $1,025, had his license suspended for six months, required 30 hours community service and sentenced to seven days in jail for OVI first offense and open container. A turn signal violation was dismissed.

Keith Hilderbrand Jr., 23, Campbell Road, Hanoverton, was fined $675, sentenced to three days in jail and had his licenses suspended for 180 days for OVI first offense and failure to control.

Daniel R. Ree, 49, McClure Avenue, East Palestine, was fined $600, had his license suspended for six months and required 20 hours community service for driving under suspension, failure to control, drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana.

Roger J. Higgins Jr., 30, Wilson Street, Salem, was fined $400 and required 40 hours community service for failure to reinstate a license and expired plates.

William M. Alford Jr., 38, North Lincoln Avenue, Salem, was fined $250 and required 20 hours community service for abusing harmful intoxicants after he was found in September by customers at Walmart sitting in a vehicle inhaling a substance from a can, with another full can in his possession and 19 empty cans on the floor of the vehicle.

Melissa G. Doyle, 28, U.S. Route 62, Salem, was fined $250 for failing to stop for a school bus.

Kristine D. Meyer, 28, Wooster, was credited with one day served for obstructing official business for providing police with a bogus name and date of birth in 2007.

Stephen R. Morris, 38, state Route 172, Lisbon, was fined $100 for obstructing official business for refusing to cooperate with a deputy requesting his Social Security number. An April 4 pretrial was set for Morris' father, Holbert S. Morris, 67, state Route 172, Lisbon, charged with resisting arrest and disorderly conduct for allegedly refusing to listen to deputy orders while the deputy was at the Morris residence on Tuesday to speak to them about horses being kept on the property.

Rachelle Hanevious, 36, Franklin Avenue, Salem, was fined $100 and credited with 33 days in jail served for domestic violence. Court documents state Hanevious on Nov. 19, struck her boyfriend Nicholas E. Korda in the left side of the head with a portable shower head, leaving him bleeding and seeking treatment at the Salem Community Hospital.

Edward B. Bailey, 29, Grant Street, Lisbon, was fined $100 and required 20 hours community service for failure to reinstate a license and expired plates.

Michelle Satmare, 19, Artistic Street, East Liverpool, was fined $100 and had her license suspended for 180 days for possession of marijuana.

A March 7 pretrial was set for Jeremy A. Bender, 35, East Perry Street, Salem, charged with domestic violence for allegedly assaulting his father on Saturday.

A March 28 pretrial was set for Allen W. Lippiatt, 27, Youngstown, cited with driving with a temporary permit without an eligible driver and one way traffic.

A March 28 pretrial was set for Cierra N. Sokol, 18, Beaver Creek Road, Salem, charged with possession of instruments to ingest or inhale a controlled substance.

An April 4 pretrial was set for John P. Smollen Sr., 54, East Street, East Palestine, cited with driving under suspension and assured clear distance.

Alleged bank robber bound over

EAST LIVERPOOL — The man suspected of robbing the Home Savings and Loan branch in Glenmoor Feb. 19 was bound over to Common Pleas Court following a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Thursday.

Tary L. Gilbert, 36, whose address is now listed as 3961 Indian Run Drive, Canfield, appeared on a robbery charge and was bound over by Judge Melissa Byers Emmerling.

Gilbert's address was listed as Fairfield School Road at the time of the crime, and at his previous hearing in Municipal Court, he claimed to be homeless, with no employment.

The judge denied a defense motion Thursday to reduce the $100,000 cash/surety bond she set previously and also ordered the vehicle Gilbert was allegedly driving the day of the bank robbery returned to the rental company that owns it.

Gilbert is accused of entering the bank about 3 p.m. Feb. 19 and handing a note to employees demanding money. No weapon was shown.

He allegedly fled the bank with an undisclosed amount of cash but was pulled over near the Columbiana exit of state Route 11 and taken into custody shortly after the robbery.

SCAM FROM 1A

him all about it. He said he would talk to the person if he called back, so when the person called again, Beeson answered the phone.

Beeson told the man Sue was with him and she would be glad to provide the money if they delivered the car and the cash prize to Salem Police headquarters. The man immediately hung up and she received no more calls.

According to Beeson, this type of scam has been around a long time and he would rather residents come and talk to the police or family members if they're in doubt. He said they should never give out banking information or personal information and should not wire money or give credit card information to receive an alleged prize.

He recalled one case where a family was told they had won a huge prize, but needed to send money right away to secure their winnings. The family borrowed the requested amount from a bank and sent a money gram which was later traced to Canada, then to Israel. They were out the money.

"Once it's wired out of the country, you're done," he said, adding they talk to people about this sort of thing all the time. "If in doubt, hang up. There's no quick riches in this world."

Beeson said he doesn't mind talking to people about a possible scam or looking at material they may have received in the mail or in an email. "I'd rather talk to people for a few minutes rather than see them in a situation where they lose their savings," he said.

Laughlin and city Auditor Betty Brothers both thought it was good idea to shine a light on the situation and let residents know what's out there. Laughlin said she called the real Publishers Clearing House and talked to their fraud hotline, learning that they report complaints like this to the Federal Trade Commission.

Brothers worked in banking for years and said banks never ask for personal information over the phone and have training in watching out for large withdrawals from customers and how to watch for signs of a possible scam situation. She said reputable businesses don't ask for a customer's information over the phone.

James “Jim” W. Minamyer

BELOIT — James “Jim” W. Minamyer, 75, of Beloit, Ohio, died Wednesday, Feb. 27, 2013, at his home following a sudden illness.

He was born March 9, 1937, in Salem, a son of the late James M. and Ethel (Parsons) Minamyer.

Jim graduated from Salem High School and earned a mechanical engineering degree from Fenn College in Cleveland before receiving his master’s in business administration from the University of Pittsburgh. He began his career at the Electric Furnace Company, and was invited to Comstock Engineering in Pittsburgh to direct its new venture in continuous steel strip processing lines. He eventually founded his own company, Comstock-2, in Salem to consult globally on galvanizing processes. He introduced several innovations that transformed galvanizing in Asia. He was a member of the International Gutter Club, a jovial club of American expatriates who rebuild the Italian steel industry in the 1960s and met annually upon their return. Jim also owned and operated the Hyde-A-Way Golf Course since 1977.

Survivors include his companion, Paula Shubock of Beloit and Pittsburgh; a daughter, Robin Maynter of Salem; two sons, Mike Minamyer of Salem and Matty (Renee) Minamyer of Richmond, Texas; a sister, Jayne Bergman of Austintown; a brother, Fred (Gwen) Minamyer of Salem; eight grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

A son, Ronny Minamyer and a granddaughter, Anna, preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 2, 2013, at the Stark Memorial Funeral Home.

The family will receive friends from 1 to 2 p.m. Saturday prior to services at the funeral home. Burial will be at Grandview Cemetery in Salem.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Noah’s Lost Ark Animal Sanctuary, 8424 Bedell Road, Berlin Center, Ohio 44401; or the Salem High School Alumni Association, 330 E. State St., Salem, Ohio 44460.

—A Case Road, Beloit, woman reported at 4:56 p.m. Wednesday someone stole a license plate from her utility trailer.

Ohio trooper hit by car on snowy I-75

FRANKLIN (AP) — The Ohio State Highway Patrol says a trooper in training is in critical condition after he was hit by a car that lost control on a snowy interstate highway in southern Ohio. The patrol said Thursday the trooper, 26-year-old Brent Hill, is in a Dayton hospital following the accident late Wednesday on Interstate 75 in Warren County, between Dayton and Cincinnati. The patrol said Hill was investigating a one-car accident on northbound Interstate 75 just after 11 p.m. when he was hit by a second car that had lost control on the slippery road. The car sideswiped the patrol car, then struck Hill and the first car.

Grand jury indicts man on 4 counts of rape of boy at Memorial Building Dec. 10

LISBON — Eric Scott Holsinger, a man accused of sexual acts with a 13-year-old boy in the bathroom of the Salem Memorial Building on Dec. 10 was among those indicted this week by the Columbiana County Common Pleas Court grand jury.

Holsinger, 51, no address listed, is charged with four counts of rape and two counts of unlawful sexual conduct with a minor. The charges all involve the same boy, who in two of the rape counts is noted as having an impaired mental or physical condition.

In total, the grand jury issued 22 indictments this week including 11 open indictments. The remaining 10 secret indictments will be released as they are served.

— Alex David Morgan Cook, 19, Crestview Road, New Waterford, is charged with theft, misuse of credit cards, receiving stolen property and five counts each of burglary and safe-cracking. According to court documents, Cook allegedly took a Discover card belonging to Dale Hill on Sept. 23 and used it in one or more transactions. Additionally in June through July last year, Cook allegedly broke into the homes of Dale Hill, Millrock Road, New Waterford on five separate occasions, forced his way into a vault, safe or strong box on the property during those times. Finally, Cook is accused of having possession of a stolen pickup belonging to Bobby Blair on Feb. 5.

— Brooks Michael Cartwright, 31, Youngstown, is charged with failure to notify the sheriff about a change of address. According to court documents, Cartwright has a rape conviction in Tulsa County, Okla., from May 2002, but allegedly failed to notify the local sheriff’s department of his change of address in December 2012.

— Francis E. Shriver, 36, address unknown, is charged with breaking and entering and criminal tools. Shriver allegedly trespassed into the J.H. Lease Drug Co., North Ellsworth Avenue, Salem, on Jan. 14 and reportedly was found with a hammer, flashlight, screwdriver, pry bar, hedge trimmers, gloves and a backpack at the time.

— Boyd W. Johnson, 50, Signal Road, Columbiana, is charged with two counts domestic violence for allegedly attempting to harm Heidi and Laci-Lee Tomalko, both household members on Jan. 14. According to court documents, Johnson has a previous domestic violence conviction from June 7, 2006.

— Christopher M. Hamrick, 29, Youngstown, is charged with receiving stolen property. Court documents alleged Hamrick on Jan. 24, had a dirt bike in his possession belonging to Ryan McCoy.

Residents protest dog shooting by cop

SANDUSKY (AP) — Animal-loving residents of a northern Ohio community are protesting the recent shooting death of a dog by a police officer.

Several dozen sign-carrying demonstrators in Sandusky demonstrated in front of the municipal court building Wednesday. It was part of the local outcry since a city police officer killed a pet Rottweiler named Lucy on Feb. 21.

The officer, who was responding to a complaint of a dog running loose in the area, said the dog lunged at him before he fired the shot. The Sandusky Register reports that police Chief Brad Wilson is dealing with the fallout from the shooting — including emails from angry residents.

The dog’s owner, Donna Hansen, appeared in court Wednesday to plead not guilty to citations for dog at large and unlicensed dog.

What about cuts to your pay Jan 1?

If the federal spending cuts known as "the sequester" go through beginning today, it will be a terrible calamity, the White House warns. Really? A spending cut of nearly identical magnitude kicked in Jan. 1, and it didn't seem to upset anyone in Washington. Perhaps that is because the Jan. 1 cut forced you, not Uncle Sam, to tighten your belt.

President Barack Obama's spin doctors have increased the dosage of propaganda they are prescribing this week, as the deadline for the sequester approaches. Their goal is to whip up a public opinion frenzy calculated to pressure Congress into approving tax increases Obama wants as part of a deal to forestall the sequester.

Part of the public relations blitz simply isn't true. For example, it was being reported Monday that if the sequester cuts occur, they will slash $85 billion in federal spending between March 1 and the end of September.

Not true. The $85 billion figure represents sequester cuts on an annual basis. With just seven months left in the fiscal year, the actual reduction for the period would be about $46 billion.

At a rate of $85 billion a year within the $3.8 trillion federal budget for this year, allowing the sequester to take place would reduce federal spending by only about 2.3 percent.

During 2011-12, we taxpayers got a bit of a break in the amount of our paychecks withheld to help pay for Social Security. For two years, 4.2 percent of our pay was withheld for the purpose.

But Obama and Congress allowed that to expire Jan. 1, letting the withholding rate go up to 6.2 percent. Washington is keeping 2 percent more of what you earn than it did last year.

That means the approximately 143.3 million Americans who have jobs were forced on Jan. 1 to cut our spending (or saving) by 2 percent - nearly the same rate of belt-tightening Uncle Sam faces from the sequester.

You don't recall White House wailing and gnashing of teeth about that, because virtually nothing was said in Washington when we taxpayers were told we had to make do with less.

Puts anguish over the sequester in a different light, doesn't it?

Obama's false alarms: Sky not falling due to budget cut

ANDREW NAPOLITANO

In an effort to remove the hot-potato issue of excessive government spending from the 2012 presidential campaign, and calling the bluff of congressional Republicans who always seem to favor domestic spending cuts but increased military spending, President Obama suggested the concept of "sequester" in late 2011.

His idea was to reduce the rate of increased spending by 2 percent across the board — on domestic and military spending. To his surprise, the Republicans went along with this. They did so either because they lacked the political fortitude and the political will to designate specifically the unconstitutional and pork barrel federal spending projects to be cut, or because they thought that with the debt of the federal government then approaching $15 trillion (it is now $16.6 trillion and growing), any reductions in spending money the government doesn't have are preferred to no reductions. So, instead of enacting a budget, and instead of recognizing that much of its spending is simply not authorized by the Constitution, Congress enacted the so-called sequester legislation, and the president signed it into law.

The reductions the sequesters require are reductions in the rate of increased spending from those originally planned by Obama and authorized by Congress. Since the federal government has not had a budget in four years, even though federal law requires it to have one every year, these are planned expenditures, not budgetary items, on which the president wants to spend more money. Congress does not feel bound to obey the laws it has written; hence it has disregarded the legal requirement of a budget. Without a budget, the president has great leeway as to how to allocate funds within each department of the executive branch of the federal government.

Nevertheless, even if these sequesters do kick in, the feds will spend more in 2013 than they spent in 2012. That's because the sequesters are not cuts to spending; rather, they are reductions in planned increases in spending. The reductions amount to about two cents for every planned dollar of increased spending for every federal department.

The question remains: What part of each federal department (Justice, Defense, Homeland Security, Agriculture, etc.) will suffer these reduced increases? Here is where this sequester experiment gets dicey.

The president — who once championed the idea of sequesters and even threatened to veto any congressional effort to dismantle them — now has decided he can't live without that additional 2 percent to spend. So, he has gone about the country trying to scare the daylights out of people: Prisoners will be released from federal prisons, soldiers won't have enough bullets in their weapons, we will need to endure five-hour waiting lines at the airports, Social Security checks will be late, and similar nonsense.

If the fears Obama predicts do come to pass, we will have only him to blame. Remember, the sequesters only cut planned increases in spending. Suppose the president planned to hire 100 more soldiers for the Army and agents for the TSA and air traffic controllers for the FAA. Is the president required to hire only 98 of them? Well, under the law, he has a choice. He can hire all 100 and cut back elsewhere, or he can make do on 98 percent of what he has determined are the government's additional needs. But he cannot just intentionally release prisoners or weaken the military or inflict maddening delays on the flying public in order to make his fearful warnings come to pass.

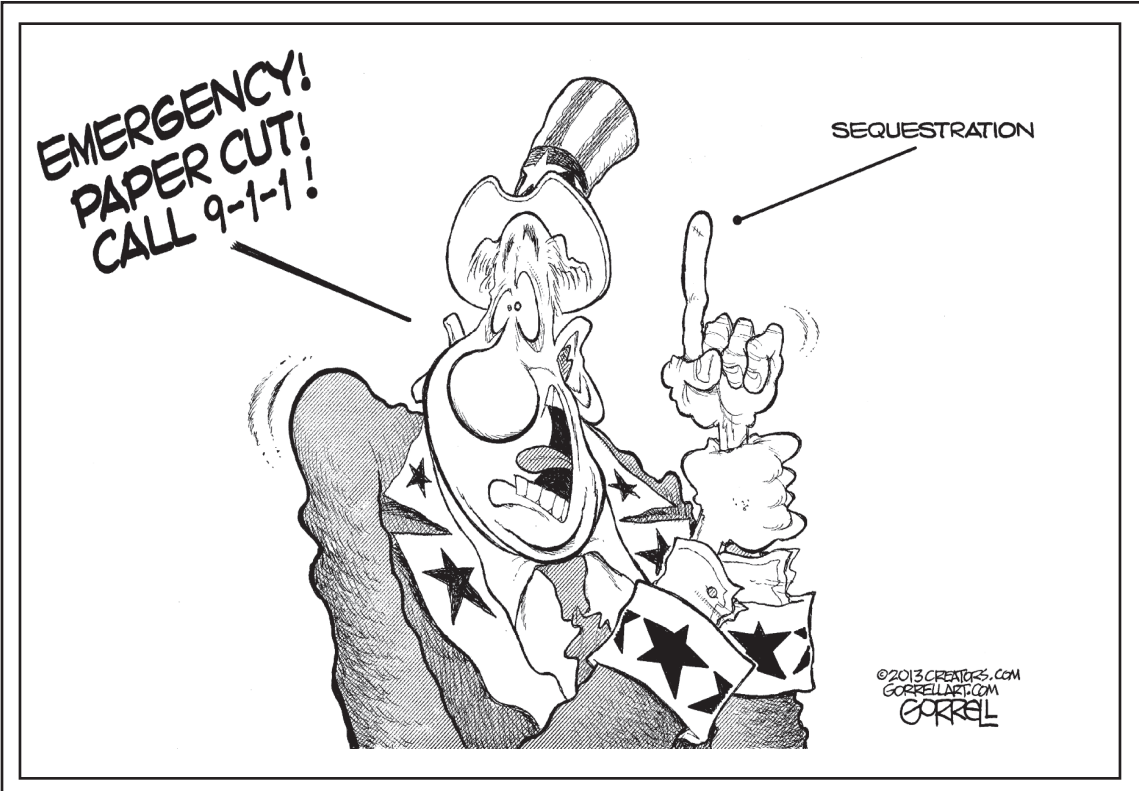

His job is to uphold the Constitution, to make the executive branch of the federal government work. The president has taken an oath to "faithfully execute" his office. The words of the oath are prescribed in the Constitution. The word "faithfully" requires him to enforce the laws whether or not he agrees with them. It also requires him to enforce the laws in such a manner that they make sense — so that the federal government basically performs the services we have grown to expect of it.

I know, we have grown to expect more of the federal government than the Founders dreamed, and far more than we can possibly pay for, and infinitely more than the Constitution authorizes. But that's the good thing about these sequesters: They will force the president to prioritize.

If he prioritizes so that we stay free and safe, so that the government does what we basically have paid it to do, he'll be doing his job and saving us a tiny bit of cash. But if the president enforces the laws so that they hurt rather than work well just so he can say "I told you so" rather than "I'll work with you," then he will be inviting his own political misery or even his own impeachment. And we will have sunk deeper into the abyss of fear, division and red ink that already engulfs us.

Michelle Obama spreads her wings

KATHLEEN PARKER

If second-term presidents feel liberated by re-election to pursue bolder agendas, first ladies often become more comfortable to be their own person.

Witness Laura Bush, who in her husband's second term discovered that she, too, had a voice and a bully pulpit. Seemingly overnight, she transformed herself from librarian to liberator, becoming a voice for oppressed women — from advocating for Burma's Aung San Suu Kyi, the democratic leader then under house arrest, to spearheading a women's health movement across the Middle East.

Likewise, it appears that Michelle Obama has begun to break out. Though she long ago established herself as a health-and-fitness mom in chief, she had until recently been careful to stay well within the lines of traditional first lady. Obviously accomplished in her own right, she spent the past four years fashioning an image of good wife and mother to counter early impressions of her as politically ambitious and, to certain of her critics, angry.

Whatever she was then, she is something else now. In her second term, Michelle Obama has come out with, well, a bang! She isn't just breaking the mold; she's shattering the good china. The Madonna of first ladies, she is emerging as an iconoclastic, self-reinventing woman who clearly doesn't mind shaking the firmament. It seems clear that no one, including the president, tells the first lady what to do.

"She always looks good" was Barack Obama's wise response when asked how he liked his wife's new bangs. Studies have confirmed what all successfully married men know: The correct answer to any question is "Yes, dear."

The bangs were a clue that Michelle was evacuating the cocoon. Analyzing her bangs may seem a silly pastime — but only if you know nothing about women. When a woman changes her hair — especially as dramatically as the first lady did — something is up.

Those aren't bangs covering Michelle Obama's eyebrows. Those are butterfly wings.

Observe. The first lady completely changed her appearance on the eve of her husband's second inauguration. Now why would she do that? She jokingly has said that her bangs were her midlife crisis. Cute answer, but it's clearly more than that. Hair is the frame we choose for the portrait we project to the world. Hair conveys messages we don't even consciously recognize.

Who knew that Michelle Obama harbored an inner Gidget? Cute, fun-loving, perky were not adjectives that sprang to mind when Michelle became a household word four years ago. That was then. Michelle Obama obviously has decided to have some fun.

Thus, recently, she joined Jimmy Fallon in a viral pas de deux titled, "The Evolution of Mom Dancing." Sunday night she crashed the biggest party on television — the Academy Awards — to announce the best picture winner. Appearing remotely on a gargantuan screen like a holographic Princess Leia, she was a glimmering, spaghetti-strapped goddess beaming in to bestow the grand prize — Herself — on the adoring audience that helped put her husband in office.

Reactions have been mixed from the moment Jack Nicholson introduced her: Should she have done it? Is it too frivolous in these dire times for the first lady, bedecked in sequined splendor, to be participating in such self-congratulatory frivolity? Too much exposure? Too much ... too much? As usual, the responses tend to break down along party lines.

We have such conflicting feelings about first wives in an era when women do it all, including, eventually, becoming president. We want our first lady to be first a lady — a delicate balance between enjoying one's attractiveness without being too sexy. Michelle's sleeveless toned arms have kept us riveted for four years.

We want our first ladies to be intelligent but not aggressively so. Supportive but not fawning. Politic but not political. We mostly want them to not embarrass us — and this will be the same for the first husband when he arrives.

To most of the country, Michelle has passed muster thus far. Her youthful health and fitness are inspiring — and she can grab and hold an audience as few others. She and the camera adore each other, though some of us miss her Jackie Kennedy period — the black Armani sheath with a double strand of pearls, hair brushed back to reveal her best feature — an arched, intelligent brow line. Why cover it up?

The answer may be as simple as sometimes a first lady just wants to have fun. For certain, Michelle Obama is the star of her own movie.

The Greenwood (Miss.) Commonwealth
on job loss trends:

The Associated Press recently moved a provocative series about the changing landscape for jobs in the United States. It made a good case that middle-class jobs eliminated by technology and the recession aren't coming back.

This is not the first time to hear such dire warnings. Imagine the fuss in the horse carriage industry 100 years ago as it tried to compete with the fledgling automobile. More recently, the typewriter vanished after being conquered by the personal computer.

Generally, a disruptive improvement such as the automobile winds up creating more jobs than it eliminates. Historically, such changes have been good for the economy.

However, the AP report indicates that this time may be different — due to the rapid improvement in computer software that allows machines to do more jobs with greater accuracy.

Another difference is that a lot of the jobs being eliminated, such as an accountant or office manager, involve a college degree. So far, the recent improvements in technology are eliminating more jobs than they are creating.

The statistics bear out this argument. The United States lost 7.5 million jobs in the recession that started in late 2007. So far, only 3.5 million jobs have been created, but few of them in the so-called "mid-skill, mid-pay" category. Most new jobs are in lower-paying, lower-skill categories. ...

The AP report is informative because it addresses a subject that politicians were unwilling to in last year's elections. It's easy to say that all the jobs are going to China, but a more accurate answer is that some of them are not going anywhere. They're just disappearing. ...

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

— An officer on patrol in the 400 block of North Lincoln Avenue at 1:01 a.m. Thursday saw a suspicious male walking through the front yard of a residence dressed all in black clothing. The officer approached the male and discovered he was 17 years old, charged him with unruliness and released him to his mother.

— Police received a complaint of a domestic at 12:11 a.m. Thursday, with the caller providing an address that did not exist in the city and could not be found. The same person called back and requested assistance, then immediately terminated the call before additional information could be obtained. Officers checked a residence with a similar address, but didn't find a disturbance. The department checked with other area police agencies to see if the address was in their jurisdictions, with no more information provided.

— A driver of a vehicle leaving the rear parking lot of Salem High School onto Ninth Street at 9:16 p.m. Wednesday missed the driveway and drove into a yard, traveling 50 feet off the pavement before becoming stuck.

— Danielle N. Stanley, of 342 W. Pidgeon Road, was taken into custody on a warrant out of Columbiana County after a traffic stop was initiated at 9:06 p.m. Wednesday when an officer saw a vehicle with one lighted headlight fail to stop for a stop sign on Sunset at North Lincoln Avenue. The officer activated his emergency lights and turned around, seeing the car make a quick turn into an apartment complex in the 1000 block of North Lincoln Avenue. The car was found in the back of the parking lot and the driver had exited and was attempting to leave on foot. She was ordered to return to the vehicle and complied. An active warrant was found for her and she was cited for the stop sign violation and given a verbal warning for the headlight violation.

— A domestic was reported at 8:31 p.m. Wednesday in the 600 block of Park Avenue where a woman said her boyfriend's mother-in-law assaulted her over an argument and she's nine months pregnant. The boyfriend's mother-in-law said she did not assault the woman and that she had been assaulted by the woman. No visible injuries could be seen on either one of them. The woman was taken to Salem Community Hospital as a precaution.

Leetonia schools to finish year in black

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA— Schools Superintendent Rob Mehno Thursday night reported that the district is projected to finish the year without deficit spending.

Mehno told the school board that the district has avoided deficit spending for the past three years. From 2005 through 2010 the district averaged an yearly operating deficit of $281,000, he said.

Mehno also noted that district has avoided placing a new-money levy on the ballot for three years. The district suffered seven failed attempts in the just over two years prior.

The budget will be discussed in more detail when the five-year financial forecast is updated in May, Mehno said.

In other business the board hired for the remainder of the 2013-14 school year Janeann Luxeuil as a bus driver effective March 1, Jerri Bertolette as sub bus driver caller effective March 1, Kerry Dean as a substitute teacher, Jennifer Hiltbrand as a substitute bus driver effective Feb. 19, David Jenkins as a substitute bus driver and Rosalie Davis as a substitute teacher. The board also approved supplemental contracts for the 2013-14 school year for John McIllduff as athletic director and Marcia Duko as assistant athletic director.

Additionally the board approved the open enrollment application and timeline from April 1 through Aug. 23 for the 2013-14 school year; granted permission to the Leetonia Masonic Lodge to use the K-12 campus for the annual Harold Wurster Memorial Easter Egg Hunt March 23; and acknowledged the Bears to Bee Preschool's letter of intent to renew its yearly contract for Room 11 in the Leetonia Elementary building.

The board also accepted donations of $500 from the Leetonia Eagles to the baseball supplemental; $500 each from Margaret Conrad and John and Kristine Conrad to the Conrad Scholarship; and $100 from the Leetonia Sports-mens Club, $50 from Shoppers Choice Marathon, $200 from the Leetonia American Legion, $15 from Newtons Service and Parts, $300 from the Washingtonville VFW Post 5532 and $50 from the Leetonia Dairy Queen to the track supplemental.

Also at the meeting Mehno recognized retiring bus driver Dave Hephner for his 30 years of service to the district and Lou Rammuno for serving as superintendent while Mehno was on a medical leave of absence in January.

Mehno also recognized the sixth-grade LASA boys basketball team that won the West Branch Tournament; the seventh-grade girls basketball team under the direction of Coach Will Jones that won the ITCL Lower Tier tournament; and the fourth-grade LASA girl's basketball team that received the academic award during the LASA tournament for each team member earning a 4.0 grade point average, the first team in the history of the LASA tournament to do so.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. March 28 in Room 20 of the K-12 Campus.

Salem trustees OK cable franchise agreement

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

FRANKLIN SQUARE — Salem Township trustees approved a video service authorization for cable television on Wednesday.

Fiscal Officer Cathy Wilms said the agreement includes a five percent franchise fee to be paid to the township.

The current 20-year agreement with Comcast expires on March 21. She added that some residents subscribe to Time Warner Cable and there is a section of the township where cable television is unavailable.

Wilms said the contract will run for an undetermined period.

In other business, trustees approved $1,000 for material to build picnic tables for the parks. Wilms said the tables will be 16 feet long. Trustees also approved money for siding inside the garage while also tabling talks regarding the Mangus II well on Butcher Road.

Representatives of Chesapeake Exploration were expected at the meeting to discuss a RUMA on sections of Egypt and Butcher roads but didn't show up, Wilms said.

Chesapeake requested a road use management agreement with Green Township for a section of Egypt Road leading the well on Feb. 19.

Egypt Road meets Butcher Road in Salem Township and makes a sharp turn with an elevation change where the two intersect on the way to the Mangus property in the 37000 block of Butcher Road.

Trustee John Wilms had expressed concern over the intersection earlier in the week noting that the turn and elevation change will be harder to deal with than at the Maroscher well on Salem Grange Road near old state Route 558.

At the Green Township meeting Chesapeake officials said they would walk the RUMA route with township officials before signing the agreement.

Also, in other business, trustees were advised the Columbiana County engineer's meeting with the township will be held at 12:30 p.m. March 25.

Cathy Wilms said the county commissioners will update them regarding the nuisance property on Golf Club Drive.

A company will come in and determine if there is asbestos in it, Wilms said.

Trustees also approved a $50 permit for Hilcorp Energy to drill a water line under Grafton Road where the company just installed a wellsite on the Grubbs property.

Trustee Bill Heston requested that decorations be removed from the cemeteries before April 19.

Trustees will meet in regular session at 7:30 p.m. March 14.

month to borrow $500,000 from a local bank to get the process started. Before that can happen, however, asbestos must be removed from homes, and commissioners have to seek bids for the work.

The letter advises communities which submitted lists of abandoned foreclosed homes they want demolished that nothing should be done until the state releases the money. Commissioner Chairman Mike Halleck said they sent out the letter after learning Jon Kaufman, who owns four Hanoverton properties targeted for demolition, razed two of the homes located on U.S. Route 30.

Halleck and Hoppel discovered this while driving through Hanoverton.

The asbestos removal and demolition work is to be done by contractors hired by commissioners, none of which has been done yet, although an asbestos evaluation of the properties is currently underway.

"There was no harm done ... but unfortunately, there's a process that has to be followed," Halleck said, adding that Kaufman will be allowed to add two more properties to the list to be demolished to make up for the two he already had razed.

A total of 69 homes are on the list to be demolished, but that will depend on how far the money stretches. "Just because you're on the list doesn't mean it's going to happen," Halleck said.

looking at any problems," the chief said, adding anything that does come up will be covered under warranty.

He said they plan to get the new truck ready for service as soon as possible.

"We're very appreciative to the trustees for making this all possible. We couldn't have done this without them. We thank the residents for their support," Whitcher said.

The truck cost $336,908 and has already been paid for with levy money.

Trustee Chairman Cliff Mix said the new truck is "Perry Township residents' money at work." He also complimented KME Kovatch, the company which spent months building the truck to the fire department's specifications.

Trustee Don Rudibaugh, who works closely with the fire department, said Fire-fighter Kevin Bryan and Whitcher did a lot of work on the truck.

"They're to be commended for it," he said.

The rest of the department's fleet includes a 2004 pumper truck, a 1999 tanker, a 1995 grass truck and a 1994 rescue truck.

Residents will have a chance to see the new truck and learn more about the department during a pancake breakfast/open house from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27 at the north station on North Ellsworth Avenue.

Plans call for live demonstrations of equipment and for Lifeflight and ambulances to also be on hand. The cost of tickets for breakfast will be $6 for adults, $4.50 for children ages 6 to 13 and children 5 and under free.

Whitcher said the department is trying to raise money to purchase equipment needed for a first responder program so firefighters can offer basic life-saving medical assistance in addition to what they already offer residents.

"We want them to know that we're here for them," he said.

The department offers a free smoke detector program, with installation free by firefighters. Residents can call the fire department at 330-332-4676 and leave a message if they need a smoke detector.

According to the report of 2012 Perry Township Fire Calls, the number of calls was down last year to 87, compared with 130 calls in 2011 and 91 calls in 2010. Whitcher said "sometimes we get hammered and sometimes we don't."

The department had one less structure fire last year than the previous year, with two reported in 2012. Many numbers decreased, but they still responded to a variety of calls, whether fires, motor vehicle accidents, lift assists, mutual aid, poles down, trees on wires or carbon monoxide alarms. Carbon monoxide calls and grass fire calls were both increased last year, with 10 CO alarms and five grass fires.

Other numbers reported included: 11 motor vehicle accidents with injuries; five mva with no injuries; one mva with entrapment; one mva traffic control; four mutual aid for structure fires; two poles down; two lines arcing; seven investigations; nine lift assists; one water alarm; 10 burning complaints; one home lockout; one transformer fire; three ambulance assists; two trees on wires; one tree on fire; one smoke alarm; one electrical problem; one HAZMAT spill; one generator request; and four other mutual aid requests.

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

US economy barely grew in Q4

WASHINGTON (AP) — The weakest quarter for the U.S. economy in nearly two years may end up being a temporary lull. Economists think growth has begun to pick up on the strength of a sustained housing recovery and a better job market.

The economy grew at an annual rate of just 0.1 percent from October through December, a government report Thursday showed. That's only slightly better than the Commerce Department's previous estimate that the economy shrank at a rate of 0.1 percent. And it's down from the 3.1 percent annual growth rate in the July-September quarter.

Economists said the weakness last quarter was caused by steep defense cuts and slower company restocking, which are volatile. Residential construction, consumer spending and business investment — core drivers of growth — all improved. Steady job growth will likely keep consumers spending, despite higher Social Security taxes that have cut into take-home pay.

Speedometer often exceeds reality

DETROIT (AP) — The speedometer on the Toyota Yaris says the tiny car can go 140 miles per hour.

In reality the bulbous subcompact's 106-horsepower engine and automatic transmission can't push it any faster than 109.

So why do the Yaris — and most other cars sold in the U.S. — have speedometers that show top speeds they can't possibly reach?

The answer has deep roots in an American culture that loves the rush of driving fast. The automakers' marketing departments are happy to give people the illusion that their family car can travel at speeds rivaling a NASCAR racer. And companies often use one speedometer type in various models across the world, saving them money.

But critics say the ever-higher numbers are misleading. Some warn they create a safety concern, daring drivers to push past freeway speed limits that are 65 to 75 mph in most states.

Weekly US jobless claims drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans seeking unemployment aid fell by 22,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted 344,000, indicating that the job market may be picking up.

The four-week average of applications dropped 6,750 to 355,000, the Labor Department said Thursday.

Stronger hiring is one of the reasons economists expect more growth in 2013 after a disappointing October-December quarter, when the economy barely grew.

Lew becomes Treasury secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jacob Lew was sworn in Thursday as the nation's 76th Treasury secretary, a day before across-the-board government spending cuts kick in that could slow down the U.S. economy.

Vice President Joe Biden led the brief ceremony at the Oval Office, with Lew's wife and family and President Barack Obama on hand.

After the ceremony Lew walked to the Treasury Department and was greeted by employees who lined the steps of the building.

Sears 4Q loss narrows; expenses cut

NEW YORK. (AP) — Sears narrowed its fiscal fourth quarter loss as it reduced expenses and improved sales a little at its namesake stores. The results offer a glimmer of hope for a troubled department store chain that still has a long way to go to turn around its Sears and Kmart stores.

The report follows an announcement last month by Sears Holdings Corp. that its chairman and hedge fund billionaire Edward Lampert would take over as CEO. Investors are concerned whether Lampert will continue to invest in improving the shopping experience at stores.

In his annual letter to investors, Lampert sought to ease worries on Wall Street by promising that the company will continue to invest in technology, bolster its online operations and make other changes to shore up its business.

Barnes & Noble posts 3Q loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Physical books may have a longer shelf life than expected. Barnes & Noble posted a third-quarter loss on Thursday, partly because demand for its e-books and Nook e-book readers have plummeted. Many have predicted the eventual demise of paper books, as e-book readers and e-book demand soared. But that trend appears to be slowing, at least with the Nook, according to Barnes & Noble CEO William Lynch. And digital "cannibalization" — consumers buying e-books instead of paper books — has also slowed. The company said sales of digital media — including digital books, digital newspapers and magazines, and apps — rose just 7 percent during the fiscal third quarter.

Freddie Mac posts $4.5B for Q4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortgage giant Freddie Mac earned $4.5 billion from October through December, its fifth straight profitable quarter. The government-controlled company credited fewer delinquencies on home loans and rising home prices for the gains. Freddie says it paid a dividend of $1.8 billion to the U.S. Treasury and requested no additional federal aid. The fourth-quarter results compared with net income of $619 million in the same quarter of 2011.

Chrysler to add jobs, invest $374M

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — Chrysler is investing millions in the Kokomo, Ind., area as it shifts most of its vehicles to new transmissions that save fuel and better suit the driving habits of Americans.

The automaker will invest nearly $400 million at four plants, adding 1,250 jobs to what it says is the largest transmission factory complex in the world. The plants will make fuel-efficient eight- and nine-speed automatic transmissions. Chrysler plans to use the new nine-speed transmission in key front-wheel-drive vehicles such as the Dodge Dart compact, which has lagged sales expectations. The transmission also will go into a new Chrysler 200 midsize sedan early next year and the Jeep Cherokee midsize SUV, which will replace the aging Jeep Liberty in the summer.

Penney's shares plunge after 4Q massive loss

NEW YORK (AP) — J.C. Penney was the biggest loser Thursday. Shares of J.C. Penney Co. plunged nearly 17 percent on Thursday, the largest decline on the Standard & Poor's 500 index on the day. The drop came a day after the department-store chain reported its fourth consecutive larger-than-expected quarterly loss on another steep sales decline.

Penney shares, which are now trading at around $18, now have lost nearly 60 percent of their value since early February of last year after CEO Ron Johnson revealed his plan to ditch hundreds of sales in favor of everyday low prices. After Johnson announced his vision in late January 2012, investors drove Penney's shares up 24 percent to $43 in a vote of confidence.

The stock drop is the latest sign that Johnson's turnaround strategy is failing on Wall Street as much as on Main Street. The company's quarterly and full-year results, which it reported Wednesday after the markets closed, revealed that shoppers still aren't buying it. But the sell-off shows that investors, too, are concerned that the plan won't work.

"I fear it will be much worse as consumers continue to walk away from J.C. Penney and its financial health continues to deteriorate," said Walter Loeb, a New York based independent consultant.

Penney's spokeswoman Daphne Avila declined to comment on Thursday's stock movement. But Johnson on Wednesday acknowledged to investors that the 1,100-store chain had made some mistakes. He also told them that Penney would start offering sales in stores every week.

"Experience is making mistakes and learning from them," Johnson told investors on Wednesday. "I have learned a lot."

If J.C. Penney's results are any indication, Johnson is right. Penney reported on Wednesday after the markets closed that it widened its quarterly loss to $552 million, or $2.51 per share. Revenue fell 24.8 percent to $12.98 billion.

Revenue at stores opened a least a year dropped 31.7 percent. The measure is a key indicator of a retailer's health. Customer traffic dropped 17 percent in the quarter, worse than the 10 percent drop in the third quarter.

Results for the full year were even more staggering. For the fiscal year, Penney lost $985 million, or $4.49 per share, compared with a loss of $152 million, or 70 cents per share, in the year ended January 28, 2012. Revenue dropped 24.8 percent to $12.98 billion.

It's a disappointing turn of events for Johnson, the mastermind of Apple's successful retail stores who took the top job at Penney in November 2011. A couple of months later, on Feb. 1 of last year, Johnson got rid of the nearly 600 sales Penney offered each year and lowered prices in the store by 40 percent. He also got rid of the word "sales" from the company's marketing.

But customers weren't responding to the changes, and Johnson has tweaked his strategy a few times, including bringing back the word "sale" in its marketing last spring. The latest change came early February when Penney began adding back more sales events and putting price tags on half of its merchandise to show customers how much they're saving by shopping at Penney.

Penney said that it's seeing positive results from its makeover of some of its stores with sectioned-off shops that feature different brands. The company plans to have 700 of its 1,100 stores nationwide remodeled in the coming years, but critics question whether the company is running out of time — and money.

In November, Penney said that it would end the latest fiscal year with $1 billion in cash. But the company winded up ending the year with $930 million in cash, which was better than analysts had feared but below the company's target.

The company also told investors on Wednesday that it delayed $85 million in payments to its suppliers from the fourth quarter to the early part of the first quarter. That suggests they're running out of cash.

Sparkle customers can held Check Out Hunger

SALEM — Through March 31, Sparkle Market customers will have the opportunity to Check Out Hunger and feed hungry families in Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull counties. Customers may tear off a $1, $5 or $10 coupon available at the register that will be added to their grocery bill. Customers may also donate non-perishable food items by placing them in the collection bin at the front of the stores.

Last year, Sparkle Markets raised $5,100 through the donation coupons, which enabled the food bank to distribute $76,500 worth of food to people right here in the Mahoning Valley.

“We greatly appreciate the continued support of Sparkle Markets through this campaign, in addition to their year-round food donations and participation in other special events and campaigns that help provide food to those in need in our community,” said Michael Iberis, executive director, Second Harvest Food Bank.

Harvest for Hunger is a month-long food and funds drive that takes place in 21 counties of northeast Ohio and benefits four Feeding America food banks including Second Harvest Food Bank of the Mahoning Valley. All funds raised and food collected in Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull counties remain in our community to feed friends and neighbors. Second Harvest Food Bank of the Mahoning Valley distributes food to 153 hunger relief organizations in Columbiana, Mahoning and Trumbull counties. These organizations include church pantries, homeless shelters and soup kitchens, shelters for battered women and after-school programs. To learn more about how you can get involved in the Harvest for Hunger campaign visit www.mahoningvalleysecondharvest.org or call 330-792-5522.

Branch has date with top seed

By NATHAN BOLEY
Staff Writer

AUSTINTOWN — West Branch has set up the rematch it has desired for a year.

With a 45-40 victory over Poland on Thursday night at Austintown Fitch High School, West Branch (23-2) advances to the Division II district championship. The Warriors will face Canfield, whom they lost to 42-40 on a last-second bucket in the 2012 district final.

“We’re honored to be here,” West Branch coach Walt DeShields said. “We’ve beaten Canfield two out of the last three times we’ve played them, but both have come in the regular season. Now we have to prove something in the tournament.”

West Branch initially struggled to put away the Bulldogs as each team had identical quarters in the first half to create a 20-20 halftime score. The Warriors’ defense, however, would step up in the third quarter, holding Poland to just one bucket — a three-pointer by junior Korinna Sherman — and giving West Branch a 29-23 lead.

Though Poland responded with a 17-point fourth quarter, the Warriors used free throw shooting to their advantage. West Branch shot 9 for 11 from the foul line in the final frame, including 8 for 8 from sophomore Melinda Trimmer.

“(Trimmer’s) points really help out down the stretch,” DeShields said. “She’s our go-to free throw shooter.”

Many of Poland’s offensive woes revolved around foul trouble. Senior Rachael Robinson scored 11 points but fouled out late in the fourth quarter. Liz Suess, also a senior, was benched for several minutes in the third and fourth quarters due to fouls. She contributed eight points and six rebounds.

With so many fouls, Trimmer was able to carry her team through the fourth quarter.

“I practice free throws a lot,” said Trimmer. “It’s all about staying focused and calm.”

West Branch junior Amanda Linhart contributed eight points, while senior Brittany Bryte also added eight.

Eagles one win away from district repeat

MINERAL RIDGE — Despite putting up lofty numbers offensively, the United girls basketball team takes pride in being a stingy defensive team.

That stout defense was once again on display in the Division III district semifinals and powered the top-seeded Golden Eagles to a 50-29 win over fourth-seeded Girard on Thursday night at Mineral Ridge High School.

“We were very focused and we just wanted to get it done,” senior Emily Zehentbauer said. “We kill it in practice with defense and that’s how we played tonight.”

United — allowing an average of only 36.6 points per contest— won its 15th straight game to improve to 23-2. The Eagles will go for a second straight district championship when they play sixth-seeded Champion at 2 p.m. Saturday at Mineral Ridge High School.

Zehentbauer led the Eagles with 17 points and nine rebounds. Tara Gray also netted 10 points.

United’s offense sputtered early, failing to convert on several opportunities offensively while repeatedly sending the Indians to the free throw line on the other end.

“We’ve never played these girls before, but we have seen them play,” Zehentbauer said. “We were just kind of feeling each

While pulling away, United locked down on defense, giving up just six points in the second stanza and 14 for the first half.
Fortunately for the Eagles, Girard went just 1-for-8 from the free throw line while the two teams became acquainted with one another. That is, until the United offense found its form. Warriors looking Sharp

COLUMBUS — West Branch’s Sharp brothers began his tournament in a positive fashion on Thursday at the Ohio State University Schottenstein Center.

Logan Sharp, a junior, began his tournament by beating Carrollton’s Austin Bentley, 3-2, in a 220-pound first round match.

Connor Sharp backed him up with a 10-1 major decision over New Richmond’s J.R. Forsee in a heavyweight opener.

Logan Sharp advances to meet Sandusky Perkins’ Kordell Chaney in the championship quarterfinal today. Connor Sharp will meet Franklin’s Chase Henderson. Quarterfinal action gets underway at 10:40 a.m.

Also for West Branch, Kenneth Faulkner lost his 152-pound first round match to St. Paris Graham Local’s Alex Marinelli in 3:30. Faulkner returned to the mat in the consolation round to beat Hannibal Tate of Columbus Mifflin, 9-5.

Minerva’s day was one of mixed results. Harrison Hoppel was able to pin Cylde’s Marshall Messer in 1:18 in a 195-pound opening round match. Hoppel will wrestle Menton Lake Catholic’s Jimmy Szep in the next round.

Nathan Smith was defeated 4-0 by Chaminade-Julienne’s Lyle Plummer in a 120-pound opener. Smith was eliminated a short time later with 3-1 loss to University School’s Walker Chieffe. Cuyahoga Valley Christian Academy’s Jeff Hojnacki scored an 11-2 win over Dalton Hartshorn in a 145-pound first round encounter. Hartshorn was eliminated after he was pinned by Norwalk’s Kyle Lang in 2:24.

In Div. III, Crestview’s Matt Hardenbrook lost his state tournament debut by a 6-4 count to Sycamore Mohawk’s Grant Price. Hardenbrook came back to beat Coldwater’s Derek Collett by pin in 2:05 in the consolation round to earn Crestview’s first win at a state wrestling meet.

STRUTHERS — Wellsville coach Dave Thompson can finally sleep in peace.

After last Saturday’s regular-season finale against Toronto, Thompson left fearing he would enter tournament play without his full cast of players. In that game, an altercation during play eventually led to the ejection of both team’s entire bench for stepping onto the court. At the time, Thompson believed all of those players would be suspended for the next two games.

“There were a couple of days where I didn’t get much sleep,” he said. “I was scrambling. I thought I’d have to bring up guys that hadn’t played varsity at all.”

dous job with the big girl (Bree Bishop) down low, she has been a force in the tournament. I don't want to say that we completely stopped her but, I think we did a heck of a job on her and I'm proud of my big girls down low.”
Bishop finished just four points. Girard was led by Shymara Dykes with eight points. No other Indians scored more than five points.
“We just didn't make shots when you're playing a good, quality team like United you have to make shots,” Girard coach Andy Saxon said. “We missed free throws, that could've been a four or five point game if we make our free throws early on.”
Girard shot just 3-of-15 from the charity stripe for the game. Coupled with numerous turnovers, the Indians were also unable to slow down the Eagles potent transition tempo through much of the game. “They have a little bit of size on us and press a lot, So we were trying to avoid that type of game,” Saxon said. “But we got into a running game with them and started turning the ball over, and when you turn the ball over it leads to easy baskets.”
Despite going a span of 4 minutes and 28 seconds in the fourth quarter without recording a point, the Eagles were still able to maintain their double digit lead because of their patience with the basketball and relentless defense — a staple that was missing while closing out the Eagles previous win over South Range.
“We took care of the basketball like we had worked on and we talked about at half time if we were up in the fourth quarter,” Mathias said. “We knew that they had to come after us so we spaced them out and had bigger gaps to go through and attack. We got about five or six easy layups there at the end of the game.”

Once United stretched the floor and made the Indians play their game again, the Eagles closed out the game on a 10-2 run.
“We snapped the ball around a little bit harder and a little bit crisper and the girls were confident because they were in the rhythm of the game,” Mathias said. “And you can't complain about holding a team under 30 points in the district semifinal.”
Game notes
• Cassidy Yoder returned to the Eagles' lineup after missing one game with a foot injury. Yoder tallied five points.
“It helps out with our depth because Cassidy played a lot last year and logged a ton of minutes,” Mathias said. “So it helped having experience come off the bench. She didn't look like she missed a beat, either. She was watching the girls in practice and knew what we were doing.”
• Girard finished with an 18-7 record.

Stokes off to a good start

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — Leetonia High School graduate Cody Stokes made his first collegiate start on the mound a winning one.

Stokes, a freshman for the Mercyhurst North East baseball team, allowed only one run on six hits over seven innings in an 11-5 win over Johnson & Wales University at the Ripken Experience on Wednesday.

The Saints were leading 6-1 when he left the game.

HANOVERTON — United Local High School is selling presale tickets during regular school hours today in the office for the Div. III girls district final set for 2 p.m. Saturday at Mineral Ridge High School. United will meet Champion for the title.

Lackey labors as Red Sox rout Pirates 16-6

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Boston’s Jon Lackey retired the Pittsburgh Pirates on eight pitches in the first inning. Then he labored through a 35-pitch second inning.

“After the first inning being so quick, I definitely needed to throw a few pitches,” Lackey said after the Red Sox routed the Pittsburgh Pirates 16-6 Thursday. “It was more about getting up and down a couple times today. That was the biggest key for me.”

Lackey, who missed last season following elbow ligament-replacement surgery, was making his second spring training start. Pittsburgh took a 3-1 lead in the second when Brandon Inge and Clint Robinson singled, and Jared Goedert sent a curveball into the Red Sox bullpen beyond the left-field wall.

Lackey threw only fastballs in his one inning last weekend against Tampa Bay. He mixed in offspeed pitches against the Pirates.

Lance Berkman singles, scores twice in Texas debut

SURPRISE, Ariz. (AP) — Lance Berkman knows he has rust. He’s not sure how much.

Berkman singled, walked and scored two runs in his Rangers’ spring training debut, a 10-0 win over the Cleveland Indians on Thursday that gave Texas its first exhibition victory this year after an 0-5 start.

Limited to 32 games last year with St. Louis and coming off a pair of knee operations, Berkman was held out of the first six exhibition games because of a strained right calf.

“I’m about where you would expect after having not played last year and just having one game,” he said. “I saw the ball well. My timing is obviously not there yet. It was good to get the first one out of the way. Hopefully, I’ll get into a rhythm of playing, the timing will come and everything will stay together and I’ll be in good shape going into the season.”

A six-time All-Star, Berkman had just 81 at-bats last season.

“It’s the least number of at-bats I’ve had my entire life,” Berkman said. “And probably half of those were under duress and I didn’t have my legs under me. If two weeks from now I still feel like this, I’ll say, yeah, there is more rust that needs to come off. It’s not unusual to feel a little behind and trying to catch up to the fastball. The game is fast. You need your nervous system to kind of get acclimated to it.”

Berkman isn’t worried about his run production.

“Obviously at some point you’re not going to have it,” he said. “I don’t think that happens at 37 necessarily. I certainly don’t feel like I did when I was 25 or 26. That doesn’t mean I can’t be competitive and be the same kind of hitter. I’m not that worried about it.”

Boxer Chavez Jr. suspended, fined over drug test

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Nevada State Athletic Commission fined and suspended boxer Julio Cesar Chavez Jr. on Thursday over a failed drug test last year before a Mexican Independence Day fight in Las Vegas.

The popular, 27-year-old fighter, who’s the son of a famous boxer by the same name, tested positive for marijuana in September after his first professional loss. Chavez (46-1-1) was suspended for nine months from the date of the fight and fined $900,000, which amounts to 30 percent of his $3 million purse for the bout against Sergio Martinez.

Chavez, who spoke by phone from Mexico, said through a translator that he was sorry for his actions and had taken the drug to curb his stress eight or nine days before the much-anticipated fight.

“I know I committed a big error. It was a mistake,” Chavez told the five commissioners. “I let a lot of people down.”

The commission could have banned him for one year and penalized him for up to 100 percent of his purse.

However, his lawyer, Donald Campbell, asked for leniency, arguing that the marijuana wasn’t a performance enhancing drug. He also said Chavez deserved credit for acknowledging that he used the drug.

“I’d like to fight as soon as I can,” Chavez said. “But I’m willing to accept anything you guys have because, like I said, I made a mistake, and I’m willing to take the punishment.”

Chavez’s failed test was revealed shortly after his dramatic loss to Martinez Sept. 15 in front of a sellout crowd of 19,000. Chavez already was fined $20,000 and suspended indefinitely by the WBC, whose belt he lost to Martinez.

In 2009, Chavez tested positive for another banned substance after his fight with Troy Rowland in Las Vegas. He received a seven-month suspension from the Nevada commission.

Indians lower concession prices for 2013

CLEVELAND (AP) — A hot dog and a beer will cost less at Cleveland’s Progressive Field this year.

So will nachos, pretzels, popcorn, pizza and bratwursts.

The Cleveland Indians announced the rollback of concession prices on Thursday. Team president Mark Shapiro said it came in response to fans who have called for more affordable food and drink at the ballpark.

The team said hot dogs will start at $3 — a 33 percent reduction — and 12-ounce domestic beers will be $4, a drop of 24 percent, during the 2013 season.

Prices of nachos, pretzels, popcorn, pizza and bratwursts will drop by 25 percent. Plus, soda refills will be only $2.

Plus, the number of $1 hot dog nights at the stadium will increase to 15 — six more than last season.

Cavaliers growing up fast

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cavaliers center Tyler Zeller slipped on his cute “Dora the Explorer” backpack, grabbed the handles of the pink stroller carrying his baby doll and headed out of Quicken Loans Arena after a win over Toronto.

It was time to go home.

But not before some humiliation.

Such is life for an NBA rookie, who must tolerate some playful hazing through the course of a season. But in less than two months, Zeller and teammates Dion Waiters and Kevin Jones can ditch the new toys given to them by Cavs coach Byron Scott as a reminder that they have some growing up to do.

And after a rough start, the young Cavs have done just that.

“We’re just playing ball,” Waiters, the No. 4 overall pick in last year’s draft said after scoring 23 points against the Raptors. “We’re growing every game.”

Now three seasons since LeBron James last wore Cleveland’s wine and gold, the Cavs are showing signs of becoming a contending team again. They went 7-5 in February, their first winning month since March 2010, and are 4-1 since the All-Star break with the only loss by four points in Miami against James and the defending champion Heat, who have won 12 straight.

The Cavs are scoring, sharing the ball and playing good defense. It took a little time, but it’s coming together.

An early-season stagger has given way to swagger.

“It’s night and day when you talk about November-December and January-February and the way we’re playing,” said Scott, in his third season with Cleveland. “It takes time. They’re young and they’ve got to get to know each other and they’ve got to understand what this game is all about. They’ve got to understand it’s ‘we’ and not ‘me.’

“That’s always big when you’ve got a bunch of young guys, and they’re starting to really understand that.”

On Wednesday, the Cavs won their second game in a row without All-Star point guard Kyrie Irving, who has a hyperextended right knee. Cleveland ended an 11-game losing streak against Chicago earlier in the week and followed it by shaking off a horribly slow start — the Cavs opened 1 of 15 from the field — to beat the Raptors.

Waiters, averaging 19.8 points and 54 percent shooting since the break, had another strong game and the Cavs got major contributions from second-year forward Tristan Thompson (14 points, 8 rebounds), Shaun Livingston (15 points), Wayne Ellington

All-Star caliber season before undergoing knee surgery and developing a blood clot in his lung.

They are far from a finished product, but with a talented, young core led by the marvelous 20-year-old Irving — and two first-round draft picks this season, the Cavs may be close to moving back in among the Eastern Conference’s top teams.

“It reminds me of 1986,” said former majority owner Gordon Gund, who attended Wednesday’s game. “We had four rookies all starting on that team, too, in Brad Daugherty, ‘Hot Rod’ Williams, Mark Price and Ron Harper, which was a darn good group. This reminds me very much of that. If they get the playing time, they’re going to get much better, and Byron is willing to let them do that.”

“The more time they get, the better they’ll get.”

Scott has mostly been patient with his young team, which got a huge boost when general manager Chris Grant acquired Ellington, center Marreese Speights and a future first-round pick from Memphis in January. However, there have been times when Scott wondered if the Cavs would ever learn.

He stayed on them, and in recent weeks, they’ve shown an attention to detail that has allowed the Cavs to pull out some tight wins.

“We’ve been a little bit more focused,” Scott said. “When you’re right there, when you give yourselves an opportunity to win, that to me is showing progress, especially against some of the teams we’ve played. To be able to go on the last road trip and talk to the guys about winning two of three and our guys were able to do that, that’s a big confidence-booster.”

DEVILS FROM 1B

night, Thompson was informed that the decision had been appealed and reversed.

Wellsville Athletic Director Don Elliott said both schools called the Ohio High School Athletic Association in Columbus, and the case was put under administrative review.

“We got confirmation that they’re all eligible,” Elliott said.

Toronto played its tournament opener on Wednesday, a 72-37 loss to Malvern, with its full roster.

“I’m glad it’s over with,” Thompson said. “It really wasn’t anything. The referee went overboard. He called both coaches to mid-court and I thought he was going to tell us to make sure our kids calmed down. But then he said they were all ejected. I couldn’t believe it.”

The eligibility of the Wellsville players probably wasn’t welcome news for Western Reserve fans. The Blue Devils are set to face the Tigers at 6 p.m. Saturday in a Division IV sectional final at the Struthers Fieldhouse.

“From what I understood, it was mostly bench kids that were ejected,” Western Reserve coach Tom King said. “They don’t play a whole lot of people anyway. I didn’t figure it would be a big factor either way.”

The Blue Devils (9-14) earned a date with the Tigers (19-3) by way of a 53-43 victory on Tuesday against Heartland Christian. Western Reserve trailed by as many as 11 points in the first half of that game.

“It was the tale of two halves,” King said. “That’s kind of been the story of our team this year. We play one good half, but can’t always put together a full game. We can’t have that against a team like Wellsville.”

The Tigers earned the No. 1 seed in the Struthers district and also captured a share of the Inter-Tri County League’s lower tier title, the team’s first in five seasons.

“We’ve got to guard their shooters,” King said.

Smith points Buckeyes to win over Wildcats

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Lenzelle Smith Jr. made his mark right from the start and Deshaun Thomas came up big down the stretch for Ohio State. Good thing for the Buckeyes, because they needed all of it.

Smith scored a season-high 24 points, Thomas added 19 and No. 16 Ohio State used a late run to beat Northwestern 63-53 on Thursday night.

The Buckeyes (21-7, 11-5 Big Ten) moved one-half game ahead of Michigan and took sole possession of fourth place in the Big Ten with another difficult win over a team that's given them fits in recent years.

This time, they led by 11 points early in the second half and regrouped after Northwestern took the lead, sending the Wildcats (13-16, 4-12) to their sixth straight loss and eighth in nine games.

"I give them tremendous credit, with all the injuries they've faced," Ohio State coach Thad Matta said. "They've kind of been knocked down a couple times."

Northwestern lost two of its best players — Drew Crawford and Jared Swopshire — to season-ending injuries and that was after guard JerShon Cobb was suspended for the season for violating team policy. It's added up to a difficult season, but the Wildcats again found a way to make the Buckeyes sweat.

Northwestern led by a point twice in the second half and was up 49-48 with about 4 minutes remaining after a 3-pointer by Reggie Hearn. But Ohio State outscored the Wildcats 15-4 the rest of the way.

Thomas scored six points during that stretch, and the Buckeyes took advantage of three straight turnovers to come away with a tight win.

Smith scored 14 points in the first half and had five of Ohio State's 10 field goals, including four 3-pointers, as the Buckeyes grabbed a seven-point lead. He was 7 of 13 overall and hit 6 of 11 3s in the game, and the Buckeyes avoided another Big Ten upset after No. 1 Indiana lost to Minnesota and Penn State upset No. 4 Michigan this week.

They also took a step toward a first-round bye in the conference tournament. Securing one won't be easy with a trip to Indiana next week and home game against Illinois looming, but the Buckeyes did what they had to do in this one after squeezing by Northwestern two weeks earlier.

"When me and Deshaun are both connecting on the offensive end I feel like we're a very dangerous team," Smith said. "Obviously we have the second option when I'm going and then we get other guys going."

Tre Demps led Northwestern with 14 points. Dave Sobolewski finished with 13 after scoring a total of 12 in the previous three games — all blowout losses.

HOROSCOPE

Underwater Skies

Seven luminaries in water signs and the recent flirtation between Venus and King Neptune send a wash of artistic vibrations over the environment. The soul has senses beyond the body. Use them. Strong emotions will stir up new attractions. Let bold creativity burst forth. Express yourself, and enjoy the expressions of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You mastered the art of being an exciting person long before you knew it was an art. You might say that excitement just comes with the territory of being an Aries. Others expect it from you now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You've heard that times are tough, but you must be tougher than the times, because you go forward undaunted -- maybe even a little pushy. If anything, the times seem to be intimidated by you today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You create loveliness in your personal environment, and not because you're an artistic elitist but because it's life affirming to do so. Through the beautiful tone you set, you'll help others feel good.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Feelings come and go. If you have someone in your life whose love for you is more constant than the passing emotions of the moment, that is something to celebrate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). As you stroll a rather ordinary setting, you'll feel out of place. True, you were meant for the extraordinary. But sometimes it's up to you to make the environmental transformation happen.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The expression is true: The days are long, but the years are short. What can you do for 15 minutes a day that, by this time next year, will have added up to something remarkable?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You can be sure that your presence is a comfort to someone. You've suspected this, but it's wonderful to hear it outright and to feel the truth of it. You'll love knowing that you've helped.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Some people wish they knew what others were thinking. You're different. You have a pretty good sense of what others are thinking, not to mention feeling, and you're not always sure you want to know.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). When you participate in nature, you do not do so as an outsider and curator of the wild. You are nature, too. At least for some of the time, you will feel at peace with your place in the natural order.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your mind is open. That doesn't mean it's empty. It is more challenging to be open-minded when you know as much about the world as you do. But you succeed in this because you let your curiosity lead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Just because you believe an idea to be true doesn't mean you shouldn't question it. You'll have to poke around a bit for the truth, but when you find it, the sunshiny light will pour in.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It amazes you that people often don't know what will make them happy. Part of the reason is that there is so much misinformation in the world on the subject. You'll educate someone on the matter today.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 1). The warm, playful air about you attracts like-minded friends. The needs of your heart will be met in your professional life in April. You could even move for work and find that your new environs are just what were needed for personal success. June begins a deep renovation. Thankful loved ones celebrate you in August. Scorpio and Sagittarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 30, 2, 38 and 11.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST:

ARIES: Mental pursuits that you take on will cast you in a very attractive light. TAURUS: Stay true. Your loyalty will be rewarded over time. GEMINI: Alone, you'll get stuck on a project, but you'll be proud of what you can accomplish once you invite a partner to help. CANCER: A rare rowdy mood could inspire you to follow the bright lights and noise of the crowd. LEO: A small dose of fear will bring a delicious adrenaline rush to your romantic picture. VIRGO: Your gentle, patient way conveys strength. Someone opens up to you because of this. LIBRA: You may be concerned about your image and take extra care with the way you look, but what a loved one really cares about is the way you look at him (or her). SCORPIO: Be happy, or be right? Choose one. SAGITTARIUS: If you really saw a person in the ordinary light of reality, you might not fall so deeply in love. But what would be the fun in that? CAPRICORN: Realizing that you don't need someone will make you relax around that person. AQUARIUS: Someone responds amorously to your purposefulness, focus and determination. PISCES: When in doubt, take a deep breath and smile. You're hotter that way.

Car seat guidelines

his or her first birthday and should weigh at least 20-22 pounds.

— Ages 1-3 years old can be placed in a front-facing car seat once they have outgrown the weight and height limits of the rear-facing car seat. It is recommended to keep a child rear-facing as long as possible, though.

— Ages 4-7 years old and 40 pounds and above can be moved into a booster seat using the adult lap and shoulder belt.

— Around age 8, children start to outgrow their booster seat and can use only the adult safety belt, so long as it fits them properly.

Often people ask, "Should a child ride in the front seat?" Laws vary, but for safety, it is recommended that a child under 12 sits in the back seat. For more information, you can visit the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's new website, dedicated to keeping children safe in and around cars. Go to www.safercar.gov, or call 1-888-327-4236. — Heloise P.S.: Don't buy a used car seat!

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: When traveling, I always have the phone numbers to the credit cards I am carrying. I also keep a copy of the credit-card numbers at home with someone I trust (e.g., my daughter, son, etc.). This way, if my cards are lost or stolen, I can call the company immediately and not give anyone a chance to use them. I can get the credit-card numbers if needed from my backup. — Teresa, via email

INSURANCE ASSURANCE

Dear Heloise: At the beginning of the year, I called to set up a doctor's appointment. The receptionist asked what insurance I had. She said they were renewing their contracts with insurance companies and wanted to make sure they still took mine. I have never been asked that before on the phone (once I am an established patient). So my hint to your readers is to check with their doctors when making an appointment, even if their insurance hasn't changed. I wouldn't have wanted to find out they no longer took my insurance when I showed up for my appointment! — Charlotte in New York

DOGGIE REMINDER

Dear Heloise: Whenever we let our dog outdoors to tend to her necessary needs, we always set the timer for five minutes, then fetch her in to our warm home (or cool home when too hot in summer heat). As we all know, there are times when we are too involved and time passes too quickly, and we may forget our pets. — Pat F. in Minnesota

Suspects dad's death an assisted suicide

DEAR ABBY: I'm convinced my father's wife killed him and I don't know where to turn. He had fought complications from quadruple bypass surgery for a few years, and had been in hospice for months prior to his death. My siblings and I didn't put all the pieces together until afterward.

Although I'm sure Dad was killed, based on facts and discussions with social workers, I'm pretty sure it was assisted suicide, which is illegal in most states, including the state where he lived. I feel cheated and angry at my father's wife for not having the guts to talk to us about his plans, and Dad for relying on her to tell us when she never had a good relationship with any of us. I'm also angry with myself for not stopping what I witnessed as it happened before my eyes. How could I have been so blind?

It has been several years now, and I still feel guilty for letting it happen, although I'm not sure how I could have stopped it. Your thoughts would be appreciated. — ANGRY SON IN GEORGIA

DEAR ANGRY SON: I'm sorry for your pain and anger, emotions that are not uncommon when a loved one dies. But for your own sake, accept that if your father had an advance health care directive, and trusted his wife to carry it out, then she was following his wishes. While today's medical interventions can prolong someone's life, they can also prolong death.

Hospice offers grief counseling for family members for a period of time after a death occurs, and you and your siblings should have received some. It would have helped you to stop blaming the wife, and let go of any negative feelings so you could go on with your life. And that, I assure you, is what your father would have wanted.

DEAR ABBY: My sister "Mary" was in a car accident when she was in her 20s that left her with some brain damage. She appears normal, but has trouble with interpersonal relations, boundaries and impulse control. Overall, her behavior varies from acceptable to belligerent. When she was evaluated by professionals years ago, our family was advised to set standards for her behavior as near to normal as possible.

When we go to restaurants, Mary has a hard time deciding what to order, often engaging the server in an uncomfortable, long conversation about the alternatives. When her meal arrives, she is rarely satisfied with her choice and makes a scene over her dissatisfaction to the server. If we try to intervene, she becomes even more belligerent.

She looks forward to going out and we love her dearly. We would hate to exclude her from these family outings, but we don't know what to do. Can you help? — IMPOSSIBLE TO DIGEST IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR IMPOSSIBLE TO DIGEST: Because you were told to "set standards" for your sister as near to normal as possible, that's what you should be doing. Before you take her out for a meal, explain to her what the ground rules are. If she acts out, do as you would with an unruly child and leave the restaurant until she regains control of herself.

Because of her impairment, she may need extra help with her menu choices. Luckily, many restaurants now post their menus online. If you print one out and go over it with Mary, you might be able to make the process of ordering easier for her. I can't promise it will work, but it's certainly worth a try.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips.

Should reader worry about B-12 level?

Dr. Keith Roach

treating it with a daily dose of 20 mg of omeprazole for the past 10 years. Last year, I read that omeprazole can inhibit the body's ability to absorb vitamin B-12. I had my B-12 level checked to see if I was deficient. I wasn't. In fact, my B-12 blood level was about 30 points higher than the "normal" range, which as I recall topped out at 900 mg/dl.

My primary-care physician said, "There's nothing to worry about." A GI doctor said that he wasn't concerned either.

Because everything I've read on the subject indicates that excessive levels of B-12 could be an indicator of other disorders, I'm scared. Should I see a hematologist for further testing? — C.R.

ANSWER: The "normal" range for a given laboratory result is based on the range that is found in healthy individuals. Almost all characteristics you can think of — height, weight, blood pressure — have a range of values. The "normal" is defined as where 95 percent of healthy people will fall. That means that 5 percent of healthy people will be outside the range, even though there is nothing wrong with them. That almost certainly is what is happening with you.

Omeprazole and drugs like it do cause a slight, probably insignificant drop in B-12 levels. However, true B-12 deficiency from these medications hasn't been seen.

It is true that diseases associated with destruction of liver or white blood cells can cause these cells to release their B-12 into the blood. When I have seen this, the B-12 level was in the several-thousand range, and there were many other blood abnormalities. I think it's very unlikely that anything like that is going on with you.

The booklet on heartburn explains GERD, a common disorder. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Roach — No. 501, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR ROACH: I'm a diabetic, and three weeks ago I had my appendix removed. The surgeon said it was very large and had attached itself to my liver. I know the liver plays a big part in blood sugar control. Since then, my blood sugar has fallen by 50 percent. My insulin dose has gone from 100 units per day to 15-20. The surgeon thought I could have had a low-grade infection for some time, causing problems. What do you think? — G.R.

ANSWER: I think your surgeon is exactly right. A chronic infection can cause a big increase in your insulin needs, and the only way to restore it is to cure the infection. The only way to cure a chronic, smoldering appendicitis, or abscess around the appendix, is to get rid of it. A sudden increase in insulin needs can mean a hidden infection.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGood-Health@med.cornell.edu or request an order form of available health newsletters or mail questions to P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Health newsletters may be ordered from www.rbmamall.com.

Urges regular kidney checkups

was sure there couldn't be anything wrong. Imagine the shock when the blood tests showed I had stage-four kidney disease. I was dangerously close to needing dialysis or a kidney transplant, but I had no clue that I'd been suffering from a silent killer.

Kidney disease often goes undetected because symptoms may not appear until the kidneys are actually failing. One in three American adults is at risk due to high blood pressure or diabetes, two of the leading causes. The good news is that early detection and proper treatment can slow the progression.

My battle with kidney disease has turned me into a fitness guru and an advocate for kidney patients. I now do something active every day. By following a careful diet and working closely with my doctors to manage my high blood pressure, I have been able to prevent further damage. Maintaining a healthy lifestyle and positive attitude can affect your medical prognosis in the best possible way. I can attest to it.

Will you please encourage your readers to get their kidneys checked? March is National Kidney Month and March 14th is World Kidney Day. The National Kidney Foundation is urging Americans to learn about risk factors and get their kidneys checked with a simple urine and blood test. For more information on these tests and staying healthy, and for a schedule of free kidney health screenings across the country, please suggest that your readers visit the National Kidney Foundation at kidney.org. — Leslie Field, Bradbury, Calif.

Dear Leslie Field: Thank you for reminding our readers how important it is to get regular checkups to make sure their systems are running smoothly. More than 26 million Americans have kidney disease, and most don't know it. People often don't consider their kidney health, yet it can make a tremendous difference in the quality of one's life. We hope our readers will check the National Kidney Foundation website for more information.
