Quaker City kicks off new season today

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

SALEM — The gates open at 11 a.m. today when Quaker City Motorsports Park heads into its third year under the ownership of Norm Fox.

The famed quarter-mile drag strip is in its 56th year and the major upgrade is a brand new, laser-leveled, 330-foot starting line for racers to break in.

The track is located at 10255 South Range Road (state Route 165) and time trials will begin at 1 p.m. for test 'n tune, and there will be a gamblers race, and dial for dollars.

Fox said a new static aluminum-type main entrance sign will be installed along with new LED lighting in places.

A large portion of asphalt was also laid on the pit side just east of the main entrance.

Plans also call for relocating the grandstands from the spectator (west) side to the pit side. Fox said a mound is being built on which those stands will be set on and back just a little from the wall for safety.

Upcoming events include a Nostalgia Classic on May 26; a big bucks box/no box bonanza June 8-9; the Steel Valley Super Nats on June 21-23 and the Night of Lightning & Thunder on July 27. Fox said the track picked up the Curt George Memorial Weekend Mopar race from a Pittsburgh race track and that event will be held Aug. 17-18.

Quaker City Motorsports Park owner, Norm Fox, is set for his third year of running the famed drag strip three miles north of Salem on state Route 165. The track is 56-years-old and after setting new asphalt down track last year, Fox installed a new 330-foot concrete starting line that was just finished in time for today's opening. Below, the view from the timing and scoring tower clearly shows the new starting line. It took two weeks to rip out the old starting line and put in the new. Lasers were used to level it out and Fox said there was two-inch "belly" in it for years. (Salem News photos by Larry Shields)

Water line not included in W. High upgrade

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

Later this year, when the village undertakes a major upgrade of West High Street, it will do so without replacing the waterline.

The decision was made not to add the waterline replacement to the project because of the estimated extra $170,000 it would cost.

"We don't have that kind of money," said Mike Ours, senior water plant operator and water/sewer operations supervisor.

As part of Village Council's planned upgrade of West High Street, the Board of Public Affairs investigated replacing the 4-inch waterline with an 8-inch line since the street would already be torn up. Ours said they abandoned the plan after the engineering firm of Dallis Dawson & Associates determined it would cost $170,000 to incorporate the waterline as part of the project.

"I'm sure they don't have the money either," he said of council, which was confirmed by village Fiscal Officer Tracey Winner. "That's why we didn't add it in," she said.

The larger line would have improved water pressure along West High Street, but Ours said the pressure is adequate and they were motivated by the opportunity to replace an older waterline with a newer, larger one.

"It's been on the wish list for a long while, and I guess it'll be there for a while longer," he said. "The pressure is fine, but 4-inch lines are unheard of today. If you were putting in a line today it would have to be at least 8 inches."

The West High Street improvements will extend its entire length, from Thomas Road to North Beaver Street, a distance of 1,300

Circle K robber sentenced

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — A Salem man who robbed a Circle K at knife-point was sentenced by Columbiana County Common Pleas Court Judge C. Ashley Pike on Friday to four years in prison after it was determined he was ineligible for placement at the Eastern Ohio Correctional Center.

Travis Weese, 38, Southeast Boulevard, pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of robbery in March, nearly a year after he had been accused of using a knife to take less than $20 from the East State Street Circle K in Salem. He had asked for immediate sentencing when he pleaded in March, but sentencing had been placed on hold until it could be determined whether Weese would be eligible for the EOCC.

Workers find goldfish in nuclear plant tunnel

By the Associated Press

Operators of a nuclear reactor near Cleveland are reviewing security cameras and log books to find out who left a pair of goldfish in an underground steam tunnel at the plant.

The goldfish found swimming in a juice pitcher placed inside the secure area didn't pose a safety concern, but the episode is an embarrassment for the plant already under increased scrutiny for its worker training and procedures.

It's almost certain that an employee or contractor smuggled them into the Perry nuclear power plant alongside Lake Erie, said Jennifer Young, a spokeswoman for FirstEnergy Corp.

"This is not behavior that's acceptable," she said Friday.

Workers removing scaffolding inside the tunnel discovered the goldfish earlier this week. Normally when the plant is operating no one is allowed in that area because of the potential for radiation exposure, but the reactor has been shut down since mid-March for routine maintenance.

Tests found the goldfish were swimming in reactor water and only had slightly detectable radiation levels. But they died Thursday, most likely from a lack of care, Young said.

Plant officials suspect the goldfish — the type won at a carnival — were only in the tunnel a few days.

Nuclear regulators say they want to know more about what happened. "We're also looking at the way the plant is responding to the issue," said Viktoria Mityng, a spokeswoman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. "It is not a laughing matter."

The NRC has been keeping a close watch on the plant since 2011 when four contractors were briefly exposed to radiation.

Special inspectors spent months at the plant last year reviewing changes but regulators in January ordered the plant to make improvements in worker training and procedures. Akron-based FirstEnergy has said it has strengthened safety procedures and training for all employees.

The tunnel where the goldfish were found has pipes that carry heated steam out of the reactor building. Because there are security cameras in that area, there's a good chance that whoever left behind the goldfish was captured on video.

Investigators raid suspected Internet cafe

ONTARIO (AP) — Ohio's attorney general says state investigators searched a Richland County business suspected of operating as an illegal gambling establishment.

Attorney General Mike DeWine's office said Friday that agents with the Bureau of Criminal Investigation seized evidence, but made no arrests at the facility in Ontario. The investigation is ongoing.

DeWine recently formed an Internet Gaming Advisory Unit within his office to help local law enforcement and prosecutors' offices investigate and prosecute Internet sweepstakes cases. At Internet cafes, patrons buy cards for phone and Internet time with chances to play computer games that operate like slot machines with cash prizes.

DeWine calls the cafes illegal gambling operations. The industry calls the facilities legal.

The raids came after the 8th District Court of Appeals ruled that the operations were obvious gambling schemes.

Center Twp. seeks levy for fire truck

Staff Reports

LISBON — Center Township voters are again being asked to pass a new fire levy, this time in the amount of 1.23 mills, to help pay for the purchase of a new fire truck.

The five-year levy to appear on the May 7 ballot would run for five years and generate about $60,000 annually, which would be saved over that period until $300,000 is accumulated to help pay for the township's share of the new pumper.

Center and Elkrun townships contract with the Lisbon Fire Department for fire services, and as such the townships are helping purchase the new pumper, with Center Township's share being $300,000. Elkrun Township voters approved a new fire levy three years ago for the same purpose.

Township trustees say they have no intention of seeking the levy's renewal at the end of the five years and the goal of raising $300,000 has been reached. The township has two existing fire levies that total 0.7 mills, which generate a combined $28,000, almost all of which is used to contract with Lisbon.

The levy would raise property taxes by $37 for the owner of a $100,000 home.

This is the second time the trustees have sought passage of the fire levy. Township voters rejected the measure when it was being run as a 1.3-mill levy in the November 2012 election.

OUR SIDE

Incorrect information taking on life of its own

The desire to know sometimes trumps perspective, and it happens more and more in the high-speed world of social networks and instant Internet news.

Bombs went off at the Boston Marathon, killing three and injuring 264, followed during the same week by letters suspected of containing the deadly poison ricin being intercepted in the mail to President Obama and a senator.

And the desire to know led to misinformation being disseminated at the speed of light along the social networks.

Wrong information takes on a life of its own, leading to confusion and eventually the kinds of conspiracy theories that lead to people committing more acts of terror in the future.

First came a wrong report that police had made an arrest in Boston on April 17. It would have been wonderful if they had, because that would have prevented the night of gunfire, death and mayhem that followed on April 18, spilling into the evening of April 19.

And when one of the suspected terrorists was caught bleeding in a boat in backyard storage, initial reports that spread like wildfire indicated he had fired on police at that point. Later, as the fog of the hunt dissipated, the issue of gunfire in those final moments became unclear.

In Mississippi, an Elvis impersonator's name was tossed about as the man was run into the court system. There was one problem: The evidence of ricin linked to him was lacking. The charges were dismissed, but could be refilled if the feds find better evidence. Over the weekend, charges were filed against another man.

The issue is that information is treated too much like a fast-moving commodity without thought for just what the details may mean. Once something is hinted at by a source, it spreads like wildfire to countless computer and smartphone and tablet screens.

Perspective is lacking, as well as the brief breather to process information.

Authorities are doing as much reporting as the reporters used to. It wasn't just that the news media and all the folks on the social networks were getting it wrong. The authorities themselves didn't have enough time to process what they were saying and doing, resulting in a disjointed and confusing flow of information. In a week where actions and words blurred into one and the same thing, it was easy to understand how major pieces of information were both acted upon incorrectly and disseminated incorrectly.

There are no safeguards possible against such situations in the future. It's the high-speed fog of war descended upon the flow of information meant for people far from the battlefield. And that means we'll see more instances of the incorrect taking on a life of its own.

Call it immigration deformed

CAL THOMAS

There's the story of a woman with five kids who was asked if she had to do it all over again would she have five children?

"Yes," she said, "just not these five."

That's the way I feel about the immigration "reform" bill introduced by the Senate's bipartisan "Gang of 8." I'm all for an immigration bill, just not this immigration bill — at least in its present form.

One of the "gang" members, Sen. Marco Rubio (R-FL), indicated the bill has problems that need fixing when he said in a recent interview: "Let's try to fix it. Let's try to change it, but to just say let's defeat the whole thing; I don't think that's a productive approach either. I think this is a starting point that obviously we can and should improve."

There is much to improve, maybe too much. The Daily Caller read through all 844 pages of the pending bill and found it contains "roughly 400 exemptions, exceptions, waivers, determinations and grants of discretion." In fact, the Caller found, "The document mentions 'discretion' or 'discretionary' 41 times ... 'judge' or 'judges' 73 times ... determines is used 84 times." This bill has more holes in it than a Texas border fence.

Responding to a report by Ronald Mortensen, a fellow at the Center for Immigration Studies, which analyzed the Senate proposal, the center's executive director, Mark Krikorian, offered, "Illegal aliens will be rewarded for breaking laws for which American citizens are routinely punished."

He cites as one example the use of a fraudulent Social Security card, which, he says, would cause an American citizen to face up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine, but, he says, "...under this bill the illegal alien would face a $1,000 penalty covering all his many offenses, a penalty which in many cases will be waived."

According to Krikorian, the individual would then be "issued a new Social Security number without any past bad credit or arrest records." What's with all the preferential treatment?

Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-AL), a member of the Gang of 8, said in a statement to Breitbart News, "The Gang of 8 made a promise that illegal immigrants will not be able to access public benefits. We already know that, once granted green cards and ultimately citizenship, illegal immigrants will be able to access all public benefit programs at a great cost to taxpayers. We have, however, identified a number of loopholes that would allow illegal immigrants to draw public benefits even sooner than advertised." Sen. Jeff Flake (R-AR.) disagrees. So let's close up the loopholes and debate it on the Senate floor.

Additional public benefits for illegal immigrants should not be seen as far-fetched, given a Boston Herald report about the family of the accused Boston Marathon bombers, whose residency may have been legal, but whose behavior was not: "The Tsarnaev family, including the suspected terrorists and their parents, benefited from more than $100,000 in taxpayer-funded assistance — a bonanza ranging from cash and food stamps to Section 8 housing from 2002 to 2012." These were able-bodied people. Why did they receive benefits? What loophole did the Tsarnaev family slip through?

Attorney General Eric Holder has taken the issue of breaking the law to new depths. In an April 24 speech to the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Holder said that creating a "pathway to earned citizenship" is a "civil right." If that's so, why deny anyone from coming to America, even from nations that breed terrorists?

As it stands, the bill is unlikely to pass. That's why Sen. Rubio is right about the need to fix it. If he were to introduce an amendment to ban an illegal from voting for 10 years, we might see Democratic support for the measure quickly fade. The Democratic Party appears interested in "importing" new Democratic voters. Illegal immigrants know this, which leads many of them to believe that even if they break the law to get here, they have a "right" to become American citizens. I don't think so, do you?

OTHER VOICES

May 1 — Los Angeles Times

on erasing the stain of Guantanamo:

At his news conference Tuesday, President Obama made a powerful plea for ending the humanitarian and diplomatic disaster created by the continued detention of more than 160 prisoners at Guantanamo Bay, more than 100 of whom are engaged in a hunger strike that necessitated the dispatch of an emergency medical team. The problem is that Obama has contributed to the crisis by acquiescing in congressional obstruction of his promise to close the facility. ...

It has been more than four years since the newly inaugurated president issued an executive order promising "promptly to close detention facilities at Guantanamo." Yet the prison remains open (though its population has dwindled from a high of nearly 800 inmates in 2005). Of those remaining, about half have been cleared for release but continue to be detained because of congressional opposition to their repatriation to Yemen and other countries whose authorities might not be able to prevent them from engaging in terrorism. Congress also has used its authority to prevent Obama from transferring detainees to the U.S. mainland, a factor in the decision to try Khalid Shaikh Mohammed and other alleged 9/11 conspirators before a military commission rather than in civilian courts.

But Congress isn't entirely to blame. ...

Before Obama's news conference, Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.) had urged the administration to renew its efforts to transfer from Guantanamo the 86 inmates cleared for release three years ago by an interagency task force. Obama should do so, ideally with congressional cooperation but unilaterally if necessary.

Guantanamo is a stain on this nation's reputation, not because of where it is located but because the men held captive there are languishing in a legal limbo that would be just as hopeless if they were transplanted to American soil. Notwithstanding Obama's comments about the un-American nature of indefinite detention, more than 40 inmates are being held without the prospect of even a military trial. As he "re-engages" with Congress, Obama should also reconsider his own decision to deny those detainees their day in court.

The Camp Bastion cover-up by the White House

MICHELLE MALKIN

Do you remember what happened last year on 9/14? Where are the White House phone calls for the families who continue to grieve? What is being done to prevent another fatal attack like the one on 9/14? And why is the full truth being withheld from the American public?

Benghazi isn't the only bloody disaster being covered up by the Obama administration. As I reported in a series of columns and blog posts last fall, three days after the deadly siege on our consulate in Libya, the Taliban waged an intricately coordinated, brutal attack on Camp Bastion in Afghanistan. Two heroic U.S. Marines -- Lt. Col. Christopher Raible and Sgt. Bradley Atwell -- were killed in the battle. Many surviving Marines have been honored for their brave, quick-thinking actions to save their comrades and civilians caught in the crossfire.

Family members are angry that military brass are still trying to suppress details of the fateful budget and strategic decisions that led to the attack. But they won't stay silent. "This is political," one Camp Bastion relative told me this week. "Just like Benghazi, they don't want people to know."

In case you were sleeping or had forgotten: The meticulously coordinated siege at Camp Bastion by 15 Taliban infiltrators -- dressed in American combat fatigues and armed with assault rifles, rocket-propelled grenades and other weapons -- resulted not only in two deaths and nearly a dozen injuries, but also in the most devastating loss of U.S. airpower since Vietnam. Camp Bastion is Britain's main military base in Afghanistan; it's adjacent to our Marines' Camp Leatherneck.

Eight irreplaceable U.S. aircraft were destroyed or put out of action during the raid. A trio of refueling stations was decimated; a half-dozen hangars were damaged. The attack came exactly six months after a failed jihadi suicide attack targeting former Defense Secretary Leon Panetta.

Camp Bastion family members are hearing that U.S. and British military leaders left their loved ones vulnerable to attack by outsourcing watchtower security on the base to soldiers from Tonga, who were known to fall asleep on the job. Deborah Hatheway, aunt of Sgt. Atwell and the family's spokesperson, is naming names and mincing no words. She says Major General Charles "Mark" Gurganus, who recently returned to the U.S. after commanding coalition forces in Afghanistan, was ultimately responsible for skimping on security patrols. "He might as well have made it easier for the Taliban by cutting the perimeter fence himself and putting out the welcome mat," Hatheway told me.

This is the same Gurganus who ordered Marines to disarm -- immediately after the failed jihadi attack on Panetta last year -- because he wanted them "to look just like our (unarmed) Afghan partners."

Hatheway says her family has learned that "it took over an hour before any of the other coalition forces arrived to help the Marines, who were already engaged with the terrorists and had it under control." In addition, she says, they've learned that those on the ground did not have "proper protective gear available ... or properly functioning weapons."

Bastion families have raised questions with politicians and Pentagon officials in Washington, but are being forced to jump through Freedom of Information Act hoops to get to the bottom of the story. If ever.

In the meantime, a few officers in the know have begun leaking to the press. A little-noticed article by Washington Post reporter Rajiv Chandrasekaran two weeks ago reported that "several officials with direct knowledge of the assault said in recent interviews that staffing decisions by U.S. and British commanders weakened the base's defenses, making it easier for the insurgents to reconnoiter the compound and enter without resistance."

Cue the stonewalling. According to the Post, "When the House Armed Services Committee asked to see the initial Marine security review earlier this year, senior officers on the Pentagon's Joint Staff deemed it insufficient for release and ordered the Marines to conduct a fuller review, military officials said. But that examination still fell short of an official investigation." Neither the Marine Corps nor NATO plans to release the results of their separate investigations -- in part, the Post reports, "to avoid embarrassing the British for leaving towers unmanned."

feet. In addition to a new and improved blacktop road surface, concrete gutters will be replace the brick gutter system starting at the high school. This will better direct rain runoff east to storm sewers near North Beaver Street.

West High Street parallels the rear entrance of the high school, and at one time council had envisioned widening the road and putting in sidewalks to make it like look like West Pine Street, which runs past the front of the school. But those items were dropped, too, because of the costs.

"There was a Cadillac version of the project, but that was scaled down to address just the drainage problem" because council considered that the biggest priority and needing addressed the most, Wonner said.

The project is to cost an estimated $317,289, with a state grant secured by the village to cover a portion of the expense, with Columbiana County commissioners contributing $249,600 of its 2013 federal Community Block Grant allocation to help cover the rest.

School closes because of nice weather

SEATTLE (AP) — In sun-deprived Washington state, the promise of nice spring weather prompted a small private school to give students a day off to enjoy the sunshine. Friday is a "sun day" of sorts for the 205 students at Bellingham Christian School, a small, private, nondenominational Christian school in Bellingham, Wash., about 90 miles north of Seattle.

"SCHOOL CANCELLED DUE TO GREAT WEATHER! WAHOOO!" the school's website announced Thursday night. "Yeah! It's a Sun Day today and everyone gets the day off from school."

Principal Bob Sampson said he wanted to give students some time to re-energize and enjoy the weather, adding that he wanted to recreate the excitement snow days get among the kids. He began teasing the possibility of giving the day off earlier in the week. "In a world that's got a lot hard things going, it's fun to create a moment of joy," Sampson said.

The forecast for Western Washington calls for a week-end of sunshine, with highs hitting the low 80s in some areas on Sunday.

Leetonia man accused of killing ducks arraigned

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

LISBON — The Leetonia man accused in the death of two pet ducks at the Columbiana McDonald's parking lot by striking them with his vehicle was arraigned in Columbiana County Municipal Court on Friday morning.

Appearing with his attorney Walter Newton, Jose D. E. Ramos IV, 21, Columbia Street, Leetonia, pleaded not guilty to cruelty to animals. He signed a time waiver for a speedy trial and a pretrial was set for June 11.

Ramos reportedly has no criminal record and Judge Carol Robb set bond at $1,000 recognizance. The charge is a second-degree misdemeanor.

Ramos turned himself in to Columbiana police on Thursday after learning from relatives a warrant has been issued for his arrest. Police have said he admitted to running over the two ducks on Tuesday, but had not intended to do so. One was killed immediately, and the other reportedly died of its injuries.

Court documents allege Ramos stopped for the ducks, impatiently sounded his horn, revved his engine and then disregarded a witnesses' efforts to disperse the animals for him. It further accuses his of killing one duck and mutilating another.

The Swedish ducks, Sophia and Melvin, were part of a five-duck flock owned by Don Snyder, who lives next door to the McDonald's. They were accidentally released from their enclosure by a surveyor working on Snyder's property, before they wandered into the McDonald's lot.

WEESE FROM 1A

a crime, while providing them with counseling. Weese and his defense attorney James Hartford had maintained throughout the hearings that Weese was off his medication for schizophrenia when he committed the crime.

"When he's on his meds he's a fine upstanding fellow," Hartford said, quoting the opinion of someone who has evaluated Weese.

In a statement read by Hartford, Weese claimed he had lost his ability to pay for prescriptions and was unable to pick up his medications. At an earlier hearing it was stated Weese had not picked up his prescriptions since Dec. 11, 2011. He walked into Circle K on March 25, 2012, a store he visited frequently and did not attempt to conceal his identity until he was already inside the store. That is when he went to the back of the store and put a shirt over his face before taking out the knife.

Hartford also quoted a police report filed by Jay Bennett, the clerk at the store, who reportedly told police he was not certain at first Weese was serious. A customer also reportedly had questioned whether the robbery was "for real."

Assistant County Prosecutor Tammie Riley Jones said the clerk may have thought Weese was kidding, until Weese stepped around the counter, placed a hand on Bennett's shoulder and pointed a knife at him. At that point, Jones said it was apparent the matter was serious. Bennett was in the courtroom but declined to say anything further about the matter.

Weese, who had the support of his mother and grandmother in the courtroom, asked for additional help for his mental health issues. He has reportedly received help from Heartland Behavior Center before and completed a group program at the county jail during his incarceration.

However, without eligibility for the EOCC, Pike noted his sentencing options were limited.

"Protecting the public is paramount in this case," Pike said.

He sentenced Weese to four years in prison, giving him credit for 404 days he has already served since the day of the crime. Pike further suggested Weese utilize any programs he qualifies for at the prison and keep his medications nearby.

8 IS ENOUGH

Clips need 8th inning to beat Heartland, 3-2

By CHRIS RAMBO
Staff Writer

COLUMBIANA—This season has been a rocky one for the Columbiana Clippers.

Baseball, however, offers a fresh opportunity each day, and the Clippers hope to have taken a step in the right direction with a 3-2 eight-inning win over Heartland Christian Friday at Firestone Park.

The Clippers got eight solid innings from sophomore Devin Rice—who improved his record to 2-1—and freshman Zach Martin scored the winning run on a fielding error as Columbiana improved to 6-9 on the season.

"We have a midnight rule on this team," Columbiana coach Scott Knox said. "Whatever happens during a game we try and forget about it by midnight and be ready for the next day. Things have been rough at times for us this year, but the good thing about baseball is that there are games everyday so there are plenty of chances to get better. To play in a close game like tonight and find a way to get it done was very nice for us."

With one out in the eighth inning, Heartland starting pitcher Phil Bell walked Steve Kurilla. Freshman Zach Martin came in as a pinch-runner, and right-hander Andy Sodergren came on in relief to face Ticen Martin.

Early in the at-bat, Zach Martin stole second and advanced to third on a throwing error. Sodergren then walked Ticen Martin to bring up sophomore Matt Weidner with runners at the corners and one out.

"In that situation, I was definitely protecting against a strikeout, that's the last thing you want to do," Weidner said. "I was looking for a fastball middle-in that I could just put in play."

With the count 1-1, Weidner hit a soft grounder to third, with Martin breaking for home. A play at the plate never occurred however be-

Crosby nets 2 in return, but Penguins fall, 4-3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sidney Crosby did what he always seems to do in big moments, scoring two quick goals in his return from a broken jaw.

He gave the Pittsburgh Penguins an early two-goal lead over the New York Islanders on Friday night. Then the Islanders responded, doing something they hadn't managed in six years: win a playoff game.

Kyle Okposo provided his teammates some inspiration with a well-timed fight in the second period, and he capped a compelling New York rally with winning goal with 7:37 to play. The Islanders' 4-3 win evened the playoff series at one game each.

Game 3 is Sunday at New York. And instead of heading to Nassau Coliseum in danger of being swept, the Islanders have the momentum after a resilient 60 minutes.

"Our guys, they're relentless," New York coach Jack Capuano said.

The Islanders needed to be after Crosby — wearing a plastic shield to protect the jaw he broke on March 30 — found the back of the net twice in the first 7:37.

For a moment, the Islanders bench flash backed to an ugly 5-0 loss in Game 1 when Pittsburgh struck for three early scores to take any drama out of the proceedings.

Capuano kept telling his players all it took was a bounce here or there to get back in it.

The critical bounce came in the third period. Okposo fired a shot wide of the net that caromed back to the crease, then rolled off Pittsburgh goaltender Marc-Andre Fleury and across the goal line to give New York its first playoff win since April 14, 2007 against Buffalo.

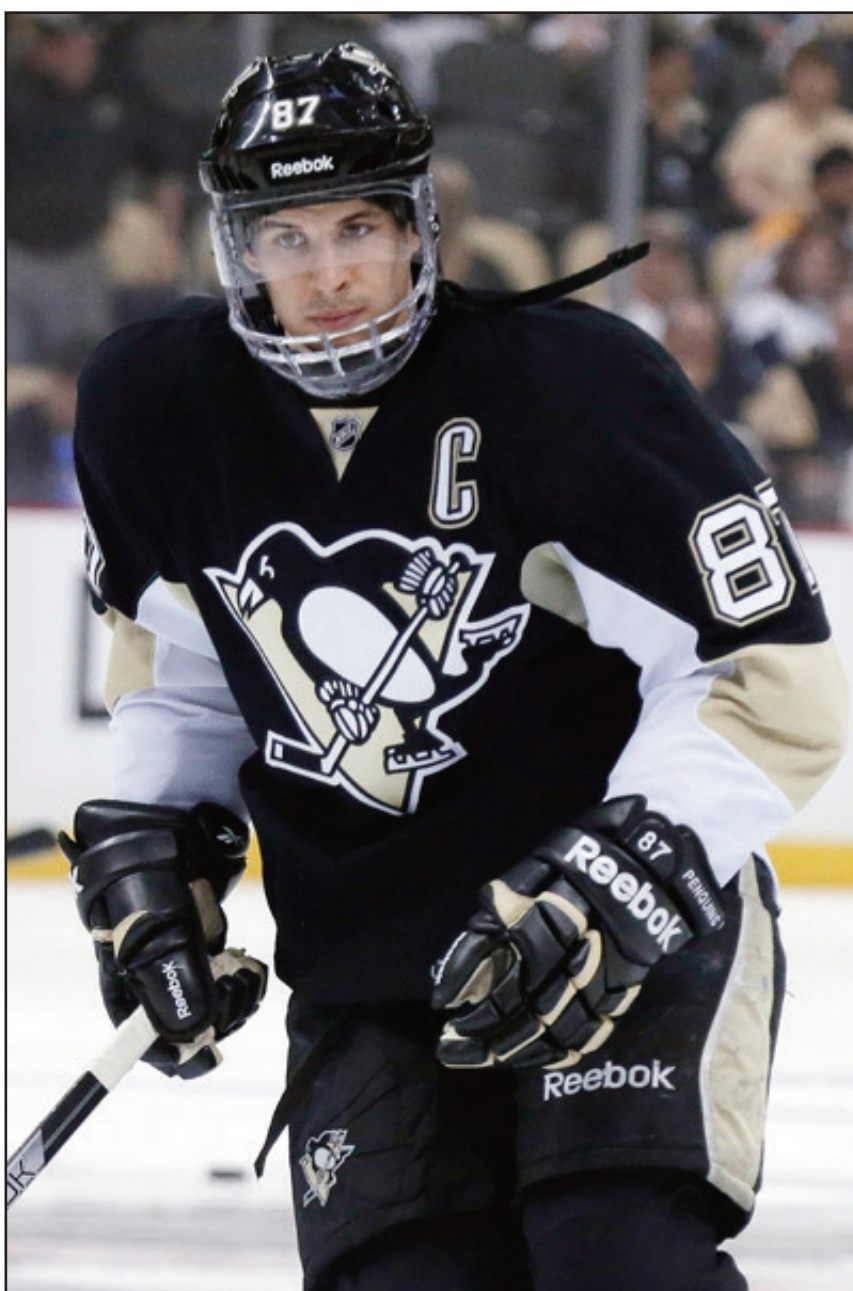

"We're in the series," Okposo said. "We just wanted to come out and let them know that we're not going away."

Matt Moulson, Colin McDonald and Matt Martin also scored for the Islanders.

Evgeni Nabokov overcame a sloppy start to make 30 saves as the youthful Islanders weathered the comeback of the NHL's best player.

Doctors cleared Crosby to play late Thursday and the arena erupted when his familiar No. 87 skated onto the ice. Adding the league's third-leading scorer to the lineup figured to make New York's task all

► HORSE RACING

Wide-open race expected in 139th Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A trainer flooding the field with five horses. A black jockey trying to make history, and a woman rider, too. Louisville coach Rick Pitino seeking a double — champions in racing and basketball. He's sure in the right place.

The 19-horse field for Saturday's Kentucky Derby is balanced, with no definitive favorite.

Orb is the pre-race choice, just barely. Nearly overshadowed is his trainer, Shug McGaughey, who really, really wants this race. Doug O'Neill trying to win back-to-back. And then there's the threat of rain, which has done in some of the best-laid plans on race day.

It sure looks like a topsy-turvy Derby.

"I don't think we've got Secretariat in this bunch, even Seattle Slew," four-time Derby-winning trainer D. Wayne Lukas said, "so I think it's going to boil down to the trip and the pace and a lot of other things."

Todd Pletcher will saddle a record-tying five horses — undefeated and early second choice Verrazano, Revolutionary, Overanalyze, Palace Malice and Charming Kitten.

"We laid out a plan to get here with them, and it's all come down pretty much like we hoped," said Pletcher, who has one Derby win with 31 previous starters.

Verrazano is 4-0 in his young career, not having run as a 2-year-old. He'll be trying to disprove an old Derby jinx: no horse since Apollo in 1882 has won without racing as a juvenile.

Relative unknown Kevin Krigger will be aboard Goldcents, trying to become the first black jockey to win since Jimmy Winkfield in 1902.

"I'm going to ride us the race that should get us to the Kentucky Derby winner's circle," Krigger said.

The colt is partly owned by Pitino, whose Cardinals won the NCAA championship last month. The coach recently got elected to basketball's Hall of Fame, so a Derby win would complete the ultimate trifecta.

Rosie Napravnik wants to grab history for herself, too.

No female jockey has ever won the Derby, although she came closest, with a ninth-place finish in 2011. Napravnik will ride 15-1 long shot Mylute.

"He feels great, he's acting great and I'm very confident heading into the Derby," she said.

cause the Lions booted the ball, allowing Martin to score the winning run with ease.

"The runner breaking on contact messed up our defense a little bit," Heartland coach Shaun Sommers said. "Our third baseman took a peek a home knowing it was going to be a close play and lost track of the ball for a split second."

"It feels great to be able to pull out a win like this," Weidner said. "We've had some ups and downs as a team this year, but tonight we fought really hard and came up with the big play when we had to."

The Lions had plenty of chances to come up with a big play of their own and win the game in regulation, but were unable to come up with clutch hits when they needed them most.

Heartland stranded runners at third base in the fifth, sixth, and seventh innings and also committed four outs on the basepaths.

"We missed out on a ton of golden opportunities," Sommers said.

"Those are the types of things that happen with an inexperienced team, but we can't use inexperience as an excuse. We've made great strides as a program the last couple of years, we just have to do a better job at executing the little things."

Heartland broke on top 1-0 in the first when Austin Lowe scored on a throwing error before Columbiana came back with two runs in the third on an RBI double by Bryce Franken and an RBI single by Steve Kurilla.

The bases were loaded with one out, but Bell avoided a disaster by getting out of the inning with a strikeout and a groundout. The Heartland right-hander settled in and retired 13 of the next 14 batters before the walk to Kurilla ended his evening in the eighth.

"Phil Bell has been fantastic for us all year," Somers said. "He hung a couple of changeups in the third, but after that he found his stride. It's a shame he had to come out on the losing end.

Heartland tied it in the fifth on a fielders choice groundout by Austin Lowe, but Rice was able to keep the Lions at bay until his teammates came through with the winning run.

"I thought Devin had great command all night," Knox said. "He has stepped up this year as a sophomore and provided some quality innings as a number two or three starter, tonight was more of the same. He had a few jams late, but he did a nice job of fighting through, and defensively we played a nice game behind him."

Heartland drops to 8-10 on the year. The Lions will host United on Wednesday.

Columbiana will host Crestview at 11 a.m. today.

Carly Pence had two singles and Logan Gatchel had a double to lead the Bulldogs, who drop to 6-13 overall.

All eyes on Jones at Steelers rookie mini-camp

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jarvis Jones is not James Harrison. For one thing, there's the hair.

The rookie Pittsburgh Steelers outside linebacker has long dreadlocks that appear under his helmet and skitter across his name when he sprints into the backfield.

There's the body, too. The 6-foot-2, 245-pound Jones is taller, leaner and wispier than the 2008 NFL Defensive Player of the Year who was cut by the Steelers in a salary cap move in March.

Then there's the demeanor. Where Harrison was all snarl, the 23-year-old Jones is Southern charm.

Yet Jones understands he is the heir apparent. The Steelers tend not to take risks with first-round draft picks. The comparisons are inevitable after they chose the speedy Georgia kid, who led the NCAA in sacks last fall, with the 17th selection. The draft came just six weeks after releasing the productive but aging Harrison.

"I don't compare myself in no way to James Harrison," Jones said. "He's a great player. Respect him. Never met him. But I love his game. I wouldn't mind being an impact player like James Harrison."

Neither would the Steelers. Pittsburgh led the NFL in fewest yards allowed in 2012 but failed to produce the kind of splash plays — namely sacks and turnovers — that have helped make the franchise perennial Super Bowl contenders. Injuries to Harrison, outside linebacker LaMarr Woodley and safety Troy Polamalu forced the Steelers to play solid but safe. Pittsburgh finished tied for 15th with 37 sacks and 24th in takeaways with 20.

Jones could bring back some of the menace. He set a Georgia record with 14.5 sacks in 2012, his ability to wreak havoc in opposing backfields from the edge had him projected as a potential Top 5 pick.

Instead, concerns about Jones' neck — diagnosed with a narrowing of the spinal column early in his collegiate career — and his speed after running a sluggish 40-yard-dash sent him tumbling to the Steelers in the middle of the first round.

Not that it bothered Jones. There are worse places to land than a team that forged its identity and won six

Steelers first round pick, linebacker Jarvis Jones participates in the team's rookie mini-camp on Friday in Pittsburgh. (AP Photo/Keith Srakocic)

Super Bowl titles on the backbone of a 3-4 defense which has served as the NFL's gold standard for most of the last 40 years.

Besides, as Jones pointed out on Friday "at the end of the day those guys are picking early for a reason. I landed right where I want to be."

Even if Jones is not the starter, at least not yet. Jason Worilds, who finished second on the team with five sacks, is atop the depth chart and coach Mike Tomlin isn't quite ready to anoint Jones.

"He's going to be a rookie and he'll go through the same thing rookies go through," Tomlin said. "We're not going to take anything for granted in terms of his growth and development."

Defensive coordinator Dick

LeBeau's complex playbook can make it difficult for first-year players to find playing time. There will be plenty of studying before training camp opens in July. Jones hardly appears overcome by the sudden thrust from NFL prospect to NFL player.

Asked to describe LeBeau, Jones just smiled and called the Hall-of-Famer "chill."

Then again, it's early. The Steelers might not be rebuilding but they are regrouping after an 8-8 season. Jones will get a chance to prove he belongs.

"I can't wait to get in the locker room with those guys and just learn from those guys," he said. "It's definitely a blessing to be on the field with those guys."

DERBY FROM 1B

Orb was the narrow 7-2 early favorite for the 139th Derby. He comes in on a four-race winning streak for McGaughey, the 62-year-old trainer whose Hall of Fame resume lacks a Derby victory. He's making his second appearance since 1989, when he finished second with Easy Goer.

"I hope the track is fast and safe for everybody and nobody has any excuses, and let the best horse win," McGaughey said.

Goldencents will be trying to deliver for more than Krigger and Pitino. He's trained by O'Neill, who put unknown Mario Gutierrez aboard I'll Have Another last year and won. The trainer is following the same script this time, giving Krigger a big break while trying to become the first trainer to win back-to-back Derbies since Bob Baffert in 1997-98.

"We think it is our time," O'Neill said. "We think it is us."

Don't look for the white-haired Baffert on Saturday. The three-time Derby winner isn't saddling a horse this year, but like everyone, he had an opinion.

"Whoever has the heart will win it," he said.

The forecast calls for an 80 percent chance of rain and a high of 59 degrees. The last Derby run on a sloppy track was in 2010.

"It'll make the Derby that much more wide open," said trainer Ken McPeck, who has two starters, Frac Daddy and Java's War.

Lukas has two horses — Oxbow and Will Take Charge — ready for his 27th Derby. The four-time winning trainer planned to sleep soundly the night before.

"I don't get uptight, don't even get excited when they go in the gate," he said.

At 77, Lukas would be the oldest trainer to win.

Oxbow's jockey, Gary Stevens, will be pulling double-duty Saturday. He'll ride in his first Derby since ending a seven-year retirement earlier this year, and then return to his job as a racing analyst on NBC's telecast. The 50-year-old rider has won the race three times.

"You go out there with the highest hopes," he said. "I've walked back too many times after the Kentucky Derby and it's a disappointment if they don't run their race. If we're fortunate enough to win it, I know how to celebrate."

Calvin Borel is one jockey always worth watching in the Derby. He and Revolutionary will break from the No. 3 spot in the starting gate, putting Borel near his favorite path on the track — the rail. The rider nicknamed "Bo-rail" for his fence-skimming rides has three Derby wins in the last six years.

"This is his home court," Lukas said. "He does better here than anywhere else."

East Palestine graduate Casi misses LPGA cut

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Alexandra Casi missed the cut after Friday's second round of the LPGA Kingsmill Championship.

The 2002 East Palestine High School graduate and girls state golf runner-up, finished tied for 122nd after a 5-over 76 in Friday's second round that left her at 9-over par for the tournament. She totaled four bogeys, one birdie, one double-bogey and 12 pars in her second round. She hit 13 of 14 fairways and 11 of 18 greens in regulation.

YSU golf coach Roseann Schwartz retires

AP Source: LeBron JAMES wins 4th MVP award

MIAMI (AP) — LeBron James is getting his fourth Most Valuable Player award — and the only mystery left is whether the vote was unanimous.

The Miami Heat star will be introduced Sunday as the award winner. James will become the fifth player with at least four MVP awards, joining Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Michael Jordan, Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain.

No one has ever swept every first-place vote in the NBA's MVP balloting. After the season he had, James could be the first.

James averaged 26.8 points, 8.0 rebounds and 7.3 assists this season, shooting a career-best 56 percent. It was absolutely no surprise that he won the award, and given the timetable for Miami's next game — the Heat don't open Eastern Conference semifinal play until Monday night against Brooklyn or Chicago — it had been widely assumed for several days that Sunday would be the day.

Kobe Bryant battles mom, NJ business over auction

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Kobe Bryant is in a court battle to try to keep his mother from auctioning off mementoes from his high school days in Pennsylvania and his early years with the Los Angeles Lakers.

A New Jersey auction house filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Camden on Thursday for the right to sell the stuff after the NBA star's lawyers wrote the firm telling it to cancel a planned June auction.

The disagreement is a high-value, high-profile version of a question many families face: Can Mom get rid of the stuff a grown child left at home?

In this case, the 900 mementoes happen to be worth upward of $1.5 million. Among the first 100 or so items Pamela Bryant intends to sell: the NBA star's jerseys, practice gear and sweatsuits from Lower Merion High School; varsity letters; a trophy for being the outstanding player at the 1995 Adidas ABCD basketball camp; and a signed basketball from the 2000 NBA championship game.

And then there are rings, for the 1996 Pennsylvania high school championship, a pair that the Lakers made for Bryant's parents for the 2000 NBA championship and one from the 1998 NBA All-Star game.

Mayweather, Guerrero square off in title fight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Floyd Mayweather Jr. and Robert Guerrero are scheduled to meet in a 12-round welterweight title match Saturday night at the MGM Grand hotel in what will be Mayweather's first fight in a year. It's also his first ring appearance since serving a jail term for assaulting the mother of his children, an experience he said helped him grow up.

Mayweather will earn $32 million to take on Guerrero and try to remain perfect in 44 professional fights.

Mayweather weighed in at 146 pounds on Friday. Guerrero checked in at the weight-class limit of 147.

Mayweather claims he's going to fight more regularly — including a bout in September — but he hasn't fought twice in a calendar year since 2007 and must deal with the real possibility of ring rust against Guerrero.

Odds makers have Mayweather a 6-1 favorite against a fighter who moved up to welterweight just two fights ago.

NBA today

AP Source: LeBron wins 4th MVP award. LeBron James is getting his fourth Most Valuable Player award - and the only mystery left is whether the vote was unanimous. The Miami Heat star will be introduced Sunday as the award winner, according to a person familiar with the results and who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the league has not publicly announced this year's recipient. James will become the fifth player with at least four MVP awards, joining Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Michael Jordan, Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain. No one has ever swept every first-place vote in the NBA's MVP balloting. After the season he had, James could be the first.

Indians beat Twins on Stubbs' double in 10th

CLEVELAND (AP) — Drew Stubbs' RBI double with one out in the 10th inning lifted the Cleveland Indians to their fifth straight victory, 7-6 over the Minnesota Twins on Friday night.

Stubbs, who had four hits, drove a 1-0 pitch from Casey Fien off the wall in left-center to give Cleveland its first five-game winning streak since winning seven in a row from April 26-May 3, 2011.

Mike Aviles started the rally with a leadoff single off Fien (1-2). Pinch-hitter Ezequiel Carrera, claimed off waivers from Philadelphia on Thursday, moved Aviles to second with a sacrifice. Stubbs, who had two singles and two doubles, then drove in the game-winner.

Chris Perez (1-0) pitched a scoreless 10th for Cleveland.

Ryan Raburn, who had 12 hits in his previous 14 at-bats coming into the game, was 0 for 5.

Chris Parmalee's two-run homer in the seventh capped Minnesota's three-run rally, wiping out a 5-3 deficit, but Jason Kipnis tied the score in the eighth with a run-scoring grounder, his fourth RBI of the game.

Parmalee's two-out blast came off reliever Cody Allen and gave Minnesota a 6-5 lead.

Aviles started the tying rally with a single off Jared Burton. After Jason Giambi fled out to deep center, Stubbs' blooper fell near the right-field line for a double and sent Aviles to third. After Michael Brantley was intentionally walked to load the bases, Kipnis hit a ground ball to the right side that second baseman Brian Dozier knocked down. Dozier could only get Kipnis at first as Aviles scored to tie it at 6-all.

Minnesota trailed by two going into the seventh against Justin Masterson, who retired the first two hitters. Justin Morneau singled and took second on a passed ball by Yon Gomes. Ryan Doumit slapped a single on a 3-2 pitch through the left side that scored Morneau to make it 5-4.

Parmalee hit a 2-2 pitch to right that cleared the wall despite a leaping attempt Raburn, for his third homer of the season to put the Twins ahead 6-5.

Trevor Plouffe hit a solo homer in the second.

Burnett wins 3rd straight, Pirates top Nationals, 3-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A.J. Burnett allowed one run and struck out nine in seven shutout innings, and call-up

Jordy Mercer hit a tiebreaker home run to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Washington Nationals on Friday night.

Burnett (3-2) gave up five hits and one walk in winning his third straight after going 0-2 in his first three starts. He also raised his NL-leading strikeout total to 57.

Mercer's two-run home run off Ross Detwiler (1-3) in the fifth inning put the Pirates ahead for good 3-1. Mercer was recalled from Triple-A Indianapolis before the game when second baseman Neil Walker was placed on the disabled list with a right hand injury.

Detwiler went five innings and gave up three runs and six hits while walking two and striking out five.

The Pirates won for the fourth time in six games and the Nationals lost for the fourth time in six games.

PENS FROM 1B

the more daunting. Instead the Islanders counter-attacked effectively all night, providing the Penguins with an ugly reminder of their first-round collapse against Philadelphia last spring when the Flyers lit them up for 30 goals in six games. New York peppered Fleury for 42 shots. Fleury turned aside 38, though that number doesn't include the 18 Islanders shots that missed the net or the 19 that Pittsburgh blocked, numbers that kept Fleury busy all night.

"It's the playoffs; you lose games sometimes," Crosby said. "But I think we've got to make sure we learn from this one pretty quickly. It's not the way we want to play, and we definitely have a lot of room to improve."

The Penguins couldn't muster much after Okposo's first career playoff goal, and the Islanders spilled over the boards after toppling the Eastern Conference's top seed as a solemn crowd trudged to the exit.

The end played in stark contrast to the beginning, when Evgeni Malkin staked Pittsburgh to a 1-0 lead 43 seconds into the game when he poked in his own rebound over a sprawled Nabokov.

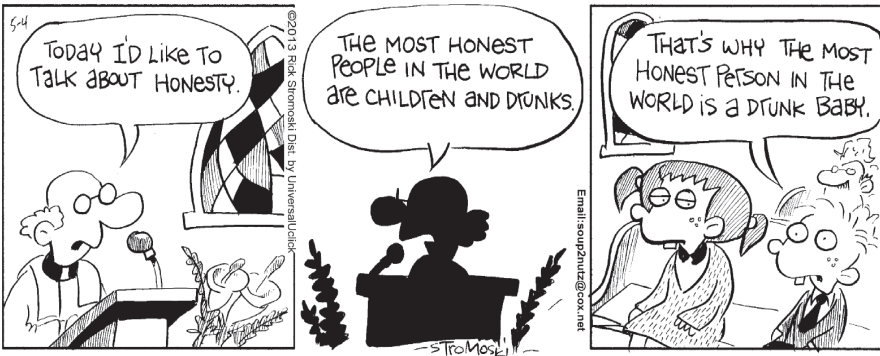

Crosby, who memorably scored on a breathtaking end-to-end rush in his comeback from concussion-like symptoms against the Islanders in November 2011, did not provide any magic on his first shift.

Instead, he waited for his second. Standing all alone on the post, Crosby tapped in a simple pass from Jarome Iginla to make it 2-0 before the game was four minutes old. The Islanders cut the lead in half when Moulson scored a power-play goal.

The Pisces Moon Moccasin Walk

A Native American saying warns not to criticize a man until you've walked a mile in his moccasins. The mystical Pisces moon lends shape-shifting powers of imagination that allow for such a walk to occur, regardless of the size of those moccasins in relation to your own feet. Slip them on and see what life is like in another person's shoes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). When dealing with the opposite sex, be specific and direct. Saying the honest thing quickly takes guts, but it is much easier than waiting. If you hesitate to tell the truth, things get awkward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Whether you're carrying out your duty or following your bliss, it's important that you "do you." There can be no satisfaction when you're winning at being someone else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Acts of self-discipline may not feel exactly joyful at first, but they will lead to happiness. Once you get past the initial resistance put up by your ego and, id, you will be well on your way to a better state of being.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Helping someone else's life run more smoothly will give you pleasure. Bonus: Helpful relationships put you in the mindset to create good fortune regardless of who is receiving the help.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You like the idea of being a part of many different lives, but the reality of it can get overwhelming. Too many people in your space at once asking you questions will get tiring. Arrange smaller parties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The best idea ever soon turns into a project that is a lot harder to execute than you thought it would be. There are friends around you who will help if you ask them to.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Dreaming about the people you wish you could be is not the fun, fanciful escape it sounds like. Loving who you are will bring you far more energy, and it will renew your enthusiasm for life, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Don't share all you've learned with people who haven't paid their dues yet, because you worked hard to get where you are. Your knowledge is valuable, and you would be doing yourself a disservice if you gave it away for free.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Someone seems to be playing Mad Libs with you, leaving blanks for you to fill in. Resist. If you add your own answers, you won't learn as much as you could. The real answers will surprise you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You don't believe in getting even, but you do see the need to put things back into balance. This is best accomplished by devoting more time to yourself and your projects. Success is the best revenge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A lifelong learner, ultimately you'll amass quite a body of knowledge on an array of subjects. Today will introduce a fascinating new tidbit. You'll follow a trail and come to a juicy bit of information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The truth is that you enjoy the one who gives you trouble, challenges you and makes you laugh. Putting all of your effort and attention into another person can be heavenly.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 4). World leaders, philosophers and scientists can argue endlessly about what shape the world is in, but you know the truth: It is what you make of it. Your iron will and intense focus on the positive will turn a less than perfect situation into your ideal scenario. This month is devoted to love. June brings funding for your project. Pisces and Gemini people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 25, 49, 3 and 18.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "What is the proper age to discuss sensitive topics with my beautiful young Aries daughter? She's only 12, and yet some of my friends are telling me I should fully inform her as to the ways of the world that I have shielded her from for so long. They insist that if I don't talk to her, she'll get information elsewhere. Do you think this is true? I'm a Pisces."

It's a judgment call that only you can make. Note that the first sign of the zodiac is very different from the last sign of the zodiac. Since you are a Pisces, you may not remember being as innocent as your Aries appears to you. Yours is the sign of old souls, and Pisces people are often wise beyond their years. Learning about the world wasn't as shocking to you as it will be for your innocent Aries. Keep in mind that we like to think of Aries as the pure lamb in need of a shepherd's care, guidance and protection; whereas, Aries likes to think of herself as the first born who must strike out with great zeal and sometimes rebelliousness. She is growing into her warrior spirit, so give her accurate information to arm herself with!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Grammy-winner Adele was born under the sign that rules the throat. Taurus people are famous for their golden voices, and Adele shares the same zodiac sign as powerhouse vocalists like James Brown, Barbara Streisand, Ella Fitzgerald, Kelly Clarkson, Bono and Cher. Adele also has lucky Jupiter in Taurus and several planets in Capricorn, a sign noted for making excellent business decisions.

Put your address on remembrance cards

Heloise

Dear Heloise: A friend of mine recently had a death in her family. Many relatives and friends left Mass cards and remembrance cards at the funeral home. Unfortunately, most of the cards had only the person's name. My friend said she had to spend several hours LOOKING UP NAMES AND ADDRESSES on her computer. My hint is, please, friends and relatives, put your address on the cards. They are supposed to be acknowledged with a thank-you note. It's just a simple thing, but it's more helpful than you can imagine. — A Friend of the Family, via email

Your hint will help a lot of people. Also, please put a last name down — you'd be amazed how many Tom and Sues or Bill and Janes there are! — Heloise

TENNIS-SHOE HELPER

Dear Heloise: My daughter isn't very fond of having to tie her tennis shoes. Seems she is always in a hurry. So instead of purchasing costly locking-type shoestrings, which make tie shoes into slip-ons, I recently purchased a handful of "cord locks" on the Internet.

They are very inexpensive — a few cents each. These things will look familiar, and they are so easy to use. Just lace the shoe as usual, and slide a cord lock on the ends of both sides of the laces. From there, tie a small knot at the end of the laces, and use the cord lock to slide the laces tighter or looser. It works great and is a great way to make all tie tennis shoes into "slip-ons"! — Susan in Ohio

HEARING-AID CLEANING HINT

Dear Heloise: My hearing aids have a vent hole, which accumulates wax from wearing. The tool that I was given to clear it out is a thin, plastic, wirelike device that never has been sufficient.

One day, I bought some brushes sold for cleaning braces in a person's mouth. The small, round brush is the perfect length and width to clear out the vent hole. They usually are made of a soft plastic, are washable and are inexpensive. I hope this can help some of your readers! — A.S. in San Antonio

HANDY SEAM RIPPER

Dear Heloise: I read your column in the (Greenville, Texas) Herald-Banner, and finally have a hint to send in!

My co-worker just asked me if I have one of those itty-bitty screwdrivers for eyeglass frames. I checked, but all I had was a seam ripper. She tried it out of desperation, and lo and behold, it worked! Thanks for all the awesome hints you and your readers share! — Sharon D. in New Orleans

Uncomfortable with hands-on from dad

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 13-year-old girl who has been trying to give my father a second chance. I was taken away from my parents when I was 8 because they were on drugs. I haven't seen my father for three years, but now that he's living with my grandparents and me, I decided to give him a second chance.

He has been very "hand-sy" with me — giving me massages, kissing my cheek — and this all makes me very uncomfortable. I thought it was because he hasn't seen me in a while, but today as I was leaving to go to my mom's, he slapped my butt as I walked out the door. Now I'm scared. I spend a lot of the day at home with him alone. I don't want things to get out of hand. Any advice? — WORRIED IN DELAWARE

DEAR WORRIED: Your father has lost three years with you. He may not realize that his "little girl" is no longer a child. That is why it is important that you TELL him what he's doing makes you uncomfortable. You should also tell your mother and grandparents about what's happening and that it scares you. You do not have to tolerate unwanted contact, and if it persists, report it to a teacher or counselor at school or contact me again.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dilemma. I work in a small high school in a student support position. Girls come into my office who are pregnant and excited about it! Telling them congratulations for putting themselves in this position seems counterproductive, or like I am endorsing this choice. I don't!

No high school girls — or boys, for that matter — should put themselves in a position to be a parent when they themselves aren't fully grown and independent. I feel like saying, "You have ruined your life" instead, but I hold my tongue. What do you suggest? — DON'T WANT TO ENCOURAGE THEM IN ILLINOIS

DEAR DON'T WANT TO ENCOURAGE: Your job is to support the students, not to condemn or endorse their predicament. Telling a pregnant girl she has ruined her life isn't helpful. What you need to do is encourage the girl to get a diploma while she can. Too many girls fail to complete their high school education when they have a baby, and it impedes their ability to provide for themselves and their child because they are suited only for minimum-wage jobs. If you are enthusiastic about helping them, your positive attitude may be contagious and inspire them to succeed.

Dad, 82, now seems obsessed with his only son

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I am a 57-year-old man with no siblings, and my mother is deceased. My 82-year-old father is physically healthy, but he's in the early stages of dementia. He has a few hobbies to keep him busy, but for some reason, he has become obsessed with me.

Dad has become rather "needy." Sometimes he calls me three or four times a day, even when I am at work. He insists that I go to his house every day, even if there is no particular reason.

I know Dad is probably lonely, but still. He doesn't have a lot of friends due to his attitude and sharp tongue. He has become demanding, insisting I do things immediately rather than when I
