Lisbon-Canfield Road in Green Township and in Greenford has come to become a safety concern for township officials and residents because of potholes. Above, a view of Lisbon-Canfield Road from in front of the residence of Haymond and Ruth Radcliff in the 12000 block shows a southbound motorist using the shoulder to avoid potholes. Motorists traveling north practically have no choice but to cross into the southbound lane and vehicles hitting the potholes here have splashed water onto the Radcliff's house. Motorists have also driven beyond the shoulder to miss the potholes. The pothole in the right photo, located along the centerline, is shown with a five-and-half-inch long ballpoint pen in it. Greenford residents say potholes worse yet

By LARRY SHIELDS

GREENFORD — The potholes are the worst they've ever been, according to three Greenford residents who live on Lisbon-Canfield Road about a quarter-mile south state Route 165.

The Mahoning County-maintained road is the primary north-south thoroughfare in the village and splits the township in half, Trustee Mark Stepuk said Tuesday.

The road drew the attention of trustees during Tuesday's meeting after Stepuk said he spoke to the Mahoning County Engineer Patrick Ginnitti about it earlier in the day.

All three trustees have received complaints and Stepuk said the section between state Route 165 and Pine Lake Road "is the worst stretch" and is a safety issue.

Motorists try dodging the wide, deep and multiple potholes veering onto the oncoming lane, but in some places the road is so bad that doesn't help, he said.

The speed limit is 35 mph through the village and 45 mph outside of it.

Fire Chief Todd Baird said, "We're going to wind up with a head-on collision because people are going into the other lane."

Stepuk said he told the engineer that trustees wanted to get Lisbon Road on some sort of a program.

Even at its best the road has sporadic washboard sections, especially on the southbound lane as it approaches state Route 14 at the county line with Columbiana County.

But within the last month it has gotten really bad, according to residents in the 12000 block of the road.

Haymond and Ruth Radcliff have lived in Greenford since 1976 and there is a particularly bad two-tenths of a mile section that runs by the front of their home, which is set back a short distance from the road.

Haymond Radcliff said they called the Mahoning County engineer's office four or five times including the District 2 Outpost in North Lima and his wife, Ruth, said she called the engineer's office once.

Haymond said the road wasn't all that good to begin with at anytime and "started breaking up badly a month ago."

As the couple stood in front of their home, motorists hit the brakes, slowing to a crawl and crossing the double yellow-striped line, or swinging off the right shoulder, to avoid the worst "craters."

A series of deep potholes were filled with water directly in front of their house and Haymond said, "We had to wash the front of the house from all the dirty water splashed onto it."

2013 Cruise honored as Fest of Year

By LARRY SHIELDS
Staff Writer

SALEM — The Super Cruise is now an award-winning event, Mick Orosz said at Wednesday's organizational meeting.

"The Greater Ohio Showmen's Association gives a 'Festival of the Year Award,'" said Orosz who heads the concession committee for the Super Cruise.

The 2013 award will be presented during the 9th annual Salem Super Cruise which will run from June 19 to 22. The event is managed by the city.

Orosz, a member of the association, said a written nomination was filed for the Super Cruise by the organization's First Vice President Jo Ellen Albanese, while President Andy Pocock promoted the Super Cruise by noting how nice, friendly and easy to deal with the city was and mentioned Salem Administrative Assistant Debbie Bricker as a reason for the cruise winning it.

Orosz said Pocock commended the city for the way it backed the event.

Orosz said the 14-member committee voted unanimously to name the Super Cruise the "Festival of the Year for 2013." Orosz said the vote was taken in January.

In other business, Service-Safety Director Ken Kenst, who manages the Super Cruise, said there are more sponsors, advertisers and concessionaires this year and attributed much of the increase to the efforts of Sam Sicilia.

Ron Waite, who heads the advertising committee, said he did a "phenomenal job" noting the program will be about eight pages longer than in the past.

Kenst said the Salem Historical Society will be contributing to the pictorial and editorial content in the brochure. He said 15,000 will be printed.

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

SALEM — The Salem Shade Tree Commission celebrated Arbor Day on Wednesday by recognizing two people from a group considered an integral part of the commission's tree planting mission.

Salem Community Foundation grants coordinator Melissa Moffett Costa and SCF President John Tonti received Tree City USA lapel pins from Shade Tree Commission Chairman Dave Navoyosky, who praised both of them for their contributions to the program.

The pinning ceremony took place at Waterworth Memorial Park shortly after the commission received a proclamation from Salem Mayor John Berlin, declaring Wednesday as Arbor Day in Salem. The group also displayed the latest Tree City USA flag next to a newly planted Red Maple tree, courtesy of the commission and SCF.

Navoyosky praised Costa and Tonti for what he described as "their enthusiasm in promoting tree planting in Salem."

"They are our contact people when we need help to fund a tree planting project.

A sinkhole has cut off access to Willow Grove Park in Lisbon. (Salem News photo by Tom Giambroni)

Sinkhole closes Lisbon park

By TOM GIAMBRONI

LISBON — Willow Grove Park is closed and will remain so until the village is able to repair a sinkhole at the park entrance. The sinkhole is in the middle of the gravel road just inside the park gate and it was reported Sunday afternoon by someone going to the park. Street Superintendent Jim Oliver was contacted and ordered the road be closed because the sinkhole was expanding as motorists continued to drive over it on their way to the park. The issue was raised at this week's Village Council meeting by Oliver, who said the sinkhole was now about 3 feet wide, with Mayor Dan Bing adding it appeared to be about 12 feet deep. There is an Ohio Department of Transportation culvert about 7 feet down but the sinkhole continues beyond that for several more feet.

"I don't think we can tackle that," Oliver told council. "It's the biggest one I've ever seen." Oliver said ODOT officials told him the culvert is essential to diverting all of the storm run-off from U.S. Route 30 as the road descends sharply into Lisbon. The storm water goes under the park road and into a small concrete spillway that empties into the Middle Fork of the Little Beaver Creek. Without the culvert, the park entrance would wash away. Council member Jeff Snyder wondered if there was any way they could install a new culvert on top of the existing culvert and tie it into the existing system, creating a new discharge point in the ravine that leads down to the creek. Oliver said he would look into that. Snyder said he was opposed to spending much money on repairing the sinkhole, at least right now, since that funding is desperately needed to repair village streets reduced to rubble by the harsh winter. "If you have to, plate it and close the park," he said. The street department did just that, placing a metal plate over the sinkhole, and the park remains closed. Alisa Gostey, the mayor's secretary, said no groups have reserved Willow Grove Park's pavilion in April or May. In related news, Oliver reported the street department has used 28 tons of blacktop to date repairing village streets, with more ordered. He also provided copies of a letter he sent to Chesapeake Energy asking the company to provide some financial assistance toward the upkeep of village streets. "Due to the extreme traffic from trucks doing business in the village of Lisbon on behalf of Chesapeake Energy, our streets have suffered tremendous damage with extreme potholes, and a general breakdown of the road, particularly at intersections," Oliver wrote. He heard that Chesapeake has helped other communities with road maintenance and hopes they will do likewise for Lisbon. In other action, council agreed to hire the list of 11 lifeguards to staff the Sadie Van Fossan swimming pool this summer, with lifeguard Shelby Renfro named as assistant manager. Council also voted to implement a new pool pass system where a $20 card will entitle the holder to 15 visits. On the issue of erecting a dusk-to-dawn light at Play Town to keep people from congregating there after dark, someone suggested relocating the nearby Ohio Edison street light, which would accomplish the goal and do it cheaper. tgiambroni@mojonews.com

Rogers may hold tag sale to fix roads

By TOM GIAMBRONI

ROGERS — Village Councilman Tom Chambers wants to hold a tag day to raise the additional funds to meet the $5,000 goal he says is needed to resurface village streets and alleys this year. Speaking at this week's meeting, Chambers reported he met with the Columbiana County Engineer's Office, which determined it would cost the village an estimated $5,000 to resurface the streets on his to-do list. Under the county's chip-and-seal resurfacing program, participating villages and townships purchase the material and the engineer's office does the work. Village Fiscal Officer Dale Davis said they only have $4,900 currently available for street work and recommended reducing the scope of the resurfacing project to something more affordable. Chambers suggested holding a tag day or other fund-raiser to come up with the extra money. The streets on his list include the street that runs past Village Hall, College Avenue, the street in front of the Rogers Feed Mill, and assorted alleys, including Baker Alley. In other action, council granted the Middle Beaver Girls Softball Association permission to hold its league games at the community park. An association member said they are no longer allowed to use the field behind the Rogers Elementary School. The only stipulation is the association must add the village to its liability insurance policy. The league is comprised of 11 teams at various age levels. The season runs from mid-

April to late June. Councilman Michael Hunt said it will be good to get more use out of the park because it has become an after-dark gathering place for vehicles. He has also found evidence of drug use at the park and at one time saw someone walking on the pavilion roof, "and I had to run him off." Hunt said a man who lives next to the park would be willing to lock the gate at night, but someone asked who would be responsible for unlocking the gate in the morning. In related news, council voted to remove the pegs from the horseshoe pits at the park after Debbie Pugh pointed out they posed a safety hazard because of its proximity to the basketball court. Pugh said she noticed the problem when chaperoning the local Boy Scouts while they were playing basketball at the park. "I don't think we need them," Councilwoman Jayne Balmenti said of the horseshoe pits. "No one's ever used them and they're just a sore thumb." Finally, Janice Glover reported 23 new American flags and metal poles will be erected on poles throughout the village in time for Memorial Day, thanks to $1,000 in donations and the assistance of the American Legion post in Columbiana. Glover, who operates the Y Inn in Rogers, led the effort to replace the flags after seeing they were in poor condition. Glover and her customers, along with the following businesses and individuals, made donations: Rogers Sale, the feed mill, Buckeye Firearms, the Millrock junk yard and Doug Smith. tgiambroni@mojonews.com

— Joseph Messenger, 21, of 1133 Prospect St., Salem, was taken into custody on a warrant out of Columbiana County for child support after he turned himself in at the Perry Township police department on North Ellsworth Avenue at 4:10 p.m. Tuesday.
— A reckless driver was reported by Goshen Police on U.S. Route 62 from state Route 165 south into Perry Township at 3:08 p.m. Tuesday, but the vehicle was not found.
— Police were called at 9:03 a.m. Tuesday to the area of state Route 9 and Stewart Road for a semi tractor trailer causing a hazard on the road. The operator advised he ran out of fuel. Police assisted with traffic control while the operator had a friend take him to get fuel for the semi.

Crosses displayed in Ohio village challenged

COLUMBUS (AP) — A group advocating the separation of church and state is protesting a pair of crosses displayed for Easter on a tiny eastern Ohio village's municipal building.
The Madison, Wis.-based Freedom From Religion Foundation has challenged the claim by the mayor of Stratton that it's constitutional to display the crosses during holidays.
Mayor John Abdalla temporarily removed the crosses in January after the foundation threatened to sue, but he returned them to celebrate the Easter season. One is Latin, the other Eastern Orthodox. Abdalla told the Steubenville Herald-Star that such seasonal displays were allowed. The mayor declined to comment when contacted Wednesday by The Associated Press, including saying whether the crosses still adorned the building's facade. He told the newspaper he planned to remove them at the end of April. Easter is this Sunday.
In an April 8 letter, the foundation said religious displays on public buildings represent a violation of the First Amendment regardless of what time of year it is.

"While the permanent display of these crosses by the Village is indisputably unconstitutional, the seasonal display of the crosses in recognition of Easter, the Christian celebration of Jesus's resurrection, is no less illegal," staff attorney Rebecca Markert wrote.
"The display of these crosses is illegal because it represents government endorsement of the Christian religion."

Break-in suspect rescued from Ohio restaurant vent

MANSFIELD (AP) — Police say an Ohio man suspected of breaking into a restaurant overnight became stuck in a ventilation duct, triggered a fire alarm and had to be rescued by emergency responders.
The Mansfield News Journal reports a subcontractor arrived at the Bob Evans in Mansfield as the alarm was sounding early Tuesday and spotted the suspect's legs dangling from the ventilation system above the stove.
Police allege the 5-foot-7, 155-pound man had climbed onto the roof and tried entering through the vent system but got stuck. Firefighters threw him a rope to secure around his wrists and pulled him back up through the ventilation shaft.
The suspect, 47-year-old John Edmonds of Mansfield, is charged with breaking and entering and having criminal tools. Court records listed no attorney for him Wednesday.

OUR SIDE

Perhaps Germans can educate on our climate

It is appropriate that a major conference on climate change — and what to do about it — was held recently in Berlin. There, Germans once adamant about closing coal-fired power plants had something to say about the ill-considered rush to judgment on them.

The U.N. Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, often cited by those who insist fossil fuel burning is an environmental disaster, held the conference. Its goal was to find ways to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Just a few years ago, German leaders were entirely on board with the IPCC. They had made plans to cut back drastically on coal-fired power plants.

But then the high cost to the German economy of doing that became apparent. And, some Germans began to notice that IPCC predictions of drastic consequences of climate change seemed overblown.

Now Germany is building new coal-fired power plants and increasing its reliance on them for electricity. Hopefully Germans who had begun to think more clearly about climate change were able to educate those at the IPCC conference about reality.

Perhaps Kathleen Sebelius was just tired of the pressure of being secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. But as some are suggesting, her resignation may be an attempt by President Barack Obama to put a new "face" on Obamacare.

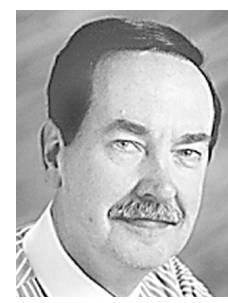

Clearly, the new HHS secretary, West Virginia native Sylvia Burwell, cannot be blamed for miscues in administering Obamacare, such as the persistent problems with the healthcare.gov website.

But Americans are not stupid. They are coming to understand that the law itself, not just how it is managed, is flawed deeply. All the new faces in the world at Obamacare press conferences will not change that.

2. Chiefly biblical. A goat let loose in the wilderness on Yom Kippur after the high priest symbolically laid the sins of the people on its head. Lev. 16:8, 10, 26."

Both definitions seem to fit last week's announcement of the "resignation" of Kathleen Sebelius, secretary of Health and Human Services, who presided over the disastrous rollout of the government's website, healthcare.gov, which was supposed to provide easy access for people who wished to sign up for Obamacare.

It wasn't entirely Sebelius' fault, though her experience with a website when she was governor of Kansas should have sounded alarm bells. As The Daily Caller website reported last October, "Sebelius oversaw numerous costly and disastrous government website projects during her six-year governorship ... including a failed update of the Department of Labor's program to provide unemployment pay and other services and similar updates pertaining to the Department of Administration and the state's Department of Motor Vehicles services."

Kansas Labor Secretary Karin Brownlee told the Daily Caller about this: "In the Kansas Senate, I chaired the Commerce committee. We had oversight over the Department of Labor. For years, we watched as the Department of Labor under Sebelius worked on that computer program. After seven years and $50 million, something should work."

When you're spending taxpayer money, apparently successful outcomes is not a requirement.

Sebelius was tasked with putting the square peg of government into the round hole of free enterprise and competition. It didn't work in Washington any better than it did in Kansas. The problem wasn't just the Obamacare website. The problem was, and remains, Obamacare itself.

Those who have been paying attention know that the administration's claim to have signed up more than 7 million people during the open enrollment period is bogus when one-fifth of those who are counted as "enrolled" have not paid their premiums. Costs have escalated, possibly discouraging new customers. Only 14 percent of those who have enrolled in Obamacare were previously uninsured, according to a McKinsey management consulting firm report cited by Forbes magazine.

In addition, McKinsey found that, according to Forbes, "only 48 percent had thus far signed on for a 2014 health plan. Within that 48 percent, three-fifths were previously insured people who liked their old plans and were able to keep them. The remaining two-fifths were the ones who signed up for coverage on the Obamacare exchanges. Of the Obamacare sign-ups, only 27 percent had been previously uninsured in 2013. And of that 27 percent, nearly half had yet to pay a premium. (By contrast, among the 73 percent who had been previously insured, 86 percent had paid.)"

In an April 9 article for Psychology Today, John C. Goodman, Ph.D., and author of "Priceless: Curing the Healthcare Crisis," writes the reason that Obamacare is failing to deliver on the president's promises is that "...the administration had to appease every single Democratic constituency and every major special-interest group. Imagine going around a table and asking each group what is the one thing they must have in order to support the legislation — the insurance companies, the drug companies, the hospitals, the labor unions, AMA, AARP, etc., and no one making sure that all the separate demands fit together in a sensible way."

The question remains: Why do so many people put their faith in government, when it does so few things well and with efficiency and reasonable cost? We don't even seem to be able to win wars anymore, so why would anyone have faith that the government can do a better job of directing health insurance and inevitably dictating who gets health care and who does not than the private sector, or at best a private-public partnership?

President Obama's nominee to replace Sebelius, budget director Sylvia Burwell, might turn out to be better at fixing websites, but she doesn't have the power to fix Obamacare. No one does because it is based on a weak foundation and the notion that government can do anything. Obamacare is the wizard behind the curtain, but without the thimble of Oz to back it up.

Statistical facts and fraud

THOMAS SOWELL

The "war on women" political slogan is in fact a war against common sense.

It is a statistical fraud when Barack Obama and other politicians say that women earn only 77 percent of what men earn — and that this is because of discrimination.

It would certainly be discrimination if women were doing the same work as men, for the same number of hours, with the same amount of training and experience, as well as other things being the same. But study after study, over the past several decades, has shown repeatedly that those things are not the same.

Constantly repeating the "77 percent" statistic does not make them the same. It simply takes advantage of many people's ignorance — something that Barack Obama has been very good at doing on many other issues.

What if you compare women and men who are the same on all the relevant characteristics?

First of all, you can seldom do that, because the statistics you would need are not always available for the whole range of occupations and the whole range of differences between women's patterns and men's patterns in the labor market.

Even where relevant statistics are available, careful judgment is required to pick samples of women and men who are truly comparable.

For example, some women are mothers and some men are fathers. But does the fact that they are both parents make them comparable in the labor market? Actually the biggest disparity in incomes is between fathers and mothers.

Nor is there anything mysterious about this, when you stop and think about it.

How surprising is it that women with children do not earn as much as women who do not have children? If you don't think children take up a mother's time, you just haven't raised any children.

How surprising is it that men with children earn more than men without children, just the opposite of the situation with women? Is it surprising that a man who has more mouths to feed is more likely to work longer hours? Or take on harder or more dangerous jobs, in order to earn more money?

More than 90 percent of the people who are killed on the job are men. There is no point pretending that there are no differences between what women do and what men do in the workplace, or that these differences don't affect income.

During my research on male-female differences for my book "Economic Facts and Fallacies," I was amazed to learn that young male doctors earned much higher incomes than young female doctors. But it wasn't so amazing after I discovered that young male doctors worked over 500 hours more per year than young female doctors.

Even when women and men work at jobs that have the same title — whether doctors, lawyers, economists or whatever — people do not get paid for what their job title is, but for what they actually do.

Women lawyers who are pregnant, or who have young children, may have good reasons to prefer a 9 to 5 job in a government agency to working 60 hours a week in a high-powered law firm. But there is no point comparing male lawyers as a group with female lawyers as a group, if you don't look any deeper than job titles.

Unless, of course, you are not looking for the truth, but for political talking points to excite the gullible.

Even when you compare women and men with the "same" education, as measured by college or university degrees, the women usually specialize in a very different mix of subjects, with very different income-earning potential.

Although comparing women and men who are in fact comparable is not easy to do, when you look at women and men who are similar on multiple factors, the sex differential in pay shrinks drastically and gets close to the vanishing point. In some categories, women earn more than men with the same range of characteristics.

If the 77 percent statistic was for real, employers would be paying 30 percent more than they had to, every time they hired a man to do a job that a woman could do just as well. Would employers be such fools with their own money? If you think employers don't care about paying 30 percent more than they have to, just go ask your boss for a 30 percent raise!

OTHER VOICES

The Ironton Tribune, April 10

While prescription drug abuse is still at an epidemic level throughout the country, methamphetamine can certainly be viewed in the same manner.

With the enhanced efforts of law enforcement, the meth-related arrests have increased.

Unfortunately, the strong possibility exists that a massive amount of others are still in operation.

Over the past few weeks, there have been a significant increase in meth-related arrests in locations that could have resulted in a serious threat to personal property and injury to those nearby. Arrests are being made at locations posing a major danger to public safety.

In 2013, Ohio was the fourth leading state in the country pertaining to the number of meth labs found by various law enforcement agencies at more than 1,000.

This is an alarming trend that seemingly continues to escalate.

Ultimately, continuing to be vigilant to potential warning signs, being educated, having proactive law enforcement, and developing stricter laws can be the movement that aids in lessening the control this drug has on the Appalachian region and our local communities.

Health board concerned by vaccination policy changes

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — Concerns about changes to state policies involving vaccines for underinsured children was part of a discussion for the Columbiana County Board of Health on Wednesday.

Nursing Director Barbara Knee said although the Ohio Department of Health has pushed the deadline back for implementing changes to the vaccination policy, a recent visit from one of their advisers left her with no answers.

Currently, according to the Ohio Department of Health's own survey, Knee said 10 percent of the children utilizing the county health department for their immunizations have no insurance, while 30 percent utilize Medicaid. The other 60 percent have insurance, Knee said, but their policy does not pay for immunizations. Often their physician, knowing the family cannot afford $800 to vaccinate their children, will suggest the family instead go to the county health department.

However, while the state currently pays for the immunizations, in the future the state wants the county health department to purchase the vaccines and bill the families or their insurance. Both Knee and Health Commissioner Wesley Vins noted the family cannot pay and their insurance, often only covering catastrophic health issues or with a high deductible will not, which is why these families are utilizing the health department services in the first place.

Vins said for now their is no change and the deadline continues to be moved back. However, he added he is uncertain what the future will be for underinsured children needing vaccines in Ohio.

He adds, the biggest objective of the county health department is to prevent the spread of diseases and taking away the ability to immunize children takes away one of the department's best ways of combating disease. Additionally, Vins said preventing disease is much less costly than treating it later once it is spreading.

In other matters before the board:

— Bids are being sought for three projects to replace groups of septic systems through the Water Pollution Control Loan Fund program. There is a possibility of two more groups should the first round of bids not exhaust the funding for the projects, however, Vins noted this is the last year for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency program which the county health department has utilized to assist low-income residents replace failing septic systems for the past several years.

— Due to the reduction in the amount the health department received this year, Dr. Shermeen Far'ukhi agreed to a reduction in contract. The board agreed to pay her $1,823 per month for the cancer clinic and $500 per month to be the department's medical director. Knee said one of the issues was the lack of funding through the Komen grant this year. Komen was able to give out $1.2 million just two years ago, but this year was only able to give out $700,000.

United school board OKs handbook revisions

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

HANOVERTON— United Local High School is changing with the times.

The school board Wednesday night approved revisions to the junior and senior high handbooks, notably the permitted use of cell phones during lunch at the high school level. High school students are already permitted to use cell phones in the classroom for curriculum related reasons.

"Technology is growing fast and we're just trying to keep up with it," said Bill Young, high school principal.

Revisions to the handbook also prohibit yoga pants and permits flip flops at the high school level.

In other business the board accepted the resignation of Matthew Mowery as a boys varsity basketball coach and Kevin Phillips as an eighth-grade science teacher, for which he had been serving as a substitute since February, effective at the end of the school year.

The board also granted a supplemental coaching contract to Sam Mathias for varsity girls basketball and awarded two-year teaching contracts to Kenneth Beaumariage, Lindsay Brothers, Shawn Hicklin, Jake Kilroy, Elaine Meals, Samantha Muniz, Cindy Neiswanger, Jennifer Schaeffer, Lori Conser, Kelsie Crowder, Brittany Grimm, Sarah Garn, Chris Kadvan and Sue Laughlin; and one-year teaching contracts to Krista Fitch, Cody Jones, Mike Ward, Samuel Mathias, Victoria Adams, Morgan Hiltbrand, Kerri O'Donnell, Jennifer Russo, Kimberly Salmen and Lydia Wilmoth. The board also awarded two-year contracts to bus drivers Angela Chaplow and Mary Koah.

The board also approved extended time for the following staff members to work beyond the school year: Dennis Klaustermeyer, computer technician, 46 days; Douglas Sutton, vocational agriculture, 40 days; Lynn Linsley, high school counselor, 38 days; Lorraine Raymond, junior high counselor, 10 days; Kristine Urmsen, vocational home economics, 10 days;

Krista Fitch, technology coordinator, 10 days; Denise Ward, high school librarian, five days; and Kerri O'Donnell, elementary school counselor, five days.

Also at the meeting the board accepted donations of $5,222 to the athletic department from the United Booster Club for track uniforms and $3,012.59 to the class of 2014 from the After Prom Parents; approved a band and choir trip to Chicago March 20 through 22, 2015; and approved its 2014-2015 management, goals and objectives.

The board also approved a calamity make-up day at end of year. Schools Superintendent Steve Viscounte said that the students had already used five blizzard bag days, but that the Ohio Department of Education would not accept two of them since the Ohio Revised Code only permits the use of three.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. May 21 in the high school library.

FROM 1A

Gene Johnson from the Arby's Cruisin' Crew that will manage show car parking and the shuttle service said they are just about ready to go.

Dominic Righetti, who heads the Super Cruise Autocross that will be held at the Salem High School parking lot on Sunday, said the event will be sponsored by Stretch's Rod Shop located on Benton Road.

The event, which was very popular last year, will be run using Sports Car Club of America guidelines.

Tom Hall said the Sunday Show 'N Shine will be sponsored by Bricker Automotive's NAPA store in Lisbon. Kenst said the Spread Eagle Tavern in Hanoverton is sponsoring the cruise route signs.

There will be no burn-out pit this year, Kenst said. The event was formerly sponsored by the Stadium GM Superstore which opted out last year citing insurance related issues and other factors but had expected to return this year.

"This is coming together easier this year," Kenst said. "I think we're pretty much on schedule."

Twenty people attended the meeting.

The next Super Cruise meeting will be at 7 p.m. May 14 in city hall.

POTHOLES

FROM 1A

Some motorists zip by, hardly paying any notice to the potholes until they're right on top of them and hit the brakes hard, but can't get slowed enough. Tires splash hard into the potholes throwing out a small geysers onto the Radcliff's house.

Ruth Radcliff said motorists slowing down are sometimes passed motorists behind them who may not be aware of the potholes.

"They cross a double-yellow line," she said adding that a lot of traffic heads to Walmart in Salem.

Dwain Yeagley lives a little further north on Lisbon-Canfield Road, just across the street from the Radcliffs.

He has lived there 55 years.

"It's the worst ever," he said, explaining that he has heard of three blown tires and one bent rim in the past week.

And that's just who I've talked to," he added.

A wheel cover sits in a bush a few feet from his driveway.

"Yes, the worst ever," he said, "when the township took care of it ... it was good. Since the county took it over it went to scrap."

After Tuesday's meeting, Trustee George Toy said he received a number of calls about the road and one township official said motorists were actually driving off the shoulder and onto private property trying to avoid holes; one trustee even wondered about shutting the road down.

Stepuk said Ginnetti told him the information would be forwarded to the road supervisor in the district.

Elected township officials in southern Mahoning County have repeatedly voiced their displeasure at their treatment regarding county roads for years.

That notion was apparent in several comments after the meeting and Stepuk said he was hopeful the county will move it up on the priority list as soon as possible.

Fiscal Officer Randy Chismar said the road hasn't been resurfaced since 2004 and then it wasn't on a very long section.

Both the Radcliffs and Yeagley said they hope something is done ... soon.

Firetruck rams eatery; 15 hurt

MONTEREY PARK, Calif. (AP) — Two firetrucks heading to a burning home collided Wednesday in a Los Angeles suburb, sending one careening into a restaurant and injuring 15 people, including at least five firefighters.

One of the victims was in critical condition, officials said.

The crash on a busy commercial strip in Monterey Park left one truck embedded in the restaurant, with shattered glass and rubble heaped on the sidewalk. Chairs and tables were scattered inside.

"There was a loud boom and a lot of shaking. I thought it was an earthquake," said Wendy Wu, a waitress who was in a walk-in freezer when the truck plowed through the front of the restaurant.

When she walked out of the freezer, uninjured, she saw a refrigerator pushed across the room and furniture in disarray. Wearing a uniform with the restaurant logo and speaking through an interpreter, she said she saw several injured people bleeding and attempting to stand.

Waitress Vivian Lu arrived for her shift moments after the truck rammed the building. She said she saw "a lot of people covered with blood," including a pedestrian with a mangled leg who had been knocked into the restaurant.

Monterey Park Fire Chief Jim Birrell said trucks from his city and neighboring Alhambra were responding to a house fire shortly after 3 p.m. when they slammed into each other and one truck plowed into the restaurant.

Scouts, volunteers recognizing Earth Day

YOUNGSTOWN — More than 450 scouts and volunteers are expected to scour Mill Creek MetroParks on April 26 in recognition of Earth Day to remove winter buildup of litter and debris.

This year, 25 locations throughout the MetroParks will be visited by 25 different Cub Scout packs, Boy Scout troops, Girl Scout troops and the Boy Scouts Order of the Arrow from Austintown, Boardman, Canfield, Girard, New Middletown, North Jackson, Poland, Struthers and Youngstown. The clean-up is co-sponsored by the Whispering Pines District of the Greater Western Reserve Council, Boy Scouts of America and Mill Creek MetroParks.

Coordinators will stop by the Ford Nature Education Center, 840 Old Furnace Road, Youngstown, to pick up supplies before 9 a.m. and then meet with their groups at various locations and work until noon, rain or shine.

Sponsorship of this event is in cooperation with the recycling division of the Mahoning County Green Team. They will provide garbage and recycling bags, gloves, grab-its, pencils, certificates, and car litter bags.

This event is also in conjunction with the Keep America Beautiful Great American Cleanup, and America's leading companies and brands support the campaign. The Great American Clean-up's national sponsors include Dow, Glad Products Company, Lowe's, Phillips 66, Troy-Bilt Lawn and Garden Equipment and Waste Management.

For more information or to volunteer call 330-740-7107 or Mike Kupec, Mill Creek MetroParks Earth Day Cleanup chairman for the Boy Scouts at 330-799-1475.

Scorpio Moon of Motivation

The wise Scorpio moon looks for a motive behind every action. It's particularly helpful when examining your own motives, which are often hidden even to you. Start with your to-do list. For each item, ask: What is my motive here? If the answer is "guilt" or "obligation," it's safe to strike it from today's list.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You want to be the best, and you will make every effort to occupy the top position. If you don't get there today, call it a noble effort regardless of how you place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Today's project is complicated, with many moving parts. You make it look easy. Your ability to balance several things at once makes you an invaluable asset to your group.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). There are those who think you should suffer for your art or work. But if you've already suffered through your adolescence, consider that you've done enough suffering for a lifetime and take it easy on yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). As you ponder your next move, remember that the investment of education is one that no one can take away from you. Choose your area of study very carefully, and you'll never regret learning.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It will serve you to believe unreasonable things that most people wouldn't consider to be true. By your thinking, if they haven't been proved false, the possibilities remain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You'll be dealing in your material assets. Your choice will be between spending, saving or giving of what you have. Keep in mind that each of these choices ends in loss; it's just a matter of timing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Someone has knocked themselves out for you. If you haven't properly shown appreciation for this, do so now, and your personal life becomes instantly stable and fulfilling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). When people make decisions together, there's a chance the result will be a compromise that suits no one. If there's a better way, you'll think of it this afternoon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Maybe you can judge a book by its cover and a movie by its poster. But you can't judge a book by its movie. You'll have the choice of a long journey or the shortcut that gives a mere taste of the whole experience.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You can't lose when you sacrifice in the name of love. A sacrifice for love makes you a richer person regardless of whether you ever get back what was sacrificed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Support your mind by giving it the conditions it needs to work best. Sleep, nutrition, fresh air and sunshine will be involved. Also required: distance from a certain tedious experience.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The future holds surprises. Treat everyone fairly. Everyone. Over time, friends have a way of becoming enemies, and enemies have been known to join forces as true friends.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 17). Friendly to everyone, you're never sure from whence your next luck will spring, but you're sure it will be good, and you're right. You'll shake hands and make deals with VIPs. Next month's travels will open your mind to doing things differently. You'll follow a wild idea to full realization. Cash in at the end of November. Gemini and Libra people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 25, 4, 39 and 11.

PROCESSING THE PAST WITH PLUTO: The retrograde status of Pluto in Capricorn begins a five-month cycle of processing the past. If you dread facing the "yuck" of your yesterdays, have no fear. There is more than one way to overcome emotional baggage.

Tip No. 5: Reinvent yourself. One way to prove to yourself that you are not defined by the past and the things that have happened to you is to create a new identity fashioned purely to your preferences. Think of it as an exercise in making up alter egos. Instead of settling for the trends of your times and reflecting the limitations of your culture, conjure a mental image of who you would be were you not bound by location, economics or social expectation. Write about this new character. Collect symbols and images that tell you who he or she is.

Like a gamer creating an avatar, you don't have to adopt the first character you come up with. Play and refine your ideas. Start over from scratch time and again. When you strike on an identity that really fits, ask yourself: How can I represent this in the world in some small (or big) way?

CO detector needed?

Heloise

Dear Readers: The column on the importance of EVERY HOUSEHOLD having carbon-monoxide detectors prompted the following questions:

— Patricia J. in Virginia wrote: "Why do I need a carbon-monoxide detector? I have no gas appliances, no fireplace, no charcoal grill and no attached garage. ... I don't understand why I would need one."
— Linda T. in California

wrote, "My home is all electric, and I think there should be no problem."

— A Reader, via email, asked, "Can you tell us where all this carbon monoxide would be coming/leaking from?"

As the saying goes, it is better to be safe than sorry! The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission states that "every home should have a carbon monoxide (CO) alarm." Why? Although electric appliances do not give off carbon monoxide, a car left running in the garage or a fire in the chimney can give off the deadly gas. Carbon monoxide can come from many different sources, not just the obvious fuel-burning appliances. A detector does not cost much, so why take the chance? Better safe than sorry. Invest in a carbon-monoxide detector, no matter where you live! — Heloise

NO-BLUNDER BIRDSEED

Dear Heloise: An easy way to get loose birdseed into the feeders is to cut a half-gallon plastic milk container into two pieces, with the larger portion being the bottom two-thirds of the container. The top part serves as an excellent funnel, and the lower portion is a good container for scooping up the seed. — Nick P., Iuka, Miss.

FRESHEN UP

Dear Heloise: My grandchildren keep many toys and stuffed animals at my house for when they visit. I would like to clean the stuffed animals before their next visit. Do you have a hint on how to get them clean? — Janet S. in Indiana

Janet, our special stuffed friends need a little freshening up from time to time. However, since many of these furry friends cannot go through the washing machine, here is the Heloise hint: Sprinkle a stuffed animal with baking soda and rub it in using your hand or a soft brush. After letting it sit for a while, give the stuffed animal a good shaking to remove all the baking soda, and it is now ready to play another day! For many more hints using baking soda, order my baking-soda pamphlet by sending $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (70 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Clean plastic toys with a paste of baking soda and hot water. Just a light scrub and rinse should keep all toys ready to play! — Heloise

Father of 4 selfish to put health at risk

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old wife and mother of four. I'm concerned about my husband. He is 44 and drinks at home every evening after work.

I don't mind him having a few cans of beer, but he drinks between six and 12 a day. He refuses to see a doctor for checkups or when he is sick. I am worried about his health. The drinking could have an impact, and I would like him to have a physical exam to put my mind at ease.

I tell my husband I want him to take care of himself to live longer for our children's sake (our youngest is 4). At times, we argue about it, and I'm tired of fighting over his drinking. His response is, "At least I do it at home and not at the bar."

I think he is being selfish and thinking only of himself. He talks about "pride." How can I get him to cut down on his drinking or see a doctor as needed? — WORRIED WIFE IN GUAM

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is an alcoholic. He may not want to see a doctor because he knows what the doctor will tell him. It is important that you understand you cannot control another person's behavior, and the only person who can "get" your husband to stop drinking or cut down is him.

For your own emotional well-being, I'm advising you to contact Al-Anon. Al-Anon is a fellowship of family members and friends of alcoholics, and it was created to help people just like you. Visit Al-Anon-FamilyGroups.org, call 888-4AL-ANON or email wso@al-anon.org. You may also want to contact your department of mental health services for guidance. I can't guarantee that it will help with your husband's illness — because alcoholism is one — but it will help you to cope.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13 and in middle school. We have a program called an iPad Pilot Program in which students are given an iPad for a year to use in daily classroom activities. I'm a responsible honor student, yet somehow some scratches appeared on it one day.

My parents are really tight with money. I'm afraid if I tell them, I'll get in trouble. I have some video games I don't play anymore that I can sell to fix the scratches, but if I do, my parents will find out. I guess I don't want them to be upset or think I'm irresponsible. Please tell me what to do. — IN A BIND

DEAR IN A BIND: Some wear and tear on items that are issued to students is to be expected. Stop stalling and tell your parents what happened. They are going to find out eventually, and it is better that they hear it from you.

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved into a lovely house located not far from a funeral home. From time to time, funeral processions pass by my house.

Is there a way for an outsider to quietly pay respects without making the people in the procession uncomfortable? I feel bad ignoring them and just going about my business. I don't wear hats, or I'd remove it. I'm also not Catholic, so the sign of the cross doesn't seem appropriate. Any ideas? — RESPECTFUL IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR RESPECTFUL: While no gesture is required, if you happen to be outside when a funeral procession passes by, pause from what you're doing and place your right hand over your heart to acknowledge the mourners' grief. I'm sure your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

No evidence narcotics aid colitis

Dr. Keith Roach

DEAR DR.

ROACH: I have a very close relative who has ulcerative colitis and who was very ill a few years ago. She is now in partial remission but still has bouts of colitis. She found a doctor who (she thinks) is the smartest person in the world. He is treating her with Vicodin, about which he says, "No one knows why, but this drug heals the lesions associated with the disease." She is also on other colitis meds similar to Asacol. I'm really not sure what she does take, because she doesn't discuss this much with me, as I disagree with this doctor. I'm not a doctor but do know a little about these drugs she takes, and I feel she is playing with fire. — C.

ANSWER: Ulcerative colitis is one of two forms of inflammatory bowel disease — a serious, even potentially life-threatening condition that is in no way related to irritable bowel syndrome, despite the similar-sounding name.

Symptoms of ulcerative colitis usually include diarrhea, which may be bloody or with mucus and can happen more than 10 times daily. Abdominal pain, fever and weight loss are frequent but not universal. Symptoms can be unrelated to the gut, especially rash and joint pain.

Vicodin contains a narcotic, hydrocodone, and all narcotics slow down the GI tract. Although they can be used for diarrhea or for abdominal pain, it is potentially dangerous to use these kinds of drugs if a person with UC is acutely ill. There is no evidence I know of that they promote healing.

Asacol, an oral form of 5-ASA, is commonly used for mild to moderate UC. Topical 5-ASA (Canasa or Rowasa) is used for people who have inflammation only at the end of the rectum. UC increases the risk of colon cancer, so everyone with UC should get periodic colonoscopies, as directed by their gastroenterologist, usually beginning after eight years of symptoms and repeated every one to two years.

I share your concern about her care due to the Vicodin use, but Asacol may be a reasonable therapy. I refer ALL patients with inflammatory bowel disease to a gastroenterologist who specializes in IBD. A second opinion for your relative might be wise.

TO READERS: Questions about breast cancer and its treatment are found in the booklet on that subject. To obtain a copy, write: Dr. Roach — No. 1101, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.7

Mowery steps down at United

By CHRIS RAMBO
Staff Writer

HANOVERTON—Matt Mowery feels the United boys basketball program is on the right track, but he will not be on the bench to see the end of the rebuilding project.

Mowery's resignation as head coach was announced at Wednesday's board of education meeting.

His overall record in three seasons as head coach was 6-60. He previously was an assistant at United for three years and Salem for one year.

"When I took the job, I was told that wins and losses weren't the main priority right away," Mowery said. "My job was to develop a summer program and develop a youth program so we could get moving in the right direction. I feel like we were making strides."

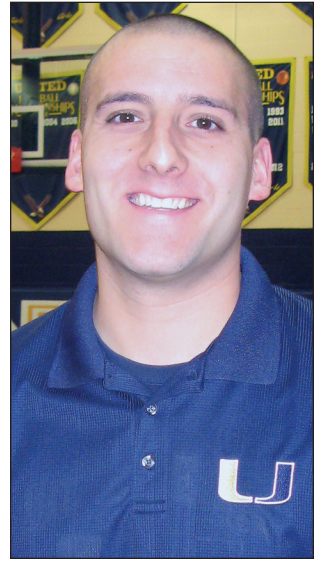

Mowery—who is getting married this summer—felt he no longer had the time or the community support to keep the program moving.

"Getting married is obviously a huge part of my decision to step down," Mowery said. "It's a big commitment. Also, I think some patience was starting to wear thin."

"Building a program from the ground up like we were trying to do requires a lot of time. I think the administration was behind me, but there were some in the community who were beginning to lose patience."

Mowery also acknowledged that he needed a break mentally. He lost his mother to brain cancer halfway through his first season and also lost his grandmother to cancer halfway through his second season.

"There was a lot strain

with losing both my mother and my grandmother," Mowery said. "I was tired."

The Eagles finished the 2013-14 season at 3-20, their most wins under Mowery. However, he could see better things on the horizon. The Eagles had three straight junior high teams make championship game appearances. Freshman Jake Clark led the varsity team in scoring this past season.

"Overall, it was the best season of my time here," Mowery said. "The kids worked hard and I could see the improvement. The youth and summer programs were starting to pay off."

Mowery—who teaches at United—said he has a couple of schools interested in hiring him as an assistant coach next season, which he intends to take advantage of.

"It will be nice to be able to enjoy the game without all of the demands of a head coach," Mowery said. "I definitely want to be a head coach again sometime, but now I need a break."

Clippers down Tigers

WELLSVILLE — The Columbiana softball team decided enough was enough in the sixth inning.

The Clippers pulled away from Wellsville with two RBI doubles and a two-run home run from Carly Sawders for a 15-4 win in six innings Wednesday at Hammond Park.

"I wasn't really keep track of the score," Sawders said. "I knew we were up by a few runs, but I didn't know we were up by that far."

The Clippers (6-1) led 8-4 as they entered the sixth inning courtesy of a pair of RBIs from Sierra Ross and a fourth inning home-run from Haley Thom along with several stolen bases.

"I feel like we are getting hits on the ball," Sawders said. "We have been getting hits out there, and I feel like aggressively we're doing good."

With only one out in the bottom of the sixth, the bats were going as Madison Roessler and Navi Kaur hit RBI doubles to pad the Clippers' lead. Then Sawders blasted a two-run home run and as the Clippers led by 10.

"I was not expecting that at all," Sawders said. "All I was focusing on was trying to hit the ball. I wasn't expecting it to go that far."

The game was ultimately called when Madison Macklin hit an RBI single to score Ross.

"I was confident that we were going to keep on going if they wouldn't tell us to get off the field," Columbiana coach Jerry Beltempo said. "Anytime we win, I'm pleased, and even more if we can get it done in less than seven innings."

The Tigers (3-4) pulled within 6-5 in the fourth inning as Lexi Ammon hit the ball in center field for an inside-the-park home run after Clippers outfielders Baylie Mook and Elise Hammond collided.

"Ammon hit the ball well," Wellsville coach Joe Soldano said. "It was unfortunate the center fielder and right fielder collided, but we were in the game. I can't complain."

Ammon led the team with a home run and RBI double along with Johnna Stokes, who hit an RBI single.

Domenica Cartwright pitched a complete game as she struck out two and walked six, but struggled with three wild pitches in the sixth as she recovers from a hamstring injury.

"She pulled her hamstring two weeks ago and it hasn't healed up on her," Soldano said. "She throws as hard as she can, and I think that's affected her a little tonight, but she pitched well. She's rather consistent."

Both teams return to action today as the Clippers host Sebring and the Tigers head to Western Reserve.

Rebels' Lindsay keeps Lisbon's bats at bay

By CHRIS RAMBO
Staff Writer

LISBON—Crestview pitcher Autumn Lindsay was racing through the Lisbon batting order—holding the Blue Devils hitless through the first four innings—until her rhythm was all of a sudden interrupted by her own team.

A fifth-inning explosion by the Crestview offense put the sophomore on the brink of a no-hitter, but she was to endure an interminable wait as the Rebels batted around twice and the temperature dropped.

The no-hit bid ended with two outs in the fifth, but it was only a small blemish in a 16-1 Crestview rout Wednesday at the Dickey Complex.

"I was definitely thinking about pitching a no-hitter as we were scoring all those runs," Lindsay said. "I got a little nervous. It's OK though, it was nice to see us hit the ball like we did." Crestview improves to 4-2 overall and 1-2 in the Inter-Tri County League upper tier. Lisbon drops to 5-2, 2-1.

Taylor Siefke broke up Lindsay's no-hitter with a bloop single to center that barely reached the outfield grass for the Blue Devils' only hit. Lindsay proceeded to walk in the Devils only run.

"Maybe we could have called a different pitch on the hit, but that stuff happens, nothing you can do about it," Crestview coach Clarence Sicklesmith said.

The Rebels bookended their offense, scoring four runs in the first inning and 12 in the fifth off Lisbon starter Haille Metzgar. Alexis Brooks led the way for Crestview with two doubles, a triple and three RBIs. Lindsey Balmanti had a triple, two singles and three RBIs, while Lindsay helped her cause with two singles and three

RBIs. "We stepped up and did what we needed to do tonight," Sicklesmith said. "We have to play better ball then we have and tonight we took care of business at the plate."

"When everyone hits the ball like they did tonight we feel like we can win any game," Lindsay said.

After the Rebels—keyed by a two-run triple from Balmanti—took a quick 4-0 lead, Metzgar settled down nicely for the next three innings and kept Lisbon in range. The Blue Devils, however, could muster nothing against Lindsay. Their only baserunner in the first four innings reached on a throwing error.

"My curveball and drop-ball were both working really well tonight," Lindsay said. "My defense also did a great job of backing me up."

Everything collapsed for Lisbon in the fifth as the Rebels began to zero in on Metzgar and hit several balls hard. The Blue Devils also committed four errors in the inning.

"I don't know that we felt we could compete today," Lisbon coach Dave Crismon said. "I felt it right from the first pitch, it has to change. We were right in it until the fifth, but I don't think the girls felt that way. We've made good strides, but you have to discipline yourself to bring a competitive mindset to every play."

Both teams play today as Crestview visits Girard and Lisbon hosts Jackson-Milton.

LISBON—Michael McDonough struck out 17 batters to break the Crestview single-game record as the Rebels beat Lisbon 11-1 Wednesday.

The record was previously held by Brad Gecina in 1995.

At one point McDonough—who pitched a one-hitter—struck out 11 straight Blue Devil batters.

McDonough, Dylan Hart and Andrew Simmons each had two RBIs for the Rebels (1-3, 1-2 ITCL upper tier). Also for Crestview, Kaden Davis had two doubles and an RBI and Jake Ferris had three hits and an RBI.

Eric Walker had the lone hit for Lisbon.

Gomes powers Indians over Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Yan Gomes hit a two-run triple, Zach McAllister allowed a run and four hits in six innings and the Cleveland Indians held on for a 3-2 win over the Detroit Tigers on Wednesday night.

McAllister (2-0) walked two and struck out four and John Axford pitched the ninth for his fifth save for Cleveland, which had lost 18 of its previous 23 against Detroit.

Axford got out of a jam with a runner on third to seal the win. Alex Avila doubled and went to third on an error by center fielder Michael Bourn with one out. Axford then struck out pinch hitter Don Kelly and got Rajai Davis on a groundout to end the game.

Brian Shaw pitched a scoreless seventh, but Cody Allen gave up an unearned run in the eighth when Indians manager Terry Francona called for a replay review on the play at first base on a bunt single by Detroit's Ian Kinsler and the safe call was upheld. That put runners on first and second with no outs. Torii Hunter grounded into a double play and Miguel Cabrera singled to make it 3-2. Victor Martinez followed with a single, but Allen fanned Austin Jackson to end the inning.

Miguel Cabrera drove in both runs for the Tigers. Detroit starter Anibal Sanchez (0-1) gave up three runs — two earned — and two hits in five innings, walking four and striking out eight.

Gomes gave the Indians a 3-1 lead in the second with his triple that scored Asdrubal Cabrera, who reached on an error by Cabrera at first, and David Murphy, who walked.

Murphy made sliding catches in right on line drives by Nick Castellanos in the second and Cabrera in the fourth.

Cleveland got a run in the first as Sanchez minimized the damage after walking the first three batters to load the bases. No Indians batter swung at his first 19 pitches before Carlos Santana grounded into a run-scoring double play on pitch No. 20. Sanchez then got Michael Brantley on a foulout to end the inning.

Detroit tied it at 1 in the bottom of the first on Cabrera's RBI groundout.

Reds beat Buccos

CINCINNATI (AP) — That playoff loss in Pittsburgh last year? Johnny Cueto never thought about it much. So getting a chance to shut out the Pirates in a rematch wasn't any more special.

Not to him, anyway.

Cueto pitched his third career shutout against the team that beat him in the NL wild card game, and Joey Votto hit a two-run homer that led the Cincinnati Reds over the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0 Wednesday for their first winning series this season.

Cueto (1-2) had his way with the lineup that beat him 6-2 at PNC Park in the playoffs. He limited the Pirates to three hits, didn't walk a batter and struck out a career-high 12 during his first shutout since 2011.

Any extra satisfaction given what happened the last time he faced them?

"I never think too much about those things," Cueto said, with assistant trainer Tomas Vera interpreting. "That was 2013."

Penguins teach Jackets a lesson in opener

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Columbus coach Todd Richards insists his upstart team isn't in the playoffs "just to go to school."

Maybe, but the Pittsburgh Penguins provided a pretty valuable lesson in perseverance during a 4-3 victory in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference quarterfinals on Wednesday night.

Down two after 21 minutes of slow and sometimes sloppy hockey, the Metropolitan Division champions responded by scoring the final three goals, including Brandon Sutter's go-ahead wrist shot 8:18 into the third period.

"I think we expected a tight game," Sutter said after the third playoff goal of his career. "They got up and we stuck with it. It was a good win."

One that came with more than a few tense moments. Beau Bennett and Matt Niskanen scored power-play goals 45 seconds apart in the second period, erasing Pittsburgh's two-goal deficit. Jussi Jokinen also scored for the Penguins and Marc-Andre Fleury overcame some shaky defense in front of him to stop 31 shots.

Game 2 is Saturday night.

"We have to learn from it but we found a way to win," Pittsburgh forward Sidney Crosby said. "Obviously we didn't start the way we wanted, getting down two goals. I think we have to clean up some things."

If not, a series expected to be a romp could turn into something else entirely.

Jack Johnson, Mark Letestu and Derek Mackenzie scored for the Blue Jackets, who remain in search of their first-ever playoff win. Sergei Bobrovsky finished with 28 saves but was handcuffed by Sutter's knuckler at the end of a 2-on-1 break.

"I've seen Bob make that save a thousand times," Richards said. "It just got by him."

The Blue Jackets insisted they wouldn't be intimidated despite Pittsburgh's overwhelming edge in playoff experience and star power. The Penguins swept the five regular-season meetings between the teams, but Columbus surged after the Olympic break, rising to the seventh seed in the East while the injury-riddled Penguins coasted to a division title.

If the NHL's youngest team was scared by the stage, it hardly showed.

Johnson gave the Blue Jackets their first-ever postseason lead 6:20 into the game. He charged to the front of the net, got a feed from Brandon Dubinsky and beat Fleury with a beautiful deke from forehand to backhand.

The Penguins answered with 2:51 left in the first when Evgeni Malkin — returning after missing three weeks with a foot injury — took advantage of a turnover by Fedor Tyutin and hit Jokinen in the slot. The knuckling wrist shot sailed over Bobrovsky's right shoulder and Pittsburgh exhaled.

But only briefly. With Pittsburgh defenseman Rob Scuderi off for interference, the Blue Jackets went back in front 2-1 when Letestu jammed home a rebound and sent Columbus soaring into the dressing room.

"People were wondering how we would start the game with our inexperience, but we were pretty comfortable after the first period with a 2-1 lead and maybe let off the gas," Columbus center Ryan Johansen said.

Mackenzie got loose for a breakaway short-handed goal, pushing the advantage to 3-1 just 43 seconds into the second. But Columbus' momentum then vanished against the league's top power play.

Bennett tipped in a Niskanen slap shot 51 seconds after Mackenzie scored. Johnson was quickly whistled for interference and Niskanen needed only 10 seconds to even the game with a snap shot from the left circle.

Things settled down after the five goals in 5 minutes flurry, though Columbus didn't exactly fold. The Blue Jackets carried play at times in the first two periods.

The Penguins righted themselves in the third. The miscues that plagued them for the first 40 minutes disappeared, replaced by the kind of responsible play they know they'll need to make a serious run at the franchise's fourth Stanley Cup.

"Nobody panicked," Fleury said. "The power play was huge for us like it has been all season. It got us back in the game and from then we were in good shape."

NOTES: Pittsburgh is 10-3 in its last 13 Game 1s played on home ice. ... The Blue Jackets scratched forwards R.J. Umberger (upper body) and Nick Foligno (lower body), though coach Todd Richards said both players could be available for Game 2. ... Crosby assisted on Niskanen's goal to give him 106 career points in the postseason, tied with Kevin Stevens for third on the franchise list.

MLS EXPANDS TO ALANTA
 ATLANTA (AP) — Arthur Blank donned traditional soccer garb to mark his newest venture — an MLS team for Atlanta.
 "I love this one," Blank said, looking down at the red, black and gold scarf draped over his dark suit. "I haven't taken it off since it was given to me. I may not sleep in it tonight, but I may. I haven't decided yet."
 Major League Soccer announced its latest team Wednesday, an expansion team for Atlanta that will begin play in 2017 at the city's new retractable roof stadium.
 The team will be owned by Blank, who also controls the NFL's Atlanta Falcons. He said it was the culmination of a process that started about a decade ago, when he first started talks with MLS about bringing a team to the city.
 The off-and-on discussions picked up again after Blank reached a deal with the city last year to build a new $1 billion downtown stadium next to the soon-to-be-demolished Georgia Dome. He is putting up most of the money, with the city kicking in $200 million from a hotel tax.
 "I think Atlanta is a natural fit for Major League Soccer," said Blank, who was serendipitously joined by a burgeoning fan group that calls itself "Terminus Legion," a reference to the city's former name.
 The team's name has not been determined. Blank said he will get input from the fans before deciding on the new moniker, though he already knows the colors: red and black — matching the Falcons — with a substantial amount of gold as well.
 "What the name will be, we really don't know," he said. "We will spend a lot of time listening to our fans and trying to understand why some names are more important than others, why certain designs are more important than others, why certain logos are more important than others."

Study: Diabetic heart attacks and strokes falling

NEW YORK (AP) — In the midst of the diabetes epidemic, a glimmer of good news: Heart attacks, strokes and other complications from the disease are plummeting.

Over the last two decades, the rates of heart attacks and strokes among diabetics fell by more than 60 percent, a new federal study shows. The research also confirms earlier reports of drastic declines in diabetes-related kidney failure and amputations.

The drop is mainly attributed to better screening, medicines and care. The improvements came even as the number of U.S. adults with diabetes more than tripled in those 20 years.

"It is great news," said Dr. John Buse, a University of North Carolina diabetes specialist, of the drop in rates.

"The prognosis for folks with diabetes has improved dramatically over the last two decades, at least for those with good access to care," Buse said in an email. He was not involved in the study.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention research is reported in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

Diabetes is a disease in which sugar builds up in the blood. The most common form is tied to obesity, and the number of diabetics has ballooned with the rise in obesity. Today, roughly 1 in 10 U.S. adults has the disease, and it is the nation's seventh leading cause of death, according to the CDC.

The obese are already at higher risk for heart attacks and strokes. But diabetics seem to have more narrowing of their blood vessels — a condition that can further foster those problems.

In the 1990s, key studies showed that diabetics could keep their blood sugar, blood pressure and cholesterol under control. The research suggested that vision and heart problems, leg and foot amputations and other diabetes complications were not necessarily inevitable.

Meanwhile, insurance programs expanded coverage of blood sugar monitors and diabetes treatment. Gradually, larger numbers of diabetics were diagnosed earlier and with milder disease.

For the new study, the CDC tallied complication rates from 1990 to 2010 for diabetics ages 20 or older.

During that time, the heart attack rate fell 68 percent, from 141 to 45.5 per 10,000 diabetics, according to hospital records.

The decline was so great that, despite the growing ranks of diabetics, the actual number hospitalized with heart attacks dropped from more than 140,000 to about 136,000.

The stroke rate fell less dramatically — but still declined by more than half, finishing at 53 per 10,000. The heart attack and stroke rates for diabetics are essentially even now, lead author Edward Gregg noted.

The researchers saw declines in hearts attack and stroke rates for non-diabetics as well, but those improvements weren't nearly as big as they were for diabetics.

Amputation rates also fell by more than half. However, like strokes, the actual number increased over the two decades.

The growth in the number of diabetics "wiped out most of the gains" from the declining rates, so the number who ended up in the hospital for strokes or amputations swelled, said Dr. Robert Gabbay, of Boston's Joslin Diabetes Center.

The study also found that the rate of kidney failure dropped by 28 percent. But that wasn't true for all ages — the rate in those 65 and older actually increased, for reasons that aren't clear. That could be a sign diabetics are living longer — long enough to get kidney disease, Gregg speculated.

The researchers also looked at a less common complication, death caused by dangerous levels of blood sugar. The rate of such deaths dropped by 64 percent; the numbers also declined by 18 percent. In 2010, those deaths totaled 2,361.

Armed robber was never told to report to Missouri prison

ST. LOUIS (AP) — After he was convicted of armed robbery in 2000, Cornealious Anderson was sentenced to 13 years behind bars and told to await instructions on when and where to report to prison. But those instructions never came.

So Anderson didn't report. He spent the next 13 years turning his life around — getting married, raising three kids, learning a trade. He made no effort to conceal his identity or whereabouts. Anderson paid taxes and traffic tickets, renewed his driver's license and registered his businesses.

Not until last year did the Missouri Department of Corrections discover the clerical error that kept him free. Now he's fighting for release, saying authorities missed their chance to incarcerate him.

In a single day last July, Anderson's life was turned upside-down.

"They sent a SWAT team to his house," Anderson's attorney, Patrick Megaro, said Wednesday. "He was getting his 3-year-old daughter breakfast, and these men with automatic weapons bang on his door." Anderson, 37, was taken to Southeast Correctional Center in Charleston, Mo., to begin serving the sentence. A court appeal filed in February asks for him to be freed.

Anderson had just one arrest for marijuana possession on his record when he and a cousin robbed an assistant manager for a St. Charles Burger King restaurant on Aug. 15, 1999. The men, wearing masks, showed a gun (it turned out to be a BB gun) and demanded money that was about to be placed in a deposit box.

The worker gave up the bag of cash, and the masked men drove away. The worker turned in the car's license plate number.

Anderson was convicted and sentenced to 13 years in prison and waited for word on what to do next.

"His attorney said, 'Listen, they're going to get you some day, so just wait for the order,'" Megaro said. "As time goes by, the order never comes. What does a normal person believe? Maybe they forgot about it. It's only human nature to hope they just let it go. He really didn't know what to do."

"A year goes by, two years, five years, 10 years. He's thinking, 'I guess they don't care about me anymore,'" Megaro said.

So Anderson went about his life. Megaro said he was not a fugitive, was never on the run. In fact, just the opposite.

Megaro described Anderson as a model citizen — a married father who became a carpenter and started three businesses. He paid income and property taxes and kept a driver's license showing his true name and address. When he was pulled over for a couple of traffic violations, nothing showed up indicating he should be in prison.

That's why Anderson was shocked when the marshals arrived.

He now lives among the general population at Charleston. Megaro said Anderson is holding his own — barely.

"He's doing his best to keep his spirits up," Megaro said. "Each day that goes by, more hope is lost. It's a daily struggle for him."

Peter Joy, director of the Criminal Justice Clinic at the Washington University School of Law in St. Louis, said it isn't unusual in a country with such a high prison population for sentences to fall through the cracks. What is unusual, Joy said, is for it to go unnoticed for so long. "The real tragedy here is that one aspect of prison is the idea of rehabilitation," Joy said. "Here we have somebody who has led a perfect life for 13 years. He did everything right. So he doesn't need rehabilitation."

What happens next isn't clear. Missouri Attorney General Chris Koster on Tuesday filed a court response that said the state is justified in making Anderson serve the sentence.

However, Koster wrote that Megaro could refile the case as an action against the director of the Department of Corrections, which could give Anderson credit for the time he was technically at large.

Megaro doubted that strategy would work. He said the law does not allow credit for time served when the convicted person was not behind bars.

"I don't think that's an option, unfortunately," Megaro said.

Instead, he's relying on case law. The last time anything like this happened in Missouri was 1912. In that case, the convicted man was set free, Megaro said.
