Nestic says Salem Council planning process still in works

By MARY ANN GREIER

SALEM — City Councilman Dave Nestic said a planning process started last year to formulate a five-year guide for council spending and action remains in the works.

"It's something we still want to do," he said when contacted Thursday.

He explained that with the fall election and everything else, there was a lot going on and it was determined it would be better to hold off until the new council was seated and had a chance to settle in.

The process remains in the research phase and will be brought up again. He come part of the scope of work for the Sustainable Opportunity Development Center, which has been tapped to partner with the city on economic development this year, utilizing $40,000 budgeted by city council specifically for economic development.

The issue of planning was raised Tuesday during the city council meeting by city resident Lisa Cahill, who urged council to "reignite efforts of the five-year planning process."

Cahill and her husband, Scott, spearheaded an effort presented to city council last February known as the Downtown Salem Technical Advisory Committee Plan, which was formulated by a group of business owners, residents and members of organizations.

The plan asked city council to take several actions related to buildings, parking, traffic, funding, Internet access and business development for downtown.

An executive summary outlined the following significant items the city was being asked to do:

- form a Salem Buildings Departent with a building code, building ir spector and associated fee schedule

- raze buildings that pose a threat to the public per current law assume debt or a one-time tax of

$50 per resident in the city of Salem for two years to provide funding for the redevelopment purchase structures and land to provide parking adjacent to downtown - revise traffic patterns and add a truck route that circumvents the downtown business district while still allowing truck traffic serving downtown

- consider universal Internet, car charging stations and a trolley draft a simple checklist to allow for the occupancy of buildings work with a non-profit developer to support a business incubator, apply for grants, find matching funds, coordinate other non-profit efforts and address aesthetic concerns of the downtown.

Cahill said the building owners and tenants have been working on their properties — the private side of the equation is doing its part. She asked that the city start doing its part, such as developing a checklist for occupancy of buildings, which could be put on the city website, along with a list of upcoming events in the city. She also asked them to put together a parking plan.

The idea of a planning process was first raised by Nestic in May during a Committee of the Whole meeting of city council, with council members assigned to chair four subcommittees

Village plans to aerate reservoir

By KEVIN HOWELL Staff Writer

LEETONIA— The village will be pursuing an aeration system for its water reservoir in response to an impending Ohio EPA violation for elevated levels of disinfection byproducts.

Village Administrator Gary Phillips told the water committee Wednesday night that the administration is seeking an aerator to circulate the water in the Orchard Hill reservoir that Jon Vollnogle, president of Howells and Baird civil engineers, said should eliminate 55 percent of the byproducts, bringing the village below the threshold. Vollnogle said that estimate is based on the assumption that Salem, which provides water to Leetonia and where the problem is originating, does nothing.

Vollnogle said based on a cost analysis for Washingtonville, which also receives water from Salem and has already been notified of its violation, he guessed the system will cost Leetonia $1,000 per year. The initial estimate predicts a $120,000 cost to install the system, which has a design life of 25 years, but the project will likely need bid out, so the cost could be lower, Vollnogle said.

According to Phillips, the system needs to pass engineering, then be submitted to the OEPA for approval before being bid out. However, he said nothing can be done until the village is notified of a violation. He also noted that no matter what Salem does to correct the problem, the system will benefit the village's water in the long term, especially if the village were ever to return to its own water supply.

By DEANNE JOHNSON

Staff Writer

Ball was one of 17 open indictments issued by the grand jury, which concluded three days of hearings on Thursday. Another 13 secret indictments will be released as they are served. The grand jury failed to indict on three of the 34 cases presented by county Prosecutor Robert Herron. One case was continued.

Ball, 24, was living on Home Circle, Salem, when he and his mother, Josee Wilson, reportedly argued leading to him allegedly stabbing her multiple times on Jan. 12. He waived his right to a preliminary hearing in late January and was bound over to the grand jury on the single felonious assault

The new attempted murder charge alleges his conduct, if successful, would have led to the murder of Wilson. The new charge is a first-degree felony.

Four of the open indictments issued by the grand jury involved an alleged robbery of Edna Geer on Jan. 5. Frank J. Flaherty Jr., 39, Shadyside Avenue, East Liverpool, is charged with robbery, a third-degree felony, for allegedly attempting or committing the theft.

Brianne M. Flaherty, 19, Shadyside Avenue, East Liverpool, and David J. Mathes, 22, Birch Road, East Liverpool, are each charged with complicity to robbery, a third-degree felony, for allegedly assisting Frank J. Flaherty, and Gloria

Scores killed in deadly Ukraine day of protest

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) -Protesters advanced on police lines in the heart of the Ukrainian capital on Thursday, prompting government snipers to shoot back and kill scores of people in the country's deadliest day since the breakup of the Soviet Union a quarter-century

The European Union imposed sanctions on those deemed responsible for the violence, and three EU foreign ministers held a long day of talks in Kiev with both embattled President

Viktor Yanukovych and leaders of the protests seeking his ouster. But it's increasingly unclear whether either side has the will or ability to compromise.

Yanukovych and the opposition protesters are locked in a battle over the identity of Ukraine, a nation of 46 million that has divided loyalties between Russia and the West. Parts of the country — mostly in its western cities — are in open revolt against Yanukovych's central government, while many in eastern Ukraine back the president and favor strong ties with Russia, their former Soviet ruler.

Protesters across the country are also upset over corruption in Ukraine, the lack of democratic rights and the country's ailing economy, which just barely avoided bankruptcy with a $15 billion aid infusion from Russia.

Despite the violence, defiant protesters seemed determined to continue their push for Yanukovych's resignation and early presidential and parliamentary elections.

People streamed toward the square Thursday afternoon as other protesters hurled wood, refuse and tires on barricades.

'The price of freedom is too high. But Ukrainians are paying it," said Viktor Danilyuk, a 30-year-old protester. "We have no choice. The government isn't hearing us.'

In an effort to defuse the situation, the national parliament late Thursday passed a measure that would prohibit an "anti-terrorist operation" threatened by Yanukovych to restore order, and called for all Interior Ministry troops to return to their bases. But it was unclear how binding the move would be. Presidential adviser Marina Stavnichuk was quoted by the Interfax news agency as saying the measure goes into effect immediately, but that a mechanism for carrying it out would have to be developed by the president's office and the Interior Ministry.

At least 101 people have died this week in the clashes in Kiev, according to protesters and Ukrainian authorities, a sharp reversal in three months of mostly peaceful protests. Now neither side appears willing to compro-

Thursday was the deadliest day yet at the sprawling protest camp on Kiev's Independence Square, also called the Maidan. Snipers were seen shooting at protesters there — and video footage showed at least one sniper wearing a Ukraine riot police uniform.

One of the wounded, volunteer medic Olesva

Zhukovskaya, sent out a $brief \, Twitter \, message - \text{``I'm'}$ dying" — after she was shot in the neck. Dr. Oleh Musiv. the medical coordinator for the protesters, said she was in serious condition after undergoing surgery.

Musiy told The Associated Press that at least 70 protesters were killed Thursday and over 500 were wounded in the clashes - and that the death toll could rise further.

In addition, three policemen were killed Thursday and 28 suffered gunshot wounds, Interior Ministry spokesman Serhiy Burlakov told the AP.

The National Health Ministry said a total of 75 people died in the clashes Tuesday and Thursday, but did not give a breakdown. Earlier Thursday, however, it said 28 people had died.

French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius, along with his German and Polish counterparts, said after a five-hour meeting with Yanukovych and another with opposition leaders that they discussed new elections and a new government, but gave no details. The three resumed meeting with Yanukovych late Thursday.

Video footage on Ukrainian television showed shocking scenes Thursday of protesters being cut down by gunfire, lying on the pavement as comrades rushed to their aid. Trying to protect themselves with shields, teams of protesters carried bodies away on sheets of plastic or planks of wood.

Protesters were also seen leading policemen, their hands held high, around the sprawling protest camp in central Kiev. Ukraine's Interior Ministry says 67 police were captured in all. An opposition lawmaker said they were being held in Kiev's occupied city hall. The Interior Ministry said that security forces may use force to free the captured police. In Brussels, the 28-nation European Union decided in an emergency meeting Thursday to impose sanctions against those behind the violence in Ukraine, including a travel ban and an asset freeze against some government officials. It was unclear whether the EU would consider any of the opposition figures to also have a share of responsibility in the bloodshed.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel spoke with Russia's President Vladimir Putin and President Barack Obama about the crisis Thursday evening. She briefed them about the trip of the three EU foreign ministers to Kiev, and all three leaders agreed that a political solution needs to be found as soon as possible to prevent further bloodshed.

Saying the U.S. was outraged by the violence. Obama urged Yanukovych in a statement to withdraw his forces from downtown Kiev immediately. He also said Ukraine should respect the right of protest and that protesters must be peaceful.

The White House said U.S. Vice President Joe Biden spoke by telephone with Yanukovych on Thursday afternoon and made clear that the U.S. is prepared to sanction those officials responsible for the violence.

Religious freedom bill riles Arizona gay rights supporters

PHOENIX (AP) — The Arizona Legislature gave final approval Thursday to legislation that allows business owners asserting their religious beliefs to refuse service to gays and others, drawing backlash from Democrats who called the proposal "state-sanctioned discrimination." The 33-27 vote by the House sends the legislation to Republican Gov. Jan Brewer and puts Arizona back at the forefront of a polarizing piece of legislation four years after the state enacted an immigration crackdown that caused a national furor. Similar religious protection legislation has been introduced in Ohio, Mississippi, Idaho, South Dakota, Tennessee and Oklahoma, but Arizona's plan is the only one that has passed. Republicans stressed that the bill is about protecting religious freedom and not discrimination. They frequently cited the case of a New Mexico photographer who was sued after refusing to take wedding pictures of a gay couple and said Arizona needs a law to protect people in the state from heavyhanded actions by courts and law enforcement.

Cincinnati's latest parking plan is meters

CINCINNATI (AP) — The latest proposal for Cincinnati's parking system calls for buying new meters, instead of higher rates and longer hours. Mayor John Cranley is ready to ask city council to buy $2 million worth of new meters that accept credit cards and also to hire more enforcement officers. The Cincinnati Enquirer (http://cin.ci/1gL5S8W) reports that Cranley planned to take the revised plan to council Thursday, and that he hopes to get approval within two weeks.

Cranley says the new meters will make it easier for people to pay, and more enforcement also will increase revenues. Cranley won election last November after campaigning against city officials' plan to lease out operation of the parking system in a long-term deal that offered an $85 million unfront payment

Representing U.S. interests abroad

 $F^{\rm or\ most\ of\ U.S.}$ history, presidents of all political parties have used ambassadorships to other countries for political reasons. Sometimes they reward friends. Sometimes they get political rivals out of the way.

Now the American Foreign Service Association, a group of professionals at the State Department, is insisting ambassadors should meet certain qualifications. Some knowledge of countries where potential ambassadors want to serve would be helpful.

The AFSA recommendation comes in the wake of embarrassing Senate hearings for President Barack Obama's nominees as ambassadors to Argentina, Iceland and Norway. All three men — being rewarded because they raised money for Obama — confessed they know little about the countries. In fact, none of the three has ever visited the country where he is to serve.

Obviously, members of the association would prefer every ambassador's post be filled by someone from the Foreign Service.

But remember the Victoria Nuland flap? Nuland, a career Foreign Service diplomat who has served under both Republican and Democrat presidents, was talking on the phone with another U.S. official recently, unaware Russian spies were recording the call.

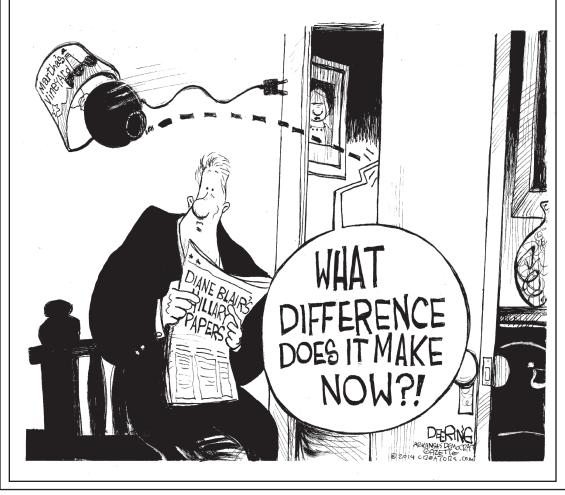

At one point during a conversation on trade issues, Nuland alienated European Union officials by remarking, "---- the E.U," using a profanity that begins with "F."

So no, being a career diplomat sometimes is no guarantee things will go smoothly between the U.S. and other countries.

Still, the AFSA members have a point. Political appointees always will be part of the mix of ambassadors. Next time Obama nominates one, however, he may want to give him a current affairs quiz.

Obama silences complaining firms with IRS

BETSY McCAUGHEY

President Barack Obama is using the IRS to silence employers unhappy about Obamacare. That's the hidden purpose behind the employer mandate delay announced on Feb. 10.

The administration released 227 pages of mindnumbing regulations ridiculously billed as making "the compliance process simpler and easier" for employers. Hidden in the gobbledygook (on pages 125-126) is a requirement that employers sign a statement to the IRS — meaning under penalty of perjury — claiming they have not reduced the number of employees or cut hours to shield themselves from the costs of Obamacare.

The administration called it a mandate delay. Nonsense. The delay applies only to a miniscule fraction of midsize employers (50-99 full-time workers) who currently don't provide coverage. They're mostly in retail and hospitality, and they will be allowed to continue not offering it. Their workers (about 1.9 million) plus dependents will either stay uninsured or sign up with Obamacare. The administration is hoping for the latter

But nine out of every 10 midsize employers already provide coverage, and for them, last Monday's announcement was about hush money, not delay. They are required to continue providing coverage, and worse, most will have to switch to the costlier Obamacare package of benefits because that's the only plan for sale. State insurance regulators and insurance companies have already said "no" to renewing noncompliant plans.

The only thing these employers get from last week's rule change is a "stop complaining" bribe. The Affordable Care Act says employers have to pay a whopping $3,000 each time a worker goes onto the Obama exchanges and gets a taxpayer-subsidized plan. Now the administration is offering to waive that penalty. Employers who want this deal must attest to the IRS that they haven't laid off workers or cut hours to squeeze under the 99-worker threshold.

Here's where Big Brother starts running your business. The IRS will forgive changes "because of the sale of a division, changes in the economic marketplace in which the employer operates, terminations of employment for poor performance, or other similar changes." It's none of Big Brother's business why you hire or fire.

The president wants employers to keep quiet before the 2014 election. In 2013, the headlines screamed about layoffs and reduced hours as CEOs and managers strategically maneuvered to minimize the cost of the employer mandate.

Astoundingly, in the first seven months of 2013, 77 percent of new hires were part-time. Obama rushed to stop the damaging news by announcing last July that he would delay the employer mandate until Jan. 1, 2015. Oops! That date is approaching.

Democrats running for re-election this fall are desperate to avoid similar headlines. This time, instead of the president offering employers a delay, he is offering most of them a bribe to keep quiet. Once employers swear they have not cut hours due to Obamacare, how can they speak out about the law's harm to their businesses?

The new rule criminalizes something Congress has not made a crime, and federal courts have said businesses can do. In 1934, Learned Hand, a federal court judge, observed in Gregory v. Helvering: "Anyone may so arrange his affairs that his taxes shall be as low as possible; he is not bound to choose that pattern which will best pay the Treasury; there is not even a patriotic duty to increase one's taxes."

Deceit is the primary motive behind the newly announced regulation. On page 36, it states that although employers are distressed that the law defines 30 hours a week as a full-time job requiring insurance, nothing can be done because the statute expressly states 30 hours. What? Is this the only part of the statute the administration won't change by fiat?

Obama's rule writers are lying and laughing as they concoct these regulations. None of this is being done to redress legitimate concerns of business. Obama is enlarging the powers of the IRS to silence critics, whether it's the tea party or businesses struggling to stay in the black. Say goodbye to fair elections.

OTHER

VOICES

The Columbus Dispatch, Feb. 17
Graduated driver's licenses, where teens earn more driving privileges as they age and gain experience behind the wheel, have been adopted by all 50 states in recent years.

Statistics back up those laws: Easing kids into driving and helping them to build skill and maturity makes for safer roads.

But Ohio lawmakers have made proposals that push the limits of what is reasonable.

These include new licensing requirements for people who, in the eyes of the law, are adults.

As it stands, to get a license at age 16 or 17, the applicant must have completed a formal driver's education course, with 24 hours of classroom instruction and eight hours of in-car training with a certified instructor.

An amendment to House Bill 204, introduced during a Tuesday committee hearing, would require that 18-, 19- and 20-year-olds also take that formal driver's education course.

By that age, some young people are out on their own. They might be supporting themselves; they might even be supporting families. Requiring them to fork over several hundred dollars for a driver's education course could be a hardship.

More defensible are stricter rules governing 16and 17-year-old drivers....

HB 204 also would ban young drivers from being on the road between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. unless a parent or guardian is present.

Currently, 16-year-old drivers must be in by midnight; 17-year-olds by 1 a.m....

Obviously, if the state keeps all teen drivers off the road, none are going to crash. But the desire for safety has to be tempered by practicality.

Back to the past: Not a winning formula for Republicans

Kathleen Willey is back. For people who have forgotten, she is the former volunteer aide to President Bill Clinton who claims he sexually harassed her 20 years ago. She wrote a book about it called "Target: Caught in the Crosshairs of Bill and Hillary Clinton."

What, you say you didn't read it? Neither, it seems, did most of America, which long ago yawned at Bill Clinton's exploits and Hillary's apparent enabling of his extramarital liaisons.

Willey is telling anyone who will listen that "Hillary Clinton is the real war on women" because of the way she treated her and the other women who accused Bill Clinton of sexual harassment. Remember "bimbo eruptions," a term coined by Clinton aide Betsey Wright, who was charged with monitoring them and then discrediting ac-

On WABC's Aaron Klein radio show (as reported on the conservative website WND.com), Willey said this about Hillary Clinton: "The point is what this woman is capable of doing to other women while she's running a campaign basically on women's issues. ... She singlehandedly orchestrated every one of the investigations of all these women (who accused her husband of sexual crimes). They're the people reminding us of how sordid this all is."

Willey vowed to "go back to all the sordid details" if Hillary Clinton runs in 2016.

Is this strategy likely to sway many, if any, female votes? I doubt it. People long ago made their judgments on the Clintons and decided his (and her) behavior about infidelity was a private matter. Besides, the rules — such as they are — about most matters involving sex, at least for some liberals — are even looser now than they were 20 years ago.

If conservatives and Republicans think resurrecting this old news will bring them electoral victory against Hillary Clinton, should she decide to run, they are mistaken. Dredging up the past may help them raise money, but it won't raise Republican votes. In fact, such a strategy could backfire as Mrs.

Clinton would again be portrayed as a victim by a sympathetic media. Having forgiven her husband, those mean Republicans want to "assault" her again.

Republicans have a lot of problems, but chief among them is that they are known more for what they are against. They hate President Obama, Obamacare, Nancy Pelosi and Harry Reid. Some Republicans don't even like each other. What and who do they like? What are they for? Where are examples of their policies working — creating jobs, improving lives, lowering deficits and taxes, cutting spending and reducing the size and reach of government? (Hint: States have the answer, not Washington.)

The number of electoral votes needed to win a presidential election is 270. Electoral votes for Republican presidential candidates have steadily declined since Ronald Reagan's impressive 1984 victory over Walter Mondale. In that blowout election, Reagan carried 49 out of the 50 states and received a record 525 electoral votes out of a possible 538. It's been downhill for Republicans ever since.

Peter Wehner, former deputy director to the president and a senior fellow at the Ethics and Public Policy Center, writes in Commentary magazine: "Out of the last six presidential elections, four have gone to the Democratic nominee, at an average yield of 327 electoral votes to 210 for the Republican. During the preceding two decades, from 1968 to 1988, Republicans won five out of six elections, averaging 417 electoral votes to the Democrats' 113." The country's changing demographics play a part. "White voters, who traditionally and reliably favor the GOP, have gone from 89 percent of the electorate in 1976 to 72 percent in 2012." And the numbers continue to decline for the GOP. Democrats now hold sway over what CNN.com dubbed the "blue wall — the cluster of eastern, Midwest and western states that have traditionally gone Democratic." These blues states, along with the District of Columbia, total 242 electoral votes.

Kathleen Willey, Monica Lewinsky, Paula Jones and the rest of those "wronged women" are not the key to electoral success for Republicans. Neither is a complete focus on bashing Hillary Clinton. It might make certain conservative Republicans feel good, but it won't win them the White House in 2016.

snow parking ban tickets

By TOM GIAMBRONI

LISBON - About 10 people are due a refund on parking tickets issued because of confusion about the village's parking ban during heavy snows.

The issue was raised at this week's Village Council meeting by Police Chief Mike Abraham, who said his officers issued the tickets in the downtown business district over a two-day period during a recent heavy

The village has long had signs posted downtown and in certain other areas announcing permanent parking bans are in place on those streets from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. daily. This is so the street department can remove snow or use the street sweeper unimpeded, depending on the season.

Abraham said he decided to research the parking ban law, which was adopted in the mid 1990s, and learned it did not actually establish a blanket ban that was in effect permanently

While the law allows the mayor and street foreman to enact a parking ban in the designated areas, "I couldn't find an ordinance setting those times" on a permanent basis, he said, which is why Abraham decided to refund the parking tickets.

In other action, council:

 Named Dana Blackburn to the new position of parks manager, which includes oversight of the community swimming pool. Blackburn served as the adult lifeguard supervisor at the pool last year and then took over running the facility when the pool manager left for another job.

The part-time job pays $12 an hour, with the manager working more hours during the months when the pool is open.

— Heard from Pete Conkle of the Columbiana County Soil and Water Conservation District, who was there to address them about drainage problems in a ravine next to the Fleming House run by the Family Recovery Center. The resulting erosion is occurring in the portion of the ravine that lies within village limits.

Conkle said he was there to offer the agency's assistance in coming up with a plan to solve the problem. "If my office can help, we're willing to do that, and it wouldn't cost you anything," he said.

The engineering firm used by the village said it could come up with a preliminary plan for $5,600.

Council voted 6-o to take Conkle up on his offer of assistance.

Accepted the resignations of part-time parking meter attendant Lyndsey Ward and part-time police officer Justin Madison, both of whom have taken other jobs.

Hired Garrett Jarvis of Barberton as a part-time police officer and Tammy Renfro and Heather Davis as part-time police department dispatchers.

 Instructed street foreman Jim Oliver to have the main pump at the swimming pool rebuilt for $691 rather than purchase a new one for $2,200.

 Went into executive session for more than an hour to discuss a contract dispute with Infinite Synergy, its computer consultant. The current service contract for $1,653 a month expires this summer, but council was reportedly considering canceling the contract immediately. No action on the contract was

Lisbon police chief: Refund East Liverpool hospital to merge with Humility of Mary health system

Health Partners (HMHP) and River Valley Health Partners (RVHP), which operates East Liverpool City Hospital, have entered into a letter of intent to fully integrate with one another, officials announced on Thurs-

HMHP operates hospitals and other health facilities in Mahoning and Trumbull counties.

This announcement comes after an exhaustive search by the RVHP Board of Trustees and administrators. "We have been looking diligently for a long term organizational partner that will provide high quality healthcare to our community, needed financial stability, and healthcare leadership in times of great challenge. The reality is that RVHP will be able to serve more patients in more ways with HMHP by its side," commented Kenneth Cochran, RVHP President and CEO. Opened in 1905, East Liverpool City Hospital's origins are rooted in providing healthcare solutions for the East Liverpool community. Board of Trustees Chair Pete Wicks said, "East Liverpool City Hospital and River Valley Health Partners have evolved countless times throughout the last 100-plus years. The Board sees this partnership as the next exciting evolution in RVHP's story.'

This partnership supports our strategic effort to extend our reach in developing a network of healthcare services," said Bob Shroder, HMHP President and CEO. "We look forward to having River Valley Health

Its reputation for quality and service differentiated HMHP from other potential partners. HMHP, the area's healthcare leader and largest employer, is part of Catholic Health Partners, the largest healthcare system in Ohio. "While RVHP does not have a religious sponsor, the mission, vision, and principles espoused by HMHP and CHP are absolutely consistent with RVHP's core values. If operational changes are required during this transition whether for religious purposes or otherwise the Board of Trustees and administrators are committed to sharing and managing the changes as effectively as possible," commented Wicks.

Over the next several weeks, HMHP will work closely with RVHP administrators, board members, and medical staff members to prepare a seamless transition which will benefit patients, physicians, and the respective communities. Pending regulatory approval and finalization of terms, the official merger will likely occur this summer. Until that time, RVHP and HMHP will each continue providing high quality patient care.

As part of its decision to partner with HMHP, the RVHP Board of Trustees agreed to establish the RVHP Healthcare Foundation, which will focus on providing healthcare to the poor and underserved. This mission is consistent with HMHP's mission to extend "the healing ministry of Jesus by improving the health of our communities with emphasis on people who are poor and underserved." Ohio treasurer receives OK to host town halls with taxpayer's money

COLUMBUS (AP) - Ohio's state treasurer has received permission to conduct telephone town halls using public money, in an attorney general's opinion with broad ramifications for the state's upcoming statewide

Treasurer Josh Mandel requested an opinion in December on the citizen teleconferences from Attorney General Mike DeWine, a fellow Republican. Both are up for re-election in November.

The opinion DeWine issued Wednesday cleared Mandel to use taxpayer dollars to contract with a third-party firm specializing in organizing and conducting such calls — as long as their content avoids politics and sticks to state treasurer's office business or any matter "of general interest to the citizens of Ohio." DeWine noted "such meetings cannot be used to promote your candidacy or another person's candidacy for public office; urge passage of, or opposition to, any issue on an election ballot; or discuss partisan or electoral politics."

The opinion said Mandel is free to target his audience for such conference calls as long as people not specifically invited to participate are given the chance to be part of the call. Mandel is the first state officeholder in Ohio to ask to spend public money on such calls, though they're popular with congressional representatives and other officeholders around the country.

Ohio State University law professor Dan Tokaji said the opinion effectively clears all Ohio's statewide elected officials to conduct similar calls at taxpayer expense.

"As a practical matter, while that legal advice is certainly right, very serious concerns can arise about whether these are really intended to inform Ohio constituents about the operations of his office or if they're campaign events," he said.

Tokaji said promoting the accomplishments of one's office is a key component of a candidate winning re-election, and the DeWine opinion creates a situation that blurs the line between politics and governing.

"It does raise the concern that people are going to be holding campaign events masquerading as informational meetings," Tokaji said. "I think we all know that almost everything any public officeholder does who's running for re-election is intended to advance his re-election effort.'

Mandel, who ran unsuccessfully for U.S. Senate in 2012, has faced criticism in the past for mixing politics and governing.

Superintendent of Utilities Butch Donnalley said that there has been open dialogue with the OEPA to stay on top of the situation, remaining proactive to address the problem as quickly as possible.

"In light of the bad situation...I think we're heading in the right direction," he said, assuring customers that the water does not present a short term health risk.

"You'd have to drink a lot of water for a very long period of Phillips responded to questions from the committee regarding other solutions, citing cost effectiveness as the reason for the aerator system. He said Salem will not be able to fix the problem on its own (the high cost would be passed on to customers) and ideas such as installing a loop or a flushing system at the industrial park (an extremity where the water samples are collected) would not be cost effective due to the low usage in the area and impact on just that immediate area instead of the entire village.

Committee member Sue Buchanan asked whether the byproducts are excreted into the air from the aerator, to which Vollnogle responded that they are so minuscule in size that they dissipate very quickly. He assured the committee that the system is a common system used by municipalities.

Committee member Mark Gardner asked if the village can renegotiate its contract with Salem for the water, but Phillips said he is more concerned right now with getting customers the best possible water.

'[We're] always open to the option, though," he said. The project will still need approved by Village Council. khowell@salemnews.net

— At 6:03 a.m. Wednesday, Maple Cotton Ambulance reported 31-yearold Dustin Pierson was dead when they arrived at a state Route 9. Hanoverton, home. Tonya Landsberger and Pierson's girlfriend, Amber Kozar, reported Pierson had surgery about two weeks earlier and was still having medical problems and infection. He had been sleeping on the couch downstairs and then at 4 a.m. was found sleeping on the floor by Kozar. When Landsberger got up to at 5:30 a.m. to give him his medication, Pierson was reportedly unresponsive and face down.

— An employee in the county auditor's office, Jamie Poppelriter, was reportedly threatened by an elderly man about his property at noon Wednesday. The elderly man reportedly said he did not go to a recent meeting held at United Local about the issue because he would have shot everyone and then told Poppel riter if he returned to the courthouse Poppelriter had better jump out the window or get shot. Auditor Nancy Milliken and Poppelriter declined to pursue charges at this time. The man's photo was given to security at the courthouse. - A possible domestic was reported on South Mahoning Avenue in Knox Township at 11:32 a.m. Wednesday. Deputies spoke to Tiffany Hughes, who was hysterical and yelling inside when they arrived. She wanted to leave and she claimed her boyfriend, Jeff Hall, took her phone and she had nowhere to go. He told deputies she had been abusing her medication and showed deputies her empty pill bottles. He agreed to leave so she could get her belongings and leave. Kristen Ours, Mick Road, Wellsville, called deputies at 8:23 a.m. Tuesday at the request of her elderly neighbor. Duane Rosenleib reported their phone was not working and there was a large leak in the roof. Deputies found a phone jack had become wet and when that phone was disconnected the other phones in the house began working again. Rosenleib had called a contractor two days earlier, but had not heard back, probably because of the phone situation. He planned to call the contractor again

- Deputies checked on Elsie Duncan, Oak Grove Road, Salineville, after she failed to show up to teach a class at 10:28 a.m. Wednesday. Deputies found no one at home, but it appeared someone had been there recently due to a snow-free parking space and footprints.

Lawyer: Client's right to speedy trial violated

By DEANNE JOHNSON Staff Writer

LISBON — A second round of testimony was heard this week regarding the motion of Vonlie Cooper's attorney, James Hartford, who believes his client's rights to a speedy trial has been violated.

Cooper, 25, Weirton, W.Va., was charged in early 2012 with failure to comply with the ordinance or signal of a police officer and two counts of possession of drugs. Cooper was reportedly shot in the foot by a highway patrol trooper while running away on March 2, 2012.

Just late last month, a motion hearing was held regarding why there has been no trial for Cooper between March 2012 and Nov. 5, 2013, when Hartford filed a motion to dismiss the charge for lack of prosecution in a speedy manner.

Although there are many things which can delay the number of days, the state typically has 270 days to bring someone to trial. As of Nov. 5, 2013, Hartford contends 594 days have passed.

In January, Judge C. Ashley Pike heard testimony from Sgt. Robert Dowling of the sheriff's office who explained efforts taken to locate Cooper during that time period. Cooper also took the stand claiming he was on house arrest for 18 months in Chester, W.Va. between March 27, 2012 and Aug. 22, 2013.

On Wednesday, Assistant County Prosecutor Tammie Riley Jones brought three more witnesses to the stand to explain why Cooper was not located during that time period, which in her opinion delays the trial

Adam Hudek, the Hancock County probation department's house arrest officer, testified he supervised Cooper from March 2012 until April 2013 when Cooper's house arrest GPS unit was found under a dumpster in Weirton, W.Va. He also testified that in February 2013, Sgt. Brian Swann of the Hancock County sheriff's office contacted him about a warrant out of Ohio for Cooper, but at the time Hudek said Cooper had just gotten out of the hospital following surgery and was recovering.

Swann testified he had stumbled across the warrant for Cooper on the Columbiana County sheriff's office website's 10 most wanted link. Familiar with Cooper, he had taken steps to call Lt. Allan Young of our sheriff's department in order to determine if the warrant was still valid. However, after learning about Cooper's surgery and recovery and talking about it with Young, Swann said it was determined to wait before executing the fugitive from justice extradition warrant he had obtained for Cooper in West Virginia.

After Cooper ran in April, he was later picked up by the U.S. Marshal's Office Fugitive Task Force.

Young, who was on the drug task force at the time, was questioned by Hartford as to whether Cooper was actually cooperating with the DTF in a drug bust operation he described in detail, which allegedly occurred in March 2013. Young denied being part of the operation Hartford talked about and denied calling those charged with criminal charges and attempting to involve them in DTF operations. Young also denied giving Cooper Marlboro cigarettes behind the county jail at one point, noting he himself quit smoking in 1991.

At the end of Wednesday's testimony, Hartford continued to contend Cooper's rights are being violated "because people didn't want to take responsibility." He noted there was "indolence" another word for general laziness, on the part of those supposed to be looking for Cooper, who was in his opinion easy to locate while on house arrest for at least a year in Hancock County.

'Vonlie Cooper has had his constitutional rights violated," Hartford said. "Vonlie Cooper has had his statutory right to a speedy trial violated and I believe the testimony over the two days have shown those rights have been violated.'

Jones contended from Feb. 22, 2013 until September 2013, she was awaiting Cooper to be extradited to Ohio. During that time, she believes any time should not be counted, especially due to Cooper cutting off his house arrest monitor in April. Following that time he was caught and incarcerated in West Virginia until September. By her calculations, Jones said there remains 99 days to bring Cooper to trial.

Hartford countered with Shakespeare. "He thinks they doth protest too much." referring to Jones' comments and witnesses.

Pike took the motion under advisement. A status conference is set for the case on Monday.

HOROSCOPE

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 2/21/14 Moon and Mercury Square

The moon and Mercury will square off, reminding us that words can be escape artists. Also, once they leave our lips (or fly from our fingers in the form of digital media), they can be impossible to retrieve. Don't let emotions get the better of your self-control. Think first; talk

ARIES (March 21-April 19). This is no time to show your work to negative people. Seek the response of encouraging people only. Less than helpful feedback will make you want to splurge on something that will make you feel better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Even though you were born under the stars of material wealth, you make your life about people and relationships, not things. At least you try to do this. Today you may have to try harder than you do on other days.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Someone depends on the kindness of strangers, and the go-to stranger today will be you. You will be kind, indeed; just be sure to be smart, as well. Don't let your guard down.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Beauty is about romance, romance is about mystery, and mystery is about ignorance. The less you tell someone about yourself the more beautiful you may be to that person now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You've been known to balance your efforts to entertain others with stretches of time spent hiding out. It's an excellent idea, as you are sure to feel recharged at the end. But do consider what you're really hiding from.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You desperately need a practical soul on your side. The people you'll be among do not represent the majority, though they may speak as though they alone have the key to knowledge.

LIBRĂ (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). People want your focused attention. People want anybody's focused attention. It's such a rare commodity these days, but you give focus and feedback in an especially heartening manner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21).
You don't expect your loved ones to want what you want. You don't see things in the same way or have the same needs, so why would you? No wonder they feel free around you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Strength untapped is passive and neglectful. Uncontrolled strength is violent. The events of the day are designed to help you be your best by finding your strength, tapping it and controlling it

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Fellowship and community fulfill a human need. That's why solitary confinement is considered punishment. However, lately you may feel like you're getting a little too much of a good thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It will be hard to separate what is said from the person who says it, but you should. Extremely credible advice will come from an unlikely and unpopular source.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Appearances will be more important than usual. You'll dress to show your respect to the people around you, and they will appreciate the way you class up the environment.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 21). You are wiser than ever this year and will seek an empowering viewpoint in all things. Money you've waited for will finally arrive in March. April has you processing surprising feelings. You'll love the professional development that happens in May. June brings fast action, money and change.

Sagittarius and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 2,

21, 40 and 16 WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: If a relationship gets too serene, you have to wonder whether it's really true love. TAU-RUS: As for a loved one's jest: If you laughed, it was funny. If you didn't laugh, it wasn't. GEMINI: Since you can really only trust the opinion of those who have nothing to gain or lose by answering truthfully, it's better not to ask your loved ones personal questions. Sink teeth into care

Heloise

Dear Readers: DENTAL CARE is important to all of us, not just adults. Parents should begin teaching their children about proper dental care at a very early age to help prevent lifelong problems. Here is some information and hints on how to take care of your children's teeth:

— Begin wiping your child's gums after feedings as soon as possible to get him or her used to the process.

— Once teeth break through, use a child's toothbrush to gently brush the teeth.

Never let your child go to bed with a bottle or sippy cup full of milk or formula. This is a big NO-NO!
Make sure children always spit out toothpaste and do not swallow it.

— Brush your children's teeth twice a day. After breakfast and before bed are two good times.

Follow these simple hints, and your children's smile will be beaming for years! — Heloise

P.S.: Sing a song your child knows to let him or her know how long to brush teeth.

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Readers: Whenever you travel — especially abroad — staying in older hotels and bed-and-breakfasts can feel less secure than your own home. For added security, try carrying a rubber-wedge doorstop. When you shut your door for the night, place the wedge a few inches from the opening side of the door frame and press it in with your foot until secure. Please don't do this if you have a medical condition that may require help — it can prevent help from reaching you if needed. What do you do to sleep more soundly when traveling? Write to us at: Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX, 78279-5000, or send an email to: Heloise(at)Heloise.com. — Heloise QUICK FUNNEL

Dear Heloise: I learned a really neat trick years ago that I'd like to share. When you have to refill the windshield-washer fluid or any other fluid in your car, cut the top off a 2-liter, plastic soda bottle and use it for a funnel. Do this for each type of fluid, and mark them with a permanent marker to avoid cross-contamination. I keep one in my trunk, just in case. The best part is that if one gets lost, I just make a new one.

- Pete in Staten Island, N.Y. HAIR-DRYER HELP

Dear Heloise: I had a magnetic photo album full of very old photos. I wanted to put them in a scrapbook but could not get them out without tearing them. A lady at a crafts store suggested that I use a hair dryer to release them. I did try it and was able to get most of them out without any problem. The ones that gave me trouble, I used dental floss on, and out they came. — Julia in Mechanicsville, Md.

COUNTER CAT

Dear Heloise: When we moved, our cat started jumping on our kitchen counters. We lined the countertops with foil, and she quickly learned her lesson. – Melinda W. in Georgia

Hides at work to avoid nasty in-laws

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a wonderful man for 17 years and we have two children. My life should be perfect, and it is — until it's time to visit my in-laws

We don't see them more than a few times a year, but I've taken to pleading work as an excuse not to see them on holidays or special occasions if I can avoid it. I have even spent Christmas at home alone because I can't stand how verbally abusive my in-laws are.

My mother-in-law admits to being mean and nasty. She says she doesn't care because she "hates people." They are now pressuring my husband to move nearer to them. The thought makes me sick.

My life could have been so different if these relatives were nice, normal people. I wanted us to be friends. I'm a kind person, but I have never been good enough for them.

I would never dream of saying some of the things they have said to me. They're upper middle class and I'm "trash." I never thought when I married my husband that his family would enjoy making me miserable.

The Easter holidays are coming and I don't know what to do. I'm afraid one day the buildup of anger will make me explode. How can I make their verbal abuse stop? I'm sick of being the brunt of jokes and sarcastic comments. — "OUTLAW" IN ARIZONA

DEAR "OUTLAW": If your husband is "wonderful," why has he tolerated his parents' treating you this way for 17 years? He should have insisted from the beginning of your marriage that you be treated with respect. I can't believe the two of you would expose your children to this multiple times a year.

You can't "make" your in-laws stop their verbal abuse, but your husband might be able to if he locates his spine and puts his foot down. There should be no more talk of moving close to these toxic people, nor should there be any more visits to them until they either change their attitudes or learn to watch their mouths. If your husband feels he must go, then he should go alone, and you should stop making excuses for your absence.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an alcoholic who attends AA meetings. Last night he forgot to sign out of his email and I saw he has been corresponding with a woman he met at the meetings. In her message she confided her problems finding a man. His reply was that she has been picking the wrong men, that he cares and that they need to talk face-to-face.

I wish I had never seen the email. Because of it, I can't eat or sleep, worrying about what might possibly be going on. I don't want to confront him because he has a nasty temper, yet I feel I must do something. But what? — LOST IN NOWHERE, MONTANA

DEAR LOST: Instead of "confronting" your husband, simply ask him if he has become this woman's AA sponsor. It might explain why she is confiding in him, and why he suggested they meet face-to-face to talk, which could be entirely innocent. Does he have a history of cheating on you?

If something is going on, it would be better for your emotional health to know what you are dealing with. And if your husband responds with verbal or physical abuse because of his "nasty temper," you should insist on marriage counseling or get out of there for your own safety.

Some back pain worse with rest

DEAR DR. OACH: I hav

ROACH: I have had lower-back problems almost all my life. Many doctors and therapists have examined it, with almost no success. Recently my attacks have been fewer and milder, even if the bed is not quite right. I can live with it, but a new wrinkle has emerged: If I don't get out of bed as soon as the alarm sounds, I'll have back pain and little mobility all day and partial incapacity. I am 74 years old, 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weigh 230 pounds. Do you have any idea what causes this, and if there is any cure? — J.S.B.

ANSWER: There are dozens of causes of back pain, and it can be impossible, even with the most advanced diagnostic tests, to make a precise diagnosis of the underlying cause.

In your case, it sounds like you have had one problem for a long time and now something is causing a different kind of back problem. Back pain that gets worse with bed rest and better with exercise is not likely to be a herniated disc or spinal stenosis — two serious causes of back pain. I am guessing that there is a component of osteoarthritis in your back now, which would be quite common in a 74-year-old man. Osteoarthritis does tend to get worse with rest and better with exercise. I am impressed by how acutely it gets worse, and it's entirely possible that there may be some muscular spasm associated with your back pain.

Even though you are quite tall, 230 pounds is a lot for your spine to support. You have a BMI of 28, which is in the "overweight" range. Losing even five or 10 pounds may help relieve pain on your back. And certainly listen to your body, and get up and be active. Stretching, including yoga and tai chi, can be a very effective treatment.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I need some medications, like Dulcolax and Miralax, for some tests. The generics are so much cheaper. Is there much difference, compared with the expensive brand? — J.M.

ANSWER: In my experience, there is almost no difference between the brand name and the generic for prescription and most over-the-counter medicines. The quantity and quality of the active ingredient is regulated. The inactive ingredients occasionally may cause a reaction in a sensitive person.

Most physicians, including myself, use generic brands for themselves and their families. I certainly have had patients who insist on the brand name, but most of the time it is a waste of money.

DR. ROACH WRITES: In early January, I wrote about progressive supranuclear palsy. I wrote about the need for evaluation of swallowing, since this is a prevalent problem not only in this illness, but in many neurologic conditions. I did not mention the invaluable assistance of the speech and language pathologist. An experienced neurologist uses the speech and language pathologist to evaluate the swallowing problems as well as to provide guidance on safe eating and drinking.

One woman wrote in to tell me of the difficult decision she had to make about whether to place a feeding tube in her husband when his illness became severe. It's very important that all of us, no matter our age, have designated a health-care proxy, a person to help make decisions when we are unable to do so, but it's equally important to discuss with that person ahead of time what our wishes would be under certain circumstances. Most hospitals have proxy forms available. A lawyer also may be helpful but is not necessary.

How can bed wetter move in with her?

Annie's Mailbox Dear Annie: My girlfriend of two years has just asked whether we should move in together. I am currently living with my parents, so we would be living at her place.

I'm not sure how to respond to "Dayna's" request. I don't want her to think I don't like her. But at the age of 27, I still wet the bed. Whenever I am at Dayna's place, I never let myself fall asleep for fear of soiling both her mattress and our relationship. I always find a reason to leave before morning. How do I broach this subject with her? — Bedwetter

Dear Bedwetter: Childhood enuresis that persists into adulthood often runs in families. (Adult-onset enuresis may be a result of diabetes, sleep apnea, urinary tract infections and neurological disorders.) First, see your doctor to find out whether you can get this under control. Discuss medications and exercises to increase bladder capacity. Limit your beverage intake so you aren't drinking past late afternoon. Alcohol and caffeine can aggravate the condition.

and caffeine can aggravate the condition.
You are under no obligation to move in with Dayna regardless of the reason. But this issue is likely to come up at some point in the future, so you should work on the conversation you will need to have. It is important that you be honest, that you make it clear that you are working on it (which you should be) and that you will take precautions so she is not inconvenienced. We hope she will care enough about you to be understanding.

Dear Annie: I need some advice as to whether I should report a neighbor to our local sheriff or state police. He wears a loaded revolver on his hip all the time, and I don't know whether he has a permit to carry.

This neighbor frightens me. He once said, "Nobody fools with me," and then patted the gun. None of my neighbors likes or respects this man. I have yet to meet a single person who speaks well of him. He is weird and scary.

My concern is that this potential crackpot could go bananas and shoot someone. I would feel terrible if there was something I could have done to prevent a tragedy. What should I do? — Concerned Neighbor in Pennsylvania

Dear Concerned: Being "weird and scary" does not prevent your neighbor from obtaining a license to carry a gun in your state. This is a problem with people who have no prior evidence of mental illness, but who may, in fact, be mentally unbalanced. We have no way of knowing whether they will shoot up a school or a post office until they do. If you suspect your neighbor does not have a valid license, you can report him to the police and ask that it be checked out. Otherwise, there's not much you can do but keep an eye open for signs of increased agitation, major depression or out-of-control behavior.

West Branch defense comes through

By CHRIS RAMBO

Staff Writer

BELOIT-The preliminary stage of West Branch's tournament run is over. The Warriors know the road is about to get a lot tougher.

For the second straight sectional game, the secondseeded Warriors rolled through an overmatched opponent, stifling ninthseed Poland 54-18 in a Div. II sectional final on Thursday at West Branch High School.

West Branch improves to 20-4 and will take on fourth-seeded Ravenna in district semifinal action at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Autstintown Fitch High School. The Warriors outscored their two sectional opponents—Niles being the other-by a combined total of 124-36.

"It's going to get a lot tougher from here," West Branch coach Walt DeShields said. "The teams that survive sectionals are usually pretty good basketball teams. It's now a four team tournament and we need two more wins.

Melinda Trimmer led West Branch with 21 points while Lea Bock had eight points and Kaylee Manning had five steals, as the Warriors overcame some early slow-down tactics by Poland to seize control.

The Bulldogs spent the entire first quarter content to pass the ball around the perimeter in an effort to burn clock and hold the score down. At first, it seemed to work reasonably well as the frame ended with West Branch ahead

"We figured they would try to do something unusual on offense to throw us off," West Branch junior Pavin Heath said. "But we didn't think they would hold the ball like they did. We've never had anyone do that to us before."

West Branch-not seeming fazed one bit-stayed focused and disciplined on defense, and in the second quarter completely dominated.

The key was a defensive adjustment that allowed the Warriors to better disguise when they would double team, resulting in an endless stream of steals as the lead swelled to 30-4. The Bulldogs got off just four shots during the second quarter and had zero offensive rebounds in the

"We knew we had to keep pressuring the ball if they were going to hold it," Trimmer said. "In the second quarter we rotated better on defense and got some more steals."

"I'm proud of how our players and coaches didn't panic in the first quarter," DeShields said. "We didn't get frustrated chasing them all over the floor on defense. In the second quarter we mixed some things up, and once we built the lead they could no longer stall."

On the offensive side, Trimmer seemed to score whenever she wanted while the Warriors showcased solid ball-movement, with eight different players reg-

Blaney withdraws from Daytona 500 contention

By MARK LONG

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Dave Blaney is down to one reason to stay at Daytona International Speedway: His son, Ryan, is racing in the Truck Series. When Ryan's season opener is over Friday, dad will be hitting the road, too.

Dave Blaney withdrew from the Daytona 500 on Thursday, one day after he totaled his only car in the first full practice for "The Great American Race.

Blaney posted the slowest pole-qualifying speed Sunday and was set to start last in the first of two Thursday night races that set the 43-car field for the season-opening Daytona 500. But Blaney got caught up in a seven-car accident Wednesday, a setback that cost him a shot at making NASCAR's premier event.

"We didn't want to go home with a junk race car and not even a shot to make it," Blaney said. "But that's where we're at.'

Blaney had made 13 of the previous 14 Daytona 500s, missing only the 2010 showcase event. He finished 15th in 2012 and was 17th last year, proving he can get around the 2¢mile speedway even while driving for under-funded Tommy Baldwin Racing.

Blaney signed with Randy Humphrey Racing this year, another shallowpocket team trying to leave Daytona with a huge paycheck; the last-place finisher in 2013 received $264,354.

"It sure would have been nice to have that moving forward," Blaney said. "But I think Randy knew coming in that you can't bank on that happening, so it's fine. We've just got to come back next week, be solid, make the race and go forward."

It might be difficult to not look back, though.

Blaney knew all about the risk of practicing at Daytona, where horsepower-sapping restrictor plates often keep the field packed tightly together. Baldwin refused to let Blaney go out during practice the last three years.

This year, Blaney was trying to fine-tune his No. 77 Ford when Joey Logano and Matt Kenseth got together coming out of Turn 4 and started the melee. Blaney, like several other drivers, wanted to get out of the drafting pack. But he was stuck, unable to slow up without causing an accident.

Instead, Blaney's car became collateral damage.

"I regret being on the racetrack at that point," Blaney said. "That was a big mistake. We should have waited a little bit. It's a double-edged sword there. If you don't practice and save the car and go out there in the twins and

U.S. heartbroken after OT loss

By GREG BEACHAM

SOCHI, Russia — A twogoal lead blown in the final four minutes. A long shot that clanged off the post of an empty net. Two perplexing penalties in overtime, setting up a golden goal for Canada.

The U.S. women's hockey team has lost late in the last four Olympics, but never in such preposterously heartbreaking fashion as this 3-2 defeat on Thursday night. While the Canadians received their fourth straight gold medals, the Americans were left blank-faced or crying at Bolshoy Ice Dome. Sixteen years after the first generation of U.S. players won the inaugural Olympic tournament, these Americans thought Canada's Olympic mastery over them had finally Instead, they've got four more years to think about how the Canadians manage to seize their sport's biggest moment while the U.S. gets left holding silver.

To let them come back in the gold-medal game at the Olympics is the worst feeling in the world," said Kelli Stack, who nearly became an improbable hero with a long clearing attempt that hit the right post of an empty net late in regulation.

Stack actually knew she hadn't scored when she flipped the puck down the ice in the waning seconds. From her vantage point, she could tell it was going to hit the post even before that clunk of rubber against metal.

"If it would have been an inch to the right, it would have went in, and we would have won the gold medal," said Stack, shaking her head. "When pucks don't bounce your way, you've just got to know that it wasn't meant to be.

Everything seemed dramatically different in the first 56 minutes. With a 2o lead, U.S. goalie Jessie Vetter appeared to be eminently capable of shutting out Canada for the first time in Olympic history, and the small contingent of U.S. fans was bouncing in its seats.

"I just kept thinking 'We're going to win," U.S. captain Meghan Duggan said. "I looked over at one of our goaltenders, I said, 'There's no way they're going to score two goals on Vetts. She's hot right now."

What happened next is what Dughan calls "crazy mode" — those frantic final minutes of a hockey game when the goalie skates to the bench and her teammates try anything to will the puck into the net.

The Bolshoy got crazy, all right. Brianne Jenner scored with 3:26 to play, banking a wide-flying shot off Kacey Bellamy's knee.

"Bad puck luck," Bellamy

Poulin's tying goal was another bad break: Vetter attempted a poke-check after the puck came out from behind the net, but it somehow went straight to Canada's soft-spoken Quebecois hero.

Even during the break before overtime, the Americans remained confident. Stack recalled only encouragement in the dressing room at a time when the Americans had expected to be celebrating.

And then in overtime, the whistles started.

Neither team could understand the referees' eagerness to call penalties in an Olympic overtime, which is already 4-on-4 hockey. Just 6 seconds after Canada's Catherine Ward was sent off for a big hit near the net, Jocelyne Lamoureux was penalized for slashing on a single whack at Shannon Szabados' pads with the puck underneath them. "It stinks to go into an

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rachel Theriot scored 26 points and Jordan Hooper had 24 to spark a late rally that pushed No. 17 Nebraska's winning streak to seven with a 67-59 win over Ohio State on Thursday.

Ohio State went up 52-44 with 8:02 left but the Cornhuskers (20-5, 10-3 Big Ten) put together a 17-0 run, holding the Buckeyes scoreless (14-15, 4-9) until just 43 seconds remained. Then Theriot hit six free throws to ice the game. Salem High School graduate Amy Scullion had 10 points, six rebounds and two assists for the Buckeyes. Emily Cady and Hailie Sample pulled down 11 rebounds apiece for Nebraska, which also made 13 of 16 free throws.

Ohio State was just 2 of 4 from the line. Ameryst Alston tied her career-high with 31 points for Ohio State, which lost its fifth-straight game. Coach Connie Yori, who fainted during the Wisconsin game on Sunday, was back on the bench.

Hooper, celebrating her 22nd birthday, had two 3-pointers during the winning surge.

things are going well, you're mad cause you should have practiced.

"If you do practice, then there's a chance something like that can happen. It's tough, tough. But looking back, it was a nobrainer: We should have stayed in the garage.

The team approached fellow Ford teams Penske Racing, Roush Fenway Racing and Front Row Motorsports, but none of them was willing to provide Blaney a backup car. Randy Humphrey Racing got a late start on 2014 preparations, so getting two cars ready for Daytona wasn't really an option.

We just wanted to make sure it wasn't hitting the ground at higher speeds, it was driving fine, just simple stuff like how did it pull up to people," Blaney said. "On the back straightaway, I thought, 'I don't need to be here. And then I got around to the front and wrecked. Just a bad day at the racetrack, you know."

Canada's Hayley Wickenheiser. Hilary Knight swooped in from behind, and

The officials curiously called Knight for cross-checking instead of either awarding a penalty shot or allowing play to continue. Replays showed no significant contact between the two, except perhaps Knight's right skate clipping Wickenheiser's right skate from behind — which isn't cross-checking.

Jillian Halfhill named player of the week

Portage Lakes Drive in Akron.

CLEVELAND — Bowling Green State University senior Jillian Halfhill was named the Mid-American Conference Player of the Week on Monday.

The Canfield High School graduate earned the honor for the second time this season, and the second time in her college career. Additionally, Halfhill received MAC Player of the Week honors from the College

Sports Madness web site, earning that award for the second time this year and the third time in her career. Halfhill led the Falcons in scoring and had a double-double in the team's lone game last week, a 61-56 win at Eastern Michigan on Feb. 15. Halfhill had a gamehigh 21 points along with 10 rebounds, two assists and three steals against the Eagles. She scored in double digits in each half, with 10 points before the intermission and 11 after, and she pulled down five rebounds in each period. Halfhill hit a game-high four three-point field goals against the Eagles, including one just after Eastern Michigan took its only lead of the second half. That shot gave the Falcons the lead for good with just under 14 minutes to go. Halfhill has scored in double digits in 19 of Bowling Green's 24 games this year, including in each of the last 11 contests. She has led the Falcons in scoring in each of the last three games, and has averaged exactly 20.0 points per game during that stretch. Halfhill has shot 64.5 percent (20-of-31) from the field, including a 14-for-

Watson named assistant special teams cooridinator

23 (60.9 percent) effort from three-point range, in those three contests.

BEREA —Austintown Fitch and Mount Union graduate Stan Watson was named the assistant special teams coordinator for the Cleveland Browns on Thursday. Watson, a 1998 graduate of Austintown Fitch, played football at Mount Union and had been the University of Toledo's special teams coordinator the past two sea-

Bulls.

Texas Eastern Transmission, LP Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Docket No. CP14-68-000

Notice is hereby given that on January 31, 2014, Texas Eastern Transmission, LP ("Texas Eastern") filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ("FERC") an application for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity regarding its proposed Ohio Pipeline Energy Network Project ("Project") in FERC Docket No. CP14-68-000 ("Application")

Texas Eastern's transmission system extends from Texas, Louisiana and the offshore Gulf of Mexico area, through the states of Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, to its principal terminus in the New York City metropolitan area. The Application seeks FERC's approval for Texas Eastern to construct, install, own, operate and maintain approximately 76 miles of new 30-inch diameter pipeline, a new compressor station and related facilities in Ohio, and perform necessary compressor station work at certain existing stations to provide for reverse flow capabilities to enable Texas Eastern to provide 550,000 dekatherms per day of firm transportation service from receipt points in Ohio to delivery points in the Gulf Coast area.

Specifically, Texas Eastern proposes to perform the following activities:

- Construct approximately 76 miles of new 30-inch diameter pipeline and related above-ground facilities in Ohio;
- Install a new compressor station in Colerain, Ohio;
- Construction of new meter and regulating stations and related appurtenances in Columbiana County and Jefferson County, Ohio; and
- Perform flow reversal work at existing compressor stations in Ohio, Kentucky, Mississippi and Louisiana to accommodate bi-directional flow along Texas

Notice of the Application will be mailed to affected landowners, and municipal, state and federal governments and agencies involved in the Project. A copy of the Application and related resource reports are on file in the following public libraries and/or municipal and
