Tape details 911 call

Protocol for calling out FD questioned

By MARY ANN GREIER

An emergency call which caused a question to be raised over the protocol for toning out the Perry Township Fire Department happened a little differently than originally described.

Columbiana County Sheriff Ray Stone said Tuesday that he listened to the dispatch tapes related to the call on March 11 and no one from his office ever said "no' when the fire department's assistance was requested.

He also sent copies of the tapes to the Perry Township Trustees so they could hear for themselves what was said and what wasn't said, saying "let the trustees decide whether it's right or wrong."

According to the tapes, which the Salem News acquired from the Sheriff's Office via email, the first call was answered by the Sheriff's Office via the 9-1-1 line. A resident reported a man, possibly having a heart attack, who was on the floor and not getting up. Via onebutton transfer, the call was sent to KLG and the resident confirmed the address and provided a call back number. In a second recording, Perry Township Police Det. Steve Smith can be heard telling Sheriff's Office dispatch that he would be at the address in question.

The third recording was KLG Ambulance calling the Perry Township Fire Department emergency line, which is answered by the Sheriff's Office. The person can be heard saying "this is KLG Ambulance. We've got a non-breather. We're going to need some backup." They

Work on Salem Holiday Inn begins nearly 2 years after first proposed

By LARRY SHIELDS Staff Writer

SALEM — Back in May of 2012 when plans for a $4 million Holiday Inn Express on the east side of town were announced, Rod Herron, a co-owner of the facility with the Bridgeville, Pa.-based Forza Group, was looking at opening it that December.

It will be situated on 1.25acres of east-end property just southwest of The Home Depot and east of Cunningham Road in Mahoning County.

Just after the original plans were announced it was derailed by an easement issue with The Home Depot store adjacent to the hotel property to the northeast came up.

The home improvement chain denied an easement based on deed restrictions, stating the hotel is not a "retail" business.

The existing 20-foot sewer easement granted to the city was too small as plans called for a 35-foot easement to accommodate the Holiday Inn while addressing anticipated development to the north.

The issue was eventually was resolved by simply purchasing another 1.3 acres south of the original site, Herron said, and moving the building footprint to the Then, the southern edge of the original site became the northern edge of the new site and it allowed the Holiday Inn Express developers to put in bigger parking spaces, Herron said at the time.

"We were able to gain more full-sized parking spaces," he said, adding the site plans are complete and awaiting engineer and city approvais.

Everyone was breathing easier on Thursday when a formal ground-breaking ceremony was held for the three-story, 70-room, multimillion dollar hotel.

While representatives of the Forza Group, city officials and members of the Crews from Less Contracting of Salem are shown trucking in fill dirt to the site of the Holiday Inn Express on Thursday afternoon. They were loading the dirt from behind the Home Depot store.

Salem Area Chamber of lodging shortages tied to the Commerce posed with ceremonial shovels Less Contracting was already trucking in fill dirt to the site from behind the Home Depot store.

The hotel will employ 25 people and is set to be "fast tracked" based on projected shale boom, Larry Kosiba, executive director of the Sustainable Opportunity Development Center, said earlier.

Crash on U.S. 30

Four people in a Chrysler 200 suffered non-life threatening injuries after the eastbound vehicle went into a farm field off U.S. Route 30 in Hanover Township about 12:30 p.m. Thursday. The car was about a mile west of Richey School Road when it encountered a semi-trailer heading the other direction and the vehicles clipped each other. The accident sent the Chrysler into the field, where it continued down a steep hill, coming to a halt at the bottom. The Hanover Township Fire Department used its extrication device to remove the driver-side front door that had become wedged shut in the accident. The four occupants, all from the Wooster area and on their way to Mountaineer Casino, were taken by ambulance to Mercy Hospital in Canton. Shown speaking with the driver is fire Chief Frank Baker. The accident remains under investigation by the highway patrol. (Salem News photo by Tom Giambroni)

Suspect in Salem stabbing sentenced for slapping wife

By TOM GIAMBRONI

LISBON — The man awaiting trial for stabbing a bouncer to death near a Salem bar last November will go to prison in the meantime for slapping his wife.

Robert Harmony, 45, East Fourth Street, Salem, was sentenced to one year in prison for domestic violence during a hearing Thursday in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court. Harmony previously pleaded guilty to slapping his wife in the face at their home last July 4.

HARMONY

Harmony is scheduled to go on trial April 29 on murder charges for allegedly stabbing 23-year-old Gerrod S. Lanzendorfer to death on South Broadway. Lanzendorfer was found up the street from the Side Door, where he worked as a bouncer, although investigators believe the stabbing did not occur in the bar. He was stabbed 14 times.

Harmony called 911 and reportedly told the dispatcher he had stabbed someone after leaving the bar. He was found with a knife and told investigators he acted after being harassed and followed, which left him feeling threatened. The domestic violence charge was a fourth-degree felony because Harmony had a prior domestic violence conviction, and the crime carried a maximum possible sentence of 18 months in prison. While public defender Fred Naragon requested a six-month sentence, chief assistant county Prosecutor John Gamble recommended a one-year prison

Air Force fires 9 commanders in nuke scandal, dozens face disciplinary action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force took the extraordinary step Thursday of firing nine midlevel nuclear commanders and announcing it will discipline dozens of junior officers at a nuclear missile base, responding firmly to an exam-cheating scandal that spanned a far longer period than originally reported.

A 10th commander, the senior officer at the base, resigned and will retire from the Air Force.

Air Force officials called the discipline unprecedented in the history of America's intercontinental ballistic missile force. The Associated Press last year revealed a series of security and other problems in the ICBM force, including a failed safety and security inspection at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont., where the cheating occurred.

In an emotion-charged resignation letter titled "A Lesson to Remember," Col. Robert Stanley, who commanded the 341st Missile Wing at Malmstrom, lamented that the reputation of the ICBM mission was now "tarnished because of the extraordinarily selfish actions of officers entrusted with the most powerful weapon system ever devised by man.

Stanley, seen as a rising star in the Air Force, had been nominated for promotion to brigadier general just days before the cheating scandal came to light in January. Instead he is retiring, convinced, as he wrote in his farewell letter Thursday, that "we let the American people down on my watch."

Mission accomplished? Obama says more than 6M signed up for health care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Back on track after a stumbling start, President Barack Obama's heath care overhaul reached a milestone Thursday, with more than 6 million Americans signed up for coverage through new insurance markets.

The announcement — four days before open enrollment season ends Monday — fulfills a revised goal set by the Congressional Budget Office and embraced by the White House.

Like much else about Obama's health care law, it comes with a caveat: The administration has yet to announce how many consumers actually closed the deal by paying their first month's premium. Some independent estimate many as 10 percent to 20 percent have not paid, which would bring the total enrollment to between 5 million and 6 million

The White House said the president made the announcement during an international conference call with enrollment counselors and volunteers, while traveling in Italy. Administration officials, focused on signing up even more people over the weekend, played down the occasion. Others said it was unmistakably a promising sign.

"I think the program is finally starting to hit its stride in terms of reaching the enrollment goals the administration set," said John Rother, CEO of the National Coalition on Health Care, a nonpartisan coalition of businesses, health care industry groups and consumer organizations. "It still has a ways to go in terms of achieving public acceptance."

New clues pile up in Malaysia jet search but searchers have no luck hunting them

PERTH, Australia (AP) — The clues keep piling up: more and more mysterious objects spotted bobbing in the southern Indian Ocean, perhaps part of the missing Malaysian airliner, perhaps not. But just as the night sky depicts the universe as it once was, the satellite images that reveal these items are also a glance backward in time.

Strong winds and fast currents make it difficult to pinpoint where they are right now, and stormy weather Thursday again halted the hunt by air and sea for evidence of debris fields. The search for the plane that disappeared March 8 has yet to produce a single piece of debris — not to mention the black boxes, which could solve the mystery of why the jet flew so far off-course.

For relatives of the 239 people aboard Malaysia Airlines Flight 370, it was yet another agonizing day of waiting.

'Until something is picked up and analyzed to make sure it's from MH370, we can't believe it," Steve Wang, whose 57year-old mother was aboard the flight, said in Beijing. "Without that, it's useless."

Obama's meeting with Pope: Common ground on inequality, divisions on issues VATICAN CITY (AP) — Face to face for the first time, President Barack Obama and Pope Francis focused publicly on their mutual respect and shared concern for the poor on Thursday. But their lengthy private discussion also highlighted the deep differences between the White House and the Catholic Church on abortion and birth control.

The gaps were evident in the differing accounts Obama and the Vatican gave of the meeting, with Obama stressing the two leaders' common ground on fighting inequality and poverty while Vatican officials emphasized the importance to the church of "rights to religious freedom, life and conscientious objection." That point by church officials referred to a major disagreement over a provision of Obama's health care

The meeting inside the grand headquarters of the Roman Catholic Church marked a symbolic high point of Obama's three-country visit to Europe. For a president whose approval ratings have slipped since winning re-election, it was also an opportunity to link himself to the hugely popular pope and his focus on fighting poverty.

"Those of us as politicians have the task of trying to come up with policies to address issues," Obama said following the meeting. "But His Holiness has the capacity to open people's eyes and make sure they're seeing that this is an issue."

also mentioned the address.

"Perry Township is not first responders. They have a police officer on scene," the Sheriff's Office dispatcher said.

KLG then answered, "All right. They have a police officer there? Okay, thank you.'

According to Perry Township Police Chief Mike Emigh, Smith was first on the scene and started trying to resuscitate the person, who was reportedly in full arrest, by using an automated external defibrillator and CPR. Emigh said that township police officers are trained in basic life support, including CPR and the use of an AED. The cruisers are equipped with AEDs. He said Smith continued CPR until KLG arrived and took over CPR and then transported the person to the hospital. During the meeting Monday, it was reported the person died, with Stone saying it was his understanding the person was dead at the scene, which Emigh also said.

Perry Township firefighters have been working on becoming first responders, but they're not there yet, still requiring a drug license and a review by the prosecutor's office to make sure everything's legal. The trustees gave them the go-ahead and they've secured the equipment needed to offer the service, which will allow them to respond to medical calls and give some basic treatment until an ambulance arrives. Even when the first responder service is up and running, the fire department won't be authorized to transport.

The fire department also has AEDs and personnel have been trained in their use, but since Smith was already there doing CPR and using an AED, Stone said there was nothing the fire department could have done if they had responded.

As for the protocol, Stone said they were probably correct in what it says. The fire department questioned why they weren't toned out when requested.

The protocol dated March 12, 2013 for the Sheriff's Office to tone out the fire department says, under the medical heading: all requests from any ambulance company for assistance; any request from a Perry Township resident for a lift assist; any reports of a non-breather or choking victim or other requests for the Perry Township Fire Department to provide assistance.

Fire Chief Bruce Whitcher had asked about the situation at Monday night's trustee meeting, saying he was curious if anybody had checked into why the ambulance company was told no when requesting the fire department. He was going by what he was told and said he had called Trustee Vice Chairman Don Rudibaugh after the incident occurred.

At the meeting, Rudibaugh noted what the protocol says and said the fire department should have been called out. He said he would be asking the Sheriff's Office for clarification on the protocol. He could not be reached for comment Thursday, with a message left at his home.

Whitcher said he was concerned for the safety of the people and if someone calls for the fire department, why question

"Why are we questioning things when we have signed, cut and dry, protocols?" he said during a phone call Tuesday. The trustees next regular meeting falls on April 14. mgreier@salemnews.net

West Branch honored for music program

BELOIT - The West Branch Local School District is among 24 Ohio school districts who were recognized by the NAMM Foundation as being among the Best Communities for Music Education (BCME) in the United States. The BCME program applauds outstanding efforts by teachers, administrators, parents, students and community leaders who have made music education part of the core curriculum.

The BCME program evaluates schools and districts based on funding, staffing of highly qualified teachers, commitment to standards and access to music instruction. The NAMM Foundation with the assistance of researchers at The Institute for Educational Research and Public Service of Lawrence, Kansas (an affiliate of the University of Kansas) evaluate participants on these factors. Designations are made to districts and schools that demonstrate an exceptionally high commitment and greater access to music education. More than 2,000 music programs across the nation were reviewed this year.

The West Branch Local School District will be performing "Tarzan, the Musical," April 11 through 13. For information on "Tarzan," visit www.westbranch.k12.oh.us

SALEM FIRE

 Firefighters responded to the 700 block of Granite Avenue for a report of smoke in the area at 10:42 p.m. Wednesday. Perry Township was also searching for the source of the smoke. The smoke was determined to be coming from an outdoor wood burner used for heating.

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

 A resident in the 1100 block of South Lincoln Avenue called at 12:15 p.m. Thursday to report finding a license plate on South Lincoln, possibly left behind by the person who ran over his hedges. The plate was placed in the dispatch center for pickup by the owner.

 A woman in the 1200 block of East Fourth Street reported at 9:40 a.m. Thursday that she left her residence Wednesday and returned to find a company had taken the lock off the door, changed it and padlocked her garage. She's been in communications with the mortgage company the past two weeks and was unaware this was going to happen. The gas grill was taken from the front porch, also. The realtor told her to file a police report. She was told it's a civil matter. She said the mortgage company won't answer the phone and paperwork was left saying the home was winterized. They claimed the home was vacant and she claims it is not and she has belongings inside.

 A tree branch was reported in the center of the road at East State Street and Highland Avenue at 6:35 a.m. Thursday. An officer moved it.

- An officer on patrol at 3:34 a.m. Thursday stopped a vehicle for a traffic offense in the 2500 block of East State Street, giving the driver a warning. The driver consented to a search of the vehicle, with several items of contraband observed. The driver was advised of possible pending charges for an item recovered from the vehicle.

 A domestic was reported in the 1200 block of Southeast Boulevard at 6:37 p.m. Wednesday. Police learned there was an argument and both people involved showed minor marks they said were caused by one another. The incident wasn't domestic violence, but both were told they could pursue assault charges against the other. Neither wanted to pursue charges and went their separate ways.

- Joey Morris, 29, of 1194 E. Third St., was taken into custody on a Columbiana County warrant for failure to appear after an officer on patrol saw him at 5:46 p.m. Wednesday in the 100 block of West State Street and knew about the warrant. The warrant was confirmed and Morris was taken into custody and turned over to a deputy.

- Ån anonymous caller at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday reported a vehicle driven by a male with no license in the 700 block of West State Street. The vehicle was not located.

- Steven Knoedler, 24, of Ohio Avenue, was cited for assured clear distance after his northbound vehicle on Ohio Avenue struck the rear of a northbound vehicle driven by Kathryn Hopple, 35, of Alliance, who was stopped waiting to turn into a parking lot at 4:18 p.m. Wednesday. A passenger in Knoedler's vehicle, Ashley Lease, 24, also of Ohio Avenue, was taken to Salem Regional Medical Center for possible injuries.

- A caller at 2:42 p.m. Wednesday reported a reckless driver of a CARTS bus traveling west on state Route 14. Officers located five CARTS vans at the Salem Kidney Center where one driver said he was driving from Washingtonville and a car got in his blind spot. He attempted to avoid a confrontation with the driver and continued towards Salem. The officer didn't see any violations and noted the driver appeared normal.

 Mara Richards, of the 600 block of Continental Drive, reported at 2:07 p.m. Wednesday that someone removed a stove from the back of their residence between Monday and Wednesday. She called later and said the landlord removed the stove.

PERRY TWP.

Jason Murphy, of East 11th Street, reported at 2:54 p.m. Wednesday that a GPS unit was taken from his vehicle which was parked in his drive.

 A barking dog was reported at 3:19 a.m. Wednesday on Harley Avenue. The responding officer could hear the homeowner of the animal talking inside the residence, but she would not answer the door. The animal was taken in-

 Police responded at 8:31 p.m. Tuesday to the 700 block of Michigan Boulevard for a domestic dispute, speaking to both parties separately and finding the incident turned physical. Jessica Nihart, 31, of 701 Michigan Boulevard, was charged with domestic violence and taken to the Columbiana County jail. COLUMBIANA

- Pat Kuhlman, Manor Circle, reported at 2:59 a.m. Wednesday several vehicles were entered along the street.

- Someone reported at 3:28 a.m. Wednesday two suspicious vehicles have been in the St. Mary's parking lot on West Garfield Road since midnight. Police spoke with both drivers and found they were employees who got off shift at midnight and were just talking.

- Police were requested at the high school at 11:38 a.m. Wednesday for a man who came into the office and then went to the restroom without signing in. Washingtonville police requested assistance with a report of credit card theft at 11:54 a.m. Wednesday. - A man reported at 3 p.m. Wednesday a vehicle southbound on South Avenue was weaving all over the road. Police saw the vehicle pull into a garage on Herbster and observed no violations. A sheriff's deputy requested assistance with locating a South Middle Street juvenile who did not return home from school as of 4:59 p.m. Wednesday. The juvenile could not be found.

- Nathan Carpenter reported at 11:25 p.m. Wednesday a person was driving a silver Cobalt recklessly around Firestone Avenue and it woke him up.

SALEM TWP.

Constable Dan Valentine received a report from a resident in the 600 block of Lisbon Canfield Road, Salem, at 4:17 p.m. Wednesday advising that her 13year-old daughter went with a relative and refused to return home. The complainant said she was grounded for a video she posted on Facebook

HIGHWAY PATROL

- Vanessa L. Porter, 34, Beaver Street, Lisbon, was eastbound on state Route 172 in Center Township at 9:50 p.m. Sunday and attempted to turn onto Gamble Road and went off the right side into a ditch. Porter was cited for failure to control and taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center with serious injuries. - Judith M. Gregory, 67, Jimtown Road, East Palestine, was eastbound on state Route 154 in Middleton Township at 1 p.m. Monday and went off the south side into a ditch. She was cited for failure to control.

- Marcellius L. Taylor, 21, Alliance, was southbound on state Route 45 in Madison Township at 11:50 p.m. Monday and went off the right side into a culvert and over-corrected and went off the leg side into a yard. He was cited for failure to control.

- Jenna Lynn Blackburn, 24, Willard Road, Hanoverton, was eastbound on state Route 518 in Franklin Township at 7:40 a.m. Wednesday and went off the right side into an embankment. She was cited for failure to control.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE

- Ella Shasteen, state Route 164, Lisbon, reported at 10:09 p.m. Wednesday someone was trespassing at a vacant home nearby. A dark-colored Ford Ranger left before deputies arrived with something large in the bed. Deputies checked the house and garage, but nothing appeared to be missing.

- Jessica Gullett, Buck Road, Alliance, reported at 8:49 p.m. Wednesday a friend had been living there, but she moved out about three weeks earlier and left some things there. Gullett had requested the friend only come back when she was home, but the friend reportedly came on Wednesday and started causing problems with Gullett's mother. Deputies called the friend, who said she only wanted her belongings. Deputies made arrangements for the two to meet at Duke and Duchess on U.S. Route 62 and exchange items.

 Courtney Montalvo, Kirk Road, Columbiana, reported at 4:41 p.m. Wednesday she wanted to report her 14-year-old son ran away. He did not come home from school. Deputies called the mother of the boy's girlfriend, who had not seen him either. The boy was found shortly thereafter at his uncle's home nearby. The boy said he went there because no one was at his home when he got there.

EL woman pleads guilty in laundromat theft

Salem News 3A

By DEANNE JOHNSON

LISBON — An East Liverpool woman involved in a scheme to steal money from laundromat machines pleaded guilty to three related charges in Columbiana County Common Pleas Court on Thursday morning.
Miranda Smith, 35, Lang Street, pleaded guilty to charges of theft and tampering with a coin machine. Additionally, Assistant County Prosecutor Ryan Weikart agreed to dismissed a third-degree felony tampering with evidence charge and allow Smith instead to plead guilty to a lesser charge of vandalism, a fifth-degree felony. Weikart said one of the main reasons the prosecutor's office was willing to allow the lesser charge was Smith's cooperation with investigators. Because the three charges Smith pleaded guilty to were all less than third-degree felonies, she was then eligible for intervention in lieu of conviction. Judge Scott Washam sentenced Smith to four years probation, but during the beginning of her probation she was sentenced to spend time at the Eastern Ohio Correctional Center, where she can get substance abuse counseling. On Sept. 23, Smith and another person, allegedly Eric Jordan, broke into a change machine at the East End Wash N and coins were taken from the machine, which was then van-Shilling's nephew attended the hearing on Thursday, noting besides the $2,523 in initially reported damages and money missing, it is now believed an additional $800 was taken from the machine. Jordan, 34, West Pigeon Road, Salem, also has been charged with theft, tampering with a coin machine and tampering with evidence. His case is set for jury trial in August. Smith will attend the EOCC some time after she is released from the county jail. She is serving a 60-day sentence there until May 13 on a misdemeanor theft charge from East Liverpool Municipal Court, which was unrelated to her charges in Common Pleas Court.

Dry in East Liverpool, owned by Luanne Shilling. Both bills

MUNICIPAL COURT

LISBON — In Columbiana County Municipal Court on Thursday Jane Ketchum, 50, Steubenville Pike, Lisbon, was fined $250 and required 25 hours community service for driving under suspension.

N. Wade Miles Jr., 42, West Vine Street, Alliance, was fined $200 for speeding and no license amended from driving under suspension.

Lyle W. Foster III, 25, Cannons Mill Road, East Liverpool, was fined $100 and credited with two days served for criminal damaging for intentionally breaking a sprinkler head in a cell at the county jail, flooding a cell block. The cost for damages and the Lisbon Fire Department response was $1,218 with a restitution hearing set for April 15.

An April 28 pretrial was set for Lori A. Anderson, 47, Spillway Road, Lisbon, cited with OVI first offense and reckless operation.

An April 29 pretrial was set for Amanda K. DiFonzo, 23, Pittsburgh, cited with OVI first offense and speeding. An April 29 pretrial was set for James T. Reisch, 53, East Broadway, Alliance, cited with a seat belt violation. A May 8 pretrial was set for Robert J. Lutman, 38, state Route 517, Lisbon, cited with OVI first offense, driving under FRA suspension and failure to control.

Food giveaway for veterans, lower-income residents planned

 ${\it LISBON}-{\it A}$  food give away program for all veterans and lower-income residents will be held at the Columbiana County Career Center from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 5.

The Stand Down event, sponsored by Leadership Columbiana County, will also feature information booths staffed by representatives from various social service agencies and other programs. This includes educational and employment services, mental and physical care, substance abuse counseling, housing assistance and veterans benefits.

Certain services will be available for veterans only, who must bring a photo ID and proof of veteran status. Everything else, including the food giveaway, is for anyone who is at or below 175 percent of the federal poverty level, which is up to $20,108 for one person and $41,213 for a household of four. The Stand Program event is part of a national communitybased intervention program designed to help the nation's veterans, particularly those who might be homeless.

Using the courts to check abuses

 $\mathbf{F}$  rules before implementing them. But the Environmental Protection Agency, goaded on by President Barack Obama, has refused — not failed, in a passive sense, but actively refused — to consider the brutal impact its war on coal will have on tens of millions of Americans.

At the same time, Obama and the EPA have shut the legislative branch of government, Congress, out of the process of deciding environmental policy. Obama has said more than once that he will use executive orders to bypass Congress.

That leaves concerned Americans just a single, narrow avenue to protect ourselves against the higher electricity rates and devastation of entire states that are part and parcel of Obama's war on coal.

This week, Murray Energy Corp. filed a lawsuit in federal court, seeking to force the EPA to obey the law. Murray, based in Belmont County, is the nation's fifth-largest coal producer.

Company officials had contacted the EPA previously, notifying the agency of an intention to sue over coal-related rules. EPA officials did not even provide the courtesy of a reply to the firm's letter.

This is far from the first time the EPA has been sued over its war on coal and affordable electricity rates. In some cases, federal judges have ruled the agency was not following its own rules.

Murray's contention is well-founded. The company's suit points out the EPA has failed to evaluate the true cost of its anti-coal regulations.

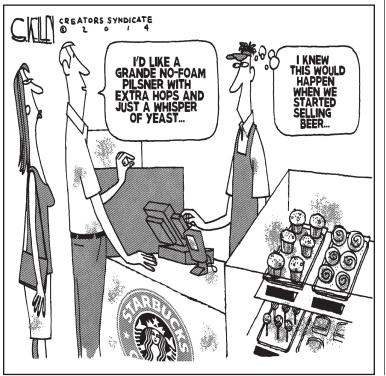

Indeed, EPA officials have made it clear they will not tolerate any questions about their policy. Last year's "listening tour" by agency officials, allegedly seeking public comment on emissions regulations, stopped in 11 U.S. cities. Not one of them was in a region where coal and/or coal-fired power plants are important.

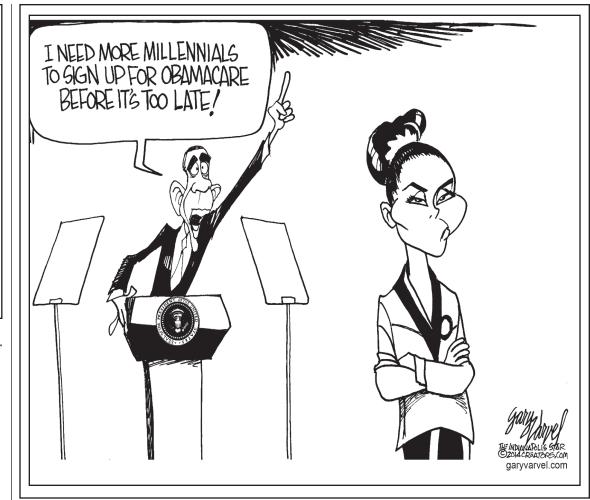

In bypassing Congress, Obama has eliminated one of the checks and balances the nation's founders put in place to guard against government abuses. Unfortunately, liberal lawmakers refuse to object.

That leaves just one check on the EPA's rampant abuse of power — the courts. Good for Murray Energy and others who are refusing the allow the White House to trample our rights.

Government bullies rule over us

JOHN STOSSELL We're told government protects us, but protectors quickly become bullies. Take the Food and Drug Administration. It seems like the most helpful part of government: It supervises testing to make sure greedy drug companies don't sell us dangerous stuff.

The FDA's first big success was stopping thalidomide, a drug that prevented the nausea of morning sickness. It was approved first in Europe, where some mothers who took it proceeded to give birth to children with no arms and legs.

The FDA didn't discover the problems with thalidomide. It was just slow. The drug application was stuck in the FDA's bureaucracy. But being slow prevented birth defects in America.

It taught politicians and bureaucracy that slower is better.

Then the FDA grew, like a tumor.

Today, it takes up to 15 years to get a new drug approved. Though most devices and drugs never are.

What do Americans lose when regulators say "no"?

Usually, we never find out. We don't know what vaccines or painkillers are never developed because regulation discouraged companies from trying something

But here's one example where we do know what we lost:

Uterine prolapse is a common and nasty complication of childbearing. It causes urinary incontinence and terminates most couples' sex lives. Complicated surgery and clumsy devices didn't offer much help until device companies developed implants that often did.

However, since biology is unpredictable, some implants fail. In 2011, the FDA abruptly demanded "more studies."

The bullies' mandate unleashed a hornets' nest of tort lawyers. They advertised, "Did your device fail? Call, and we will get you money!" They soon piled up so many suits that device manufacturers' insurers canceled liability coverage. Device companies then withdrew devices from the market.

So now women suffering from uterine prolapse have fewer options. This is a price of bureaucratic "caution."

Reasonable people can debate whether the FDA assures product efficacy and safety. But the regulatory boot always presses toward delay.

Innovators don't dare make a move without saying, "Regulator, may I please?"

In rare cases, when new devices are approved, there is a new obstacle: complex marketing restrictions. Say something about your product that the government doesn't like, and you may be fined. The Office of the Inspector General and federal and state prosecutors troll for rule violations, then sue and fine.

This harms patients. Most never know they were harmed, because we never know what we might have had

There are only two ways to do things in life: voluntarily or by force. Government is force. Government bureaucrats, who spend their whole lives pushing the rest of us around, easily become bullies.

We need some government force. The worst places in the world are countries that don't have rule of law. Then people are afraid to build factories because mobs may steal what they make, or a dictator may take the whole factory. No one builds, so everyone stays poor.

It's good America has rule of law. It's good we have a military to defend us from foreign attacks, police that keep the peace, courts that ensure contracts are honored, environmental rules that punish polluters.

But now our government goes way beyond that. It employs 22 million people. Not all have the power to impose force on the rest of us, but millions do. Some use it to bully us in big and petty ways.

Twenty-two million government workers delay the Twenty-two million government workers delay the Keystone XL oil pipeline, raid poker games, force us to put ethanol in cars, prohibit drugs and medical devices that might make our lives better, take about half our money, and jail more citizens than even China and Russia do.

Like frightened kids in elementary school, we learn to accept this, to think it's natural. But it's not right that government forbids people in pain to make their own choices about what might help them.

Voluntary is better than force. Free is better than coerced. We're better off when government is small and people are left to do as they please, unbullied.

VOICES -

The Cincinnati Enquirer, March 23
In April, the United States Supreme Court will hear oral arguments in the case, Susan B. Anthony List and Coalition Opposed to Additional Spending and Taxes (COAST) v. Driehaus. The case is of special local interest for at least two reasons: First, it unites perhaps the most diverse set of political voices ever assembled before the Supreme Court; Second, it directly involves COAST, which is represented by well-known Cincinnati attorney, Christopher Finney.

While the court has been asked to address a narrow technical issue of when a challenge may be brought, it is going to wrestle with the broader question of whether a law that makes it a crime to make a "false" statement in political campaign advertising, such as currently exists in Ohio and several other states, violates the United States Constitution. Should the veracity of campaign rhetoric be judged by individual voters as they weigh competing claims in the hurly-burly of political campaigns — where one person's "facts" are another person's "lies" — or by election board bureaucrats?...

Democracy is not served by such an outcome. The Supreme Court should, and almost certainly will, declare Ohio's false-statement campaign law to violate the First Amendment to the Constitution. Regardless of one's politics, everyone should be grateful to SBA and COAST for pressing the issue, as the right outcome will benefit even those who strongly disagree with their political and social agendas.

When geography matters: Putin's land grab has echos off Hitler's

Igor Stravinsky,
the Russian composer, said of Poland, perilously positioned between Russia and Germany: "If you pitch your tent in the middle of Fifth Avenue, it is quite likely you will be run over by a bus."
Poland has been run over hard and often; indeed, between 1795 and 1918 it disappeared from the map of Europe.

Geography need not be destiny, but it matters, as Ukraine is being reminded. During its hazardous path to the present, all or bits of it have been parts of Poland, the Austro-Hungarian empire, the Ottoman empire, the Russian empire, the Soviet Union and now another Russian empire. Czarist Russia, which Lenin called "the prison of the peoples," is re-emerging and has in Vladimir Putin an ambitious warden.

In last week's Kremlin address, he said, "Do not believe those who want you to fear Russia, shouting that other regions will follow Crimea. We do not want to divide Ukraine; we do not need that." The word "need" is not reassuring. It suggests that Russia's needs are self-legitimizing, and recalls the definition of a barbarian as someone who thinks his appetites are their own justification.

Speaking of which: Six months after Germany's absorption of Austria, which was quickly ratified by a plebiscite, Adolf Hitler, on Sept. 26, 1938, spoke about the Sudeten region of Czechoslovakia, home of many ethnic and linguistic Germans. Speaking three days before the Munich Conference began, he said: "This is the last territorial demand I have to make in Europe." On March 15, 1939, six months after Germany's annexation of the Sudetenland agreed to at Munich, Hitler swallowed the rest of Czechoslovakia.

Then his attention turned to "protecting" the German-speaking population in Poland. On Sept. 1, 1939, Germany invaded Poland on the pretext of responding to a Polish provocation. Ten days before, he had told senior military officers, "I shall give a propagandistic cause for starting the war, whether it be plausible or not. The victor shall not be asked, later on, whether we told the truth or not." On the night of Aug. 31, a German prisoner was dressed in a Polish uniform, killed and displayed as a casualty of a Polish attack on a German radio station.

Putin, whose lamented Soviet Union was then Hitler's ally, knows Hitler's tactics. If Putin had a sense of humor he would justify as "R2P" his policy of bringing home to the safety of mother Russia many of the Russians residing in contiguous countries. R2P — "responsibility to protect" — was the moral principle the Obama administration invoked to justify involvement in the sevenmonth assault on Moammar Gaddafi, who posed no threat to us but supposedly did to Libyans.

On Sept. 26, 1938, Hitler said "10 million Germans" lived "in two large contiguous regions" outside the Reich, and that "if I were simply to renounce 10 million ... I would then have no moral right to be fuehrer of the German people." Putin, whose Russia had about 142 million people before he added the 2 million in Crimea, must envelop many more if he is to match the 200 million the last czar, Nicholas II, ruled 100 years ago.

last czar, Nicholas II, ruled 100 years ago.
Can NATO help restrain Putin? After NATO was created in 1949, its first secretary general, Lord Ismay, said its purpose was to protect Europe by keeping "the Russians out, the Americans in and the Germans down." The task of keeping Russia out of its neighbors is being complicated by something that would have improved the last century — German passivity. Angela Merkel may think that bringing Barack Obama to a confrontation with Putin is like bringing a knife — a butter knife — to a gun fight.

In a recent New Yorker interview, Obama praised himself for being "comfortable with complexity" and unraveled the Middle East's complications: "It would be profoundly in the interest of citizens throughout the region if Sunnis and Shias weren't intent on killing each other." This is the president as poseur — detached, laconic, arch, almost droll: If only — apologies to Kipling — the lesser breeds without the law would behave.

Obama evidently harbors the surreal hope that Putin will continue to help regarding Syria and Iran. Continue? Putin's client in Damascus, Bashar al-Assad, is winning his civil war. And regarding attempts to halt Iran's nuclear weapons program, Putin's helpfulness, if not fictitious, has been ineffective.

Obama, always a slayer of straw men, has eschewed something no one has contemplated, "a military excursion in Ukraine." The American Heritage Dictionary defines "excursion" as "a usually short journey made for pleasure."

Panel splits indoor shooting range rules into home, commercial

By MARY ANN GREIER Staff Writer

SALEM — Regulations for proposed indoor shooting ranges will be split two ways, with separate ordinances requested for commercial and private residential.

The Rules and Ordinances Committee of city council voted unanimously Thursday to forward the regulations to city Law Director Brooke Zellers to form two ordinances for council's consideration.

Committee member Councilman Rick Drummond said the direction was confirmed after members of the Committee of the Whole indicated earlier this week they wouldn't object to separating the two types of ranges so they can decide on them separately.

The Rules and Ordinances Committee had decided at its last meeting to separate the two, based on the thinking that more council members favored the commercial and they didn't want to see that idea get tossed based solely on someone's dissatisfaction with the idea of a private residential indoor shooting range.

The committee has been discussing the idea of indoor shooting ranges since last summer, debating over the inclusion of residential and talking about safety concerns, the noise, the smell and location restrictions. Drummond had received a request from a resident to have the ordinance changed regarding the discharge of weapons in the city to allow a private indoor shooting range in a residential area.

He suggested allowing for commercial ventures that could bring people to Salem to spend their money.

The proposal restricts indoor shooting ranges from being located within 100 yards of a school, day care, church or playground and sets up stringent design standards for construction, requiring any indoor shooting range to conform to standards set in The Range Source Book by the National Rifle Association. Plans must be prepared by a professional engineer or architect licensed by the state of Ohio.

The proposed specifications spell out the type of backstops and bullet traps required, the thickness of the walls, how baffles, deflectors and shields should be placed, how walls, ceilings and floors should be built to be impenetrable and how to build shooting booths and target carriers. The rules also address sound control, ventilation and filtering systems and permit requirements. Drummond said he had several range builders review his proposal and they couldn't see a way that a bullet would leave a range based on the construction requirements.

Private residential facilities must be below ground and follow the same stringent guidelines as their commercial counterparts.

The proposal suggested a fee of $50 for a permit for either type of indoor shooting range, but Planning and Zoning Officer Patrick Morrissey suggested a line be added that the applicant be responsible for any additional costs the city may incur related to inspections of such facilities. He said the city doesn't have anyone qualified to make those inspections due to the expertise required and may have to rely on an expert.

In other business, the committee members reviewed a proposal put together by committee Chair Councilwoman Cyndi Baronzzi Dickey regarding a monitoring program related to drilling and disposal of any oil and gas wastes in the city. She explained the proposal would require the submission of background information of key employees, public notification of any spills and imposition of a monitoring fee to cover the costs of monitoring and any damages that may occur in the city related to the operation. Half the fee will be held in escrow and returned if no damages occur.

Drummond raised an issue with a section which required a fee of 5 cents per barrel for each substance delivered to a well to be injected. He said he could understand charging a fee for something to ensure nothing detrimental happens in the city, but thought the per barrel fee was like taxing operating costs.

Dickey explained that it's not necessarily part of what a company may be producing. Drummond questioned if that meant the city was in favor of letting them inject liquid from anywhere, with committee member Councilman Clyde Brown chiming in, "we don't want anybody else's stuff."

"This is all for us to decide,"
Dickey said.

The committee members agreed to review the proposal further and consult with the law director, also.

The proposal will be discussed again during a meeting of the Rules and Ordinances Committee at 6:30 p.m. April 22. Another topic to be discussed will be certificates of occupancy.

Negley home fire investigated

By KATIE SCHWENDEMAN

Staff Writer

NEGLEY — A fire at a home on state Route 170 is being investigated by a state fire marshal.

Negley Fire Chief Gary Banicki said Brenda Moore reported the fire from her neighbor's home at 1:50 a.m. Thursday.

Brenda Moore ran to the neighbor's home to use their phone after a fire ignited in the living room of the home she shares with her husband Jeff at 11444 state Route 170.

Banicki said it appears the fire started near the fireplace and when asked if it appeared to have been set intentionally his only comment was the matter is under investigation.

was the matter is under investigation.

When asked why the state was called in, he replied it was because of "underlying circumstances," which he did not specify.

He did say Mrs. Moore was taken by Negley EMS to Salem Hospital with minor injuries. He declined to comment on the nature of those injuries and whether they were fire related.

The couple live in the double-wide home owned by Jeff Moore's father Fred, and Banicki said he believes it is insured, although that was not certain as of Thursday evening.

Banicki requested mutual aid from the Calcutta Volunteer Fire Department shortly after 2 a.m. when no other firefighters were available from his station. He and two members of his crew were the first to arrive, and were then joined by three Calcutta firefighters.

Three more Negley firefighters later responded and that crew returned to their station before 4:30 a.m., Banicki said.

The Negley department has never before been called to the home, he added.

Earlier that day, county sheriff's deputies went to the home shortly before 5 p.m. after receiving an anonymous call that a possible domestic was occurring there and found the couple arguing.

According to that report Mr. Moore had locked his wife out of the house and she was found to have a cut on her hand, which she said she received while trying to get back inside. Mr. Moore agreed to leave for the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. Moore's brother Craig Horn told deputies that around 10:30 p.m. that evening she had asked him to come take some items from the home and those were placed in his basement on Vale Road, according to the report on Thursday.

Deputies were also at the scene of the fire

West Branch residents speak out on proposed income tax

By KEVIN HOWELL

Staff Write

BELOIT— The West Branch school board Thursday night heard from both sides of the upcoming income tax levy before adjourning to an informational meeting regarding the May ballot issue.

During the visitor's comments portion of the meeting local realtor Valerie Park spoke in favor of the .75 percent five-year income tax, noting that property values could decrease and the students could lose valuable programs to help maintain excellence if the levy fails

Resident Candace Neely countered with statistics she said she gathered from state records that showed between 40 and 60 percent of paid employees in the district live outside the district, meaning they will reap the benefits of the tax without having to pay into it. She also expressed disgust in the number of paid positions for coaches and extracurricular advisors, suggesting that the number could be decreased drastically.

Following the meeting Kim Lewis of the We ARE West Branch levy campaign shared information about the proposed tax, noting that Social Security payments will not be touched. She also noted that the district has not passed a new money levy in 22 years while operating on $1,000 less per pupil than state average and that the district has slashed $1 million in staffing since 2008 including 18 teachers, eight bus routes and an administrator.

Lewis explained that school board is not attempting to just raise additional operating money, but combat rising costs and decreasing state aid. She said the levy is about replacing the lost state revenue.

"It's not about adding anything," she said.
"It's about keeping what we have and taking care of it."

Lewis said the school board is seeking the income tax because it felt that is more fair than a property tax.

If the levy fails, cuts will likely be imminent, she said, sharing a list of non-required courses and expenditures that will be vulnerable including high school and middle school athletics, band, choir, art, electives such as computers and technology, the gifted program, clubs and organizations and even daily cleaning of the buildings

Lewis collected questions and concerns from audience members to help guide three upcoming informational meetings scheduled for April 8 at Damascus Elementary, April 14 at the middle school and April 28 at Knox Elementary, all at 6:30 p.m.

In other business the board approved the 2014-2015 school calendar including first day of classes on Sept. 3, last day June 3 and graduation May 31; accepted donations of $10 from Dean's Funeral Home for Right to Read Week and $200 anonymous for girls' basketball; and hired Heidi Truxall as a home instructor on an as needed basis.

The board also accepted the retirement of Jackie Hannay as an elementary teacher at the conclusion of the school year. Hannay has been with the district since 1988, most recently as a fourth-grade teacher at Damascus.

Additionally the board approved supplemental contracts for the 2013-2014 school year for Jennifer Zamarelli, vocal music assistant musical director; John Zamarelli, vocal music - choreography; Walt DeShields, baseball – co-assistant; Rick Mulinix, baseball – co-assistant; Scott Loudon, baseball – JV coach; Kevin Buckley, boys' track – assistant; Jim Boals, boys' track - assistant; Vallie Teague, boys' track - middle school; Konner Lashley, boys' track - middle school; McKenzie Wallace, girls' track - assistant; Emilee Zets, girls' track – assistant; Frank Edie, girls' track – middle school; Abigail Fox, girls' track middle school; Merrellyn Banks, boys' tennis – assistant; Larry Griffith, softball – assistant; Brenda Sharp, softball – JV coach.

Also at the meeting the board recognized President John Wallace for receiving the Ohio School Boards Association's Award of Achievement for demonstrating dedication to self-improvement, service to their association and work on behalf of the school board. He was one of 58 board members out of more than 3,400 board members in Ohio to be honored. The board also recognized senior Breanna Winters for recently receiving the Young Woman with Bright Future Award, sponsored by the Youngstown YWCA.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 24 at Damascus Elementary LISBON — Columbiana County's unemployment rate dropped in February after increasing the month before, but it still remains well above the state and national average.

The jobless rate dropped to 7.8 percent last month after jumping to 8.4 percent in January, according to figures released by the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services. January's unemployment rate was the highest in nearly a year.

Meanwhile, Ohio's unemployment rate dropped from 6.9 percent in January to 6.5 percent last month, while the national figure increased slightly over the same period, from 6.6 percent to 6.7 percent.

Among the adjoining Ohio counties, Columbiana County's jobless rate was higher than Carroll (7.7 percent) and Stark (7 percent) but lower than Mahoning (7.9 percent) and Jefferson (10 percent).

The jobless rate dropped in 86 of Ohio's 88 counties, with the rate remaining the same in the other two.

The county's February unemployment rate was the 33rd highest in Ohio, with Monroe County in southern Ohio again ranking first at 14.2 percent. Mercer County along the Indiana border continued to have the lowest unemployment rate at 4.3 percent.

According to the state, an estimated 3,900 county unemployed residents were actively seeking work last month, down from 4,200 in January. Approximately 46,200 residents were employed last month, an increase of 300.

Meanwhile, the number of residents continuing to receive unemployment benefits dropped in February, from 4,399 to 3,982. The average weekly benefit in February was

$1 trillion student loan debt widens gap

Doctors, lawyers and other professionals paying toward school loans may believe they'll eventually climb out from debt. But like the roughly 37 million others in the U.S. saddled with $1 trillion in student debt, they may never catch up with wealthy peers who graduated college free from the bur-

Experts say the disparity is contributing to the widening of the gap between rich and everyone else in the country.

Student debt is the only kind of household debt that rose through the Great Recession and now totals more than either credit card or auto loan debt, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

About 40 percent of households led by someone 35 or younger have student loan debt, a 2012 Pew Research Center analysis of government data found.

US economic growth for 4Q revised up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew at a 2.6 percent annual rate in the October-December quarter as consumer spending rose at the fastest pace in three

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that the growth rate was slightly better than previously estimated. The revision reflected stronger consumer spending, which rose at its best quarterly pace since 2010.

Analysts viewed the upward revision as an encouraging sign — showing that the economy had more momentum going into the first quarter than previously believed.

Overall growth is expected to have slowed in the current January-March period, due in part to harsh weather that disrupted factory production and hindered shopping. But once warmer weather appears, analysts are looking for a rebound in economic activity with consumer spend-

Microsoft unveils Office for iPad

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Microsoft on Thursday unveiled Office for the iPad, a software suite that includes programs such as Word, Excel and PowerPoint for use on rival Apple Inc.'s hugely popular tablet computer.

The app was to be made available for download on Thurs-

Microsoft had previously resisted introducing Office for the iPad, preferring to leverage the software suite as a key selling point of Windows 8 tablets and its own line of Surface tablet computers. But those tablets have struggled in the marketplace.

The Redmond, Wash.-based software giant unveiled the app at an event in San Francisco where Satya Nadella addressed reporters on his 52nd day as Microsoft Corp.'s chief executive.

$270M plant proof of U.S.'s sweet tooth

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Americans aren't losing their taste for chocolate. Need proof? Look to Kansas, where candy giant Mars Inc. is operating its first new plant in 35 years to churn out millions of sweets every day.

Company officials had a grand opening Thursday for the sprawling, $270 million chocolate plant — which they say exists mostly to meet U.S. demand for its M&M's and Snickersmillion bite-sized Snickers each day, as well as 39 million M&M's, enough to fill 1.5 million fun-sized packs. The company expects the plant to be filling orders for another 50

Jobless aid applications at 4-month low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people seeking U.S. unemployment benefits fell 10,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted 311,000, the lowest since late November and a hopeful sign hiring could pick up.

The four-week average of applications, a less volatile measure, fell 9,500 to 317,750, the Labor Department said Thursday. That is the fourth straight drop and the lowest level in six months.

The sustained decline suggests companies are confident enough about future growth to keep their staffs. Applications are a proxy for layoffs. Greater business confidence can also lead to more hiring.

Baxter splitting into 2 businesses

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Following a rival's lead, Baxter International Inc. said it's planning a breakup into two health care companies as it tries to boost innovation and profitability and reward shareholders.

Thursday's news could mark a recent trend as Wall Street banks look for lucrative business and urge giants, such as Pfizer Inc. and Johnson & Johnson, to break up into smaller companies that can grow faster.

Deerfield, Ill.-based Baxter, known for its treatments for hemophilia and other blood disorders, will split into a biopharmaceutical company and a medical products business. The latter will sell the rest of Baxter's products, including anesthetics, injectable drugs, intravenous solutions and equipment to administer them.

Ally files for IPO that could raise $3B

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ally Financial is planning a public offering that might raise enough money to pay back its taxpayer bailout.

The federal government is getting ready to sell more than half of its remaining stock in Ally. The sale could raise as much as $3.06 billion. That, plus the $15.3 billion the government has already recouped, would make taxpayers whole for the $17.2 billion bailout from in 2008.

Whether or not that happens will be determined by investor appetite for owning part of a company that is still shoring up its finances.

Ally was known as GMAC Inc. at the time of its bailout. It was the auto lending arm for General Motors, but was nearly wrecked by bad subprime mortgages made by its Residential Capital unit.

Drug recalled after foreign pills found

GlaxoSmithKline is recalling the weight loss drug Alli after receiving reports of unknown pills and tablets in the bottles.

People in seven states have reported finding tablets and capsules of various shapes and colors in the bottles, the British drugmaker said Thursday. There are also reports that the tamper-resistant seals on some bottles are not authentic. Some bottles are missing their labels as well.

The drugmaker is still trying to determine what the foreign pills and tablets are.

US autism estimate rises to 1 in 68 children

NEW YORK (AP) — The government's estimate of autism has moved up again to 1 in 68 U.S. children, a 30 percent increase in two years. But health officials say the new number may not mean autism is more common. Much of the increase is believed to be from a cultural and medical shift, with doctors diagnosing autism more frequently, especially in children with milder problems.

"We can't dismiss the numbers. But we can't interpret it to mean more people are getting the disorder," said Marisela Huerta, a psychologist at the New York-Presbyterian Center for Autism and the Developing Brain in suburban White Plains, N.Y.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released the latest estimate Thursday. The Atlanta-based agency said its calculation means autism affects roughly 1.2 million Americans under 21. Two years ago, the CDC put the estimate at 1 in 88 children, or about 1 million. The cause or causes of autism are still not known. Without any blood test or other medical tests for autism, diagnosis is not an exact science. It's identified by making judgments about a child's behavior.

Thursday's report is considered the most comprehensive on the frequency of autism. Researchers gathered data in 2010 from areas in 11 states — Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, Utah and Wisconsin. The report focused on 8-yearolds because most autism is diagnosed by that age. The researchers checked health and school records to see which children met the criteria for autism, even if they hadn't been formally diagnosed. Then, the researchers calculated how common autism was in each place and overall.

The CDC started using this method in 2007 when it came up with an estimate of 1 in 150 children. Two years later, it went to 1 in 110. In 2012, it went to 1 in 88. Last year, the CDC released results of a less reliable calculation — from a survey of parents — which suggested as many as 1 in 50.

Experts aren't surprised by the growing numbers, and some say all it reflects is that doctors, teachers and parents are increasingly likely to say a child with learning and behavior problems is autistic. Some CDC experts say screening and diagnosis are clearly major drivers, but that they can't rule out some actual increase as well. "We cannot say what portion is from better diagnosis and improved understanding versus if there's a real change," said Coleen Boyle, the CDC official overseeing research into children's developmental disabilities.

For decades, autism meant kids with severe language, intellectual and social impairments and unusual, repetitious behaviors. But the definition has gradually expanded and now includes milder, related conditions.

One sign of that: In the latest study, almost half of autistic kids had average or above average IQs. That's up from a third a decade ago and can be taken as an indication that the autism label is more commonly given to higher-functioning children, CDC officials acknowledged.

Aside from that, much in the latest CDC report echoes earlier findings. Autism and related disorders continue to be diagnosed far more often in boys than girls, and in whites than blacks or Hispanics. The racial and ethnic differences probably reflects white communities' greater focus on looking for autism and white parents' access to doctors, because there's no biological reason to believe whites get autism more than other people, CDC officials said at a press briefing Thursday.

Dustin Huffman Memorial Scholarship deadline is Tuesday

The Dustin Huffman Memorial Scholarship awards a Salem High School senior $1,000 toward continuing education. The scholarship deadline application is Tuesday, April 1.

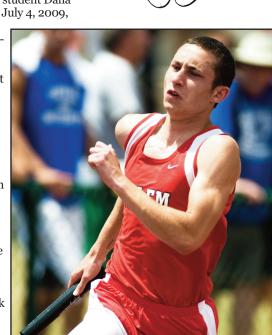

Based on character, it is about honesty, integrity, kindness and compassion. This scholarship is dedicated in the memory of Dustin Marshall Huffman. This scholarship is intended to encourage others to respect life, work hard and help others as Dustin did. As fellow student Dana Ackerman wrote in her letter dated July 4, 2009, "The world needs more Dustins."

Honest, kind, generous and humble describe Dustin Marshall Huffman. He was pure goodness with a touch of ornery. He had a smile that warmed the hearts of everyone, whether you were a friend or just a passerby. And anyone who needed help knew they could count on Dustin, day or night.

Dustin Marshall Huffman, 17, of Salem, died at 1:47 p.m. on June 30, 2009, from injuries sustained in an accidental fall at Beaver Creek State Park.

Born Aug. 21, 1991, in Alliance Community Hospital, he was the son of David Huffman and Michelle (Clark) Huffman.

Dustin was a senior at Salem High School, where he excelled in sports and was an outstanding track athlete. He starred in track, crosscountry, weightlifting and excelled in anything he attempted. Dustin went to the state championship with his track team where the Quakers won first place in the 800 meter relay — taking home a gold medal and attaining the status of All Ohio athletes.

MEMORIAL

DUSTIN HUFFMAN

This link is a video of this accomplishment winning the state title: www.flotrack.org/videos/coverage/view_video/235127/184595.

Dustin's families and friends love and miss him dearly. They are working hard to develop the Dustin Huffman Memorial Scholarship into one that will sustain itself in perpetuity; encouraging others to have the same positive attributes as that of Dustin and keeping his memory alive.

In order to be awarded the scholarship, applicants must have completed the application process which should include:

- Fill out the application which is available at http://dustinhuffmanmemorialscholarship.org/application.htm.
  - A one page paper on "Life."
  - ▶ Letter of recommendation from a school official.
  - ▶ Letter of recommendation from a volunteer or religious organization.
  - A face-to-face interview will be scheduled for all eligible applicants.

For more information call: 330-333-0102.

Dayton advances to Elite Eight

By DAVID BRANDT

Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -Like a red and blue blur, the Dayton Flyers were pressing and passing, shooting and scoring. The waves never seemed to stop coming, with 10, 11 and then 12 players giving them quality minutes.

An exhausted and foulplagued Stanford simply couldn't keep up.

The underdog Flyers an 11 seed in this South Region — are now in the Elite Eight for the first time since 1984 after an emphatic 82-72 victory over Stanford on Thursday

We had 11 guys score in the game and from top to bottom, we kept coming and coming," Dayton coach Archie Miller said. "The way they shared the ball and moved the ball ... it was a true team effort. It's nice that on the biggest stage, we acted like ourselves."

Jordan Sibert scored 18 points and freshman Kendall Pollard added a season-high 12, as Dayton (26-10) made sure this one wasn't particularly close after slipping by in the first two rounds. The 6-foot-4 Sibert was spectacular, slashing to the basket and draining 3-pointers, to help the Flyers lead for almost the entire night.

Dayton showed its depth early, using a dozen players in the first half to wear down Stanford.

"They were relentless," Stanford coach Johnny Dawkins said. "That's the best way I can put it."

No. 10 Stanford (23-13) had the superior post play, but it wasn't enough. Chasson Randle led the Cardinal with 21 points, but shot 5 of 21 from the field. Dwight Powell added 17 and Stefan Nastic - who fouled out with more than five minutes left — had 15. Dayton, the last remaining of the six Atlantic 10 teams in the field of 68, plays the winner of UCLA-

Florida on Saturday for a trip to the Final Four. Sibert finished 7 of 12 from the field, including 4 of 9 from 3-point range. He had plenty of help, including from Pollard, a 6foot-6 guard who continually got to the basket and helped the Flyers stretch their lead in the first half.

"People have been doubting us and not giving us a lot of credit," Sibert said. "I know these guys. I know what coach wants. We all want to win. At the end of the day we all want to be considered winners."

Pollard was averaging two points per game, but Miller didn't hesitate to give him big minutes once he got hot.

"This guy's a big-time winner," Miller said. "He's not afraid of anything.

Devin Oliver scored 12 points and Matt Kavanaugh added 10. Dayton's bench had a 34-2 scoring advantage over Stanford.

The Flyers were good in just about every facet, shooting 48.3 percent (28 of 58) and dishing 19 assists on 28 field goals.

They made just about everything they threw at the basket early. Scoochie Smith's corner 3-pointer put the Flyers ahead 15-13 early and Stanford's Powell - who averages nearly 14 points per game — was quickly banished to the ench with two fouls.

Foul trouble was an early theme, and a much bigger problem for Stanford.

The Cardinal rely on a six-man rotation. When the Flyers would lose a man to foul trouble, they simply replaced him with someone who was just as capable.

Things went from bad to worse for Stanford late in the first half. The Cardinal fell behind by double-digits and Dawkins was called for a technical foul. Dawkins said it was the right call.

"I was just more or less trying to get my team going," Dawkins said. "I thought we were losing momentum, we had already burned a timeout and it was a situation where I wanted to get our guys fired up.

Ít didn't work. Sibert nailed a 3-pointer from the corner to give Dayton a 42-29 lead, though the Flyers had to settle for a 42-32 halftime advantage.

Stanford made a come-

Cavaliers share pain of losing with 76ers

By TOM WITHERS

Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Anderson Varejao winced as if he had just twisted an ankle while grabbing a rebound.

A seemingly innocent question triggered hidden

Even more than three years later, the sting of losing a record 26 straight games lingers for Cleveland's hustling center, who always makes the most of every minute on the floor. With the Philadelphia 76ers on the cusp of matching the 2010-11 Cavaliers' mark for NBA futility, Varejao struggled to discuss a troubling time in his

So, how tough was it? "Nobody," Varejao said, "wants to have that record."

And, nobody but the Cavs can understand what Philly's players are going through.

The 76ers lost to Houston on Thursday night and tied Cleveland's infamous league record for consecutive losses in a single sea-

The 2010-11 season, which actually started with a stunning win over the Boston Celtics in the opener, was one Cleveland would like to forget.

It was the Cavs' first after superstar LeBron James packed up and left as a free agent for Miami, and in the wake of his departure, the Cavaliers collapsed - com-

Under first-year coach Byron Scott, the Cavs went from 61 wins to 19. And beginning with a loss to Utah on Dec. 20, 2010, they began an ill-fated, 26-game stumble that didn't end until they defeated the Los Angeles Clippers in overtime on Feb. 11, 2011.

In between, there were several close calls — they lost 11 games by 10 points or less — and a few blowouts, including a 112-57 shellacking on the road against the Los Angeles Lakers, the most lopsided loss in franchise history.

Before the Cavs hosted Toronto on Tuesday night, Varejao reluctantly re-visited those inglorious days. He initially declined an interview request, but after some polite prodding, the affable Brazilian shared a few thoughts on what it's like to go nearly two months without a win.

"I don't really want to talk about it," he said, standing in the hallway outside Cleveland's locker room. "It's just something I really don't think about. The way it happened, to us, every game we had a chance to win. It wasn't like everyone was blowing us out. We had a lot of injuries and that's all that I can really remember, we had a lot of injuries. We had a lot of games that we had a good chance to win and we didn't.

"It's just tough when you do everything right and you compete to win and it doesn't happen."

Buckeyes must fill holes up front on offense

By RUSTY MILLER Associated Press

COLUMBUS - Thepoint, Ohio State assistant coach Ed Warinner told his players, is to not sweat all the outside stuff. "All you have to do is your job. If you think about things outside of your job, then you get overwhelmed a little bit," Warinner told the candidates to fill the gaping holes on the offensive line. "You don't have to cover for each other, just do your job. And that's all we're having them focus on. I think they'll be fine.'

Warinner, the Buckeyes' co-offensive coordinator and line coach, is charged with a mighty task — replacing four big players with big personalities up See CAVS, 2B front who were the backbone of the team.

Their departure leaves Warinner and Taylor Decker to pass on the unit's legacy of clearing running lanes, sealing off the passer and sticking together like a long-haired band of brothers in some action flick.

"They were definitely great players," Decker said of the graduated Jack Mewhort, Andrew Norwell, Corey Linsley and Marcus Hall. "We just need somebody to lead these (new) guys. Because it's a talented group of guys, who just have to get experience."

The coaching staff, in the midst of spring workouts, likes the returning person-

brother of former Buckeyes Zach and Justin Boren, has the inside track at center, replacing Linsley. Antonio Underwood and Pat Elflein, who started in the Big Ten championship game after Hall was suspended for fighting and then flashing his middle fingers to the crowd at Michigan, will likely fill the guard spots. Darryl Baldwin, a former defensive lineman who made the move to the other side in the spring of 2012, is a fifth-year senior who will probably get the nod at right tackle.

A lot, of course, could change before the Buckeyes open their season on Aug. 30 against Navy in Baltimore.

Athlete union raises plenty of questions

Associated Press CHICAGO - Vince Dooley is sure relieved he's not running an athletic program these days.

Not after a decision allowing Northwestern football players to unionize, and what that might mean for all college sports.

"If this ever happens," said Dooley, now retired after four decades as Georgia's football coach and athletic director, "the issues would be unlimited. What might happen from school to school, from day to day, from year to year, I don't know. I'm just glad I've served my time."

Around the country Thursday, coaches and administrators pondered the potential ramifications of the stunning decision by the National Labor Relations Board, which ruled the Northwestern football team — up to now, referred to by the NCAA as student-athletes — are actually university employees in everything but name. Therefore, they should be able to bargain collectively for their fair share of an industry worth billions.

That set off speculation over what might happen if the ruling holds up on ap-

Kings surge in third to top Penguins 3-2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The playoffs must be coming. The Los Angeles Kings are starting to look like the Los Angeles Kings.

Drew Doughty broke a tie 3:51 into the third period with his ninth goal of the season, and the surging Kings beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 Thursday night for their franchise-record tying eighth straight road win.

"To be hitting our stride at this point and beating some very good teams we had to play in the East right now, that's a confidence booster," Doughty said.

Alec Martinez and Jeff Carter also scored for Los Angeles, and Martin Jones made 35 saves. The Kings, who have won five straight overall, tied the club road record set from Dec. 18, 1974-Jan. 16, 1975 by earning one-goal victories during a three-game swing through Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburgh.

"All three teams are in different places in their standings, so if you can get six points you take it," Kings coach Darryl Sutter said.

The Penguins rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie it on goals by Chris Kunitz and Taylor Pyatt. Jeff Zatkoff stopped 29 shots but couldn't get a handle on Doughty's booming slap shot early in the third.

hot early in the third. A potential tying goal by Penguins forward Brandon Sutter midway through the third was waved off due to goaltender interference following an extended scramble around the Kings net. Sutter eventually poked it by Jones while getting cross-checked from behind just before the net came off its moorings.

After a brief conference, the call stood. While that galvanized the Penguins, it didn't exactly rattle the Kings.

"I didn't have much of a view, but I just felt the puck under me," Jones said. "I just honestly saw the replay, but I felt like I got pushed in. It's the ref's judgment there, so I'm happy we got the call there."

Los Angeles escaped by stifling Pittsburgh's topranked power play. The Penguins went o for 7 with the man advantage as the unit continues to struggle without center Evgeni Malkin, who is out for at least two weeks with a foot injury.

Pittsburgh is 0-2 without Malkin and has dropped three straight overall. Though the Penguins remain in firm control of the Metropolitan Division, they failed to earn a point, postponing their eighth straight trip to the playoffs.

"We did some good things," Pittsburgh center Sidney Crosby said. "It just couldn't go in. It's disappointing when you have that many opportunities. It's not common when you get that many. You want to make sure you try to make them count. We didn't do that."

The Kings have spent most of the season muddling in the middle of the loaded Western Conference but are peaking as the postseason nears. They pulled out a 5-4 shootout win in Washington on Tuesday, roaring back from two goals down in the third to earn the victory.

There would be no heroics necessary this time. Despite the series of penalties, the Kings looked every bit the stingy bunch that won the Stanley Cup in 2012 and made it to the conference finals last year.

"Our penalty kill was unbelievable," Jones said.
"Everybody who was out there was awesome, blocking shots. That's a pretty good power play to do it against, so we did a good job all night."

The Penguins took the day off on Wednesday, cancelling practice after a lackluster 3-2 loss to St. Louis the day before. Pittsburgh held a brief players-only meeting after the loss, which dropped the team to 6-6-2 since the break.

It was hard to tell whether the rest helped early, as the Kings sprinted to a 2-0 lead.

Carter deflected Marian Gaborik's slap shot past Zatkoff for his 26th goal of the season 15:23 into the game. The Kings made it 2-0 on a similar play 6:59 into the second as Tyler Toffoli was parked in front of Zatkoff and provided a perfect screen for Martinez's shot from the point.

Pittsburgh responded 34 seconds later when Kunitz poked in a rebound for his 33rd goal. Pyatt added his fourth of the season to tie it. His knuckling wrist shot hit Jones in the blocker pad and flipped over the goalie's shoulder and rolled into the net.

CAVS FROM 1B

Alonzo Gee are the only players left on Cleveland's roster from that calamitous season

Before they unknowingly embarked on their epic losing streak, the Cavs dropped 10 in a row before beating the New York Knicks in overtime on Dec. 18. They took the floor two nights later against the Jazz believing they would win, and Varejao said that feeling never changed even as the losses piled up. The Sixers haven't won since

Jan. 29, and there has been criticism that they have intentionally "tanked" this season to improve their chances of winning the NBA lottery.

Varejao isn't rooting for the Sixers to lose and erase the Cavs' name from the record boo

He knows what it's like to be the butt of jokes, to be kicked when you're already down.

Varejao has been there.
"If they get it, it's too bad for them," he said. "It's a tough time and it's not easy. I don't even think they think about how many games they've lost. It's just one of those things where you go out to win and you end up losing."

half — as famous Cardinal supporters Seattle Seahawks cornerback Richard Sherman and former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice looked on — thanks to strong post play.

But the Cardinal simply couldn't stay out of foul trouble. Nastic — who was leading Stanford with 13 points at the time — picked up his fourth foul with more than 13 minutes remaining and fouled out with more

Stanford managed to pull within 64-58 after Powell made the bucket and free throw after being fouled, but the Cardinal couldn't get any closer. The Flyers simply kept sending waves at the Cardinal, scoring from inside and out in the final minutes.

Both teams had made impressive runs to make it to this point. Dayton had knocked off in-state rival Ohio State and Syracuse while Stanford has dispatched higher-seeds New Mexico and Kansas.

HOLES

FROM 1B

Mewhort, Norwell, Linsley and Hall were brimming with confidence. Head coach Urban Meyer called them the most important part of an offense that scored more points (637, an average of 45.5 per game) than any team in Ohio State's 124 seasons of intercollegiate football.

They also were team spokesmen, not afraid to offer public encouragement or private criticism or crack a joke if it brought the Buckeyes closer and ultimately made them better.

"They were good leaders, but we have the guys," Elflein said. "Taylor's taking over a leadership role, and Jacoby and myself. We'll keep that same culture as it was a year ago and keep it going."

Boren, a 4.0 student, said he's been biding his time until this moment.

"I think I'm really ready," he said. "I've learned a lot from Corey over the last two years. I've been waiting for two years. It feels good to be here."

A year ago during regular-season practices and particularly in the workouts leading up to the Buckeyes' 40-35 loss to Clemson in the Orange Bowl, Warinner blended a lot of players in with his mainstays on the line.

As a result, all of this year's possibilities at least have an idea of what it's like to protect Miller and keep the offense moving forward.

Most position coaches who lost 80 percent of their starters are reticent to express high expectations. But spring is a time for op-

"I'm pretty confident," Warinner said. "Because everything that you want to see at this point we're seeing: a great work ethic, tough guys who are very well conditioned, guys who want to learn, guys who come with energy to practice. The only thing they lack is just experience and sharpening their skills."

counterparts are denied a spot at the bargaining table?

— Would high-profile programs such as Notre Dame and Alabama be better positioned financially to share a piece of the pie with athletes, leading to an even wider gap between the haves and have-nots?

"I just don't think you can come up with any kind of formula that's going to be equitable and fair to all," said John Chaney, who coached men's basketball at Temple for a quarter-century and was never shy about expressing his views on the ills plaguing college athletics.

The NCAA and its conferences came out in unison against the ruling — not surprising, given their enterprise has contracts worth nearly $18 billion just for the television rights to the NCAA men's basketball tournament and football bowl games.

"We've got something very special in this country that is unique in the world that combines athletic competition with higher education," Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner John Swofford said.
"When it's done right, it's a beautiful thing."
But some wondered if

But some wondered if the NCAA brought this all on itself by dragging its feet on concerns that have been lurking for years, everything from stipends to at least close the gap between what a scholarship pays and the actual cost of going to school, to covering the cost of health insurance for athletes who may still be feeling the aches and pains of the playing field long after they leave campus.

In a sense, it's what happened to baseball in the late 1960s and early '70s, when owners desperately clung to the archaic reserve clause, which prevented players from changing teams when their contracts expired. When the reserve clause was overturned in 1975, it led to free agency, exploding salaries and years of strife between players and owners.

"Maybe the leadership at the NCAA has not been as aggressive in trying to come up with solutions as it should have been," said Pete Boone, the former athletic director at Mississippi.

The decision — which only covers private schools sets up a potentially tangled web of legal conundrums and inequities across college athletics. For instance, some states have laws that would make it next to impossible or even illegal for athletes at public universities to unionize. Legal observers can foresee a day when the NCAA is split between schools that are unionized and those that are not.

Federal law can only apply to private schools, which means Northwestern stands alone in the Big Ten. State law would apply to public schools, and those laws can vary dramatically. In Wisconsin, for instance, public-sector unions are prohibited from collective bargaining over multiple issues, including health coverage. In states that encompass most of the Southeastern Conference schools, union rules are even more restrictive.

Schools without unions could have a financial advantage. But recruits might prefer to go to unionized schools where they would benefit financially.

"Athletes at union schools might have better conditions, working fewer hours," said Joseph Farelli, a New York labor lawyer. "They might have negotiated a $5,000 stipend. Is that going to be more attractive to a recruit? Of course it is."

That would run counter to the NCAA's core philosophy: universal rules for all schools. Which is why, Boone and others said, the governing body must take steps to deal with a movement that, for now, is primarily focused on coverage of sports-related medical expenses for current and former players, reducing head injuries and potentially letting players pursue commercial sponsorships.

"I don't think the NCAA could allow some schools to have one set of rules that might hurt them in recruiting," Boone said. "It's got to be the same for every school, regardless of whether they have a union or not."

But even within Division

I, the NCAA's top level, enormous inequities exist between member institutions. Schools in the so-called power conferences, such as the SEC and Big Ten, generate far more revenue. Those leagues wield huge influence over governance and many have set up their own television networks.

Those inequities scuttled

Those inequities scuttled an effort a few years ago to provide a modest stipend to Division I athletes. The smaller schools said they couldn't even afford $2,000 a year per athlete.

And then there are the divisions that exist within the big-time programs themselves. Nearly all revenue is generated by football and men's basketball, which are used to essentially subsidize every other program — from women's basketball to baseball to tennis.

"What happens to other students who aren't in revenue-earning sports?" asked former Georgetown coach John Thompson. "What happens in women's sports?"

Or, he wondered, can athletes who consider themselves employees be treated like workers in other industries?

"Can you fire somebody if he doesn't perform?" Thompson asked. Dooley said it's not surprising that college athletes began to speak out more and more on the clear inequities in the system, especially when they saw the staggering TV deals and huge increase in coaching salaries.

"You have some very bright kids out there," he said. "It's just a sign of the times."

Marte, Pirates finalize $31 million, 6-year deal

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Starling Marte wants to be part of what he hopes will be a long run of success for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Less than two years after his major league debut, the 25-year-old outfielder finalized a $31 million, six-year contract with the Pirates on Thursday.

"There are a lot of reasons," Marte said through interpreter Peter Greenberg, his agent. "I didn't feel I needed to wait because I like where I am. I have confidence in the organization and I feel comfortable." Marte receives a $2 million signing bonus from the Pirates, who are coming off their first postseason appearance since 1991. He gets salaries of $500,000 this season, $1 million next year, $3 million in 2016, $5 million in 2017, $7.5 million in 2018 Pittsburgh has an $11.5 million option for 2020 with a $2 million buyout. If that option is exercised, the Pirates have a $12.5 million option for 2021 with a $1 million buyout. If Marte finishes among the top five in MVP in any of the next six seasons, the option prices would increase by $500,000 each. If he finishes among the top five in 2020, the option for the next year would go up by $500,000. The option prices can increase by a maximum of $1 million each.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — New York Yankees ace CC Sabathia pitched four scoreless innings in his final tuneup for opening day, a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates on Thursday.

Pitching in a steady drizzle, Sabathia faced 13 batters, allowed three hits and got five ground-ball outs. He finished spring training with 17 scoreless innings.

"I had some easy innings," Sabathia said. "I worked on making sure my location was good on a couple pitches. I threw the two-seamer pretty good and got some ground balls with it."

Coming off the poorest season of his big league career, Sabathia starts Tuesday

Ichiro Suzuki went 3 for 3 with one RBI and a run scored, Eduardo Nunez and Mark Teixeira also had one RBI apiece.

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 3/28/14 Cosmic Call for Respect

Though most people appreciate gestures of respect, they tend to put the highest value on those that are commensurate with what has been earned. Too much deference makes even a very powerful person suspicious, while not enough causes obvious irritation. The dynamics lining up between Venus, Mars and Jupiter bring awareness to such things.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you do what you say you're going to do and consistently uphold your own rules, you will earn devoted followers, clients and fans who keep coming back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The time you take to reflect on the way you present yourself and the way you've been received will make all of the difference in your success. Ask, "What have I learned?" and apply that to the next

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). There are no shortcuts. A friend may appear to be getting away with something for now, but in reality, this person has either earned the position with past work or will toil in the future to be worthy of the CANCER (June 22-July 22). It has been said that a person is not truly wise until he or she has been deceived. Therefore, if people are who they purport to be, consider yourself lucky. And if they are not, consider yourself even luckier.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The stars call for prudence and restraint. As the wealthy know, throwing an abundance of riches at a problem often leads to disaster. People who are given "just enough" won't make the same kinds of mistakes

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The smallest mouse can bring down a wall over time. Handle whatever is gnawing at the floorboard of your mind today before it becomes a more substantial problem.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 28). The day you've been looking forward to finally comes in April, and you'll savor every moment. The completion of a May project will bring pleasing though unexpected results. Stick with your plan in June, when temptations will abound. Your true love gets sentimental in July. Whimsical fun will be the beginning of a quest. Sagittarius and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 1, 22, 38 and 5.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: Your smile is irresistible. TAURUS: If you don't feel like "you' around someone, it's time to ask yourself why. GEMINI: You catch the contagion that is your loved one's joy. CANCER: Can there be two stars in one relationship? You'll put the question to the test. LEO: If you're not giving your love to a codependent person, you can offer your caring support without getting ensnarled in drama. VIRGO: Is someone trying to control you with his or her moods? If that's the case, break away now. LIBRA: Becoming more like your love isn't necessary. It's better to just "do you." SCORPIO: If you're going to fall into the trap of comparison, do yourself a favor and at least resist comparing yourself to an airbrushed magazine model. SAGIT-TARIUS: What randomness comes to mind when you think about your love? An exercise in free association brings answers. CAPRICORN: Strongly bonded individuals feel freer to disagree than those who are unsure of the relationship. AQUARIUS: There is no "normal" way to love, so just do it your way. ## Inspection insights

Heloise

Dear Heloise: What do inspectors look at when doing an ANNUAL CAR INSPEC-TION? — A Reader, via

Good question! It is handy to know what they are looking for before taking your car to be inspected so you can make any necessary repairs beforehand. You wouldn't want to get there and be rejected just to have to pay a second time! Here is what they look at:

- Horn
- Windshield wipers
- Mirrors
- Steering
- Seat belts
- Brakes
- Tires
- Wheel assembly
- Exhaust system and exhaust emission system Headlights, taillights, turn signals, front and rear
- Serial or vehicle identification number
- Gas caps
- Window tint.

If any of these things is broken or missing, you might not pass a state inspection. Some states may look at other things, too. If you are unsure, check out your state's requirements, or ask at a state inspection location. — Heloise

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: I have found some handy ways to reuse the zippered bags from sheet sets. I use them to store my needlework supplies for the current project I'm working on. This way, I can easily pick it up and take it with me wherever I go. They also are great for keeping toiletries organized when I travel. Everything is visible and stays off clothing. — Janice in Hous-

OUT OF SIGHT

Dear Readers: The next time you are unpacking groceries, try to organize the fridge and pantry with the junk food in the back. If you put the healthier foods up front where they can be easily gotten to and the junk food where it is a hassle to get to, you should find yourself eating healthier. Out of sight, out of mind. When you are looking for a quick midnight snack, go for the carrots instead of a cookie because it

If you are a parent, try not to let the kids know about all the great snacks you have hidden until they make a dent in the vegetables and fruits that go bad so quickly. My mother would make a great olive-nut spread and hide it in a mayo jar in the back of the fridge so that I wouldn't know it was in there. -

MOMMY GROUP

Dear Heloise: It is always hard to get out and run errands when you have small kids. Some mommy friends have a started a baby-sitting group. Each mom takes turns watching the kids for a few hours once a week. That way, the other moms can get some errands done or have a little "mommy time" (like getting a pedicure!). — Tiffany, via email

Medical wake-up call prompts questions

DEAR ABBY: I have been married almost four years. Recently I had some medical problems that were my wake-up call. I'm fine now, but I no longer am willing to wait for "someday."

I decided to try some new hobbies, one of which is skydiving. I had said for years I'd never do it because I'm afraid of heights. But I have changed my mind, and for me, this is a big deal.

When I asked my husband what he thought, his response was, "I'm not spending the day just to see you jump out of an airplane." Talk about disappointing!

I have always "gone with the flow" when he has wanted to do something. I know he doesn't want to go skydiving, but all I wanted was his support, and maybe someone to take a video or pictures.

His response has left me wondering about a lot of things. I have had enough of his negativity. He doesn't do anything except stay home. I guess I expected him to be excited for me, or to say he didn't want me doing it. The first is what I would have preferred. Now I'm not sure where I go from here. — DISAPPOINTED IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I hope you realize this letter isn't about skydiving, but your husband's refusal to help you celebrate your new lease on life.

A successful marriage is one in which a couple ideally grows TOGETHER. If your husband is unwilling or unable to do that, then "where you go from here" is to first ask him if he's willing to talk to a marriage counselor with you. If he's not, then schedule some sessions for yourself with a licensed professional and discuss the circumstances that led to your "wake-up call." It will help you rationally — and unemotionally - decide how best to enjoy this gift of life you have

DEAR ABBY: You have addressed cellphone etiquette in your column before, but in this day and age it bears repeating.

We attended a meeting for parents and students last night at our child's high school. Inevitably, a cellphone rang, which can happen to anyone. The ring was

A few minutes later, another cellphone started ringing. Rather than mute it, the parent answered it and proceeded to have a conversation during the meeting while a school staff person was making a presentation. It wasn't a long conversation, but it wasn't quiet either. The parent was sitting in the back row — he could have easily slipped out to have this "important" conversation.

Thanks for letting me vent. It was extremely annoying and rude. Now I know why his son has no common sense. — ANNOYED IN IOWA

DEAR ANNOYED: At most events an announcement is made beforehand that cellphones should be turned off. If there is an interruption, an experienced speaker will pause until the interruption ceases. From your letter, I assume that isn't what happened last Children learn manners and common sense by watching their parents. If consideration for others isn't modeled for them, they don't learn it.

GFR measures kidney function

Dr. Keith Roach

ROACH: I am 81 years old and in excellent health. My blood pressure is low, and I drink several glasses of water a day. I get my kidneys checked by my doctor every three months. The last results of my GFR have been 62, 67, 66 and 58. I am very concerned because the last count went down.

My doctor isn't worried and tells me to drink water and exercise. Should I change my diet? Should I see a kidney specialist? — E.M.

ANSWER: GFR — glomerular filtration rate is a test of kidney function. It usually is calculated based on age, sex and blood creatinine level. The normal value for a healthy 30-yearold is above 90.

GFR decreases with age. The expected level for an 81-year-old would be 59-63, which is right about the range you're in. Creatinine levels may vary a bit from day to day, and I would not be surprised if the next reading is higher.

I agree with your doctor that this isn't something to worry about and that changing your diet is not necessary. I would not recommend a kidney specialist unless your GFR drops persistently.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My wife continually tells me that I should not drink reheated coffee because it concentrates the acid in coffee and is bad for me. I never drink more than one cup per day, and I always use a non-dairy creamer and Splenda. I have researched this question online and several responses say it is not harmful. In the meantime, she drinks orange juice every day, which has a lower pH than coffee. She sometimes complains about acid indigestion. Your comments?  $-\mathbf{A}$ .

ANSWER: Acid is measured by the pH scale — with the lower the number, the more acid in the liquid. Coffee has a pH of about 5, slightly acidic, whereas orange juice has a pH of 3, which means it is a hundred times more acidic. Reheating coffee should not change the acid concentration.

Your stomach has a pH of about 1.5 — much more acid than either juice or coffee. The caffeine in coffee can stimulate your stomach to make more acid, and can weaken the sphincter muscle that keeps the stomach acid from going up into the esophagus. However, if it isn't bothering you, there is no reason to stop drinking

One cup of juice usually doesn't cause acid indigestion either.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I take the statin drug atorvastatin since my heart surgery. The sticker on the bottle reads, "Do not eat grapefruit or drink grapefruit juice at any time while taking this medicine." My cardiologist said this warning was based on rather thin clinical trials, and it was OK to continue eating one grapefruit in the morning and taking the statin at bedtime Are there new developments on this topic?

ANSWER: Grapefruit juice indeed can affect the metabolism of atorvastatin (Lipitor) and many other medications. However, the amount of grapefruit needed in order to have a significant effect is quite high — the manufacturer recommends avoiding consumption of more than a quart (1.2 liters) of grapefruit juice

I agree with your cardiologist that a grapefruit is a healthy way to begin the day and is not likely to cause any problems with atorvastatin.

TO READERS: Many people have come down with the mysterious illness chronic fatigue syndrome. The booklet on it explains the illness and its treatment. To obtain a copy, write: Dr. Roach - No. 304, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

She still wants romance before bed

Mailbox

Dear Annie: I'm in my early 50s and have been married to "Ralph" for two years. At first, he was attentive and romantic, sending flowers and writing cards. We went on frequent weekend trips where we would focus only on each other.

In the past year, Ralph's job responsibilities tripled, and so did his stress levels. His mother has had numerous hospitalizations, and his teenage son began experimenting with drugs and alcohol. As a result, our marriage and sex life have suffered. We still have a date night, but we cannot get away for a weekend because there is no one to leave his son with. Most of our "dates" involve Ralph cracking his knuckles while I try to carry on a lighthearted conversation.

Last night, Ralph said that even though we are terribly busy, we should take what few moments we can find to have sex. I told him that, like most women, I respond better if there is some romance attached, and that I need us to really connect emotionally. I desperately want him to look into my eyes in a way that lets me know he is still crazy about me. But Ralph says he is unable to turn off his stress and that married people should be able to have a few minutes of sex without worrying about my "soap opera view of marriage." He thinks it's immature of me to expect wining and dining before sex.

I offered to meet him halfway. I still need the occasional connection. He calls that "high maintenance" and says my ideas are unrealistic. He is very different from the loving and funny man I married. He absolutely refuses counseling. Am I wrong here? — High Maintenance in Ponte Vedra Beach

Dear Ponte: This is not about right and wrong. It's about expectations, adjustments and effort. The flowers and notes are lovely, but it's unrealistic to expect Ralph to continue these thoughtful gestures when his brain is overloaded with worries about his son, his mother and his job. Ralph also wants a connection, but like many men, to him that means physical closeness. He doesn't need romantic gestures, so he thinks you are being frivolous.

Here's your compromise: Tell him that once a week, you need him to look into your eyes and say how much you mean to him. With sincerity. In return, you will stop nursing a sense of neglect that he no longer focuses on your romantic desires as much as he did before. If he cannot manage even this much, we fear that the romantic personality was only a fa-
