High price means less salt for Goshen Twp. roads

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

GOSHEN TWP. — The high cost of salt this winter will mean less for the roads, according to Roads Foreman Jim Stryffeler.

Stryffeler reported Monday night that due to budget constraints, the department will not be buying salt this winter. The cost of salt through the Ohio Department of Transportation's purchasing program is more than five times what it was last winter, coming in at $146 per ton. Last year's cost was $27.50 per ton.

Stryffeler said he filled up the department's salt bin this summer at $42 per ton. For this winter, he said the department will have approximately 125 tons. Last year the department used about 200 tons, he said.

"We're going to do the best we possibly can with what we have this winter," Stryffeler said. "But my advice to drivers this winter will be to slow down, drive carefully."

Stryffeler noted that the department will employ means of stretching the salt supply, such as diluting it and mixing it with more grit.

Trustee Todd Beeson said that ODOT has not accepted the $146 per ton bid yet, and that municipalities are being encouraged to purchase salt at a lower price from companies if possible.

Stryffeler responded that he had not contacted individual companies yet, but discussions with other area road departments indicated that the salt is not available except in much larger amounts than needed for local roads.

In other business the trustees reported that an $86,000 project to replace the catch basins in Damascus, including those on state Route 534, has been submitted for Ohio Public Works Commission funding.

The trustees also approved Brian Moore as a part-time police officer. Moore is currently a full-time officer on the East Palestine police force with significant training, according

Perry trustees note dates, events

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

PERRY TWP. — Trustees announced several important dates for residents to note on their calendars related to breakfast, leaves, paper leaf bags and tires.

First up will be a paper leaf bag pickup for township residents on Oct. 4 at Home Depot. Residents will be able to get a set number of bags for free as part of a program through CCH Environmental, formerly known as the Carroll-Columbiana-Harrison Solid Waste District.

The program was first tried in Salem last year and has been expanded to include Perry Township, the city of Columbiana and the city of Salem this year.

Trustee Don Kendrick explained that township residents who receive water and sewer bills from the city will receive a coupon they can present to get the leaf bags. Those residents who don't have city water and sewer bills can take their driver's license or property tax statement to show that they live in the township.

Trustees will hold the annual leaf pickup for residents in the unincorporated area beginning Nov. 3 on the north side and beginning Nov. 17 on the south side. Leaves must be secured in bags and placed on the curb lawn near the street for pickup, with bags of a size that can be lifted into a truck by one person. The dividing line between north and south for the township is State Street.

Trustee Chairman Cliff Mix said the paper leaf bags will be picked up first, separate from any other bags, then they'll pick up other bags. Anyone with questions can call the Perry Township Road Department at 330-337-7266.

The township will host a tire dropoff event for township residents from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Oct. 18 at the south station off of Depot Road. Only tires without rims from passenger cars and light trucks will be accepted. There is no charge for dropping off the tires.

Fire Chief Bruce Whitcher announced the department will host an all-you-can-eat pancake and sausage breakfast from 7 a.m. to noon Oct. 11 at the north station on North Ellsworth Avenue. The cost is $6 for adults, $4.50 for ages 6-13 and free for ages 5 and under.

In other business, the trustees approved an expense of $240 for eight firefighters to attend an eight-hour continuing education smoke reading class being hosted at Salem High School by Salem Firefighters Local 283.

Kendrick said two zoning permits have been issued so far in September.

At the end of the meeting, the trustees adjourned into a work session with firefighters.

VB game postponed after MRSA rumor, panic

Staff Reports

LEETONIA— Officials suspended volleyball action at Leetonia High School Monday night due to a spreading panic caused by an unfounded rumor of players with a disease.

According to schools Superintendent Rob Mehno, officials suspended action between the junior varsity and varsity games after rumors that a player had Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) — a form of staph. He said that there was no confirmation of the rumor, nor that any threat existed, but officials suspended action to ease the tension that had built in the crowd.

The Leetonia custodial staff disinfected all the equipment and locker rooms, Mehno said, and school will continue as normal. He noted that the accusation will be investigated fully to ensure there is no threat of infection.

According to WebMD, MRSA is a bacterium that causes infections in different parts of the body and is tougher to treat than most strains of staph because it is resistant to some commonly used antibiotics.

It commonly causes mild infections on the skin, like sores or boils, but can also cause more serious skin infections or infect surgical wounds, the bloodstream, the lungs or the urinary tract. It is spread by contact such as touching another person who has it on the skin or by touching objects that have the bacteria on them.

Moving Wall opens 4-day at fairgrounds Thursday

Staff Reports

LISBON — The Moving Wall, a half-size replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial that stands in Washington, D.C. will be on display at the Columbiana County Fairgrounds beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The Wall will remain at the fairgrounds through 8:30 a.m. Monday, Sept. 15.

In honor of this, county commissioners have also proclaimed this weekend as Vietnam Veterans Weekend in Columbiana County.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., stands as a symbol of America's honor and recognition of the men and women who served and sacrificed their lives in the Vietnam War.

Inscribed on the black granite wall are the names of 58,228 who gave their lives or remain missing. Yet the Memorial itself is dedicated to honor the courage, sacrifice, and devotion to duty and country of all who answered the call to serve during the longest war in U.S. history.

Since its dedication on Nov. 13, 1982, the memorial — known today simply as The Wall — has inspired the nation. It has stirred probing questions and reflection about history, American culture and the cost of war. Equally as important, it continues to influence greatly how the nation remembers, honors and mourns.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, September 9, the 252nd day of 2014. There are 113 days left in the year. Ten years ago: Secretary of State Colin Powell told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that abuses by government-supported Arab militias in Sudan qualified as genocide against the black African population in the Darfur region. Five years ago: In a speech to a joint session of Congress, President Barack Obama summoned lawmakers to enact sweeping health care legislation, declaring the "time for bickering is over." (In an extraordinary breach of congressional decorum, Rep. Joe Wilson, R-S.C., shouted "You lie!" when the president said illegal immigrants would not benefit from his proposals; Wilson ended up apologizing.)

Blue Ribbon Digs

Margaret Sweitzer, 871 Park Ave., has spent hours and many days sharing the varied displays of plantings that she so dearly loves. Her gardens have been selected for the "Blue Ribbon Digs" award for the month of September presented by the Salem Area Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee. The committee extended its congratulations for an excellent example of a yard and plantings that exemplify late summer's splendor. Sweitzer's flower gardens both in the front and back of her home present annuals and perennials in a combination of contrasts exceeding the colors of nature. Her flowers and yard are quite a spectacular showpiece. Pictured with Sweitzer are Elaine Kothera, left, and Carolyn Gordon Jones. (Submitted photo)

Columbiana board of education considers tackling 2 projects

By KATIE WHITE
Staff Writer

COLUMBIANA — The Board of Education is looking into two projects the district originally planned to fund using bond issue money.

The first is a pole building or two sheds to replace a tractor-trailer being used as a storage facility at the Ward Athletic Complex. The other is outfitting classrooms with individual air conditioning units at South Side Middle School.

Board member Scott Caron said the district could have a pole building constructed for less than $25,000, and that it could also feature restrooms, which is something the district had planned for the complex when it was constructed in 2000.

Superintendent Don Mook said the building would be a long-term investment.

"The tractor truck trailer is an eyesore. When they put the Ward Athletic Complex in, the idea was to put things over there over the years," he added.

The district was hoping to raise about $250,000 to $500,000 through a $4 million, 29-year bond issue to put toward upgrades at the complex, but that idea was nixed when taxpayers were not in favor of the bond generating money for what was listed on the ballot as "extracurricular facilities."

When board members began discussing the bond they considered putting some of the tax money toward the Ward Athletic Complex and replacing portable restrooms with permanent buildings as well as other minor improvements.

The bond was first placed on the August 2012 special election ballot and rejected by a large margin. It was rejected two other times since then, with the most recent being the November general election last year.

Following the first failure the district removed the "extracurricular facilities" language from the ballot and assured voters any money generated would be put toward renovations at South Side Middle School only, with the main priority being the replacement of the 50-year-old flat roof with a pitched roof.

The district has since moved forward with replacing the roof with another flat roof using general fund money. It cost roughly less than half the estimates of a pitched roof.

With regards to the complex, Caron said he does not support using tax money.

"I'm not for putting a levy on and trying to go to the public and ask them for that. I think that we can raise the money through donations and things in order to support our school system that way," he said.

Mook said he would get in touch with athletic director Erin Heasley to see if the athletic department would support hosting fundraisers to cover a portion of that cost.

He said a pole building would cost anywhere between $25,000 to $50,000, while two sheds would cost around $20,000, but Caron is optimistic a 30- by 50-foot pole building can be constructed for under $25,000.

He received verbal estimates from a friend at Dunlap Construction, he said.

"We believe we can get it done for under $25,000," he added.

Another benefit is that the district could add onto the building in the future, and restrooms could be easily tied in since sewer service was extended to that property when the bus garage was built, he explained.

Meanwhile, the board will hear next month from Gardiner Trane regarding how much air conditioning units at South Side would cost the district once they are tied into the electrical system. The HVAC company has offices in Cleveland and Akron.

The district was hoping to perform an entire heating, ventilation and air conditioning overhaul at the building using bond issue money.

"Unfortunately that didn't happen either. The cost is pretty significant to do a change-over to the HVAC," Mook said.

Installing individual air conditioning units in some classrooms would cost less and was suggested by the Parent Teacher Organization, which is offering to raise money to make that purchase.

What the board will need to look into now is how much those units will affect the electrical system from a cost standpoint and if it can handle the additional capacity.

Mook said last year the building was the only one in Columbiana County without air conditioning.

Salem Chamber to sell E. State Street building

SALEM — The Salem Area Chamber of Commerce has announced that the building which currently houses its base of operations at 713 E. State St., is being placed on the market through Hofmeister Realty & Auction. The Chamber occupies the first floor of the historic building in downtown Salem and shares office space with the United Way Services of Northern Columbiana County. Salem's "Village Green," which includes the war memorial and the surrounding landscaped area will not be affected by the sale of the building and the adjacent property.

Chamber Board President Jim Wenderoth explained, "For the past few years, the Chamber's Board of Directors has been evaluating the best use of our current office space. Our Board recently voted to place the building on the market, and felt that this is an opportune time to take the next step in finding a location that can better help us fulfill our mission to create the best possible environment for business."

Although the historic building at the corner of East State Street and Lincoln Avenue has served the Chamber well, it is now time to move forward and find a facility that provides the necessary office space utilization for the Chamber to continue serving its membership's needs. From an economic development stand point, the Chamber property presents a great opportunity for a buyer looking for a prime location at the busiest intersection in the city and in the heart of the downtown area.

The real estate sales process will be overseen by the Chamber's Executive Board, which will also be exploring options available for the interim or long-term relocation of the Chamber's administrative offices.

According to Audrey Null, Executive Director, "We would like to consider a new office location that can provide resources for our current and potential chamber members, as well as the business community as a whole. This is an exciting and monumental moment in our Chamber's legacy of serving Salem and the surrounding area."

The Salem Area Chamber of Commerce has a proud history of representing the Salem area's leading business professionals, and its origin dates back to the late 1800s. With a current general membership of 365 businesses, organizations, and individuals, the Chamber is actively involved in fulfilling its mission; "To serve as the catalyst that creates the best possible environment for business." OUR SIDE

Salt prices have us over winter barrel

Salt — plain old sodium chloride — is the key to a critical public service on which area residents depend during the winter months. Without it, some local roads would be impassable after snow and ice storms. The number of accidents would multiply in both number and seriousness.

Recognizing that, many communities, counties and state highway department units set aside substantial amounts of money to buy salt for street and road treatment. Even small-town salt budgets sometimes approach the cost of a new home.

But many local officials in Ohio are worried they may not be able to afford adequate salt supplies this winter. Prices for the material have more than doubled during the last year.

There have been allegations that salt suppliers are gouging customers. Ohio Attorney General Mike DeWine's office has been asked to "monitor" the situation.

But if a finger is to be pointed, it probably should be aimed at Old Man Winter. Severe weather in several areas of the country last year depleted reserves of road salt. The law of supply and demand indicates that when supplies are short, prices go up. A spot check of salt prices in several states indicated they are approximately the same as in Ohio.

What are local and state officials to do, other than hope for a mild winter? Coping tactics include finding substitutes for salt, prioritizing which streets and roads to treat, and spending more than budgeted to obtain salt.

The latter will mean less money available for road repairs next spring, of course.

One strategy that probably will not work is holding off on purchases of salt in the hope prices will go down. Again, they seem to be high in much of this region of the country. Road maintenance officials who buy at least a reasonable supply of salt now may have to swallow hard when they pay the bill — but at least they will not find themselves told in January or February that there simply isn't any salt to be had.

The Face of Evil...

...Hides Beneath a Mask of Cowardice.

A Ferguson challenge for civil rights leaders

DIANE DIMOND

A notion struck me as I studied the continuing stream of news about the police shooting of 18-year-old Michael Brown of Ferguson, Missouri. After his funeral, I wondered, could we be witnessing the birth of another historic civil rights movement?

If you are white, you may think that's a ridiculous notion. A recent Pew Research Center Poll reveals that 80 percent of blacks believe the shooting in Ferguson raises important issues about race that need to be discussed. But only 37 percent of whites agreed. Even more troubling: 47 percent of white Americans think the issue of race is getting more attention than it deserves.

This signals a disturbing disconnect. When 80 percent of one group of people says there is a basic human rights problem in America, the rest of us ought to be willing to listen and discuss.

The circumstances surrounding Brown's death have still not been adequately explained, to my mind, and coming on the heels of three other fatal incidents involving unarmed black men and white police officers, the basic questions seem clear: Are cops in America too prone to strong-armed tactics when it comes to black and brown people? Or do young minorities lack respect for others -- especially the police -- and engage in behaviors that invite the trouble? How can the relationship between law enforcement and the communities they are sworn to protect be improved?

After Ferguson endured two weeks of looting and arson, street demonstrations and violence, there were genuine calls for calm and a national discussion about why another unarmed black kid had been shot and killed by a peace officer. Speakers inside the Friendly Temple Missionary Baptist Church spoke about going forward.

Eric Davis urged the packed church crowd to immortalize his cousin's death with a renewed effort to advance civil rights.

"Show up at the voting booths. Let your voices be heard, and let everyone know that we have had enough of this," Davis said.

Those who came to the service openly said they believe Ferguson police officer Darren Wilson had grossly overreacted that awful Saturday afternoon. Why didn't he simply arrest Brown if he was breaking a law or use a Taser instead of a deadly gun?

In other parts of town, supporters of Wilson's answered with the still-uncorroborated police version of the events of that day: The 6-foot-4-inch, 290-pound teenager had struck first and fast, wrestling for the officer's gun and driving him to use deadly force to defend himself.

But there was no forum for the two sides to talk to each other.

Even the often-grandstanding Reverend Al Sharpton, who flew in from New York to attend the funeral, seemed to understand that Brown's death could be a pivotal event to improving race relations.

"There have been other times in history that became seminal moments, and this is one of those moments," Sharpton told the congregation. "And this young man, for whatever reason, has appealed to all of us that we've got to solve this and not continue this."

In strong language Sharpton urged all African-Americans to push for positive change instead of hitting the streets with violent protests and, "sitting around having ghetto pity parties."

Just what Sharpton and other civil rights activists plan to do to "solve this" remains a mystery. But here's a challenge: Get organized. Make the nation truly understand what life is like for inner-city minorities who encounter police in their neighborhoods. Take a page from dignified heroes of the past who peaceably fought for their rights.

As Rosa Parks did in Alabama in 1955 when she quietly refused to give up her seat on a bus to a white person, and then challenged her arrest. As students in North Carolina did in 1960 when they staged silent sit-ins at segregated lunch counters. As civil rights activists did during a series of marches between Selma and Montgomery, Alabama, back in 1965. None of them stopped their peaceful demonstrations until segregation policies crumbled under nationwide public pressure and the Voting Rights Act was passed in 1965.

To those who declare themselves today's "community leaders," I say, launch a nationwide movement for change instead of simply showing up to scream into television cameras at the scene of the latest controversial death. Galvanize your people and send them forth in productive and noble ways to change what is wrong.

Is it right that in 2014, minorities must still fight for what they see as their full rights as American citizens? No. No more so than it is right that a police officer is automatically condemned and branded as a criminal when a fatality occurs on his watch.

For the Rosa Parks strategy to work in today's world, everyone will, first, have to admit we've got a racial problem. And, second, all involved will have to convince their constituents to act responsibly.

Minority communities have to re-dedicate themselves to promoting a cohesive family structure, stressing the importance of education and setting goals. They should instill respect for human life and the idea that a good work ethic means success. Our youth who embrace the temptation of drugs and criminal activity as a suitable way to make a living must be redirected. The startlingly high number of black-on-black crimes has to be acknowledged and addressed.

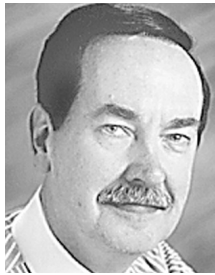

The challenge to law enforcement? Adopt new policing practices that focus on community relations and better management of tense situations. Anyone with a brain understands that police officers put their lives on the line every single day; and their dedication needs to be honored, their need to protect themselves acknowledged. But there can surely be fewer bold displays of military-like might, increased use of Tasers instead of guns, more dashboard cameras to capture the undisputable facts of a situation and updated training for officers who patrol at-risk areas. Police academies should include specific course work in race relations and psychological techniques to diffuse disputes.

But there is a third component: The rest of us. We have to truly listen and understand each other. This can be an important cross-road moment in the way issues of race and poverty and crime and confrontation are dealt with -- but only if we seize the moment.

ANOTHER HACKING VICTIM EXPOSED...

Joan Rivers and me

CAL THOMAS

We met by accident. How else could it have been with two people who are so different? Or are we?

It was the early 1980s when a tabloid called me. They were doing a story on Joan Rivers and thought I, a conservative, would give them a quote critical of her. I said, "I won't speak to you and I don't want to be quoted as saying I won't speak to you."

They made up a quote, claiming I thought she was a terrible person.

I wrote her a letter in care of "The Tonight Show" where at the time she was substitute host for Johnny Carson. I said I hoped it wasn't necessary to deny something I didn't say and that I actually liked some of her work. She replied with a gracious handwritten note on pink stationery and included a "Can We Talk" button, which was her signature saying.

Sometime later her husband, Edgar Rosenberg, took his life. I wrote her expressing condolences. We subsequently met on several occasions and after one performance she introduced me to people backstage as "the man who wrote me a wonderful letter after Edgar died."

Joan Molinsky was born in Brooklyn, New York. Though her father was a doctor, no one made much money during the Depression and the war years that followed. In her autobiography (with Richard Meryman), "Enter Talking," Joan says her mother thought MD should stand for "making dollars."

Her parents thought she was throwing away her college education -- and financial security -- by her interest in show business, but while Joan worked as a department store sales girl, earning what would be pocket change today, she had her eyes on the stage as early as her teen years.

Whatever a "family values" person might think of her act, which often included coarse language, they should appreciate her work ethic. Joan Rivers played burlesque houses and other dives that today would be shut down by the health department. She never quit, but persevered until success found her.

Insecure over money, Joan embraced her greatest asset. In her book, Joan wrote: "If I was obscenely pushy, that is what drive is -- wanting the impossible, wanting it all, never knuckling under to an obstacle, pushing till you get what you want. I wanted to be a star. ... If I ever become somebody who stops fighting for my place in the spotlight, I will be finished. Let us not be sentimental about this. This is what reaching the top and staying there means in this business -- and in the automobile business and the garment business and in politics."

One might argue whether having it "all" when you can't take it all, or any part of all with you is worth it, but if success is your vehicle and drive the fuel, then Joan succeeded by any standard and for far longer than most entertainers.

We too often judge people by labels and what we see on the outside. Reading Joan's book and knowing her just a little showed me the woman behind the facade, which was quite different from her public personae.

In the inscription to "Enter Talking" she wrote, "To Cal, thank you for being so terrific over the years. -- Joan Rivers."

No, Joan, you were the terrific one.

Cal Thomas' latest book is "What Works: Common Sense Solutions for a Stronger America" is available in bookstores now. Readers may email Cal Thomas at tcaeditors@tribune.com.

OTHER VOICES

The (Toledo) Blade, Sept. 2

The nation's firearms debate has a new element: gun control for children.

Last week in Arizona, a 9-year-old girl lost control of an Uzi submachine gun, shooting and killing Charles Vacca, her 39-year-old instructor. Not only did the girl have her parents' permission, but the adults videotaped her using the weapon.

This isn't the first time such a tragedy has occurred. In 2008, an 8-year-old boy accidentally shot himself with the same type of weapon in Massachusetts.

A 9-year-old can't drink alcohol, drive a car, or vote. Why should a 9-year-old be handed a weapon that is typically used by military and law enforcement personnel, even at a firing range under the supervision of an instructor?

According to federal statistics, unintentional firearm injuries caused the deaths of 606 people in 2010. One report said that 8 percent of the deaths from unintentional shootings were caused by shots fired by children under age 6. The countries with the strictest gun laws, meanwhile, have the fewest fatalities, says the Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence.

This country has laws meant to keep firearms away from people with mental illness or criminal records. It also needs laws to protect Americans from the inability to use guns properly.

Some parents and gun-range operators may think it's all right for a child to hold enormous firepower. Loved ones of victims such as Mr. Vacca know it is not.

— A burglary alarm was reported at Elkrun Industries, state Route 7, Rogers, at 12:48 a.m. Saturday. The front door was found kicked open with a muddy shoeprint on the door. A second interior door was kicked in with a shoeprint also on the door, but the business owner came and found nothing missing. The same shoeprint was also found around the building near the windows.

— Evan McMullen, U.S. Route 30, Minerva, reported at 8:23 p.m. Saturday he believed his girlfriend took his Ford F-150 truck. Then when he was asked to fill out a stolen vehicle report, he said he was going to bed and would do it another day.

— Chantel Temple, Center Avenue, Lisbon, reported at 7:40 p.m. Thursday she lives with Allen Ingledue and two girls came inside the home, Cheryl Emory and Linda Dapollonia. Temple said one of them threw something close to her baby and were yelling and screaming at Ingledue. They also reportedly threatened Temple and chased her into the basement. The two women claimed they did not do anything or throw anything. They only had a problem with Ingledue.

— Nathan Brownfield, Bayard Road, Minerva, reported at 9:52 p.m. Thursday, his neighbor he does not know has been harassing him about a civil issue regarding their property.

— Kevin Mackey, Texas Street, Wellsville, reported suspicious activity and possible shooting at 9:47 p.m. Saturday. Deputies found no one.

— Mark Rishel, Kevin Drive, Alliance, reported at 9:16 p.m. Friday he came home and found his PS3 and HDMI cable missing. The game center was rented from Rent-A-Center in Salem.

— Michael Lesch, Georgetown Road, Damascus, reported at 6:25 p.m. Friday he saw a waste truck with a hose in a ditch on Georgetown Damascus Road and he believed it was dumping.

— Venus Wittenauer, North Market Street, East Palestine, reported at 4:30 p.m. Friday she hired Dan Schlueter’s plumbing business to do some work, but she wanted an estimate before any work was started. She found the plumbers had already started working and determined the estimate was too expensive so she fired them. Someone began snipping parts and made water go everywhere before leaving.

Schlueter said Wittenauer gave him permission to go ahead before the estimate was written out. Deputies told them it is a civil matter.

— Helen Moffett, Taylor Road, Negley, reported at 4:32 p.m. Thursday one of two people driving an Olds Alero backed into her GMC Yukon. Wendell Beatty Jr, who was in the vehicle with Moffett and their children, claimed one of the men confronted him and he thought they wanted to fight. Beatty told them he was calling the sheriff and both men left.

— Darren Walter, Buck Road, reported at 10:42 a.m. Friday, while he was at his mother’s home she received a call from a woman with a foreign accent claiming to be with one of his mother’s medical care providers. The woman also knew his mother’s Social Security number, address and phone number, as well as his mother’s medical condition. However, his mother was suspicious of the call.

— William Carr, Wildwood Drive, Beloit, reported at 9:42 a.m. Friday someone was putting flyers into mailboxes on the street stating the Westville Lake Association will hold its annual picnic on Sept. 28. Carr’s wife confronted the woman and told her to stop because it is illegal.

— Connie Cline, Elyson Road, East Rochester, reported at 9:35 p.m. Friday her step-daughter Christine Ryhal, 21, left three weeks ago to go to Columbiana and other places, but she had not heard from her since, except for one text message a week ago.

— Wilma Hilliard, state Route 9, Kensington, reported a possible prowler in a nearby abandoned home at 8:20 p.m. Friday. The person was gone and a lock on the door indicated it may have been the bank securing the property.

— David Taylor, Steubenville, reported an assault at 7:29 p.m. Friday. Luke Trimmel and his employee Taylor were returning home from work driving separate vehicles. When they turned onto Oak Court some neighbors began yelling obscenities at them. Trimmel got out to open the gate to his property and two men and a woman came up to Taylor’s van throwing punches at him. The woman reportedly had a pry bar and was hitting Taylor with it. Deputies spoke with the neighbors Tonya Robinson, Glen Orr, Joseph Brandon Jr. and his wife, Amy Perdue. The first three said they are tired of Trimmel blaring foul music and driving fast up the road, endangering children. They claimed that day the two men nearly struck someone in the street and then made an obscene gesture. They went over to confront them and claim Taylor got out a box cutting knife, which he was swinging around. Perdue said Orr slapped the knife away and it struck Taylor’s cheek. The matter was sent to the prosecutor’s office for review.

GOSHEN FROM 1A

to Chief Steve McDaniel.

Also at the meeting Damascus Fire Chief Derek Day requested and received approval to have the road department assist in digging several dry hydrants across the township in an attempt to improve the fire department’s ISO rating, which helps determine residential and commercial fire insurance premiums.

Day also noted that a lot of trash has been left at the recycling bins at the main fire station on state Route 534 the past few months and asked that the area be controlled more or the bins removed.

Additionally the trustees discussed house numbers being issued out of sequence by the county after former trustee Abe Bricker questioned why the trustees were not handling the task.

Beeson told Bricker that the numbers are being issued through the 911 system at the time building permits are being issued, and thus the trustees are not aware of it until it is already done. Trustee Chair Bob McCracken said that he is waiting to hear back from the county official handling the issue while Day offered to seek assistance from the Ohio Fire Chiefs Association since the issue could pose a problem for the department finding homes during emergencies.

Recycling appreciation: The Recycling Department will host its annual Customer Appreciation Day from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 13 at the Seacrist Road location, including a scrap tire drive from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and electronics drive from 9 a.m. to noon. Refreshments will be available.

Cost to recycle car or LT tires will be $1 each up to 10 and $1.50 for each additional ($3 for those on rims); truck or skid loader $8 each ($9 on the rim); and tractor $17 each ($20 on rim). CRT monitors and televisions will cost $1 per inch diagonally. Flat screen TVs and monitors, as well as most other electronics will be free.

The trustees will meet in special session with the Green Township trustees at 7 p.m. tonight at the Green Township Community Building to discuss a proposed contract for police protection.

The next regular trustees meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 13 at the administration building. khowell@salemnews.net

WALL FROM 1A

While the Vietnam Veterans Memorial is the most visited memorial in the nation’s capital, many have not seen it. The Moving Wall, also called the “Half-Scale Replica Wall” and “The Traveling Wall,” brings it home.

The Wall’s travel through the county will begin at 8:15 a.m. Thursday with a motorcycle escort from the Dutch Village Inn in Columbiana to state Route 344 into Leetonia. Once in Leetonia, the convoy will travel past the library and village schools before turning onto state Route 14 in Washingtonville. The convoy will drive into Salem, turning onto state Route 45 to head to Lisbon.

Along with the motorcycle escort, the Wall will weave its way through Lisbon, traveling down Beaver Street to Lincoln Way before turning onto Market Street toward the fairgrounds main entrance.

Once assembled, the Wall will be available for viewing 24 hours a day.

Opening ceremonies will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday and will include a rose-laying ceremony to honor the fallen soldiers from Columbiana and Mahoning counties. Any family member or friend wishing to take part in the rose-laying ceremony should contact Sharen Cope at 330-222-1914.

A POW/MIA Recognition Ceremony is scheduled for 5 p.m. Saturday and on Sunday, members of the Columbiana County Fair Board, Salem VFW and Salem Amvets will host a recognition ceremony for all county veterans beginning at 1 p.m.

During Sunday’s ceremony a select number of Vietnam veterans will receive quilts from the 2014 “Vietnam Veterans: You Are Not Forgotten” special category at the county fair. Closing ceremonies by John Brown III, Amvets past national commander, will take place at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Throughout the weekend members of The Marlboro Volunteers will also have a historical display of military vehicles as well as other military memorabilia.

Troopers reverse on governor’s race

COLUMBUS (AP) — An Ohio state troopers organization has withdrawn its endorsement of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ed FitzGerald while declining to back Republican Gov. John Kasich. The decision by Troopers for a Safer Ohio was announced Monday. It comes amid revelations FitzGerald, the Cuyahoga County executive, lacked a permanent driver’s license for a decade. Campaign spokeswoman Lauren Hitt says what prompted the reversal is unclear. She says the driver’s license issue was fully vetted during FitzGerald’s endorsement interview. Monday’s bulletin cited FitzGerald’s missing license as a reason some members of the Ohio Highway Troopers Association union wanted to revisit the endorsement. Hitt says she expects unionized police and firefighters who’ve endorsed FitzGerald still to support him, after Kasich supported limits on public employee unions.

Full Moon After-Party

Yesterday's Pisces full moon was artistically enlightening, spiritually opening and, for some, emotionally messy. Today we assimilate and organize these intangibles. Organizing invisible things isn't easy work. At least Venus and Neptune are planning to assist in such a way as to help us believe firmly in what we see with our mind's eye.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Communication will get tricky, but with some sidestepping, you should be able to come out of it with truly useful information. Keep it brief and stay focused on the other person.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Tune up your internal guidance system because success will depend on clearly differentiating what feels good and right from what doesn't. This has nothing to do with the opinions of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your ideas will tend toward a grand scale, and the execution will be time consuming. Luckily you'll attract helpers. Tonight's events will pique your interest in the strange and supernatural.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Experience only teaches those willing to pay attention and apply the lessons. That's why you'll spend most of the day quietly observing, trying to take it all in so you can later devise a strategy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Why do people keep telling you who you are or? Don't let them do that. This is a good day to soundly reject any identifiers you didn't come up with yourself. Declare yourself anew.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The Zen master suggests that nothing exists without the seed of its opposite inside of it. Go carefully and gently, because whatever behavior you're raging against you're also doing in some way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It's not your fault that you crave instant gratification, but it is your challenge. Making healthy choices will depend on first making a plan – something simple and doable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It may just be dawning on you, the thing you missed out on so long ago. You didn't even know you needed it. Now you see the void. Noticing is the first step to filling it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You haven't met your new friend yet, the one who is going to help you change your game. Get out and shake some hands. The magic begins with a casual greeting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Projects get complicated, causing you to reassess your level of commitment. Nothing gets done if you're half-in or half-out. Your luck, especially your financial luck, will improve when you decide one way or another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Aim your competitive instincts at dead people. Whether you're trying to be a better athlete, artist or overall person, the greatness throughout history will inspire you to outdo your previous best score.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Going into autopilot mode will help you conserve energy. Unfortunately, you can only turn on this part of your guidance system to get to destinations you've already visited.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 9). You'll shine who you are on the inside outward, and it will feel fantastic to have that congruence. Success isn't an overnight thing, but it is a night-after-night thing, and by November you'll take home a big prize. Fun relationships blossom in the new year, and you will take two memorable vacations with friends. Leo and Libra people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 25, 48, 25 and 1.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I was trying to learn more about this Scorpio I'm dating, and so I asked him some questions that I found on a website about things to ask before marriage. Not that I want to marry him, but I just don't know much about him. Also, sometimes the conversation goes dead on the date, and I'm trying to pick it back up with a good question. Anyway, he won't answer some of the questions, and I'm wondering whether that's a bad sign. What do you think?"

The whole energy of this feels forced. You may be scaring the conversation right out of him. Scorpions are naturally guarded anyway. They cherish their privacy and enjoy taking cover in a fog of mystery. He will open up when he's good and ready, and only on the topics he feels like sharing at the moment. The good news for you is that you will learn much about him by being present with him in that moment and remaining playful, light and relaxed.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Virgo Michelle Williams fits completely comfortably into iconic roles like Marilyn Monroe and Glinda the Good Witch. Born when the sun, the moon, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn were all in Virgo, the sign of health, nurturing and self-discipline, her natal chart has longevity written all over it. This is an astrological chart that suggests an evergreen quality to image, career and life.

Will sheets blow up?

Heloise

Dear Heloise: Please run an article about BEDSHEETS. I am told that most have formaldehyde in the fabric -- except organic sheets. And wrinkle-free have the highest percentage of formaldehyde. Any hints? -- A Reader, via email

Yes, I have hints! Don't fret too much. You are not sleeping on a time bomb of formaldehyde! The component that helps keep fabrics wrinkle-free may contain a small amount of formaldehyde. But unless you are highly sensitive or sleep with your nose buried in the sheet the whole night, there should not be a problem.

Formaldehyde is found in many, many items in and around your home. The levels are below anything considered dangerous.

If you are concerned, follow these hints to a healthy sleep, and feel comfortable wearing new clothes. First, wash all new clothing and bedsheets a time or two before wearing or using. This also helps remove some of the "sizing" and will make most sheets feel softer.

When shopping for new clothing or sheets, look for labels that state "chemical-free" or "formaldehyde-free." The word "organic" just means that no pesticides or chemicals were used during the growing of cotton. Formaldehyde or other chemicals may be used during manufacturing. -- Heloise

FLEX FUEL

Dear Heloise: I see cars with an emblem on the back saying "flex fuel." What is that? -- Dina W. in Kansas

The emblem means that the car can run on a mixture of fuels. The most common E85 fuel is 51 percent-83 percent ethanol gas mixed with regular gas. Your car must be designated as a flexible-fuel vehicle (FFV) to use the E85 fuel. -- Heloise

MOCHA COFFEE

Dear Heloise: I love your column in the Palm Beach (Fla.) Post. I have misplaced your delicious recipe for Heloise Mocha Coffee. All I remember is that an ingredient is dry milk. -- Sally D. in Florida

You are on the right track for this yummy and easy-to-make drink! Gather together the following ingredients:

- 1/2 cup instant-coffee granules (regular or decaf)
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar (or equivalent measure of artificial sweetener)
- 1 cup powdered milk or powdered creamer (I use nonfat creamer)
- 2 tablespoons cocoa powder

Mix all ingredients together and put the heavenly blend into a sealed container for storage. For one cup, place 2 rounded teaspoons (less if you used sweetener) into a 6- to 8-ounce cup. Add boiling water and stir. For more tasty coffee recipes, send for Heloise's Flavored Coffees and Teas pamphlet by enclosing $3 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (70 cents) envelope and sending to: Heloise/Coffee, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Some nonfat creamers have sugar, so check and adjust the amount of sweetener accordingly. -- Heloise

Men who date online offer tips for women

DEAR ABBY: "Surfing in Petersburg, Ill." (June 17) raised good points about men who use online dating services. However, many of the things she pointed out could also be said of women who put their ads on the sites. The pickings are just as slim on our side of the fence. My hints to the "fairer sex":

- (1) Don't overdo your makeup and hair in your photos. While some makeup can enhance a lady's look, we aren't seeking someone who looks ready to go trick-or-treating or perform as a clown in the circus.
- (2) Decent men don't want to see ALL of your physical attributes on these sites. Dress appropriately for your age and don't allow the "girls" to burst out of your low neckline.
- (3) Don't start your first conversation with, "What do you do and how much money do you make?" Intelligent men will realize that you are not as concerned with finding a quality guy as you are with looking for a fat wallet.
- (4) You don't have to speak perfectly, but the teen lingo and texting abbreviations are a real turn-off.
- (5) Don't constantly complain about your ex. It provides insight as to why he opted to break off your relationship or file for divorce. -- DAN IN OHIO

DEAR DAN: Thanks for the input. I had a hunch my male readers would react to "Surfing's" observations. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: To the ladies, I advise: Don't post a 10-year-old photo as being the way you currently look. And don't lie about your marital status or the number of times you've been married. These will come back to haunt you.

"A few extra pounds" does not mean 100 pounds overweight. If you are obese, admit it and say you are working on getting the weight off -- and make sure you are. -- EARLE IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: For women who post photos of their pets, it's great that you love them, but I'm only looking to date their OWNER. Same thing for travelogue photos with no one in them -- what's the point? And if you say you are active with an athletic body, I'd like to see it. Descriptions can be subjective, and your perception might be different from mine. -- DONE MY TIME ONLINE

DEAR ABBY: Selfies in the bathroom mirror are tacky. Have a friend take a picture of you. Avoid taking photos of specific body parts (lips, feet, etc.). It's low-class.

Describe yourself in detailed terms. Every woman says she's down-to-earth, decent-looking, caring and smart. A little originality goes a long way! -- LOOKING IN LANSING, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: A woman should never post her previous wedding picture when looking for a new life partner. Photos with the ex that you've ripped down the middle or cropped don't work any better. We can still see his arm around you holding the 40-ounce beer, and it's not a good image for us.

And ladies, if you're looking for someone to sweep you out of that crappy life you're in, forget it. Fix your life first to the point where you can enjoy it by yourself, and then look for someone to share it with. We guys like our fixer-uppers to be houses or cars, not our women. -- FOUND MY QUEEN ON A SITE

DEAR ABBY: I was taken aback by "Surfing's" advice against facial hair. My beard is part of who I am. Assuming it is "hiding something" signals you may have trust issues with men. If you don't like what you see, move on! -- HAPPILY HIRSUTE IN MISSISSIPPI

Artery blockage reason to quit smoking

Dr. Keith Roach

DEAR DR.

ROACH: I would like to comment on your column regarding blood-pressure differences between the arms.

A difference of greater than 10 mmHg between the two arms in systolic pressure is considered abnormal. We see patients not uncommonly in consultation for this reason alone, perhaps as many as one a month. Almost always, the reason for the difference is blockage of the subclavian artery. The wrist pulse on the side with lower blood pressure may be normal, diminished or absent in those patients. From 30 years of observation, I have noticed that patients with BP differences between the arms are nearly always female smokers (or former smokers), and the left subclavian is much more likely to be affected (have a lower blood pressure) than the right. Why this sex difference should be and why the left side should predominate is not understood and, to my knowledge, has not been described in print. Additionally, the presentation is usually in a non-obese woman in her 40s or 50s who is still smoking.

The significance of the finding is that it is a red flag waving for tobacco cessation and is a marker that that person's arteries have already been significantly altered by the habit. Fortunately, the incidence of arm symptoms associated with the lower BP on that side is quite low -- perhaps 1 in 10 have any symptoms. It is important, of course, for such patients to be aware of the difference between the arms only to remember which arm (the higher arm systolic number) has the correct measurement (most often, but not always, the right). -- Jerry Svoboda, MD, FACS

ANSWER: I thank Dr. Svoboda for his expertise and will add difference in arm blood pressures to my (already very long list) of reasons to quit smoking immediately.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 78-year-old female who has had three orthopedic surgeries (hip repair, hip replacement and knee replacement) with spinal anesthesia in two years. Each time, the anesthesia has left me with severe orthostatic hypotension requiring medication for months. If I should ever need surgery again, is there any other anesthetic that would be just as effective and not make me ill? -- A.P.

ANSWER: This actually is a very common problem, with at least half of people undergoing orthopedic surgery having some orthostatic hypotension (a lowering of blood pressure upon sitting or standing) immediately after surgery. You have had a very prolonged reaction. I spoke with an anesthesiologist at the Cleveland Clinic, who told me that the issue could have been any of the anesthetic and adjuvant agents that were used. He recommended more salt and water before any operation and longer time in progressively upright positions before trying to get up post-operatively.

Finally, your next anesthesiologist could look at your preoperative and anesthesia records and try to figure out what agent you had that was most likely to have been causing this, so to avoid its use next time.

I sincerely hope you don't have another recurrence.

Can't stand to be around his MIL

Dear Annie: I cannot stand to be around my mother-in-law. Since the day I married, "MIL" has been telling my wife and me how to live our lives. She issues opinions on everything from how to raise our dog and decorate our house to how to parent our baby. We can't go one visit without her making numerous suggestions.

I have discussed this with my wife many times to no avail. I don't feel it is my place to set her mother straight. I've told my wife that unless she speaks to her mom about her need to run our lives, nothing will ever change. How do I get my wife to understand that I don't want to deal with? It stresses me out so much that I'm almost willing to end our marriage in order to get away from my mother-in-law. -- Frustrated in North Carolina

Dear North Carolina: Mom needs better boundaries, but unless your wife agrees, you aren't going to get anywhere. Please don't grant your mother-in-law so much importance. She has opinions. You don't have to take them seriously. Practice nodding and ignoring her. When she comes over, welcome her warmly and then leave the room. It's the type of diplomacy that married couples have practiced for centuries. Your wife will appreciate your graciousness.

Dear Annie: I have a friend -- well, now she's an ex-friend -- who would go to a restaurant and, no matter what she ordered, ask for extra this, extra that. If they provided rolls, she would eat one and ask for more. She would ask

Glum Buckeyes aim to rebound

By RUSTY MILLER
Associated Press

COLUMBUS — Every Sunday night after a win, Ohio State’s players and coaches get to enjoy a sumptuous buffet of steak, lobster or shrimp. After a 35-21 loss at home to Virginia Tech, the menu was downgraded. “We still ate dinner. It just wasn’t the same quality of food,” running backs coach Stan Drayton said, grimacing. “I don’t remember (what it was). I just remember swallowing something.” For the record, the Buckeyes were fed spaghetti and mashed potatoes. A lot has changed for the Buckeyes — beyond the cuisine — since suffering their first defeat in a home opener in 36 years and having a 25-game regular-season winning streak ended by the Hokies. It all played out before an Ohio Stadium-record 107,517 fans. The switch in the menu was meant to send a message. “That’s something that I don’t really enjoy and something I cannot get used to,” safety Tyvis Powell said of the meal. A lot of things around the Ohio State team were hard to swallow this weekend. The Buckeyes plummeted 14 spots to No. 22 in the latest AP Top 25 and head into a home game on Saturday with Kent State hoping to regain a degree of equilibrium since being thoroughly outplayed on both sides of the ball and on special teams. “We’ve just got to move forward,” third-year head coach Urban Meyer said. “That was the first (loss) we’ve had during the regular season, so there is no victory meal for our players. I can tell they’re hurting. So we get to hurt the rest of the day (Monday).” Meyer, his assistants and players all said the mistakes were minor, fixable errors. Yet there were glaring problems on the offensive line, at receiver and on defense. The young Buckeyes also missed two field goals, kicked off out of bounds and surrendered a long return. Virginia Tech (2-0) had built a 21-7 halftime lead before a raucous, partisan Ohio State crowd. Then the Buckeyes came back, their defense forcing a couple of turnovers, to pull even at 21 early in the fourth quarter. That tie lasted just seven plays. The Hokies took over at

Browns’ Pettine not happy with ‘almost winning’

By TOM WITHERS
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — In case the Browns missed his message Sunday, first-year coach Mike Pettine reminded them that their comeback at Pittsburgh wasn’t enough. As he reviewed the 30-27 loss to the Steelers, Pettine told his players they need to do more. “There’s a phrase for almost winning,” Pettine said. “It’s called ‘losing.’” This guy isn’t nicknamed “Blunt Force Trauma” for nothing. Pettine did find some positives in Cleveland’s last-second loss, but would have preferred to extract negatives from a win. The Browns showed some fight in rallying from a 27-3 halftime deficit, but they dug themselves too deep and dropped their 10th straight season opener. Pettine didn’t sugarcoat things when he addressed his team for the first time following a game. “I talked about no moral victories and when you guys (media) publish the standings it’s wins and losses,” he said. “There’s no third column for moral victories. It’s something that we take some lessons from, some hard ones.” A major issue during the first half, which Pettine described as “a comedy of errors,” was that the Browns didn’t tackle well. Pittsburgh’s running backs darted around or through Cleveland’s defenders. Pettine said the coaching staff should take some of the blame and his assistants need to do more in practice to work on tackling. “It is one of the most difficult things to be able to work on because just for obvious reasons you’re not going to tackle live to the ground in practice,” he said. “But it seems when our guys are into it and focus we tackle better. We’ve got to make sure our minds are right.” One of the positives to come out of the loss was starting quarterback Brian Hoyer, who brought the

Browns back after halftime. With speculation rampant that Pettine would turn to rookie quarterback Johnny Manziel at the first sign of trouble, Hoyer displayed some of the qualities he showed last year while going 3-0 before suffering a season-ending injury. Pettine praised some of Hoyer’s passes, including a touchdown to speedy wide-out Travis Benjamin, but said the QB also missed some potentially positive plays. “There were some throws that, he’d be the first one to tell you, he would want to have over again — a couple he threw low,” Pettine said. Perhaps Hoyer’s best connection came at halftime, when he and a few other veterans challenged their teammates to keep fighting. “I just said, ‘Look, guys, are we just going to lay down or are we going to go out and see what we’re made of and go and take it one play at a time?’” Hoyer said. “For us, it was just about the resolve to go back out there and figure out our identity.” The Browns did just that in the second half with a solid running game, led by rookie backs Terrence West and Isaiah Crowell after starter Ben Tate went down with a knee injury. West, a third-round pick from Towson, rushed 16 times for 100 yards. Crowell, an undrafted free agent, had 41 yards and scored twice. “West has come a long way in this system, and I think Crowell is built for it,” Pettine said. “You could see when their defense got tired, both of those guys were just what the doctor ordered.” The Browns still came up short, but Pettine said the strong second-half should help the Browns this week against New Orleans. “It gives us some momentum,” he said. “We know we’re 0-1, it could be a different had the second

Foster breaks losing mentality, continues to strengthen team

By CHRIS RAMBO
Staff Writer

EAST PALESTINE—After Tony Foster was hired as the head football coach at East Palestine in February of 2013, he brought each player into his office for an interview.

“I asked each guy what they would be willing to contribute to the program,” Foster said. “Several of them said they would keep giving me 100 percent even if we were down by 30 in the second half.”

The second part of those answers troubled Foster, who was coming from a South Range program where success was always expected.

“Guys were answering like they were taking for granted that we would always be down 30 in the second half,” Foster said. “I told them they have to get rid of that mindset. Growing up, a lot of them witnessed a program that wasn’t in good shape. Breaking that losing mentality has been a big focus for us.”

Foster hopes that process was accelerated Friday night, when the Bulldogs walloped Mathews, 59-20, for the program’s first win since Oct. 26, 2012, when East Palestine beat Lisbon.

It was Foster’s first career win as a head coach after going 0-10 last season.

“This win means a lot to the team,” senior quarterback Luke Cope said. “Especially after not winning a game last year. We were a team that was very beatable and I think we proved to ourselves and to everybody else that we have what it takes to win games and make a little noise.”

“It hurts going through a season without winning a game,” junior wide receiver Josh Pickett. “It feels a lot better to already have a win under our belt after two weeks.”

For Foster—a 1994 graduate of East Palestine High School — having his first career win come at his alma mater was especially sweet.

“It’s great to be in the process of building something here at East Palestine,” Foster said. “I felt such a big relief for the kids. I knew they had it in them.”

Foster came to East Palestine after three years as a varsity assistant at South Range under Dan Yeagley. He still teaches social studies at South Range High School and was greeted by a flood of compliments when he showed up for work Monday.

“First thing in the morning, coach Yeagley popped through the door and said congratulations,” Foster said. “I have some former players in class and they all congratulated me and said it was a nice win.”

Foster came over to East Palestine hoping to build something similar to what he left at South Range, but inherited a program two that experienced just two winning seasons since 2002 and fielded just 26 varsity players in 2012. A speedy backfield has aided the Bulldogs rebuilding effort.

Senior running back Nick Monteleone and Pickett are both members of the Bulldogs’ 400-meter relay team that took first place at the Salem Division II district track meet in May. Pickett burned the Mustangs for 168 combined rushing and receiving yards Friday, while Monteleone chipped in 107 yards of total offense.

“We’ve taken a lot of the same training exercises we use to build speed for track and done them for football,” Monteleone said. “Our speed allows us to put a scare into a lot of teams.”

Pickett and Monteleone have been rejoined on the football field this year by Cope, who missed almost all of last season with mononucleosis. Cope—who passed for more than 1,100 yards in each of his first two seasons—has slid right into his familiar role at quarterback, rushing for 188 yards and four touchdowns against Mathews.

“They (Mathews) had a lot of problems containing our speed option,” Cope said. “It’s a lot of fun to have a triple-threat backfield.”

Speed is nice, but to eventually bring the Bulldogs to a winning level, Foster knew he also needed to overhaul both the team’s physical and mental approach.

“We didn’t have much of a weight program before coach Foster got here,” Monteleone said. “We’ve had a couple of really hard summers since he’s gotten here. We’ve put a lot of work in to get stronger.”

“When I first got here we probably only had three kids that could squat over 400 pounds,” Foster said. “Now we probably have close to 10. We aren’t yet where we want to be, but we’re making progress.”

Despite advances in the weight room, Foster said it took some time for the Bulldogs to learn how to win.

“I feel like we should have gotten a few wins before this one,” Foster said. “But the kids had a mental hurdle that they had to clear. They had to learn to believe in themselves. We’ve kept trying to reinforce a positive mindset.”

Now that they have gotten their breakthrough first win under Foster, the Bulldogs aren’t looking to stop there. Foster believes they have the tools necessary to take things to the next level in coming seasons.

“I went through an 0-10 season when I coached at Hillard Darby and it was the most miserable experience I’ve ever had,” Foster said. “It wasn’t like that here when we went winless last year. Despite all the losing, the kids were still buying in, they were still giving effort. It was a huge step getting a win this year, now we have to keep building on that.”

The Bulldogs get their next shot when they travel to Beaver Local on Friday.

Locke keeps Pirates in wild-card hunt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Starling Marte hit a two-run homer and fell a triple short of the cycle to help the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6-4 on Monday night.

Jeff Locke (7-4) struck out nine over seven strong innings to help the Pirates keep their grip on the second NL wild card. They entered with a half-game lead ahead of Milwaukee and Atlanta.

Locke and Kyle Kendrick (8-12) were in pitcher’s duel until Pittsburgh bust open a one-run lead with four runs in the eighth. The Pirates won their fourth straight and are 65-50 since May 2.

Marte has been a big reason for the hot streak. He singled, doubled and homered in his first three plate appearances and extended his hitting streak to eight games.

Mark Melancon tossed a scoreless ninth for his 27th save.

Locke, who improved to 4-0 lifetime against the Phillies, retired the first 10 batters until Jimmy Rollins hit a one-out triple in the fourth. He scored on Ryan Howard’s single and 92nd RBI of the season.

Locke, though, fanned Howard twice and struck out at least one batter in every inning. His nine Ks were a season high and three more than he had combined in his last three starts (6). Locke rebounded nicely after lasting only 3-plus innings in a loss to St. Louis in his last start.

He gave up just one run and kept the Pirates in contention for their second straight playoff appearance.

The Pirates gave reason for their fans to cheer — and plenty did, with “Let’s Go Pirates!” echoing through a mostly barren Citizens Bank Park with every rally.

their 35 after walk-on kicker Kyle Clinton’s kick-off went out of bounds. A pass interference call, a run for 24 yards and a reverse for 17 more set up Michael Brewer’s 10-yard touchdown pass to Bucky Hodges with 8:44 left.

“When you talk about momentum changes, it’s absolutely a turning point,” Ohio State co-defensive coordinator Chris Ash said of Tech’s answering drive. “It’s a big part of the game.

The stadium was alive, the team was juiced up on the sideline. We needed a stop to get the offense the ball back again. We had a couple of mistakes. That’s what it came down to. It had nothing to do with effort or calls that were made.”

The offense certainly did not respond, either.

Over its next 14 plays, freshman quarterback J.T. Barrett was sacked six times for 47 yards in losses, ran twice for 25 yards, threw two incompletions and was intercepted twice. Virginia Tech put the game away on Donovan Riley’s 63-yard interception return in the final minute.

Now a team that a week ago was considered a strong contender to make the first College Football Playoffs field is trying to pick up the pieces.

“We’re still in that hurting mode,” Meyer said. “Just the pain and regret is phenomenal, and there is so much regret about things we could have done better to win that game.”

“We have to rebound,” he said.

INDIANS DREAM AGAINST WEAVER
CLEVELAND (AP) — If the Angels had to be diverted anywhere during their trip, Progressive Field was the perfect place.
For Jered Weaver, it's as comfortable as home.
Weaver became the AL's first 16-game winner, and the Los Angeles Angels did all their damage against Cleveland's Danny Salazar in one inning for their fifth straight win, 12-3 over the Cleveland Indians on Monday in a makeup game.
Albert Pujols had a three-run homer in the ninth for the Angels, who hit four homers and are a major league-best 88-55.
Weaver (16-8) improved to 7-1 in 11 starts at Cleveland, where he was unbeaten from 2008 until losing earlier this year.

Home Depot confirms data breach in US, Canada stores

NEW YORK (AP) — Home Depot confirmed on Monday that its payment systems have been hacked in a data breach that could affect shoppers who used credit and debit cards at its more than 2,000 U.S. and Canadian stores.

The largest U.S. home improvement chain com-pany did not say how many cards might be af-fected, but that its investigation into the breach goes as far back as April. The news comes nearly a week after Home Depot said that it was investigat-ing a potential breach on Tuesday when a website that focuses on cybersecurity reported on a possi-ble hack.

“We apologize for the frustration and anxiety this causes our customers, and I want to thank them for their patience and support as we work through this issue,” Chairman and CEO Frank Blake said in a press release.

Home Depot is the latest retailer to have a data breach. Others include Target, luxury retailer Neiman Marcus, grocer Supervalu, restaurant chain P.F. Chang’s and the thrift store operations of Goodwill.

In December, Target Corp. disclosed a massive data breach that was the second largest in history, resulting in the theft of 40 million debit and credit card numbers and the potential exposure of per-sonal information of up to 70 million shoppers.

Forrester Research analyst John Kindervag said the Home Depot breach could affect similar num-bers of shoppers or cards, noting that months’ worth of data may have been compromised.

“From what I’m hearing, people think this will be as big as Target or bigger,” he said in a tele- phone interview with The Associated Press.

Ukraine’s president appeals for unity as shaky cease-fire holds

MARIUPOL, Ukraine (AP) — Seeking to rally national unity, President Petro Poroshenko visited a southeastern port Monday that has been as- sailed for days by Russian-backed separatists and declared the city would remain a part of Ukraine.

After a series of military defeats to increasingly confident rebel forces in the country’s eastern re- gions, Ukraine signed a cease-fire deal Friday that has been widely viewed at home as an act of capit- ulation. Much of the region has remained calm as the truce appeared to be holding, although spor- adic unrest was reported.

“We will do everything to ensure there is peace, but we will also brace ourselves for the defense our country,” Poroshenko told metal workers at a plant that was within the range of the rebels’ rock- ets.

Also Monday, the Kremlin said Poroshenko and Russian President Vladimir Putin spoke by tele- phone and “continued to discuss steps helping peaceful settlement in southeastern Ukraine.”

The two leaders had also talked Saturday about implementing the cease-fire plan in the conflict that has lasted nearly five months and killed at least 3,000, according to a U.N. estimate. The fighting has also forced hundreds of thousands to flee their homes.

EU adopts new sanctions against Russia, but delays implementation

BRUSSELS (AP) — The European Union on Monday shied away from slapping new economic sanctions on Russia right away over its actions in eastern Ukraine. Instead, the 28-nation bloc said the punitive measures will come into force “in the next few days” depending on how well the cease- fire agreement in eastern Ukraine will be upheld.

European Council President Herman Van Rompuy said in a statement delaying the sanctions would leave time for “an assessment of the imple- mentation of the cease-fire agreement and the peace plan.”

“Depending on the situation on the ground, the EU stands ready to review the agreed sanctions in whole or in part,” Van Rompuy said.

Ukraine, Russia and the Kremlin-backed sepa- ratists agreed Friday to an immediate cease-fire and an exchange of prisoners. While the truce ap- peared to hold on Monday, the agreement seemed fragile over the weekend when occasional fighting occurred.

The EU sanctions are expected to be coordi- nated with a new round of U.S. sanctions, a West- ern diplomat said. The U.S. sanctions are ready for release, the diplomat said, but the Obama admin- istration wants to wait to act in concert with Eu- rope in order to maximize the impact of the sanctions and present a united front against Rus- sia.

Obama to undertake broader counterterrorism mission to combat Islamic State militants

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama will go on the offensive against the Islamic State group with a broader counterterror mission than he previously has been willing to embrace, U.S. officials said Monday. The new plan, however, still won’t commit U.S. troops to a ground war against the brutal insurgency and will rely heavily for now on allies to pitch in for what could be an extended campaign.

Obama’s more aggressive posture — which offi- cials say will target Islamic State militants compre- hensively and not just to protect U.S. interests or help resolve humanitarian disasters — reflects a new direction for a president who campaigned to end the war in Iraq and has generally been deeply reluctant to use U.S. military might since he took office in 2009.

“Almost every single county on Earth has a role to play in eliminating the ISIL threat and the evil that it represents,” Secretary of State John Kerry told reporters Monday night, using an acronym for the Islamic State. He said nations around the world are seeking to defeat the militancy with a coalition “built to endure for the months, and per- haps years, to come.”

The U.S. has already launched more than 100 airstrikes against militant targets in Iraq, includ- ing a new series that the military said killed an un- usually large number of Islamic State fighters. A Central Command statement Monday said the strikes hit targets near the Haditha Dam, and a spokesman, Maj. Curtis Kellogg, said 50 to 70 fighters were targeted and most were believed to have been killed.

Now, after the beheadings of two American free- lance journalists, Obama is considering expanding the airstrikes campaign into Syria, where the Is- lamic State has a safe haven. Obama has long avoided taking military action in Syria, concerned about indirectly assisting President Bashar Assad and his government in Damascus. But White House spokesman Josh Earnest suggested Mon- day that the U.S. could be moving in that direc- tion, saying Obama was willing “to go wherever is necessary to strike those who are threatening Americans.”

Iraqi parliament votes in new Cabinet as Arab League calls for united effort against militants

BAGHDAD (AP) — Iraq’s parliament officially named Haider al-Abadi the country’s new prime minister late Monday and approved most of his proposed Cabinet amid calls by the Arab League for its members to combat the Sunni militant group violently advancing across Iraq and Syria.

Lawmakers approved all of the candidates pro- posed for Iraq’s new government, with the excep- tion of a few posts, namely the defense and interior ministers. Al-Abadi requested an addi- tional week to name them.

Outgoing Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, for- mer Prime Minister Ayad Allawi and former Speaker of Parliament Osama al-Nujeifi were given the largely ceremonial posts of co-vice presi- dent. Kurdish politician and former Foreign Min- ister Hoshyar Zebari was named as one of three deputy prime ministers. Former premier Ibrahim al-Jafaari was named foreign minister.

The U.S. and other countries have been pushing for a more representative government that will ease anger among Sunnis, who felt marginalized by al-Maliki’s administration, helping fuel the dra- matic sweep by the Islamic State extremist group over much of northern and western Iraq since June.

Speaking before parliament, Al-Abadi vowed to “back the military operations in all the areas of confrontation against the armed gangs and the forces of terrorism and ensuring their continua- tion till victory is achieved.”

Afghan candidate Abdullah says does not accept election outcome

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Afghan presiden- tial candidate Abdullah Abdullah said Monday that he will not accept the expected official results of the election, breaking a pledge he made to the U.S. secretary of state and injecting new tension into an already drawn-out political process.

Appearing tired and nervous, Abdullah told a nationally televised news conference that he be- lieves he won both times Afghans voted this year — in April and again in a June runoff. He accused election authorities of violating the desires of vot- ers by ignoring widespread fraud and preparing to declare his opponent, former Finance Minister Ashraf Ghani Ahmadzai, the winner.

“We were the winners of the election,” said Ab- dullah. “We are the winners of the election based on the real vote of the people.”

Abdullah’s announcement effectively pre-empts the country’s election commission, which is ex- pected to announce the second-round results later this week following a weekslong audit process to weed out the many fraudulent ballots cast. The winner would succeed the outgoing president, Hamid Karzai.

Abdullah and Ghani Ahmadzai had both pledged to Secretary of State John Kerry during a July visit to the country to abide by the audit’s re- sults. The two also agreed to plans to form a gov- ernment of national unity with participation of the losing side.

Serious respiratory illness hits hundreds of young children; CDC trying to pin down cause

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of children in more than 10 states have been sickened by a se- vere respiratory illness that public health officials say may be caused by an uncommon virus similar to the germ that causes the common cold.

Nearly 500 children have been treated at one hospital alone — Children’s Mercy in Kansas City, Missouri — and some required intensive care, ac- cording to authorities.

The suspected germ, enterovirus 68, is an un- common strain of a very common family of viruses that typically hit from summertime through au- tumn.

The virus can cause mild coldlike symptoms in- cluding runny noses, coughing and wheezing but Mark Pallansch, director of the viral diseases divi- sion at the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said this summer’s cases are unusually severe and include serious breathing problems.

“It’s not highly unusual but we’re trying to un- derstand what happened this year in terms of these noticeable and much larger clusters of severe respiratory disease,” Pallansch said Monday.
