LISBON — Add the Columbiana County commissioners to the list of those who oppose the proposed constitutional amendment that would legalize marijuana in Ohio and create a commercial monopoly to control its production.

Commissioners voted Wednesday to go on the record officially opposing state Issue 3, saying it will harm many while benefiting only the private investors behind the amendment.

"It is about something green but the green is really money," said Commissioner Mike Halleck. Issue 3, which is to appear before voters in the Nov. 3 election, would amend the Ohio Constitution to allow adults 21 and older to buy, possess and grow a small amount of marijuana for personal use. Commercial marijuana could only be grown at 10 pot farms owned by investors. Issue 3 also creates a structure to regulate and tax marijuana. Issue 3 would allow for the use of medical marijuana, with a doctor's note, but commissioners believe this is a smoke screen argument because it only makes up a very small part of the amendment.

Commissioner Jim Hoppel believes the medical benefits of marijuana are being overstated to pass Issue 3, and he said addiction professionals will tell you it is a gateway drug that can lead users to try and get hooked on more potent illegal drugs

Halleck noted he was at an event earlier in the week attended by local law enforcement officials, and they were unanimous in their opposition to Issue 3. "It's just the wrong road to go down," he said.

Commission Chairman Tim Weigle agreed. "All you have to do is look at Colorado and the all the problems they have had there" since voters legalized marijuana several years ago, he said.

Halleck called Issue 3 an abuse of the constitutional amendment process, with special interest groups now using the amendment process to get issues passed that are best left

Voter report says gerrymandering works in Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP) - The League of Women Voters of Ohio released a report Wednesday showing gerrymandered legislative districts delivered nearly perfect results in 2012 and 2014, sending candidates of the intended political party to the Statehouse in almost 100 percent of cases

The league, a longtime advocate for voting fairness, used its "Predictable Results II" report to urge support for Issue 1, a fall ballot issue overhauling Ohio's system for drawing district maps.

"There has been 100 percent accuracy in the Ohio Senate races we had in 2012 and 2014. No districts, zero, were won by the party not favored by the maps," said Carrie Davis, the league's executive director. "And, once again, you see elec-tions that were won by very large margins, a significant portion of them where candidates were so heavily favored that they were unopposed. The opposing party didn't even field a candidate.

The report found the same pattern, to 97 percent or 98 percent accuracy, in the Ohio House for the two cycles. Ohio's congressional maps - not the subject of this fall's ballot measure but of separate legislation — also delivered 100 percent accuracy to the party favored to win each district.

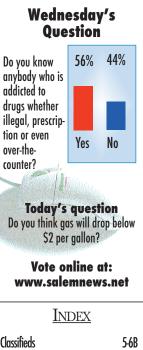

Environmental, farming, faith, progressive policy, voting advocacy and good government groups joined Wednesday's event to also back Issue 1. Most said a fairer, more transparent system will make Ohioans' votes more significant and SALEM- The Parks Commission Wednesday requested park officials to explore possibly installing sensor faucets in Centennial Park restrooms.

The commission asked if the upgraded faucets can be used in the restrooms after member Lucille Karnofel noted finding two faucets running in the facility recently. She suggested the sensor faucets could be better than the manual since they shut themselves off when hands are removed from under the spigot.

Parks Director Steve Faber told the commission that the current state of the facility would require battery operated systems, which do not run well in colder weather seen in late fall and early spring. He said park officials noticed the problem with automatic flushers.

Electricity could be wired to the sinks, but the conduit would be exposed to vandals, he explained.

FRANKLIN SQUARE - Trustees said a ditching project on Sheely Road and culvert work on Gromley and Butcher roads was moving forward during Wednesday's Salem Township meeting.

Trustee Chairman John Wilms was particularly happy with the Sheely Road work where there is a water runoff problem that resident Tim Carroll brought up at the July 29 meeting. Carroll said the runoff was the result of the township ditch work.

Wilms agreed that the township said it would fix it and trustees told Carroll it would be fixed by the end of August.

Carroll explained the water came down his drive and washed out the end of it.

"It comes across the road into the field,"

At the July meeting, Wilms said the weather is why they hadn't gotten to fixing it and Road Supervisor Jason Entrikin pointed out that the road crew hadn't "even had a round of mowing yet" because of the weather.

Trustees Ray Heddleson and Bill Heston each said it will get taken care of and Carroll repeatedly insisted on a precise date to fix it that trustees could not give him.

Entrikin said, "You'll get a ditch before the end of August." Wilms said, "It will get done" and Heston said, "Within the next month."

Wilms said during Wednesday's meeting, "We're taking care of that ... moving along.

TownCenter foundation goes in

The cement block foundation has been laid on Building 100, the first of three buildings in the TownCenter portion of the development by Firestone Homestead developer Tom Mackall in Columbiana. Ground is still being moved behind Building 100 where Building 300 is slated to be built. Building 200 is larger and will be built to the east of Building 100 as it becomes occupied by offices, restaurants and retail establishments. An amphitheatre is planned for Building 300 that will face the fountain and court-yard. Both the TownCenter and Marketplace at Firestone will have a 1930s look in tribute to Harvey S. Firestone and that era. (Salem News photo by Patti Schaeffer)

Fired reporter kills former co-workers on live broadcast

MONETA, Va. (AP) — He planned it all so carefully — a choreographed execution of two former colleagues, broadcast live to a horrified television audience. Hours later, he shared his own recording of the killing worldwide on social media.

Vester Lee Flanagan's video shows him approaching WDBJ reporter Alison Parker and cameraman Adam Ward, gun in hand, as they conduct an interview. He points the gun at Parker and then at Ward, but he waits patiently to shoot until he knows that Parker is on camera, so she will be gunned down on air.

TV viewers heard about the first eight of 15 shots. They saw Parker scream and run, and heard her crying "Oh my God!" as she fell. Ward fell, too, and the camera he had been holding on his shoulder captured a fleeting image of the suspect holding a handgun.

That man, authorities said, was Flanagan — a former staffer who used the on-air name of Bryce Williams and was fired by WDBJ, a man who always was looking for reasons to take offense, colleagues recalled. He fled the scene but then posted his own 56-second video of the murders on Twitter and Facebook. He later ran off a highway while being pursued hundreds of miles away and was captured; he died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Wednesday's on-air murders reverberated far from central Virginia because that's just what the killer wanted — not just to avenge perceived wrongs, but to gain maximum, viral exposure. He used his insider's knowledge of TV journalism against his victims - a 24-year-old reporter who was a rising star and a 27-year-old cameraman engaged to a producer who watched the slaughter live from the control room.

Flanagan's planning may have started weeks ago when, ABC News said, a man claiming to be Bryce Williams called

In this framegrab from video posted on Bryce Williams' Twitter account and Facebook page, Williams, whose real name is Vester Lee Flanagan II, aims a gun at television reporter Alison Parker as she conducts a live on-air interview Wednesday in Moneta, Va. Moments later, Flanagan fatally shot Parker and WDBJ-TV cameraman Adam Ward and injured Vicki Gardner, who was being interviewed. The ### World's most famous boss, Trump not answering easily to others as he runs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald Trump is used to controlling his world like the boss that he is. But as president, he'd answer to the American people. And so far in the rollicking 2016 presidential contest, he's showing little willingness to dial down his famous because-I-said-so style.

For Trump, the joy of the insult seems as compelling as art of the deal. Whether his challengers are reporters or other presidential candidates, they are, according to Trump: a bimbo, incompetent, weak, pathetic, disgusting and/or can't satisfy a husband.

"When somebody hurts you, just go after them as viciously and as violently as you can," Trump has written in a chapter on business advice.

When that fails, he fires them.

On Tuesday night, the billionaire developer dismissed a Latino reporter from his press conference for demanding to know how Trump intended to deport all 11 million people in the country illegally. "I have a right to ask a question," said Univision's Jorge Ramos.

American student who helped thwart France terror attack happy to be home

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An American student who helped stop a terror attack on a Paris-bound high-speed train said Wednesday it's been a "crazy few days" and he is happy to be home.

Anthony Sadler spoke briefly during a news conference with Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson, who presented him with a basketball jersey.

"I'd just like to thank everybody for coming out," Sadler said. "After such a crazy few days, it feels good to be back on American soil, but especially in Sacramento. This is my home, and I'm just glad to be back here to see everybody."

It was the first time the 23-year-old Sacramento State University student has spoken publically since he returned to the U.S.

Sadler arrived in Sacramento on Tuesday after first taking a private jet to Portland, Oregon. Columbia Sportswear CEO Timothy Boyle had made the jet available to fly the Amerirepeatedly, saying he wanted to pitch a story and needed fax information. He sent ABC's newsroom a 23-page fax two hours after the 6:45 a.m. shooting that was part-manifesto, part-suicide note — calling himself a gay black man who had been mistreated by people of all races, and saying he bought the gun two days after nine black people were killed in a June 17 shooting at a Charleston church. The fax also included admiration for the gunmen in mass killings at places like Virginia Tech and Columbine High School in Colorado.

He described himself as a "human powder keg," that was "just waiting to go BOOM!!!!"

Parker and Ward were a regular team, providing stories for the station's "Mornin" show on everything from breaking news to feature stories on subjects like child abuse. Their live spot Wednesday was nothing out of the ordinary: They were interviewing a local official at an outdoor shopping mall for a tourism story before the shots rang out.

As Parker screamed and Ward collapsed, Ward's camera kept rolling, capturing the image of the suspect pointing the gun. WDBJ quickly switched to the anchor back at the station, clearly shocked, who told viewers, "OK, not sure what happened there."

Parker and Ward died at the scene. Their interview subject, Vicki Gardner, also was shot, but emerged from surgery station said Flanagan was also an employee at WDBJ and appeared on air as Bryce Williams. (Vester Lee Flanagan II/Twitter via AP) later Wednesday in stable condition.

Flanagan, 41, who was fired from WDBJ in 2013, was described by the station's president and general manager, Jeffrey Marks, as an "an unhappy man" and "difficult to work with," always "looking out for people to say things he could take offense to."

"Eventually after many incidents of his anger coming to the fore, we dismissed him. He did not take that well," Marks said. He recalled that police had to escort Flanagan out of the building because he refused to leave when he was fired.

Tweets posted Wednesday on the gunman's Twitter account — since suspended — described workplace conflicts with both victims. He said he filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission against Parker, and that Ward had reported him to human resources.

Marks said Flanagan alleged that other employees made racially tinged comments to him, but that his EEOC claim was dismissed and none of his allegations could be corroborated.

"We think they were fabricated," the station manager said.

Classified information in Clinton emails is consistent with State Dept. pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The transmission of now-classified information across Hillary Rodham Clinton's private email is consistent with a State Department culture in which diplomats routinely sent secret material on unsecured email during the past two administrations, according to documents reviewed by The Associated Press.

Clinton's use of a home server makes her case unique and has become an issue in her front-running campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. But it's not clear whether the security breach would have been any less had she used department email. The department only systematically checks email for sensitive or classified material in response to a public records request.

In emails about the 2012 attack on a U.S. diplomatic facility in Benghazi, Libya, department officials discuss sensitive matters in real time, including the movement of Libyan militias and the locations of key Americans. The messages were released last year under the Freedom of Information Act and are posted on the State Department's website.

Experts: Trump, Ramos confrontation shouldn't be a surprise

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Trump's onscreen confrontation with Univision's Jorge Ramos on Tuesday over the Republican presidential candidate's immigration plan should only be a surprise to those who don't know Ramos.

The 57-year-old news anchor has a history of sharply questioning politicians and not hiding his opinions. Days before a security guard forced Ramos out of Trump's Iowa news conference on Tuesday — he was later let back in and continued a contentious exchange - he had denounced Trump on CNN. Ramos said the immigration issue "is personal" and when Trump voices his views that include mass deportations and revoking the citizenship of children born in the U.S. to undocumented parents, "he's talking about me' and all the other American Latinos born in another country

On Fox News Wednesday evening, Ramos said: "Clearly Donald Trump didn't like my questions and ... he tried to silence me. And in this country you cannot do that. I'm a U.S. citizen, I'm an immigrant, I'm a reporter and I have a right in this country to ask any question I want."

Ramos is generally considered the most influential television journalist among Latinos living in the United States. He and Maria Elena Salinas co-anchor a weeknight newscast on Univision, the country's most-watched Spanish-language network. A syndicated columnist, he also hosts a Sunday morning political panel for Univision and a weekly newsmagazine on Fusion, an English-language network geared to Latinos.

A Mexican native who came to the United States as a young journalist when the Mexican government censored one of his reports, Ramos said that Trump's immigration plan was full of "empty promises. What he's trying to sell the American public simply doesn't work. It's impossible," he told CNN.

Univision CEO and President Randy Falco issued a statement Wednesday calling Trump's treatment of Ramos "beneath contempt."

"Jorge Ramos is one the most professional, dedicated and respected journalists I have seen or worked with in my 40 years in media," Falco said. "He always asks hard questions of candidates and elected officials, regardless of party or issue. Mr. Trump demonstrated complete disregard for him and for the countless Hispanics whom Jorge seeks to represent."

Univision said Ramos had earlier requested an interview with Trump, which the candidate rejected before distributing Ramos' cell phone number on social media. So the Miami-based Ramos traveled to Iowa for the news conference.

Trump on Wednesday said that Ramos was "totally out of line" in the news conference.

"I would have gotten to him very quickly," Trump said on NBC's "Today" show. "This man gets up and starts ranting and raving and screaming, and honestly being very disrespectful to all the other reporters."

For many Americans schooled in a tradition of objective journalism, the idea of a reporter coming into the situation with such a clear point of view is both unusual and off-putting.

"There's no question that he's important and that he has a lot of influence, but I think that people now have sort of recognized that he's more of an advocate than a journalist," said Sean Spicer, communications director for the Republican National Committee.

Outside of the news conference before he was let back in, Ramos was approached by a man wearing a Trump badge who told him he was "very rude," according to a video clip released by Univision.

"Get out of my country," the man said. "Get out."

Ramos quietly reminded him, "I'm a U.S. citizen, too."

There are different standards regarding journalistic objectivity in countries outside of the United States, particularly in Latin America, said Mark Feldstein, a veteran TV newsman and now a journalism professor at the University of Maryland. While there is more advocacy in American journalism now, too, "it's impossible to imagine any of the American television anchors doing the same thing to Donald Trump or any other serious candidate," he said.

Most Spanish-language journalists understand that Ramos was operating within an advocacy tradition that does not negate his role as a reporter, said Sallie Hughes, a University of Miami journalism professor with the school's Latin American Studies program.

Ramos also takes seriously his role as speaking for American Latinos. During the 2012 campaign, he penned open letters to the Republican and Democratic parties bluntly outlining where they stood with the Latino community. He's had testy exchanges with President Barack Obama, at one point seeming to anger the president by telling him that he's been called the "deporter-in-chief" by some in the Latin community.

What kind of system allows a boy to die?

No one but Brittany Pilkington should be blamed for the murder of her three young sons, Logan County, Ohio, Prosecuting Attorney William Goslee emphasized recently. She and she alone bears the responsibility, he said after charges were filed against Pilkington, 23.

If Pilkington, of Bellefontaine, is guilty, Goslee certainly is right. Allegedly, she suffocated the little boys because she felt their father was paying too much attention to them and not enough to her and her daugh-

But two of the boys were killed months ago. The third, 3 months old, had been taken out of the Pilkington home by the authorities. Clearly, someone feared for his safety.

Last week, however, a judge ordered the baby released from protective custody and returned to his parents. He said there was a lack of evidence the child was in danger.

Days later, he was dead.

Goslee was referring to the law enforcement and children's services systems. Again, he was right to point out no one in them bears responsibility for killing the children.

But that is not the question Ohioans should ask. It is, instead, whether social services or law enforcement, including the courts, could have prevented at least the youngest child's death.

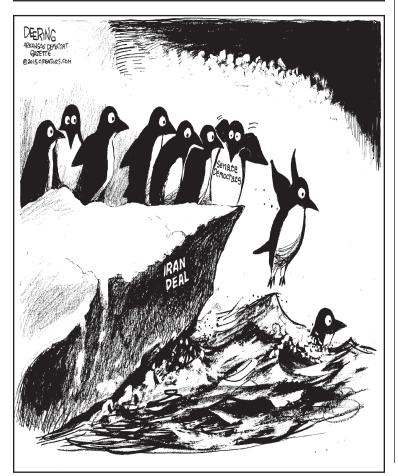

Clearly, child protective services workers tried. They were, in effect, overruled by a judge.

Every aspect of how the case was handled should be examined in an effort to learn whether, indeed, the 3-month-old baby could have been saved had something been done differently. More attention to collecting evidence? Better arguments to the judge? More expeditious investigation of the two siblings' deaths?

Children should not be left to die after it is known they are in danger.

Three pals on a train: Heroism, American style

HARROP

Every country has its he-roes, but something in America's cultural sauce makes for a unique and unusually effective variety. The ingredient would be improvisation – the ability to perform without preparation, using whatever is at hand to complete the task.

As most of the world knows, Spencer Stone, Alek Skarlatos and Anthony Sadler - three pals on a European jaunt - were on a fancy train hurtling toward Paris, when a terrorist bristling with weaponry started attacking passengers.

The Americans were unarmed, but when Skarlatos said "Let's go" to Stone, the off-duty U.S. airman ran down the aisle, grabbed the man by the neck and wouldn't let go, even as the attacker slashed him. Skarlatos grabbed his gun. Sadler and a British passenger, Chris Norman, held down various limbs.

Improvisation requires letting gut instinct take the wheel from overthinking. As Skarlatos, a National Guardsman who spent time in Afghanistan, later told the media, his actions on the train weren't "a conscious decision.'

Jazz, a truly American musical form, is all about improvisation, making it up as you go. "Do not fear mistakes," Miles Davis said. "There are none.'

"Let's go" reminded many of "Let's roll," Todd Beamer's famous words on a doomed airliner hijacked on Sept. 11, 2001. Beamer and other passengers were trying to neutralize the terrorists and regain control of the airliner.

Before the Normandy D-Day invasion, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower instructed his field commanders to make quick decisions on their own rather than wait for instructions from above. They did, and their improvisation saved many American lives on the battlefield.

In 2009, pilot Chesley Sullenberger landed his disabled airliner on the Hudson River without a single loss of life in a classic example of on-the-spot improvising. Air controllers had suggested one of two nearby ened by experience told Sullenberger to take that unconventional - and successful - option.

Perhaps because Stone, Skarlatos and Sadler acted so simply, they did not fully comprehend the complex aftermath of what they had done - including the depth of their heroism.

Exercising calm control, they beat the terrorist unconscious but not to death. Stone attended to another wounded passenger in the car, though he himself was seriously hurt. He is a trained medic. That's what medics do.

Once the assailant was out cold, the Americans, with some help, tied him up like a package and handed him over to the French authorities. In their way of thinking, the drama was over.

"I thought they were going to let us go after questioning," Sadler later told assembled media.

Did they imagine that after saving a trainload of passengers, they'd just move on to their next European adventure, say, waiting in line to see the Le Corbusier exhibit at the Pompidou Center?

There was nothing false about these Americans' modesty. They seemed surprised to find themselves in the ornate Elysees Palace, being handed the Legion of Honor, France's highest award, along with Norman.

But there was French President Francois Hollande, tailored to the millimeter, handing medals to the three Americans, who, though clean and pressed, were suitless and tieless. (At least their shirts had collars.) Norman had packed a suit and tie.

Americans obviously don't have a monopoly on quick and courageous action. Do remember Jasper Schuringa, the Dutch national who may have saved Northwest Flight 253 in 2009. Upon seeing a terrorist trying to set off bombs sewn in his underwear, Schuringa jumped over seats to tackle him and started putting out the fire with his hands.

For the three Americans on the train, improvising saved the day, but because it came so naturally, they didn't see the big deal in it. By now, one hopes, they know otherwise.

America's public housing must be pretty nice. A blistering U.S. inspector general's report found more than 25,000 "over-income" families who once had qualified for public housing, but stayed on even after greatly improving their circumstances.

Astonishingly, they weren't shown the door to make room for 25,000 truly needy families on farlonger waiting lists.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development didn't see the problem until the report was publicized. And even then, it was defensive at first ...

Only a government agency could set up an entitlement program and not establish rules or push for laws to cut off benefits once people no longer qualify. And that's the problem: Income is checked only when a family applies for public housing. So long as they are good tenants, they've been able to stay on ...

Certainly it is possible to craft policies that wouldn't evict a single mother who barely crosses the income threshold or that would let people stay until they are solidly back on their feet, without accommodating tenants who could afford a McMansion.

Even the IG's report said it didn't expect HUD and housing authorities to eliminate all over-income families from public housing. "However," it said, "creating limits to avoid egregious cases seems reasonable.

Sorting through the candidates for the 2016 election

THOMAS SOWELL

Despite a nuclear Iran looming on the horizon, the media seem to be putting most of their attention on two candidates for their respective parties' presidential nominations next year. Moreover, Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump each make their own party nervous.

If next year's election comes down to Clinton versus Trump, a lot of people may simply stay home in disgust.

When we are this far away from the official start of the primary election season, we can usually just say, "It's still early days." Many a front runner this early in the process ended up out of the running by the time the party conventions were held, and totally forgotten by election day.

That is the way it usually is. But that is not likely to be the way it will be this time.

This is Hillary Clinton's last hurrah. It is now or never for her. And the Democrats have nobody comparable as a vote-getter to put in her place.

Even if an investigation finds Mrs. Clinton found guilty of violating the law in the way she handled e-mails when she was Secretary of State, the Obama administration is not likely to prosecute her. And President Obama can always pardon her, so that the next administration cannot prosecute her either. So Hillary doesn't even have to take a plea bargain.

Someone with a sense of shame might well withdraw from the contest for the Democratic Party's nomination, now that public opinion polls show that most people distrust her. But since when have the Clintons ever had a sense of shame?

On the Republican side, former Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich has pointed out that if Donald Trump can continue to get 20 or 25 percent of the Republican voters on his side, he can build up a formidable lead of delegates in winner-take-all primaries.

It will not matter if 60 percent of the Republican voters turn against him, if that 60 percent is split up among all the other Republican candidates, with none of those candidates getting more votes than Trump.

Sometimes financial backers can withdraw their support and force a stubborn candidate to drop out of the race. But Trump has enough money of his own to stay in the race as long as he wants to, even if that ruins the Republicans' chances of winning the 2016 elections.

Ironically, the Republicans have a much stronger set of presidential candidates than usual to choose from this year. But the media obsession with Trump means that even the best of these candidates are not likely to get enough exposure for most voters to get to know much about them.

Governors with superb records – such as Bobby Jindal in Louisiana and Scott Walker in Wisconsin - may not have much name recognition on the national scene. And certainly the little sound bites in the so-called "debates" are not likely to tell the voters much.

This is not just the candidates' problem. With this country facing historic dangers, both internally and internationally, we urgently need to find someone with depth, insight and courage as the next President of the United States.

But, with the media obsessed with Donald Trump's show biz talents and persona and covering everything he says, does or might do, 24/7 – how are the voters to sort through the large number of Republican candidates to find a couple that are worth getting to know more thoroughly?

It will be like trying to find a needle in a haystack. And never was finding that needle, the right leader, more important for the nation.

Internally, we are so polarized over immigration that our current "leaders" have left our borders wide open to terrorists from around the world, rather than take the political risks of offending voters on one side of this issue or offending voters on the opposite side. Instead, they risk American lives by their inaction.

Internationally, our "leaders" have written a blank check for our most dangerous and fanatical enemy - Iran - to get both nuclear bombs and the missiles to deliver them. And the Obama administration, with a track record of huge shameless lies, offers us its reassurances.

We had better find that needle in a haystack, someone who can salvage a desperate situation. Flamboyant rhetoric is not enough.

Bill would let Ohioans with drug convictions keep drivers license

COLUMBUS (AP) - Legislation that would make a driver's license suspension discretionary rather than mandatory for non-driving drug convictions has been introduced in the Ohio Senate.

Ohio's current law follows an edict developed by the federal government in the 1990s. Anyone convicted of a drug charge, regardless of whether a vehicle was involved in the crime, automatically receives a six-month license suspension.

State Sen. Bill Seitz, the Cincinnati Republican who recently introduced the bill to change that, said the law makes it difficult for hundreds of thousands of people in Ohio with suspended driver's licenses for drug convictions to find a job.

He said those people are more likely to return to a life of drugs as a means of support.

"It never made much sense to have a license suspension in connection with a drug offense unless there is a vehicle involved," John Murphy of the Ohio Prosecuting Attorneys Association, told The Columbus Dispatch

(http://bit.ly/1JfK56U). The state told the federal government in December that Ohio wants out of the requirement that driver's licenses must be suspended for non-driving drug convictions, the newspaper reported. Last session, Seitz sponsored a resolution notifying the federal government of Ohio's intention to opt out of the Drug Offender's Driving Privileges Suspension Act. Failing to notify the federal government could have cost the state 8 percent of its highway funds.

The proposed legislation also would allow a court to end a previously imposed license suspension for a drug conviction that did not involve a vehicle.

Broad legislative support exists for the measure, the newspaper reported, based on votes late last year.

Seitz said the bill was drafted by the Ohio Judicial Conference, which represents judges in the state.

But Sen. Jim Hughes, a Columbus Republican and former assistant prosecutor, opposes the bill.

"People need to resolve their addiction problem before we give them their license back," Hughes said. "To me, it's a matter of public safety."

Mark Moogalian recounts train attack in French magazine

PARIS (AP) - The first inkling Mark Moogalian had that something was amiss on a high-speed train traveling from Amsterdam to Paris was when he saw a man dragging his suitcase into the bathroom.

"I saw a young guy who looked strange, dragging a big, wheeled suitcase. It was unusual, strange," Moogalian said in an interview from his hospital bed published in Paris Match magazine on Wednesday.

Moogalian was shot and seriously wounded trying to stop a gunman armed with an assault rifle from moving through the train on Friday. The attacker was eventually overpowered by other passengers, including three American friends on vacation.

Noticing that the man seemed to be spending an unusually long time in the toilet, Moogalian went to investigate.

'I saw him come out of the toilet and another guy, who looked young, had grabbed him from behind and was trying to control him," Moogalian said in the magazine interview.

Telling his wife to get to safety, Moogalian rushed at the gunman and wrenched an AKM assault rifle from his grip. "I've got the weapon!" he yelled, and just then a shot rang

"I felt a giant pain in the back. I fell down between the seats. I dropped the weapon as I fell. I didn't know he had a handgun," Moogalian said.

d American musician and teacher, who has lived in France for more than two decades, was seated across from his wife in Wagon 12 on the high-speed train that had pulled out of Amsterdam's main station just over two hours earlier. His wife, Isabelle Risacher Moogalian, told Europe-1 radio on Tuesday that "when my husband collapsed, I saw across the seats. He looked at me and he said 'I'm hit, I'm hit.' He thought it was over and he was going to die." The bullet struck him in the back and exited through the neck.

POLICE REPORTS

SALEM

- Police responded to the 500 block of East Perry Street at 7:42 a.m. Wednesday where the complainant advised that the rear tires on his vehicle were slashed overnight.

- At 6:48 a.m. Wednesday, police responded to the Jennings Avenue and West State Street where a woman called about being followed by her exboyfriend in a dark-colored van. Both vehicles were stopped at Jennings Avenue and West 2nd Street. There were no threats or physical violence and the woman was on her way to work and was advised to obtain a protection order. - At 2:32 a.m. Wednesday, police received a report of a sliding glass door being shattered with a brick at approximately 2:17 a.m.

At 12:55 a.m. Wednesday, police responded to Centennial Park to make a welfare check and were unable to locate anyone.

 Police responded to 546 Franklin Ave. at 4:29 a.m. Wednesday for a garage fire and stoodby for traffic control and to assist the fire department while it was extinguished.

- At 5:48 a.m. Wednesday, police responded to the 400 block of Washington Avenue where the complainant advised that two stones from the front yard had been thrown through the front window. Photos were taken.

- At 9:26 p.m. Tuesday, police made a traffic stop for an illegal left turn from East State Street onto South Lundy Avenue. Anthony Reid, II, 720 Kerdis Circle, C, Youngstown, was found to have multiple suspensions. The vehicle owner was unavailable to remove the vehicle and the driver was cited for driving under suspension and given a noted warning for the traffic violation.

-At 8:38 p.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 2300 block of Tanglewood Drive, where the complainant advised his son had been drinking and was mak ing threats toward him. Officers learned from the complainant that nothing had really occurred earlier and he didn't want to press charges and the son left the residence.

- Richard A. Holbrook, 340 N. Ellsworth Ave., was stopped on East State Street and North Broadway Avenue at about 9 p.m. Tuesday and was found to be driving without a license. He was charged with driving under suspension and the vehicle owner was advised of the process to file charges for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

– At 6:45 p.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 900 block of Prospect Street for a domestic call and found there was no physical violence or threats made. The divorced couple was told to take their argument inside.

- Police patrolling in the 600 block of North Ellsworth Avenue observed a man who was believed to have an outstanding warrant and Judson T. Edling, 31293 U.S. Route 62, Salem, was taken into custody and released to a Columbiana County deputy for transport to the county jail.

At 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 1700 block of South Lincoln Avenue where a man had a medical problem and was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

– At 3:27 p.m. Tuesday, police responding to the 800 block of Jennings Avenue left a red warning tag on the front door for a barking dog.

- At 3:25 p.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 900 block of West Wilson Street where an unruly male juvenile was spoken to about his behavior and said he understood why police were called. The mother was advised of the options. - At 10:43 a.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 500 block of East 4th Street to assist the Columbiana County sheriff in transporting to people that had been evicted from the residence to Barnett's Motel after transient paperwork had been filled out.

- At 12:04 p.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 200 block of West State Street for a hit-skip accident in the parking lot. Witnesses said the hit-skip vehicle, a Hyundai or Kia, was driven by an elderly woman and drove away quickly westbound on West State Street. Police photographed the damage to the complainant's vehicle.

- At 8:25 a.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 900 block of East 15th Street where the complainant advised his wife was having a medical problem. She was found not breathing and EMS took care of the situation.

- Police responded to the 1200 block of East 3rd Street at 12:36 p.m. Tuesday and found a male juvenile wearing a belt with a black gun with a bright orange cap on the barrel in a holster. He had a police badge, hand cuffs and what looked like a portable radio. He advised that he didn't point his fake gun at anyone and that he can't wait to like us. His mother confirmed that and that he loves dressing up like a police officer.

- At 10:10 a.m. Tuesday, police responded to the 1000 block of Jennings Avenue where the complainant advised that $618.92 was taken from her checking account on Aug. 24 from an unknown location. The bank wanted a police report.

COLUMBIANA

- A caller asked police to check on a resident at Harmony Village because her door was open and the lights were on at 12:33 a.m. Tuesday. The woman told police she was fine and had just opened the door to let in some fresh air. -While on patrol an officer saw an unoccupied vehicle parked at the middle school at 1:33 a.m. Tuesday. It turned out it was a school employee who was working.

Goshen Township police reported at 2:45 a.m. Tuesday they were following a blue Kia that was acting suspiciously by driving in circles as if trying to avoid the officer. The car entered Columbiana, and an officer followed for a while but did not observe any violations.

– Jill Stalnaker, East Friend Street, reported her neighbor tried to hit her with a vehicle at 4 p.m. Tuesday. Police talked to both parties and determined it was a road complaint that arose while someone was trying to pull into a driveway. Heidi Tomalka, South Elm Street, reported her home was burglarized and ransacked, but nothing appeared to be missing.

Salem barn fire investigated

SALEM - Firefighters said a structure fire at 546 Franklin Ave. early Wednesday morning is suspicious and under investigation.

A newspaper delivery driver reported the fire in a small, two-story wood-framed barn at 4:26 a.m. and when firefighters arrived the ground floor was on fire and the rest of the department was called in.

The fire was extinguished and an overhaul completed. The property is owned by Donald and Norma Jean Atkinson who said the electricity was to the structure was being permanently disconnected. They were advised to have an electrician complete it.

Property damage was set at $5,000 and the content loss was set at $1,000 help elect a Legislature more responsive to mainstream public opinion in the state, for example on issues such as abortion access and climate change.

The report's release was timed to coincide with the 95th anniversary of women's right to vote being enshrined in the U.S. Constitution.

Davis said passing Issue 1 is only half of the reform needed, calling for extending the system overhaul to drawing congressional districts.

Republican Sen. Frank LaRose, co-sponsor of a resolution that would do that, conceded Wednesday that it will be a difficult task, with some influential members of his own party opposed. His resolution, co-sponsored by Democratic Sen. Tom Sawyer, would place an issue on the 2016 ballot asking voters to apply rules laid out in this year's overhaul to congressional redistricting.

POT FROM 1A

Speaking on France 2 television, Risacher Moogalian also heaped praise on Spencer Stone, one of the three Americans who helped subdue the attacker.

As Stone administered life-saving first aid on her husband even while bleeding profusely from his own wounds, he 'spoke to him like it was his friend," she said. "'Hey man, after this we're going to go have a beer. Where are you from? Virginia? I'm from California, don't worry it's going to be fine."

Moogalian has emerged as another hero in the high-speed train attack thwarted by a group of quick-thinking men. According to French President Francois Hollande, a Frenchman was the first to encounter the gunman as he left the toilet, alerting others in the area. That person, Hollande said, wished to remain anonymous.

Moogalian remained hospitalized Wednesday in the northern city of Lille, and his sister said his role in trying to stop what French authorities are calling a terror attack was in character.

"Mark is one of the most compassionate people I've ever known. He's a free spirit. When he sets his mind on what he wants to do, he just does it," his sister, Jacqueline Moogalian-Pittman, said from Austell, Georgia.

Lying on the floor of the train compartment, Moogalian watched as the attacker approached and picked up the rifle. "He's going to kill me, I thought," Moogalian said. Closing his eyes to play dead, he then heard two individuals rush past and tackle the gunman.

French authorities have charged a 26-year-old Moroccan suspect, Ayoub El-Khazzani, with terrorism offenses in the attack.

Moogalian runs a language school from a houseboat on the outskirts of Paris, according to the school's website. Music and art are clearly his passions, as his personal website attests, with its range of sculpture, paintings, photos and downloads of music he performs in a duo with his wife.

Stocks surge, snapping 6-day losing streak

By the Associated Press

The Dow Jones industrial average rocketed more than 600 points Wednesday, its biggest gain in seven years, snapping a six-day losing streak that had Americans nervously checking their investment balances.

While the surge came as a relief to many, Wall Street professionals warned that more rough days lie ahead, in part because of unsettled conditions in China, where signs of an economic slowdown triggered the sell-off that has shaken global markets over the past week.

Heading into Wednesday, the three major U.S. stock indexes had dropped six days in a row, the longest slide in more than three years. The Dow had fallen about 1,900 points over that period, while the slump wiped out more than $2 trillion in corporate value.

On Tuesday, a rally on Wall Street collapsed in the final minutes of trading, with the Dow closing more than 200 points lower. On Wednesday, the market opened strong again, and the question all day was whether the rally would hold. It did, and picked up speed just before the closing bell.

The Dow vaulted 619.07 points, or 4 percent, to 16,285.51. It was the Dow's third-biggest point gain of all time and its largest since Oct. 28, 2008, when it soared 889 points.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index, a much broader measure of the stock market, gained 72.90 points, or 3.9 percent, to 1,940.51. In percentage terms, it was the best day for the S&P 500 in nearly four years. The Nasdaq composite rose 191.05 points, or 4.2 percent, to 4,697.54.

Wall Street professionals said investors apparently saw the big sell-off as an opportunity to go bargain-hunting and buy low. "That always leads to a bounce or spike in the market,' said Quincy Krosby, market strategist for Prudential Financial.

Another factor was believed to be a comment on Wednesday from the head of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, William Dudley, who said that because of the slowdown in China and other factors, the case for the Fed to raise rock-bottom interest rates next month for the first time in nearly a decade is "less compelling" than it was a few weeks ago.

'That certainly helped the market," Krosby said.

The U.S. stock market has been on a run-up that has lasted more than six years and pushed the major indexes to all-time highs. Investors worry that the economy could falter if the Fed raises rates too soon.

Over the past few days, ordinary Americans with 401(k)s and other investments have been calling their financial advisers in search of some reassurance.

"I wouldn't say it is full-blown panic," said Brennan Miller, a branch manager for Charles Schwab in Chicago. "Markets have been steadily advancing for several years, and that breathed some complacency. This caught people off guard."

Any sign that the market has bottomed out could encourage investors to get back in.

"There's a lot of cash on the sidelines waiting to get in, so to the extent that there's any sort of bottom seen, that will increase people's confidence and boldness," said Erik Davidson, chief investment officer for Wells Fargo Private Bank.

Still, the market has a ways to go before it recovers its run of recent losses. The Dow remains down 8.6 percent this year, while the S&P 500 is off 5.8 percent. The Nasdaq is down just 0.8 percent.

And despite Wednesday's strong rebound, analysts said there are probably more roller-coaster days ahead, good and bad, because of China as well as worries about a Fed rate increase.

In international markets, major indexes in Germany, France and Britain fell anywhere from 1.3 to 1.7 percent. Markets in Asia were mixed. Japan's Nikkei 225 stock index rose 3.2 percent. Hong Kong's Hang Seng index fell 0.5 percent.

The price of oil fell back below $39 a barrel after a U.S. government report showed an unexpected decline in demand for gasoline. U.S. government bond prices fell, and the yield on the 10-year Treasury note rose to 2.18 percent.

Tomato fight

Two women lie in a puddle of squashed tomatoes during the annual "tomatina" tomato fight fiesta, in the village of Bunol, about 30 miles outside Valencia, Spain, Wednesday. The streets of an eastern Spanish town are awash with red pulp as thousands of people pelt each other with tomatoes in the annual "Tomatina" battle that has become a major tourist attraction. At the annual fiesta in Bunol on Wednesday, trucks dumped 150 tons of ripe tomatoes for some 22,000 participants, many from abroad, to throw during the hour-long morning festivities. (AP Photo)

bama to seek unity with pope on issues

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sweeping into office in 2009, President Barack Obama captured near rock-star status around the world among millions who saw him as the embodiment of a new sense of social purpose. Now, that baton has largely been passed to Pope Francis, whose visit to the White House next month will put his common cause with Obama on vivid display.

Obama has made no secret of his affection for the outspoken pope, calling him a "transformative leader" whose influence has transcended the Roman Catholic community. The pope has embraced many of the issues Obama has sought to advance, including global warming, poverty and diplomacy with Iran and Cuba.

Vice President Joe Biden, a Catholic, said the pope's Sept. 23 visit will mark an important moment not only for Catholics but for all Americans.

"Pope Francis has breathed new life into what I believe is the central mission of our faith: Catholic social doctrine," Biden said in a statement to The Associated Press. Invoking key elements of Obama's agenda, Biden added that Francis "has become a moral rudder for the world on some of the most important issues of our time, from inequality to climate change."

The pope's brief visit to the White House is part of his highly anticipated trip to the U.S. and Cuba. It's a reunion of sorts for Obama and Francis, who first met when the president visited the Vatican last year.

Despite deep differences on some social issues such as abortion, Obama and the pope are expected to focus on areas of agreement. The White House said economic opportunity, immigration and refugees, and protection of religious minorities were high on the agenda.

"It's going to be a come-to-Jesus moment - no pun intended - for the many politicians who want to claim the mantle of Pope Francis," said Michael Wear, a former White House official who led faith outreach for Obama's 2012 campaign.

For Obama, the visit offers a chance to imbue his remaining goals with a sense of moral authority as he approaches the end of his presidency.

Viewed as largely above politics, Francis is extremely popular in the U.S. Tickets to his speech to Congress are such a hot commodity that an overflow crowd of thousands is expected to watch on Jumbotrons from the National Mall.

"In a way, Pope Francis has become a conscience for this age of the world.

When President Obama came to office, he too had that aura for at least the first couple of years," said Stephen Schneck, who runs the Catholic politics institute at Catholic University of America. "But Pope Francis' message is moral and religious. He's not going to be talking about legislation.

The White House has praised Francis for involving himself in issues usually left to politicians. In a rare move, Francis personally intervened to help the U.S. and Cuba restore relations, writing leaders of both countries and hosting their delegations at the Vatican for final talks. And on climate change, a cornerstone of Obama's desired legacy, Francis added the weight of the pulpit by publishing a landmark encyclical calling climate change real and manmade.

Yet there are risks for Obama if he glosses over other, stark differences in views.

When he visited Francis early last year, Obama contradicted the official Vatican account of their meeting by saying they hadn't discussed social issues in any detail. Papal aides insisted the two leaders indeed discussed religious freedom, life and conscientious objection - buzzwords for abortion, birth control and parts of Obama's health care law.

"One step closer," Miller said. "We might be able to get married in September." Mat Staver, an attorney for Davis, said he was disappointed with the ruling. He said he plans to discuss options with Davis, including an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. "The court of appeals did not provide any religious accommodation rights to individuals, which makes little sense because at the end of the day it's individuals that are carrying out the acts of the office," Staver said. "They don't lose their individual constitutional rights just because they are employed in a public office.' It's unclear how Davis will react if she were to ultimately lose her appeals. She testified in federal court last month she would "deal with that when the time comes." Saturday, she spoke to thousands of supporters at a religious freedom rally at the state capitol, saying: "I need your prayers ... to continue to stand firm in what we believe.' "Regardless of what any man puts on a piece of paper, the law of nature is not going to change," Davis told the crowd. Miller and Roberts said they know the legal fight will stretch on. Davis continued to refuse to issue marriage licenses after other judges' rulings. And they suspect she will continue to refuse after this one.

China staying course despite stock plunge BEIJING (AP) — What does China's leadership lose politi-cally as a result of the country's precipitous stock market decline? A bit of international swagger, but probably not much else – for now.

Despite growing anger among retail investors and a strong sense of economic decline, a major shake-up is unlikely, given the rigidity of the political system, the leadership's need to exude calm and the idea that changes could be perceived as signs of weakness or error.

Airlines wage limited fare wars

ABOARD AMERICAN AIRLINES FLIGHT 1223 (AP) -Airline fare wars are making a comeback.

Don't expect widespread sales or cheap flights home for Thanksgiving. But a number of cities are seeing ridiculously low prices at off-peak hours - prices the industry has spent the years trying to eliminate.

Fliers have been able to fly Chicago to Boston for $80 roundtrip, San Francisco to Las Vegas for $67 roundtrip and New York to Los Angeles, with a connection, for $150 roundtrip.

Burger King: Let's make a McWhopper NEW YORK (AP) – This probably isn't what the United Nations had in mind when it established the International Day of Peace: Burger King is asking McDonald's to join forces to create a "McWhopper."

In full-page newspaper ads Wednesday, Burger King said it's calling for a truce with McDonald's so that they can create a mashup of their most famous burgers - the Big Mac and the Whopper.

Burger King says it wants to serve the concoction for a single day at a popup location in Atlanta, a midway point between the headquarters of the two chains.

Durable goods orders up 2% in July

WASHINGTON (AP) - Orders to U.S. factories for longlasting manufactured goods rose for a second month in July, and demand in a key category that tracks business investment plans jumped by the largest amount in 13 months.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday orders for durable goods - items expected to last at least three years like refrigerators and cars - increased 2 percent in July after a 4.1 percent gain in June.

The result adds to a string of recent economic data that indicate the U.S. economy is on solid ground even in the face of various global headwinds. Deepening concerns about China's economy have sent shock waves through the world's financial markets in recent days.

Abercrombie & Fitch beats expectations

NEW ALBANY, Ohio (AP) - Abercrombie & Fitch's fiscal second-quarter results topped analysts' estimates as a key sales metric improved.

The New Albany, Ohio-based company's stock jumped more than 11 percent in morning trading Wednesday.

Abercrombie & Fitch began tinkering with its image earlier this year in an effort to reverse declining sales. The teen clothing retailer's changes include no longer having shirtless models at its stores, getting rid of "sexualized" ads, shrinking the logo on its clothing and trying to stock trendier merchandise to keep up with "fast fashion" chains that change their styles more often.

Shallow depths belie hazards

YPSILANTI TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — With their appealing slides and wave pools, waterparks are increasingly popular places to spend a summer day. But the shallow waters belie hazards that experts say visitors who are focused on the fun may be underestimating.

As the parks proliferate, concern is growing about the risks present even when most of the water is shallower than 3 feet (1 meter) - people who aren't good swimmers mixed with the unexpected hit of waves and falls that can lead to concussions or even drownings. The American Red Cross, a leading trainer of lifeguards, has taken note and added training for extreme shallow water rescues.

Monsanto abandons takeover bid

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agricultural business giant Monsanto is abandoning its takeover bid for competitor Syngenta AG after the Swiss chemical producer rejected its latest offer of nearly $47 billion.

A combination with Basel-based Syngenta would have made Monsanto the world's largest producer of farming chemicals, in addition to its market-leading seed business. But the Swiss pesticide maker rejected a series of unsolicited offers from the American company.

Farm profits to fall 2nd consecutive year

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — It will be a less profitable year for farmers as low grain, milk and hog prices cut into income, U.S. Department of Agriculture officials say.

The abundance of grain leftover from last year's crop and 2015's anticipated harvest of the third-largest corn crop and second-largest soybean crop on record have kept prices below the cost of production, while the cost of seed, fertilizer and land has dropped only slightly.

Net farm income is expected to decline 36 percent to $58.3 billion, the USDA said in a report released Tuesday. That's down from last year's $91.1 billion and the lowest in nine years.

Schlumberger to buy Cameron International

HOUSTON (AP) — Schlumberger is buying Cameron in a cash-and-stock deal valued at about $12.71 billion that would create an oilfield equipment and service powerhouse.

Cameron was the maker of the blowout preventer on the ill-fated Deepwater Horizon rig, which was rocked by an explosion and fire in 2010 that killed 11 workers and touched off an enormous oil spill.

Cameron International Corp. shareholders will receive 0.716 shares of Schlumberger common stock and a cash payment of $14.44 for each of their shares. That equates to a value of $66.36 per Cameron share. That's a 56 percent premium to the Houston company's Tuesday closing price of $42.47.

Windows 10 now on 75 million devices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Microsoft said Wednesday that its new Windows 10 software is running on more than 75 million computers, tablets and other devices - in just under a month since the operating system was released.

Analysts say that's a good start, although the company is hoping to get the software installed on a billion devices over the next three years. Microsoft Corp., which is best known for making software for personal computers, is hoping Windows 10 will help it rebuild loyalty among users who are increasingly relying on tablets, smartphones and other devices.

Wal-Mart to stop selling AR-15s, similar weapons

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Wal-Mart will stop selling the AR-15 rifle and other semi-automatic weapons at its stores because fewer people are buying them, a spokesman said Wednesday.

The AR-15 rifles and other modern sporting rifles were being sold at less than a third of the company's 4,600 U.S. stores. Company spokesman Kory Lundberg said Wal-Mart Stores Inc. will remove the remaining inventory as stores transition from summer to fall merchandise, which should take a week or two to complete.

Lundberg said the decision to remove the weapons was not political and that the Bentonville, Arkansas-based retailer made the decision earlier this year.

"It's similar to what we do with any product. Being what it is, it gets a little more attention, but it's the same process for any other product," Lundberg said.

Lundberg said the company had seen a decrease in sales of the particular models of guns, but declined to give specific sales numbers. He said stores would increase inventory of other models of shotguns and rifles popular among hunters.

"We wanted to make sure when customers are coming and looking to purchase those products, they see the products they want. We see more business from hunters and people shooting clay," he said.

Several analysts said the decision was likely based on sales and demand.

"Big retailers don't make decisions on a whim, and it would appear that they are responding to their market,' said Jason Maloni, a crisis communications expert at LEV-ICK. "This seems to be a strategic decision of Wal-Mart to address customer desires.'

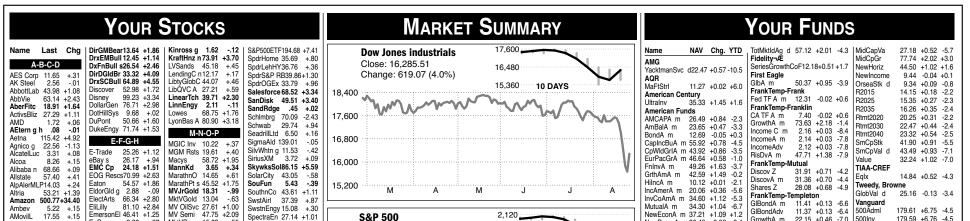

In recent years, shareholders have placed some pressure on the company to reconsider its sales policies of products such as weapons that hold high-capacity magazines. Bushmaster variations of the semi-automatic AR-15 have been used in such high-profile mass shootings as the Sandy Hook massacre in Newtown, Connecticut, and the theater shooting in Aurora, Colorado.

The historic Trinity Church on Wall Street in New York. which owns stock in Wal-Mart, filed a lawsuit last year after the company declined to allow a shareholder vote on the church's proposal for the board of directors to more closely review policies on sales decisions of products that could "endanger public safety and well-being" or hurt the com-pany's reputation or emphasis on family and community values.

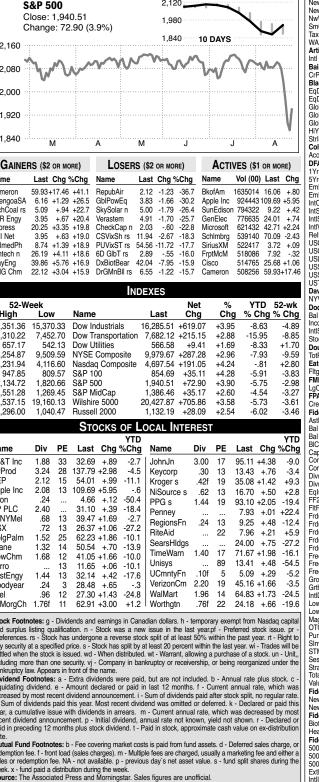

A lower court ruled that the shareholders should be allowed to consider the proposal, but a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judge lifted that injunction. The church has not appealed, but officials said they are not ready to drop the lawsuit either.

The Rev. William Lupfer, rector of the church, said in a statement Wednesday that the church was "pleased to hear Wal-Mart will no longer sell the kinds of weapons that have caused such devastation and loss in communities across our country.'

Wal-Mart scaled back the number of stores that sold guns around 2006, Lundberg said, but has no plans to stop the sale of guns all together.

Heloise

By HOLIDAY MATHIS 8/27/15 Mercury in Libra

HOROSCOPE

Mercury, the messenger planet, crosses into Libra, the realm of partnerships and good graces, with a banner that reads: Better Together. The weeks to come will challenge us to come up with mutually fortuitous agreements. Then, when Mercury goes retrograde on September 17, those agreements will be put to the test

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll enter a fluid time zone, outside of the bounds of seconds and hours. The elasticity of time can allow you to stretch beyond your limits, or it can snap back at you with a painful sting. TAURUS (April 20-May 20).

The best inventions were originally conceived to solve a problem. Money-saving tip: if you must first be convinced of the problem, it probably never existed. Save your money for something that's really worth it

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You could say this is a backward day as far as relationships go. Flirting comes in the form of arguing, and love comes in the form of saying "no" to someone you adore.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Tempted to put all of your energy into charming the one you admire? It's not your only option, nor is it your best one. You're better off cultivating a high self-approval rating that's independent of the opinion of others

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You may mix with a group of people who already know one another very well. Being the new one has its advantages. Follow your instincts about making alliances, because once you set a pattern, it will be verv hard to break it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You have to purposely get out of your element in order to expand your realm of influence. When you find yourself among strangers, this means you're doing it right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You may not be in a very social mood, and if you don't have any clear reason for showing up (something to sell), you'll be tempted to forgo certain events. Go anyway. You'll sell yourself and gather more supporters for Team You.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's easy to be loving and cheerful when you're in a good mood. To be just as pleasant when you don't feel like it takes maturity. You'll be rewarded for the effort to project your best and highest self. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec.

21). Working too hard at being attractive is the antithesis of attractive. You've already given enough effort to the situation, and now it's time to forget about it. There's great charisma in your nonchalance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're in a mood to be extremely selective as to how you spend your time and with whom. If you bring that warm smile to every interaction, no one will suspect you're sizing up opportunities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). A friend will reach out to you. The weird part is that you will be able to feel this before it happens. It's because you are connected at a deep level, working through some joint karma

Dear Heloise: I am a receptionist in a retirement community. Medical offices call to remind our residents of AP-POINTMENTS via recorded messages.

It would be a great help if the recorded message also would include the first and last name of the person they are remind-

We routinely receive this call: "This is Dr. Jones' dental office calling to remind John he has an appointment on Thursday, 7/16, at 3. Arrive 30 minutes before your appointment, and bring ID and your insurance cards.

We have SEVERAL residents named John. How about: "This is Dr. Jones' dental office calling to remind John Smith he has an appointment," etc.? Thank you. - Elaine in Chambersburg, Pa.

Hi, Elaine. I understand how this can be frustrating. The only issue I can think of is that it might be a privacy concern. Not sure that John or Joan Doe would want people knowing they have an appointment with a cancer or Alzheimer's doctor. I don't know what the answer is, but I am sure my readers will help us! Folks, what say you? - Heloise

HOMELESS HELPERS

Dear Heloise: I often see people standing on the corner asking for spare change. This is a violation of a city ordinance where I live, but I still want to help. So I made up a few plastic bags to give them. I include whatever I have available, such as a protein or granola bar, water, some hand wipes, etc. I hope this helps a little. - No Name, Please

Dear NO NAME: How nice of you. However, please be aware that some of the people you see have been standing (soliciting) at the same spot or area for months or longer. Keep an eye out - you might be sadly shocked. – Heloise

FOIL STUCK TO OVEN

Dear Heloise: HELP! My new dual range has aluminum-foil pieces stuck to the floor of the oven. My mistake, trying to take care that a raspberry pie would not run over in the oven. I stupidly put foil directly on the bottom, instead of under the pie. Can you help? -Sandra C., Omaha, Neb.

Sandra, I hope the pie was good! Be sure the oven is NOT on. Dampen a paper towel with soap and water, then place over the foil and let sit. Use a plastic scrubbie sponge to rub off the stuck-on foil. That's it! -Heloise

CLEAN COVERS

Dear Heloise: I wear orthotics in my shoes, but in the summer I don't want to wear socks. I buy cotton footie socks, turn them upside down and slide them over the orthotic to keep it dry and clean. – J. Frederick in Ohio

RIGHT CAN

Dear Heloise: I enjoy reading your column in both the Amarillo (Texas) Globe-News and in Good Housekeeping magazine. I use aerosol cans of fabric sizing when pressing our clothes. I keep a rubber band around the can that I am using so I don't have to guess which can is being used. - Edith in the Texas Panhandle

She has all company she needs in gadgets

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married 22 years, and we had a good marriage until recently. Over the last three years she has become more and more consumed with her phone and tablet. She goes nowhere and does nothing without them.

Every night and weekend she sits engrossed in both devices until well after I have gone to bed. If I ask what she's doing or who she's texting, she accuses me of

eighing HPV vaccine for boys

DEAR DR. ROACH: What are your thoughts on the pros and cons of HPV vaccine for boys? -L.P.B. ANSWER: There are risks and benefits to the individual, but also benefits to society. The HPV vaccine should really be considered an anticancer vaccine, since its goal is to reduce infection from the kinds of human papilloma virus strains that can lead to cancer. Cervical cancer is the most common HPV-related cancer, but some throat cancers, anal cancers and genital cancers also are HPV-related. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that there are about 30,000 HPV-related cancers in the U.S. annually. It is

There have been 67 million doses given, with a 0.003 percent rate of all adverse events, 90 percent of which were not considered serious. The most common nonserious adverse events in men were redness and soreness at the injection site, dizziness, headache and fainting. Among the adverse events considered serious, the most common were headache, nausea, vomiting and fever.

The societal benefit to vaccinating boys is that they are less likely to spread infection to others. Since essentially all cases of cervical cancer are HPV-related, males are the most common source of infection (although it can be transmitted female to female).

By vaccinating your boy, you are reducing his risk of developing HPV infection and might be decreasing his risk of several types of HPV-related cancer, at a small risk of an adverse event, which is usually minor. However, probably the most compelling reason is to protect your son's future sexual partners. Put in the starkest terms, you are reducing the risk that your future daughter-in-law will develop cervical can-DEAR DR. ROACH: I have just read your question and answer about the shingles vaccine and have a question. I am an English person living over here, and last time I was back in England and visiting my old doctor, I asked about getting the shingles vaccine there. I was informed that there was no such vaccine in England. This made me wonder about the legitimacy of the vaccine; if it was that vital to people's health, surely other countries would be offering it as well. Is this just another way for doctors to cash in on health insurance payments? – C.B. ANSWER: The National Health Service in the United Kingdom recommends the same shingles vaccine, Zostavax, that is used in the U.S. and Canada. Most physicians make very little or no money on vaccination. We recommend them because we care about our patients and want to prevent suffering.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Assume the best will happen, because when you adopt the assumption, it absolutely will. People will be nice and say yes. They will accept and admire you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 27). The complexities of a past relationship are no more — this year brings a new page and a fresh simplicity to the realm of love. September shows you dancing as you learn that your hard work has paid off. November will bring family bonding, travel and a business opportunity that will up your income in 2016. Scorpio and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 14, 39. 22. 28 and 47.

ASTROLOGICAL QUES-

TIONS: "Do you think we'd make a good match? He's a Virgo, and I'm a Pisces. We've been dating for three weeks, and it's going so well that I honestly think we are in love. My dad says I'm too young to get married (I'm 24!), but honestly I think he's the one. What do you think?"

Even though you've been around for 24 years, you were born under the sign of old souls. Pisces people usually have keen intuition and wisdom beyond their years. They can find something to relate to in each person they meet because they are like a composite of all the other signs of the zodiac. This is why they are so empathetic. But it's also why they are very impressionable. Pisces have been known to give their love and trust too easily.

It sounds like you are all-in with this Virgo. It's possible that the combination of the sun now in his sign and dreamy Neptune pulling from across the sky in your sign is intensifying the situation. To be clear, the situation is not love right now — it's infatuation. People who are infatuated should not marry. Love takes time to develop. So don't rush. Let things happen naturally and slowly.

being controlling and not trusting her.

We can't watch a movie, eat a meal (out or at home) or anything else without her constantly tending to at least one of her devices. She says she can multitask and I shouldn't be concerned, but it has greatly diminished our relationship. I feel like when we're together, I am really alone.

If that isn't enough, I have seen her communications with other men, sometimes intimate, late at night. When I ask about them, she throws the same labels at me. What should I do? - ONLY HUMAN IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ONLY HUMAN: What you should do is tell your wife you have seen the intimate late-night conversations she has been having with other men, and that you feel she has abandoned you. Do not let her accuse you of being controlling or untrusting. You have done nothing wrong.

If she is willing to come clean and deal with the problems in your marriage, which go beyond her addiction to electronic devices, you should agree to marriage counseling. If she's not, you will then have to weigh whether this kind of marriage is enough for you, because it certainly wouldn't be for many men.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in ninth grade and my birthday is coming up. I invited a group of friends to go out and eat dinner at a nice restaurant, assuming everyone would pay for their own meal. Unfortunately, that's not the case. Some of them said they expect me to pay. Others think I'd be crazy if I did that and even insisted on paying for mine.

If I pay for everyone to eat at a restaurant, it's going to be pricy and my parents will be upset. I can't uninvite anyone, and it's not like I can take them to a cheap fast food place. What do you think I should do? -SAD BIRTHDAY GIRL

DEAR SAD BIRTHDAY GIRL: I think you should contact your prospective guests and start the conversation by saying, "Let me CLARIFY ..." That way, anyone who wants to will be able to back out and there will be no misunderstandings. The lesson here is to never assume.

DEAR ABBY: I quit school in the 1970s and joined the service. I got my GED and I'm friends with a lot of the people I went to high school with. They constantly ask me to attend their high school reunion.

My problem is, I didn't graduate with my class and don't know if I should go. I don't want to feel awkward, but I'd love to see the classmates from that part of my life. What is protocol on this? - UNSURE IN ATHENS, OHIO

DEAR UNSURE: Go to the reunion! I'm sure your former classmates will be as glad to see you as you will be to see them. It's not as if this is a state dinner; it's only a high school reunion, for heaven's sake.

possible but unproven that the HPV vaccine will provide protection against some or all of these.

When given to girls or women who have not been infected with HPV, the HPV vaccine is nearly 100 percent effective at preventing persistent infection with the strains of HPV most likely to lead to cancer. In males age 16-26 years, the efficacy of the vaccine at preventing high-risk HPV-related warts was about 90 percent. However, the HPV vaccine is relatively new, and it is not clear how long immunity will last. It has been proven to last only eight to nine years, but studies looking at protection up to 15 years are ongoing. It is possible that additional boosters may be necessary.

All vaccines have some degree of risk. The most serious risk of HPV vaccine is anaphylaxis, a possibly fatal allergic reaction to the vaccine. There have been 36 cases of anaphylaxis reported in the world literature and through the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting system, according to the Institute of Medicine's 2012 report on adverse effects of vaccines.

She feels 'invitationally challenged

Dear Annie: I am a 27-year-old woman and have been verbally invited to a few weddings this year. For one, we were told to "save the date" a year in advance. I never received an actual invitation and their wedding was last weekend. The pictures are popping up on Facebook. The second wedding, wanted to come, we should send her our addresses. Should I send her my address now or is it too late? I originally thought it was just for her family.

Is everything done on Facebook now? Does no one send out paper invitations or keep a guest list? What is my responsibility when a person verbally expresses that I should attend, or posts something on Facebook saying I should "come to the wedding"?

Invitationally Challenge

Dear Challenged: We can understand your confusion. Paper invitations are still appropriate. A "save the date" notice is not an invitation. A verbal expression is not an invitation. Facebook notices are unreliable and informal, but if the bridal couple considers this an invitation, you may, also. And someone who says, "Send me your address if you want to be invited," is too lazy to acquire your address and send a personal invitation. She expects her guests to do all of the work. But if you want to send her your address, even at this late date, that is entirely up to you. And of course, if you don't wish to attend a wedding, it's perfectly OK to RSVP with your regrets.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emily Smith and Jillian Levine had already chosen a venue, booked a band and written the first draft of the ceremony for their wedding when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that gay couples nationwide have a right to marry. Within minutes of the June 26 ruling, Levine texted her fiancÈe a rainbow emoji and a question about their ceremony.

"Are there any good quotes from this Supreme Court ruling that we could change the reading to?" wrote Levine, 30.

"Yup, already saved it," Smith, 29, typed back, sending a screen shot from Facebook with words that had made her cry. It was the concluding paragraph of Justice Anthony

Kennedy's 28-page majority opinion — now making its way into wedding ceremonies for both gay and straight couples. "No union is more profound than marriage," Kennedy's opinion says, "for it embodies the highest ideals of love, fidelity, devotion, sacrifice and family. In forming a marital union, two people become something greater than once they were."

"It was just so perfect," Smith said in a telephone interview last month that followed a dress fitting for her now-wife.

Smith, who is studying to be a physician assistant, and Levine, who works in fundraising, married Saturday in Massachusetts. The couple, now known as the Smiths, is not alone when it comes to their affinity for Kennedy's words.

Wedding officiants from as far away as Australia said both gay and straight couples are asking them to incorporate excerpts from the ruling into their ceremonies, usually part or all of the same paragraph that touched Smith and Levine. Couples said they want both to acknowledge the historic decision and to use language they described as "beautiful," "eloquent" and "powerful."

Kennedy's opinion isn't the first to make it into a marriage ceremony. After a 2003 Massachusetts court decision made the state the first to legalize gay marriage, many couples used language from that opinion. Less frequently but still regularly, couples chose words from a 2010 ruling invalidating Proposition 8, a California ballot measure that had made same-sex marriages illegal.

But Kennedy's opinion, quoted in news articles and shared on Facebook, seems to have won an even wider audience, even as legal experts on both the left and right have called it short on legal reasoning and knocked it for sentimentality.

Lindsay Powell, 28, called Kennedy's prose "poetic without being clichÈ." She said it just "felt right" to include his words in her wedding to Robert Banuski, 28, on July 18 in Skaneateles, New York, because she'll always connect this summer with the ruling.

Jamie Dee Schiffer, a Virginia-based wedding officiant, said about two-dozen couples — about half of them gay — have asked her to include the words.

Bernadette Smith, a wedding planner and the founder of the New York-based Gay Wedding Institute, which trains those in the wedding industry on working with gay couples, predicted it would soon become "the most popular same-sex marriage ceremony reading." And celebrants from places including Alabama, Illinois, Louisiana and Pennsylvania acknowledged quickly adding Kennedy's words to packets of potential readings they give couples.

Suspect in 1996 Khobar Towers bombing arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) – A man suspected in the 1996 bombing of the Khobar Towers residence at a U.S. military base in Saudi Arabia has been captured, a U.S. official said Wednesday.

Ahmed al-Mughassil, described by the FBI in 2001 as the head of the military wing of Saudi Hezbollah, is susferred to Riyadh.

The Saudi Interior Ministry had no immediate comment. The U.S. official spoke on condition of anonymity because this person was not authorized to publicly discuss the matter.

Al-Mughassil, also known as Abu Omran, is one of 13 people named in a 2001 indictment in Alexandria, Virginia, in connection with the bombing. Charges include murder of federal employees and bombing resulting in death. None of the 13 has yet been brought to court to face charges, according to court documents. In the Khobar attack, militants parked a fuel trailer truck just outside the shallow perimeter of the apartment complex, 85 feet away from one of the eight-story buildings. The blast demolished one side of the building, leaving a massive crater.

The U.S. later moved its Air Force contingent to the Prince Sultan Air Base, a vast compound in a remote stretch of desert south of the Saudi capital, Riyadh. The Saudi Hezbollah extremist group was founded by members of the desert GRAND kingdom's Shiite minority who fled into exile in the OPENING 1980s to escape what they said was persecution by the kingdom's Sunni majority.

pected of leading the attack that killed 19 U.S. service personnel and wounded almost 500 people. The June 25, 1996, bombing at Khobar Towers, a military housing complex, was the deadliest such attack targeting U.S. forces since the 1983 bombing of the U.S. Marines' barracks in Beirut that killed 241 American servicemen.

Saudi paper Asharq Alawsat, which first reported the development, said he was arrested in Beirut and trans-

Not guilty pleas for mom accused of killing 3 sons

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — A lawyer has entered not guilty pleas for a woman facing murder charges in the suffocation deaths of her three sons over a 13-month period.

Authorities say Brittany Pilkington confessed to killing her 3-month-old son last week, a 4-year-old brother in April and a baby brother last July.

The Logan County Prosecutor says the 23-year-old Pilkington was jealous at the attention her husband paid the boys over her and their young daughter. Pilkington's attorney entered the not guilty pleas at a hearing Wednesday. If convicted, she could get the death penalty.

Pilkington was jailed in Bellefontaine in western Ohio on $1 million bond.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor Eric Stewart says she is on suicide watch.

Services were held Wednesday for Noah Pilkington, found dead at his parents' apartment Aug. 18. The lead prosecutor listed in court records from 2001 is James Comey, now the FBI director.

Bowling League seeks members

SALEM—The Thursday Night Ladies Bowling League at Hunt Club lanes is looking for new members. The league begins its season at 6:30 p.m. on September 10. For more information call (614) 599-1935.

Rebels ready for season-opening test

COLUMBIANA-After four consecutive seasons of blowout losses, Beaver Local came painfully close to knocking off Crestview in last seasons opener, falling 14-7 after the > stand in the final minute. 14 returning starters back from a team RAMBO that finBeavers' scrimmages against Poland and South Range.

"We got him in on some passing plays, but he didn't do too much running," McElroy said. "We know what we're going to get out of Robbie and we wanted to try and work some young players in to develop some depth."

Johnston gained 78 yards on 25 carries in last season's game. He also caught a 64 yard pass with one minute to go, but was hauled down from behind at the Crestview 3. Crestview coach Paul Cumated to the quarterback position as been our main project during practice," Cusick said. "He's bounced around the last couple of seasons. He needs to get acclimated to the speed of the game at the quarterback and be able to make quick decisions. We have an experienced backfield which should help."

The Beavers are blessed with a skilled, experienced group at linebacker, where seniors Jason Keyes (he team's leading tackler) Justin Flowers and Devon Zellers all return.

son 6-4, the Beavers hope this can be their year to topple the Rebels.

We played very well in last year's came especially on defense," Beaver Local coach Jeremy McElroy said. "The way last year's game ended provides us with a lot of motivation for this year."

On offense, the Beavers revolve around tough, versitile senior running back Robbie Johnston, who ran for 1,540 yards and 22 touchdowns last season.

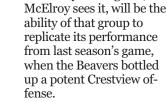

In an effort to keep his star player fresh as well as try out some younger players, McElroy played Johnston sparingly in the sick thinks he will be among the best backs his team faces this season.

"He (Johnston) can do so much," Cusick said. "He's not the biggest kid, but he's very hard-nosed. He can grind out tough yards and break a big one at any time. He's very good in the passing game.

Crestview returns two good backs in Zack Hicks and Tyler Stratton from last season's 7-5 team. For the second straight season, the Rebels will be breaking in a new quarterback, as Spencer DeSalvo assumes the reins after playing wideout and defensive back the last couple of vears.

"Getting Spencer accli-

"If we can play like that again, we have a great shot," McElroy said. "Those guys all have two or three years of experience under their belt and have become very good players."

You know their defense is going to make some big plays," Cusick said. "Their linebackers all move around well. The key for us will be to stay patient on offense."

West Branch's Wesley Snyder puts everything he has into a shot Wednesday at Salem Golf Club. (Salem News/Gary Leininger)

Kipnis powers Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jason Kipnis homered and drove in three runs, and the Cleveland Indians used six pitchers in a 6-2 win over the Milwaukee Brewers on Wednesdav night.

Kipnis, who leads the American League with a .325 batting average, gave Cleveland the lead with a two-run double with the bases loaded in the second inning. He added a solo homer in the eighth.

Rookie right-hander Cody Anderson, starting in place of the injured Carlos Carrasco, allowed two runs in 4 1/3 innings. Carrasco, who leads the Indians in wins, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Wednesday with a sore right shoulder.

Jeff Manship (1-0) worked 1 1/3 innings for his first win since April 26, 2014, when he was pitching for Philadelphia against Arizona.

Jimmy Nelson (10-10) allowed five runs and walked eight in 3 1/3 innings in losing for the first time since July 10.

Cavs loan out the Q

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland State has partnered with Quicken Loans Arena and will have its basketball teams play some home games on the Cavaliers' court next season.

The university's men's team will play five games next season at the Q against schools with large alumni bases in the area. Those dates are to be announced, but Cleveland State's goal in aligning with the arena is to heighten the program's profile and bring more fans to games at Wolstein Center on campus.

Vick at peace with Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The crowd around the backup quarterback's locker was three or four deep. Somewhere in the middle, underneath the bright lights that never seem to go away, Michael Vick spent 13 minutes answering the same questions that never seem to go away.

Six years removed from the end of a federal prison sentence for his role in a dogfighting ring that changed his football career — and more importantly the arc of his life — Vick understands his mere presence in the NFL remains difficult for some.

As the newest member of the Pittsburgh Steelers spoke Wednesday less than 24 hours after agreeing to a one-year deal, a handful of protesters armed with homemade signs gathered outside the team's training complex to remind Vick of personal missteps he understands will follow him forever. One sign read: "Jail time is not enough.'

'There still are some people who feel the same way about what happened," Vick said. "But I think you've got to look at the bottom line. You can't look to the past, because everybody's different from when they're 20 to when they're 35.'

And the man in the white No. 2 jersey who spent Wednesday jogging and getting his left arm loose is de-cidedly different from the football supernova that once appeared to be a video game brought to life.

He's not a starter anymore. He's not young anymore. He's not the franchise anymore. He's not even a redemption case anymore. The Steelers don't need Vick to save them. Really, they kind of hope they don't need him at all. Ben Roethlisberger got a $100 million contract last spring and isn't looking over his shoulder.

Vick is simply Plan B, or maybe even Plan C. And he gets it, even if it took some getting used to last season while playing overqualified understudy to Geno Smith with the New York Jets.

"I admit that I didn't do it as well as I wanted to, because in my mind the position I was in was supposed to be different," Vick said. "But I think you've got to accept it first. I think I've been able to do that and come to grips with it, and my role is clear."

The role comes with its own unique circumstances. This is the duality of Vick in the twilight. He will forever be a pariah to some – his first day with the Steelers ironically coincided with National Dog Day – and yet for many players he remains as much myth as man.

Pro Bowl running back Le'Veon Bell was "starstruck" when he ran into Vick before the crisp informal workout that led to Vick's signing. Rookie quarterback/wide receiver Tyler Murphy idolized Vick when the now 23-year-old Murphy was in elementary school. The nod of respect is a reminder of how far Vick is from his prime, when he was spectacularly making it up as he went along in Atlanta and giving Steelers coach Mike Tomlin sleepless nights when he was running the secondary in Tampa Bay. Part of Vick believes a shred of that player still exists. It's what made sitting by the phone this summer after his largely lifeless year with the Jets so frustrating. "I felt like I didn't lose a step, especially with my arm strength and my speed, and I just didn't understand why (I didn't get called)," Vick said. "But I kept my faith and kept working hard, because I knew that at some point, eventually, I would get a shot What that shot will eventually look like, however, remains unclear. Tomlin didn't rule out giving Vick an opportunity to get in the huddle on Saturday against Buffalo, simply calling what he saw on Wednesday "a good start." 'His talents are his talents," Tomlin said. "He can throw the football. He can put it anywhere on the field." Vick is OK with that being enough for now. He's become pretty capable of learning on the fly during a nomadic second act that brought him from Philadelphia to New York to Pittsburgh. He's also adept at defusing any lingering tension about his misdeeds.
