Prayer vigil for safety of police set Friday

By MARY ANN GREIER
Staff Writer

A resident is calling all Christians to pray for the safety of the city's police officers during a noon vigil Friday in front of city hall.

"We felt we needed to do something," Christine Kutz said.

The gathering comes at a time when police officer safety has become a concern due to attacks that have occurred across the country against law enforcement. The prayer vigil coincides with the funeral of Texas deputy Darren Goforth, who was shot to death while filling his cruiser with gas at a suburban Houston gas station last week.

Kutz said she was talking with some of her fellow church-goers and they've all been watching the recent events on the news and decided they wanted to give some support to their local police. The plan is to stand around the flag pole not far from police headquarters to pray.

"The time to think about it is over. The time to do something is now," she said.

All denominations of churches and anyone wanting to pray for the police officers are welcome to attend.

"I thought it was a nice gesture," Mayor John Berlin said.

Kutz contacted Berlin about the idea and he supported it. Apparently there are other vigils planned across the country on Friday as a symbolic gesture of support for police departments.

Salem Police Chief J.T. Panezott said it's nice to know there are people out there who care about the police officers because police are getting so much bad press right now.

"Obviously we're thinking of our fallen brother, also," he said.

He thought the vigil was a great idea.

The city police department received many words of thanks during the recent city council meeting. Sgt. Karl Toy was introduced and talked about his service with the Alliance Special Response Team and the specialized training he's bringing back to the department. Toy works full-time for the city, but is on loan to the Alliance SRT when the team is deployed and for training sessions. If some type of hostage crisis or other

COLUMBIANA COUNTY

Board questioned on Drake's ouster

By TOM GIAMBRONI
Staff Writer

LISBON — Did Columbiana County commissioners play a role in the decision not to rehire county Port Authority CEO Tracy Drake?

The issue was raised during a break at Wednesday's commissioner meeting by a reporter from the Youngstown Business Journal, who asked them for comment about Drake's announcement the day before that the Port Authority board informed him it will not offer him a new contract after the current agreement expires Sept. 30.

Commissioner Mike Halleck disputed whether that was the case, saying he thought that Drake was retiring. When pressed further on this issue, Halleck said he assumed Drake was retiring given the fact the Port Authority CEO is 63 and that he and his wife had moved to Florida.

HALLECK

"A lot of people retire and move to Florida," he said, adding, "I wish him the best."

The reporter then said his sources told him Halleck was displeased with the $211,000 in annual salary and deferred compensation Drake was paid. Halleck asked who was telling him this because he does not respond to comments from anonymous sources.

"You must know a hell of a lot more than we know," he said.

The reporter said he also heard that commissioners wanted Drake to take a pay cut and that they have someone in mind to replace him, which Halleck disputed.

County Development Director Tad Herold, who happened to be at the commissioner meeting on other business, was asked if he was being considered for the Port Authority job.

"I don't think so," he replied.

The Port Authority is run by a five-member board, and the appointing authority is commissioners, who created

Leetonia council again divided on Soldano's trip

By KEVIN HOWELL
Staff Writer

LEETONIA— A request from the police chief has once again divided village council.

Council Wednesday night approved a request from Chief John Soldano to attend the State Attorney General's Law Enforcement Conference next month after Mayor Artie Altomare had to break a tie vote. Council members Kevin Siembida, Sue Buchanan and Chris Earl voted against granting Soldano permission.

Soldano requested permission to attend the annual conference this year on Oct. 8 and 9 at a cost of $95 for registration and $142 for a hotel room per night for two nights. The request did not stipulate where the conference is being held, but Altomare said it is usually in Columbus.

Buchanan then balked at the cost of the hotel, stating that she can get a better rate, and Siembida asked that the issue be tabled to try to find one.

Altomare instead demanded a vote at the meeting, noting that council does not question anyone else's hotel bills.

This is the second consecutive year the request has met resistance from Siembida and Buchanan.

Last year Siembida successfully had the request tabled when initially brought before council due to Soldano failing to report from the previous year's conference. After the issue was tabled, Buchanan voiced a complaint against Soldano regarding another issue and finished by stating she would not approve money for him to go "party in Columbus."

At the next meeting, Buchanan made a public apology to Soldano for her remarks and council unanimously granted permission for Soldano to attend the event.

Council also had a tempestuous feud with Soldano last year regarding the purchase of a new cruiser, which ultimately ended months after the initially request with the three council members abstaining from the vote.

In other business, Altomare reported that the Norfolk Southern railroad crossings will be closed for permanent repairs beginning today with Washington and Walnut streets. The crossings on Chestnut and Wilson streets are slated for next week.

Altomare said that he was initially informed that all the crossings would be closed at the same time, but that the company agreed to do the crossings in phases after he resisted. He added that the company told him each crossing should be closed one to two days depending on weather.

Additionally Buchanan reported that the Artisans Festival Committee will donate $4,000 to install rubber mulch

Lisbon woman gets 4 years probation on drug counts

By DEANNE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

LISBON — Melissa S. Delauder, 31, Johnson Road, Lisbon, was placed on four years probation for four counts of possession of drugs on Monday by Columbiana County Common Pleas Court Judge C. Ashley Pike.

Delauder had pleaded guilty to the four counts of possession of drugs in June, which were for cocaine and methamphetamine found in her home on Johnson Road, Lisbon, when two search warrants were served in 2014 on June 17 and July 9.

Delauder initially had been charged with 11 counts of possession of drugs, but the county prosecutor’s office asked for a dismissal of the remaining seven counts as part of a plea agreement. Those counts were for various amounts of hydrocodone, testosterone propionate, testosterone cypioate, lorazepam, diazepam and oxycodone.

Assistant County Prosecutor Tammie Riley Jones told Pike that to her knowledge Delauder has not been in any additional trouble since the summer of 2014.

Delauder told Pike prior to sentencing these charges happened when she was living with Michael Byers, the father of one of her children. She went on to say Byers had several “strange” people living in a vacant trailer on the property. Delauder also went on to say she was shot in the head by Byers three years ago, he often threatened to kill her and members of her family and would take her phone away from her if someone called police to go to the home.

Now Delauder said she has a new fiancé and has obtained both a job and her driver’s license, which had to be suspended for six months as part of her sentence for possession of drugs.

“I’ve bettered my life,” Delauder said.

Part of the plea agreement included Delauder agreeing to truthfully testify against two other people facing drug-related charges before the court.

Cleveland Heights owes $2.2M to Cleveland Division of Water

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS (AP) — Officials say the northeast Ohio city of Cleveland Heights owes $2.2 million to the Cleveland Division of Water thanks to years of faulty meter readings.

Northeast Ohio Media Group reports (<http://bit.ly/1KqwY07>) Cleveland Heights city council was informed Monday night that six of their 24 master meters were “misread” from 2009 through August 2014.

The meters track how much water the city buys from the water division.

Officials say the mistake stemmed from zeroes that were omitted from meter readings.

A Cleveland Division of Water spokesman says the error occurred when the city began using automated meter readers about 10 years ago.

Cleveland Heights officials determined they owed $3.6 million for the error, but the water division already owed the city $1.4 million.

The city hasn’t determined how it will repay the funds.

Ohio abortions decreased again in 2014

COLUMBUS (AP) — The state says the number of abortions reported in Ohio declined again in 2014, which had the fewest recorded since the data-tracking started in 1976.

In an annual report posted Wednesday, the Ohio Department of Health says 21,186 pregnancies were terminated last year. That’s about 2,000 fewer induced abortions than were reported in Ohio in 2013.

The reports don’t speculate on reasons for the decline.

An Associated Press survey this year showed abortions have declined in Ohio and other states where new laws make it harder to have them but also waned in states where abortion rights are protected. In Ohio, at least a half-dozen abortion clinics have closed or reduced services over several years.

About 20,000 of the Ohio abortions last year, nearly 95 percent, were for Ohio women.

OUR SIDE

Don't be fooled by Issue 3 smokescreen

“Buddie” the marijuana legalization mascot has begun hitting the broad in Ohio, urging voters — especially college students — to vote for state Issue 3 on the November election ballot.

Television and Internet advertising urges voters to say yes to Issue 3. “Let’s make Ohio safer,” the spots recommend.

There’s even a pro-legalization T-shirt, proclaiming, “Weed Be Better Off” if Issue 3 passes.

It almost seems as if the debate over marijuana legalization is all over but the proverbial shouting in Ohio.

But Buckeye State voters — most of them, anyway — are not stupid. They will want to know more about Issue 3 than what a giant green marijuana bud named “Buddie” is telling them. That stupid mascot alone should be reason enough to warrant the issue’s failure.

ResponsibleOhio, the very well-funded organization behind Issue 3, claims legalization will create tens of thousands of new jobs, according to one published report. “There’s plenty in this for everyone,” the group’s spokesman told a reporter.

There is much more in it for a few people, however.

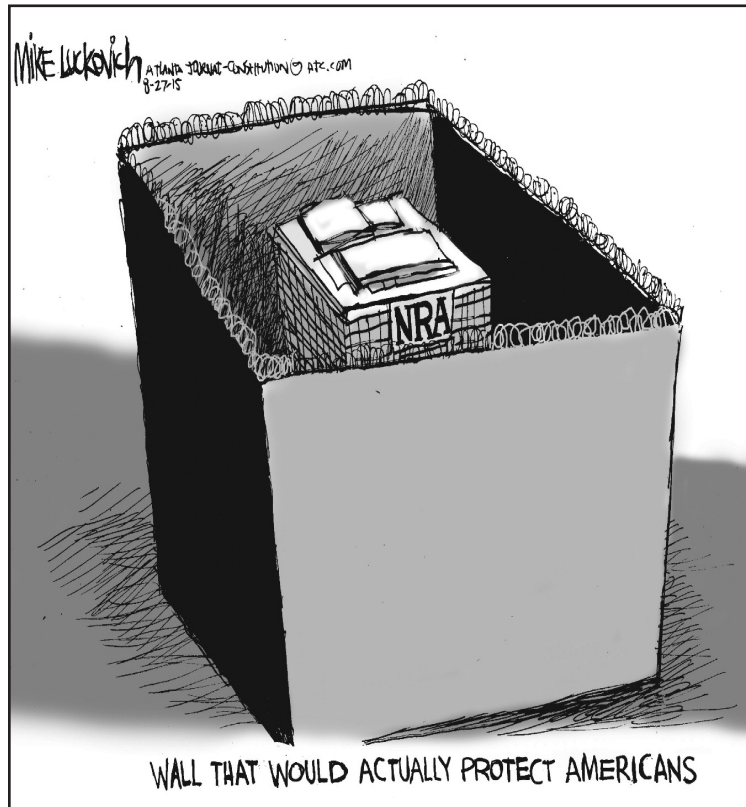

Issue 3 is a proposed amendment to the state constitution. What ResponsibleOhio hopes voters overlook is that the measure would enshrine a marijuana monopoly in the constitution.

If approved, Issue 3 would allow marijuana to be grown legally at just 10 sites, all specified in the measure. Those sites already are owned by investors eager to cash in on legalization.

Issue 3 is not about marijuana “reform,” as the television and Internet spots claim. It is about making the state safe for a monopoly quite possibly more lucrative than any other. So if “Buddie” happens to buttonhole you, ask him why other groups working for legalization of marijuana oppose Issue 3. Could it be they are looking at it with clearer heads than ResponsibleOhio hopes voters will have on election day?

Innocents online with Ashley Madison bots and cardboard participants.

Ashley Madison was apparently not a “wonderland” of 31 million men competing for 5.5 million women. “Only a paltry number of women’s accounts actually looked human,” Annalee Newitz wrote for Gizmodo. That is, only about 12,000 of the 5.5 million female profiles.

Bored office workers may have created many of the fake profiles and then vanished. And there are charges that the site itself fabricated women. One woman claims that Ashley Madison paid her to write more than 1,000 fake profiles in Portuguese for a Brazilian audience.

And how many of the real women — or men — were actually looking for an affair, as opposed to fooling around online? Women who’ve been on respectable dating sites, such as Match.com, say that lots of men there are “jerks” playing mind games with those seeking a good mate.

Nonetheless, Ashley Madison — with its trademark manicured finger covering a foxy mouth — has been denounced, defended and, most grievously, taken seriously.

One news outlet used the leaked details to make a chart purporting to show which states have the most cheaters.

Alabama was No. 1. Data analysts have noted that Alabama is the first state in the alphabetical dropdown menu for people concocting profiles.

After about 15,000 federal workers, including active-duty military, were found to be trolling Ashley Madison, The Washington Post wondered aloud whether these employees should be fired for adultery.

To the thousands who’ve been outed as users of the Ashley Madison adultery web-site: You deserve sympathy. Your greatest sin was trusting a website to protect your identity — especially one that would have rated a 10 as a juicy target for hackers.

The second sin, for many of you, was believing that Ashley Madison was populated by heavy-breathing wives looking for action — as opposed to Surely not over adultery, much less the appearance of adultery, but playing around on taxpayer time is another matter.

The hackers, members of Impact Team, also got on their high horse about the wages of infidelity. They may have been trying to justify exposing the bank accounts and other personal information belonging to thousands of the “innocents” who signed up with Ashley Madison. (They had first demanded that the Canadian-based site come down, promising to trample on the members’ privacy if it didn’t.)

“Chances are your man signed up on the world’s biggest affair site, but never had one,” Impact Team wrote after its data dump. “He just tried to. If that distinction matters.”

First off, that distinction does matter. Secondly, why assume that the men tried to? How many men on the site were really looking to score in the physical sense? They may just have been curious about what was out there.

Oh, yes, the hackers “sharing” the users’ pictures and sexual preferences are keeping their own identities under wraps. Real heroes, they.

The Toronto police report that criminals are already trying to extort people on the leaked Ashley Madison list, threatening to share embarrassing data with the users’ friends, families and employers.

A wish to ridicule the whole phenomenon is tempered by some tragic results. That would include at least two suicides that are being blamed on the exposure.

Ashley Madison, the business, is now being charged with corporate crimes too numerous to list here. The chief executive of the parent company lost his job over the weekend.

The Web can be a very dangerous place for trusting people, including untrustworthy ones. As the Ashley Madison case shows, too many Internet users think they can do the ski jump when they belong on the bunny slope.

The (Canton) Repository, Aug. 25

Last week, the Environmental Protection Agency introduced new rules for the oil and gas industry that require it to reduce methane emissions by 20 to 30 percent over the next decade ...

The White House claims that without action, methane emissions will still increase 25 percent by 2025. Its rules would save enough natural gas to fuel 2 million homes for a year. Furthermore, the rules would also scale back the release of other unhealthy pollutants that create smog.

The industry needs more than the economic incentives to adequately reduce methane emissions.

While several large drillers have put new controls in place, many others have not. The same goes for state-level regulations. Ohio, to the credit of state regulators, is among only a handful of states to crack down on methane emissions — even though a study by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency found air around shale drilling wells to be clean. Ohio requires equipment and compressors to be monitored quarterly for methane leaks using infrared cameras. Only Colorado and Wyoming have implemented rules that are as stringent. Few other energy states have acted.

If natural gas is the “clean energy” the industry claims it is, then oil and gas companies should embrace the benchmarks proposed by the EPA.

JULES WITCOVER

She shot up in some polls from an asterisk to possible contention, expecting to qualify for the Sept. 16 debate on CNN at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library. Certainly she would poll higher the next time and replace one or more of the lowest finishers in the first qualifying poll calculations.

But lo and behold, of 10 polls relied on by CNN to narrow the field, eight were taken before the first debates in Cleveland, thus diminishing the impact of Fiorina’s dramatic showing. So she may not make the cut again for what has become known as the adults’ contest, as opposed to the “kids’ table” to which she was relegated in first debates.

When the Republican National Committee decided months ago to base its invitations to the party’s televised presidential debates on the candidates’ standing in the polls, it was inviting discord. Eventually, with 17 declared aspirants for the 2016 nomination, a circus was unavoidable.

After a determination by host Fox News that the stage could bear only the top 10, it was decided to hold two debates, the main event in prime time and an undercard accommodating the other seven competitors in the late afternoon of the same day.

In practice, the two-tier solution turned out to work better than widely anticipated. The main event benefited from tough questions from three Fox interrogators who lived up to their network’s oft-mocked boast of being “fair and balanced.” They gave the bombastic Donald Trump all he could handle, though he remained first in the polls.

Even the less-watched and less-publicized undercard drew some attention, largely through Fiorina’s strong defense of her candidacy and barbs against Trump and the Democratic frontrunner, Hillary Clinton. Now going on the offensive against the party’s national committee, Fiorina is demanding, reasonably, that the polls used to determine the top 10 invitees to the second debate reflect public opinion since the first debates.

Most of the bottom-feeders assigned to the undercard last month clearly belonged there, based on their glaring inability to strike even a spark of voter support in the early going. One of them, former Texas Gov. Rick Perry, he of the “oops” moment in the 2012 campaign, has already had to cut staff and rely on volunteers.

Others including former Virginia Gov. Jim Gilmore, former New York Gov. George Pataki, South Carolina Sen. Lindsey Graham, former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum and Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal, are mired in single digits in the polls, with little anticipation of their rising.

Furthermore, the early dominance of real-estate dynamo Trump made a farce of the early polling numbers. The two closest candidates to Trump in this first round of public-opinion testing, Wisconsin Sen. Scott Walker and former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, have seen their standing slipping.

Normally, attrition would soon be taking its poll, with most of the candidates’ financial support evaporating as their fortunes fade. But thanks to the Supreme Court’s Citizens United ruling opening the floodgates to unlimited fat-cat giving, a few donors can keep their favorites on the track as long as they choose.

In the meantime, Republican National Chairman Reince Priebus should come to whatever senses he has. He should have the national committee demand a revision of the list of polling organizations used to qualify the candidates, to reflect the latest surveys since the first debates in Cleveland.

It is to be hoped, meanwhile, that those 2016 entrants who are already dying on the vine, or those like Gilmore who had no discernable qualifications or credentials to be in the race in the first place, will fold their tents soon and go home. Maybe in this great democracy every mother’s son or daughter can be president, but this collection of losers persisting is ridiculous.

Old polling numbers unjustly keep Fiorina off stage

Aesthetic Taurus Moon

Why does a clean car or a certain pair of shoes matter so much? Because the symbols of our lives are important. They say something about who we are and why we do what we do. Under this aesthetically inclined Venus-ruled Taurus moon, it will be bothersome if our symbols don't accurately reflect our identity — and mighty satisfying when they do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Things do not always run smoothly for you, but today they run right. You'll be glad about how it all shakes out. The important part is that you keep believing in the benevolent process of life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You can't plan your own delight — it will happen by surprise. You can, however, put yourself in circumstances in which you are more likely to be surprised.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Once again, you've set your sights on a lofty destination. Too lofty? No. If your wings can take you there, then it's not too high for you. You'll handle this one wing-flap at a time.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). In a sense, you feel that life is scolding you. It's not. It's just caring for you the way a good parent does, trying to correct you when you stray slightly from the path.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Mostly the best things are made slowly and painfully. If that's how you feel your "thing" is being made, count yourself among the fortunate. This is going to turn out well for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Find a new model. The one you're chasing isn't worthy. Whether this is business or personal, the answer is the same. You're bringing something unique, and a generic model is never going to encompass all you can do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The good thing about connecting with people from your past is that they knew you before these trials and victories shaped you. They help you to meet yourself as you were, which will be interesting for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Anyone who thinks it's so easy to sell out isn't in touch with sales in general. It's rarely easy to make a sale. There's work that goes into finding the right product for the market. You'll do the work and win.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The person who dares to alter the power balance in relationships must be brave, indeed. People hate this. Maybe change is necessary, and if so, go carefully. A power balance is nothing to take lightly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It will feel like you don't have any control over the flow of ideas today, and maybe you don't. The quality of the idea will make itself known over time. For now, it's enough just to keep track. Document your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Those who buy tickets to the circus should not be too surprised to find themselves interacting with clowns. This is the day to sit back and enjoy the entertainment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your tone will make or break your argument today. Strong messages are best sent with dulcet tones, and weak messages can be made more interesting with emphasis.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 3). After you've said and done what you needed to say and do, you'll do more. More matters. Your willingness to go the extra mile is what will form tighter bonds and forge new relationships. November and May are your best months to invest your time and energy in a new business. Wedding bells ring in July. Taurus and Cancer people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 45, 31, 21, 28 and 14.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I have to admit that most of my ex-boyfriends have been dishonest men, have used me and cheated on me and have had very little to offer with the exception of being extremely attractive. I've had a few nice boyfriends, and I always seem to get bored of them. My friends call me "drama mama." I'm not a mother, by the way. When will I settle into a relationship that's healthy? I'm a Scorpio."

The short answer is: when you have something better to do. Experiencing roller-coaster passion is certainly an exciting way to spend your time. You learn something about yourself in the process: what makes you weak in the knees or super-angry, what quickens your heartbeat, how to communicate and miscommunicate. Scorpios are gifted with the remarkable ability to transform suddenly and completely. When there is something you want more than bittersweet romantic thrills — say, a fulfilling career or to make an impact on the world by helping others or to raise a family in a healthy way — you will simply cease to be attracted to the same kind of man.

Birdbath blowout

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I have a CONCRETE BIRDBATH that is too heavy to empty for cleaning. I solved that problem by using my leaf blower on "high" to just blow the water out. It worked very well. — Renate S., Warren, Ohio

Renate, good idea, and a little fun, too! Once the water is all out, give it a quick clean so that yucky slime does not build up.

A safe, effective and nontoxic cleaner? Good old baking soda! Sprinkle a few handfuls in the bowl and add a little water to make a paste. Scrub with a stiff brush, and rinse well with the garden hose. Change out the water a couple of times per week; scrub once a month. Baking soda is one of my favorite helpers around the house. In a long time writing this column, I've saved my favorite uses for and recipes that call for baking soda, and compiled them in a handy pamphlet, which I'd like to share with you! If you'd like to receive one, send a long, stamped (70 cents), self-addressed envelope and $5 to: Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. You also can order through my website, www.Heloise.com. Two tablespoons of baking soda and 1 cup of water in the microwave for two to three minutes on high will loosen food particles and greasy grime. — Heloise

GNAT TRAP

Dear Heloise: Take an old, washed jelly jar, poke holes in the lid and put several tablespoons of vinegar in it. Set it on the counter, and it will soon fill up with those tiny gnats or "no-see-ums" that plague a lot of us in the kitchen, especially during hot weather! — Lia D., West Forks, Ark.

COMPOST FOLLOW-UP

Dear Readers: Composting was a topic in a previous column. During research, the question arose about adding old cotton T-shirts and other materials.

Here is what Heloise Central found: You can toss them into the compost pile if you want to. ONLY natural fibers — cotton, silk or the like — are OK. Do cut or tear up the material so it will break down faster. — Heloise

BICYCLE SAFETY

Dear Heloise: Our road is a busy two-lane one, and a lot of bicyclers use it. Today I saw a rider with a helmet and gloves on, but she was riding on the wrong side of the road. She was riding facing oncoming traffic when she should have been riding with the flow.

Also, she sort of came to a "rolling stop" at the red light, looked both ways but then just pedaled through. Wrong again. Please follow traffic laws, riders. — Elizabeth M., via email

SNAPPY SHADE

Dear Readers: Here's a cute idea to refresh a fabric lampshade: paint it. Use a much-diluted solution of paint to water, about 10 parts water to 1 part paint. Put in a spray bottle and spray away. Let dry between coats. — Heloise

Send a money-saving or timesaving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279-5000, or you can fax it to 1-210-HELOISE or email it to Heloise@Heloise.com. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Devastated to learn of long ago affair

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are in our 60s and have been married more than 40 years. It hasn't always been great, but we've made it.

Recently, while going through some old boxes in the basement, I ran across her diary and discovered that she had an affair while we were engaged. This has left me depressed, hurt and feeling very down. Should I confront her with my findings? — HURTING IN OHIO

DEAR HURTING: If you feel the need to bring this up after 40 years, then rather than let it fester and ruin the next 40, tell your wife what you have found. However, before you do that, remember diaries are supposed to be private, and you will have to explain why you took it upon yourself to read something that was never meant for you to see.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 41-year-old mother of three. I was raised in a good household, but we didn't have a lot of love. My folks were strict, straight to the point and good providers, but I don't remember many hugs and kisses, or moments of real expressions of emotion or intimacy between them.

Now I realize I am the same way with my kids. I'm very matter of fact, strict and too serious. I love my children more than life itself. But how do I become more loving? I don't know how to play or be silly. My hubby tells me it bothers him sometimes when he's trying to tell me how much he loves me and I make a joke or say something acerbic.

The problem is, my daughter is 9 and she is turning into me and my mother. She's not frivolous, like a little girl should be. She's serious, studious and almost cold in her assessment of everyone around her. It worries me. How do I combat this? How do I change myself so I can help change her, before it's too late? — BAD ROLE MODEL IN MISSOURI

DEAR BAD ROLE MODEL: You have already taken the first step by recognizing the pattern that is being repeated. Another step in the right direction would be to discuss your discomfort with expressing emotion with a licensed therapist, because it has affected not only your daughter but also your relationship with your husband. While a therapist may not be able to help you "be silly," a good one can offer suggestions on how to become more playful and communicate your feelings more openly.

However, I would caution you about one thing you said in your letter. Not all 9-year-olds are "frivolous." Many of them are serious and studious and that's a plus. If she "judges" contemporaries to the point of being sarcastic or cruel, she should be corrected before she's perceived as a bully or turns herself into an outcast. I have always abided by the philosophy that if you think something nice about someone else, you should share it. You might suggest that to her.

► PREP FOOTBALL — WEEK TWO

Quakers prep for their most important game in Ohio

United first-year coach Michael Demster will get his first taste at Salem on Friday, a rivalry that is huge in the mind of the Quakers.

“To us, it’s the most important game in the state,” Salem coach Ron Johnson said. “We always make that the most important game.”

For Demster, it’ll be just business as usual, simply stating that every game is big and this one is no different.

The stakes have increased with both teams winning their openers on Friday. Salem defeated Mineral Ridge 54-7, and United took care of Malvern 30-0. The Quakers haven’t had a winning season since going 8-3 in 2010. Including their victory over the Rams, Salem is only 7-24 in the last four years while United is 19-13 during that span.

JOE CATULLO

Friday’s game could come down to whoever controls the ball the longest. This strategy was proven right with the Quakers’ and Eagles’ big victories.

“They control the ball really well,” Johnson said. “We have to make sure we can keep them off the field because if they control the ball, that’s really going to hurt our chances.”

The running game will also be vital, as is for most high school games. But it’s definitely a huge factor with the Eagles being one man down. Colton Bowen, who is also United’s starting inside linebacker, broke his fibula in the fourth quarter against Malvern and is out for the season. He had 12 carries for 94 yards and a touchdown before the injury. Demster isn’t too worried

Colton Antram led with 13 carries for 137 yards and two touchdowns. Tyler Powers ran eight times for 89 yards and a touchdown. Overall, the Eagles rushed for 343 yards.

The Quakers ran for 207 yards against Mineral Ridge. Kade Byland led with 10 carries for 78 yards and two total touchdowns (one rushing and one receiving). Cooper Bezeredi tallied 50 yards on just three carries and three total touchdowns (two rushing and one punt return).

“The biggest thing we did was distribute the ball,” Johnson said. “We got a lot of different guys touching the ball. That was the main thing. We’re not one dimensional. A lot of different guys who can impact a game makes it really hard to defend us.”

Even with each team’s huge victories on opening night, both coaches believe the mindsets are still in tact. Nothing needed to be said to change their attitudes.

“We don’t have to. Their minds have been right all year,” Johnson said. “The mindsets are locked in. The outcome of the game had no bearing on their mindsets. They’re always anxious to play the next game.”

That next game is on Friday at Salem. The Eagles defeated the Quakers 34-26 last year.

“We’re a very young football team, so we’ll make mistakes,” Demster said. “The thing that kind of overcomes those mistakes is the effort, especially with our offensive and defensive lines. Before the first week, that was by far our biggest weakness.”

Columbiana-Crestview rivalry as intense as ever

COLUMBIANA—The date on the calendar might be earlier, but the intensity will remain the same when rivals Crestview and Columbiana collide Friday at Firestone Park.

Due to the re-aligned Inter-Tri County League, the game will no longer count in the league standings, but that fact didn’t seem to bother anyone.

“I don’t think anyone cares when it’s played,” Columbiana receiver Jake Ward said. “It’s always been a big rivalry no matter what. It’s always a very competitive game.”

“It’s still going to be a typical rivalry game,” Crestview coach Paul Cusick said. “Both teams always come out with a lot of emotion.”

Both squads come in flying high after impressive week one victories. Columbiana emerged with a wild 44-37 upset over Western Reserve. Junior quarterback Mitch Davidson sliced up the Blue Devils defense for 300 passing yards with five touchdown passes. He tossed a 25-yard game-winning score to Tanner Smith with 22 seconds left.

The 44 points were the most any opponent has scored on Western Reserve since Norwalk St. Paul beat the Blue Devils 45-0 in a 2009 first-round playoff game.

“That win makes everyone feel a lot more positive around here,” Columbiana receiver Dalton Miller said. “Nobody expected us to beat Western Reserve, it showed we can compete with good teams.”

“I wasn’t surprised when I saw the score of that game,” Cusick said. “I knew Columbiana was capable of putting a bunch of points on the board. (Mitch) Davidson has a great command of that offense.”

Crestview meanwhile, laid a 45-14 thumping on a Beaver Local squad which returned 14 starters from last seasons six-win team.

The Rebels imposed their will up front on both sides of the ball, racking up 301 yards in the first half.

“It’s a typical Crestview team,” Columbiana coach Bob Spaite said. “They’re very big and physical up front. They run to the ball very well on defense. We’ll be in trouble if we don’t come ready to play.”

“I was very impressed with how physical we were last week,” Cusick said.

Cusick remembers well the scare that Davidson and the Clippers put into Crestview in last years regular-season finale.

The Rebels took a seemingly comfortable 54-28 lead into the fourth quarter before Davidson led a furious rally. The deficit was trimmed all the way down to 54-50 before the Rebels

Bauer struggles in Tribe defeat to Jays

By IAN HARRISON
Associated Press

TORONTO — On a rough night for the Indians, Gavin Floyd’s return gave them something to smile about.

R.A. Dickey pitched a four-hitter to win his seventh straight decision, Josh Donaldson had three hits and the Toronto Blue Jays beat Cleveland 5-1 on Wednesday.

With an off day Thursday and extra help in the bullpen now that rosters have expanded, Indians manager Terry Francona yanked struggling starter Trevor Bauer (10-11) after the right-hander gave up five runs and six hits in 1 1/3 innings.

Six relievers followed, including Floyd, who was pitching for the first time since June 19, 2014, with Atlanta. Floyd needed a second surgery after suffering the same injury in spring training this year.

Working in relief for the first time since May 2011, Floyd retired the heart of Toronto’s lineup — Donaldson, Jose Bautista, and Edwin Encarnacion — in the seventh.

“It was really good to see,” Francona said. “On a tough night, it was nice to see him pitch in a major league game.”

Floyd said it was “fun” to get into a game for the first time in more than a year.

“My heart was racing but I was able to control my emotions and zero in on what I needed to do,” he said.

Catcher Yan Gomes came to the mound for a brief chat midway through Floyd’s warmup pitches.

“We had a refresher as far as what pitches I throw,” Floyd said.

Cleveland lost consecutive games for the first time since Aug. 18 and 19 at Boston. They went 9-2 in between.

AL East-leading Toronto won for the fifth time in six games, maintaining a 1 1/2-game lead over the New York Yankees, who beat Boston 13-8.

Bauer failed to get through two innings for the second time in four starts.

“Even warming up (pitching coach Mickey Callaway) said the fastball was up,” Francona said. “When he got in the game he just couldn’t drive it down and that was certainly the game plan against these guys. He wasn’t able to get it there.”

Donaldson and Troy Tulowitzki each had RBI singles in the first and Donaldson chased Bauer with a two-run double in the second.

Jeff Manship came on and walked Jose Bautista and Edwin Encarnacion before Donaldson tagged and scored on Tulowitzki’s fly ball that second baseman Jason Kipnis caught in shallow center. When Kipnis’ throw tailed toward third base, Donaldson dove around the tag attempt from catcher Yan Gomes, touching the plate with his left hand before landing on his chest.

“Kipnis has a pretty good arm but he was moving back,” Donaldson said. “I felt like his momentum was carrying him back which makes it a little bit more difficult of a play for him.”

Dickey (10-10) threw 92 pitches, including 68 strikes, in his second complete game of the season and 15th of his career. Now 7-0 since the All-Star break, he’s unbeaten in 10 starts dating to a July 9 road loss against the White Sox.

“What’s worked is the bats have exploded when I pitch,” Dickey said. “That’s always nice, to pitch with a lead.”

Dickey set down 14 straight before Kipnis hit a one-out single in the ninth. Francisco Lindor ended it by grounding into a double play.

FAMILIAR FOE
Floyd’s previous relief appearance was May 28, 2011, with the White Sox, when he came on in the 14th inning of a game in Toronto and gave up a game-winning home run to Corey Patterson.

NO-HIT HISTORY
Tuesday marked the 25th anniversary of the only no-hitter in Blue Jays history. Right-hander Dave Stieb did it against the Indians at Municipal Stadium as Toronto won 3-0.

Blue Jays: RHP Marcus

Stroman (left knee) threw 4 2/3 hitless innings at Class-A Lansing Wednesday, striking out seven and walking one. Stroman is scheduled to throw a bullpen session in Toronto on Friday before starting at Triple-A Buffalo next Monday.

Indians: Cleveland is off Thursday before beginning a three-game series at Detroit on Friday. RHP Corey Kluber (8-13, 3.41 ERA) seeks to win for the first time in four starts. The Tigers have yet to name a starter.

Blue Jays: After an off day Thursday, Toronto begins a three-game series against Baltimore on Friday. RHP Drew Hutchison 13-2, 4.87 ERA) starts the opener against RHP Ubaldo Jimenez (9-9, 4.34). Hutchison is 11-1 with a 2.46 ERA in 14 home starts.

Buckeyes top Big Ten openers with revenge

By ERIC OLSON
AP College Football Writer

Some things to watch in the Big Ten as the season begins with 14 games over five days.

GAME OF THE WEEK: No. 1 Ohio State is out to avenge its only 2014 loss when it begins the defense of its national title at Virginia Tech on Monday night. Whether J.T. Barrett or Cardale Jones starts at QB, the Buckeyes are bound to get better play from that position than they did a year ago when Barrett was 9 of 29 and threw three interceptions in the 35-21 loss in Columbus. The Buckeyes’ defense won’t miss a beat even with star Joey Bosa suspended, and Urban Meyer should run his record to 14-0 in openers as a head coach.

BEST MATCHUP: It’s anyone’s guess what will happen when BYU visits Nebraska on Saturday. What’s known is that it’s the first game for new Cornhuskers coach Mike Riley. What’s not is how many players will be suspended. Cougars coach Bronco Mendenhall isn’t saying who will sit for joining in a fight with Memphis at the Miami Beach Bowl. Riley is holding out five of his players for team rules violations but won’t identify them until closer to the game. Also unknown is what Riley’s offense — which might be more of a mish-mash than his preferred pro-style — will look like against an aggressive and physical BYU defense.

INSIDE THE NUMBERS: Minnesota, which hosts No. 2 TCU on Thursday night, hasn’t beaten a top-10 opponent at home since No. 1 Michigan in 1977. ... No. 20 Wisconsin, which faces No. 3 Alabama on Saturday night, is playing the second of three straight openers against Southeastern Conference opponents. ... Nebraska’s 29 straight wins in openers lead the nation. ... Penn State, which plays at Temple on Saturday, is unbeaten in 39 straight against the Owls.

LONG SHOT: Illinois State merits Iowa’s full attention on Saturday. The Redbirds were the 2014 FCS runners-up and are the division’s No. 2-ranked team in the preseason. They won’t be intimidated. QB Tre Roberson started for Indiana in 2011 and played well in a loss at Kinick Stadium. LB Reggie Spearman appeared in 21 games for Iowa before transferring to Illinois State. The Hawkeyes finished poorly in 2014 and are picked no higher than fourth in the Big Ten West. The heat is rising on Kirk Ferentz. Lose this one, and it will be downright hot in Iowa City.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Whoever starts at QB for Michigan at Utah on Thursday night. One of the sidelights to the long-anticipated opener for new Michigan coach Jim Harbaugh is the mystery surrounding the quarterback. Co-No. 1s Jake Rudock and Shane Morris know who will start. Harbaugh just hasn’t said who it is publicly. Utes coach Kyle Whitting told reporters he’s expecting Rudock, a graduate transfer who started 25 games for Iowa.

sealed the win with a late touchdown. Davidson passed for 319 yards, ran for 207 more and had a hand in all seven Columbiana touchdowns.

“You have to be very disciplined with your pass rush against him (Davidson),” Cusick said. “Even when a play breaks down, he can still make something happen. You can’t give him a seam to run through.”

Crestview will have a distinct size advantage up front. The Rebels average 234 pounds across their offensive line, while Columbiana averages 182 pounds across its defensive front.

“I don’t think that’s really a concern for us,” Davidson said. “Western Reserve was a lot bigger than us too. We’re going to be smaller than most teams we play this year.”

The Rebels lead the series 17-7 overall and have not lost to the Clippers since 2008. Columbiana has not beaten Crestview at home since 2003.

“They’ve become my white whale,” Spaite said. “We’ve always played pretty well against them, but they’ve always been a little bit better. It seems like they usually have an answer for everything you throw at them.”

Both teams enter the game pretty healthy. Crestview will be missing sophomore running back Danny Moore (concussion) for the second straight week. Columbiana defensive tackle Frank Rupert left last week’s game with an elbow injury but is expected to play according to Spaite.

Mineral Ridge at Lisbon
Nostalgia will be in the air at War Memorial Field on Friday. Lisbon will hold a special ceremony at half-time celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Blue Devils 1995 state championship. Anyone who was on the team was invited to come back and be recognized.

“Most of the guys said they are coming, it should be a nice turnout,” Lisbon coach Jim Tsilimos—who also coached the team in 1995—said. I’m looking forward to seeing them. Hopefully we deliver a win.

The Blue Devils routed Tuscarawas Central Catholic 54-0 last week and will be favored again this week. Mineral Ridge—which went 4-6 last year—was blown out 54-7 by Salem last week.

“Mineral Ridge has a very experienced coaching staff, they’ll be ready for us,” Tsilimos said. “They have a lot back from last year and Salem was a tough team for them to open against.”

Wellsville at East Palestine
Both teams will be looking to rebound after week one setbacks.

The Tigers fell to Toronto 22-13. Wellsville fell behind 22-0 before posting a couple of touchdowns to make things interesting. Receiver Mike Shope had a strong showing in his first game with the Tigers, with 85 yards of total offense and two touchdowns. East Palestine could never get its offense started in a 21-0 loss to McDonald. Freshman quarterback Parker Sherry made his first start, completing 7-of-20 passes for 57 yards and one interception.

The last time the two teams hooked up was 2011, with the Bulldogs winning 40-13. East Palestine has won the last four meetings between the two.

Campbell at South Range
South Range’s first game

after the graduation of record-setting tailback Joe Alessi was a bumpy one. The Raiders turned the ball over four times on their way to a 30-10 loss to Warren JFK. Campbell was blanked 21-0 by Lakeview in its opener.

McDonald at Springfield
The Tigers came out firing in week one with a 41-31 comeback win over playoff contender Brookfield. Senior quarterback Graham Mincher led Springfield back from an 18-0 deficit, completing 18-of-27 passes for 327 yards and six touchdowns. McDonald dropped East Palestine 21-0, holding the Bulldogs to 39 yards of total offense in the first half.

Conotton Valley at Southern
The Indians just missed getting their first win under coach Rich Wright as they fell 20-19 to Paden City (W.V.) last week. Conotton Valley fell 30-6 to Strasburg-Franklin.

Leetonia at Mathews
The Bears fell to Fairport Harding 14-0 in coach Hadi Hadi’s debut last week. The Mustangs drubbed Ashtabula St. John 61-8.

REBELS FROM 1B

and two assists.

Makenzie Ferenchak, Caragyn Yanek, Rachel Maynard added goals for the Raiders (3-2).

Maynard also added two assists. Kameron Hobbs and Hope Thomas each had one assist.

Devon Asher scored the lone Tiger goal.

Beaver Local 3, Columbiana 0
COLUMBIANA – The Beaver Local girls soccer team posted a shutout over Columbiana 3-0 on Wednesday.

Alexa Schwerha, Alex Eisenhart and Kierra Taylor each scored for the Beavers (4-0). Stefani Watson, Hannah Hughes and Leah Pancake each tallied an assist.

Beaver Local returns home to face East Liverpool on Saturday.

Minerva 1, West Branch 0
MINERVA—The West Branch girls soccer team fell to Minerva 1-0 Wednesday. The Warriors (0-3) had 12 shots on goal but could not capitalize. Kendall Briceland had five saves.

Chewing tobacco banned at Fenway

BOSTON (AP) — A ban on smokeless tobacco products at Fenway Park and other Boston sports venues was approved Wednesday by the City Council.

Boston becomes the second city after San Francisco to approve such a ban. Los Angeles also is weighing a prohibition on smokeless tobacco, commonly called dip, chew or snuff.

The council unanimously approved the ban proposed this summer by Mayor Marty Walsh, who will have to sign the measure before it takes effect next April. The ban also has the backing of the Boston Red Sox and former Red Sox pitcher Curt Schilling, a mouth cancer survivor.

The ban prohibits the use of smokeless tobacco on all ballfields where professional, collegiate, high school or amateur sports are played. Violators will face a $250 fine. Ban signs will have to be posted in dugouts, bullpens, training rooms, locker rooms, press boxes, television and radio broadcast booths, and bathrooms throughout the sports venues.

The Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids applauded Boston for setting what it called a “powerful example” that all Major League Baseball teams should follow.

Facebook post defending Pelini firing costs job

By ERIC OLSON
AP College Football Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. — A months-old Facebook post has cost the Nebraska football stadium announcer his job one day after his hiring was announced.

Jon Schuetz said Tuesday that a university official told him he was let go because of a Facebook post critical of the firing of football coach Bo Pelini last November. Schuetz said he has deleted the post and declined to comment on what it said.

"They were correct to do it," Schuetz said of his firing. "I own it. It should be a lesson to everybody: be very careful what you say on social media."

The university has named Lane Grindle the Memorial Stadium announcer starting with Saturday's game against BYU. Grindle has worked as radio sideline reporter for the Husker IMG Sports Network.

Grindle becomes the third man in a month to hold the job. The school on Aug. 6 fired its longtime public address announcer, Patrick Combs, after he was arrested on suspicion of bilking hundreds of thousands of dollars from two elderly women.

Schuetz's voice is well-known in the state. He had worked more than 15 years as an Omaha sportscaster and 24 years overall in local television. He left TV in 2010 and works in private business in Omaha.

Screen shots of the post began appearing online shortly after Schuetz's firing was announced.

It was dated Nov. 30, the day Pelini was fired, and took aim at chancellor Harvey Perlman for his handling of former athletic director Steve Pederson, whom he fired in 2007.

It wasn't clear how the university discovered Schuetz's Facebook post. The university said in a statement that it was made aware of the post on Monday. It read: "Harvey Perlman is as (sic) disgrace. Remember this was the guy who extended Steve Pederson's contract only to fire him a few months later. When will he be held to account."

"After reviewing the post, highly critical of university leadership and, after thorough internal discussion, we visited with Jon, who was extremely apologetic and agreed with our decision that he cannot represent the university in such a public capacity," the university statement said.

Schuetz said he felt badly that the athletic department had to find a new announcer so close to the first game.

"There were people who went to bat for me to get me into the mix for this," Schuetz said. "I feel like I let them down."

Grindle will continue his pre- and postgame duties on the radio and will be the sideline reporter for away games. Former Nebraska quarterback Steve Taylor, who also works for the radio network, will be the sideline reporter for home games.

One more chance for Pryor

By TOM WITHERS
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND — Terrelle Pryor doesn't want a hand-out. No, thank you.

If he's going to make the Browns' roster as a wide receiver, Pryor, the former NFL quarterback with extraordinary physical gifts, intends to earn it. He's had to go it alone most of his life, and isn't seeking favors as he faces perhaps his last chance to prolong his pro career.

"I don't like being given anything," he said.

Slowed by a nagging hamstring injury for the past month, Pryor may finally get to showcase his progress in switching to wide receiver on Thursday night as the Browns visit the Chicago Bears in the final exhibition for both teams. Final roster cuts are coming Saturday.

The Browns have been impressed with Pryor's work ethic, diligence and skills in practice. But they haven't seen him perform in a game, and until they do, there's no way to know if he can help them. Coach Mike Pettine wouldn't define this as "make or break" for Pryor, but the Browns can't afford to fill a spot on their 53-man roster with potential. They need play-makers.

Pryor had been expected to play last week at Tampa Bay, but the Browns decided to hold him out to give the hamstring extra time to heal. The 6-foot-4, 225-pounder said the frustrating injury has impeded him from bursting off the line of scrimmage, but he's determined to give it a try against the Bears.

He's not 100 percent healthy, but he's almost out of time.

"I'm sure it will come back eventually, but right now I'm dealing with the circumstances I have," he said following Tuesday's practice in steamy conditions. "That's to make a play on a leg and a half, I guess."

ing was announced. It was dated Nov. 30, the day Pelini was fired, and took aim at chancellor Harvey Perlman for his handling of former athletic director Steve Pederson, whom he fired in 2007.

It wasn't clear how the university discovered Schuetz's Facebook post. The university said in a statement that it was made aware of the post on Monday. It read: "Harvey Perlman is as (sic) disgrace. Pryor's intriguing potential has the Browns in a bit of a bind. Do they keep him on their roster based on his upside? Or risk releasing him and Pryor catching on with another team?

With Pettine expected to keep at least six wide receivers, the decision on Pryor could come down to either him or Vince Mayle, the club's fourth-round pick from Washington State. Mayle, who has struggled with dropped passes in training camp, could wind up on the practice squad.

From the start of training camp, Pryor has drawn rave reviews from teammates. Pro Bowl cornerback Joe Haden and fellow wideout Dwayne Bowe believe that Pryor can not only play wide receiver, but star.

The compliments have fueled Pryor.

"I can't fathom the feeling for me to have a guy like Joe Haden, Dwayne Bowe and guys like that to speak up for me on my behalf," he said. "It doesn't get any better than that."

Pryor's hamstring issue could be a result of him doing more running than ever before, and he's been
