FOREWORD

Annuals are funny things. They're almost human. They like to be pampered and coddled, admired and appreciated, treated with care. They're affectionate little critters, but they're mighty cantankerous, too. Sometimes they get quite out of hand. And then there's nothing much a doting editor or staff can do.

Some annuals have lots of school spirit. Every page of an annual should contain, spread over its shiny surface, real school spirit. Every page should be filled with school life that bubbles out of the book into the heart of the reader. Every word and every picture should mean something important to the student who sees those words and pictures.

We've tried to train the 1937 Quaker Annual to meet these standards. We've tried to make it worthy of the school that it represents. We've tried to make it a credit to the educational system to which it owes its existence. We've tried to make it live and talk and sing of Salem High.

You, the students and faculty of Salem High, having seen the Annual, will know whether we have succeeded.

DEDICATION . . .

This man has never become famous by coaching a championship ping-pong team. He has never won great renown by writing a text-book on chemistry. He has never been called to consult with the President of the United States on improving methods of education. He has never made his mark as an orator. Because he has not done all these things, we are dedicating this Annual to him.

This man has become famous in our school because of his ability to make his classes so interesting that students forget they are learning things. He has won very great renown as a superb chess and four-in-a-row player. He has been asked to mediate in many student disputes, and his opinion is always respected. And though his knees shake when confronted by nine hundred faces and ears, he can hold a class of eager chemistry pupils enthralled while he discourses on the peculiarities of atoms and molecules.

Therefore, because he represents all that is admirable and desirable and likable in the faculty of today, we are dedicating the 1937 Quaker Annual to Mr. Herbert Jones.

FACULTY

BOARD OF EDUCATION . . .

★ It is an interesting and significant fact that the individuals most responsible for the welfare of the Salem High School and its activities are the individuals least known to the students of that school. For, although the faculty, the principal, and the superintendent are familiar figures in the life of the "eight hundred," there is an indispensable group known as the Board of Education that remains shrouded in mystery as far as the students are concerned.

★ Because most of their work is carried on quietly and efficiently, away from the actual scenes of daily education, and because Mr. Kerr usually acts as the intermediary between the board and the student body, there is little chance for contact. It is indeed unfortunate that the boys and girls who owe so much to the zeal and energy of the Board of Education have so little opportunity to become acquainted with them.

If the students of Salem High School were to meet their "scholastic guardians," they would find them men of unusual interest and merit. They are all prominent, public-spirited citizens who take keen interest in the affairs of the day, especially those pertaining to education.

Without a Board of Education, the students of Salem High School would be lost; with such a fine board they are immeasurably fortunate.

SUPERINTENDENT . . .

Six years ago, the name of Earl S. Kerr was a new one on the lips of some 2,500 Salem public school students. He had entered the superintendency unheralded and unknown to the pupils but recognized by those officials who appointed him as one person who could ably superintend the Salem schools.

But since that day in the late summer of '31 when Mr. Kerr took up the reins to guide efficiently the Salem school system, those same students, who did not know their superintendent, have grown to like and to admire him. He is not a person they can leave behind in the classroom and the associations therein. He is too active in their community life for that.

Too, he is known throughout the state for his educational activities and is continually being honored by some new presidency or chairmanship.

However active in other cities or in the advancement of education, the one chief interest of Superintendent Kerr now is the development of Salem schools. It is here that because of actual contact he is becoming better liked and admired. Those of us who have known him for the six years find behind the executive mask, a pair of twinkling brown eyes, two ears eager to listen, and a pleasing voice ready to give advice when it is wanted.

Earl S. Kerr

PRINCIPAL OF S.H.S.

Harold M. Williams

It was just ten years ago last fall that a very enthusiastic and personable young man, "fresh" from college, joined the faculty of Salem High school as social science instructor and faculty manager of athletics. The young man was Harold M. Williams; the date was 1927. Now it is 1937 and he has since added the distinguished title of principal to his name.

What is the story of this man and his success?

Mr. Williams was born and reared in the central part of Ohio. He graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and has since taken post graduate work at Ohio State and Columbia universities. In 1933 he was appointed principal of Salem Junior High. During these years in the high school and the junior high, he became well acquainted with the Salem schools and their traditions.

Thus it was with great pleasure and gratification that the people of Salem and the students of Salem High learned that Harold Williams had been chosen to fill the office left vacant by the former principal, Wilbur J. Springer.

In the brief period which he has been principal of Salem High school, Mr. Williams has endeared himself to the students and faculty. He has, indeed, proved himself qualified to carry on as principal of any high school, but especially, Salem High school. We sincerely wish him good luck in continuing his career.

DEAN OF GIRLS

The alert lady behind the desk looked up inquiringly, pen poised, as the reporter entered. Suddenly her preoccupation vanished and she smiled. "Oh, yes, the interview," she murmured briskly.

"In June the class of 1937 goes out into the world's daily round of life to add still more knowledge and experience to that which it has been accumulating."

She mused in silence for a moment, green pen-cap pressed against her chin. "What of its future? Well, it is said that the keynote of success in life is in the measure of one's service to humanity. Everywhere, every day, we hear the term 'service.' But more important, back of service lies character, that indefinable something which is the determining factor in material success and influence.

"If we call to mind those who have won loyalty and affection (and she is one of them), we find it is not because of wealth, or reputation, or success, but character.

"To beget trust and respect is to beget influence. Since it is character, basically, that gives one influence, he who wins the confidence of others finds spread before him an ever-widening field for service, and through service comes happiness."

She twisted a small green ring, meditatively, and glanced apologetically at the line of girls awaiting her counsel. "My sincerest wishes to the class of '37."

M. Maude Hart

Presenting, for due appreciation, a fine collection of A-1 specimens of the genus "scholae," highly-trained scholastic minds, continually-exercised senses of humor and versatility. One Mr. Webster, in singularly dull prose, calls a teacher "one who imparts knowledge." He seems to have forgotten to add, "high in humor, one possessed of a keenness for life, sportsmanship and humanity." Or maybe in that our collection is unique.

Evidently these swell-guys are well-versed in what the Walrus said, because budding buds and lengthening days find them pursuing devious routes as far dissociated as "cabbages and kings." Among our faculty a prying eye might discern authors, composers, nimrods, Isaak Waltons, ministers, pro-baseball men, politics-talking insurance men, and far from least, a descendant of Duncan of Scotland, who's hobby is desultory research on the subject. The last is a new addition, Mr. McDonald, of the dramatics department.

Aside from Mr. McDonald, five others were new to the '36-'37 teaching staff. They were Miss Weaver, who replaced Mrs. Henning; Miss Roth, who filled the vacancy in 201; Mr. Early, who replaced Mrs. Early, just to keep it in the family; Mr. Schroeder, who replaced Mr. (Now I'm a G-man) Smith; and Mr. Brungard, who didn't replace anyone. The class of '37 bade them hail and farewell!

The true test . . . the acid test . . . the crucial moment comes when a teacher thinks of a pun. If he smiles inwardly and keeps it to himself, he is not a peer among tutors. If, on the other hand, he smirks and holds up a hand for silence, then imparts his mirth and merriment, he's not only a professor worthy of the name—he's a genius! A concrete sponge is offered to the person or persons who can name even one of our thirty-two instructors who has not at some time in the hidden past indulged in this lowest form of wit. That, if our modesty is forgiven, is somethin'.

Rare, indeed, is a combination of leniency and discipline; it is hard to accomplish. But it has been done here. The teachers have grown so to understand their problem charges through patient and sincere interest that such a movement would be entirely superfluous.

If that state is uncommon, it is therefore, appreciated the more. If there have been tiffs they have been laughed off by both parties, and, as they say in Sweden, everything is hunky-dory. So, hats off!

CLASSES

THE CLASS OF 1937

Arthur Bahmiller, Kenneth Shears, Reba Dilworth

From the greenest of green freshmen to the most dignified seniors, members of the Class of 1937 have advanced in their four years of Salem High School life. Yet there is not one of them who does not look back with regret to the time when he entered these now familiar halls as a beginner, inexperienced and innocent of the worldly mannerisms of the high school student.

It was in the late spring of '33 when a scattered bunch of some 200 eighth graders were disowned by Junior High and were embarked upon a high school career. They had passed the youngster stage and were well aware of the fact that they were growing up. Accordingly, dresses were made two inches longer and worn knickers were exchanged for long trousers. Thus attired and determined that no upperclassmen should call them green, they were found one September morning to be approaching their new abode of learning.

But grownup as they might have been in their own opinion, their superiors and teachers found them just another crop of silly, giggling freshmen. It was not long, however, before these beginners distinguished themselves as being more than typical freshies. A few months passed and they took their medicine on Hallowe'en, thus rightfully earning an honored place among the other three classes. Now was the chance to group themselves into a well-organized unit, combined to meet and overcome all obstacles which superiors might place in their path. They chose Kenny Shears, president; Art Brian, vice-president; and Art Bahmiller, secretary-treasurer to lead them in this campaign.

Then in the spring of that year came the first big social event in their high school lives—the freshman-sophomore party. As they danced to the strains of the music and talked and laughed with the Sophs, they realized in their minds that they were no longer just freshmen; they had established their name firmly in the history book of Salem High as the Class of 1937.

The next fall the much-coveted name of Sophomores was bestowed upon them. This title brought pride and satisfaction to their beaming faces. There was at least one class whom they could now look down on and pester with deriding statements.

Their members, this year, were found in every activity available to them. The same class officers were re-elected; more money was placed in the treasury; class colors became blue and white: and the Class of '37 had once more found their way into the hearts of their fellow classmates and teachers.

Then in the fall of '35 someone whispered, "Upperclassmen", as the juniors took their assigned seats in the first assembly of the year and their chests swelled out with pride. So many things were allotted to those who claimed the name of upperclassmen. This was the year when they would have their first separate class party, when they would present their first dramatic production to raise money so that they might entertain the seniors at a grand and glorious prom. To carry the executive burdens this year they re-elected Kenny Shears, president, and chose Art Bahmiller, vice-president, and Reba Dilworth, secretary-treasurer.

The single class party in December was a huge success and was another milestone toward an equally successful prom. True to their word, they worked hard and turned out one of the grandest class plays in many years, the tragi-comedy, "Smilin' Through". All was ready for the prom. The night finally arrived and seniors and juniors in their formal attire mingled together in happy companionship. It may have been the last prom for the seniors but the juniors held no regrets as the last note of music died away—that merely signified the end to another glorious evening in their high school life.

As the first school bell rang in the fall of '36, there were in SHS halls 159 students who called themselves dignified seniors. They had three years of success behind them and they were starting on another. "Find the Woman," the class play, added another feather to their already filled cap. The class party, activities throughout the year, topped by the prom—all were big moments.

Yet, until that instant when each member of the Class of 1937 looks at his fellow classmates in commencement garb and rises at the mention of his name on the roll call, will he realize the final note has been sounded. To the minds of the 159 students will come the recollections of four years full of memories never to be forgotten, four years full of experiences useful in the school of life, and four years which have made them wiser, happier and better.

Here begins the story of the Class of 1937 which entered

THE CLASS OF 1938

The activities of the Junior Class in the past year show that the Class of '38 measures up to other classes that have come and gone in Salem High School.

Class officers were chosen the first semester with the result that Charles Wentz, Harold Hoperich, and Stella Fidoe were re-elected to the offices of president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively.

When the count was taken in the fall turnout of football candidates, 15 Juniors were present. Some made the varsity squad and some didn't get past the reserves, but all were ready to "do or die" for the Red and Black of Salem.

Those who received awards were Bob Saunders, Oliver Olexa, Mike Oana, Julius Nestor, Bob Minamy, Milan Mileusnic, Bill Malloy, Joseph Kornbau, Bob Kirchgessner, Mike Cerbu, Vaughn Caufield, Lloyd Walker, Mike Zimmerman, and Charles Wentz.

The class is proud of its representation on the basketball team. The six-foot three of Max Lutsch, and accurate shooting of Gilbert Everhart and Oliver Olexa, along with the dependability of Mike Oana were deciding factors in taking the basketball team to the State Tournament at Columbus this year. Lutsch and Everhart have been members of the varsity for the last two years, while this is Oana's initial year with the first-stringers.

To raise money for its treasury, the class opened a stand at the home basketball games and sold megaphones which were personally signed by the members of the basketball team. The stand was a success, yielding a substantial profit.

Those wishing to broaden their education by attending the Slide Rule Club were Herbert Arfmann, Leah Leipper, Lionel Dieford, Harold Hoprich, Richard Klyne, Ralph Taylor, Jr., Charles Trotter, and Ralph Probert.

Nine members of the class have been in the band, helping make this one of the most successful seasons. They are Bob Hinton, Harold Hoprich, Betty Ketterer, Leah Leipper, Anna Simion, Margaret Simon, Marguerite Vincent, Charles Wentz, and Martin Whitman.

Miss Lehman picked as her librarians from the Junior Class Stella Fidoe, Elsie Hunter, Betty Morris, and Elizabeth Elder.

Representation in the Salemasquers was high with 15 Juniors qualifying for the dramatic club.

A "novel idea" was presented at the Junior Class party, held March 19. The party started at 7:30 with a full hour devoted to games. Dancing started at 8:30 and continued until 11:30 with games on the sidelines. A square dance was called just before intermission, in which everyone participated. Orangeade, ice cream, and cruellers were served at the intermission, and a door prize of a box of candy was given away. The gym was decorated in the class colors, red and gray, with the green of St. Patrick's day scattered throughout. Ray Bartholomew and his orchestra played for the dancing.

The Junior Play was presented April 1 and 2; Mr. James McDonald, dramatic teacher, directed it, with Verna Carpenter filling the role of student director.

The play, "The Yankee King," was a romantic comedy portraying the troubles of a hen-pecked husband. Pa Hinckle was played by Charles Trotter. His dominant wife, Ma Hinckle, was portrayed by Martha Farmer. Don Beattie and Mary Helen Bruderly acted the roles of the son and daughter, Wilbur and Marion.

The other members in the cast were David Hart, Lionel Difford, Ray Coppock, Joe Bush, Ralston Smith, Jane Bechtel, Betty Albright, Margaret Simon, Elizabeth Elder, Ruth Wright, and Jane Cope.

In a class meeting held to choose the assistant association officers, Harold Hoperich, Mary Helen Bruderly and Bill Brooks were elected president, secretary and treasurer, respectively. These student officers serve as assistants during their Junior year and then become head officers their Senior year.

Bill Jones served as assistant business manager of "The Quaker". He will become business manager next year. Paul Meier also was associated with the business staff this year.

Juniors who had memberships on the Quaker editorial staff were Don Beattie, Charles Wentz, Betty Albright, Charlotte Morey, Virginia Hurray, Verna Carpenter, Ruth Wright, Leah Leipper and Harold Hoperich.

The class is also well represented in the orchestra. With the orchestra smaller than it has been in past years, representation of each class is small. Juniors in the orchestra are Betty Ketterer, Bob Boughton, Stella Holovka, and Joe Bush.

Two members of the class of '38 who achieved distinction in track last year have been back to represent Salem again this year. They are Haro'd Culler, star distance runner, and Max Lutsch, high-jumper extraordinary. Those trying for a letter in track this year were John Shea, George Adams, Bob Hinton, and Joe Kornbau.

Boys who were managers of the sports are Ward Eckstein, basketball; George King, football, and Mike Oana, track. These boys worked hard and deserve a lot of credit.

The Junior-Senior Prom was held June 4 with the usual gayety and color.

These are the accomplishments of the class of '38. Are they not accomplishments of which to be proud; are they not a challenge to the oncoming Junior class?

THE CLASS OF 1939

The members of the class of '39 have been in the halls of Salem High for two years. During these two years they have accomplished a great deal and have caused the other classes to take notice of their activities. The class as a whole is keenly interested in the scholastic and athletic activities of the school and has entered into them whole-heartedly.

The first major act of the class was to organize. Officers were elected the first semester. The 250 members of the class chose John Evans for their president, William Rogers for vice-president, and Mary Louise Emery as secretary-treasurer.

The masculine half of the class was seemingly an athletically inclined group. Football season found a large number of boys as candidates for the team. During the season, nineteen boys on the squad were representatives of the sophomore class. They are Richard Capel, Charles Everstine, Harold Fitzsimmons, Mike Guappone, Charles Huddleston, Bill Haifley, Harry Halverstadt, Joe Morris, Alvin Robbins, Bill Rogers, David Rohen, Bill Schaeffer, John Syppko, Frank Skowran, Bill Segesman, Dalbert Thomas, Richard Terry, Stuart Wise, and Walter Wagoner.

Basketball season followed very quickly and again the class offered numerous and promising candidates for an athletic team. Some were members of the varsity squad; others, reserve players. Jim Dickey and Bill Schaeffer played on both the varsity and reserve teams. Reserve players were Bill Rogers, Galen Duncan, Harry Halverstadt, Amos Dunlap, Burton Sutter, and Clifford Lowry. Pete Taffin was the sophomore manager.

The sophomores also participated in track events. Among the track enthusiasts were Dick Terry, Frank Stone, Gilmer Coffee, Joe Morris, William Hiltbrand, Jim Dickey, Tip Lowry, Charles Huddleston, Alvin Robbins, Robert Lutz, and John Syppko.

Marjorie Layden was the only girl in the class to be interested enough in library work to become a member of Miss Lehman's staff.

The girls of the class did not by any means permit the boys to take all the athletic honors. Thirty-eight of them belonged to the G. A. A. and took part in its activities throughout the year. They were Polly Silvers, Dorothy Milligan, Helen Moga, Theresa Hoff, Frances Simone, Helen Lowry, Helen Adams, Janet Greenisen, Mary Jane Lora, Viola McGaffick, Katherine Sturgeon, Louise Colian, Alice Zatko, Avanelle Bard, Evelyn Tilley, Janice Yeager, Ruth Kelley, Blanche Yeager, Helen Piticar, Janice Green, Gay Rich, Olga Heidrich, Gertrude Faulkner, Louise Cecil, Gussie Hart, Neta Lantz, Elizabeth Julian, Mildred Cleland, Isabelle Fink, Ruth Scott, Marge Dow, Betty Rogers, Betty Lee Stoudt, Margaret Votaw, Louise McNicol, Betty Wilson, Mary Scheuring, and Zelda English.

The music of the high school band was produced with the aid of Joe Morris, Leroy Moss, Warren Hixenbaugh, Henry Pauline, Jack Wright, Kenneth McConner, Mary Jane Britt, Earl Taffin, Frances Webster, Louis Colian, Bill Wark, Nick Chitea, George Hanson, John Evans, Joe Fisher, Bob Harshman, Wallace Luce, Bob Vickers, Joe Cooper, Eloise Dunn, and Charles Huddleston. There were also a few members in the high school orchestra.

The following sophomore band members were entered in the district solo and ensemble contest at Mount Union: Wallace Luce, Henry Pauline, George Hanson, Joe Morris, and John Evans.

Three "thirty-niners" can boast of enviable positions on the Quaker editorial staff. Up to the present time, only those sophomores who showed unusual ability in writing journalistic articles were allowed to become staff members because sophomores were not permitted to study journalism. However, this year the journalism course was offered to sophomore students and in the future there will probably be many of them on the staff. Nevertheless, this year's sophomore members are Henry Pauline, news reporter, and John Evans and Marjorie Knisely, feature writers.

Also, coincidentally, three sophomores, Theresa Hoff, David Cope, and Bill Haifley, worked diligently on the Quaker business staff.

To prove further that it had some part in almost every activity and sport offered by the school, the class placed two members on the debate team. Those two who upheld the accomplishments of the class were Constance Clark and Francis McNicol.

On the night of April 23rd the class of '39 and the class of '40 held their annual traditional freshman-sophomore party. The gym was gayly decorated in the purple and gold of the sophomore class and the usual green and white of the freshman class. The party was a merry as well as successful event.

This class of '39, in two years having proved itself to be a body capable of accomplishing well any undertaking it sets out to master, will, if this spirit continues during the latter half of its high school career, mark itself as one of the outstanding classes in Salem High's history.

They are kids
 Grown old and kinder . . .
 Like roses, a little Weary in September.
 May they prosper
 And continue
 As we know them
 Who are gone.

THE CLASS OF 1940 . . .

When the freshmen entered High School last September, they found it very exciting and quite novel, but settled down to the regular routine in a couple of weeks.

Class officers were chosen in the early part of the first semester. The election ran as follows: President, Eddie Cavanaugh; vice-president, Robert Clark; secretary-treasurer, Peggy Stewart. These students have filled their offices to the best of their ability and have cooperated with Miss McCready, freshman class supervisor, in all their undertakings.

As a means of raising money for their treasury, the class sold pencils. One thousand pencils were sold, 500 imprinted with football schedules and 500 imprinted with basketball schedules. Those who sold the most pencils were Jimmy Schaeffer, 225; Betty Kirchgessner, 115; Dolores Jones, 90; and Peggy Stewart and Mike Nicora 50 apiece.

The freshmen took part in almost every activity, sports being one of the most outstanding. There are two good prospects for football next year, namely, Richard Beck and Robert Clark. Several boys went out for basketball and made the reserve team. They are Lester Knepp, Robert Whitcomb and Jim Cleon. According to Mr. Cope, the prospects for trackmen were fair this year. The following were out for track: Richard Beck, shot-putter; John Carlariello, John Tary, Kenny O'Connell, middle distance; Everett Rich and Orrie Wright, dashes; Robert Clark, middle distance and pole vault; William Syppka, Sam Hutter, George Dickey and Tom Hagen, distance events; Jim Schaeffer, high jump and hurdles; and Aden Riffle, running events.

The Salem High School Band was also composed of several freshmen members, namely: Frank Davis, Betty England, Al J. Freed, Ralph Greenisen, Mary Jugastru, Ada Shriver, Bill Sproat, Dix Yates and Aden Riffle.

Among the freshmen who sought admittance into library work were Maxine Fidoie, Virginia Morris, Peggy Stewart, Jane Tinsley and Sara Wonner.

This year a Latin Club has been organized by Miss Horwell. The name of the club is Sodalitas Latina, and the following freshmen are members: Eugene McCready, Robert Clark, Theresa Ciri-costo, Dorothy Klyne, Virginia Morris, Jean Munsell, Ada Shriver, Jean Stone, Betty Tullis, Josephine Vender, Eva Weingart, Eugene Neal, Dorothy Denkhous, Elenor Eberwein, Maxine Fidoe, Elizabeth Hart, Dolores Jones, Helen Knepper, Raye Lanta, Dorothy Miligan, Rosemary Minamyer, Vera Scheuring, Peggy Stewart, and Clarence Woerther.

Many freshmen girls, who were interested in sports, became members of the G. A. A. They are Ellen Monks, Mary McBane, Betty Tullis, Mary McCloskey, Helen Bush, Dorothy Burson, Jean Munsell, Ellen Catlos, Elissa Colian, Helen Voytek, Helen Olexa, Shirley Kelley, Ruth A. Stoudt, Helen Ward, Ruth Tetlow, Theda Grenawalt, Margaret Thiel, Ruth Martin, Billie R. Sproat, Theresa Ciri-costa, Dorothy Huffer, Lois J. McArtor, Betty Bischel, Eva Reader, Helen Fawler, Virginia Morris, Peggy Stewart, Nancy Waggoner, Genevieve Fischer, Vivian Snipes, Betty Tullis and Jean Hutcheson. These girls took part in indoor baseball, volleyball, kick ball, basketball and several other sports.

Those who have already attained distinction on the debate squad are Sara Wonner, Eddie Cavanaugh and Jean Schaffer.

Mrs. Satherthwaite organized a Girls' Glee Club and a Boys' Glee Club. The freshmen in the Girls' Glee Club are Betty Kirchgessner, Vivian Snipes, Maxine Bradley, Ruth Alice Stoudt, Ellen Monks, Shirley Kelley, Ruth West and Jacqueline Van Hovel. Alfred J. Freed is the only freshman member in the Boys' Glee Club.

Robert Clark and Frank Davis were diligently working all year with the Business Manager, Robert Battin.

Mr. Williams and Mr. Sanders organized a Stamp Club this year. The club was interested in procuring very rare stamps. The following freshmen were members: Lee Willman, Jim Schaeffer, Theodore Ursu, Junior Myers, Robert Clark and Leonard Yuhaniak.

Theodore Ursu was also very active as basketball manager this year.

Kenneth Juhn, a freshman artist, won first prize in the Junior Play poster contest.

This year, as in the past few years, the freshmen party was combined with the sophomores. It was held April 23, the first part of the evening being spent in playing games, while the latter part was spent in dancing. During the intermission refreshments were served. The gym was partially decorated in green and white, the traditional colors of the freshman class.

These enthusiastic students, having successfully completed their first year, are eagerly looking into the three coming years, ready to work and play.

Miss Martha McCready, who has supervised freshman classes for the past few years, stated that this class is the most enthusiastic and hard-working group she has ever had.

They are youth
 And gaiety and courage . . .
 May they keep it
 As they grow
 Into men of strength
 And women of grace,
 As things should
 That are wise and young.

To firmly establish the innovations begun by the preceding staff, and to make progress in the realms of high school journalism were the aims of the 1936-37 Quaker editorial staff. These aims were achieved to the satisfaction of the faculty, student body, and all those connected with the Quaker weekly and year book.

Under the leadership of Faculty Advisor H. C. Lehman and Editor-in-Chief Jane Metzger, the staff published thirty issues of the Quaker weekly. Among these were the celebrated Christmas issue, which consisted of eight pages rather than the usual four and the traditional "Crazy Issue" which this year employed the comical "Prison" theme.

The staff consisted of twenty-four members, eleven of whom were seniors, and therefore, experienced journalists.

When the time came to write copy for the Quaker annual, a special staff was chosen. This staff included Jean McCarthy, T. J. Loschinskey, Louise Theiss, Betty Fifer, Bob Hostetler, Loretta Greenisen, Bob Schwartz, Don Beattie and Charles Wentz. They exclusively produced the annual material.

Since there are now two journalism classes each year in Salem High school, and thus a double portion of good journalists, it is probable that in the future, the Quaker weekly and annual will progress even faster and farther than they have in the past.

as they turn out pages of copy and inches of ads

Last September, when Bob Battin became Business Manager of the "Quaker," it was, in his own words, because he was "the only Senior eligible." Despite that, however, Battin has conducted the ad-men through the "Quaker's" most successful season.

In October, the staff set seventy inches as the ad quota for the weekly. Every issue exceeded that mark, until in December, the Christmas issue, instead of the usual six pages, consisted of eight, accomplished by a grand total of 215 inches of ads, a record never before even touched.

The seven super-salesmen set $700 worth of advertisements as their goal for the annual. To accomplish that goal, an intensive sales campaign was started. Letters were sent to potential buyers and an internal incentive was provided when a contest was started for the staff. Prizes of three dollars, two dollars, and one dollar were given to the staff-members selling $100, $90, and $80 worth of ads, respectively.

The staff cut an unusual figure, too, in that four girls tried out for positions. Ann Lease, a senior, and Theresa Hoff, a Sophomore, succeeded, and have all year competed on a level with the boys.

Evalyne Benedict has all year served as student-secretary.

Upon graduation, Battin hands the reins to Bill Jones, his capable assistant, with a wish of good luck.

Behold fifteen charming booktenders of Salem High

According to the statistics presented by Miss Lehman, 125 new books have been added this year making a total of over 3,500 books in the library. Some of these books were gifts, others were purchased by the school. Among the new equipment acquired this past year is a bookcase to house the increasing number of new volumes. It had to be placed in front of the door leading from the library to room 206. This proved to be inconvenient for a time, but the students have become accustomed to the new arrangement.

The library also contains a large number of periodicals and pamphlets from which students obtain valuable information and entertaining reading.

As usual, Miss Lehman needed some new assistants on her staff and five freshmen answered her call for helpers. There was this year a student staff of fifteen girls. These assistants work in the morning, at noon, after school, and seven periods a day repairing books, keeping the library in order, and lending assistance to students. Five members of the staff graduate, leaving vacancies to be filled by oncoming "book tenders".

Again this year the library has fulfilled its purpose of providing students with additional information for special assignments, and for supplementing class work.

Finishing as runner-up in the district contest, the Salem High Debate Team went through one of the most successful seasons it has experienced in a number of years. The varsity squad, composed of two seniors, Bob Hostetler and Kathryn Giffin; one junior, Dave Hart, and one sophomore, Constance Clark, lost but one debate during the regular season and at the end of the round were tied with East Palestine. In the play-off debate at Columbiana, the Salem squad lost a very close decision to the Palestine team.

Bob Hostetler and Constance Clark, the negative team, throughout the regular season, won three debates and lost none. They were switched over to the affirmative for the last debate. Here they went down to defeat.

The affirmative team composed of Kathryn Giffin and David Hart lost one decision and won one, losing to Alliance and winning from East Liverpool. The negative team defeated Alliance, Sebring, and Palestine in the first round.

Alternates this year were Sarah Wonner, Francis McNicol, Ralph Fratila, Clarence Kimes, Jean Scheaffer, Edward Cavanaugh, and Allan Fehr.

The question used for discussion by the teams in the Ohio State Debate League was, Resolved: That all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated. The squad was coached by Mr. J. C. Guiler.

The Salemasquers, Salem High's dramatic club has been under the direction of James McDonald, newly-appointed dramatic coach, during the '36-'37 school year. The purpose of the club is to maintain and further an interest in dramatics in the high school. The club's activities have taken on a special significance this year due to the adding of a course in dramatics to the high school curriculum. Mr. McDonald has been in charge of this course, also.

To be admitted to the Salemasquers, a student must present a monologue or short skit to show his dramatic ability. A student may also be voted in for his work in a class play, either on the stage or in any other branch of production in which he excels. The club this year was composed of fifty-nine members. Only members of the senior, junior and sophomore classes are eligible for membership.

Art Brian was elected president for the year while he was a junior, but in his absence from school during the second semester of his senior year, another election was held for the presidency, Art being given the position of president emeritus. The new president, Robert L. Schwartz, together with Bob Battin, secretary, and Reba Dilworth, treasurer, rounded out the school term. The assistant officers of the club are: President, Richard Cavanaugh; secretary, Mary Helen Bruderly, and treasurer, Dorothy McCandless.

together with four stars in our Thespian firmament

Under the direction of Mr. James McDonald, a group of four students entered the Second Annual One-Act Play Contest for Northeastern Ohio High Schools at Kent University. The contest was sponsored by the National Thespian Honor Dramatic Society.

The students presented the play "Sod" by Stuart McK. Hunter. The setting of the production was the doorway of Jim Barnes' (Wade McGhee) sod house in the Nebraska prairie about the year 1900. Sally Barnes (Betty Martin), his wife, has lived in the hope that some day she may send her only daughter, Tessie (Jean McCarthy), back to her home in Indiana to school. Sally has saved her money and finally has the sum necessary. However, Tessie disappoints her mother and elopes with a neighbor boy, Carl Carlson (David Hart). Tessie had never known of her mother's plans.

In spite of the fact that Salem's entry was not given any recognition in the awards, it was rated as a good production. The critic judge, Dr. Robert G. Dawes, head of the Dramatics Art Department at Ohio University, Athens, ranked the plays in four divisions, Excellent, Superior, Good, and the others were not given any rating.

Sixteen plays were entered in the competition. The play winning the first prize was "The Castle of Mr. Simpson," presented by Dover High School. The judge also chose an all-regional cast of six players.

Woodwinds, Brasses, Drums and Batons play their parts

This year the Salem High School orchestra has been under the supervision of Mrs. Satterthwaite, who replaced Mr. Brautigam.

The orchestra practices the fourth period on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays. One-fourth credit a year is given for the course. This year there are 28 members.

The orchestra played for various programs throughout the year, such as class plays, assembly programs, and entertainments at the Memorial building. It also played a very important part at the commencement and baccalaureate services.

The orchestra boasts of varied instruments as follows: a saxophone, a cello, a bass viol, a trombone, two trumpets, three clarinets, thirteen violins and two guitars.

The biggest event of the year for the orchestra was the concert which it presented during National Music Week on the evening of May 5 in the High School auditorium. Robert Boughton and Gusty Conja assisted the orchestra by playing their contest duet. The orchestra played some well-known compositions, such as "Echoes From the Volga", "Dance of the Elves", "The Poet and Peasant Overture" and "The Dance des Sorcerers".

The orchestra is recognized as one of the outstanding organizations of the High School and it has established a good foundation for a growing and progressive orchestra.

Faculty Director Brautigam, aided by Student Director Hoperick, has led the Salem High band through another successful year. The band was fortunate this year in getting the entire library of the disbanded Quaker City Band. The latter sold its music to our band at a price far below the original price of the music.

Besides playing for the football games, the band presented two concerts, one in February and one in May.

Members of the band again entered the district Solo and Ensemble Contest at Mt. Union College. These were Bob Hostetler, French Horn Solo; John Evans, Trumpet Solo; Charles Wentz, Clarinet Solo; Henry Pauline, Saxophone Solo; Joe Morris, Trombone Solo; Glen Swaney, Tuba Solo; Charles Wentz and Wade McGhee, Clarinet Duet. A brass quartet, composed of Glen Swaney, John Evans, Bob Hostetler, Wallace Luce, George Hanson, and Al J. Freed, also competed for honors. Don Beattie was entered in the drum major division, giving a baton-twirling exhibition.

The band loses twelve members by graduation: Fred Cooper, Glen Swaney, Bob Hostetler, Wade McGhee, Jean Kingsley, Bill Rice, Marge Simon, Evelyn Hoch, Kenneth Shears, Paul Bailly, Dean Glass, and Howard Kerr.

For the fourth consecutive time, the band sponsored a mid-winter dance to raise money.

The Girls' Athletic Association, organized during the school year 1933-1934, boasted of an active membership of 120 girls this year.

Because of the abolition of girls' varsity basketball from the list of school activities in 1933, Salem High girls organized this association in order that those interested in that line would have an opportunity to obtain a letter through athletic achievement.

The club is supervised by Miss Sarah Hanna, girls' physical education teacher, and was this year led by the following officers: president, Lauretta Greenisen; vice-president, Ellen West; secretary, Olga Zatko; and treasurer, Theda Loschinsky.

Lauretta Greenisen and Ruth Grubbs, having earned the necessary 1,000 points in three years, received their letters last year and were given additional awards this year for having earned another 300 points. Letters were presented this year to the following seniors: Emily Catlos, Frances Del Favero, Marie Englert, Hilda Maroscher, Mildred Simone, Olga Zatko, and to three junior girls, Betty Albright, Martha Preisler and Bela Sidinger.

but ardent young followers of a new athletic cult

Having been re-established in Salem High School after a lapse of three years, the Varsity S Club went on to do bigger and better things during 1937. It was organized this year shortly after the beginning of football season.

With Herbert Brown, basketball coach, as faculty advisor, a committee headed by Dale Thompson drew up a constitution which was approved and accepted by the members.

When the club elected officers, Joe King became president; Max Lutsch, vice president; Delmar Schaeffer, treasurer, and Charles Yeager, secretary.

The primary purposes of the club are to promote a lively school spirit and to have as much good clean fun as possible.

The club staged a pep rally before the Lisbon football game in the field next to Reilly Stadium. This rally was attended by a large crowd and featured a huge bonfire in the middle of the field. A parade through the streets of Salem climaxed the rally.

Two similar rallies were sponsored before the Alliance football game and the Dover basketball game. These "pep meetings" met with the same success.

The Varsity S Club can proudly declare that it has made a success of everything it has attempted this year. It is to be hoped that this organization will become a permanent activity in Salem High School.

On one hand we have mathematics to the nth degree

Slide Rule Club has the reputation of being one of the few clubs in Salem High School in which the members are eager to get knowledge not available in ordinary classroom work. The students are instructed at the bi-monthly meetings in the art and manipulation of the slide rule.

The membership is open to all A and B students of the senior and junior mathematics classes. Miss Martha McCready, instructor in these classes, is also the supervisor of the club.

To handle the executive business of the organization for this year, the members chose at one of their earlier meetings these officers: Jean Kingsley, president; Robert Hostetler, vice president; Robert Shallenberg, secretary-treasurer.

One meeting of each month of this past year, which was the third in the history of the club, was devoted to the study of the slide rule, and the other was a social gathering. Thus, combining business with pleasure, interest was retained. Meetings were held on the second and the fourth Tuesday of every month.

One of the outstanding social activities of the club was a coverdish dinner and party. It was held in the Home Economics rooms of the high school in the early spring. Competitive games were played by the guests and prizes were offered to the winners.

In Salem High, philately prospered in a fine fashion during 1936 and 1937. The Stamp Club proved very successful under the direction of Mr. Sanders, Mr. Williams and Mr. Henning. The officers chosen early in the year are as follows: President, Harvey Rickert; vice-president, Robert Vickers; and secretary-treasurer, Donald Vincent.

Several contests were sponsored by the High School Club for their fellow collectors in Junior High School. Winners of these contests received prizes presented by the High School organization.

This club is the first stamp club ever to succeed in High School. Last year one was attempted but failed about the middle of the year. Mr. Williams, an ardent collector, helped with the organization and business of the club. Mr. Williams, while principal of the Junior High School, organized and directed a stamp club there. Mr. Henning is a beginner at philately but proved a great help to the club. Mr. Sanders is an experienced stamp collector and has been a very great aid to the club.

The club met every Monday in room 303. Some of the members brought their lunches, while others returned early to attend. During these meetings, stamp talks were given, stamps exhibited, and various other entertainments were provided. Junior High members attended frequently.

Clean comedy and the excitement of a mystery thriller were combined in this year's Senior class play, "Find the Woman." The production was the first to be directed by Mr. James M. McDonald, new Salem High dramatics instructor, and was declared a success by the class and an enthusiastic audience. Mr. McDonald was assisted in the production of the play by Jean McCarthy, student director.

The action of the story which was written by Wilbur Braun took place in the living room of the select boarding house of Hannah Welcome, an austere old maid. One quiet evening the boarders were disturbed by the appearance of a police inspector who had been assigned to a murder case reported to have occurred at the Welcome home. Following this, which proved to be a false alarm, were many incidents which evolved into a real detective yarn with secret service workers and a Russian spy.

The characters were Hannah Welcome, Betty Martin; Inspector Con C. Bungle, Wade McGhee; Roscoe Lord, Arthur Bahmiller; Anne Fuller, Reba Dilworth; Bella Karns, Jean Kingsley; John Camp, Walter Abblett; Ella Allchin, Gertrude Harris; Fannie Frost, Jeanne Layden; Major Malcolm Henry Burleigh, Bill Rice; Boris Ivan, Robert Schwartz; Woman in Red, Leila Holloway; Mazie Marsh, Nanee Gibbs; Nicholas Brodsky, Paul Roelen.

boards and raise the echoes in Ye Olde Auditoriumme

In presenting the annual Junior Class play, director James MacDonald chose "The Yankee King," a romantic comedy by Edwin Day. This play was presented April 1 and 2 and was very well attended.

Following his plan used in the production of the senior play this year, Mr. MacDonald chose a student director to assist him in the many duties there were to perform. For the junior student director he chose Verna Carpenter who acted in this position very well.

Proving that eventually the "worm will turn," the play deals with the problems of the Hinkle family. Pa Hinkle, a very much henpecked husband, falls asleep and dreams that he is, not only the boss of his family, but king of a foreign country. He is so impressed with himself as dictator that, on awakening, he resolves to continue to rule his home. How he puts it over makes a hilarious finish to this delightful comedy.

The characters were as follows: Pa Hinkle, Charles Trotter; Ma Hinkle, Martha Farmer; Marian Hinkle, Mary Helen Bruderly; Wilbur Hinkle, Don Beattie; Wayne Douglas, David Hart; Leon, Raymond Coppock; Stephen Kruger, Lionel Difford; Oswald Mahler, Joseph Bush; Emery, Ralston Smith; Page One, Betty Albright; Page Two, Elizabeth Elder; Melissa Destine, Ruth Wright; Wanda, Jane Cope; Duchess Augusta, Jane Bechtel; Julia, Margaret Simon.

Sodalitas Latina is the name by which the members of the Latin Club and its adviser, Miss Mildred Horwell, have chosen to be designated. Miss Horwell founded a Latin Club five or six years ago and in its first year of organization it appealed to the students. But since that time the interest of the students had fallen to a low degree. However, the club was reorganized this year and has proven to be a success.

The enrollment of the club is forty-two members, all freshmen and sophomores. The freshmen were not taken into the club until the second semester, and then only those students with A and B averages in Latin were eligible for membership. One of the meetings was devoted to initiation. Each had to come dressed as a Roman servant and take commands from the old members.

The club began this year's activities by electing officers. John Evans is the president; Mary Louise Emery, vice-president; Betty Sharp, secretary; Alice Zatko, treasurer.

The meetings were spent playing Latin verb games. The group met every two weeks.

Sodalitas Latina is the only organization in the school this year which has been organized for the purpose of furthering the interest of students in languages.

The Hi-Tri Club, which was organized in 1928, has gone through another successful year under the leadership of Louise Theiss, president; Reba Dilworth, vice-president; Theda Loschinsky, secretary; Mary Louise Wiggers, treasurer; and Misses Horwell and McCready, faculty advisers.

Before the girls began their regular meetings last September, they met at the home of the advisers. They decided to have meetings every Thursday and discussed plans concerning their work at the meeting.

The club had a St. Patrick's party on March 18th in the domestic science rooms. After the covered-dish supper they participated in games and dancing.

During the second semester the girls knitted sweaters and made purses out of leather. Mr. Kelly, manual training instructor at Junior High, was the authority on leather goods who gave them the instructions on making the purses.

One of the dances was held in honor of Roosevelt's birthday, and part of the proceeds went to Warm Springs for the victims of infantile paralysis.

The Senior girls are confident that the Juniors, who are in the majority, will continue the club's work successfully.

Salem High's basketball reserves went through a schedule of thirteen games with six wins and seven losses. Although they lost more games than they won, they proved themselves very able at the scoring end of the game. In spite of seven losses, they outscored their opponents 373 points to 355.

They opened the season against the Lisbon reserves and took the game very easily by a score of 26 to 17. This game was attended by the largest opening crowd since 1929. After this game they took over Boardman 23 to 19.

The season rolled along successfully until they met Dover, who walloped them to the tune of 41 to 18.

During the remaining part of the season they defeated Wellsville, East Palestine, Beloit, Struthers, and went down to defeat before Alliance, Massillon, Warren, East Liverpool and Niles.

This year's squad made practically the same record as last year's team. The team of '35-'36 had a record of seven wins and eight losses.

In many respects this team was a very strong combination. And as the varsity of next year will come almost entirely from this squad, great interest has been taken in their progress.

They are a fine bunch of players and look good as prospects for a winning varsity squad.

thousand hearts--and made those hopes materialize

Sports history repeated itself this season as Coach Herb Brown celebrated his fourth year at Salem High by producing its best team since 1927. For, although the record for regular season games was not spectacular, merely good, the Quaker ball club covered itself with well-deserved glory when it came to tournament play.

The season began with victories over Lisbon and Boardman. After being defeated by New Castle and Monaca, the team went into the season in earnest and emerged with the following score: Plus: Wellsville, Alliance (twice), Palestine, Warren, Akron St. Vincent, Niles and Struthers; minus: Dover, Massillon, Youngstown Rayen and Liverpool. Thus the season's play resulted in ten victories and six defeats.

But when the Quakers began tournament play, it was another story. They easily overcame Boardman and Howland at Youngstown and then proceeded to Akron. There they triumphed over Akron Buchtel and won the right to meet Akron West in the district finals. To the joy of all Salem High, they subdued that prize quintet and assured themselves a trip to the state tournament at Columbus.

Here Salem was defeated by Bridgeport in the first game, but the Quakers gave them a stirring and gallant battle.

That is the story of the 1937 Salem High basketball squad. Need more be said?

Reading around from left: K. Shears, C. Raynes, D. Slagle, G. Everhart, M. Oana, W. Eckstein, Coach H. Brown, A. Bahmiller, W. Schaffer, O. Olexa, M. Lutch, J. Lutch, D. Schaffer.

SENIOR

Behold, in their natural setting, five stalwart youths of brawn, brain and basketball. Observe how they bedeck each point of the golden star and are gathered around their coach, an arrangement symbolical of his leadership and their ability.

Let us consider these athletes, their leader, their record.

Coach Herbert Brown, the center of our wheel of stars, has been basketball coach in Salem High School for four years. During this time he has produced three teams that reached the district tournament in Akron. This year's squad, however, is his first to go to the state tourney at Columbus, and the first Quaker team since 1927. Their success this year, therefore, was in the nature of an anniversary celebration.

A word about Coach Brown himself. Both in high school and college he was on the basketball team, playing all five positions at various times. He came to Salem High to take up the reins as basketball coach immediately after his graduation from college. Mr. Brown likes all athletics, even ping pong, but especially basketball.

Now, presenting a thumb-nail sketch of our five senior stars, we mention:

John Lutsch—The boy who worked all year to go to the state tournament.

Delmar Schaffer—The boy who made the greatest comeback of all the seniors.

Kenneth Shears—The proverbial leader of the squad.

Clay Raynes—The tough-luck boy who had to watch most of the tournament from the side lines.

Don Slagle—The boy who could hit the basket in a pinch.

That completes our galaxy of stars. But as a final token, Coach Brown has given a message to the team and to the students of Salem High School:

"The loss of these five seniors will certainly be felt next year. May their success as a group here in high school be a start for life."

We second the motion!

In the above picture, the state cross country champion is seen shaking hands with his coach. The champion is Paul Rodney Roelen; the coach is Ray Bromley Clarke. Both were quite pleased, it is rumored, when Paul took first place at the state meet in Columbus last November; this may be surmised from their satisfied expressions. Incidentally, both are from Salem High School, a fact that Salem High is proud to admit.

Fleet footed they are, these champion harriers

With only two lettermen returning from last year, Coach Brom Clark proved himself a real master of men when he turned out one of the finest cross country teams that Salem has ever had.

The first meet of the year was held on October 1 with Akron East. Akron East took this meet by a score of 22 to 33. Paul Roelen was the only Salem runner to place well in this event.

The second meet of the year was held against East Palestine. Salem came through in a fine fashion to defeat Palestine to the tune of 17 to 47. Roelen and Culler each finished in front of Salem.

A scheduled meet with Barberton was canceled due to a change in their schedule.

This vacancy left Salem without a meet until the Akron district meet on October 24. In this event Roelen finished third to lead the Salem runners. Harold Culler and Charles Huddleston received medals for their ratings.

After the district meet came the annual state finals at Columbus, and here Salem was very well represented by Paul Roelen and Harold Culler. Roelen took first place in this meet and Culler placed either 16 or 17. (Due to some confusion, the judges were not certain whether Culler placed 16 or 17.)

Football still reigns King of Sports in Salem High as

When football candidates report next fall, ten first class players will be absent from the lineup; graduation will take its toll.

Joe King, all-county guard, had a willing running-mate in Howard Kerr. Both were responsible for paving the way for many long marches down the field.

Henry Smith, Charles Yeager, and Howard Tibbs made up a backfield worthy of praise, starring the accurate punting of Smith, the field generalship of Yeager, and Tibbs' ability to break through the line for long gains.

Pete Faini, Don Krauss, and Mahlon Hippley at guard, tackle and end, respectively, made up a right wing that was hard to puncture. Raynes, at center, was as dependable a player as could be wanted on a team.

Although they did not see much action, Jack Hillis and Joe Belan also deserve praise for their hard work.

King, Yeager, Tibbs and Krauss played football for Salem for four years, under three different coaches, Stone, Smith, and Schoeder. Smith, Kerr, and Hippley played three years for their Alma Mater; Faini, Raynes, and Belan for two years. Hillis was a new-comer from Detroit this year.

Next year other players will fill the places on the squad left vacant by these boys, but there will always be a spot in the heart of each graduating Senior for these gallant classmates.

The season record set up by the 1936 football team may not be anything to look back upon with pride, but the season's accomplishments leave Coach Carl Schroeder and his assistant, George Brungard, with great hopes for next year's squad.

The team played its best game of the season against Youngstown East by stopping the fleet-footed White until the fourth quarter when Beck of East scored a touchdown that squelched Salem's hopes.

The East Palestine game was played in a sea of mud and water. A last quarter rally, in which Salem came within a foot of making a touchdown, was the highlight of that game.

For the Warren game Coach Schroeder tried an experiment that was successful in many ways. In this game, the team was composed entirely of lower classmen with the exception of Joe King, a senior. Although a large score was run up against it, this pugnacious squad filled the air with passes, and in the last quarter, marched three-quarters of the length of the field to score a touchdown against a mixture of Warren's first and second teams.

So, may we propose a toast to the football team of '36 for its pluck and hard work in the face of defeat?

With twelve letter men as a nucleus, the 1937 track team was considered the best to represent Salem High School since 1933. The lettermen from last year who returned were Roelen, Rice, Lutsch, Tilley, Catlin, Yeager, Whitcomb, Hart, Tibbs and Bricker.

The team was strong in the distance runs, hurdle, dashes and jumps. Beck, Dean, Cope, Schaeffer, Raynes, Fitzimmons, Kirchgessner, Terry and the Lutsch brothers showed up well in the weight division. Captain Roelen was considered one of the best milers in the state, while Roelen's running mate, Culler, counted heavily in all the meets. In the quarter and half mile, Tilley and Bricker contributed their share of points.

Yeager and Whitcomb repeated last year's fine performance in the hurdle and pole vault. Max Lutsch, district high jump champion; Tibbs, 100-yd. dash man; Hart in the dashes; King in the javelin throw, and Catlin, county 440 relay champ, performed in good style.

All these boys contributed something to the fascinating athletic potpourri that evolved into a magic mixture producing a successful track season for Salem.

The Quaker "Drive On" Song . . . ★

Come, one and all, and sing the praises
Of old Salem High;
Hold high the banners of the Red and Black,
Its fame will never die!
And when we've got to win a game,
It will not take us long
To raise our lusty voices
In that Quaker Drive On Song

Chorus:

Drive, Salem, drive, Salem, down that field,
Drive on to victory;
Play them rougher when the game gets tougher
And the victors we will be—DRIVE, DRIVE, DRIVE!
Drive, Salem, drive, Salem, through that line,
Hold our banners high.

. . . . S-A-L-E-M

Come on and drive, Salem, drive, Salem, drive!

"Advertising costs me a lot of money."

"Why, I never see your goods advertised."

"They aren't. But my wife reads other peoples' ads."

When Daniel got into the lions' den and looked around he thought to himself, "Whoever's got to do the after-dinner speaking, it won't be me."

"How old are you, Tommy?" asked a caller.

"Well, when I'm home I'm five, when I'm in school I'm six, and when I am on the cars I'm four."

The parson (about to improve the golden hour): "When a man reaches your age, Mr. Dodd, he cannot, in the nature of things, expect to live very much longer, and I—"

—Money Talks In Every One

No matter where you go after leaving school, you will find that money saved will be an advantage to you.

And, of course, if you have a well-lined bank book you can "go places" where the fellow who has never saved—can never go.

There is a thought here which should not be lost on you. The thought is, "while you are learning, learn something about saving."
