SENTATION

We present and dedicate this 1943 Quaker Annual to the senior boys of Salem High school, as the greatest tribute we can give to those who are on the brink of shouldering such tremendous responsibilities upon which the life of our nation may depend.

Most of these young boys are just eighteen, or will be within a short time. Because in the high school classrooms and in their after-school jobs the boys have proved themselves capable of shouldering premature burdens, many will be called into the service of their country after graduation.

While the 'teen age pleasures of a world at peace are being shoved far away in this sudden transition, the eyes of the nation are centered on these boys, watchful for that indescribable spark that these Americans possess which will lead the United Nations to victory.

So it is with our profound gratitude that we dedicate and present this 1943 Quaker Annual to the senior boys of S. H. S.

Salem High In A War Year

The "business as usual" sign seemed to be swinging contentedly here at Salem High school in September, 1942, as eight-hundred and fifty students trooped through the doors to begin the fall term. To the passer-by and to students, things appeared to be very much the same.

Students were humming "Serenade in Blue" and raving over the new movie "Mrs. Miniver". Outwardly nothing had changed—but after a week in high school every student was suddenly aware that S. H. S. had gone to war.

You couldn't draw a line just when this change in attitude occurred, but it happened just the same. The familiar "coke joints" were filled before and after school with the faces of friends that had been there in other years. Pep assemblies were the same and football contests were just as exciting, but as the weeks rolled on, a dim realization of what was happening began to dawn on the students.

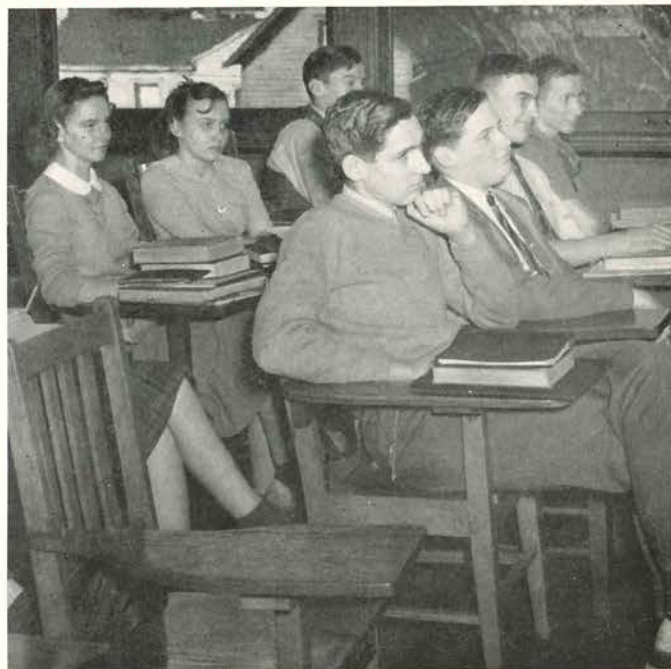

Several faculty members were missing—the draft and war industries had taken care of that. The enrollment had dropped since so many boys had enlisted and others had answered the local employers' cries for workers. Mechanical drawing and math classes were filled to capacity and new sections were added in subjects for which there was special demand.

Nevertheless things settled down to normal. True, there were those little "inconveniences" in classes.

Chemicals and laboratory equipment were difficult to secure and more demonstration experiments by the instructors were conducted. In the commercial classes, typewriters were not only impossible to get, but the government requested that the school turn over one-fourth of its typewriters.

It seems that it was the talk of a high school Victory Corps that deepened the high school student's sense of responsibility to his country. Suddenly jobs popped up that had to be done. The lot fell to the high school students and as we worked the idea of a Victory Corps grew stronger.

The first bit of "victory work" fell to the boys of the high school when district apple growers appealed to the school authorities for aid in harvesting their fruit. Dismissed from school for the day, high school volunteers were loaded into trucks and went off to the orchards.

Then the girls took a turn, and the Hi Tri club built stands in the school halls and sold war stamps and bonds to the high school students. Cooperation in this project was so gratifying that after passing the $1,200 mark, the girls took it upon themselves to sell enough bonds and stamps to buy a jeep for the army. Contests among homerooms helped to boost the total sales.

After Christmas vacation students returned to find that the Victory corps program had materialized, and courses in home nursing, nutrition, first aid, surgical dressings, mathematics refreshers, sewing, and consumer education (war-time buying) were being offered to all students. Overnight the school fitted in its activities with this victory project, which was handled by high school club presidents.

Down on the first floor where the industrial courses are taught, activity boomed. Classes overflowing with students, were continued after school hours and extra courses in the evening Trades Classes were encouraged. Also a new program was introduced, designed to correlate the high school industrial classes with local industries. Speakers representing Salem's factories lectured and gave demonstrations on various phases of shop work and inspection trips were arranged for members of the classes to visit local shops.

Particular stress was laid on physical fitness during the last semester. Girls' gym classes were stepped up and in the boys' classes calisthenics and drilling were added to the program. One of the newest features, though, was that of compulsory gym for all junior and senior boys who in former years had ended gym with the end of the sophomore year. Every effort was made to prepare these upperclass boys for the rigid military training which they must expect upon induction into the armed forces.

To encourage participation in outdoor sports, the interscholastic sports underwent a few changes this year. In spite of increasing transportation difficulties, the football and basketball schedules were carried out.

The stenography classes here at Salem High have been doing their part in the war effort too, in supplying secretaries to the rationing board and to industries which need them. As there is such a great demand for well-trained stenographers in war work, the commercial course has been revised to meet these needs.

The two deans' offices have been busy places this year since they serve as a medium between the students and the employment agency. With the present-day labor situation and the increasing demand for workers of all kinds, girls and boys willing to work are always able to find positions through these offices. Hundreds of student recommendations from various employers have been made out which contain information concerning scholastic achievements, character and loyalty to the United States government. The problems of finding farm hands was also put to these offices.

With war-time buying becoming one of the tricks of modern housekeeping and living, the home economics department has trained all students in the value of buying wisely; and the rationing program has been studied carefully.

One thing which set apart this year more than any other, was the large number of boys leaving school at the beginning of the second semester to enter colleges. By special permit of the Board of Education, these students will receive their diplomas in June if their work has been up to standard. This same system of distributing diplomas has been worked out for boys leaving school before June for the army, whether through the draft or enlistment.

Through Mechanical Drawing boys and girls gained valuable experience for vital trades.

Parties this year at Salem High were few and far between. Dance, formal in other years, became informal, and local bands were engaged for music instead of out of town talent. Several penny dances, the band dance, the Varsity S dance and the traditional senior prom were held, but even so the shadow of war hovered over.

Nowhere during this last semester of school could the "business as usual" sign be found. Everything was touched or entirely overshadowed by the lingering and enveloping war clouds. We still sing the latest tunes and rave over the most recent movie, but somehow it isn't the same. Salem High school changed this year. It went to war.

Superintendent
E. S. KERR

Faculty and Administration

We at Salem High are proud of our faculty, not only because they make their classes interesting, but because they have the students' interests at heart. We of high school age aren't very sure of ourselves in many respects and it is always gratifying to have an understanding faculty member to whom we can take our problems. Particularly this year when there is so much going on we don't understand, they have helped to make the situation, our situation, much clearer and not quite so frightening. They have really proved to be our friends. We have found that our teachers are really human beings who have likes and dislikes just as we have. They encourage us when we get a break, and they help us when we're "down and out." That's why we like them.

Principal

BEMAN G. LUDWIG

Few students, if any, realize the amount of effort and patience necessary to maintain Salem High school functioning on a smooth and efficient basis. Gratitude for performing this thankless task well is extended to our principal, Beman G. Ludwig.

It is only when a job is neglected that people are concerned with the functions of that office. That is why it becomes pertinent to show the achievements of this man during the past two years.

His resourceful planning has provided the students with a balanced program of education and recreation. With the event of war, shop, mechanical drawing, science, and mathematical courses were emphasized. In the past year, a program designed to correlate high school shop work with actual shop production has been arranged by local manufacturers. Extra curricular activities include interscholastic sports, clubs, a weekly school publication, a yearbook, and debate. Although assembly programs had to be curtailed this year, he has attempted to engage speakers who could give the students a better understanding of the present conflict and the peace to follow this war.

When he came to Salem High school two years ago, he was no stranger to most boys and girls since he previously held a similar position at the junior high school building.

Mr. Ludwig can be justly proud of the fact that "a job well done" applies to him.

They Guide Our Progress

A group of prominent citizens, who are chosen by the people of Salem to run the schools because of their recognized ability, make up the Salem Board of Education. These members, who are men of unusual interest and merit, are responsible for the welfare of our school and for setting up the standards of education for its students. Although they are well known to the faculty, the principal and the superintendent, they remain in the background as far as the students are concerned. They carry on their work efficiently and quietly, seldom coming into direct contact with the student body.

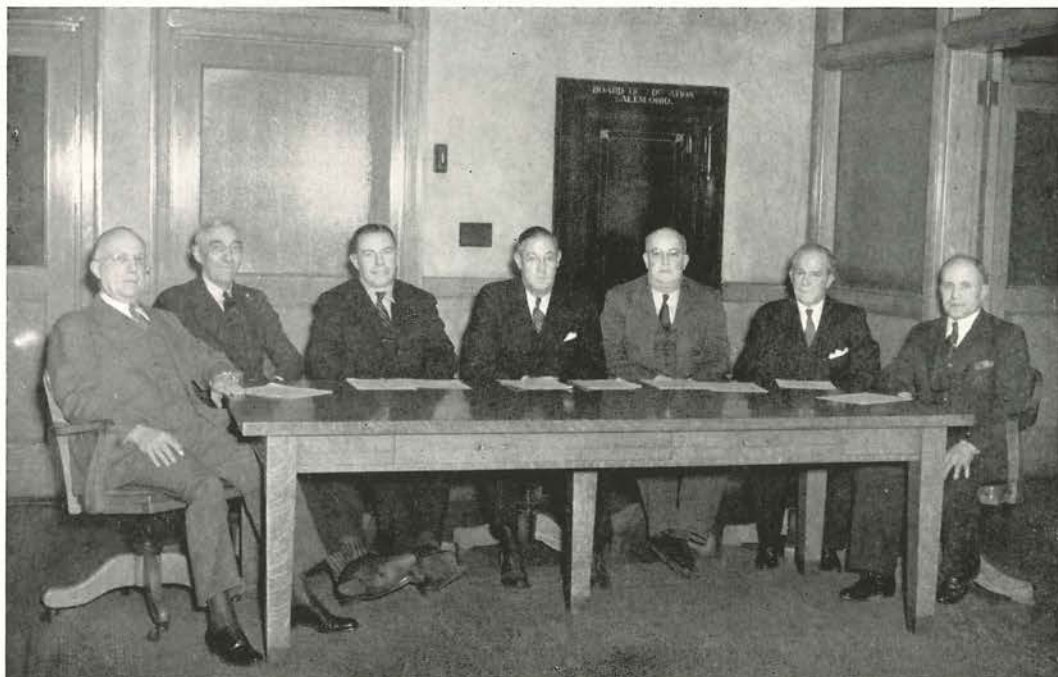

The Board provides supplies and repairs that are necessary. It studies the needs and duties of our school and takes care of them. This year it has been busy facing the many kinds of problems that wartime presents. Together with Mr. E. S. Kerr, superintendent of Salem public schools, it formulates school policies and plans.

Mr. F. P. Mullins, Mr. A. E. Beardmore and Mr. George F. Koontz are president, vice president and clerk, respectively.

Without a Board of Education both our school and its students would be lost. To this Board we wish to express our appreciation and sincere gratitude for the loyal service and innumerable advantages it has given us.

English

Miss Thorp is famous for her charm. Between school activities she manages to collect antiques.

Miss Combs spells "versatility". She holds a Master's Degree from Chicago U. and has a yearn to write.

Mr. Lehman's slow wit and humor highlight his classes. He farms on his home near Greenford.

All things in nature fascinate Miss Johnston and she hopes to own a farm in the country some day.

Miss Redinger long harbored the ambition to become a lawyer but is now satisfied teaching Latin and English.

When Miss Hollett isn't teaching she likes to travel. Her ambition is an M. A. degree.

Miss Alpha Combs

Harvey C. Lehman

Miss Evelyn Johnston

Miss Helen Redinger

Miss Mildred Hollett

Social Science

Miss Beardmore keeps her old Annuals up to date with clippings about the current activities of grads.

Mr. Henning's droll expressions and his friendliness to students are his calling cards. His hobby, stamp collecting.

Miss Ethel Beardmore

A. V. Henning

Mr. Jones once longed to play professional baseball. His classes are serious but informative and students like him.

Mr. Guiler, quiet and likeable, dotes on quick tests. He has a clever sense of humor.

Theodore R. Jones

John C. Guiler

Mr. Overturf would like to do some sports announcing and traveling is one of his ambitions.

"Bridge" is Mrs. Koontz's hobby. She likes teaching, but strives for a "perfect home-room".

Raymond P. Overturf

Mrs. Mildred Koontz

Miss Leah Morgan

Miss Ala Zimmerman

Home Ec. Physical Ed

Miss Morgan qualifies as one of the school's most gracious teachers. She enjoys every minute she spends teaching.

Miss Zimmerman's helpful manner and pleasing smile also make her an understanding dean of girls.

Miss Lillian Schroeder

Miss Sarah Hanna

Miss Schroeder likes to bowl, but admits she has yet to hit 200. Antiques fascinate her. She is school nurse.

Miss Hanna likes her job as freshman adviser tremendously. Bowling and reading are her favorite pastimes.

Frederick E. Cope

Herbert H. Brown

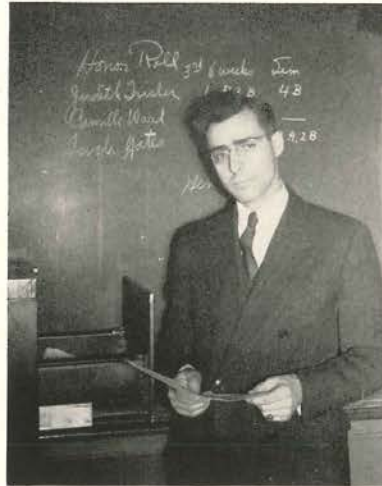

Cub scouting is another of the activities which interest Mr. Cope. Next to sports comes farming, in F. E.'s mind.

Mr. Brown's happy grin as he strolls the halls between classes doesn't reflect his problems with geometry students.

Arts, Library, Secretarial Staff

Mr. Brautigam's English course is something all college students are grateful for. Gardening is his hobby.

This Annual could not have been put together without Miss Lehman and her library. She is one of our favorite people.

Chester M. Brautigam

Miss Lois Lehman

Mrs. Headrick's slow drawing voice is as much a part of her art course as her talented fingers.

Mrs. Henning, secretary to the principal, suffers mostly from complaining students. She's glad of Ruth Fidoe's help.

Miss Ethel Headrick

Mrs. Helen Henning

Miss Dilworth, quiet and efficient, is secretary to Mr. Kerr. She sings beautifully, too.

Mrs. Wilt has a divine sense of humor and students find her extremely likable. She is in the nurse's office.

Miss Reba Dilworth

Mrs. Vivienne Wilt

Classes

Classes at Salem High school were not "as usual" this year. Almost every day, at least one of your classmates withdrew from school. If it was not the army enlistment center or the draft, then it was farm work or factory help. Enrollment dropped appreciably in all classes. Herewith we present those classes of students who have just witnessed a history-making year at Salem High during which time the school shifted to a war basis. Of the 178 seniors who will be graduated this year, many will go into war industries and into the armed forces of their country while the other classes move on toward their goal and hope to attain the high standards set up by the class of '43. This senior class is a war graduating class, but its members have learned in this last year of school how to "get along" in a war-time world so that with a minimum of adjustments they may get in stride with their times.

Top row—Aggie and Dot Brobander pet a stray mongrel while Jean Lantz and Anne look on. Herb Wilker, our most honored class president. Ann Cosgarea, Football Girl, poses on the bench during a game. Bottom row—Mona Cahill decorates "Artie, the grid hero" while Ruth Sinsley and Jinny Snyder hang pennants for the Hi Tri Hen Dance. Dick Culberson and Ruth Fidoe, vice president and secretary, respectively, of the senior class. Three "hungry" characters playing for a few filthy lucre are Bob Mitchell, Dick Stone and Howard Null.

Seniors

It would be easy to be dramatic about this year's graduating class. Not only is this true because the class is emerging into a world where the future is doubtful, but the fact that this class has established and broken so many traditions in high school and has been one of the most active classes to ever graduate.

From the very beginning when they were but green freshmen, the members began to break traditions with a new method of selecting class officers. With this as a start, they climbed on up the educational ladder reaching peaks and setting paces heretofore unknown in Salem High.

Never lacking in ideas, they formed a plan for a different sort of junior prom. Shelving the traditional banquet, they concentrated on securing a name band for the occasion. But this was only one of many similar "educational upheavals".

Another idea conceived by members of the class was the launching of a high school boosters club; also the class of '43 is the first graduating class of Salem High to wear caps and gowns for Commencement.

Those of the class of '43 were extremely active in all extra curricular activities. A high percentage of the football, basketball and track teams were seniors of this year. They constituted one third of the high school marching band, the entire active debate squad and a great portion of the library staff. The class gave to the Quaker Weekly its editor, Mary Byers, and business manager, Herbert Hansell.

The class also possesses a strong sense of humor. Both of its class plays,

"Ever Since Eve" and Everybody's Crazy" were hilarious comedies.

The graduates of 1943 have been interested not alone in fun and extra-curricular activities. Their honor list is long. The race for top scholastic honors was close with Emma Bauman, Gene McArtor and Elizabeth Benedetti, finally tying for first place.

The class elected Anne Cosgarea "Football Girl". The selection of class officers also was a tribute to their good judgment. Herbert Wilker was senior class president; Dick Culberson, vice president; and Ruth Fidoe, secretary-treasurer.

So, this is the class of '43, scholarly, active and possessing an admirable sense of fun. It has made an outstanding record for itself during these four short years and will long be remembered for its worthwhile achievements.

Paul Evans flirts with Howard "Evie" Coy in the Senior play. "A bunch of the mob" is seen gathered outside a local coke joint following a basketball game. Bob Moore bids a fond farewell to "Chloe" while Tony Hoover and Herb Hansell look on.

To The Seniors

Four years ago you entered the halls of Salem High school with a definite purpose. You have now realized your goal and the time has come for you to depart. Yet life and activity does not stop with the completion of your high school course. It goes on, branching in various directions, holding something different for each and every one of you.

The past four years have been spent preparing you for this day, and with acknowledgment to our faculty, we realize the efforts have not been fruitless. You're on your own now, and more often than not, no matter what the future holds, you will look back on your high school days, your "basic training", and realize the full importance of it.

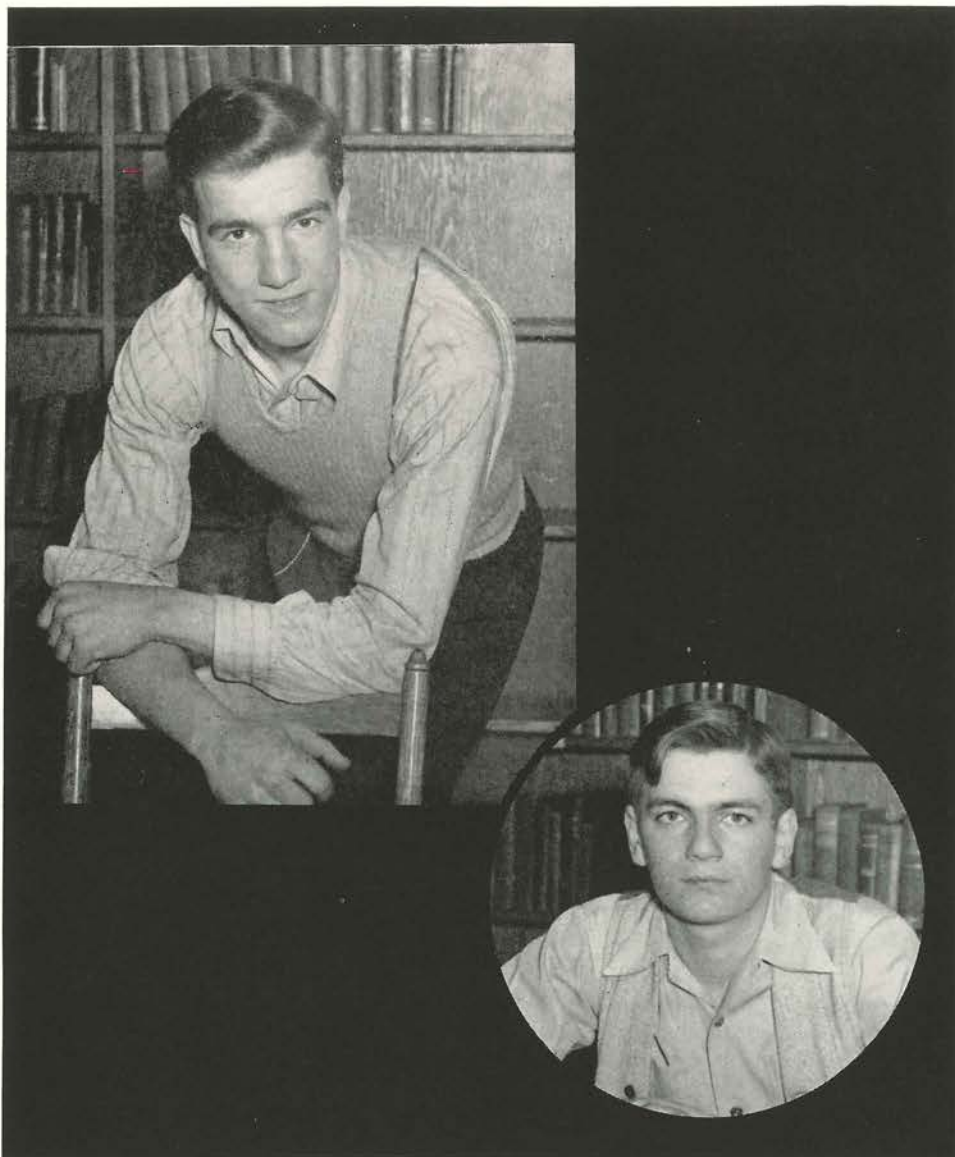

The disappointments, happiness, victory and defeat are all a part of the life you are now leaving and of that to come.

Your talents are many, and with the aid of the teachers and ample facilities supplied, they have been nourished and will undoubtedly prosper. Because of the present conflict, however, many of you may not be able to fulfill your ambitions, especially the boys, who will undoubtedly be called to arms before long. However, with the aid of the Victory Corps, instituted this past year in answer to our problem to participate on the home front, you have been able to prepare yourselves sufficiently for what may be yet to come.

So to you, the Class of '43, the near future does not promise to be bright, but we rest assured that you will be able to cope with it. We, the student body and members of the faculty, also wish to extend our sincerest and best wishes to the Senior Class of 1943.

They'll Be Next

Upon entering school in September, 1942, an enterprising group of boys and girls—no, young men and women—found themselves to be upper classmen at last! In their Sophomore year they had been “in-betweens” not green Freshmen, not upperclassmen. Now, they had at last reached a position where they really counted and had a place in this honored institution.

As no prosperous and successful group can survive long without a leader, these Juniors set about to elect for themselves officers of their class. After a close and exciting election Frank Entriken was elected president; Dick Scullion, vice president; and Virginia McArtor, secretary-treasurer.

Barbara Butler Relaxes at Band Practice as she waits for the “begin” signal.

By November they were well in the swing of things and were boosting their treasury by taking care of the refreshment stand at several football games. And speaking of Football, this class of Juniors was well represented on the field, as well as in the stands. Letter-holding members of the squad were Frank Entriken, Dick Greene, Elmer Johnston, Ben Kupka, Carman Nocera, and Ray Wise; as well as Fred Cain, Darwin Charnesky, Rudy Ciotti, Glenn Halverstadt, Tom Ryan, Bob Shea, Jack Smith and Ken Wagner who battled their way through many an opponent's line. Dick Greene has been elected captain of the 1943 team.

Also playing a considerably large part in the football games was the Salem High Band. Several members of the Junior class who were included in this group are Bill Benson, Jeanne Bricker, Barbara Butler, Jack Finerman, Bill Hannay, Eugene Hively, Doris Holroyd, August Juliano, Mary Beth King, Mary Jane Sproat, Elizabeth Stewart and Dale Wykoff.

Martin Juhn was the only member of this class in the orchestra, but he made up for those who didn't happen to be there.

In December, the Juniors tried their hand at presenting a very successful Junior-Senior party. On committees, as well as in attendance, the Juniors were well represented.

Along about this time the Hi Tri held its initiation with a candle-light service in the gym, for Junior girls who had had an A or B average during the previous two years of high school. Those girls who were taken into the club were Mildred Anderson, Ann Bodirnea, June Chappell, Edith Coccia, Ellen Collins, Betty Daniels, Jean Dilworth, Doris Ellis, Carol Ann Freshley, Dorothy Galchick, Ina Mae Getz, Betty Jane Gray, Margaret Hagan, Josephine Hart, Myrtle House, Vera Janicky, Rachel Keister, Martha Jean Keyes, Mary Beth King, Betty Lutsch, Virginia McArtor, Elaine McGhee, Mathilda Martinelli, Marian Messersmith, Betty Jane Nicholson, Virginia Nicholas, Nancy O'Connell, Helen Oana, Jerry Paxson, Marilyn Page, Dolores Rose, Deryl Stowe, Mary Jame Sproat, Ann Tolp, Ruth Umberger, Betty Varinaitis, Marliyn Wilms, Janet Whinnery and Joan Zimmerman. These girls aided in planning and presenting the Christmas assembly and in helping less fortunate children on Christmas.

Miss Lehman was aided by Dominick Alessi, June Chappell, Jean Dilworth, Dorothy Galchick, Ina Mae Getz, Josephine Hart, Vera Janicky, Rachel Keister, Mary Beth King, Olin King and Betty Lutsch in the library during the year.

staff, Ada Zerbs and Jack Rance contributed considerably to the success and wide circulation of the paper. August Juliano and John Cone, members of the business staff, covered mile upon mile of Salem's streets getting ads for the Quaker, and "Sis" Keyes and Barbara Butler spent literally hours proofreading.

In February the class of '44, not to be out-done by the class of '43, voted on class rings and pins featuring the traditional Quaker head. The committee to choose the jewelry consisted of the class officers, Frank Entriken, Dick Scullion, and Virginia McArtor, assisted by Doris Ellis, Ray Fawcett, Barbara Butler, and Peter Cibula. Thus, the Juniors are now showing bright, shining, new rings and pins.

Familiar assembly feature is music by Alessi, Juhn and Stone.

During basketball season, which extended through the months of December, January, February, and March, three Juniors, Ray Wise, Dick Greene, and Frank Entriken, showed great ability in that well-known and well-loved sport — basketball. These boys are all letter-men and played almost constantly in every game of the season. They all worked hard in every game and made a great showing in the tournament. Arthur Hoover, another
Junior, was basketball manager.

In the G. A. A., Juniors Doris Ellis, Claire Hicks, Martha Hicks, Doris Holroyd, Elizabeth Iagulli, Dolores Rose, Alice Eppinger, Jerry Paxson, and Juanita Whaley held up the girls' end of the sports program for the Junior class.

The Junior play went over with great enthusiasm in April, under Miss Combs' direction, when Juniors showed they could act as well as play football and basketball, or study and play musical instruments, or engage in the many other activities which occupy their time. Several members of the Class of '44 have been working for Thespian credits and have been invited to join the local Thespian club.

Yes, the Juniors have had a very successful year. They started out "on the right foot" and intend to end the year in the same praiseworthy way. Under the capable guidance of Miss Jack Karlis and Elmer Johnson "Can the chatter" as the noon bell rings.

Martha McCready, Junior class adviser, the Class of '44 has picked its way through many fields of battle and at last finds itself on the verge of becoming "The Senior Class"!

But, before pushing the Seniors out into the big, cruel world, the Juniors are making sure that they have one more good time. So they are entertaining the Class of '43 at a prom in the high school gym in May.

Sophomores

Looking Up

No longer freshmen but not yet qualified for the title of "upperclassmen", approximately 217 sophomores take time out in the dizzy pace of school life to look back over two eventful years.

In retrospect, the group can see themselves, and seniors can remember them, as wide-eyed curious freshmen intent on making a good start in this new experience. The first few weeks were exciting ones—the awe-inspiring building, the complicated schedules, embarrassing moments in wrong classes, the terror of the much publicized "elevator" and the hundred and one other incidents that have given freshmen classes the reputation they have.

After becoming accustomed to the school, they settled down to the business affairs that are synonymous with every Salem High school class. First of all, the class sold football schedule pencils to make money for the treasury.

Sophomores on First Floor drop their books to pose for the cameraman.

When this project ended, they chose officers to lead them in all their activities for the year. Ernest Ware was their choice for class prexy, Chris Paparodis became vice president and Vivian Stowe acted as secretary-treasurer.

Not to be ignored are the usual round of parties: the frosh-soph hop, the Association party and other club parties sandwiched in between.

To help further in the development of mind and body, a large number of students were active in football, basketball, tennis and track, while others took advantage of the benefits offered by the Latin club, the Girls Athletic Association, the Quaker business and editorial staffs, band and orchestra.

Their second year saw Charles Schaeffer as class president, Ernest Ware in the vice presidency, and Vivian Stowe retained in the position of secretary-treasurer. Also, several boys who pursued basketball and football since their freshman year received compensation in the form of varsity letters. Jack Karlis received his letter for service with the football squad, and Walter Brian and Harry Lodge became full-fledged lettermen in both basketball and football.

The class of '45 can boast of how, as sophomores, they pitched in to help community and country in the war effort; they dug into their pockets for money to buy stamps and bonds in school drives; they helped farmers by answering the appeal for apple pickers; and they worked after school and during vacations to do their part in relieving a manpower shortage.

Our Latest Addition

As has been the custom in the past years, the “kids on the top floor” of our old school were looked upon as “Green Freshmen”. In September they came hesitatingly up to Salem High, trembling for fear of making a slip.

It must be admitted that the upper classmen smiled a little upon these inexperienced “children” at first. But by spring they had learned that these young men and women were not so young or juvenile after all. Thus, they have been accepted into this institution with full faith that they will do their part for the next three years.

The Class of '46 started in high school with a record-breaking enrollment of 290 pupils. In November they elected as their president Danny Smith; vice president, John Sharp; and secretary - treasurer, Mary Catherine Scullion.

The new class started the class treasury by the traditional sale of football schedule pencils. More than 1,000 pencils were sold; and room 310, with Harvey Walken as captain, won the contest by selling 300 pencils. Later in the year 2,000 “Salem High School” pencils were sold and again 310, captained by John Works, won the contest by selling 625 pencils. These freshmen also boosted their treasury by taking charge of the football and basketball game refreshment stands.

They enjoyed their first school dances at the Association Party and in May at the Freshman - Sophomore Party.

Several Freshmen represented their class on the Quaker staff. Those on the apprentice staff of the Quaker have been Ruth Baltorinic, Fred Lewis, John Mulford, Harvey Walken and John Works. Bob Musser and John Sharp were selected for the Business Staff.

The Freshman basketball squad had a successful season with Ben Bruderly, Charles Hobart, Morris Hollinger, Louis Juliano, Francis Lanney, Wilfred Lewis, Dan Smith, Dick Reynolds, Lowell Myers, John Pridon, and John Mulford as members and Munson Thorpe and Don Whitacre as managers.

The only member of the Varsity squad was Louis Juliano. Freshmen on the Junior Varsity squad were Phil Cahill, Bob Cain, Don Chappell, Jack Crawford, Bob Dusenberry, Dick Field, Fred Koenreich, Francis Lanney, Wilfred Lewis, Dick Moffett, John Mul-

The class also had a large representation in the band, orchestra, both glee clubs, Girls' Athletic Association and the Latin Club.

Extra Curricular

If all Salem High clubs this year weren't directly concerned with the war effort, their activities at least hinged on the all-important Victory Corps program. Among the various clubs, one raised funds for the Stage Door Canteen, one collected books for the soldiers, and another began the sale of War Stamps in the high school halls. All clubs were active participants in the high school Victory Corps, their officers composing the central committee for this organization. It is through the work of these clubs that the individual high school students are drawn more closely together and consequently feel a deeper responsibility toward their school. In fact, the very life of the school is indirectly governed by the functions of these student organizations.

Behind The Headlines

Acquainting the high school students with the news of their school, the Quaker Weekly this year dedicated itself to presenting to the community and to the school, the students' part in the war effort. Special "Remember Pearl Harbor" and "Victory Corps" issues were distributed during the year as well as the annual "Boy's Issue".

Under the leadership of Mary Byers for the second consecutive year, twenty writers were selected for the editorial staff when tryouts were conducted for forty-eight applicants.

Twelve of these writers were placed on the senior staff and the eight others who had not taken journalism in school were assigned to the apprentice staff. The junior staff has proven highly successful in giving experience to cub reporters.

Three members of the Quaker editorial staff have been with the paper ever since they were freshmen, when they started out on the first apprentice staff, according to Mr. H. C. Lehman, adviser of the Quaker editorial staff. These are Elizabeth Benedetti, Dorothy Haldi and Mary Byers.

Including Elizabeth and Dorothy, the editorial staff was made up this year of Emma Bauman, Walter Vansickle, Margaret Farcus, Jean Reeves, Barbara Brian, Ruth Sinsley, Robert Mitchell, Jack Rance, Jim Kelley, June Chappell and Jinny Snyder. The apprentice staff, almost entirely made up of freshmen, was composed of Ruth Baltorinic, Sally Campbell, Betty Cibula, Fred Lewis, Johnny Mulford, Harvey Walken, John Works and Ada Zerbs.

Elizabeth Dales served as secretary to the editor during the year and was also, with Carol Jaeger, staff typist. Barbara Butler and Sis Keyes were proofreaders and Bill Haessly was staff photographer.

They Make Quaker Pay

The business staff this year has just pulled through the most hectic season a Quaker business staff has had for a long time.

It is the duty of the business staff to solicit enough advertising from local manufacturers and merchants to pay for the "Quaker". This all-important task of putting the paper on a sound financial basis was made doubly hard this year by mid-season graduations among the members of the business staff and a wartime lack of advertising.

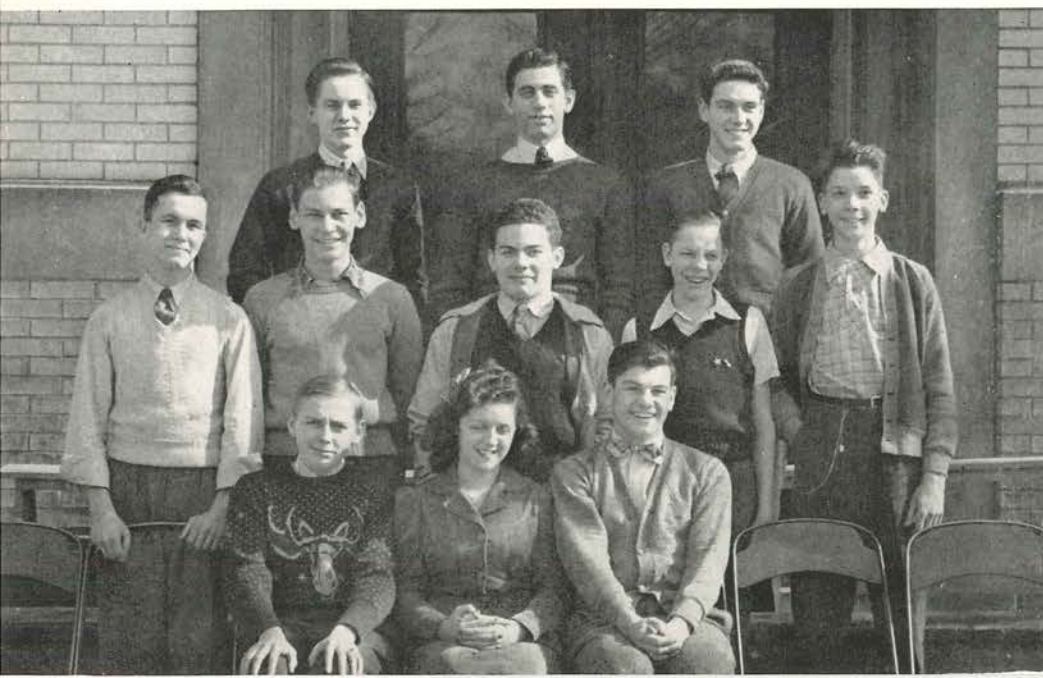

Charles Gibbs, Herbert Gross, and finally Herbert Hansell held the position of business manager for the Quaker Weekly. The other seven members of the staff have remained the same all year. Charles Gibbs has worked for the Quaker since he was a freshman.

An early shortage of advertising was quickly remedied by hard work on the part of the business staff and its able adviser, Mr. R. W. Hilgendorf. The paper was then put on more than a paying basis toward the last of the year.

The business staff was represented at the nineteenth Journalism Convention of Ohio Schools by Mr. Hilgendorf, Charles Gibbs, Herbert Gross and Herbert Hansell.

The business staff and manager chosen to work on the "annual" were the same as those that handled the advertising for the Quaker weekly.

Music Builds Morale

It has been said that "music is the soul of love". In times like these, when our country is in danger and it is up to us to save it, music is even more valuable than ever. Besides keeping up the morale of the service men, music means a lot to the people at home—it encourages them, makes them recall many happy moments in the past, and gives them hope and faith in the future.

Organized late in the school year, this club has made great progress in one, two and three-part music. They have sung for several of the community clubs in Salem and expect to do more of this entertaining in the future.

The glee club has been limited to thirty members, all of whom were selected after careful tryouts.

The pianist for the glee club has been Lou Jean McDevitt and Martin Juhn accompanied the mixed chorus. Other officers were chosen later in the spring.

For the duration, the club has added another version of the well-known slogan, and has as its motto—"Keep 'em Singing"!

Earning their points for the Victory Corps membership by presenting "victory plays", Troupe 358 of the National Thespian Dramatic Honor Society of Salem High school completed a successful season under the guidance of Art Scheib, president, and Miss Alpha Combs, adviser.

The play, "A Vane Effort", was presented by members of the club to an assembly of the student body in the spring and was given before other civic organizations in Salem.

The club is made up of dramatists, stage managers and make-up artists who, showing their ability, have gained the number of points necessary to get into the club. During the year each member read his favorite play to the club. From this list the members voted for the best one which they wished to produce.

In order to become a member of the honorary society, one must have twelve Thespian credits. These credits are gained by working on class plays, either in the acting, managing or stage work departments. Upon receiving twenty credits from work done on the stage after admittance to the club, one becomes a star Thespian, thirty credits a double star Thespian and forty credits, an honor Thespian. The club had four double star Thespians this year in Frank Snyder, Art Scheib, Howard Coy and Walter Vansickle. Star Thespians were Irene Fratila, Herb Hansell and Virginia Snyder.

At the end of the year presentations are made by the adviser to the best actor, best actress and best stage manager.

Resolved: That - -

First row — Goldberg, Hostetler, Wykoff. Second row—Hansell, Scheib.

The cancellation of over fifty per cent of debate activities this year did not dampen the spirits of the Salem High team. Due to the lack of transportation, the practice debates, of so much value in previous years, were discontinued.

Of the four seniors who composed the debate team this year, three had had no previous debating experience. Herbert Hansell, however, has been a member of Coach J. C. Guiler's squad for four years. Speakers on the regular team were: negative, Hansell and Art Scheib; affirmative, Mabel Hostetler and Robert Mitchell.

The question debated this year was: Resolved: That a Federal World Government Should Be Established.

At the Struthers tournament held early in the season, the team won five out of the eight debates in which they participated. As a part of the Ohio State League activity the debate squad also took part in the District tournament held at Canton the first part of February. There the team won two debates and lost four.

Mr. J. C. Guiler, coach of the team, also teaches international relations and American government in Salem High school.

All Gaul Is Divided

"Qui non proficit, deficit" — who does not advance, falls behind — was adopted by the Latin Club this year as the password to the meetings.

The following students have served as officers of the club: President, Lowell Hoprick; vice president, Jim Kelley; secretary-treasurer, Lou Jean McDevitt.

Under the supervision of Miss Helen Redinger, Latin teacher and club adviser, the Latin Club enjoyed an active term with the activities of the club being somewhat different from those of previous years.

At various meetings, special work was given by Miss Redinger on medical terms in connection with nursing, hospital usage, etc. The purpose of learning these terms was to aid students wishing to help out in hospital service in connection with the Victory Corps courses. Other activities included the study of Roman life and culture and discussions of famous Roman men and women.

At a formal initiation held Feb. 18, thirty-one new members were added to the club. Meetings were held the first and third Thursday of each calendar month. The requirement for membership in the club is an A or B average.

Plan for an outdoor party near the end of the school year were carried out.

A Girl In Every Sport

The object of the Girls' Athletic Association is to have a sport for every girl and every girl in a sport.

The club has participated in kickball, volleyball, basketball and baseball in the school gym; and hiking, skating, bicycling and bowling out of school.

The members elected Ruth May, president; Dorothy Greenawalt, vice president; Jean Dixon, secretary; and Alice Eppinger, treasurer. Sport leaders for the year have been Dolores Rose, kickball; Barbara Fawcett, volleyball; Elaine Slosser, basketball; Helen Rinehart, baseball.

Seniors who earned their letters in their junior year and received their year numerals this year are: Ruth May, Dorothy Greenawalt and Bettie Thiel. Junior girls receiving letters are: Claire Hicks, Martha Hicks, Doris Holroyd, Elizabeth Iagulli and Dolores Rose. Senior girls receiving letters are: Ellen Morris, June Kennedy and Mary Cody. Seniors in good standing who receive a G. A. A. pin are: Mona Cahill, Dorothy Greenawalt, Ruth May, Ellen Morris, Bettie Thiel, June Kennedy and Mary Cody.

The girls have sponsored four penny dances during the school year and held a covered dish dinner at Thanksgiving. The initiation and party was held on February 2 and two skating parties were well attended. The girls have planned a picnic in May.

Our Lettermen

Several successful pep rallies were staged by the Varsity S club this year, preceding football games. Bonfires, band music and athletic speakers made up the program for these rallies. Besides the rallies, the club also staged pep rallies for the student body.

At the beginning of the year, a training table was purchased by the club to be placed in the locker rooms at Reilly stadium. Numerous skating parties, picnics and the annual spring dance marked this year as an active one for the Salem High lettermen.

Officers in charge of the activities this year were: President, Frank Hagan; secretary, Bill Beardmore; and treasurer, Glenn Weigand. When Bill Beardmore left school at the beginning of the second semester to enter Mt. Union college, John Hart was elected to take over the position of secretary for the club. Mr. Herb Brown and Mr. Ray Overturf, basketball and football coaches, respectively, were again this year the advisers for the club.

This club is composed of boys who have earned their varsity letters in football, basketball, track or cross country. It was established for the primary purpose of promoting a lively school spirit, developing sportsmanship, and having as much good, clean fun as possible.

The large membership of the club was augmented in the fall when twelve new lettermen were given the traditional initiation for membership. The boys who were initiated at that time were: Walt Brian, Elmer Johnson, Ben Kupka, Jack Karlis, Dan Kleon, Walt Krauss, Dick Lantz, Harry Lodge, John Plegge, Perry Whitacre, Herb Wilker and Ray Wise.

Pride Of The School

By further development of the use of fluorescent display the Salem High school band was able to present many spectacular shows this year. In keeping with the trends of the times, both their concert and marching followed a patriotic theme.

By its successful use of mercury arc fluorescent lighting and well-executed formations the band gained no little fame throughout surrounding localities. In the fall, Mr. C. M. Brautigam, director of the band, explained the organization of the group over radio station WKBN in Youngstown.

One of the most valued possessions of the band is the huge fluorescent flag, a gift of the Band Mothers club, which was used on both the concert stage and the football field. It was effectively presented during performances honoring the armed forces.

Due to transportation difficulties, the band considered it their patriotic duty not to attend out-of-town football games. As a result more emphasis could be placed on perfecting formations for presentations on the local gridiron between halves at the games.

The tenth Annual Band Dance, given during the Christmas holidays, and the fifteenth Annual Spring Band Concert were both exceedingly successful.

At the beginning of the second semester it lost two of its members. Paul Evans, president and student director of the band, entered Oberlin college, and Howard Null enrolled at Mt. Union college. The band will also lose twenty members by graduation, a third of the marching band being seniors.

Officers of the organization are: President, Paul Evans; vice president, Clyde Pales; secretary-treasurer, Gene McArtor; and librarian, Inez Jones.

The band has established an excellent reputation for itself in recent years and looks forward to an even better season next year.

Lilting Violins

Although there has been a drop in the instrumentation of the Salem High School Orchestra, the organization has completed a very successful year. Due to seven periods a week band practice, many high school musicians were unable to take orchestra. However, the organization overcame the difficulty, and, under the able leadership of Mr. Chester M. Brautigam has played during several school assemblies.

The orchestra also played for the junior and senior class plays.

The instrumentation of the orchestra has been as follows: three violins, one viola, one cello, a clarinet, flute, oboe, trumpet, trombone, piano and marimba.

The fourteen members of this year's orchestra are: Zoda Clocke, Jim Cope, Marvin Crawford, Virginia Hanna, Ann Helm, Martin Juhn, Fred Krauss, Esther Jean Mayhew, Gene McArtor, Virginia Mick, Harold Pike, Donna Jean Regal, Mary Lou Vincent and Jean Walsh.

This year the orchestra loses through graduation Virginia Hanna, Fred Krauss and Gene McArtor. Howard Null, who has been attending Mt. Union college, was also a member of the orchestra.

Service, Strength, Scholarship

The entire program for the Hi Tri club this year has been directed toward fulfillment of the aims of the Victory Corps.

Early in the fall, the club began the sale of war bonds and stamps in the school halls. A number of contests were sponsored by the club and in the spring a new drive was begun to raise funds sufficient to buy a jeep for the government.

The program committee, headed by Ruth Sinsley, has been especially successful in securing outside speakers for the meetings. Mrs. Thomas Crothers of Leetonia spoke on the work of the Minute Commandos; Miss Hazel Linn of the American Red Cross told of the high school girl's share in the work of that organization; Miss Zimmerman, the high school dean of girls, spoke on the aims of the Victory Corps; and Miss Leah Morgan, S. H. S. home economics instructor, discussed nutrition with the girls.

The annual Christmas assembly was presented this year for the entire student body and special programs were also given on Lincoln's birthday and Thanksgiving.

In October, the girls sponsored a "Hen Dance" which was the first of its type ever to be given at S. H. S. Girls invited boys to the hop and a record-breaking crowd thronged the gym for the dance following the Salem-Struthers football game.

The seventy-nine members of the Hi Tri are chosen from the junior and senior class girls who have a B average in all their subjects. Following their formal acceptance to the club, the girls are given both a formal and informal initiation. Miss Helen Thorp and Miss Ala Zimmerman are the club advisers.

Dorothy Haldi, senior, headed the student organization of the club this year and Ruth Sinsley was vice president. Irene Fratila was treasurer and Jeannette Hutchison was elected secretary.

First row—Bauman, Nicholas, Hanna, Nicholas, Janicky, Sinsley, Fratila, Freshley, Schaeffer, Plegge, Cosgarea, Kamasky, Hutchison. Second row—Miss Zimmerman, Miss Thorp, Woerther, Herman, Cahill, Theiss, Tolp, Sproat, Riffle, McArtor, Merry, Reeves, Thomas,

Our library continues to be one of the most popular rooms in Salem High school. Attractive and well-equipped, it furnishes an ideal place to read and study. During the past year many interesting books were received and numerous magazines and pamphlets were made available.

Miss Lois Lehman, librarian, reports that she and her assistants have attempted to make the library a War Information Center for students. Books were added pertaining to the war and its problems, including material for the Home Front and plans for the post-war world. In a country where libraries are free and citizens may read as they please, books play an important part in influencing the minds of individuals.

Present conditions have changed the reading habits of high school students. There is more demand for technical and scientific books, and there are many requests for information by students about to enter military service.

The library has been active in the High School Victory Corps. It furnished instructive literature concerning this organization, arranged special displays and sponsored a drive for students to earn their membership by contributing books for the armed forces.

Twenty librarians, all honor roll students, form the library staff this year. They assist students, check out material and repair books, among many other duties. The following girls graduate this year, after four years of library service: Debora Gross, Louise Hanna, Jeannette Hutchison and Gene McArtor.

Everybody's Crazy

Nearly twenty seniors ended their brief theatrical careers when the last curtain was rung down on the three-act comedy, "Everybody's Crazy", the senior class play. Many of the actors, actresses and stage workers had also been in the junior class production just a year before.

"Everybody's Crazy", however, was a fitting exit for the seniors, for it played to a "packed house" both nights of the production and was proclaimed by audiences to be one of the best plays ever presented by the high school. This play was also the first to be directed in this school by Miss Alpha Combs.

The play concerned three college boys who opened a hotel and had a difficult time securing customers until they hit upon the idea of advertising that a miser, several years before, had hidden his gold on the premises. The complications that arose after the arrival of the guests seemed to produce a hopeless tangle, but the hand of fate (and a few ghosts) straightened everything out. Howard Coy, masquerading as a famous dancer, and portraying one of the college boys, was the hit of the show.

The cast of characters was: Herbert, Herbert Hansell; Tommy (Eve St. Regis), Howard Coy; Elmer, Art Scheib; Mrs. Spooner, Ruth Sinsley; Julie, Janet Taylor; Ketura Katt, Betty Merry; Adam Pottle, Paul Evans; Godfrey Van Gordon, Walter Vansickle; Mrs. Van Gordon, Jinny Snyder; Celia Van Gordon, Jeanne Warner; Libby Ann, Louise Hanna; Jasper, Bill Haessly; Gladiola, Martha Jane Sterling; Mr. Bates, Arthur Schultz, and messenger boy, Clarke Dinsmore.

Miss Combs was assisted by student director Faye Cozad and electrician and stage manager, Frank Snyder.

Hard Work, Little Credit

In school, as in all other organizations, there are some groups who work exceptionally hard to maintain a solid working standard for the school, who receive almost no recognition. Such are the janitors, monitors, Association officers and stage workers.

The janitors are the first to arrive in the morning and the last to leave at night. Without their efficient work our school would, indeed, be a miserable place to study. It is to the janitors we go when a problem arises which we cannot cope with. Our special initiations, dances, assemblies are all responsible to the janitors who clean and help with the preparations in any way they can. Their efforts are tireless and sometimes taken too much for granted.

The monitors who sit outside the principal's office for a period each day are the "messengers" of the office. They have no special duties other than keeping the halls clear and the lights on and off. They are the "leg men" of the principal's secretary.

The Association officers, once they are elected by their class, have to be not only pleasant to the class members but also must know what the students like well enough that they may furnish them with entertainment which they will enjoy. Special assemblies are all under the supervision of these officers.

The stage workers' biggest jobs come during play season, when special lighting effects and sets are needed. Then they must organize the stage to suit the actors. Whenever the auditorium stage is used, one member of the stage crew must be on hand to adjust the lights and arrange properties on the stage. Mr. Herbert Jones is the chairman of the stage committee and boys who are helping with this work include Frank Snyder, Bill Benson, Art Scheib, Bob Cibula and Bill Haesly.

Sports

Sports in Salem High school, as in schools and colleges throughout the nation, have been serving a twofold purpose this year.

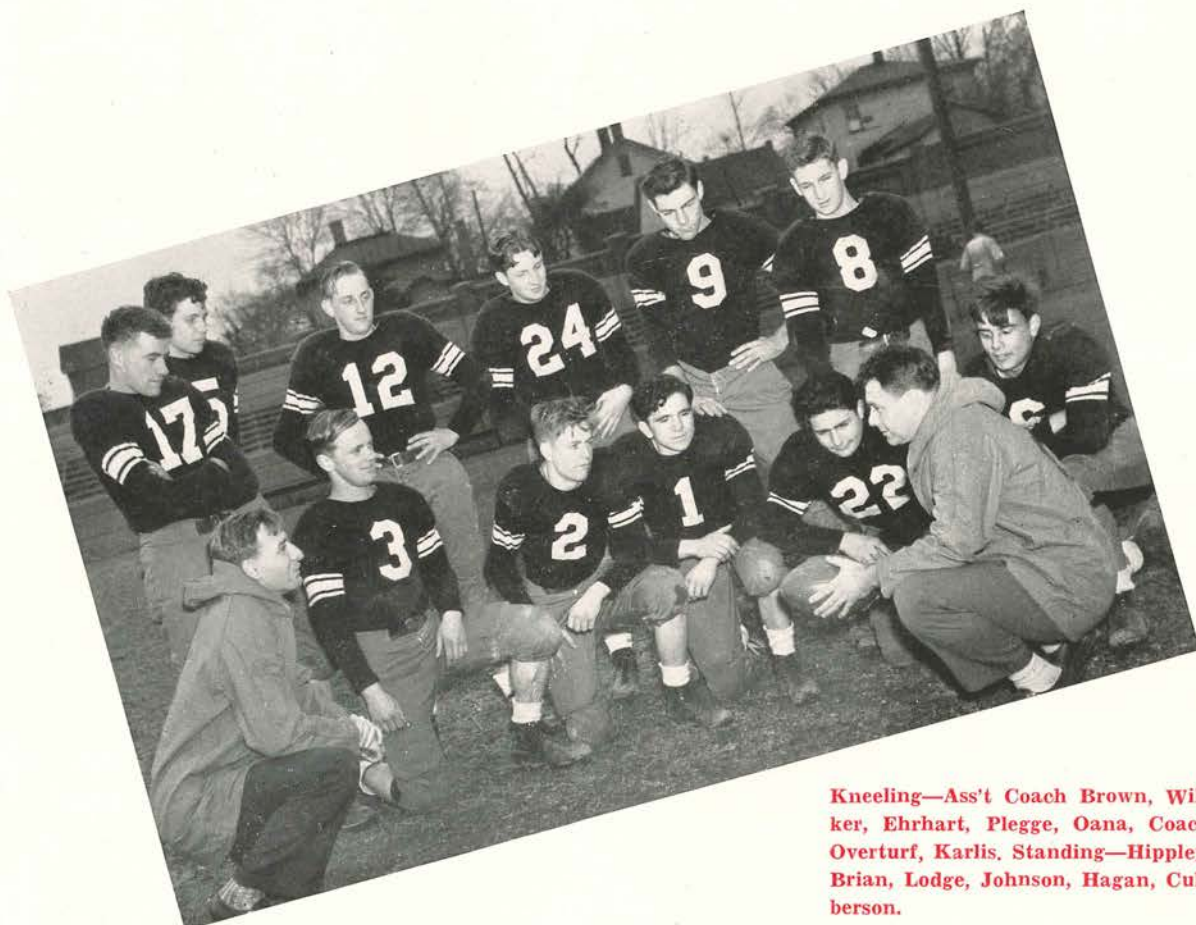

First and foremost, the varied sport program of Salem High school is conditioning the boys and girls within its halls for tasks that require more physical endurance than the normal work of civilian life demanded in former years.

Secondly, it has provided both amusement and recreation for participants as well as spectators. For many an onlooker, an evening of basketball or football provided the person with the amount of relaxation necessary to enable him to continue his assigned production task efficiently.

In peace or war, sports remain an integral part of the nation's educational system.

Football

A football season significant for the fact that it produced no static team distinctions was predominate as the Salem High school griders experienced a mediocre year.

Despite a lack of proficiency as a unit, the Quakers succeeded in placing five members on the all-county football squad. Glenn Weigand merited a position on the first team for his aggressive tactics at tackle. Playing both a good offensive and defensive game at end, Al Kenst obtained the other first string berth. Walt Brian, Frank Entriken, and Dick Greene received honorable mention for their work at end, left halfback and right halfback, respectively.

Raymond Overturf piloted the team for the second consecutive year, while Herbert Brown, basketball mentor, was appointed assistant to Overturf last spring to fill the vacancy created by the enlistment of Frank Gordon in the navy. Dick Culberson and Gordon Shasteen co-captained the Quaker squad for the past season.

The 1943 edition of the Red and Black grid machine will be minus 13 boys when practice begins next fall as a result of graduation. They will include: Dick Culberson, Gordon Shasteen, Duane Thomas, Glenn Weigand, Perry Whitacre, Al Kenst, Herb Wilker, Walt Krauss, Larry Hippley, Dick Lantz, Frank Hagen, Harry Ehrhart, and Dan Oana.

Basketball

Salvaging what appeared to be the worst cage record in the annals of Salem High school by advancing to the quarter finals of the northeastern Ohio basketball tournament, the Quaker quintet experienced some belated success the past season.

With the drawing of Canton Lincoln for the initial round of tournament play, pre-game information predicted that the locals would suffer another defeat. Contrary to accepted opinion, the Brownmen surprised everyone by easily defeating the Stark county youths and following up that victory with a win over a rugged Campbell Memorial squad. In the quarter-finals the Salemites were defeated in a closely contested game by Youngstown South, winner of 19 games in 20 starts.

Although the Quakers were beaten 11 times during the scheduled season, they possessed a better team than their record would indicate. All of the defeats with the exception of two were by a margin of seven points or less.

Diminutive Wayne Laughlin led the squad in scoring with 134 points, closely followed by Walt Brian with 132. Ray Wise, Frank Entriken, Harry Lodge and Dick Greene tallied 111, 88, and 52 markers, respectively.

Two senior boys, Bill Lutsch and Laughlin, played their first year of basketball for the locals. Laughlin was a newcomer to high school basketball, while Lutsch had played with the Alliance high outfit previously. Besides Lutsch and Laughlin, the Quakers will lose Ed Fisher and Dick Culberson by graduation.

Herb Brown again piloted the Red and Black squad, while Ray Overturf served as assistant for the first year.

First row — Laughlin, Culberson, Fisher, Wise, Greene.
Second row — Coach Brown, Entriken, Lutsch, Brian, Lodge.

Flick Entriken and an Alliance Aviator jump for the ball in an exciting match. Below, the Quakers take a "time out" for a tussle with the water bucket. Coach Herb Brown is in the insert.

Beginning their schedule on the home court with Ravenna, the locals tasted defeat from the arsenal city lads in a closely-contested game, 24-23. In the first out-of-town engagement, the Brownmen were successful as they trampled the county seaters, 39-20. Then, they suffered defeat at the hands of Columbiana and Youngstown Chaney before trouncing an Alumni aggregation.

The following week the Polar Bears from Canton Lehman gave the Quakers their only decisive defeat, 52-38. Playing probably their worst ball of the season, the Red and Black led almost the entire game, only to lose in the final seconds. East Palestine became easy prey as the locals outscored them, 51-22. Next, the Quakers dropped three successive games to Warren, Youngstown Rayen and South before avenging themselves with a victory over Alliance.

The Girard Indians put another kink in the local cagers' record the following Tuesday. Journeying to the southern part of the county, the Brownmen conquered East Liverpool and Wellsville. Akron West took on the Quakers that weekend, and the local youths countered with a victory over Struthers. Climaxing the season, the Salemites dropped their final game to Sebring by a two-point margin.

Freshman Basketball

After staging a mediocre beginning, the Salem High school freshman basketball team climaxed the season with an impressive finish that advanced them to the quarter finals of the district tournament for ninth grade squads.

This year marked the second anniversary for the organization; both years producing stellar performers as the teams twice journeyed to the quarter finals of the district playoffs. Ray Overturf, football mentor, piloted the youths this campaign, taking over the reins left vacant when Howard Lehwald secured a leave of absence in order to join the navy. At the conclusion of the season, Francis Lanney was elected honorary captain for the year.

Lanney led the team scoring with 53 field goals and 15 fouls for a total of 121, while Louis Juliano collected 39 goals and 24 fouls for a sum of 102. Fred Lewis, Charles Hobart, Ben Bruderly, Morris Hollinger and Johnny Pridon tallied 65, 60, 47, 31 and 28 points respectively. Johnny Mulford possessed the best foul record, making five free throws in six attempts for a percentage of 83. Lewis, Juliano, Bruderly and Lanney were closely grouped together between 60% and 44%.

Both Lanney and Juliano contributed to a number of Reserve victories as they were frequently inserted into the Quaker secondary lineup, while a number of other boys saw limited action.

The freshmen retrieved a better than .500 average after entering the district tournament to close the record books with nine wins and eight defeats.

First row — Myers, Bruderly, Hollinger, Pridon, Lewis. Second row — Reynolds, Hobart, Juliano, Lanney.

Stars Of Tomorrow

First row — Kupka, Kelly, Schaeffer, Leach, Appedison.
Second row — Smith, DeJane, Coach Overturf, Dyke, Stoudt.

Besides accumulating game experience for future varsity contests, the Salem High school reserve cagers finished the season with a record of 10 wins and eight defeats.

Beginning the season with a full two-team roster, the Quakers lost diminutive Wayne Laughlin to the varsity early in the year. The squad also served as a conditioner for other varsity members when their playing lacked finished ability. Harry Dyke and Jimmy Appedison dressed for a number of games with the senior circuit.

Appedison far outdistanced his closest rival for scoring honors with 107 points. Harry Dyke, Norman Smith, Donald DeJane, Charles Schaeffer, and Ben Kupka trailed him with 54, 52, 49, 46 and 39 markers respectively.

Ray Overturf, football mentor, assisted Coach Herb Brown with the coaching duties this year due to the absence of Howard Lehwald, who has entered the navy. Appedison, slight of stature, served as captain, the same position he held on the Freshman basketball team last season.

Defensively the squad was mediocre, showing only occasional flashes of good defensive tactics. As a result, it was necessary to use various combinations throughout the year in an attempt to find a group of boys that combined the two qualities successfully. Smith was probably the most consistent in this respect.

In the Army

The "gripe card" is now being widely circulated in army training camps. It is a black-bordered bit of bristling reading: "Your trials and tribulations have broken my heart. They are unique. I have never heard of anything like them before. As proof of my deepest sympathy, I give you this card, which entitles you to one hour of condolence from the chaplain."—Quote.

Camouflage

To deceive low-flying enemy patrol planes, British submarines are painted to match the colors of the waters in which they operate; in the Atlantic, they are blue; in the Mediterranean, gray; in the China sea, black.

The Poet Replies

Ben Jonson was once indebted to a vinter, who agreed to cancel the poet's obligation if he would make immediate reply to the following questions: What God is best pleased with; what the devil is best pleased with; what the world is best pleased with; and what he (the vinter) was best pleased with. Jonson at once replied:

"God is best pleased when men forsake their sins;

"The devil's best pleased when they persist therein;

"The world's best pleased, when thou dost sell good wine;

"And you're best pleased when I do pay for mine."
