The 1954 Quaker

Published By The Students Of Salem High School
Salem, Ohio
Within these covers is the story of our life in Salem High during 1953 and 1954—these are the things we did, the friends we knew, the heroes we praised, the teachers we worked and laughed with, the games we won, the losses we mourned, the rooms we were so familiar with—the library, the labs, the shops, the study halls. These are the things that have added color to our school and that have made us different from, and still so much akin to, all the other teenagers in America.

These are the things we shall want to remember when we talk about the "good old days," because, for better or worse,

Once in a while a man is found who is completely dedicated to the job he has chosen to do, who is obviously happy and fulfilled in his everyday work, without the need of outside stimulus.

The man to whom we dedicate this book is one of these. He has devoted a lifetime of service to the field of education, 11 years of which have been spent with the boys of Salem High. It is his earnest conviction that one of the purposes of a high school is to make men out of boys, and this has been his goal—accomplished sometimes through kindliness, sometimes through sternness, always with the aim of giving a boy what he needed in order to make a man out of him.

For his contribution of unstinted hours, (for many a night the lights burned in his shop), of devotion to the development of Salem boys, of unexcelled craftsmanship, and of 11 years of service to Salem High, we dedicate this yearbook to Jesse O. Hagedorn.
Mr. Hagedorn takes an exact measurement in Wood Industries.

...Dedicatee For Fifty-Four

The correct technique is demonstrated by Mr. Hagedorn.
Some of them were new . . . most of them were “old” . . . one we “borrowed.” Sometimes they were blue . . . often they were gay and “corny.” But always they were friends as well as instructors.

Mrs. Sherman and Mr. Boone were both new to the staff . . . Mr. Swanger and Mrs. Cope were returnees . . . we “borrowed” Mrs. Strain while Miss Zimmerman had a leave of absence . . . we were all blue when Mrs. Sherman had an auto accident, when Miss Weeks fell down the stairs, and when well-liked Mrs. Cox retired . . . everyone was happy when Mr. Zellers became a proud poppa.

SHS teachers had definite characteristics and personalities. All had their good and bad moments. How well we remember . . . Miss Kelley’s “catty” hairdo . . . Mr. Guiler’s quizzes . . . Mr. Tarr’s warnings to his “chemists” . . . Miss Ulicny’s “sharp” glasses . . . Mr. Harris’ humor . . . Mr. Crothers’ ties.

These were our teachers and they had many hobbies. Miss McCready planned dream houses . . . Mr. Tarr was a radio “ham” . . . Miss Redinger liked to travel and collect antiques . . . Mrs. Cope liked to read . . . Mrs. Tarr was a photography “bug” . . . Mr. Henning collected stamps.

Our teachers . . . all working to guide us and help us . . . by answering our sometimes silly, sometimes searching questions . . . helping when we got stuck on our homework . . . sometimes lecturing us when we needed it . . . making allowances for special occasions . . . always ready to enjoy a joke . . . being friends as well as instructors.

These Were Our Teachers
Civic-minded men compose the Salem Board of Education. They approve appointments, buy textbooks and supplies, keep the buildings in good shape, promote the welfare of the schools, and set high standards of education.

Alfred Fitch was unanimously elected president of the board this year. John C. Litty was selected vice-president, while George Koontz retained his post as clerk.

Salem voters responded with their usual generosity in 1953 when they voted to renew a former school levy and passed a new one. Because of this new levy the board was able to approve the largest budget in Salem's history to meet increased expenses.

E. S. Kerr, superintendent of schools, works closely with the Board of Education, acting as its chief executive. The responsibility of setting up an educational program in accordance with the policies established by the board rests upon him. Through his guidance the schools are run to best serve the needs of Salem youth.
Keeping our school scholastically high, making up the routine necessary for the proper function of the school, and patiently helping to correct errors made by the students were just a few of Principal Beman G. Ludwig's duties. Mr. Ludwig, who could be identified by his very special laugh, was always available to talk over any troublesome matters with students and to confer with teachers about their problems. Through his office a variety of assemblies was presented.

Miss Ala Zimmerman, dean of girls, had an extensive leave of absence this year. Mrs. Leah Strain filled this position, and through her sincere interest and willingness proved to be a valuable consultant. One of Mrs. Strain's big jobs was helping senior girls decide on prospective careers.

A friend of every boy was John R. Callahan, dean of boys. Through him employment was found, school difficulties were straightened out, and future careers were planned.

These Were Our Classes

Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors—the four classes that make up Salem High, each taking an equal part in the never-ending cycle of high school life. Walking through the halls during a period change, you might have been able to tell to which class we belonged by the way we acted. The shy, always-in-a-hurry group was the Freshmen. The Sophomores, having profited by a whole year's experience, were more at ease. No longer were they embarrassed to sign out of study hall, and no more did they go up and down the wrong stairs. The proud Juniors strutted a bit, for they had just graduated to the second floor and were upperclassmen at last. The students that strode the halls with gay assurance were the Seniors, more confident than they would ever be again, hiding those first faint twinges of uncertainty beneath a swaggering braggadocio.

But no matter which class we belonged to, democracy prevailed, and we were all subject to the same rules—tardy bell at 8:30, no gum-chewing in school, get corridor passes signed, bring signed excuses for absences.

Holding us all together was a feeling of pride in our high school and a hope that what our class accomplished would make Salem High a little better than it had ever been before.

Seniors Achieve 12-Year Goal

Seniors—the very sound of the word was magic! The aim of 12 years' work was almost achieved when we passed into that upper bracket. Now was the time of the Senior play... of sitting in the coveted “middle section” for assemblies... of measurements for caps and gowns... of scholarship exams... of English IV and its maddening punctuation... of the marriage problems course where we learned how to be good husbands and wives... and of all the “lasts”—the last football game, the last basketball game, the last track meet, the last concert, the last prom—and finally the last march down the aisle at Commencement, when we knew that the magic was over and we were ready to face reality.

But always a little of that magic will be recaptured when we remember our life at Salem High.

Juniors Attain Upperclass Level

All of a sudden the Junior year was here with all the glamorous first-time doings of the upperclassmen. Chemistry and algebra II caught quite a few squarely between the eyes, and the familiar groans resounded through the halls.

But class rings lifted the spirits of the weary, and hastened the realization that too soon this would all be gone. The Junior-Senior party provided the winter social event, and the decorations were untrampled this year when the Juniors had first chance to enjoy them.

And what Junior will forget the annual skirmish with drama, "A Change of Heart"? Many a dramatic soul turned over in its grave and though possibly the Muses took to the hills, no Broadway show will be more happily remembered.

The first Prom filled the scrap books with pressed flowers and battered programs and the diaries with secrets.

And then the Football Queen was presented amid cheers and tears, and officers for our last important year in SHS were elected. The Juniors came to the final realization that now their time in SHS was almost over—only one more year—and they may have just passed through the best year of their lives.

Sophomores Reach Half-Way Mark

The 1954 Sophomores were a merry crew. Having graduated from pencil selling, they turned their attention to social events. At their Freshman-Sophomore party they transformed the gym into a Winter Wonderland and made of the bunny-hop an SHS war dance.

They sang lustily in the choruses, performed with precision in the band, held their own in sports, and made themselves known in club activities.

They financed their projects by selling candy, pop, and ice-cream bars at the refreshment stand.

These tenth-graders became intimate with the innards of “Henrietta” in the biology lab, faced up bravely to Caesar and geometry, and came through the battle with English grammar battered, but unbowed.

Through it all they learned to study, to budget their time, to cooperate with others, and to assume the responsibilities of becoming upperclassmen.

Frosh Begin Four-Year Journey

The Frosh came trooping through the doors of SHS to begin their first classes last fall. Little did they know that there were no elevators and coke machines, but they soon learned. This high school life was really easier than they thought it would be. It didn’t take long to memorize schedules, to get acquainted with the halls, teachers, and classes, and to join clubs, band, chorus, and sports.

Before long their class officers were elected and then the "greenies" started twisting Seniors’, Juniors’, and Sophomores’ arms to make them buy pencils. This annual pencil sale, a freshman tradition, swelled the class’s treasury, for they reached their goal with plenty to spare.

Just beginning the journey through high school the Frosh have three more years to go in which to leave their mark on Salem High.

These Were Our Activities

We really had a gay old time at Salem High during this past year. There was an endless round of activities ... dances, parties, football and basketball games, track meets, club meetings, initiations and assemblies. Through them we learned to make friends and developed good character traits.

Everyone worked together. When the Student Council and Junior Red Cross co-sponsored a drive for food for needy families, so much turned up that it nearly filled the auditorium stage. And when the time came for class parties and the Association Dance we all tried to get on the decorating committee. No wonder! Decorating is as much fun as the dances themselves.

Clubs! We had so many of them! At noon everyone dashed through lunch to get to the meetings. Sometimes we forgot to pay our dues and often we were late, but all that was forgotten when our big projects turned out to be successes.

Music had its place in SHS, too, especially on the third floor. Almost every day we could hear melodious strains floating through the halls, the result of rehearsals for chorus concerts, or the music festival, or maybe the band concerts. Some people say, "Music soothes the savage beast." Could be that's why we're a tame group of students.

Extra-curricular activities have proved to be an essential part of SHS. What would we do without them? We'd be lost!
This year marked the beginning of the second quarter of a century for Salem High's band. Director Howard Pardee conducted the concert band and Richard Howenstein, the marching band.

Our 54-piece marching band entertained the football crowds at half-times. Dressed in red and black and led by five majorettes and a drum major, the band typified the spirit of Salem students. The snappy step, precision columns, and difficult and clever formations were the results of much serious practice.

At the conclusion of football season the band left these rousing marches to concentrate on exacting concert music. It was not an easy task for our 74-piece concert band to uphold the reputation that came with winning a superior rating in 1953 at the state contest in Columbus, but this rating proved to be an incentive for the talented musicians.

In December the band had the honor of being invited to play three selections at the convention of the Ohio Musical Education Association in Canton, Ohio.

Participating in the Ashtabula Harbor Band Festival was an innovation which provided valuable experience in competing with other bands, as well as an evening of fun.

In addition to a commendable performance at the annual Spring Concert, the band played at the Commencement exercises.

Plays With Spirit And Skill

Anyone near 302 during the first three periods of the day heard strains of sweet music coming from this room where the three choral groups practiced under the direction of Thomas Crothers. This was also the room where, many a time, everyone got tired of practicing the same song over and over. But all this repetition paid off in the end when their efforts were warmly applauded at their many popular public appearances.

Besides their annual Christmas Vesper Service and Spring Concert, the choruses’ appearances included participation in the Mt. Union Festival, the Tri-City Festival, singing for civic groups, school assemblies, and Baccalaureate.

The three groups held a magazine sale to raise money for new music and traveling expenses to the district choral contest in Massillon, Ohio.

Student Council Leads The Way

Student Council Officers

Student Council of 1954—a record-breaker and a “new-idea” Council. The members, chosen by their homerooms, held several evening meetings, first to get organized and later to hash over controversial issues, for this Council was also long-winded.

Laughing legislators, these, as they planned the “princely” presents of the Christmas assembly and called in Joe Friday for aid in the talent assembly. A bit of Broad¬way blood also showed through in their sweeping production of the “Quaker Follies.”

The Student Council, with John Callahan, dean of boys as adviser, sponsored noon dances and movies, post-basketball-game dances, Students’ Day, published the handbooks, and, with Hi-Tri, co-sponsored Vocations Day.

Later Council got gay and went a-visiting other Student Councils for a broader outlook and new ideas.

Then they broke the record. They ripped all previous tax stamp collection totals to shreds when they collected $20,000 worth of the little green bits of paper. And the Council set a precedent when, at Christmas time, they collected from their homerooms so much food for needy families that it filled the stage.

And so this Student Council fades into the pages of history as one that left SHS a little better than it found it.
JRC Conducts ‘Operation Santa Claus’

The Junior Red Cross Council is composed of a representative and an alternate elected from each home-room. At their after-school meetings ideas for projects flowed unlimited and the ones decided upon were successful. During November and December the Council collected 18 boxes of clothing which were distributed by the National Red Cross to needy families in Korea. The name appropriately given to this project was “Operation Santa Claus.”

The Council, always ready with its services, assisted the city’s senior Red Cross when the Bloodmobile rolled into town, and also helped them in packing Christmas boxes for overseas servicemen.

The students were behind the Junior Red Cross a hundred per cent, as was shown by their successful membership drive. Mrs. Helen Mulbach was the adviser.

Representing Salem High, Pat Ranson and Ramon Pearson attended the American Red Cross Convention at Washington, D. C., last summer.
"Spoken French" is the title of guide books to beautiful France, and spoken French it was after the Cercle d'Amusette purchased these books to help vivify their dreams of a trip to gay Paree.

The club conducted all their activities en francais within the limits of their vocabulary. At lunch meetings only the true linguists were filled, because each item on the menu had to be "Frenchly" identified.

Lingo, the continental version of the American vice, Bingo, exercised the "un," "deux," "trois" of the members.

French records and a Christmas party (Joyeux Noel) helped to enliven the meetings in a Parisian vein.

An American basketball game and bake sale netted American money to keep these "Frenchmen" in the black.

Miss Evelyn Johnston was adviser of the group.

To this club of '54, whose Frenchiness stopped just short of wearing berets, "au revoir."

Frenchmen Dream Of Gay Paree
Students Conquer El Espanol

“Los Conquistadores”—an appropriate name for the Spanish Club, for in English it means “The Conquerors.” These first and second-year Spanish students have become members through their ability to “conquer” the Spanish language, with an assist from adviser Miss Mildred Hollett.

What a turnout they had at the annual Fiesta! The music was divine and that Mexican atmosphere was out of this world.

A special meeting featured Senora Maria de Haney showing films which she made on her recent trip to Chile, her native country.

As a memento of the pleasant noon-hours spent in Spanish Club, charms inscribed with “Espanol” were purchased by the members.

Ancient Romans Live And Love Again

Gladitorial combats of the ancient Romans filled the SHS "arena" when the "Sodalitas Latina," or Latin Associates, met this year to learn of Caesar, Cassius, and conjugation under the advisership of Miss Helen Redinger.

The Latin learners discussed the robust Roman recreation, lifted the leaves upon the lives and loves of Anthony and Cleopatra, and traced the origin of gods and goddesses, richly revered by the Romans.

The "Sodalitas Latina" was one of the first clubs ever to be organized at Salem High. Its membership has steadily increased through the years as the students' interest in ancient Roman civilization has been fostered by the activities of this group.
The lusty singing of German Lieder and the struggle for perfection of German pronunciation occupied the meetings of "Die Lustige Gruppe," made up of interested members of the German classes.

In every group there's a clown, and Jim Staufenger wore the cap and bells in this bunch. Curt McGhee was a whiz at whipping up crossword puzzles in German, while Bill Jermolenko, a native of Germany, was chief arbiter of accents and idioms.

As they recall all the pleasant times they had under the direction of their adviser, Miss Irene Weeks, they are sure they lived up to their name, "The Happy Gang."

This group of students was known as the Slide Rule Club. On Wednesday afternoons in room 201 they could be found confusedly trying to understand the manipulation of the slide rule — that is, until their adviser, Miss Martha McCreedy, demonstrated the proper use of the "slip stick."

The confused expressions began to fade from the faces of these third and fourth-year math students when they got the hang of it, and before you could say "boo" they were multiplying and dividing large sums. When they discovered they could find square roots and even raise numbers to powers, they were dizzy with success.

The biggest result of all their hard work at meetings was the mastery of a skill that will be useful to them in various lines of business. Meanwhile they're very happy to have found a short way to do their math homework.
Honorable judge and worthy opponents, we are gathered today to debate the topic, "Resolved: That the President of the United States Should be Elected by Direct Vote of the People." With this smooth introduction a battle of wits was on.

Ann Baker and Richard Journey opposed this year's question while Barbara Tausch and John Deagan took the affirmative stand.

During the first half of the season these debaters wrote and rewrote speeches and rebuttal, hunted high and low for good quotes, and practiced delivery 'til they could almost give the material backwards. Then the squad, coached by J. C. Gullier, entered competition at two invitational tournaments in Niles and Canton. Words and fists flew and the final outcome was four wins and four losses. Experience was their biggest gain.

They did their best debating at the district tournament in Youngstown where they climaxed the year by placing second best in the district.
'Mad Artists' Display Talents

When the "mad artists" of SHS got together we never knew what to expect. Remember Christmastime, when they dangled mobiles from every staircase, and the paintings of the seasons with which they livened up the halls?

During the year they did work for local church groups and designed covers for "File 13."

But fun was also intermingled with their work when they took time out to play doodle games, identify symbols, and have parties. The successful Christmas party offered dancing, talented entertainers, and, of course, eating. They can still recall their adviser, Mrs. Norma Sherman, slaving away over a hot stove cooking 20 pounds of french fries for these starving Bohemians. The roller-skating party was lots of fun as was the costume party.

To end a perfect year Mrs. Sherman arranged for the club to take a trip to an art institute.
Potential Poes, haggard Hawthornes, teen-age Tennysons—these the Creative Writing Club, with adviser Edward Harris, hoped to find in its ranks as the literary lamp lighted the path of learning. Veritable Pickwicks with their piles of many papers, the members of the club, with the aid of constructive criticism from fellow authors, “unchopped” choppy sentences, wedded split infinitives, and attempted a closer communion with the Muses.

The offspring of the club, “File 13,” the literary magazine of SHS, celebrated its second birthday this year, coming out in a printed edition. Contributions came from students of all four classes, and the best are now preserved for posterity between the covers of “File 13.”

And so the potential Poes, the haggard Hawthornes, and the teen-age Tennysons wrote and learned, and the students of SHS may some day say, “I knew him when.”

G. A. A. Takes Jaunt To Washington

Playing volleyball and badminton in the fall, perfecting basketball and ping pong technique during the winter months, and tackling baseball and bowling in the spring kept these sportminded gals busy, happy, and in trim shape. It was a familiar sight to see these spirited, vigorous games being played at noon and after school in the gym.

The Girls' Athletic Association, under the direction of Miss Edith Cope, sponsored their annual Christmas-card selling contest to earn money for a jaunt to Washington, D. C. Twenty-eight G.A.A. members enjoyed the memorable sights and pleasures of the nation's capital.

Another big event was “play day” held at Kent State University. Approximately five girls from Salem High and from each area school were invited to join in various sports, meet new friends, and enjoy the campus.

The club staged lively square dances and took to the wide open spaces for wiener roasts.
Varsity S was a club for sports enthusiasts who had earned the prized possession of a varsity letter by devoting time, ability, and interest to one of Salem High's major sports. Members wore red and black jackets which identified them as top Quaker sportsmen.

The club donated a new banner to the school and sold badges which were replicas of this banner. Joe Hajcak, the designer, made the humorous Quaker head and the slogan, "Love Those Quakers," famous.

By selling these badges the club was again able to purchase the Mickey McGuire League trophies which were presented to the winning grade-school basketball and softball teams.

Seniors enjoyed one of their last high school dances when they attended the annual Varsity S Dance in the spring. A local orchestra provided music for the large crowd of students and alumni.
The Hi-Tri really started off with a bang. Twenty-six junior girls went through an unforgettable initiation. They masqueraded in nightgowns, roller skates, big hats, and sunglasses. What a sight! They really didn't mind it because, as the signs on their backs read, “We are honored to be Hi-Tri members.”

But this group, consisting of junior and senior girls who have had B averages during their first two years of high school, recalled the dignity and purpose of their organization at their traditional formal initiation held by candlelight.

Helping the needy was one of their aims. Two Thanksgiving baskets were given to families who weren’t as fortunate as these girls and clothes were contributed at Christmas time.

The group worked with the Student Council to put Vocations Day over successfully. During football season they sponsored a refreshment stand to build up their funds.

The Mother-Daughter Banquet, which was held in the spring, concluded another year for the Hi-Tri. At this dinner the new officers were installed. Mrs. Beryl Tarr and Miss Claribel Bickel were advisers.
"The show must go on" was the motto of this year's Thespians who, through dark of night, heat of noon, snow, sleet, rain, and hail, managed to present five one-act plays for organizations in Salem and outlying districts, and also sponsored the two three-act class plays, "Melody Jones" and "A Change of Heart."

Two "Wilbur" plays, "Sure As You're Born" and "Wilbur Minds the Baby"; a "holly and mistletoe" play, "Her Christmas Wish"; and two miscellaneous comedies, "The Great Joanne" and "Ghost for Rent" went before the glaring footlights in the "Little Theatre Just Across from 207."

Old members survived the induction of new members at two informal initiations, and lighted the seven candles representing the steps in the development of the dramatic arts at the formal initiations.
The Salemasquers, cast in their roles of "apprentice" Thespians, presented two one-act plays under the leadership of Miss Irene Weeks. "Spring Formal" and "If Girls Asked Boys for Dates" placed the Masquers before the footlights, helped them acquire poise and stage presence, and offered opportunity to earn the coveted Thespian points so dear to their hearts.

To become a Salemasquer a student must earn one-fourth of a point in any phase of dramatic work, make-up, stage props, wardrobe, or hand props for the class plays, or in the other fields of dramatic enterprise. As a Masquer he was given the opportunity to earn the 120 hours of credit necessary for Thespianship. This year the members ordered pins as badges of their office.

Their ranks swelled after each class play and diminished with each Thespian initiation as more potential Theda Baras and John Barrymores passed through the revolving door of Masquership to become Thespians.
Drama Helps ‘Bashful Barrymores’

The theater must really get into the blood of the behind-the-scenes dramatics assistants, for their duties included the inglorious jobs of checking attendance, grading papers and notebooks, and helping “bashful Barrymores” learn their lines. To be chosen to assist Miss Weeks in her job of transforming crude Cathys into clever Cornells, these eleven assistants had at least B averages in dramatics the previous year and had a special interest in the pots of paint, the blotchy backdrops, SHS’s sloping stage, and the romantic roles.

These “hopeful hams” aided and abetted both the Salemasquers and the Thespians when they produced one-act plays. The assistants served mainly as directors for these theatrical ventures.

Maybe someday when our high school is no longer frequented by overacting adolescents, a long-departed assistant will return to our dim and darkened auditorium to search in the dusty corners for the piece of his heart he left behind the backdrops on the stage of SHS.
Monitors, Aides Keep A-Hoppin'

The monitors were kept a-hoppin' running errands, taking telephone messages to students, and keeping attendance records. With friendly smiles they greeted and assisted visitors in our school.

Good grades proved to be an important factor when these monitors were chosen. Other qualifications were regular attendance at school and two study halls a day.

The dean's aides were the indispensable helpers who delivered those invitations to chat with Mrs. Strain. Answering telephone calls in the absence of the dean, and doing clerical work was also part of their job.

These students who served our school cheerfully and efficiently helped to keep the offices running smoothly.
Chemists Don’t Blow Tops

The pungent odors of the chemistry lab must have no effect on some people, for back into the lab for a second year came seven brave souls.

These students were known as lab assistants and were selected by Frank Tarr, chemistry instructor, for their ability and interest in chemistry, as well as for their high average while taking the course the previous year.

The duties of these aides included helping students in their experiments, answering their questions, and just being all-around little helpers for Mr. Tarr.

Twice a week these guys and gals gave up study halls in order to render these services, but you can bet that they enjoyed it.

Besides reviewing their studies of the year before, they gained more experience in the field of chemistry which better prepared them for college.

Everything they did was done gladly and with the hope that it was really of some assistance.
The Formaldeaides include the biology lab assistants, past and present.

Throughout the year these students enjoyed a varied round of activities. Their biggest project was a trip to Pittsburgh, where they toured the Carnegie Museum, the Buhl Planetarium, and the Phipps Conservatory where they saw flowers like they'd never seen before. Such a trip is mighty costly, so these energetic biologists got down to the money-making business by selling candy bars and potato chips to the lunch pupils.

Their business meetings were held every other week, and they made an effort to have one night meeting each month for which special programs were arranged. At two of these they saw colored slides of the Canadian Rockies and a demonstration of blood-typing techniques.

All in all, the Formaldeaides, under the leadership of advisers Mrs. Fred Cope and John Olloman, fostered a sincere interest in the field of plant and animals among these biology-minded students.

Librarians Assist Bookworms

Students of Salem High have not been completely enslaved by Joe Friday and Marilyn Monroe, for 3,000 books were checked out of our SHS library between September and February.

Helping our bookworms to select their romances and reference books were 17 honor-roll students, chosen by Miss Lois Lehman, head librarian, and Miss Helen Thorp, her assistant. They check out and mend books, issue those pesky overdue slips, file cards, keep the well-stocked shelves in order (imagine dusting 5,000 books!) and, in general, acquire valuable experience in library science while performing a service for their school.
The job of teaching 160 girls how to sew was an ex­acting one and so six girls volunteered their assistance. They were known as clothing aides and gave a period a day to help the sewing instructors, Mrs. Bessie Lewis and Mrs. Leah Strain.

The aides were chosen by the teachers for their interest and efficiency in sewing. No credit was given for their work but the honor and experience were credit enough.

Helping with the cutting, fitting, and assembling of garments were their chief duties.

They assisted the classes with their varied projects, the biggest of which was the annual Spring Style Show, where the students modeled clothes they had made in class. The aides directed and narrated the gala affair.

It's all their fault.

If some people weren't born with printer's ink in their veins, there would never be any high school newspapers. It takes people who are a little different—and a little crazy—to go through the necessary agonies week after week—weekly deadlines, dummies, editorials, and distress. And constant nightmares wherein limitless white space is to be filled up, and there is nothing to fill it with except shrdlu etaoin.

But the Weekly writers fulfilled these many qualifications and each Friday—except holidays—the Quakers were distributed and the record of the week's events in SHS was preserved for posterity.

When their 1953 rating from NSPA was First Class, their ambitions were fulfilled and they were ready to start the whole crazy routine all over again.

The glow boys

The pen, brush, and ink corps
Racking their brains for a theme, drawing up the dummy and changing something in it almost every day, taking and retaking pictures, deciding on a cover, writing and rewriting articles, captions, and headlines (there must have been thousands), meeting deadlines . . . what an annual staff has to go through! No wonder they took turns at going slightly mad!

But when the sample of the cover came in and it looked terrific, when the Salem News let them use some of their good action shots, and when the picture proofs showed they'd bled and flushed (just printers' terms) accurately, they could breathe a sigh of relief because things were turning out right.

If in the end everything does “turn out right” and if the students and teachers like the 1954 Quaker, then their problems will be forgotten and only the fun remembered.

These Were Our Sports

A Varsity letter—those magic words mean different things to different people.

To the boys it means the highly coveted reward for weeks of rigorous training, hard work, disappointment, thrills, and the pleasant feeling of giving their all for their Alma Mater.

To the coaches those words signify that another group of fine youngsters has come through a grueling grind with flying colors, that the boys are now better students, better citizens and better Americans for having learned the important lesson of the value of team play and cooperation.

To the school administration it means the fulfillment of many months of planning, scheduling, budget-balancing, and completing the myriad details necessary in arranging athletic contests.

To the parents those words mean the end of countless hours of worry and concern, of hope and pride, of the pleasant glow-all-over when the son carries over the winning touchdown, or breaks the tape first, or sinks the crucial foul shot that prompts the proud exclamation, "That's my boy!"

To the adult fans and alumni it means many hours in which to forget troubles and tensions, countless items for idle speculation and arguments during the ensuing weeks, and the satisfaction of seeing the Alma Mater's tradition carrying on, of seeing "Salem win another."

And to the student body those words separate from the crowd the plucky wearers, who compose a team their classmates are proud to back to the limit.

Tracksters Are Speed Demons

Climaxing the successful 1953 Salem track season, freshman high-jumper Jack Alexander tied for fourth place in the State Finals at Columbus with a performance that barely missed the all-time Salem High School record.

The Quakers had two other tracksters at Columbus, an excellent representation. Captain Ed Votaw and Jerry Martin, this year's captain, both qualified for the State finals, but were handicapped there with injuries.

Although the locals only split even in six dual meets during the first half of the campaign, they suddenly rounded into form, placing fourth in the county, seventh in the district, and Alexander's performance left Salem tied for 30th in the state.

Coach Frank J. Tarr's cinder-men, after the slow start, developed rapidly at the end of the season to register one of the best records in recent years.

Karl Zellers served as assistant track coach.
As unpredictable as the weather, a hot and cold Salem High School football squad bounded—and rebounded—through a successful 1953 season, copping six of nine games.

After eking out tough victories in the opening pair of contests, the locals dropped a heart-breaking one-point decision to Youngstown Woodrow Wilson. The Quakers hit the low ebb of their campaign with a dreary 27-7 shellacking at the capable hands of Canton Timken.

Then the Red and Black launched into a four-game win streak, netting triumphs over rugged Wellsville, Akron and Youngstown North, and climaxing it with the high point of the season, a satisfying 13-2 verdict over arch-rival East Liverpool. It marked the first time since 1948 that a Salem squad had tripped the Potters.

The Quakers then went into a slump dropping a disappointing 27-7 decision to undefeated Lisbon before a record crowd of 7,000 at Lisbon.

One of the highlights of the year occurred when "Big Dan" Kendzierski, formerly a tackle, was converted into a fullback for the Liverpool game and scored all the points in that memorable win.

Lineman John Baker, team captain, and Ed Mozina, coaches' award winner, played every minute of each game. Tom Swetye was chosen by his teammates as the most valuable player and Gary Paxson was awarded the Knights of Columbus trophy as the senior gridder with the highest scholastic standing.

Thus Coach Ben Barrett concluded his 11th consecutive year at the helm of the Quakers, his slate now showing 66 victories, only 29 defeats, and three ties for a percentage of .695.

Although not very successful as far as their win-loss records go, in the eyes of their coaches—who should know—both the Quaker Reserve and Freshman football squads were successful.

The Reserves, coached by Sam Pridon, won one game over East Palestine while losing to Alliance, Boardman, and Goshen Union.

The Freshmen played only two games, losing to both Leetonia and Canfield. Freshman Coach Vince Crawford still considers the season a success because “the main purpose of freshman ball is not to win, but to instruct the boys in the fundamentals of the game.”

This is the second year for reserve football at Salem. Its purpose is to give boys on the squad, not quite good enough to play regularly with the Varsity, extra actual game experience which the coaches feel is more valuable than practice sessions alone.

A driving, fighting basketball team that never knew when to quit.
That's the 1953-54 Salem Quakers.

Although the Red and Black trailed its foe at some point in every game but one, the final slate of 16 wins in 20 outings is a fine tribute to the courageous locals, who many times pulled off almost unbelievable rallies in the fading minutes of a battle to win.

The highlights of the season included six and seven-game winning streaks, brilliant wins over tough East Liverpool, Canton South, and Sharpsville teams, reaching the sectional tournament finals, and inscribing six new shooting and scoring records into the all-time record books.

This year's aggregation was the highest-scoring ever to wear Quaker uniforms, and only two Seniors were graduated from the squad, leaving a healthy nucleus for future years.

Breaking every record in the book, the powerful Salem Jayvees swept to the most successful reserve season in history, racking up 17 consecutive victories without a setback.

The high-scoring locals matched their varsity counterparts in many departments. They averaged better than 67 points per game and did a fine job on defense, allowing the foe fewer than 48 markers per outing.

Coached by Karl Zellers the undefeated Reserves had comparatively easy sailing this year, their lowest margins of victory being four and six points. There were six contests in which the winning spread was over 20 points and the highest, an amazing 45-point triumph over East Palestine.

There has never been a Jayvee season in all the annals of Salem High to match this one. The previous top mark among junior varsity ball teams was 14 wins in 17 games. The scoring mark is also the school's best.

Sharpshooting Dick Hunter paced the club in point-producing, registering 203 points in 14 games. Bob Early, Jerry Myers, Dale Middeker and Matt Klein also were Jayvee sparkplugs.
Frosh Cagers Win 12 Games

Coming through their 12-game schedule without a loss the Quaker Freshmen emerged the second undefeated freshman team in the history of basketball at Salem High.

Coach Sam Pridon’s cagers racked up a total of 652 points while holding their opponents to 445 markers in 12 games. The squad played six schools, meeting each team twice during the season.

This year’s frosh team was considered by many to be one of the best in history, and Coach John Cabas and his assistant, Karl Zellers, are looking forward to using the boys on next year’s Reserve and Varsity squads. Many of the team members dressed for Reserve games this year and saw some action.

In the scoring department Bill Schuster led the frosh in their two-round schedule with 98 tallies, followed by Dick Beall with 72.

Every member of the squad scored at least three points during the season.

These Were Our Features

Life at SHS wouldn't have been nearly so much fun if all the "extras" hadn't existed to relieve us from the regular routine of studying and tests. Everyone took part in them, if only by being a member of the appreciative audience.

Through our Association plan a variety of assemblies was presented—top-notch speakers, such as Toni Gauer from Switzerland, and unusual movies, one of which even portrayed petunias waltzing. Class plays, Association parties, track meets, football and basketball games, the Weeklies and the Annual were all benefits of our Association program.

There were pep assemblies where the roof was raised by the rousing yells led by the cheerleaders. The Seniors elected their Who's Who, our Football Girl was crowned at the first football game, and the four classes chose candidates for Quaker King and Queen.

In June we breathlessly watched the procession at the Quaker Recognition Assembly when the class sovereigns marched solemnly down the aisle. Julius La Rosa's choice was made known, and the crowns were placed on the heads of our Quaker King and Queen.
The best "invention" ever — the Association ticket. All we had to do was flash these tickets, and in we went, to basketball and football games, track meets, dances, assemblies, and class plays; and through them we received the Quaker Weekly and our year book, too.

Six dollars seemed like such a small amount to pay for so much, and we have Mr. Hilgendorf, Central Treasurer, to thank for originating our Association plan in 1928.

Out of the 851 students at SHS, 770 of us had Association tickets in our wallets this year. Many other schools in the district, aware of the advantages the Association offers to students, have imitated our plan.

Benefits derived from the Association plan . . . thrilling basketball games, the ever-cherished annuals, highly entertaining and interest assemblies, and the never-forgotten football games.
Love those Quaker cheerleaders who more than fulfilled their task of igniting the spark of SHS's spirit!

A capital V all the way for this group of gals—a V for vim, vigor, and victory, their battle cry.

These pepsters, with Mrs. Bes-sie Lewis as adviser, have really given their all for the teams of SHS. They led us in cheers when our boys came through with flying colors; and when those sad defeats threatened our spirits, they were still there cheering us on.

During football season these girls, three of them seniors and three sophomores, displayed their ambitious natures. They made literally hundreds of pom-poms which they sold to raise money for new uniforms and megaphones.

Besides this varsity squad of cheerleaders, Jeanette Harris, Evelyne Copacia, and Ruthann Baddeley led the yells during the Reserve games.

Senior Cast Presents ‘Melody Jones’

MOTHER (Mary Jones) .......................... Sandra Church
An attractive modern mother in her early forties.

LAURA WATKINS (Elaine’s mother) .......... Martha Brown
Talkative sister-in-law, early forties, one hundred per cent for her own daughter.

MELODY JONES .................................. Donna Cooca
Sixteen-year-old adopted daughter, in love with spring and all the things with which sixteen-year-olds fall in love:
pretty, wistful, spunky, impulsive, imaginative, pouty; the daughter all men dream of having, but lose their hair over if they happen to get one.

LEON JONES ..................................... Richard Oriole
Melody’s stiff, studious brother, twenty-one years of age;
a woman-hater, a bit cynical but underneath very fond of Melody and a certain Miss Richards.

KENNETH CARPENTER .......................... Carl Siple
Sixteen, a walking authority on plant and animal life; precise, proper, confident and pedantic.

ELAINE WALKINS ............................... Mignon Lyons
Sixteen and a half, Melody’s cousin; spoiled, attractive, jealous. Loves clothes and popularity.

BRUCE BUTLER .................................. Sanford Hansell N. T.
Twenty-two years of age, a ladies’ man (at least he thinks he is). As suave as a twenty-two-year-old can be.

KATHY (Miss Richards) ..................... Jackie Welsh
Good-looking, twenty-year-old 4-H club instructor; poised sensible and spirited.

JENNIFER ABBEY ............................... Carol Jo Byrns N. T
Sixteen, Melody’s best friend: over-helpful, impulsive and talkative.

FATHER (John Jones) ......................... Carl Flitcraft
Melody’s father; early forties, likable, typically American.

GARY BOYD .................................... Charles Jones N. T
Likable teen-age athlete; sixteen and a half; looks like what all sixteen-year-old girls hope to grow up and marry.

STRETCH APPLEBY ........................... Richard Journey
Seventeen; long, lean, droll, good-looking and not particularly impressed with girls, especially girls that pursue him.

FRANCIE WILKS ............................... Gloria Andrews
Sixteen years of age; from the deep south—but there’s nothing deep about Francie. She’s all on the surface.
All froth and chatter with a shrill siren-like giggle.

The entire cast “on stage”
Gary and Melody, after countless trials and tribulations, finally get ready to go to the prom as Mother and Father look on beaming.

Five couples, engrossed with each other, talk over their own problems, oblivious to the rest of the crowd.

Despite the urging of Kenneth, Jennifer, and Gary, lanky Stretch, lazy as always, refuses to give up his "comfy" couch just to play some "silly old" games.

Doris McNamee, a friendly lass, spirited cheerleader, and a keen sports enthusiast, was chosen by her class as Football Girl for '53-'54. Surrounded by six attendants, she was crowned by Helen Dora Copacia, the retiring queen, during a halftime ceremony at the first home game. Convertibles, corsages, and formal attire made the occasion impressive.

In 1924 the late Dr. Henry K. Yaggi, a booster of Salem High, suggested that the school choose a girl who was an ardent football fan to reign over the season's activities. For 30 years his idea has been a tradition that each class looks forward to carrying on.
Handsome young Julius LaRosa, famous for his TV and radio programs, personal appearances, and "Eh! Cumpari" chose our 1954 Quaker King and Queen.

During an engagement at Stambaugh Auditorium in Youngstown, the popular singer met our eight candidates, who had been elected by their classmates. Backstage he joked and got acquainted with them, then wrote the "best wishes" note that named our 1954 King and Queen.

They were selected on the basis of their appeal to him personally and his choice was not revealed until the Quaker Recognition Assembly.

The 1953 — '54 school year came to the inevitable end and, as much as we loved our school days, we were only normal, and therefore simply busting at the seams to rush out when that last bell rang.

But we knew that after that first fine flush of freedom had worn off, we would start fondly recalling the people and events pictured in this book, the good and the bad, the work and the fun, the learning and the loafing, and feel proud in knowing that . . .

Robert B. Cleghorn, Jr., Hodgeville, West Virginia, reports his hydraulic self-moving 42" McCarthy Coal Recovery Drill mines "up to 500 tons of clean, low-cost quality coal per day." Cleghorn has a three-man crew—operates in pits as narrow as 34 feet. Operator has total vision, including the highwall. Model 12 handles 24' augers from 16" to 48" in diameter.

Other McCarthy Coal Recovery Drills handle augers 4', 6' and 12' in length.

TRUCK-MOUNTED HORIZONTAL
- Satisfied customer reports, "I drill so many more feet per minute with my McCarthy than I did with my old jet rig that I quickly recovered the low initial purchase cost."

VERTICAL DRILL
- "Amazing savings," says Owner-Contractor J. F. Nichols. He drilled six-foot-deep blast holes in 40 seconds each as against 30 minutes each with wagon drills, claims savings of $7500 per month. "Greatest purchase I ever made," says Nichols.

SELF-PROPELLED HORIZONTAL
- A New Castle, Pa., operator reports boring "840' various depth holes through shale and sandstone, in one working day." Bores 6" and 8" diameter holes at rate of 6' per minute maximum.

IN THE YEAR 1850, Joel MacMillan opened a book shop on the spot where generations of students in the schools of Salem have purchased textbooks and supplies. Texts are now provided at schools, but it's MacMillan's for dictionaries and supplies.

When a commercial business continues for 104 years to invite your patronage, we are proud to believe it proves rendered service.

School days over, we wish our friends to continue coming... for books, stationery, gifts of distinction, pictures and picture framing, for wallpaper and window shades.
