Getting to know SHS

Salem High School: learning... values...
This is Salem High School, sprawling new pride of an old Quaker town, where excellence in education is traditional. It is the product of planning, persuasion, and sacrifice by townspeople who cared that Salem students should have the very best.

From the time when the need for this school first became apparent, citizens advocated its construction, then approved the 1955 bond issue.

During the building process Salemites kept tabs on SHS’s progress; they crowded the school on the official opening night.

Now the new SHS, Salem’s showplace, is one of the most beautiful and efficient high schools in Ohio.

SHS'S SKELETON took shape in the summer of 1957. Here beams are being laid for the trades wing.

WITH THE ADDITION of cement floors, walls, and plaster, the music wing acquired signs of recognition. Down the hall is the band room, with practice rooms to the left.

School spreads wings

BRICKLAYING REQUIRED many months. Slowly but surely, the exterior was transformed from a mass of beams to SHS as it is seen today.
ELEVEN THOUSAND GALLONS of paint once sloshed within these buckets. Then painters came with brushes and rollers to give SHS walls their healthy, colorful glow.

during building process; tab totals $2\frac{1}{2}$ million.

After official groundbreaking ceremonies in February, 1957, Salem’s long-awaited high school became reality. Amid the noise of construction, the two and a half million-dollar SHS slowly spread its wings.

Original blueprints of architects Fulton, Krinsky, and DelaMotte had been pruned according to local needs, and steel beams were erected in the summer of 1957. Bricks and plaster hid the skeleton by autumn, but the longest job was inside finishing, which took several months during 1958.

Then in September, a clanging bell echoed through the quiet morning air, and the big glass doors of SHS swung open to admit its first students.
Exclamations echo at grand opening as footsore

It was a grand opening, complete with maps for wide-eyed seniors, flowers, and soft music to soothe sore-footed, tax-calculating parents.

Student Council members guided teenagers and adults through roomy corridors, past tinted lockers and drinking fountains, private little conference rooms, and the spacious gym. Gleaming kitchens, the music section, snappy industrial arts shops, and four laboratories—necessary for 750 students—wowed visitors.

Pending the completion of the science wing and installation of pencil sharpeners, the open-

The opening of school was postponed. Two weeks after the originally-planned date, classes began with a few inevitable organizational hitches.

Presently food lines were speeded up, running down the ramp was prohibited, and Student Lounge rules were formulated. By popular demand the snack bar was opened. A gala all-class party and basketball season transformed the building into a center of nightlife. Thus Quakers settled down to a pleasant new routine, getting acquainted with the new SHS.

Chatter and music fill the air when girls congregate in the student lounge. Furnished with extra-soft sofas and a snack bar, it's tops for after-school relaxation.

Hungry Salemites yack to suppress growling stomachs in long food lines. Gals gab about money, while the guys stare enviously at lucky first-comers.

People: enthusiasm ... rush ... racket ...
People—750 of us—moved into SHS and brought it to life. With only our Quaker spirit, our love of fun, and no freshmen to initiate, we started practically from scratch, trying to make the 2½ million-dollar place seem like home.

By football season we had succeeded, for red and black signs blazoned, "Beat So-and-so," in our own Salem colors. With that we settled down to the frantic tumult of another year in high school.

We gabbed in the big corridors between hour-long classes, griped in the cafeteria about the bygone noon recess, and rushed throughout the day with less time and more space.

Finally we acquired assembly seats and operated the snack bar after school. Petitions circulated for the noontime opening of the student lounge.

Thus we got acquainted with SHS.

Sparkles through Tears at Halftime

Alighting from flashy new convertibles, the future 1958-59 Football Queen and her court solemnly proceeded to their centerfield seats.

In spite of shivery weather, everyone waited eagerly, as retiring Football Queen Martha Ann Dougherty opened the envelope containing the long-awaited name—Gayle Parker, Football Queen of 1958-59!

To the cheers and enthusiastic applause of a capacity first-game crowd, thrilled and tearful Gayle graciously received from Martha the crown of white carnations and the symbolic gold football, which would be hers to wear throughout the year.

Gayle and her court were chosen by their classmates last spring for their interest in and support of the Quaker teams.

After the game a dance was given by the Elks Club in honor of Queen Gayle.
Juniors Sport Rings, Sell Wax, Finance Prom

Sporting shiny class rings, juniors started the year by selling floor wax to finance the Junior-Senior Prom. Miss Carol Kelley, junior class adviser, conspired with the officers to net a profit of 250 dollars.

After limiting extra-curricular activities in order to cram knowledge into their noggin, some took a first crack at College Board exams.
GIVING THE NEW floors of SHS a healthy glow are junior class officers Dave Hunter, vice-president; Joyce Ann Halverstadt, secretary, and Dan Krichbaum, president, who headed the floor wax sale, the initial junior money-making project.

WITH BOOKS in arms and heavy eyelids, drowsy SHSers mount the stairs leading to the second floor after the early morning bell.

Starry-eyed Royalty Candidates Elected to Vying for the coveted reign over the Quaker Recognition Assembly, six starry-eyed boys and girls teetered toward the platform, as a hushed student body awaited the revelation of the Quaker King and Queen.

Candidates—a boy and girl from each class—were selected by their classmates on the basis of personality, friendliness, and attractiveness. Since no well-known performers appeared in the area and SHSers were more intimately acquainted with the candidates, Quaker editors abandoned the celebrity custom and conducted a school-wide election of the king and queen.

After counting and recounting hundreds of votes, the editors stashed away the little white slips and tried to forget the results until the Quaker Recognition Assembly.

Sophists Reach Sweet Sixteen, Take to Road

Repeating their green-horn habits, sophists spent another memorable year as the baby class at SHS. Selling traditional red and black pencils and being the youngest class admitted to the canteen tagged them with the title of "greenies" for the second year.

Studies included braving formaldehyde-scented biology class, wading through Julius Caesar in English II, and cramming their heads with theorems in geometry.

Looking on when prom time came left a vacant spot in their hearts, but it was soon filled with the choosing of class rings. More grown-up responsibilities were taken on by a few as they took to the road after that long-awaited sixteenth birthday.

Miss Sarah Doxsee served as class adviser.

Getting to know SHS

Curriculum: new courses...long classes...
Evidence of SHS's extensive curriculum—one of the most complete in Ohio—had increased bearing upon us, as we lugged heavy stacks of textbooks between classes.

Seven new courses were added to the science and commercial departments, and four languages were taught simultaneously, thus giving Quaker kids the widest range of academic and practical subjects Salem High has ever offered.

We selected courses from nine major fields to fulfill the 16-credit graduation requirements. Then we signed up for electives to suit us individually and hoped to survive it all.

Though studying was never admitted fun, a little learning was welcome, as we quoted Shakespeare to forgetful parents and recounted souped-up laboratory tales.

Several seniors brought Salem scholastic recognition, and about 25 per cent of the student body comprised the honor roll.

Through these studies we learned skills applicable to college and adult life.
Kerr’s Career Closes;

Having served Salem schools for 27 years, Supt. Earl S. Kerr has reached retirement from an eventful and rewarding career in education.

Mr. Kerr began his work in elementary and high schools, teaching nearly every subject offered at that time. Since his college days at Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio State, and the University of Chicago, he has observed advancements in high school education which have brought it to the equivalent of former college training.

Mr. Kerr was assistant superintendent of Canton schools before he came to Salem in 1931 and has several high offices in state organizations to his credit. He was first president of the Ohio Association for Gifted Children, in which office he served four years. He plans to continue his activities in the field of education for gifted children. Always he has been keenly interested in “what makes kids tick.”

After retirement Mr. Kerr looks forward to more time for his hobby, floriculture, and some traveling. He and Mrs. Kerr will live in Salem.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Instrumental in the planning and completion of the new building was the Board of Education, comprised of five prominent citizens elected to four-year terms.

Setting school policies, members donated their time to keeping education in Salem schools at a high level and abreast of modern trends.

Appointed to succeed Clerk H. F. Wykoff and Mayor H. D. Smith were Mr. Wallace King and Mr. Gail Herron, respectively.

LAYING THE CORNERSTONE, Supt. Earl S. Kerr, who has had a part in remodeling every Salem school building, climaxes his career with the completion of Salem Senior High School.
Board's Efforts Culminate in New Building

Creativity among students is stressed in SHS's English, music, and art departments.

Three required years of English, plus junior spelling, emphasize literature and grammar, alternated each six weeks. Seniors receive college-prep training in this subject through elective semester courses, which cover English literature and advanced composition.

Business English, also offered to seniors in second semester, trains commercial majors.

Recorded readings, as well as student improvising, add enjoyment to the classics.

Students learn choral or instrumental techniques in chorus or band, supplementing everyday work with individual lessons. Practice rooms are available for extra study.

Drawing, painting, and ceramics comprise the art-craft program. In the regional Scholastic art competition Salem was represented with two honorable mentions.

BRILLIANT COLORS and aroma of turpentine intrigue artist Denise Duke, daubing the finishing touches on an oil landscape and hoping for honors at a coming show.

MIGHTY OOMPAHS resound as back-seat bandsmen Lance Woodruff, Pinckney Hall and Sydney Johnson toot their tubas during the aggregation's daily practice sessions.
Science courses, with an enrollment of more than 70 per cent of SHS students, have become increasingly important in Salem High.

To supplement the traditional science subjects, electronics will be added next year with prerequisites of chemistry and physics.

Two laboratories, a large storage room, and a greenhouse are the pride of the biology department. A spectroscope and a safety shower help to make the chemistry lab one of the best equipped in Ohio. The physics lab boasts a dark room and an electrical control board.

Accompanying the sciences are the math courses, Algebra I and II, plane geometry, solid geometry, and trigonometry. Hand in hand science and math take leading places in Salem High's curriculum.
PAMPERED, PRUNED, and sunbathed, geraniums in the biology greenhouse get special care from lab aids Karen Smith and Tim Reynolds.

BUDDING PHYSICISTS Jim Schebler, Gordon Dunn, and George Conrad, getting acquainted with new lab equipment, find the specific gravity of a lead weight.
Language and social studies courses increase students' appreciation of foreign culture and their understanding of world happenings.

Enriching the curriculum are two-year courses in French, German, Spanish, and Latin—now taught at SHS simultaneously. Records and taped broadcasts in foreign tongues aid novices' pronunciation. With literature they develop reading skill and enlarged vocabularies.

Students' understanding of our country and the world. Notebooks and long assignments teach sophomores to study, while upperclassmen puzzle over American government problems. International Relations, a second-semester course, keeps seniors abreast of world affairs.

Movies and maps are standard equipment of geography instructors, and history students subscribe to Senior Scholastic, a supplementary current events magazine.

Keeping abreast of world developments, Trevor Lewis points out political hot spots to illustrate parallels between historical and current events.

New business machines, power tools, and appliances make training more efficient for students enrolled in vocational courses.

Metal III, office practice, Home Economics III, salesmanship, and distributive education, all recently added to the curriculum, offer advanced training in practical skills.

A donation of $54,000 by Mrs. Sam Keener for the trades school helped to finance the equipping of the manual arts wing. To speed up completion of the wood and metal shop, the boys aided in erecting machinery and painting safety lines.
Girls in office training practice taking dictation and typing letters for Prin. B. G. Ludwig. Offering two credits, distributive education provides afternoon on-the-job training in local stores to seniors, who also take morning academic subjects. A course in salesmanship increases juniors' skill in selling.

Home Economics III deals with the practical aspects of homemaking. Girls study the care of household equipment from glassware to washers and practice budget balancing.

In a school the people behind the scenes have as great a responsibility as the teachers and students. Though they rarely share the limelight, they are necessary to the successful function of SHS.

Working four shifts daily and on Saturday mornings, the janitors must polish about 200,000 square feet of floor, dust several hundred desks, and wash at least four times as many windows as before to keep this building well-groomed. Four additional janitresses contribute the woman's touch to the school.

Durham record attendance, keep tabs on students, publish newswy morning announcements, and run the main office smoothly.

Attendance Officer Deane Phillips and nurse Mrs. Clara Riddle spend half a day in their SHS offices, traveling between the high school and junior high. They are always on call in case of emergency.

Daily care and feeding of hungry students require the imagination of Mrs. Rachel Pan- dolph, head dietitian. Low-cost, well-balanced lunches for hundreds keep her staff cooking from early morning till noon.

Behind-Scenes Role

WITH THEIR FINGERS in nearly all school business, office secretaries Mrs. Donna Durham and Mrs. Erla Yates keep in the know about SHS functions.

Getting to know SHS

Activities: familiar clubs... projects...
At the clang of the 3:30 bell, we collected our books and our nerves, elbowed through the chaotic halls, and flopped on a sofa in the student lounge, only to be roused by a club meeting in session, as jabbering members enlisted committees for their next red-letter event.

SHS activities gained momentum after the first weeks of school, when organizations were far from organized.

Since moving had required most of the club advisers’ attention, and lounge rules had not been made, members held meetings in classrooms, until the lounge was opened, then worked to make up for lost time.

Constitutions were revamped, some new clubs appeared, and a few old ones disbanded. By and large, the activities system emerged the same; only the meeting time was switched from noon to after classes.

Kids still peddled mustardy boiled hot dogs at games, whispered while minutes were read, and gave their all to worthy causes. It was fun to belong.
Snappy Football Marchers Display Spirit, Skill,

MAJORETTES AND DRUM MAJORS — Fred Stockman, Bonnie Minth, Karen Klein, Lorraine Pardee, Linda Heston, Carol Ward, Tom Lease.
Transform into Polished Concert Aggregation

Decked out in smart new red and gray uniforms, white bucks, and gloves, 53 bandsmen marched down Reilly Field and strutted tricky formations during their weekly half-time shows. With Drum Major Tom Lease and five pert majorettes in the lead, the snappy ranks and files flaunted the results of their long, tedious practice sessions.

Through rain, snow, and cold, the bandsmen displayed their Quaker Line, while Tom wowed fans with his strut. Then they joined the cheering section for the first time this year to liven the stands during the games.

Transforming Director Richard Howenstein's football band into a polished concert group, Director Howard Pardee drilled the aggregation in afternoon and night sessions. Musicians signed up for extra practice in individual sound-proof cubbyholes.

With their traditional tin cans and friendly persuasion, members canvassed neighborhoods and haunted State Street soliciting cash for the uniform fund. Band mothers sold fruit cakes to finance trips.

Salem played host to the All-County Festival, which attracted musicians from 12 area high schools, and sent several SHS instrumentalists to solo and ensemble contests.

Climaxing the season was the annual Spring Concert with Mr. Don McCathren of Duquesne University as guest soloist.

Officers elected after football season were Ray Gottschling, Margie Vaughan, and Dixie Alesi. Librarians Karen Klein, Shirley Brackin Baker, and Kay Kuhl kept music in order.
WITH ALMOST all eyes on Director Miller, the Girls' Glee Club rehearses for coming events. For that "perfect sound," they combine the fun of singing with lots of hard work.

"Go, lovely rose," chimed the Girls' Chorus, as they prepared two numbers for state contest at Ashland. The 37 sophomore and junior singers combined with the girl vocalists from the Robed Choir for this and the district competition at Massillon. There they capped a superior rating, advancing them to state contest.

Sharing the limelight with their more experienced counterparts, they sang at the Christmas Vespers and the Spring Concert.

Profits from their magazine sale went to the vocal music department treasury. Gathering experience for more advanced work, girls with talent and perseverance will join Robed Chorus next year.
Singers Exercise Vocal Chords, Sell Magazines

Preparing for the big-time, choir novices drilled daily on pear-shaped tones before and after lunch periods. Thirty-seven Mixed Chorus members chortled diligently me-mee-me-me-aaw-o-oo, learning the fundamentals of music under F. Edwin Miller's direction. Scales were also used to limber up the stiff vocal chords before rehearsals.

Working equally as hard as the Robed Chorus, the beginners appeared in the Christmas Vespers and the Spring Concert, uniformly attired in white and black.

Money-mad, they brought in lots of magazine subscriptions to boost the choruses' profits.

Officers were Carol Schramm, Beverly Pasco, Jim Parker, and Linda Stoddard, librarian. Accompanying the group was Ruth Ann Bennett.

DURING A VOCAL LESSON Bonnie Getz, Carol Nicholson, Carol Hasson, and Trina Loria learn techniques from Director F. E. Miller.
Songsters Don New Robes for Yule Vespers

Down at the soundproof west end of the building 73 robed choristers made lots of joyful noise.

Besides drilling under Director F. Edwin Miller every third period, the music-makers crowded Monday evening sessions into their night life, practicing for their round of contests and concerts.

Magazine racks were filled to bursting through the efforts of subscription-peddling choristers. Foolhardy tenors and basses, who challenged the girls to a selling race and then came up on the short side of the bankbook, financed a party for the victors.
Dressed up for the Christmas Vespers, the suave songsters donned new chic black robes with reversible red and white collars and drew a capacity audience in the gym.

At Mount Union and Tri-City Festivals the vocalists demonstrated their best choral techniques and came home with a superior rating from District Contest in Massillon. That led to state competition at Ashland in April.

Entertaining Salem civic groups provided a break from school routine. Red-letter events on the music calendar were welcoming to SHS the All-County Festival, conducted by Dr. Harry Robert Wilson of Columbia University, and the annual Spring Concert.

With a crammed agenda the Student Council swung into high gear, planning Student Teachers' Day with its traditional tea. At Christmas time the Council’s thoughts turned toward its project for the needy—Care. A gift of 220 dollars, made by both the student body and the Council, resulted from a series of morning announcements over the PA system.

Chairman Dick Sandrock urged students to hoard their tax stamps for the annual drive which was launched in February. Homeroom 165 emerged the winner; the student body collected 25,400 dollars worth of stamps.

In March the Council’s bulging date book included Vocations Day, co-sponsored by Hi Tri. In three elected afternoon conferences SHSers gained valuable first-hand information about various careers.

Initiating an area council, the first of its kind in Ohio, Salem’s SC discussed common problems and formulated a constitution with representatives from neighboring schools.

Decapitation and hangman—merely two gory-sounding word games—occupied Latin Club members while they weren't delving into Roman gods' and goddesses' purple pasts.

After overhauling the constitution, they extended membership to upperclass Latin veterans, who were formerly excluded from the club after their sophomore year.

During the holidays a skit, Saturnalia, explained an ancient holiday corresponding to present day Christmas.

New in the adviser's role is Mrs. Beryl Tarr, who took over former adviser Miss Helen Redinger's duties.
Spanish Fiesta Highlights Conquistadores’ Year

“Aquí se habla español — Spanish is spoken here” — was the hearty cry of the Conquistadores as they swung into the year’s activities, advised by Spanish instructor Mr. Anthony Monteleone.

Corresponding with Mexican students and conducting parts of the monthly meetings in Spanish, they learned to write and speak el espanol more fluently.

Guest speaker Mr. Curtis Vaughan related his experiences in Spain and narrated the showing of slides taken in that country.

Basketball stand profits came in handy when they gave the school a party atmosphere for the Spanish Fiesta.

All second-year Spanish-speakers and beginners with semester B averages are eligible for membership.
"La scance est ouverte!" With these words the bi-weekly meetings of the Le Cercle Francais came to order, as members abandoned English to make like Parisians.

Although the club's purpose was to learn to speak French more fluently, familiar jabber constantly slipped into conversations during games of guillotine and cards after the French-spoken business meetings.

Revising the constitution and choosing a pin design with an engraving of the Eiffel Tower were on the agenda.

Vending refreshments at the basketball stand resulted in more funds for the treasury.

The club is advised by French instructor Miss Irene Weeks. Any French student with a B average is eligible for membership.

MONITORS AND DEAN'S AIDES

Hall mileage piled high as dean's aides, office assistants and monitors tramped the longer-than-ever halls on assorted tasks.
These busy people devoted an hour a day to typing and filing, answering telephones, and guiding visitors.
Collecting absence slips, distributing notes, and switching light switches, they proved their worth whenever foot-work had to be done.
Courteous, dependable students are chosen by Principal Beman Ludwig and Dean Alan Zimmerman for these jobs.

DEBATE

Digging for material and feasting on facts, the debate team argued its way through a tourney at Rayen, but was defeated in the district meet at Youngstown South.
This year's topic for debate was "Resolved: That the United States should adopt the essential features of the British education system."

Pam Chentow and Bill Hibbs favored the British system, while Tony Everett and Pinckney Hall stood up for the American side. Sophomore Tom King rounded out the squad, whose coach was history prof John C. Guler.

LIBRARIANS

From stamping cards to mending and scrubbing books, 18 student librarians, directed by Miss Lois Lehman, work to keep SHS reading material in top shape.
Efficient and spacious, the library features new gadgets like dial light switches, a centralized card catalogue, and an inflated globe. Books and equipment transported in 90 cartons from the old building add a familiar touch. Enchanting the modern decor, drapes and extra soft reading chairs make pleasant surroundings.
For fact-hunters this information center offers extensive reference material. Bibliographies suggest good fiction, while newspapers and magazines keep Salemites well-read.

JRC Distributes Food, Toys, Holiday Cheer

OFFICERS — Marlene Ellis, Secretary-treasurer; Beverly Erath, Vice-president; Wanda Hayes, President.

Junior Red Cross activities swung into action in September with the election of homeroom representatives and alternates, who led the school-wide campaign for the usual hundred per cent membership.

Official helping hand of SHS, the organization collected approximately a ton of canned food for needy local families during the holiday seasons. Discarded, re-usable toys brightened Easter for several kiddies.

Folding letters and sealing envelopes after school occupied some JRC members at the Memorial Building. Collaboration with the Senior Red Cross resulted in better methods of community service.

Deserving representatives were chosen to represent Salem at a summer conference at Miami U. JRC adviser is Mrs. Helen Mulbach.
Hi-Tri feeds needy, vends stationery

The awarding of triangular pins climaxed an evening of ritual, entertainment, and refreshments as new members with honor grades were formally initiated into Hi-Tri.

Displaying Yuletide spirit, the club supplied clothing and groceries to a needy family. Canned foods were contributed to the local Red Cross at Thanksgiving.

With Student Council, Hi-Tri helped to make Vocation's Day a success.

New officers were installed at the Mother and Daughter Banquet in May, concluding another year of service. Mrs. Frank Tarr and Miss Claribel Bickel are co-advisers.
Swivel-hipped basketball players in hula dress and masculine cheerleaders with briar-patch legs wowed SHSers as the Pep Club staged rallies before tournament games.

Spirit-boosting posters, advised by Coaches Bruce and Cabas, peddled pennants, stickers, and ribbons and kept SHS jumping from football to track season.

A big bonfire climaxed gridiron season when Youngstown East threatened the Salemites.

Officers are Judy Safreed, president; Fred McNeal, vice-president; Barb Tasker, treasurer, and Bonnie Schuster, secretary.
The cafeteria took on party airs when red and black streamers and Quaker banners set the stage for the Hi Fi Club’s Victory Dance to honor the basketball team. Ted Taylor provided the music for the gala event, which climaxed the newly formed club’s first year.

Feeling the need for a different kind of organization, 35 underclassmen discussed plans, drew up a constitution, and recruited advisors, Mrs. Doris Loria and Mr. Anthony Monteleone. Finally they set up business with the election of four officers.

Profits from the refreshment stand at the East Tech game, together with high dues, boosted their treasury, which will eventually be spent on their highest goal — a trip to Philadelphia to see Bandstand.

CHEMISTRY AIDES

Braving the fumes with the assistance of an efficient blower, chemistry aides untangled the ideas of baffled beginners.

To be a chemistry aide requires a B average and interest and ability in science. These part-time lab workers are chosen by Mr. Frank Tarr, chemistry instructor.

Among their duties are keeping the shelves stocked with needed chemicals, distributing equipment, and setting up experiments.

Constantly checking apparatus while the novices concocted compounds, the aides doubled as safety devices. They also translated strangsounding terms to puzzled students.

Replacing paraphernalia and combating morbid odors were all in a day’s work.

Although no scholastic credit is given, the aides, who sacrifice two study halls weekly, profit from additional experience in chemistry and learn by teaching others.

BIOLOGY AIDES

Outstanding memories of their own lab days—wrinkled fingers and weak stomachs—were relived as the biology aides abandoned old aversions and helped squeamish sophomores dissect worms, fish, and frogs.

Doling out formaldehyde-pickled creatures was only one phase of their work, for these veteran biologists spent two periods weekly grading papers, checking attendance, and pampering equipment.

All-around assistants to instructors Mrs. Doris Cope and Mr. John Olloman, they kept the storeroom and greenhouse in order.

Squinting through microscopes, they pointed out significant parts of slides and helped with drawings. Aides also prepared slides and protected delicate lab instruments.

Dependable, enthusiastic students with a B average get these jobs and are automatically enrolled in Formaldehides.

Formaldeaides Develop Green Thumbs

Anxious to try out the new greenhouse, Formaldeaides used it to grow and study flowering plants when they undertook “Operation Flowerpot.” Dividing into groups, members brought buckets of soil and contributed seeds and Vigoro; then they watched their posies grow throughout the year.

Special guests whose professions dealt with biology spoke at meetings and stimulated a genuine interest in science. Florist Daniel Theiss explained the mysteries of greenhouse keeping.

During blustery winter weather club members, dreaming of getting away from it all, sold candy at basketball games to finance their annual spring trip. A big picnic at Nelson's Ledges rounded out the schedule of activities, and pins were awarded to all members.

Biology and chemistry aides are eligible to join the club sponsored by Mr. John P. Olleman, biology teacher.

OFFICERS — Dorothy Falls, Treasurer; Gordon Dunn, President; Ben Jones, Vice-president; Carol Hasson, Secretary.
Gaining on-the-job experience in Salem stores during the afternoon and attending morning classes, eighteen seniors who took the new distributive education course formed their exclusive D. E. club.

The energetic new clan was on the go all year, traveling to the Northeastern Ohio District Conference at Akron University and the State Leadership Convention in Columbus. A jaunt to Alliance for a dance with D. E.'s there and a Christmas party were added to their social calendar.

An employer-employee banquet at the school cafeteria with “It Could Be You” as the surprise theme climaxed the year in May.

Career-Bound Seniors Launch New DE Club
With the gleam of New York's lights in their eyes, GAA girls worked toward their annual trip to the Big City.

Peddling everything from Christmas cards to baked goods to reflectorized signs, they enlarged their treasury with additional profits from a basketball stand.

Under the direction of Miss Betty McKenna, these athletic girls met in the gym for basketball and speedball games. Fulfilling their motto, "A girl for every sport and a sport for every girl," they also held a play day with GAA members from area schools.

At Christmas they spread holiday cheer and donated a box of food to the needy.
Slide Rule Mystifies Senior Mathematicians

OFFICERS — Margie Vaughan, Secretary-treasurer; Bill Hone, President; Elaine Migliarini, Vice-president.

The slide rule, a small but mighty gadget, challenged senior mathematicians with its mystifying marks and numbers. To make college work easier, club members met with adviser Miss Martha McCready and mastered the fundamentals of the slide rule.

In alternate Monday sessions, they drew up a constitution, occasionally collected interesting bits of math knowledge to decorate the bulletin board, and thought up money-spending schemes. After a night of labor behind the basketball refreshment stand, the seniors, using plain arithmetic, counted profits of 40 dollars, which was allotted for a party.
The new YWCA house acquired the lived-in look as three Y-Teen clubs bustled about, providing girls with something to do.

Post-basketball game dances and pizza parties kept the place jumping. A Christmas tea for Y-Teen alumnae and two gala formals boosted holiday spirits.

Offering a helping hand, they persuaded Salemites to shell out for UNICEF and the Heart Fund and aided publication of the Robin, a magazine for multiple sclerosis patients. Cans of food—admission tokens for their “Can-Can” dance—were donated to needy local families at Christmas time.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors usually converged after separate business meetings, when speakers headlined their programs. Jeweler Daniel Smith, Judge Louis Tobin, and Mrs. Paul Hum presented memorable talks.

Attentive Y-Teens listened when five boys discussed girls from the guys’ viewpoint and Coach Earle Bruce explained football.

Industrial tours and sessions on family relations, open to all girls, were added attractions on the calendar, and prospective coeds trekked to Ohio campuses to sample real college life. Knitting, sewing, and bowling also filled spare moments for these gals who financed their fun with profits from a basketball coat-check stand.

Linda Loop, Louise Oswald, and Bonnie Minth lined up sophomore, junior and senior meetings, respectively, with the help of Mrs. Doris Cope, Y-Teen co-ordinator.

Sophomore officers are Karen Trombitas, president; Gail Gottschling, vice-president; Paulette Severs, secretary; and Normadene Pim, treasurer.

Joyce Halverstadt, Polly Jones, Pat Kaercher, and Pat Mitchell head the junior organization.

Senior girls elected Helen Stokovic, Janet Sooy, Phyllis Zamarelli, and Denise Duke.
Basketball Dances, Throw Pizza Parties
With memories of summer training at Ohio University and with headlines far in the future, co-editors Margie Vaughan and Carol Luce began the brainwork for the 1959 Quaker Annual. Two previous All-American books guided the girls when they planned layout in July.

Actual production entailed everything from lugging photographer's equipment to counting votes and headlines.

In their spacious office the editors cropped pictures, selected the cover, re-wrote copy, and giggled over secrets.

Senior section editors Karen Klein and Marcy Naragon took charge of the underclass and activities divisions, while Margie and Carol cooperated on the rest of the book. Eight junior assistants and three sophomore girls shared in the footwork, as February brought the inevitable headaches. These crises survived, they resumed their normal pre-Quaker routine, deadlined, bylined, and happy.

Annual Preserves New SHS's First Memories
Newshounds Produce Bi-weekly, PA Broadcast

Setting a new record with a two-page preschool issue, taped news broadcasts, and a six-page Christmas ad edition, the Quaker switched to a bi-weekly production schedule this year.

Easing strain, the new system kept the newshounds more congenial and provided additional planning time. Follow-up stories, features, and sports, broadcast over the PA system, kept SHS-ers well-informed on alternate Fridays.

Editor Vincent Taus's organization sessions developed writing skills and preserved All-American standards.

Checking beats, waiting to see busy teachers, and telephoning strangers were all in an assignment's work for the 36 reporters.

Three sports editors with their cronies took care of the sports page, and Janice Calkins created feature ideas, as planning, editing, pasting, and hoping for the best went on until press-time. A 10th NSPA All-American was their reward.

SHUTTERBUGS Gary Whiteleather, Lance Woodruff, and David Rice were Johnny-on-the-spot when it came to taking pictures for the Quaker.
SENIOR GAL-ON-THE-GO Linda Keck found that being business manager of the Quaker publications meant spending long hours in designing and collecting ads for her section.

Hub of business activities, the Quaker Office bustled at top pace when Linda Keck and her admen invaded the place to count out papers and turn in ads.

With beats of their own around town, staff members combined a positive sales approach and friendly persuasion which resulted in big pre-Christmas advertisements.

After contracts were signed, the businessmen tramped State Street and drove to remote establishments, collecting payments to keep the Quaker in print. Folding and delivering newspapers busied them every other Friday.

Guided by Central Treasurer Fred Burchfield, Manager Linda Keck planned a pictorial ad section for the yearbook and managed money, life blood of the Weekly and Annual.
MAKING LAYOUTS, reducing pictures, and writing and re-writing copy between bites of lunch—these occupy a typical noon hour for Quaker Annual co-editors Margie Vaughan and Carol Luce.

WEEKLY EDITORS Henry Lieder, Janice Calkins, Bill Hone, Vincent Taus, and Dick Sandrock, have been kept on their toes this year by decisions, details, and endless deadlines.

The Brooks Award and Marie Burns Awards honor talented students of SHS annually.

The Brooks Contest offers cash prizes for creative writing ability. Compositions are judged by the English teachers on the basis of originality, grammatical accuracy, and neatness.

The Marie Burns Awards afford cash prizes for gifted musicians. Vocalists can vie for recognition in their sophomore and senior years, while instrumentalists are eligible to compete during the junior year.

These awards, founded by two former well-known Salem citizens, inspire students to employ their creative talents.
For six dollars thrifty SHSers bought little yellow tickets, guaranteed to bring oodles of fun at less than half price. With Association tickets students received the Quaker Weekly and Annual and admission to all home football and basketball games, track meets, parties and assemblies valued at about 15 dollars.

The all-class party turned the school into a fun center. Ring toss, bingo, and darts occupied SHSers and old-time movies tickled their funny bones. Jitterbugging rocked the cafeteria, and hungry ones consumed cake and punch. The entire teaching staff took part in this gala occasion.

With that success, an all-school Association party was scheduled for spring.

Homeroom 142 copped the trophy for the largest Association membership.

New in the role of social adviser is chorus director F. E. Miller, while Central Treasurer Fred B. Burchfield handles the financial affairs.

Association Tickets Bring Fun at Half Price

THIS YEAR'S CLASS PARTY provided fun for all. Bingo captured the interest of Pinckney Hall and Lewis Kring, while others spent their time dancing, watching movies, or enjoying games.

THE QUAKERS ARE IN! This means a hectic half-hour for Linda Keck, Judy Bak, and Darlene Hazen, whose job it is to count and wrap the Quakers for distribution. Receiving a Quaker Weekly is another advantage of being an Association member.
Getting to know SHS

Sports: big gym... games... victories...
FLAShING DOWN SHS HARDwoods, PAS
tournament obstacles and straight to Columbus, our Quaker basketball boys captured the state runner-up trophy and made 1959 an unforgettable year in Salem sports!

With SHS spirit kindled to fever pitch
by a bonfire, pep assemblies, and victories, we loved the Quakers through football, basketball, and track seasons.

Armed with all available signs and pennants, we took off for Reilly Field or the gym. To the Mad Hatters’ jazz we hand-jived in the stands, ate, chewed gum, and yelled to our lungs’ limit.

Then tournamentitis hit Salem, infecting sign-makers and car-decorators, until the town’s crepe paper supply was practically exhausted.

Citizens fed the players steak dinners, formed horn-blaring motorcades, and staged the biggest welcome-home ceremonies ever.
How we loved our Quakers!
High-scoring Gridders Rank 11th in State,

For the second straight year Coach Earle Bruce produced a powerful Quaker squad. A ranking of 11th in the state was their reward for a dynamic 7-2 season.

After a heartbreaking 19-12 loss at the hands of Cleveland John Marshall, the Red and Black came back strongly to trounce Ravenna 34-0 in their first road game. Playing their second and last "away" game, the Bruccmen, led by Lou Slaby and Pat Blount, whitewashed Canton Timken 21-0, for their second shutout of the campaign.

The Quakers split in the next two outings, bowing to a fired-up Brookfield eleven and then literally running a weak Wellsville team out of Reilly Stadium. Wooster was then demolished by the Red and Black 34-0.

Defeating the highly touted Youngstown East Golden Bears was the highlight of the 1958 football season. Trailing 18-0 at halftime, the Bruccmen bounced back with three touchdowns to overcome the deficit 19-18.

Featured in the second-half splurge was the defensive play of Clyde Marks and a 76-yard punt return by Ralph Ehrhart to tie the score. The winning point after the touchdown was calmly kicked between the uprights by the Quakers' only four-year letterman, Ben Jones.

In the last two games of the year Salem crushed a young East Liverpool squad 45-20 and in the finale defeated a persistent Leetonia aggregation.

Co-captains Ralph Ehrhart and Lou Slaby paced the ground-gainers with 959 and 663 yards, respectively. Ehrhart also led the Red and Black in scoring, bagging 72 points.

Kent Malloy, who moved into the quarterback spot this year, led the Quakers in passing, clicking on 28 of 62 tries for 583 yards and four touchdowns.

The season's aftermath brought a berth on the second team all-state defensive squad for rugged Lou Slaby, along with an honorable mention on the Scholastic All-American team.

Powerful Reserve Squad Helps Lettermen

Sparked by the running of Fred Phillis, Pat Blount, and Powell Schmauch, Salem's Junior Varsity chalked up a season's record of four wins, one tie, and one loss.

The local eleven whitewashed the Struthers reserves twice, 32-0 and 30-0, and the Boardman Spartans 26-0.

Bolstering their season's mark to four wins, the Salemites downed Wellsville. Evenly matched, the Quakers and East Palestine tied 8-8.

With Salem using only sophomores, a more experienced Niles contingent dealt the Quakers their only loss, 20-12.

WITH THIS COAT of arms on sharp black blazers, the Cabasmen travel to basketball games in style. The design of the emblem is the result of research by Coach Karl Zellers and symbolizes the high standards of the Quakers.

The mighty Salem Quakers of ’58-’59, under the guidance of Head Coach John Cabas and Assistant Coach Karl Zellers, compiled an outstanding 17-1 record and notched fifth position in the AP poll of class AA Ohio teams. Outscoring opponents 1414 to 897, the Cabasmen posted a new one-game scoring mark for SHS, tallying 106 points against Wellsville. After being set back by the state champion, Cleveland East Tech, early in the season, the Quakers finished the schedule with 14 consecutive victories.

A well-rounded, never-say-die squad was the key to this season’s success. Playing a wide open, fast-breaking game on the large new gym floor, the Quakers displayed their well-balanced attack by sharing the scoring honors from game to game.

Woody Deitch hooped a record 461 points (including tourney) and led the attack in the regular season with 311 markers. He was followed by Dave Hunter with 280 points, Dan Krichbaum with 265, Lou Slaby with 255, Jim Lehwald with 180, and Clyde Marks with 126.

Lou Slaby set two rebounding records, a high of 372 for one season and 588 for his entire high school career.

The biggest game of the regular season was the encounter with the East Tech Scarabs. Though at a great height disadvantage, the Cabasmen jumped to a 10-point half-time lead. In the second half, however, Salem's inability to hit and Tech's height superiority proved to be the downfall of the Quakers. The desire for revenge of this loss was a driving incentive for the rest of the season and in the tournament.

An innovation this year was the purchase of blazers by the team. On the pocket of each coat was a crest designed by Coach Zellers.

ALWAYS INTENT on every player's move, Salem's head coach John Cabas plays the game just as hard as anyone on the team. Respected as a top-notch coach and a fine person, this one man, with his assistant and his 12 boys, made this basketball season one Salem will long remember!

Great Varsity Squad

Salem's Junior Varsity basketball team, coached by Karl Zellers, made an excellent showing this year, compiling a 15-3 record. The three losses came at the hands of Cleveland East Tech, Sebring, and Youngstown Rayen. The defeats by Sebring and Rayen were by two points in each contest, while the East Tech loss was a nine-point deficit.

The JV's recorded 1048 points for the season and limited their opponents to 773, averaging 58.2 to 42.9 per game.

Well-rounded scoring was one of the keys to the little Quakers' success. High man for the reserves was Erick Theiss with 206 points. He was followed by Jim Solmen with 182; Carl Dunn, 159; Ed Yates, 126; and Tim Burchfield, 86.

All the team members saw action in most of the games, thus gaining valuable experience for the future.

WELL ON THE WAY to the state finals, the Quaker team displays its District Championship trophy which has just been won at the expense of Youngstown Chaney. Board member Bob Heddleston joins in the celebration.

Love-those-Quakers Fever Hits Town As Team

Shooting their way to the Class AA State Finals, John Cabas and his Quakers scored more points, broke more records, and won more trophies than any other basketball team in the history of Salem High.

After breezing through the Sectionals with relative ease, the Cabasmen advanced to the District. By the time of the Chaney game, the team had such a huge following that hundreds were unable to buy tickets. Overflowing the South Fieldhouse, the crowd went wild as the Quakers battled uphill to capture the District Championship by three points.

Signs went up across Salem streets, telegrams poured to the team, and “On to Columbus!” became the battle cry of ever Salemite.

Following hard-won Regional victories over SEVEN HAPPY Quakers carry Coach Cabas from the floor after their sensational Regional victory over previously undefeated Akron Central.

Travels Tourney Trail

Canton Lincoln and Akron Central at Kent, the mighty Quakers stormed on to the capital, trailed by almost every Salem fan.

With a breath-taking win over Middletown, that longed-for revenge game with Cleveland East Tech was finally a reality. The determined Quakers fought hard to win but were able to pace the Scarabs for only the first period. Tech's great height advantage took its toll, but the best team in SHS history came home with the state of Ohio runner-up trophy.

COMMISSIONER W. J. McCONNELL presents to Coach Cabas and co-captains Slaby and Marks the Ohio Class AA Runner-up trophy, the highest basketball award ever won by a Salem team.

CO-CAPTAINS LOU SLABY and Clyde Marks, with Coach John Cabas, accept the key to the city of Salem from Mayor Harold Smith, as the whole town turns out to welcome home from Columbus the greatest basketball team ever!
FROM THE MINUTE the stands started filling, Salem's Varsity cheerleaders were out on the floor leading yells and helping Quaker fans lose their voices.

SHOWING TRUE Quaker spirit and enthusiasm, SHS's pint-size cheerleaders pull for the team from the sidelines.

Cheerleaders Ignite SHS

Spirit, Spur Quaker Teams on to Victory

From the starting gun of the preview football game to the last of the basketball tournament celebrations, six peppy varsity cheerleaders were on hand at every game and pep assembly, sparking school spirit and cheering the boys on to victory.

These kids boosted the team every minute. Even when things looked dark for the Quakers, they didn’t lose hope; instead, they cheered and pulled for the team even harder.

Advised by gym teacher Miss Betty McKenna, the cheerleaders spent many after-school and early-morning hours practicing, attended a tumbling class and composed pep songs and bright new Salem cheers.

For football season the varsity donned sharp new black crew-necks and red skirts.

Completing the new look, the six reserve pepsters came up with black jumpers and white blouses for basketball season. Faithful to their team all they way, these girls cheered mightily at every JV game.

WILL HE MAKE IT? Junior high jumper Jim Lehwald is determined that he will.

THE HIGH HURDLES, demonstrated here by Kent Malloy, is one of the most difficult and challenging track and field events. '58 graduate Bill Holzwarth represented the Quakers in this event at the state meet.

In one of their most productive seasons, the 1958 Quaker cindermen posted seven victories in eight dual meets, captured the Columbiana County title, and placed fourth in the district AA meet.

The Zellersmen soundly trounced Sandy Valley, Canton Glenwood, Youngstown Ursuline, Steubenville, Struthers, Girard, and Louisville in dual meets. Their only loss was to a powerful Alliance squad. In these contests the Zellersmen amassed a total of 596 points to their opponents’ 328.

The biggest single success of the season came in the winning of the County Meet. With the score tied, the Quakers’ mile-relay team, composed of Tim Burchfield, Richard Burt, Tom Floyd, and Ben Jones, took a second place to eke out a one-point victory margin over East Palestine.

A first place by Bill Holzwarth in the 180-yard low hurdles and a tie for first in the pole vault by Jim Horn paced the Quakers to a fourth-place finish in the AA district track meet held at Reilly Stadium.
County Meet in Hotly Contested Thriller

SPEEDY 1959 track co-captains Ben Jones and Fred McNeal pace agilely around the track in a practice session at Reilly Stadium.

Coach Zellers' thinclads were paced in scoring by Captain Bill Holzwarth, who in six dual meets copped the 180-yard lows, the 120-yard highs, and was anchor man on the winning half-mile relay team.

Placing first in seven dual meets and in the county and district meets was pole-vaulter Jim Horn. His best effort for the season was 12 feet.

At the county relays Jim Horn and Jim Dunn together set a new record of 22 feet, 3 inches in the pole vault.

Other Quakers who consistently copped their events were Ben Jones, 440-yard dash; Dan Krichbaum, half-mile; Fred McNeal, 220-yard dash; and Jim Solmen, mile.

Assets to Salem in field events were Ralph Ehrhart, throwing the shot put and discus; Paul Welch and Bob Zeppernick, discus, and Lou Slaby, shot put.

Hard-working Thinclads

NOT JET-PROPELLED, but "Zep"-propelled, the discus heaves by Bob Zeppernick accounted for many Quaker points.

COACH KARL ZELLERS, SHS track coach, puts a group of runners through a work-out on starting form. His teams' records attest to his success with the Quaker thinclads.
Win Events, Letters

FELLA CATLOS, along with Jim Horn, Jim Dunn, and Jim Lehwald, represented the Quakers in the pole vault. Jim Horn, one of the thinclads' top scorers, qualified for the state meet.

DAN KRICHBAUM. Fred McNeal, Tim Burchfield, and Richard Burt dig in, ready to take off around the track at the sound of the gun.

State Street: stores...shoppers...traffic...
FLASHING NEON SIGNS, friendly hubbub, grinding, jerking trucks, and a steady stream of headlights—this is State Street, typical main street of a typical small town.

Here we ambled past the stores, window shopping, bargain hunting, and sometimes just wishing. Roaming through five-and-tens, slurping cokes, and gabbing with friends, we spent a lot of time downtown.

We gained our first insight into the business world behind local store counters.

Charge and bank accounts made us wiser in money matters.

State Street also saw many special occasions that sparked local life. Bright Christmas displays, tinkling bells, and glittery lights roused holiday spirits, when we rushed to buy last-minute gifts.

Merchants went all out to support our teams, plastering their windows with “Love those Quakers,” and the sound of our own band at parade time made us proud to be Salemites.

In appreciation

For our school...your help...thanks!

As light and hope dawn on the Quaker office after seven months of Annual production, we editors make some last gasps of gratitude.

First our debt to Salem citizens—the taxpayers—is immeasurable, for their support of SHS and its functions plays a large part in our school's success.

Only through the help of Troup and Pluto Studios, the Lyle Printing Company, the Salem News and the Youngstown Arc Engraving Company, was this book possible.

Loud cheers are in order for advertisers, the business and editorial staffs, photographers, assistants, school personnel, the faculty, and the administration.

When things looked blackest, Mrs. Loop and our parents were the world's best tranquilizers.

It's been fun, but we're relieved now that it's over. It's your book, students of SHS. We hope you like it!

Sincerely,
Margie and Carol
