We Are the Quakers... We Achieve

“Kitchen korner” finds cherry pie prize-winners Sydney Johnson and Kathy Hrovatic taking another taste-tempting pie fresh from a hot oven.

Research, study, drills, and tests.
Awards and honors for those who do best.
Developing talents and inspirations.
Assuming jobs and obligations.
Keeping late hours when exams are near.
In order to pass every school year.
Knowledge and skills to mold our lives.
All lead to the day graduation arrives.
Planning for days after we leave.
We are the Quakers—we achieve.
greet SHSers each week day morning. Two years old, the school is one of Salem’s proudest possessions.

Seniors qualifying for an NROTC scholarship are (standing) David Perrott, Ed Yates, (seated) Dick Carnahan and Dennis Gray. David went on to pass the required physical examination. Absent: Tim Burchfield.

With shoes off and thinking cap on, studious soph Karen Catlin buries herself in the pages of Webster in search of a strange new word in one of her assignments.
Under the light of the silvery moon, spirited SHSers, filled to the brim with enthusiasm and vigor, gather round the Pep Club's huge bonfire to cheer the football boys on before the Hoban game.

Buggin' to school in a "bug," Loretta Jean, Karen Berg, and Dennis Keller baffle Harold Kerestes, as they disprove the old saying, "Three's a crowd."

Pizza-lovin' senior guys Don Greenamyer and Ken McArtor make quick work of the favorite Italian food of most SHSers.
Quakers...We Have Fun

Coping with Cupid, exchanging class rings . . .
Choosing Who's Who, Queens, and Kings . . .
Stacking lockers, burning up gas . . .
Parties, Youth Center, friendships that last . . .
After-school meetings, the tax stamp drive . . .
Waiting for class pictures to arrive . . .
Assemblies, dances, pizza to eat . . .
The Prom which makes our year complete . . .
Whether day is over or just begun . . .
We are the Quakers—we have fun.

Starry-eyed and speechless, pert Toniann Borrelli bats her lashes at beau Jerry Hookey in a typical locker rendezvous.

Dancing up a storm, happy SHSers celebrate the football team's victory over Cleveland Lincoln.
High flying Dan Krichbaum soars through the stratosphere as he completes the broad jump.

Speedy senior halfback Frank Copacia is tripped up but doesn't throw in the towel, as he lunges forward for valuable extra yards.

We Are the Quakers...We Compete

Exhibiting co-ordination and perfect balance, boys in physical education class show off their gymnastic achievements in muscle control.

A pass being caught, a touchdown to score.
The teamwork that's shown on a shiny gym floor.
A record set by a cinderman.
A ball let loose from the pitcher's hand.
We love the mighty Quaker teams.
We show this with our cheers and screams.
Sportsmanship, spirit even in defeat.
We are the Quakers—we compete.
Senior roundballer Jim Lehwald leaps high for the tap against an East Liverpool foe. The mighty Quakers' perennially strong powerhouse rolled to another victorious season.

Folk music and hand-clapping mingle with the caller's directions, as co-ed gym classes join forces in folk dancing. Nancy Skowron and Barry Pidgeon skip underneath the arch in the Virginia Reel.

TO SHS CLASSES
At last we donned the long-awaited title of Seniors. We reigned king over all for nine all-too-short months.

Struggling through themes in English IV, we spent extra hours at the school and public libraries in hopes of producing our masterpieces before deadline time. Our projects on the Medieval Period decorated the library showcase. They ranged anywhere from medieval castles and life-sized knights to original tape-recorded versions of "The Canterbury Tales" and research papers.

We became skilled readers in a newly initiated weekly reading class, improving our speed and comprehension. Solid and trig students mastered theorems and constructed geometric figures which also adorned the library showcase. Scientific minds conducted brave and exciting experiments in physics and chemistry.

Some of us helped in the offices and the cafeteria. We proudly occupied the center seats at assemblies and gained scholastic prestige by heading the honor roll.

Outside of school we cheered our battling football heroes on to victory and lent our voices to the singing of the Alma Mater. We fought through the crowds, selling gum and candy bars for our class. We supported our basketball team by sporting "Love Those Quakers" badges and yelling above and beyond our natural capacity when the battle was rough.

Some of us spent our extra time working in local stores or gas stations, while others were kept busy with baby-sitting, public service projects, and church work.

Senior open-houses, the canteen, record hops, and the Prom kept us socially on the go. We had a wonderful time during our last year at SHS. Now, with a goal reached, a yearning fulfilled, and a year of memories to cherish, we end our stay at SHS.
The title of seniors gave us new responsibilities.
Some of us spent spare time helping in the Class of '60 Chooses Honored Few for

The seniors of Salem High School have selected these students to take their places in SHS's Hall of Fame.

Most Attractive Boy and Girl are noted for being neat in dress and appearance, as well as for being good-looking.

Qualities which distinguish the Most Friendly duo include thoughtfulness, kindness, and above all, friendliness to everyone.

Excelling in everything he undertakes is the most prominent characteristic of the student voted Most Likely to Succeed. He must also rank high scholastically.

The Most Photogenic pair, chosen by the Troup and Pluto Co., are selected for outstanding projection of personality through their senior pictures and for photographing naturally.

Known for being busy, the Most Versatile couple is selected for being active in extra-curricular activities and doing well in them.

Through chilly weather the crowd watched intently as the future Football Queen and her court descended from the shiny, late model convertibles to take their places on the field.

A hush fell over the viewers, as retiring Football Queen, Gayle Parker, unsealed the envelope containing the precious name—Sally Fester, Football Queen of 1959.

Filled with thrills and chills Queen Sally expressed her appreciation and extended wishes for a successful season to the football team. She charmingly accepted the crown of white carnations and the traditional gold football to wear throughout the year.

Excelling in sportsmanship and enthusiasm, Queen Sally and her court were selected by their junior classmates last spring.

Juniors at last, we gained sophistication over night

Proud to be ranked as upperclassmen at last, we juniors sported shiny, new class rings and felt an added touch of sophistication when we danced all night at our first Prom.

Practicing our salesmanship and counting up the money to foot Prom bills, we started the year peddling detergent. Profits totaled over a hundred dollars.

College-minded students hit their books a little harder than before, while others took their first part-time jobs in local stores.

Newly-found muscles were flexed with the introduction of boys’ and girls’ tumbling teams, comprised mostly of members of our class.

In February came a brainwashing, as all of us blearily struggled through the Iowa Educational Development Tests, designed to determine individual aptitudes and weaknesses.

So passed a year full of friends and fun, working and wondering, laughing and loving SHS, to which we’ll return next year to be on top—seniors at last.

Cage Co-captains Crown Sweetheart Pat

Making its first appearance on the Quaker scene, the selection of a Basketball Sweetheart added sparkle to the roundball season. The team chose two girls from each class who, along with their escorts, composed the royal court. These six gals vied for the title in a penny vote sponsored by the cheerleaders. Voting time found SHISers digging deep in search of an extra penny or two.

Ceremonial music, plus glamor, highlighted half-time at the Salem-Sebring game, as the candidates were accompanied to their seats. A hush spread over the crowd as Co-captains Dan Krichbaum and Dave Hunter revealed the name — Pat Kaercher, Basketball Sweetheart of 1960! Dan placed the royal crown on Pat’s head, while Dave presented her with a huge bouquet of red roses. Amid cheers and tears she expressed her thanks to the students and wished the team success during the season.

After the game a dance at the Y, given in Sweetheart Pat’s honor, climaxed the evening.
Vying for the coveted reign over the Quaker Recognition Assembly, six starry-eyed boys and girls teetered toward the platform, as a hushed student body awaited the revelation of the Quaker King and Queen.

Candidates — a boy and girl from each class — were selected by their classmates on the basis of personality, friendliness, and attractiveness. Since no well-known performers appeared in the area and SHSers were more intimately acquainted with the candidates, Quaker editors abandoned the celebrity custom and conducted a school-wide election of the king and queen.

After counting and recounting hundreds of votes, the editors stashed away the little white slips and tried to forget the results until the Quaker Recognition Assembly.

No longer greenies, we blossomed into sophomores

With wide eyes and curious minds we came to Salem High. Becoming full-fledged Quakers took a long time; there were the hour periods, eating in the cafeteria instead of trudging home for lunch, and hardest of all, the mad whirl of homework and extra-curricular activities.

At first we grumbled constantly over our assignments; later on we struggled less and took the difficult tasks in our strides. Although we cast horrified glances at biology experiments, we always managed to live through them.

After school? No time to be found then, as we flooded every organization open to “us,” eager to identify ourselves with Salem High. We worked out with the team, dusted books in the library, marched long hours in the band and met first deadlines for the Quaker. We mastered theorem after theorem in geometry classes, not to mention all sorts of conjugations in various languages.

Always ready for a good time, we cheered the team at games, danced at the class party, clapped and laughed at assemblies, and occupied our “spare” time with hobbies, sports, and dancing at the Canteen.

So we lived our first year in high school, and while we lived it, we dreamed. And, because of our dreams, at the end of our sophomore year we were closer to our goals in life.

We Learn
After interviewing 15 applicants last spring the Board of Education appointed Mr. Paul E. Smith to succeed retiring Superintendent E. S. Kerr.

The new superintendent emphasizes the development of the ability to communicate ideas with others as one of the principle jobs of the school. Always alert for new and better methods of teaching, he foresees the addition of several new courses to the curriculum, keeping SHS up-to-date and giving students greater opportunities.

Meeting the public, working with the Board of Education, appointing personnel, overseeing the work of the school system, and teaching an education course at Westminster College at night occupy much of his time.

A graduate of Wooster College, Mr. Smith has completed most of his doctorate work at Columbia and the University of Colorado. He served as curriculum co-ordinator of the Youngstown schools and has taught summer courses at Youngstown University and Westminster College. Before coming to Salem he was superintendent at Niles.
Following the realization of three years of planning—the erection of the new $2,500,000 Salem Senior High School—the Board of Education turned its efforts toward improvement of curriculum.

Along with setting school policies, board members also worked toward establishing a sound, long-range financial policy for the Salem school system.

The board is comprised of five leading citizens elected to four-year terms.

Atty. Bryce Kendall and Mr. Gail Herron were elected to the board in 1959, while Mr. Orein Naragon was elected president to succeed Atty. A. L. Fitch, who did not run for re-election.

Saddening the entire town was the death in March of Mr. Robert Heddleston, board member since 1954. He had maintained his interest in Salem schools and his activities on the athletic board in spite of his long illness and was a familiar figure at most sports events, even through the recent basketball season.

Improved Curriculum

“Getting to know you” is Prin. Beman G. Ludwig, who takes a break in his tight schedule to chat with students Frank Skowron and Marty Lutsch.

Never finding an idle moment, Principal Beman Ludwig keeps busy from dawn to dusk, taking care of the countless details which are necessary in efficiently running the school. Maintaining good public relations, scheduling school activities, and being a friend to students and teachers are just a few of his duties.

In his spare moments he adds stamps to his collection and grows tomatoes in the summer.

After attaining his BA and MA degrees at Marietta, Mr. Ludwig went on to study at Akron U., Columbia, OSU, and Pittsburgh U.

Mr. Leroy Hoskins, new dean of boys, lends an ear to personal difficulties of the boys at SHS and helps them find a healthy approach to their problems. He assists many young men in finding jobs and aids college-bound students in choosing their schools and applying for scholarships.

He received his BA degree from Kent State and did graduate work at Kent and Ohio State Universities.

Dean of Girls, Miss Ala Zimmerman, spends most of her time assisting the feminine enrollment of SHS. She strives to know each girl personally and to give her any needed individual attention.

In addition to this guidance, Miss Zimmerman locates jobs, gives out college information, fills out endless college recommendation forms, and tries to secure scholarship grants for deserving girls. She earned her BA degree at OSU and did graduate work there and at Kent State.
College questions and problems send senior Don Mundy to Boys' Counselor Leroy Hoskins for some sound answers and advice.

Problems facing all sophs send Diane Dawson to Dean Ala Zimmerman. Difficulties with schedules or personal adjustment can be solved in her office.

English Profs Stress

Of vital importance in the communication of ideas in the modern world, the study of English ranks high at SHS. The English department emphasizes grammar, composition, and literature in the three required courses and the optional fourth course.

Shakespeare comes alive in sophomore and senior classes. Sophomores enrich their study of Julius Caesar by completing projects dealing with the play. Seniors, in addition to reading Macbeth, trace the development of great English works. Second semester they concentrate on grammar and research papers.

In the meantime juniors "wrap the drapery of (their) couch about them" as they memorize parts of Thanatopsis and study the literature of our own country. Juniors are also required to master 500 spelling words before receiving their English credit.

New this year are developmental reading lessons for second- and fourth-year English students. Taught by Miss Virginia Hurray, this course is aimed at increasing students' reading speed and comprehension.

In addition, speech classes stress correct methods of public speaking, while business English, a second-semester subject, emphasizes punctuation and the spelling of business terms, along with the technical aspects of business letter writing.
Reading, Grammar, Classics

Readin', 'ritin', 'rithmetic — and English! Mastering the facts about verbs are Chuck Hertel and Carol White, while Mrs. Beryl Tarr points out some idiosyncrasies of the English language.

Projects concerning the life of Shakespeare and his plays take English II students Larry Jensen and Joe Cosgrove back to the Elizabethan Age.

Launching his efforts on The Cruel Sea, Don Greenamyer takes the first step toward completion of his English IV novel, as librarian Sue Mosher stamps his card.

Art, Music, Languages

The cultural background of SHS students is encouraged and cultivated in the art, music, and language departments — the "culture area" of the wide curriculum offered here.

Under the guidance of a new prof the budding artists continue their quest for fine art. Beginning students concentrate on color and design, while advanced classes spend their time on woodcarving, clay modeling, and pen and oil drawings.

In addition to annual jaunts and concerts the music department is taking advantage of its adequate facilities by using its practice rooms. In-duettious music majors and minors come to the light, airy cubbyholes during study periods to memorize a phrase or practice a solo. Others, wishing to delve deeper into the rhyme and reason of music, take up the study of music theory.

Lessons plus laughs equal linguistics. Tapes, records, and radio programs play major roles in the production of good German, Latin, French, or Spanish students. Three years of German, French, and Spanish, and two of Latin are offered. Salem is among a minority of culturally alert schools offering as complete a language department.

Current events or ancient Spanish history — all are discussed in Spanish class. Judy Stark, Stanley Diehl, Natalie Lederle, and Pam Chentow read a Spanish magazine over the shoulder of Fred Flory.

“Right foot on the fifty,” instructs marching band director Richard Howenstine, as he points out an intricate marching plan to band member Rick Eckstein.
To meet the challenge of a sputnik-dominated world, math and science have received added emphasis in Salem High during the past few years.

Stimulating the inquiring mind, the science courses—biology, chemistry, physics, and health—stress accuracy, cautious judgment, and retention of formulas, details, and general information. All SHS students must fulfill the requirement of one year of science.

Biologists dissect frogs, grasshoppers, and fish to acquaint themselves with the basic structures.

of animals. During lab periods would-be chemists determine the composition of various substances and marvel at strange chemical reactions. Physicists concentrate on mechanics, heat, light, sound, and electricity, while health students study the structure and functions of the human body.

SHS encourages logical and deductive reasoning through mathematics. To meet the graduation requirement of one year of math, the curriculum offers a choice of Algebra II, solid and plane geometry, and trigonometry.

Science, Math in Sputnik-dominated World

Vince Horning proves a mathematical theorem to Janet Thomas and Bob Boyd.

Lady Godiva, a new addition to health classes this year, was named by popular vote. Health teacher Mr. Alton Allen explains some of the virtues of this dazzling female to Larry DeJane, who is all eyes.
Extended to the students of SHS is a full, well-rounded curriculum in the social sciences. Included are American and world history, government, economics, psychology, geography, and international relations. All are primarily devoted to giving the student a better understanding of human institutions, customs, behavior, and environment.

World history, U.S. history and government, and world geography are all full-year courses, offering one credit. Economics is offered first semester and international relations, the second, each earning one-half credit.

Two credits of social science are needed for graduation. One of these, U.S. history and government, is required.

Classes employ varied methods of instruction—movies, panel discussions, notebooks, bulletin board displays, and guest speakers.

History and international relations classes keep up with current events and world affairs by subscribing to Senior Scholastic, a magazine which deals with current topics in the news.

All of these courses keep the students of SHS informed on the changing world around them.

Searching into the causes of the Civil War, classmates Nancy Talbott and Dorothy Semple explain the various reform movements which led to conflicts between the states.

Vocational Opportunities
Workers Take Census,

The behind-the-scenes play an important part in SHS. Running the main office smoothly and efficiently, publishing informative announcements every day, recording attendance and grade records, and handling correspondence keep secretaries Mrs. Donna Durham and Mrs. Erla Yates busy.

As athletic director, Mr. Fred Cope arranges schedules, sells tickets, orders equipment, provides letters for players, keeps the track in shape for meets, plus many other duties.

When a student becomes ill at school, Mrs. Riddle is the one to see. Among other things Mr. Phillips checks on absentees, schedules school buses, and takes the school census.

Performing countless services for students and teachers, custodians Charles Fineran, Jim Thomas, and Dan Johnson keep SHS in tip-top condition during the day, while Ike Crowl and his crew of janitresses clean up the debris after school hours.

Feeding starving students and teachers is the job tackled daily by Mrs. Rachel Pandolph, head dietitian, and her staff. Well-balanced, pleasing meals are the result of their efforts.

Keeping track of the many varied activities of SHS, office secretaries Mrs. Donna Durham and Mrs. Erla Yates efficiently manage the center of the school business in the main office.
Strike or spare? Phys ed instructor Miss Betty McKenna gets some of each, as she pursues one of her favorite pastimes. Her proficiency in many sports keeps her fit to compete with lively gym classes.

First a faint crackling, then a voice, and radio ham Frank Tarr, science teacher, has made a contact during one of the much enjoyed moments he spends with his home-made radio set.

Versatile Teachers

Setting the example for their students, SHS teachers lead well-rounded, varied lives. Bent on doing the best job they can, 11 have obtained masters’ degrees, while nine others have recently earned additional credits by attending extension courses or night school at nearby colleges.

Diverse interests reflect varied personalities, as free time finds instructors pursuing hobbies, such as antique collecting, photography, rose growing, fossil collecting, knitting, or horse raising.

Summer days find teachers traveling to workshops and conferences, exercising green thumbs, or participating in their favorite sports — golf, fishing, boating, and even skindiving.

Community churches claim some as organists, choir directors, and Sunday School teachers.

Civic-minded faculty members contribute time and energy to local clubs and organizations. The Quota Club, Hospital Auxiliary, Historical Society, Y.W.C.A., Board of Health, A.A.U.W., and Leornians are a few of the groups to which they lend support.

The home becomes the center of importance as children are reared (eight have children in Salem schools) or nieces, nephews, or grandchildren are entertained.
Handyman John P. Olloman, biology teacher, leaves the test tubes and dissections to relax in his cellar workshop producing such things as birdhouses and refinished tables.

Pursue Varied Hobbies

After 12 years at SHS, Asst. Prin. John Callahan resigned to become director of teacher certification in the Ohio State Department of Education in Columbus.

Bridge is a popular brain-relaxer among SHS teachers. "Seven no trump," bids Miss Helen Thorp, as Counselor Ala Zimmerman gleefully doubles. Desperate partners are Miss Claribel Bickel, left, and Miss Martha McCready.

Bandsmen March, Rehearse, Compete

Boldly announcing their arrival with a fanfare, the 53-piece marching band, augmented by players from Junior High, entertained the crowd at halftime at the football games. Polished to perfection by dauntless hours of practice and using the tricky formations created by Director Richard Howenstein, the red and gray ensemble wowed fans with precise marching and boosted the spirits of fans and players.

Adding the feminine touch, Drum Majorette Linda Heston headed the group, twirling sparklers and heaving her baton high over the goal post.

In honor of the eighth-ranked football team, the band sponsored a "Band-Football Frolic" with half-time entertainment, at which the band portrayed the football squad and the team portrayed the band.

As the winds began to blow outside, the concert band blew inside. Under the direction of Mr. Howard Pardee the musicians were transformed from a piercing football field aggregation to a tastefully musical concert band.

In preparation for a festival of bands held in Ashtabula in April, the group added two-hour Wednesday evening rehearsals to their regular sixth-period practice sessions.

Presenting four concerts this year, the band performed at two assemblies, the Junior High P.T.A., and the annual Spring Concert.

Recognition of individual bandsmen's work came with the many superior ratings received at District and State solo and ensemble contests, this year held in Canton.

The "Bandsman of the Year," chosen by the band members, received the John Philip Sousa Award at the Spring Concert.

The old saying, "Practice makes perfect," is illustrated by hard-working band members under the competent instructions of concert band director Howard Pardee.
Choristers Become Television Stars, Sing

Selling candy on doorsteps and making its debut before television cameras, the Robed Chorus worked its way through an up-tempo year.

Leading the long list of choir activities was the magazine drive in November. From these profits came the money for the vocal department's new hi-fi. To the high salesmen were awarded prizes ranging from stuffed dogs to transistor radios.

In the fall choristers began exercising their vocal chords on music for the Christmas programs, which were presented in a school assembly, a concert for the public, and at a noontime meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

For three months the music group had an additional member, Mr. William Charleton, a student of Kent State University, who came to observe and practice teaching techniques.

Busloads of songsters, glad to have an afternoon free from school, jaunted to Lisbon, where Salem's chorus formed the nucleus of the All-County Choir.
in All-County Choir, Sponsor Tag Day

in March. All-day rehearsals with other choristers from Columbiana County culminated in the final concert, under the direction of Mr. Walter Ehret, nationally known composer and conductor, who acted as guest director of the 200-voice choir.

Long, hopeful hours were spent in preparation for Marie Burns and solo ensemble contests in March.

A highlight of the year came when SHS’s Robed Chorus was invited to present three 15-minute television broadcasts over WEWS. With a deluge of new music came long evening practice sessions in preparation for the TV debut.

Tag Day was sponsored in the spring by the Choir Parents organization to help raise funds to foot travel expenses and pay for the recently purchased robes.

In April and May room 110 was filled with sounds of the 72-voice choir preparing for the Spring Concert, the last appearance of the seniors with the chorus.
Believing that practice makes perfect, the Mixed and Girls' Choruses drilled faithfully each day on their warm-up exercises and songs. A year's experience in one of these groups is required before attaining membership in the Robed Choir.

Evening rehearsals supplemented daily chorus classes in preparation for the Christmas concert and again in May before the annual Spring Concert.

Accompanying the Mixed Chorus was Ruth Ann Bennett, while Cheryl Mlinarcik and Patty Sweitzer took turns playing for the girls' group.
Deserving SHSers Win Awards

Designed to encourage creative work in capable students, the Marie Burns and Brooks Awards are given annually to deserving SHSers who are proficient in music and English.

In the Marie Burns Contest gifted musicians vie for cash prizes provided by a trust fund established by the late John Burns in memory of his wife. Vocalists are eligible to compete their sophomore and senior years, while instrumentalists contend their junior year. A committee from the Senior Music Study Club acts as critics.

The Brooks Contest was established to encourage creative writing by students.

SHS English teachers judge the entries. Their choices are based on originality, grammatical structure, and neatness. Cash prizes are awarded to winners at the spring recognition assembly.
Studying the Roman footsteps in the sands of time, Latin Club members heard reports of ancient Roman mythology and of conquests made during Caesar's reign.

Plays, songs, and games conducted in Latin highlighted the monthly meetings of the club, which is advised by Mrs. Beryl Tarr. In December a skit, entitled "Saturnalia," told of the way ancient Romans celebrated a holiday which was similar to present-day Christmas.

Inviting any student who has had one year of Latin to join the club, the members raised money by managing the refreshment stand at one basketball game. Profits from this project were used to finance the annual party held at the end of the year.

Saturnalia Sparks Interest of Latin Club
Los Conquistadores played host to several guest speakers during the year. Gladis Cubilla, an exchange student, informed the Spaniards of life in Panama, and Atty. Lozier Caplan gave an interesting account of his journey to Puerto Rico.

Another guest, Mr. John Bunjionanin, a native of Spain, held members spellbound with his detailed descriptions of a bull fight, from the time the enraged bull entered the ring until the fatal end.

Vending hot dogs, candy, and gum at the basketball stand filled the treasury. These profits helped to create a party atmosphere for the Spanish Fiesta. This gala affair, sponsored annually by Los Conquistadores, highlighted the year.

All second-year Spanish students and first-year students attaining a first semester B average are eligible for membership. The club is advised by Mr. Anthony Monteleone.
DE Club Travels, Vends Cosmetics

Often on the road, DE Club members, with adviser Miss Lee Lestock, spent many hours throughout the year traveling to meetings with other DEs. First the group journeyed to Alliance for a picnic with area clubs, then to Akron University for the District Convention. These events were followed later by a district meeting in Canton and the State Leadership Conference in Columbus.

With still more traveling in mind, the club planned a trip to the Merchandise Mart in New York City and raised funds for this through a three-month-long sale of cosmetics and proceeds from selling refreshments at a basketball game.

At Christmas DEs decorated the windows of the Santa Claus Shanty downtown.

The club concluded the school year with an employer-employee banquet in May.
Manipulation of the slide rule became less and less mystifying, as Miss Martha McCready, math teacher, demonstrated the proper use of it in Slide Rule Club meetings.

Senior mathematicians can now multiply and divide large figures, find square roots, and raise numbers to powers without having to rack their brains and take the risk of making simple mathematical mistakes.

Mastery of the fundamental mechanism of the slide rule is a skill that will be useful in college work in various lines of engineering and science.

Members abandoned the mathematical aspects of club activities to become full-fledged salesmen at a basketball stand which replenished their empty treasury.

BIOLOGY AIDES

Helping hands to biology teachers Mrs. Doris Cope and Mr. John Olloman, biology aides help sophomores with drawings, grade papers, take roll, assist in the stock room and greenhouse, and set up microscope slides.

Experience in helping others and review of previously studied material are of value to those interested in continuing study in the field of biology.

A grade of C, plus an avid interest in the subject and approval by the teachers, are the requirements necessary for a student, having completed a year of biology, to become an aide.

MONITORS AND AIDES

Learning what goes on behind the scenes, dean's aides, office assistants and monitors typed, filed, and occasionally rang bells.

"Service with a smile" aptly applies to these people, chosen to carry out various tasks by Prin. Beman Ludwig and Counselor Ala Zimmerman.

Always ready for a walk, they could be counted upon when there was a message to be delivered, absence slip to be tracked down, or forgetful student to be accompanied to his locker.

LIBRARIANS

SHS librarians gain valuable experience while performing a worthy service for their school. Their assorted jobs include checking books in and out of the library, repairing worn volumes, filing book cards, processing new books, issuing overdue slips, and keeping the well-stocked shelves in tip top order.

All the students selected by Miss Lois Lehman, librarian, to be her assistants must meet several requirements. One of these is maintaining honor roll grades.

Modern in every detail, the library is attractive and useful to students and faculty alike.

SC Sponsors Foreign Exchange Student

On their toes from September until June, Student Council members planned traditional functions and initiated new ideas. Together with Hi-Tri they sponsored Vocations Day in the fall, then gave $220 to Care and took an interest in SAIDC.

Revision of the constitution resulted in a new method of electing Student Council officers, who are now chosen by the student body the spring before they take office.

The annual tax stamp drive, plus plans for Student Teachers' Day and a talent assembly, were winter projects, while a scholarship banquet for students who maintained honor roll grades and sponsorship of a foreign exchange student were spring activities.

Various council members served as representatives to the Area Council, which sponsored a dance at Salem High in April.

Boys' Guidance Counselor Leroy Hoskins succeeded Mr. John Callahan, adviser for 12 years, who accepted a position in the State Department of Education.

Organized fundamentally as a service club, the Junior Red Cross fulfilled its main objective — helping others.

In December they collected canned goods, which were distributed to local needy families by the Senior Red Cross and the Salvation Army. The Yuletide season also found JRC members wrapping candy for underprivileged children.

In addition to carrying out an Easter project, JRC representatives aided the Senior Red Cross by helping at blood banks, folding letters, and sealing envelopes.

The school obtained one hundred per cent membership in JRC during the annual drive conducted by elected homeroom representatives.

The club, which is advised by Mrs. Helen Mulbacher, selected two representatives to attend the summer conference at Miami University.
With candles glowing, new members learned the meaning of service and loyalty at Hi-Tri's formal initiation in the fall.

Continually striving to help others, Hi-Tri undertook many worthwhile projects during the year. The girls donated food at Thanksgiving for the Red Cross to distribute. Christmas time found the members giving food, clothing, and money to make the holiday merrier for a needy family.

Giving students an inside view of various professions, Vocations Day, co-sponsored annually by Hi-Tri and Student Council, proved a success. The sale of Salem High stationery, plus the profit from football and basketball stands, boosted the treasury.

Newly elected officers were formally installed at the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet in the spring. Miss Claribel Bickel and Mrs. Frank Tarr advise the club.

Key Club Opens Door to Service

Kiwanis-sponsored Key Club, open to senior high boys, joined the list of school organizations this year.

Although the group did not receive their charter until December, they organized and elected officers last spring and sent two delegates to the International Convention in Toronto, Canada.

The club's aim, the development of initiative, leadership ability, and good citizenship practices, was adequately fulfilled.

To personify school spirit Key Clubbers built a king-size "Sam, the Quaker Man," who reigned over football and basketball games. In co-operation with other Keys the organization initiated the awarding of a trophy to the winner of the annual Salem-East Liverpool football game. Club members helped with the Community Chest drive, sponsored a benefit faculty basketball game for the Heart Fund, and aided in the city clean-up campaign.

Participating in the "Kiwanis Kapers," the club earned money to send delegates to the International Convention in Boston.

Mr. Frank Tarr advised the club.
Fems Tumble Tenpins, Take Jaunts

"Strike," echoed through the local bowling alleys, when the GAAers managed to knock down all of the tenpins. This, plus basketball and volleyball in the gym, kept the gals busy during their evening sessions held every two weeks.

With the aid and advice of their adviser, Miss Betty McKenna, they learned the rules and techniques of the games, at the same time improving their sportsmanship qualities.

Hitting the road, members took jaunts to area schools for joint GAA meetings, then played host to these clubs in return.

With their hearts set on a summer trip to New York members strove to earn enough money by vending pajama bags and greeting cards and taking charge of a football stand.
Science-minded students find enrichment by joining Formaldeaides.

Several trips were on their 1960 agenda. One took them to Salem’s filtration plant at the city reservoir, where they became acquainted with procedures in the purification of the city’s water. Other journeys took them to the observatory at Mount Union, a hospital, and an orchid greenhouse in East Palestine.

The Formaldeaides while at home spend much time supplying and taking care of the year-old greenhouse. They purchase and plant new flowers and plants, care for the soil, and keep the greenhouse in order.

All the biology aides and chemistry aides are eligible for membership in the club, which is under the sponsorship of biology teacher Mr. John Olloman.

OFFICERS — Joyce Ann Halverstadt, president; Polly Schmid, vice-president; Marilyn Fenton, treasurer.

Enthusiastic Y-Teens Add New Furniture,
Hear Speakers, Hold Slumber Parties

From dances and slumber parties to speakers and panel discussions, Y-Teen programs covered a wide range of interests.

Ideas were broadened by viewing films and hearing foreign speakers from British Guiana and Sweden, while waistlines expanded with the samples of the native foods each offered.

Learning skills essential to all women, the Y-Teens had homemaking preview sessions on silverware, interior decorating and diets, and demonstrations of teen hair fashions by local hair stylists.

Servicewise, the girls helped with the assembling and financing of the Multiple Sclerosis magazine, the Round Robin.

The senior “Bee Social” featured square dancing and food, while the Rumbletones were the main attraction of the junior club’s dance. The Y was open to all for post-basketball game hops.

With the gradual addition of comfortable new chairs and other furniture, the Y became a homey place for girls to come for pizza parties after swimming at the Alliance YMCA or ice-skating. The building also saw its share of slumber parties.

Volunteering to sell programs at athletic events and checking coats at the basketball games, the girls raised funds for their various programs and projects.

In November delegates Mickey Cope and Linda Loop attended the National Y-Teen Conference in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Last summer’s State Conference supplied ideas for program chairmen Trina Loria, Barb Sanders and Brenda Smith. Other representatives to this conference at Ohio Wesleyan University were senior president Dianne Tomkinson, junior Linda Loop, and sophomore president Joyce Mallery. The clubs worked with Mrs. Doris Cope, Y-Teen co-ordinator.

YWCA Week was commemorated in April with a mother-daughter tea.
Pepsters Fill Sports Seasons with Zip

Loyal SHSers, eager to boost school spirit, team morale, and good sportsmanship, found Pep Club just the place for them. Many enthusiastic students kept its membership growing.

Under the guidance of Coaches Earle Bruce and John Cabas, members sold Quaker ribbons, pennants, and stickers to faithful fans. Later, financing new varsity and reserve cheerleading uniforms kept the pepsters busy.

Scrounging up old logs, pieces of firewood, and sheets of cardboard to burn in huge, blazing bonfires before football games occupied the spare time of many hard-working members. Everyone looked forward to rallying round the bonfire, hearing comments by team members, and cheering.

Before each bonfire the Pep Club, along with the Boosters Club, co-sponsored parades. These rallies helped to produce a united school spirit.

Staging pep assemblies was another activity of this versatile organization. Various skits entertained the student body, including one which featured the cheerleaders and coach of the Skunk Hollow basketball team.

Artistically-inclined members dabbed in paint and created signs which decorated the halls before game time, keeping that SHS spirit alive.

Digging deep, Coach Cabas forks over his money to purchase a Quaker pennant sold by Pep Club members Dawn Kloos and Sandy Lee Wilt.

Midnight oil burned bright as Quaker Annual editors worked on drawing layouts, writing captions, cropping pictures, and preparing the dummy, while the assistants pasted up underclass panels, drew layouts, and lent a helping hand wherever it was needed. Writers dug up information and tried their best to write copy to fit situations that would not exist for two months.

The editors and assistants, along with adviser Mrs. Ruth Loop, met weekly during the summer to discuss the do's and don'ts of planning layouts.

Before the final deadline the staff worked feverishly against old "Father Time." Detail after detail had to be checked and re-checked and a few last-minute changes had to be made. Suddenly April 1 rolled around and the book was hopefully sent to press.

The scurrying activities and secret meetings ceased, but the tenseness of the waiting period grew until the Recognition Assembly in May, when the Quaker Annual of 1960 was revealed.
All-American Quaker Informs SHSers

Keeping Salem students, as well as Salem residents, up to date on events in and around SSHS was the major goal of this year's Quaker Bi-weekly staff. Captained by editors Vincent Taus, Karen Combs, and Tony Everett, this smooth-running team published another All-American volume of 15 issues of the Quaker, including one in color and four six-page issues.

The writers used name-dropping to good advantage, printing every senior's name at least once. Thirty personal interviews appeared within the 68 pages of Quaker news. Several published letters-to-the-editor indicated willing student-body participation and resulted in greater service to the school.

Always alert for special events, the staff presented several P.A. broadcasts, including editorials, and a report on Mr. Khrushchev's Washington Press Club speech.

The able Bi-weekly staff, with its human interest stories, editorials, and up-to-date news, has made the Salem Quaker truly the voice of SSHS.

SHS Businessmen Pound Pavement

Money—M-O-N-E-Y—the substance a publication must have to survive—was supplied in ready quantities by the real businessmen of SHS, the Quaker business staff.

Put through their paces by somewhat harried, but efficient, business managers, Pam Chentow and Barbara Bricker, they pounded the pavements in quest of Salem merchants who would invest in reliable Quaker Bi-Weekly or Annual ads. These hearty salesmen again trudged the streets of downtown Salem to gather their fees from big-hearted businessmen who invested so wisely.

Development of dependability, perseverance, and poise, plus the satisfaction of contributing to the success of the award-winning publications of SHS, were their chief rewards.

Central Treasurer Fred Burchfield, faculty adviser and stabilizer of this organization, supervised the handling of the records, statements, and, of course, the money.

Friday afternoons found the circulation staff in the QO folding, counting, and distributing the Salem Quaker.
Six green dollars bought a little red ticket which meant a red hot time for SHS students with the aid of the Association. This ticket admitted students to all home football and basketball games and track meets, and purchased the Quaker Bi-weekly and Annual at greatly reduced rates.

Fun, dancing, and eating were available to Association members at the All-Class party. In the spring the annual Association party was held.

Cliff and Karen Berry, a juggling, roping, singing unicycle team, provided the entertainment for the assembly sponsored by the Association this year.

Copping top honors in the membership drive with 100 percent of their class joining was Room 191. Placing second and third were rooms 165 and 140 with 95.7 per cent and 93.3 per cent, respectively.

Central Treasurer Fred Burchfield is the business adviser. Taking charge of the Association party was Mr. George Cummings, art teacher.

QUAKERS
Completing another in a long string of successful track campaigns, the 1959 edition of the Zellersmen swept five dual meets, tying one; one triangular meet; placed second and fifth in the County and District Meets, respectively; and finished fifth in the Canton Night Relays.

The Quaker thinclads chalked up 675 points in contrast to their opponents' 269, while whipping Canton Glenwood, Louisville, Girard, Sandy Valley, Ravenna, tying Youngstown Ursuline, and trouncing Cardinal Mooney and Hubbard in the lone triangular meet.

In the State Meet, which sent Jim Solmen, Ben Jones and Lou Slaby traveling to Columbus, muscular Lou snapped a long-standing Quaker record, when he tossed the shot 49 feet, 6 inches.

Although the outcome of the County Meet was somewhat disappointing to the Quakers, two of the cindermen claimed firsts in their specialties—Ralph Ehrhart won the discus throw, and Tim Burchfield won the 220-yd. dash. The mile relay team, composed of Tom Floyd, Richard Burt, Jim Plegge, and Ben Jones, triumphed.

Finishing fifth in the all-important District Meet, the thinclads posted one first and two seconds. Jim Solmen copped the mile run and finished second in the 880. Ben Jones finished second in the 440-yd. dash.

Leaders of Coach Karl Zellers' track aces in the running events were Co-captains Ben Jones and Fred McNeal, Ralph Ehrhart, Kent Malloy, Jim Solmen, Charley Horn, Tim Burchfield, Dan Krichbaum, and Ed Yates.

Headlining in the field events were Lou Slaby, Jim Lehwald, Bob Zeppernick, Ned Chappell, Rick Sulea, Jim Goodballet, and Bob Lambert. This group was instrumental in the exciting comeback tie with Youngstown Ursuline, as they racked up 32 of Salem's 59 points in field events.

Top scoring honors went to Ehrhart, Burchfield, Jones, Solmen, and Horn with 74, 73, 62, 53, and 50 points, respectively.

Stretching every muscle, Richard Burt hands the baton to Co-captain Tim Burchfield to start the important anchor lap of the mile relay.
Mustering every ounce of energy, Ed Yates breezes over the second low hurdle in a practice warm-up before a dual meet at Reilly.

Catapulting high over the cross bar is muscular senior Chuck Horn, who is also a broadjumper. His highest pole vault is 11-8.
Senior thin clad 1960 Co-captain Jim Solmen prepares to start his favorite event, the mile. Sol is a four-letter winner in the cinder sport.

Track coach Karl Zellers has a commanding view of all the events from the infield of the Reilly oval. His teams have won 17 out of 18 dual meets in the last four years.

Letters, Break Record

Carrying out the aims of the phys ed program — keeping boys healthy and well co-ordinated — boys’ gym teacher Bob Miller explains proper tumbling procedures to Tom Dahms.

With bulging muscles, athletic skills and plenty of competitive spirit, SHS boys let out their pent-up energies in gym classes.

Coached by their chosen captains, boys learned teamwork and good sportsmanship in their 10-game basketball series. They developed individual skills in golf, archery and tumbling. Several boys worked out with the group of tumblers who practiced in the gym after school. Displaying their abilities, they presented a school assembly and a half-time program at a basketball game.

After Christmas a new idea went into practice — co-educational gym classes. Guys joined the gals in folk dances of various countries. They went through steps ranging from the Virginia Reel and the square dance to the Miser Lou and the Kola, oriental dances.

Stretching their muscles to get the birdie or ball up and over the net, the gymnasts played enthusiastic games of badminton and volleyball. Other team sports were soccer and softball. Speed-ball and football were played outside on warm days.

Two of 14 senior gym aides, Bob Zeppernick and Joe Julian, instruct boys in the fundamentals of tumbling.
Away from classroom tension, girls in gym class let their hair down, as they scramble for a runaway basketball.

Putting aside their books and donning shorts and gym shoes, girls learned various athletic skills in gym classes this year, along with the value of keeping physically fit.

Each class divided into teams and a series of competitive games in volleyball, badminton, whiffle ball, and basketball was played.

Stiff, aching muscles resulted when the gymnasts took to the mats to develop skills in tumbling. Forward rolls, backward rolls, straight-legged rolls, flips and cartwheels were some of the acrobatic stunts.

In the spring the gals perfected their abilities in archery and golf. When weather permitted, classes were held outside where the girls let loose with some lively games of softball.

Knowledge of sports rules was tested at various times by written examinations.
Quakers’ Mighty Defense Pays Off in Thundering to a sensational 8-1 season, the eighth-ranked Quakers added another link to their chain of successful campaigns.

Coach Earle Bruce’s powerhouse trounced eight Ohio teams, their only loss coming at the hands of out-of-state Ambridge. With scores resembling those of runaway basketball games the Quakers romped over Cleveland Lincoln 42-0, Ravenna 48-0, and Canton Timken 32-0.

Filled with enthusiasm and determination this Quaker combine humbled the sixth-ranked East Liverpool Potters 20-0 in one of the most thrilling games of the season. Akron Hoban, another tough ball club, fell victim to the mighty Quakers. The Brucomen also stomped Boardman, the only Ohio team to score upon them, 36-8.

The Quaker gridders amassed 292 points to their opponents’ 22. Co-captain Fred Phillis contributed 100 of these, while rushing for 977 yards.

Ned Chappell, the other co-captain, led Salem’s mighty forward wall on offense and defense, while calling the defensive signals and leading all tacklers with 47 to his credit.

Another spark, Pete Schmauch, tallied 76 points and 867 yards in rushing. Frank Copacia’s blocking ability gave a boost to his fellow backs. Quarterback Vince Horning completed nearly 50 per cent of his passes for 767 yards and six touchdowns.

Many honors came to the Earle Bruce-coached Quakers, including a distinguished first, Star tackle, Ned Chappell, is the first Salem player ever chosen to play in the annual North-South game, which is held each August at Canton’s Fawcett Stadium.

Other honors included the placement of seven stars on the All-County team. Named to the first squad were Ned Chappell, Pete Schmauch, Fred Phillis, and Don Davidson, who was named co-captain. Joe Julian made the second team and Fred Harshman and Vince Horning rounded out the third.

Horning, Schmauch, Phillis, Chappell, and Julian will play in the All-County All-Star game between Columbiana and Beaver counties in August.

Julian made the third team All-State squad, while Phillis and Davidson received honorable mention.

Spectacular Season

Long, lanky and extremely powerful end Don Davidson outdistances two pursuing opponents after hauling in another long aerial.

Coach Earle Bruce studies action on the field, while he gets the dope on strategy from an assistant high above in the press box.
Football award winners, Joe Julian, Tom Dahms, and Fred Phillis reminisce over the rough battle with Akron Hoban, when Fred broke away to score the only touchdown.

Some of Salem’s greatest and best-conditioned athletes develop from the ranks of the Quakers’ perennially strong football squads. The ’59 season was exceptionally productive.

Fifteen seniors and eleven juniors copped varsity letters, while Fred Kaiser was the lone sophomore to rate a Varsity monogram.

One of the finest honors which an athlete can receive is one which is bestowed on him by his teammates. Joe Julian was voted Outstanding Lineman, while he and Fred Phillis shared the Most Valuable Player award. The Knights of Columbus award, which goes to the four-year man with the highest scholastic average, went to star center Tom Dahms.

The players, however, were not the only ones who received awards and honors. Coach Bruce was selected to coach the Columbiana County All-Stars who will play the Beaver County All-Stars this summer.

Co-captain Fred Phillips scampers into the open field behind nifty downfield blocking by quarterback Vince Horning. Tony Petrucci (69) and Chuck Metcalf (63) move in to assist.

Rompin' Ron Janovec sidesteps two befuddled opponents to grind out another sizable chunk of valuable yardage. Junior Ron figures heavily in hopes of the 1960 gridders.

Exhibiting great potential for the future, 1959's powerful reserve squad surged to six victories without a setback.

With a balanced scoring attack and a great defensive unit, which allowed the Quaker opponents only two touchdowns, the reserve gridders enveloped Campbell Memorial 28-0, Columbiana 26-0, Wellsville 42-0, and Boardman 26-6. They also squeaked past East Palestine 12-6, and repeated a previous triumph with an 8-0 win over Campbell Memorial.

Sparkling the Jayvee point-producers was junior end Duane McClaskey, who crossed the last chalk marker seven times for 42 points. John DelFavero notched 22 markers for the runner-up slot, while Chuck Hertel and Jim Goodballet garnered 20 points apiece.

Speedy quarterback Gary Devan displayed flashes of brilliance in passing and running, being extremely adept on the rollout.

In every contest the Devan-to-McClaskey aerial combo clicked for at least one TD pass, an auspicious harbinger of the 1960 season.
Undefeated Season

Performing one of his many duties, head football manager Richard Dickey confers with Athletic Director Fred Cope about the condition of equipment.

Halftime Fred Phillis skirts the left end of Cleveland Lincoln for another first down, as Salem breezes to their first win.

The men behind the lines, who supply the players with equipment and medicinal supplies, as well as advice, are the managers and trainers.

Handling at least $30,000 worth of equipment ranging from helmets and shoulder pads to blocking dummies were head manager Richard Dickey and his assistants, Deward Hixenbaugh and George Lozier.

Head trainer John Catlos and his understudy, Ron Ganslein, remedied aches and pains of the athletes with expert rubdowns, ankle-wrapping, and whirlpool baths.

Bonfire, football field, pep assembly, or basketball court—wherever school spirit was found, SHS cheerleaders were there to encourage it.

Long hours of practice paid off as students responded enthusiastically to the six varsity pepsters, aided at several basketball games by mascots Nancy Fester and Gary Porter.

Showing true Quaker sportsmanship, these girls wrote a letter of congratulations to the Warren cheerleaders after Warren defeated Salem in the sectional tournament. Impressed by this, the Warren principal commended Salem for having "wonderful, courteous cheerleaders."

The official pep promoters were not always leading cheers. They sponsored the election of the Basketball Queen and, with adviser Miss Betty McKenna, raised funds by selling refreshments. Varsity, as well as reserve, cheerleaders sported new outfits this year. After football season the varsity traded slacks for black Quaker uniforms with white collars and cuffs. The reserve girls donned red skirts and overblouses.
Add Sparkle to Gridiron, Hardwoods

Spurring the JVs on to victory, peppy reserve cheerleaders keep the beat to a rhythmic cheer.

Adding the feminine touch to the halftime show at football games, SHS majorettes pranced down the field leading the band. These five versatile girls twirled a variety of batons, including flag, lighted, fire, and sparkler. Much time was spent mastering intricate dance steps.

Honoring the new state, Hawaii, the girls donned hula skirts and multicolored leis in a halftime dance routine.

Leading the band this year was head drum majorette Linda Heston in place of the customary drum major.

MAJORETTES — Lorraine Purdee, Susan Mathews, Linda Heston, Sue White, Linda Whipkey.
During their second year in SHS's spacious 10,000-square-foot gymnasium Coach John Cabas's varsity roundballers rolled through another top-notch season, copping 17 victories in 20 outings. The Quakers dropped the three frays by a meager four points.

Youngstown East's Golden Bears upended the locals 42-41 as a result of a heartbreaking last-second basket. Later in the regular season the Cabasmen were dropped 60-59 by Akron St. Vincent, and during the sectional tournament Warren defeated the Red and Black 54-52.

Perhaps the biggest Quaker victories came early in the campaign, as they thumped powerful Cleveland Cathedral Latin 52-38 and vanquished a highly rated Columbus East quintet 64-59.

Highlighting the highly productive season was the clever ball-hawking and sharpshooting of Salem's two co-captains and backcourt duo, Dave Hunter and Dan Krichbaum. Dan has been called the best defensive player ever to see action in Salem, while Dave has the honor of being one of the finest point-producers.
Brilliant Season, Continue Winning Ways

Dave and Dan combined with senior Jim Lehwald to form the nucleus of another wide-open fast breaking offense characteristic of Salem squads.

Giant 6-5 senior Erick Theiss copped the honors for the most accurate foul-shooter, while 6-4 junior Don Davidson paced the locals in rebounding by grabbing 216. Jim Solmen a 6-foot plus senior proved to be an able sixth man, filling in anywhere he was needed.

Leading the Quaker scoring parade was Dave Hunter who pumped in 459 markers in 20 games. Dave’s big night was March 4, when the 5-11 senior scorched the cords for 43 points, a new SHS scoring record. Dan Krichbaum was runner-up with 268; Don Davidson bombed 217 points through the nets; Jim Lehwald, 177; Rick Theiss, 126; and Jim Solmen, 103.

Dazzling Dave Hunter, Quaker co-captain, pops a southpaw jump shot, as he gets a screen from Jim Solmen (14). Don Davidson (12) moves in for a possible rebound.

Jumping Jim Solmen (34) battles two foes for an important rebound. Quaker co-captains Dave Hunter (14) and Dan Krichbaum (12) move in to assist.

Reserve Squad Shows

VARSITY LETTERMEN — Dan Krichbaum, Jim Solmen, Ed Yates, Erick Theiss, Don Davidson, Jim Lehwald, Dave Hunter.
Under the expert tutelage of Coach Karl Zellers, the 1959-60 Junior Varsity cage contingent chalked up another top-notch record, ending the year with a 16-1 slate. The only blemish was inflicted by the Youngstown East juniors 46-42.

Possibly the most thrilling contest of the season came on January 29 on the Wellsville hardwoods, when the host Tigers pushed the Jayvees into double overtime before bowing 70-68 as a result of a one-hander by Quaker soph Gary Jeffries.

Sparked by the sharpshooting of Bob Eskay and Fred Harshman, the little Quakers popped in 1053 markers to their opponents' 758, an average of 66.6 to 45.3.

One big factor, along with pin-point marksmanship, that shows the potential of future SHS varsity quintets, is the number of reserve cagers standing six feet or better. Leading the parade of future varsity giants are 6-1 Duane McClaskey, 6-3 Ron Janovec, and a pair of 6-4 forwards, Tod Couchie and Ted Thorne.

Recounting the story of our school year was hard work, but it was fun. We spent many hours in the summer planning the book and during the school year our ideas took shape. Late hours, Saturday sessions, and deadlines kept us on the go.

Many thanks go to the Troup and Pluto Studio, Lyle Printing Co., the Salem News, and Youngstown Arc Engraving Co. for their professional advice and assistance.

We are grateful to Prin. B. G. Ludwig, Business Adviser Fred Burchfield, the faculty, school personnel, the business and editorial staffs, assistants, and photographers for their cooperation and loyalty. Above all we thank Mrs. Loop for all of her time and trouble, and our parents for putting up with our irregular schedules.

Our task completed, we present this book to you—students of SHS—to treasure and keep through the years.
